Lodge, Dirksen Given Nod At Mock Convention

Bi-Partisan Group Picks 2 Republicans

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, and Republican Minority Leader Everett S. Dirksen were presidential and vice presidential choices of Idaho students at the bi-partisan Mock Political Convention Sunday.

Lodge won over President Lyndon Baines Johnson on the second ballot after he had trailed Johnson and New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller on the first.

Lodge won with a total of 647 votes. Johnson had 548 and Rockefeller dropped to 45 on the second ballot.

Arizona's Republican Senator Barry Goldwater was dropped after the first ballot when the convention passed a motion from the floor to drop all candidates with less than 100 votes.

He claimed 92 votes to 344 for Johnson, 229 for Rockefeller and 200 for Lodge on the first ballot.

Also running for the Presidential nomination in the convention were Governors George Romney, Michigan; George Wallace, Alabama; and John Rhodes, Ohio; and Senators Margaret Chase Smith, Maine; and Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Dirksen on Third
Dirksen was nominated on the third ballot after many delegates had left the room when the convention was running over two hours late.

He won with 474 votes to Johnson's 444. The two were the only candidates on the third ballot, after all other candidates had been dropped after the first ballot except Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton, who was dropped on the second.

Also nominated were Idaho Governor Robert E. Smylie, Senator Smith, Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.) and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Focus on Barry
Both of the keynote speakers Saturday focused on Goldwater. State Democratic Chairman Lloyd Walker sought to identify the Republican Party with the far right and with Goldwater in his Democratic keynote speech. Republican keynoter, State Sen. Perry Swisher, R-Banock, spoke to discount the claim that the Republican Party was the center of the far right. However, he praised the Arizonan for catching the imagination of American Youth.

Sharing the convention podium with Walker and Swisher were State Republican Chairman John O. McMurray of Boise and State Rep. Pete Cenarrussa, R-Blaine, speaker of the House in the 1963 Legislature. Cenarrussa served as temporary chairman of the convention until Linda Bithell, Pi Phi, was elected permanent chairman by the delegates.

"I thrill at past Democratic victories," Walker said, citing the passage of the Wagner Act, small business acts and "the struggle to maintain farm programs and educational excellence."

Hitting at Goldwater, Walker said, "We are not the party of that fearless thinker, Barry Goldwater, that great natural gimmick man with a five-word solution for everything."

Journalism Meet Expects 300 Kids

More than 300 students and their advisors are expected to attend the 18th Annual University High School Journalism Conference beginning at the University Thursday.

More than 40 papers have been submitted for the newspaper judging contest, Bert Cross, head of the journalism department, said last week.

Pocatello, Mountain Home, Wendell, Hailey, Bonners Ferry, Council, Grangeville, Marsing, Salmon and Shoshone are a few of the schools sending delegations to the conference, said Cross.

Staff contests available include news writing, sports sections, feature writing and service to school articles. These articles must have been published in the high school paper before February 20.

Dorsey - Hunter
Eugene Dorsey, general manager, The Statesman Newspapers, Boise, will speak on "Your Opportunities in Journalism," at the general assembly on Friday morning. President D. R. Theophilus and Kip Peterson, editor of the Argonaut, will welcome the high school journalists.

"Passport to Adventure" will be the topic of Ralph W. Hunter, editor-publisher, The Meridian News-Times and president of the Idaho Press Association, at a dinner Friday evening in the Ballroom of the Student Union Building.

Friday and Saturday have group sessions on yearbooks and various types of printing slated. Panel sessions will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday.

Covering printed newspapers will be Ron Hayes, Lewiston High school, as moderator and student panelists, Linda Koester, Salmon; Gail Chaloupka, Boise; Jerry Thornton, Mountain Home, and

500 Students At SUB's 'Hamlet'
More than 500 University of Idaho students attended one of the four showings of "Hamlet" this weekend, Ron Post, Sigma Nu, SUB Films Committee chairman, said Monday.

Post said that more than 150 people attended the three regular showings, and that 27 were there for the special Thursday night performance.

"It was an experiment on our part," he said. "The students who were there seemed to like what they saw — I suspect that they might be return customers on another showing. This time, though, most of them were there because they were required to be."

"Henry the Fifth will be shown during the first part of May," he said. "Decisions on other movies will depend, in part, on the student response."

April Opens Dorm Bids
The opening of bids on a $1,375,000 addition to the Wallace Residence Center at the University has been set by the Regents for April 21. President D. R. Theophilus said recently.

The addition, to be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1965, will be built several years ahead of schedule to provide quarters for the large increase in students that has exceeded all expectations.

The addition will be financed by Regents' bonds to be paid off from revenue — the same financing program as was used for the original structure.

The new center was dedicated only last October. It now has two four-story units, each serving 212 students, and a central cafeteria. The addition on which bids are to be called will be six stories high and will house about 300 students.

Scenes of courtyards, gardens, banquet halls, churchyards and costumes are a main attraction in the causeway of the SUB.

Aspects of Opera
The display, depicting various aspects from the Mozart opera "Don Giovanni," shows various scenes and costume designs with samples of materials suggested.

After competing in stiff examinations and displaying their skills and knowledge, the three artists achieved professional status in separate New York trade unions.

They completed their work for the entrance requirements for the 1963 exams.

Show Ability
The three were required to demonstrate familiarity with construction techniques, historical styles, use of fabrics, color, paint and light. They had to exhibit their abilities also with sketching, drafting, drawing, painting and a sense of drama.

The requirements for the exam differed for each category, but all three categories required a project of depicting some aspect of "Don Giovanni."

A month was allowed for designing before the applicants went through two days of answering questions.

The display, by artists George James, Jane Freenwood, and Ben Spector, was at the University of Washington before coming to our campus. It will soon be at Montana State.

King candidates include Tom Little, Delt; Bill Morrow, Sigma Chi; Dick Bennett, Delta Chi; Jerry Ahlin, Beta; George Corrigan, Phi Delt; Jim Griffith, FarmHouse; Larry French Lindley.

The final platform regarded integration as "primarily a problem of education rather than legislation" but advocated anti-discrimination laws by congress.

Other platform planks called for a balanced budget, a strongly manned military force, a Medicare program, limited federal aid to education and continued farm price supports.

Each cabinet holds 60 drawers and each drawer has a potential capacity of 1,000 cards.

The conference will close with the awarding of plaques and certificates to winning schools and individuals at a luncheon on Saturday.

8 New Stands In U-I Library
Eight new card catalog stands are being installed in the library vestibule to bring the total to eighteen, according to library personnel.

Each cabinet holds 60 drawers and each drawer has a potential capacity of 1,000 cards.

The concert, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union, will be followed by Ross' talk about Shakespearean comedy and Christian love.

Techniques of Shakespearean acting is the topic of Ross' second talk Thursday at 2 p.m. in the Student Union.

A King and Queen contest, an all-out freshmen exchange, a legs contest, and the annual tug-of-war between the freshmen and sophomore classes are the big events.

"Ballots for the preliminary election of Fresh King and Queen will be distributed at noon today to each living group," said Dick Rush, Delt, co-chairman of the contest.

"Each freshman should be sure to vote for five candidates," he added.

Pictures of the candidates are displayed in the Student Union Building entrance, and individual living groups have been advertising their nominees on the side.

The Golden Fleece

By Jason

A "student leader" is something more than a student, yet something less. He is something more in his knowledge of the University, of the administration, of the issues besetting the University, of the reasoning behind administrative actions, of developing long-range views of the educational base, of the responsibility he holds. He is something less because he has less time for study, for cultural events, for b-s-ing in the SUB, for bridge, for living group activities, for social contacts. He gains contact with the administration, state leaders and other "student leaders." He loses contact with roommates, apathetic individuals, classes. Gain: organization, the ability to glean facts quickly, fast retention. Lose: details, time for full development of projects. Gain: access to documents and unusual literature (Nazi, Communist, Socialist, NAACP, for example). Lose: time for novels, magazines, reading unrelated to the job at hand. Gain: self-confidence. Lose: self-identity, become a title instead of a human. Lose: private, individualized ideas as they become amalgamated with those who attempt to impress their ideas upon him. His become less individual, more compromised as others attempt to influence or change his ideas, or to add to his own conception of, knowledge of, or opinion of, something. Gain: some tact. Lose: realization that not everyone has developed his channels of information. He expects those who question his projects to have the background in them that he has, yet realizes that they can't have his specialized information. * * * Even with the realization of the differences between a student and a so-called "student leader," it is difficult for the "leader" to adjust to the differences. It is difficult to seek out informal student contacts (and keep them informal) even though the contacts are being deliberately and systematically cultivated. At student leader, then, is a homostudent. He is one of a breed which breeds more content for itself than admiration, more misunderstanding of his breed than realization of its positive value. He is one of a cross between student and administrator, understood by neither, cultivated by both, wanted as a person by neither. Compliment for the day: State Rep. Pete Cenarrusa for his help in keeping the Mock Political Convention moving with some semblance of order.

Unrealistic?

The Mock Political Convention ended Sunday night after 14 hours of session this weekend for convention delegates. When it was over, people were tired—some were happy—some disappointed.

From our standpoint the convention was a success. More people participated in the convention than in any other single activity on campus. There were no Greek-Independent implications; just Republican vs. Democrats. This is a relief on the University campus to say the least.

Some passion was aroused, some delegates walked out. But as State Democratic Chairman Lloyd Walker said, "If no passion were aroused the convention would not have been a success." Walker also felt it was the most successful convention he had witnessed.

There has been criticism about the unrealistic atmosphere of the convention. True, the convention was unrealistic. There are no bipartisan conventions. Also, delegates let their own feelings become predominant in their voting patterns.

However, this was to be expected. In a national convention, the delegates also let their personal feelings influence their voting. So in a sense, an abstinance of personal feelings would too have been unrealistic.

Also, some delegations who were consecutively accusing others of voting unrealistically were performing the same function themselves. A predominant example was California.

If the advisory committee had ruled the voting patterns of Louisiana and New York as unrealistic as California and other states wished, they would also have to rule the voting patterns of California unrealistic. For, in the opinion of many others it was unrealistic for the State of California to go 100 per cent democratic.

Also, the advisory committee felt, and rightfully so, that they had no right to determine the realism of the voting patterns of one state over another.

Also, States were being unrealistic in walking out. The purpose of the convention was primarily educational in nature. WHO was nominated was not nearly as important as the learning process involved.

Lloyd Walker suggested that instead of one bipartisan convention, two conventions should be produced. The conventions would be held simultaneously with the same delegations represented for each. There would be no favorite sons nominated in the interest of time, and the nominating speeches, demonstrations, rallies, etc. would also have to be eliminated or limited.

After the first convention, either Democrat or Republican, the second convention would be held. This solution would solve the criticisms of a bipartisan convention. But it would also present certain problems.

For example, the interest and the passion of the convention Saturday and Sunday would have to be absent to a great degree. The interest of the students was congratulated by Pete Cenarrusa and others.

Also, the color and atmosphere of the convention would be definitely limited because of time limitations.

The two-convention plan, would also present organizational problems. There were plenty of organizational problems that beset the convention this weekend. Many students have put in so much time in organizing behind the scenes duties that they haven't opened a book in four weeks.

Would it be possible to have enough interested, responsible students willing to work to meet the organizational needs? We wonder.

As far as the unrealism of nominated candidates, we question that attitude. Lodge was supported by the Republican delegations as a mediation between the Rockefeller and Goldwater factions. This could very easily occur nationally.

Also, Dirksen is not as unlikely a candidate as some might think.

Although his nomination was largely due to the organization of the Iowa delegation, Tri Delta, and its chairman Sara Lowell, he isn't entirely absent from the minds of State Political Leaders.

Dirksen is the most influential man in the United States Senate. He supports the Democratic administration on Foreign policy and opposes them on domestic issues. For this reason he has support from both Democrats and Republicans, a fact national political leaders are not likely to forget when the Republican convention rolls around. K.S.

Area Directors To Be Chosen

Interviews for new area directors will be held by Activities Board from 7 to 10 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Union.

Openings include the areas of Recreation, Service, Social, Publicity, Educational - Cultural and Vandal Rally Committee.

Area information may be obtained from the present area directors, Dick Jennings, Delta Sig, Educational-Cultural; Nancy Grubb, Pi Phi, Social; Gerald Huettig, Delta Sig, or Sue Solomon, Theta, Publicity; Arlene Ulcheta, Pi Phi, Services; Pat Killen, Beta, Events; and Kris Wales, Phi Delt, Recreation.

Interested students may procure application blanks in the ASUI office.

Staff Notes

By JIM FAUCHER

One of the dominating results in the recent ASUI elections was the fact that the first three candidates to be elected to Executive Board were running independently of a political party. Does this mean that a new trend in political thinking is springing from the fount of the University of Idaho? Yes.

Considering that three candidates were elected is not that much of a surprise, but since they were the first on the ASUI slate shows that some of the students on this campus may be starting to think for themselves, and it is about time. If there was ever a time for some one to start another political party on this campus the time is now, and not a "Week from Tuesday."

Before the election an attempt to progress along this line was started by a member of the present Executive Board, but it appeared that everyone else had other ideas and while talking about starting another party with one mouth, they were striving for themselves with their other mouth. The attempt to organize this party failed and so far there has been no attempt to start a lake of progress from this new way of thinking.

The elections are over, and in most cases, everyone is sick and tired of hearing how Johnston won, or how Nye beat Marley. However, since they did win over a completely organized political party such as Campus Union Party, it shows that the people on this campus do care who is in their student offices. This is not to say which of the candidates was more qualified for the position, but to show that the word "apathy" does not yet have to be spelled out in capital letters.

Jim Johnston in his political campaign promised a vigorous attack against this apathy, and it appears that before he actually gets started things are starting to brighten his path.

IT AIN'T

"It Ain't Easy" was chosen as the theme of the Senior Ball in 1949.

Tax Report Released

The University has released a tax-law publication written by a University student, Dr. Norman Nybroten, associate director of the research bureau, said Monday. The report, written by graduate student George Raymond Galles, off campus, is entitled "Involuntary Conversions under the Federal Income Tax Laws." It deals with the effect of involuntary lost or sold property on federal income taxes.

Galles points out that there are many circumstances under which taxpayers could benefit by exercising their rights under the law. He deals with corporate income taxes as well as personal income taxes.

Dr. Nybroten said that the main use of the report would be by accountants, tax consultants, tax administrators and educators. Distribution of the report will be limited.

AGRONOMISTS ELECT

Jerry Howard, FarmHouse, was elected president of the Agronomy Club at a recent meeting.

Other officers are Edgar Simmons, Farmhouse, vice president; Carolyn Turinsky, Ethel Steel, secretary; Tom Bartlett, off campus, treasurer; and Joe Braun, Willis Sweet, Ag Council Representative.

HOME EC ELECTS

The newly elected officers of the Home Ec Club took office at a meeting Monday night.

They are Darlene Daugherty, off campus, president; Jean Thomas, Ethel Steel, vice president; Glenda Knighton, French, secretary; Kathy Johnson, treasurer; Lodi Stemmler, Forestry, reporter; and Mary Hubbard, Pi Phi, historian.

Dear Jason

This was proper procedure. Our principal complaints center around the way certain states voted, especially on the second ballot. On that ballot, Louisiana voted 100 percent for Lodge!

The entire Senate, House, and the legislative branches of Louisiana are composed of Democrats—100 percent. This clearly shows that Louisiana is a Democratic state (they voted Democratic in all national elections in this century).

The same goes for South Carolina, which cast one half of its votes for Lodge on the second ballot.

New York on the second ballot voted 72 for Lodge and 20 for Rockefeller. For one thing, much of New York is Democratic; they would not pledge all their votes Republican. Since Rockefeller is their favorite son, they would not have voted so heavily against him in favor of Lodge. There were other discrepancies.

Another note of interest: Linda Bithell, chairman of the convention, and a Republican, showed decisive partiality to Republican delegates when ruling delegates out of order.

The delegation of Louisiana called us "childish" when we walked off the floor. Let the true facts stand as they are.

We honestly feel that this mock convention was largely a failure.

designed to be as realistic as possible, proved to be a mockery and an insult directed towards the presidential race as a whole.

It was evident that this convention was no more than a gigantic practical joke from the very beginning; but the presidential nomination (or should I say, election) proved to be the epitome of foolishness.

After elaborate demonstrations for such sterling characters as Governor Wallace, the delegates began to vote. They voted not for the candidates the states would naturally support, but for whoever seemed to please their fancy. The first ballot showed Governor Wallace as preferable to Goldwater, Romney and several other serious candidates.

The second ballot added even more to the fiasco. During this ballot our illustrious convention chairman (who I have heard has been offered a position with the Union Pacific Railroad), displayed an unusual talent for making clumsy mistakes which only added more humor to the already hilarious voting situation.

The states, refusing to cast their votes with regard to the true nature of their states, voted not for the candidates, but against whichever state had submitted the most protests at that time.

The final results of this convention produced an undeclared candidate for President, who, through no fault of his own, has not once during the last twelve years taken a definite stand on any domestic issue.

I don't believe this reflects the true nature of our national conventions. I can see no reason to continue this convention four years from now if it is to be conducted in the same irrational manner.

Jay Childs
Delegate from Texas.

Blue Key Bids Due Friday

Calls It Political Marbles

Dear Jason: Once upon a time, a marble contest was announced in the Kingdom of the Vandals. It was decided that there would be two teams: the elephants and the donkeys.

So, each team picked a leader and practiced for the big marble contest. They worked on their form and perfected their shots until both teams were ready. Just a week before the contest was to open, the leader of the donkeys decided that he could further his marble playing ambitions by becoming an elephant.

He quit the donkey team and gave their secret plays to the elephants. By the time the contest had arrived, he instructed the elephants in many fancy underhanded shots and stole some of the donkey's marbles.

Of course, the marble contest was a farce and the elephants walked off with all the trophies. The ex-donkey won the contests' most coveted award—the Benedict Arnold and Judas trophy for dirty playing. (The end)

I would like to personally thank the people from Gault, Theta Chi, Pine, McConnell, Phi Delt, Shoup, Alpha Chi, Phi Tau, Kappa, Kappa Sig, DG and others for supporting and helping Johnson's campaign.

Roy Benson, Texas State chairman, Johnson's campaign manager.

Convention Protest Heard

Dear Jason: The delegations of Florida and Mississippi would like to explain why they walked off the convention floor Sunday night.

We were under the impression that this Mock Political Convention was to be conducted as realistically as possible.

Let it be known for the record that Florida and Mississippi primarily backed Johnson and Wallace on the first ballot, and Johnson on the second. Since both Democratic states,

Political Views

By Elias Sam'o

By ELIAS SAM'O
After the Mock Political Convention on this campus finished its work and nominated its candidates Sunday night and previously, the results of the New Hampshire primary, one major conclusion could be observed: Senator Goldwater seems to be losing the battle.

He put large amounts of money, time and energy into the New Hampshire campaign. When the votes were counted, however, he trailed badly behind the man who was and still is, halfway around the globe in Saigon — Ambassador Lodge.

Even though he was second to Lodge, it actually was a poor second. The fate of the Senator in the Mock Political Convention last Sunday was even worse. The convention hall was full of Goldwater publicity materials. In fact, according to some delegates, the Goldwater organization sent publicity materials as much as any other candidate's organization.

Barry In Trouble
But when the votes were counted, the Senator was in trouble. He was not just trailing behind Lodge and Johnson, but even behind Rockefeller. The Senator's name was dropped from the list of candidates after the first ballot because he did not get 100 votes.

Even though the results of the Mock Political Convention were not necessarily a representation of the Nation's sentiment toward Goldwater, we can interpret such results two ways.

Either the delegates (students) were voting according to their own personal sentiments and political beliefs, or they were voting according to how they expected their respective states to vote. The first interpretation means lack of sentiment on the campus toward Goldwater. The second, means one thing: the Senator is losing the sentiments and support he once had in the Nation.

Changed View

If this trend continues, the Senator will go to the Republican Presidential convention next summer thinking in terms of who he will support for the nomination rather than who will support him.

Now that Ruby is facing a death sentence in the electric chair, and it has been said, "the best comedy group in the nation is the Dallas police," I have a little personal question for the Dallas police: "how are the chances of Ruby's escape?"

University Conducting Competition For Students' Personal Libraries

Entries are now being accepted in the University of Idaho Amy Loveman Award competition, Boyd A. Martin, dean of the College of Letters and Science, announced recently.

Students entering the contest will be required to submit an annotated bibliography and commentary on their personal libraries by April 17.

The winner of the University competition will receive $25 credit toward the purchase of books at the University Bookstore, and will be the University nominee in the national competition. The national award is $1000.

Interested in building a personal library? "My ideals for a complete home library," "Ten books I hope to add to my library," Judging will be on the basis of intelligent interest, knowledge of the books as revealed in annotations and commentary, scope and imagination shown in creating the collection and their value as a nucleus for a permanent personal library. Numbers are secondary to discriminating selection. Students may pick up complete information on the contest in the Humanities Office, Ad 100, or in the Letters and Science Office (Ad 114).

Polz Memorial Library Dedicated At FarmHouse

The Ernest Polz Memorial Library was dedicated for the use of all students at FarmHouse Fraternity March 2, in memory of the first charter member of the Idaho chapter.

Polz was killed last August in an accident involving a Naval carrier U.S.S. Constellation and the airplane on which he was serving as radioman. The hydraulic landing gear of the carrier exploded and catapulted the airplane into the ocean.

Parents of Polz donated his books to the Fraternity. Fraternity members, advisors and faculty affiliates added other books to the collection. The books primarily concern course work in the field of Forestry.

Maurice Johnson, president of the FarmHouse Corporation, presented the books and an outstanding pledge plaque award also created in Polz' honor to Jim Johnston, chapter president.

Polz had served as president of the fraternity, secretary of his pledge class, business manager, and pledge trainer. He was also active in Intercollegiate Knights and Xi Sigma Pi, national forestry honorary. He received his B.S. degree in Forest Management from the University in 1961.

Minor Traffic Accidents Involve Four U-I Students

Several University students were involved in minor accidents over the weekend.

Terry Burton, off campus, was driving a car which struck a six-year-old Potlatch boy at 12:30 p.m. Sunday. The boy, Erick Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Peterson, escaped with minor injuries.

According to police, the accident occurred on Jackson near Fourth when the boy stepped into the street from in front of a parked car.

Burton said he stepped onto the brakes, but the vehicle skidded into the child.

In a second accident, Steven A. Moe, TKE, ran into the rear of a car driven by Robert E. Wise, Delt, at 12:43 Saturday night.

The accident occurred on Line Street near Memorial Gymnasium. Police charged Moe with driving under the influence of alcohol and illegal consumption. He posted bonds of $150 and $100, respectively, and was ordered to appear in court today.

A third accident involved Mike Bosse, off campus. Bosse was driving a 1940 Chevrolet pickup owned by Gerald Peterson, 724 East Seventh, north on Logan, when he hit the brakes to avoid a vehicle which was turning onto Logan from East Eighth.

The pickup fishtailed, swerved and ran over a street sign on the northwest corner of Eighth and Logan. The errant pickup then stopped about 20 feet into the lawn of Gordon Rathbun, according to Police Officer L. G. Prince.

A ROBE BY ANY OTHER NAME

With the Commencement Day just a couple of short months away, the question on everyone's lips is: "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors?" Everybody is asking it. I mean everybody! I mean I haven't been able to walk ten feet on any campus without somebody grabs my elbow and says, "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors, hey?"

This, I must say, is not the usual question asked by collegians who grab my elbow. Ordinarily they say, "Hey, Shorty, got a Marlboro?" And this is fitting. After all, are they not collegians and therefore loaded with brains? And does not intelligence demand the tastiest in tobacco flavor? And does not Marlboro deliver a flavor that is uniquely delicious? And am I not short?

But I digress. Back to the colored hoods of academic robes. A doctor of philosophy wears blue, a doctor of medicine wears green, a master of arts wears white, a doctor of humanities wears crimson, a master of library science wears lemon yellow. Why? Why, for example, should a master of library science wear lemon yellow?

Well sir, to answer this vexing question, we must go back to March 14, 1844. On that date the first public library in the United States was established by Ulrich Sigafos. All of Mr. Sigafos's neighbors were of course wildly grateful—all, that is, except Wrex Todhunter.

Mr. Todhunter had hated Mr. Sigafos since 1822 when 60th men had wooed the beautiful Melanie Zitt and Melanie had chosen Mr. Sigafos because she was mad for dancing and Mr. Sigafos knew all the latest steps—like the Missouri Compromise Samba, the Shays' Rebellion Schottische, and the James K. Polk Polka—while Mr. Todhunter, alas, could not dance at all, owing to a wound he had received at the Battle of New Orleans. (He was struck by a falling pineapple.)

Consumed with jealousy at the success of Mr. Sigafos's library, Mr. Todhunter resolved to open a competing library. This he did, but he lured not one single patron away from Mr. Sigafos. "What has Mr. Sigafos got that I have not?" Mr. Todhunter kept asking himself, and finally the answer came to him: books.

So Mr. Todhunter stocked his library with lots of lovely books, and soon he was doing more business than his hated rival. But Mr. Sigafos struck back. To regain his clientele, he began serving tea at his library every afternoon. Thereupon Mr. Todhunter, not to be outdone, began serving tea with sugar. Thereupon Mr. Sigafos began serving tea with sugar and cream. Thereupon Mr. Todhunter began serving tea with sugar and cream and lemon.

This, of course, clinched the victory for Mr. Todhunter because he had the only lemon tree in town—in fact, in the entire state of Maine—and since that day—lemon yellow has, of course, been the color on the robes of masters of library science.

(Incidentally, the defeated Mr. Sigafos packed up his library and moved to California where, alas, he failed once more. There were, to be sure, plenty of lemons to serve with his tea, but, alas, there was no cream because the cow was not introduced to California until 1937 by John Wayne.)

Today Californians, happy among their milk kine, are enjoying filtered Marlboro Cigarettes in soft pack or Flip-Top Box, as are their fellow Americans in all fifty states of this Marlboro Country!
