Andros Thanks Students

I think that the enthusiasm of the student body at last Saturday's game with Oregon was as fine as I have seen. I want to thank the students and Vandal fans for their support. I know that the cheering played a big part in our second half comeback.

We have some more tough games ahead and we ber interviews will be held at 7 need your support. Saturday we play Oregon State at Corvallis but the next week we will be back here for homecoming against the Cougars.

We have a good team, one that is almost a great one.

And the way the kids fought back Saturday they feel that they have a chance to be a great team

We drew about 11,000 fans Saturday even though the Cougars were playing at Pullman.

My staff and I want to thank you for the support again and as fine a spirit as I've seen at Idaho. We want to see you when we go after the Cougars.

The Golden Fleece By Jason

To whomever it was that said "no news is good news" we have a partial answer. At least we have a partial answer as far as the class officer elections are concerned.

The mixup over dates and Judicial Council's probable decision to permit the election to be moved back to Nov, considerations in regard to drinking? 3, if Campus Union Party gets the required 25% of the last election voters to sign their petition may be a break are twenty and someone asks to borfor the ASUI.

week. This was reflected yesterday when only two candidates announced their intention to run for office. Now at least more interest can be generated.

Party System At Fault

Part of this lack of interest this year can be attributed to the lack of two parties. The death of United and the failure of another party to take its place should serve as notice to Idaho students of the importance of the political party to the American political system.

The importance of parties is especially notable on the campus. In student government elections the party is depended upon to create issues. Usually most of the issues are trite, but they do cause some interest and cause attention to be focused on student government itself.

While we can't say with certainty that the absence of second party is at fault for this year's date mixup, it is significant to note that in recent years, it is only with the death of United that Judicial Council has had to be relied on to determine an election date. The same situation occurred last spring after the demise of United.

Poor Date Anyway

A second factor in favor of rescheduling class offi- nors feel people should be allowed to cer elections is that a poor date was set when the 21st was chosen. Next week campus politics would definitely have taken a back seat to homecoming activities. If Nov. 3 is set, the elections will at least create their own interest. The interest may also be heightened by our national Presidential elections the same day. The Idaho Center for Education in Politics is planning a mock and one that should have been institut-Presidential election to show how University of Idaho ed a long time ago. students would have voted.

Drinking-Moral Problem?

What are the standards and moral "It's a different situation when you heard last week. Suddenly, it seems,

Little interest in the election was shown up to last one is put in the position of compromising himself or his friendships for no. purpose whatsoever. Idaho Code, section 23, forbids the consumption of beer (4% alcohol by weight) by persons under the age of 20 years. Illegal consumption, traffic in, or possession of beer is regarded as a misdemeanor and is puishnable as such. Last week it was announced that stiffer penalties would be enforced in Moscow for persons caught using false identification.

Will this be a deterrent? Not only will individual penalties be enforced, but the owners of establishments selling liquor are now under more pressure than ever of being penalized.

Friday night a parent was overheard to say, "She's my daughter, isn't that enough identification?" . . . It wasn't. Not only was it obvious that the girl involved was under age, it seems thoughtless on the part of the parent in (1) compromising his honor, and (2) expecting the establishment to break a law and endanger its busi-

IP Welcome

An Idaho student, Mike Sullivan, offcampus, has started the ball rolling on what looks like a worthwhile project

Briefly his project is to create "VIP" committee to host speakconsume alcholic beverages at an earlier age, they should show adult responsibility by obtaining legislative action on the problem.

Since students seem to be trying to take advantage of the law and of tavern owners with false ID, wouldn't it be best if everyone be required to show a state ID card before being admitted to a tavern? Residents of Idaho can obtain such a card for $1 and a small amount of trouble. This would go a long way toward solving the moral -prob lems involved in lending identification and would save tavern owners the worry of certifying a person's age.

Another so-called "moral issue" is that of purchasing beer for minors. Where does consideration lie? Some people will and do purchase beer for the consumption of minors. This is a situation which is much more difficult to control than a minor entering and drinking in a public place. Think about it.

How many are willing to take the responsibility for someone else's drinking? One of the main problems which comes to mind is car accidents. Which of us is willing to assume responsibility of having purchased beer drunk by someone caught in a hit-and-run or other such accident?

We have certain responsibilities to society no matter what situation we are under (drunk, sober, depressed, happy, etc.). Think about it. JW faculty members under the theory that the faculty pays for the VIP's appearance and should therefore have the majority of the time with him.

This raises the question of "for whose benefit are these people brought on campus". If it is for the faculty, why bother to take our precious time from class to listen to those people? Back to the subject, this plan has been tried with Ambassador Dowling during his recent stay here. According to reports he was quite pleased and undoubtedly has carried away a good impression of our University. We need it. We know how good we are. But, if others don't it doesn't do us a bit of good. Any person who is at all oriented in the basics of public relations wonders why this hasn't been standard proceedure for a long time. We salute Mr. Sullivan as a "doer" and endorse his project. J.B.

New Feature

With this issue we have added a new feature on the editorial page. While letters to Jason have been our traditional forum for student opinion, attention on issues of interest and importance can be focused through our "We were wondering" column.

"We were wondering" will run as a regular feature on Tuesdays. On Mondays you can be prepared to meet our inquiring reporter Ellen Ostheller.

While we don't expect this forum to present an accurate poll for student opinion, we do expect that it personal conversation and question and will give some indication of what students are thinking. answer sessions.
