Idaho Student Critical After Campus Shooting

A 22-year-old University of Idaho student is in critical condition at Gritman Hospital after he was accidentally shot by a fellow student Wednesday about 9 p.m. at Willis Sweet Hall.

George L. Bard, Willis Sweet, will probably be on the critical list for several days, a physician who attended him said Thursday. Bard underwent about six hours of surgery Wednesday evening.

The Idaho student was wounded in the left hand and the abdomen apparently by a .357 magnum revolver slug fired from close range, according to Moscow police.

Bard and a friend, Wilbur Sweet, 20, Willis Sweet, had been target practicing and had returned to Sweet's room to clean their weapons, according to Elton Walker, Moscow assistant police chief.

Walker said that according to statements from Sweet and his roommate, Tom Kunkel, who was a witness to the mishap, "horse play" with rifles led to Sweet strapping on a holster carrying the revolver.

According to a police statement Bard told Sweet that he wasn't fast enough on the draw. Sweet whipped the gun out of the holster and it fired, the statement said. The police are still investigating. Walker said that the case will be held open until after police have had a chance to talk to Bard.

Bard's mother was expected to arrive at Spokane airport from Chagrin Falls, Ohio, at about 9:30 p.m. yesterday. Residents of Willis Sweet were to meet her, according to Charles O. Decker, Dean of Students. Decker said that the matter will probably be brought before the men's discipline committee. University regulations forbid having a loaded weapon in dormitories and fraternities. He said, however, that University officials were waiting until the police finish their report before taking action.

Wayne Simms, president of Lewis and Clark Normal School, met with University Academic Vice President Dr. H. Walter Steffens, Thursday, to be briefed on the University's progress in consideration of changing to a quarter system.

The meeting was the result of a series of meetings which began last spring when President D. R. Theophilus appointed a 12-member committee to study possible change from a semester to a quarter system.

Steffens said Thursday that the committee, after studying the problem this summer, recommended in a report to the President that the University retain the system of semester credits, but suggested consideration of changes in the present system. Steffens is the chairman of the committee.

President Theophilus and Dr. Steffens took the report to the September Board of Regents meeting. Regents voted to revise the semester system or make plans to switch to the quarter system of credits, and suggested that plans be made to ask for funds for a change from the 1967 legislation.

President Theophilus asked the committee to begin work on a plan for change, which will eventually be presented to the Board of Regents. Steffens, meanwhile, has been briefing the presidents of the nine other colleges and one other University in Idaho on suggested changes, since the proposals will, to some extent, effect their schools.

Among suggestions currently under consideration are a proposal to hold some 75 minute classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays so that three-credit classes can be held on those days, and a proposal to overlap class hours so that classes could be held during noon hours.

Steffens said that the Tuesday-Thursday class proposal would make maximum use of class room space possible, and that one-hour classes would still be held on those days.

The problems have not been entirely ironed out, he said, but the committee is also considering the possibility of changing the University calendar, he said.

The change, he said, if it goes through, may make it possible to end the semester at Christmas.

The committee favored the semester system in preference to the quarter system, he said, partly because more universities are on the semester system, partly because most text books are designed for the semester system, and partly because a quarter system means more days of registration and finals and fewer days of instruction.

Students may pick up their identification cards on or after Oct. 6 in the ASUI office of the Student Union Building.

To facilitate handling of the more than 5,000 cards, students must have their registration receipt for first semester.

Progress toward providing Idaho with a statewide educational television network was made recently as the University of Idaho Board of Regents approved University applications for a change in transmitter site.

The proposed amendments of applications to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Federal Communications Commission call for the University's television transmitter site to be located on Paradise Ridge, south of Moscow, instead of on the campus.

Class B coverage "The ridge site is 1,100 feet above the average terrain, and would give us Class B coverage of 68 miles as compared with 8 to 9 miles from the campus site," explained Professor Gordon Law, acting head of communications.

Class A broadcasting coverage means that 98 per cent of the people in that area can receive the television signal all the time.

In the class B zone 75 per cent of the viewers can receive the signal 95 per cent of the time. A cable hookup can ensure viewers of receiving the signal.

The University station, KUID-TV, has been in operation as a closed circuit since 1960. It now provides University and Moscow public school classroom instruction and in-service teacher training on the public school level.

Request Made Last spring the University's Department of Communications was granted permission by the Board of Regents to ask the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for half of $154,334.80, estimated cost of placing the 150,000-watt education television station

The annuals will be given on a first come first serve basis, said Mix.

The Golden Fleece

By Jason

Football season is a busy time for University of Idaho Alumni secretary Jim Lyle. To Lyle the coming of fall means thousands of miles of traveling. He goes with the football team on every road trip to attend alumni gatherings wherever the team is playing.

Last week at Iowa City, Lyle drew more than fifty former Idaho students to dinner and luncheon gatherings. Tomorrow he expects a larger crowd at Salt Lake City.

To get turnouts like these, every former Idaho student within miles of the game site receives invitations to the gathering from the Alumni office. Fifty Idaho Alums at a game as far away as Iowa City is something Lyle can be proud of. Often schools larger than Idaho can't get as many alumni together at meetings much closer to home.

The secretary attributes the loyalty of Idaho alums to the large turnouts. But no small part of the credit must go to the alumni staff.

Campus Representative Is Big Job

"The alumni office is a service organization," Lyle says. "Our primary job is to take care of records on graduates and former students and to assist them as their campus representative."

As campus representative and a service organization, the Alumni office receives a variety of requests. Commonly these requests are for football tickets or queries on the addresses of former classmates. But Lyle, in his 19 years as Alumni secretary, has received many others.

As Lyle and I sat talking the other afternoon, he pencilled memos to himself to answer requests or to check on a question from Alumni.

Gets Other Requests, Too

Often Lyle is asked to chat with the son or daughter of a former Idaho student and see how they are doing. Sometimes he is asked to do more—like the time he was called at 1:30 a.m. and asked to stop a wedding between two Idaho students. Lyle explained patiently to the grad making the request that stopping weddings was a little out of his power.

But most requests he is more than willing to answer. And the alumni usually don't hesitate in requesting. To many of them the secretary is on a first-name basis.

This is largely because of the traveling that he does throughout the year. Each year Lyle makes two trips to each alumni organization in the state.

Visited Every County

This year Lyle has visited every county in the state setting up county alumni groups and finding 44 chairmen to head them.

Through his contacts he has encouraged the growth of the Alumni Fund which this year granted 13 scholarships to sons or daughters of former Idaho students—another service of the Alumni Office.

Overseas Career Discussed

Foreign Service officer John M. Dennis, will address Idaho students interested in a possible career in the United States Foreign Service on Wednesday at 3:10 p.m. in Ad. 336.

Dennis, a graduate of Princeton University, served overseas in the U.S. army during World War II. He is currently the Czech desk officer in the office of Eastern European Affairs in the State Department. He entered the Foreign Service in 1947 and has since served in various posts in the Far East, Germany and Poland.

Application forms for the Foreign Service are available from the Department of Social Sciences or the Placement Office at the University.

For the next written examination, applications must be completed and received by the board of examiners no later than Oct. 19.

DOG SHOW

As part of Senior week in 1947 there was a dog show with prizes given for the worst mongrel, most dressed-up dog and the most dogs.

SCHOLARSHIP THEME
"Scholarship with Activities" was the theme for the 1959 Campus Carnival at the University.

Economy Isn't Efficiency

"Much of the pressure on education at all levels arises, unfortunately, from the understandable but often short-sighted wish to increase 'efficiency'—that is, to educate larger numbers of students for the same number of (or fewer) dollars."

These words, accompanied by comments on teaching, faculty effectiveness and obstacles to the improvement of teaching, were among remarks made by John W. Gustad of New College, Sarasota, Fla., before the 1963-64 Committee on Teaching of the Assn. for Higher Education. NEA.

Gustad's speech was included in the University of Idaho staff letter last week. It went on to say:

"In this richest and most self-indulgent country on earth, there is still no widespread recognition that first-rate education costs money. Until such recognition develops, the academic community has the responsibility of criticizing programs designed merely to increase efficiency."

"For several years, the quality of instruction in primary and secondary schools has been under heavy bombardment. Throughout this furor, collegiate faculty members have, for the most part, watched with disinterest or disdain, and some have added their voices to the critical chorus."

The critical chorus reaches forte level about the time the students reach college level, and high school instruction, as well as the teaching before then, is viewed as unsatisfactory and not duly preparational. By then it is too late.

Gustad went on to say, "A major obstacle to the improvement of teaching is that while colleges and universities pay lip service to good teaching, they in fact 'pay off' (with promotions, salary increases and the like) on other things, especially articles published in learned journals and similar academic yardage."

"In my study of faculty evaluation for the American Council on Education, I found that, although every single reporting institution listed teaching effectiveness as the most important trait considered, not a single one had an even approximately effective system for finding out whether faculty members were or were not good teachers. Until such time as teaching effectiveness is really taken seriously, progress in this important area will be painfully slow."

Faculty at the University of Idaho is to be commended. Many of Gustad's remarks, particularly concerning financial attitude — efficiency — are to be taken into thought. But faculty improvement is a different situation.

It is a situation which we are trying to remedy. Again it boils down to the pocketbook. You can't improve your staff or facilities without the money.

Either way the State of Idaho turns this legislative year it will mean sacrifice—Sacrifice of the citizens to pay for quality education or a sacrifice that we can't afford, sacrificing that education. If the legislature is to make cut-backs, and ask for more economizing, education is one place that it doesn't pay not to spend. —SS

An Echo!

As the first Vandal home game of 1964 nears, it seems that the following editorial from the Arizona Wildcat is almost an echo of problems that arise around the University at this time of year:

The dean of men has warned once again that any students caught drinking liquor at football games or any other University athletic contest will be suspended from school.

The University has enforced the no-drinking regulation in the past, and the dean of men doesn't sound as if he's going to let up any this year. Each year a few students are suspended.

It should be noted, however, that the no-drinking regulation is not only a University code but a state law.

Arizona Revised Statutes, Section 4-244, states:

"It is unlawful for a person to consume spirituous liquors from a broken package in a public place, a thoroughfare or gathering . . ."

So, if the police are to continue their crackdown of student violators, they should do the same to townspeople who attend the games. There are a lot more violators in that crowd than there are in the student section.

But police jump at the chance to corral a student violator while they ignore the rude and drunken displays of middle-aged rooters who have never attended the University and who sit in different parts of the stadium.

The Wildcat is for upholding the University and state laws, but let's be fair to all involved.

THE BLACK AND THE BLUE

The events of the human experience are often marked by colors. There are school colors, flag colors, the white of a wedding dress, and there is a considerable amount of blueness in everyone's life.

It is traditional here at the U of I, as it is in other similar places, that when the leaves turn green the peeps turn brown. In the Fall when the leaves turn brown and gold the peeps turn black and blue.

The autumn air is a crisp kind of air that wants to be filled with footballs. It is the season for body-bashing.

Skull Smashing

Locally, we have a fine system of intra-mural skull smashing. It is played by teams of nine according to certain patterns and designs of which all members are grandly unaware. The elbows are the chief tools of the game, while the hands have the limited duty of passing and tagging. It is played by two kinds of peeps, sportsmen and winners. Since there is no money involved this is the most virginal form of the game and its participants are rewarded by satisfaction and soreness.

A more refined form of the game is collegiate football. It is played aggressively enough that you can hear the body contact up to about the 38th row. The players are crews of males known as "jocks" during the week and "hard-hitting young men" on Saturday.

On Saturday afternoon millions of people sit on cold benches, risking their lives watching these men — partly because they wish they themselves could be called "jocks," and partly because of the magnificent transition from order to chaos that occurs during each play. In a moment the scene might resemble modern machinery or modern art.

Then there are the professional masters of the game; the men who can create a solid wall out of human flesh, men who can break through them, and men who can stand impassively while all this is going on and then throw a ball forty yards to a target the size of two hands. They get their insurance at the same rate as jet pilots. . . . and at the base of it was the urge, if you wanted to play football, to knock someone down; that was what the sport was all about, the will to win closely linked with contact." (George Plimpton in Sports Illustrated).

Beyond that it might only be the primary need to use the human body — to use it violently, and to use it in the company of others.

Watch the spectacle as it fills the autumn days and nights.

Idaho Library Association Gathers Scholarly Materials

By GARY E. STRONG
Argonaut Contributor

Many students do not realize the value of the University Library, nor of its difficulty in acquiring scholarly materials for the use of its patrons.

A group of friends of the University and of the library realized the problems involved and formed an organization called Library Associates.

In June 1963, Mrs. Jerome J. Day, Coeur d'Alene, Henry L. Day, president Day Mines, Wallace; Harry Marsh, Boise; William Guernsey, Boise; Dr. May Mathieu, Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Jennings, Los Angeles; Earl Larrison, Idaho professor of zoology; President D. R. Theophilus; and Lee Zimmerman, University Librarian; met to bring Library Associates into existence.

Often No Funds

The library finds that it often does not have the money to purchase expensive, scholarly materials which will aid in the research of the University's faculty and graduate students. Library Associates welcomes gifts of books, pamphlets, leaflets, personal papers, pictures, and records.

They particularly welcome literature relating to Idaho and the Pacific Northwest; old newspaper files of Idaho and other Northwest papers; and archival records of large business concerns or special industries such as mining and ranching, public agencies, and education or religious organizations.

Special Collections

Special collections such as the Library's Day collections of the Northwest Americana or the Larrison collection of Sir Walter Scott have been extremely useful for scholarly research.

Materials of this type are far too expensive to be purchased by the University Library on its present budget. Through Library Associates and its provision Facilities Act which was passed in 1962 and signed by President Kennedy.

Here's More About— Educational

Matching Funds

The act includes allocations for state educational television surveys and for construction of educational television stations on a matching fund basis. A total of $32 million in appropriations were granted by the 87th Congress with grants not to exceed $1 million per state. The purchase of the educational television equipment and construction of broadcasting facilities is being administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The grants will be distributed over a period of five years.

Future Plans

On a projected time table, Mr. Law indicated future plans for the television stations. It is hoped that during 1965 through 1967 Channel 22 in Pocatello can be activated and Channel 4 in Boise. Public School program development at the University of Idaho and Idaho State University will be begun.

Activation of a microwave system and extension of coverage are planned from 1967 through 1969.

Television extension courses are being offered in 10 north Idaho towns this fall. It is not known as yet how many students are registered for the courses, according to the Extension office.

Instructors are located in each town to instruct students and quiz them in conjunction with the University Communications Department.

Subjects Offered

Courses being offered include subjects such as drawing, painting, principles of accounting, music methods workshop, mathematics, audi-visual aids in education, driver education, educational law, American English, geology, and magazine article writing. Different courses are offered in each town.

Towns receiving benefits of the extension courses are Genesee, Lewiston, Sandpoint, Kellogg, Wallace, Kootenai, Coeur d'Alene, Lapwai, Orofino and Kendrick.

Navy Man Commissioned

After about 10 years in the Navy, Chief storekeeper Charles G. Waldrop received his commission as Ensign, USN, from Capt. Harry E. Davey, Jr., USN, in ceremonies held Thursday morning at the Navy Building.

Waldrop reported to the University in November of 1961 from duty aboard the USS George Clymer, an attack troop transporter. He and his wife and three children have lived in Moscow since then.

Waldrop will leave soon for Officer Candidate School in Newport, R. I., and will then go to Navy Supply Corps school in Athens, Ga., for six months training.

He is being replaced by storekeeper 1/c Robert Litz, who is now with the unit.

Air Force Colonel Indorses 2-Year AFROTC Program

Air Force Col. Ralph L. Oliver, headquarters supervisor of all AFROTC units in area H, which includes Idaho, said Air Force philosophy for officer education now endorses a two-year program, at a luncheon Tuesday in the SUB.

According to Lt. Col. Robert C. Ogletree, unit commander on campus, Oliver said, "essentially we need to reduce the amount of activities related directly to the military on campus."

Ogletree said this would allow cadets more time in pursuit of their academic majors than the present four-year program does, and strictly military aspects of the program could be accomplished in summer camps.

In the present program, a cadet devotes about one-fourth of his time in college to military academics and related military activities, such as field trips and drills. A two-year course would cut time spent to approximately one-fifth of his total college career.

A cadet would begin ROTC training in his junior year, in essentially an advanced course, and would take an extensive program during his junior and senior years. A summer camp would be required as is now, but the leadership lab would be eliminated and the course would require four semesters of study rather than the present eight.

"This program," said Ogletree, "would satisfy Air Force requirements and has been endorsed by the Air Force, but will not be offered in the foreseeable future."

Col. Oliver is from Maxwell

No WSU Game Tickets 'Til October 12

The University of Idaho has suspended ticket sale for the Idaho vs. Washington State football game until Oct. 12, athletic director John Thomas said today.

"Our current supply of tickets is exhausted," Thomas said, "but we will have two more sections available on Oct. 12."

Through an oversite tickets were not printed for sections three and eight, but the ticket printers are at work on that now. The two sections are those between the goal line and the 20 yard line at the east and west ends of the south stands.

Idaho Students Awarded Prizes

Two Idaho students are among 20 in the U.S. who have received Charles Pfizer scholarships this year.

Merrily Dawn Fruechtenicht, Alpha Gam, and Jerry Howard, FarmHouse, received the scholarships for their work in extension training, according to Elbert McProud, department of agriculture instructor.

The purpose of these awards is to give recognition to outstanding undergraduate students preparing for a career in extension work.

Miss Fruechtenicht, a junior in home economics, and Howard, a junior in agronomy, submitted applications to the Federal Extension Service, on including their teaching plans on animal health for their home county.

Professor Compiles Law Digest

A digest to assist Idaho newspapers in publication of notices, or legal, was compiled this summer by Walter Stewart, assistant professor of journalism at the University.

The booklet released this week updates information contained in an Idaho Public Notices Calendar edited by Dr. W. F. Swindler in 1945.

It reflects changed laws in public notice requirements affecting legal rates, hospitals, highway district annexation, county bond election, school district property and teacher exams.

In compiling the booklet, Stewart added to the previous compilation the time of publication called for in many of the laws and the statute number in case the newspaperman wants to refer back to the Idaho code.

It also includes laws affecting radio and television notices that, in turn, affect newspaper-owned broadcasting stations.

The digest was compiled, according to its Editor's Note, because Idaho law on public notices often fails to give complete information.

Legislation on advertising affecting newspapers and broadcasting stations is also included in the booklet.

Crosscountry Men Face Tough Schedule In 1964

With the opening of the cross-country season just around the corner, Coach Doug McFarlane is working his harriers into shape for the Oct. 10 opener against Washington State University.

The Vandal squad lacks depth, McFarlane said, and we are opening our season against one of the top three crosscountry teams in the nation when we go to WSU, but we have some good boys and should become stronger all the time.

Paul Hendon, Nils Jebsen, and Bernie O'Connell are all returning veterans, McFarlane said, and John Mynott, Ted Quirt, Charles Fleiger, Ken Hanna, and Bruce Swayne, all freshmen, seem to be very promising.

McFarlane said he had been pleased with the teams workouts so far, but did not want to be too optimistic this early in the season.

"We are going to face a real tough WSU team, and they could go one, two, three, four, five on us," McFarlane commented. They have, undoubtedly, the strongest team in WSU crosscountry history this year, the harrier coach said.

Following the opener at WSU with WSU, Gonzaga University, and Whitworth College, the Vandal harriers will host the same three teams here Oct. 17.

Idaho travels to Missoula on Oct. 24 to meet Montana State College and Montana State University. The Junior Mens Cross-country National Championships await the Vandals Oct. 31 at Spokane. The top crosscountry teams are expected in the 10,000 meter or 6 1/4 mile event, including runners who failed to qualify for the Olympics.

The main event on the Vandal schedule is the Big Sky Conference crosscountry championship Nov. 7. Idaho is the defending champ and will be all out to repeat the victory, coach McFarlane said.

Vandal harriers will wrap up the season at the Northwest AAU Championship in Seattle Nov. 14 or 21.

Leyde Still Top Receiver; Rice Drops In Big Sky

A player almost had to hail from Montana State College this week to get his name mentioned in the Big Sky Conference individual statistics. MCS players topped five of eight individual categories, where one or two Bobcat teammates were also listed.

Quarterback Ray Foley continued to lead the Conference in passing and total offense for the second week. The MCS signal caller has 11 completions in 22 attempts for 226 yards and two touchdowns, and had another 66 yards rushing for a total offense of 312 yards. Teammates Ben Vaughn and Dan Sundling are fourth and fifth in total offense.

Sundling is an old-timer, but Vaughn made his first appearance in Conference statistics this week by running up an 11.8 yards per carry to top Conference rushers. Idaho State's Bill Shaw dropped to second place in rushing with a 7.4 yards per carry average, and from second to third in total offense. Idaho's quarterback Mike Monahan crowded in ahead of Shaw with 300 yards in total offense, compared to the ISU's Shaw's 254.

Rice Loses Out

Shaw retained his lead in scoring by doubling last week's three touchdown effort, and Lyle Johnston of Weber pushed Idaho's Mickey Rice out of the punting crown by upping his output to 44.2 yards per kick. Rice was the Conference punting leader for the last two seasons.

But, MSC players filled in the gaps. Vaughn and Foley are next behind Shaw in scoring with three TD's each, and Foy McClung ranks behind Johnston and Rice in punting. McClung also tops the Conference in punt returns, and Foley is third.

Leyde, Top Receiver

Idaho's Vern Leyde, has a tight grip on the pass receiving class, but MSC has Gary Richards in fifth place with three catches for 102 yards. Leyde has seven grabs for 99 yards.

It is little wonder then that the Bobcats top the Conference in team offense with 1110 total yards in three games to their opponents' 555 yards.

Only in kick-off returns, where Idaho's Bill Scott has a 19.7 average in four returns, did the Bobcats fail to place a player.

Next Saturday's action finds only the Idaho Vandals on the road. Idaho plays Utah in Salt Lake. Idaho State hosts Fresno State, and Weber State plays Southern Colorado State, MSC against San Jose State, and MSU versus Utah State, all at home.

Do Not Spoil Hunting Fun

BOISE — With the hunting season in the air, hunters have their eyes on the mountains. Their spare time is devoted to checking guns, clothing and camping gear.

However, Dr. Charles Schabacker of Twin Falls, chairman of the Idaho Heart Association's community service committee urges hunters to give some thought to these:

How cold will it get at night and how hot in the midday sun? How far will you hike through the underbrush and marshes, how long is the uphill climb, how high is the altitude in your favorite hunting area?

'Tough' Battle Ahead For 27th Utah Clash

Vandals Seeking 12th Series Win

Coaches for the Vandals and the Utes expect a "tough" game Saturday night when Idaho and Utah clash in Salt Lake City.

"We expect Utah to be tough," Coach Dee Andros said. "We rate Utah as strong as any other team on our schedule. They have improved even since we beat them 10-9 last year."

And, Coach Ray Nagel of the Utes said: We'll have our hands full this week against the Vandals. Idaho showed a strong defense and a well-balanced attack against Iowa. Actually the Hawkeyes were fortunate to win.

The game is billed for 8:15 p.m. in Salt Lake City's Ute stadium. It will be broadcast, beginning at 8 p.m. over KOZE, Lewiston, and KRPL, Moscow.

27th Meeting

Each club will go into the 27th meeting between the two schools with identical 1-1 records. For the Vandals, it will be an attempt to win game number 12 in the series. The Utes have 13 wins, including a 25-21 victory in 1962, the last time the two teams met in Salt Lake, and there have been two ties.

Andros will pin his hopes on a solid defense and his multiple offense. The defense blew hot and cold against Iowa after standing rock-firm against San Jose the week before. The Idaho offense moved through the air and on the ground against the Hawkeyes and the Vandals hope it will against Utah.

The Vandals scrimmaged Tuesday and Wednesday in an effort to "polish" some new offense and to prevent defensive lapses that prove so fatal in the fourth quarter against Iowa.

"We're up to full strength and ready to go," Andros said yesterday.

The Vandal coach said that there were no new injuries plaguing the club. Ray McDonald, the sophomore fullback injured during the summer while playing basketball, will sit out another week, however.

Also during the week, Andros made two changes in his starting lineup. Sophomore wingback Joe McCollum will start in place of Bill Scott and Stan Buratto will go at right tackle in place of Joe Dobson. The changes mark the second and third shifts in the first unit that Andros has made since the beginning of fall camp. The other position move was when Dick Litzinger pushed Steve Buratto out of the center slot just prior to the Vandals' season opener.

Down Utah way, the Utes also are up to full strength. They even expect to have all-American end candidate Roy Jefferson up to full strength for the first time this year. The 6-0, 190-pound senior led the Utes in pass receiving last season with 29 receptions for 455 yards, but he has been hampered this year by an injury sustained earlier in the season.

Nagel said that the Utes have been working this week on preventing the big yardage play.

Long Gain Hurt "I think we played pretty good ball against Missouri last week despite the fact that we got beat," he said. "It was that long gainer that really hurt us, otherwise our defense was pretty good."

Utah, a team loaded with lettermen, are considered one of the leading contenders for the Western Athletic Conference football crown. So far this season the Utes have knocked off conference foe New Mexico, 16-0, and have lost 23-6 to Missouri of the Big Eight.

Utah will send a team that averages 205 pounds in the line and 189 in the backfield against the Vandals. Idaho is somewhat heavier, weighing 212 in the line and 180 in the backfield.

Idaho Starters Named Andros said he would start Vern Leyde and Max Leetzow at ends, John Boisen and Buratto at tackles; Jerry Campbell and Dave Trippett at guards, Litzinger, at center; Mike Monahan at quarterback; Rich Naccarato at halfback; Dale Meyer at fullback and McCollum at wingback.

LONGEST PASS PLAY — A new record was set during the Iowa game when quarterback Mike Monahan (right) passed to split-end Joe Chapman (left) at the beginning of the second quarter for 80 yards and a touchdown. The old record was 74 yards set by Max Glades and Glen Christian in 1950.

34 Frosh Still Out For Football; Preparing For Boise Junior College

The Vandal Frosh are hard at work preparing for their season opener Oct. 17 against Boise Junior College in Boise, according to Coach Bud Riley.

"BJC's football season is already underway," Riley said, "and we have a lot of catching up to do."

Riley said that BJC would have played five games before they met the Vandals and that even though BJC had lost their opener to Columbia Basin Junior College last week, they would be tough for the Idaho Frosh.

About 40 originally turned out for Frosh ball, Riley said, but the squad was down to 34 players this week. Riley said that he would make position assignments by the end of the week. He said that Paul Gentile of
