Foreign Students Days Scheduled

A new approach to international understanding will be tried for the first time at the University as International Student Days gets underway Saturday afternoon with a Model United Nations session in the Student Union Ballroom.

"We of the University of Idaho are pleased to serve foreign students by making available to them an American education," said President D. R. Theophilus.

"It should be remembered, however, that the foreign students serve us by making us familiar with their cultures. The cultures of many lands will be given emphasis with International Student Days, and of particular significance is the fact that the foreign students, in presenting the various events during the two special days, will be expressing their appreciation for being here," he said.

"International Student Days, sponsored by the Associated Students, represents a fine gesture, and I wish every success for the events," said President Theophilus.

Debate Set
About 50 foreign and American students will debate the session topic "Apartheid Policy of South Africa" beginning at 3 p.m. The public is invited to observe the session.

Weekend Chairman
According to Pat Oberoi, off campus, chairman of weekend events, the topic concerns the case of Negro citizens as opposed to their present second class status, despite the fact they are in the majority.

Five Resolutions
Discussion is planned on five resolutions dealing with this topic. Don Fry, off campus, will serve as General Assembly chairman.

In addition to the model U.N., an International Style Show will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the SUB Borah Theater. Judy Aldape, Alpha Phi, and Judy Stuebe, Campbell, will serve as mistresses of ceremonies. Approximately 20 students are expected to model their native dress.

Style Show Rehearsal
Dress rehearsal for the show will be at 5:30 p.m. in Borah Theatre.

Concluding Saturday's events at 8:30 p.m. will be three foreign films, including one from France, in the Borah Theatre.

Soccer Game
A soccer game between Idaho and Washington State University Cosmopolitan Clubs is on tap 3 p.m. Sunday at MacLean Field.

Foreign students will be guests at 25 campus living groups for dress dinner Sunday. They will appear in native dress. A variety show is scheduled for Sunday evening at 7 p.m. in the ballroom.

There will be no charge for any of the weekend events, said Oberoi.

Participants
Participating in the model U.N. will be Tahir Abond, Lindley, representing Italy; Jack McDonnell, Shoup, USSR; Susan Myer, Pi Phi, United Kingdom; Frank Callaghan, Willis Sweet, Australia, and Linda Bithell, Pi Phi, representing Austria.

Also participating will be Don Davis, off campus, Italy; Vicki Haight, Pi Phi, Italy; Eddy Chu, off campus, China; Bilge Kuran, Alpha Chi Omega, Turkey; Lysbeth Fouts, Pi Phi, Yugoslavia; Kathy Humbach, Pi Phi, Sweden, and Dr. Dan Mader, off campus, will represent Denmark.

ASUI Mailman To Be Selected

Applications for the job of ASUI mailman are now available in the ASUI office, according to Jim Johnston, ASUI president.

The student selected will be paid $75 a year to deliver mail to each living group president each Friday. This entails from one to two hours a week, according to Johnston.

The mailman will be selected on the Tuesday following return from Thanksgiving holidays, Johnston said yesterday.

BOARD TRYOUTS SET

Tryouts for the Athletic Board of Control will be held Monday at 5 p.m. in the E-Board Room.

E-Board Hears Praise, Sees Cooperation With ISU

Tuesday night E-Board heard a report on the Legislative program's success from Troy Bussey, discussed cooperation with Idaho State University, discussed the Business Symposium held this past week in Boise and heard proposals regarding the ASUI Speakers Bureau.

Bussey reported that he considered the plan to host the Legislators a success and considered the student-Legislator breakfast the highlight of the Legislators' visit to the University campus.

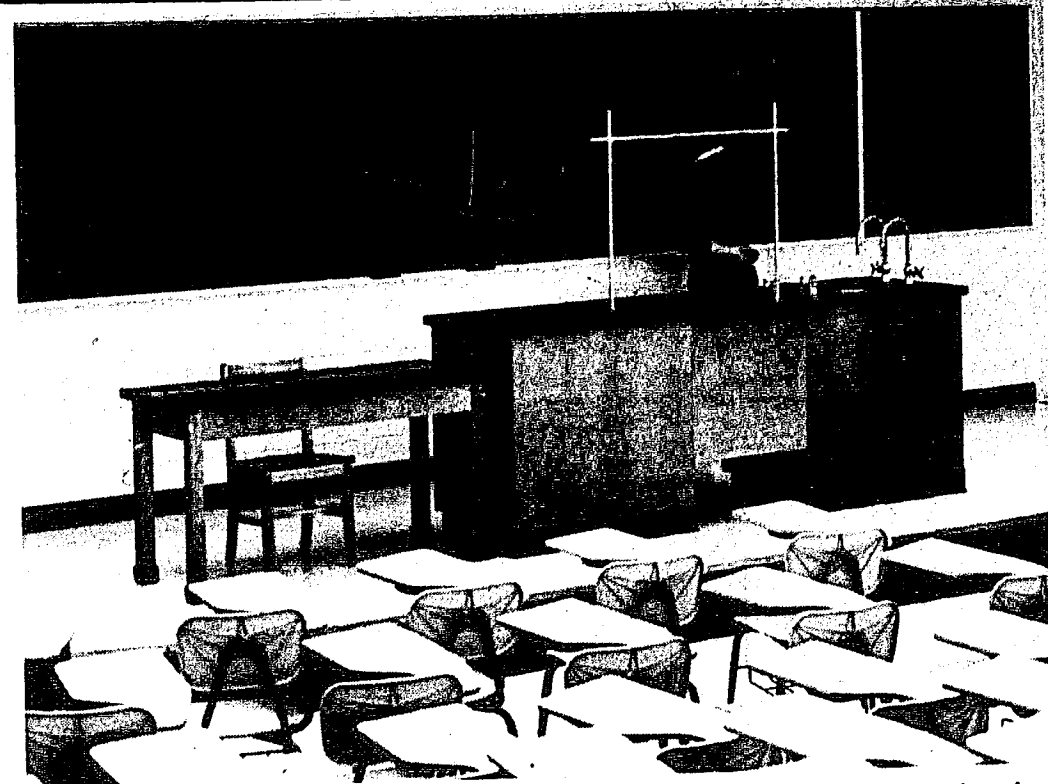

Bussey singled out Gerald Huettig and Bill McCann for praise because of the arrangements the two had made for the breakfast.

ASUI-ASISU Cooperation
In other discussion ASUI president, Jim Johnston reported on a discussion he had with Art

Summers, ISU Student Body President, on cooperation between the two Idaho schools in matters of fees, parking regulations, athletic competition, and legislative proposals.

According to Carl Johannesen, ASUI public relations director, the consensus of the discussion was that an effort be made by both schools to work together on these issues.

Business Symposium
E-Board also discussed the recent Business Symposium held in Boise. Consensus on this discussion was: The Symposium was a worthwhile project and should be continued. Johannesen reported that all five of the E-Board members who attended felt the Symposium was worthwhile. He also said that Idaho students were on more chair-

U Representatives To Attend New Student Conference

Two ASUI officers will represent the University at the first national convention of ASGUSA Nov. 26 through 29 on the University of Oklahoma campus, Norman, Okla.

This is the first conference of ASGUSA (Associated Student Governments of the United States of America) since the organizational meeting last spring, according to Jim Johnston, ASUI president.

Visitors Plan To Be Prepared

Eleven Girl Scouts in New York City definitely believe in being prepared.

Mrs. Sheila Edwards of New York telephoned the University of Idaho today, and asked if she could have 11 copies of the alma mater song, "Here We Have Idaho," which is also the state song. Mrs. Edwards explained:

"Eleven members of my Girl Scout troop plan to attend the national jamboree which will be held next summer at Farragut in your state. When they get there, they want to be able to sing the Idaho song—well."

The University cooperated with the girls' ambition.

Idaho, WSU Sponsoring Public Concert, Clinic

Two University of Illinois faculty musicians, Paul Rolland, violinist and professor of music and Howard Karp, pianist, will pre-

Board member, will represent Idaho.

"We are going to stress the activities that our student government participated in, those that set us apart, such as our Judicial Council structure and the responsibility that students have in trying their peers," said Johnston.

Other programs such as the legislative breakfast that students helped with will also be mentioned, he said.

"We'll also be pointing out programs such as our Student-Faculty Retreat, where the students and faculty as well as local businessmen have gathered to discuss problems of mutual interest," he said.

Approving the constitution for the organization will be the first thing on the agenda, said Johnston. The group has been operating on an interim constitution approved at the St. Louis organizational meeting last spring.

Twelve topics ranging from public relations to judicial problems will be discussed in different sessions, he said.

The conference will end with the election of new officers.

The keynote address at the conference is by Dean Earl Clifford, Rutgers University.

Idaho acted as an observer at the conferences of the National Students Association previously to joining ASGUSA, said Johnston.

State Budget Requests Increase $46,000,000

BOISE — Budget requests presented to the State Legislative Council budget committee climbed to more than $46 million above expenditures by the same agencies for the present biennium Thursday as the committee completed its fourth day of hearings. Requests from education groups in the state have represented an increase of $27 million for the next biennium.

Only requests by the State Health and Highway departments remained to be heard by the 12-man committee of which 11 of its members also sit on the Legislature joint finance committee. The committee which is the first Legislative agency to hear budget requests for the next biennium considered budget requests from the University and other education agencies Monday. The University has asked for a total budget of $25 million, $18.5 million to come from appropriations, or an about 40 percent increase for the next two years.

Tuesday Idaho State University presented a request for $9,812,444 in appropriations, an increase of nearly three million dollars over the $6,900,000 it received for the present two years.

Also Tuesday, Lewis - Clark Normal School requested a $1,011,884 appropriation for operation as a four-year institution for the next two years. The 1963 legislature granted the Lewiston school four-year status but failed to appropriate the necessary funds for its operation as a degree granting institution.

LCNS President Wayne Sims has estimated that it will take a budget of $692,820 if the school is to continue as a two-year college. LCNS is currently operating under a budget totaling $502,050.

The $27 million boost in proposed state aid for the public schools is intended to bring state assistance to approximately half the average per capita school expenditures by intermountain states.

That average is $450, compared with an Idaho expenditure last year of $329. The $67 million appropriation combined with continued local and county spending at present levels would bring Idaho's expenditure to $425 per student.

In addition to its request for general administrative costs, the Department of Education asked for $495,426 for educational television.

Judicial Council Finds Parking Law Unclear

Judicial Council heard four cases Thursday, upholding one appeal, sentencing two, and tabling one case. All were traffic violations. The council decisions are pending review by President D. R. Theophilus.

The Council voted 5-0 to uphold the appeal of Jerome Brown, off campus, who had been ticketed Oct. 9 for parking on the north side of University Ave. in front of the Life Science building. Representing Brown was Jim Herndon, second year law student. Council for the prosecution was Bill Longteig and Severt Swenson, both second year law students.

The prosecution centered around section 2 of the Student Campus Traffic and Parking Regulations manual, which defines the law. Herndon, the defense counsel, contended that, because of the white area on the printed map which does not specify by color who may park there, and because was not prohibited in the manual, Brown had the right to park in the area. He cited the Student Union parking lot as an example of a similar white area on the map. Longteig said that section 2 restricted parking in front of the Life Science Building by implication.

John Patrick Daily, SAE, came before the Council for excessive violations. He had accumulated seven violations, four for failing to display a decal and three for parking in the wrong area. Five of these were this semester. Dick Reed, second year law student, defended him.

The Council voted 3-2 to fine Daily $10, and suspend driving privileges on campus for the rest of this year. The driving privileges rule was suspended.

Ralph Shoup Gorton III, Gault, was charged with excessive violations. He had accumulated six violations over a four-year period. Two of them were for this year. Defending Gorton was James Morfitt, second year law student.

The Council voted 3-1 to fine Gorton, $5, and fine $5 for a violation not previously fined, and suspend a suspension of campus driving privileges for the year.

Walter H. Bithell, off campus, was also charged with excessive parking violations, but the Council voted not to act until appeal processes for three of the tickets had been completed.

Read represented Bithell. Prosecution, as well as defense, recommended leniency in the case, since most of the violations seemed to have been incurred while Bithell, who runs a produce business, was making business deliveries.

The Spur Nickel Hop will be tonight in all women's living groups between 8 and 10:30 p.m. University men are invited to visit women's living groups and dance at a cost of five cents for the first 15 minutes and a penny for every minute after that, according to Janet Berry, Kappa.

Lin Hintze, Pine, was chairman of publicity for the dance and Glenda Waldradt, Tri Delta, chairman for the dance.

Money for the annual dance is to be used for expenses of the Spurs.

Students Slip, Fall As Weather Hits

Icy walks and streets resulting from a freezing drizzle Wednesday night and Thursday morning gave more than one University student time to sit and contemplate.

The drizzle started Wednesday night quickly made streets almost impassible until sanding crews covered them. Cars slid, skidded and couldn't get traction. The result was a traffic snarl Thursday morning on most streets leading to the campus.

Students fared no better than automobiles as sidewalks were covered with the same icy layer. Traction was a problem, especially on the hills. Students coming from the west end of campus found tough going as they attempted the new sidewalks around the site of the new classroom building.

The new sidewalks, built on a slant, without steps proved a formidable barrier to pedestrian students and on more than one occasion all forward progress was lost as the student slid backwards to the end of the incline.

Many of the students gave up on sidewalks and attempted grassy areas adjacent to them. Only slightly less difficulty was encountered here as the icy stuff coated lawns as well as sidewalks and streets.

Grass stains, skinned knees and bruised bodies were the badges of hapless student pedestrians.

Hello Walk, normally a pleasant stroll lined on both sides by trees looked like "Roller Derby" early Thursday morning as students skidded and slid, fell into other students and caused ing as many as five students at a time. More observant students quickly sized-up the benefits of the handrail which was needed in many cases to effect forward, uphill movement.

One coed summed up the situation as she examined her wrinkled, grass-stained skirt: "I should have slept in."

Whether or not Idaho will offer 75 football grants-in-aid next year may be decided at a Big Sky Conference table in Spokane Monday and Tuesday. University officials have not decided on a course of action, or if there will be a course of action, should the University's proposal to raise the limit on the number of football grants fail. (See story, page 6.)

"When the Big Sky Conference was created, all the signers were aware of the regulations, and all agreed upon them," University President D. R. Theophilus told the Argonaut in an interview yesterday.

Idaho was allowed to keep the 75 scholarships they were offering through January 1, 1965. After that the University agreed to cut back to the 60 scholarships set as the limit by the conference.

With Idaho football fortunes on the upswing under the 75 scholarship program, controversy arose, and is getting louder as the time nears to cut back.

The clamor is understandable—perhaps—but the problem is a many-sided one. Not many of the Idaho students nor alumni want to cut back.

One reason that Idaho played a major role in forming the Big Sky Conference three years ago was that problems had arisen in scheduling. It is a far different situation now from seven years ago when the University was a member of the Pacific Coast Conference.

Difficulties Scheduling

As an independent, it has been difficult to play the teams that have been traditional rivals, on a home-and-home basis. Now the major Northwestern teams play on their terms, at their stadiums and when they want to play. There simply is not the "gate" in the Palouse that they need to support their own football programs, nor the reward from playing the Vandals when they could schedule one of the big teams from the East or Middle West.

Another scheduling problem—All eight of the former PCC universities are back in a conference, but without Idaho. The Pacific Athletic Conference, as it is now (unofficially) called, accepted Oregon and Oregon State to complete the old group last fall. With seven other conference teams to schedule, the traditional rivals will have a hard time finding room for Idaho.

Ironically, the scheduling problem is similar with the smaller schools in the area. The smaller schools are hesitant to compete when 75 Vandals are on "rides" and they have a few number with scholarships.

Wins Differ

On the other hand, Idaho fans like other fans enjoy winning. In fact, what football fans desire most is a winning football

Confusion Over Parking

As matters stand at the present time there is a notable lack of agreement between the policy Security Officers on campus follow, with regard to enforcing the new parking law, and the intent of the head of the committee which planned the system.

The specific example is in the metered areas. According to Francis L. Perryman, of the security police, the metered areas (in front, on the side of and behind the Administration building) are not for students and students parking there are subject to penalty whether or not they insert their penny in the meter.

According to Director of Admissions, Frank Young, it is his interpretation, as head of the committee who planned this "system," that these areas be left open for student convenience while conducting business in that area. (Specifically the Administration building or the Ad Annex.) He was careful to say that he spoke only for himself and not for the operations committee.

This creates one area of confusion. Specifically, it is clear that Young and the committee intended one thing and Perryman interprets it differently. This means that it should be enforced contrary to Mr. Young's wishes. This is not to say that Perryman is defying Young but that one party, charged with the enforcement, doesn't know the intent of the head of the committee.

To further complicate matters it is apparent that there is not complete agreement among the security officers. While Perryman states parking in the metered areas is a violation, neither Fred Pnell nor Wilson Rogers give tickets so long as there is not a meter violation.

Young told Judicial Council Thursday that he would call a meeting of the committee and get a clarification of intentions on the metered area and on the 2-hour parking zone on University Avenue.

This new system of parking was done by rule of thumb rather than on a scientific basis by the operations council. Not being a product of an intensive study done by experts in the field this system is bound to have "bugs."

"We're all for clarification of intentions by the Operations Council and more effective communication between the law-making body and the law enforcement body."

The Operations Council is trying hard and the enforcement officers have a thankless job. With a little more patience on the part of the students perhaps this now confusing and contradictory system can be clarified and become a useful set of regulations.—JR team. Contributions to the University and specifically to the Alumni fund have increased with last year's winning club and the successful club this season.

Without 75 scholarships, it is improbable that Idaho could win consistently against the major teams tentatively scheduled for the next few years.

But Idaho can not afford to sacrifice the Big Sky in the minor sports and in basketball. The big schools offer considerably more scholarships than the University of Idaho can afford. Except in basketball, where they offer full rides, the Vandals are lucky to scrape up partial scholarships. In swimming, track, tennis, golf, etc., Idaho can compete on an equal basis with the Big Sky.

Other Advantages

There are other advantages to the Big Sky. Already one more school has asked to be admitted and will be considered at the Spokane meeting. The conference is a young progressive conference which last year did increase the limit on basketball scholarships and grants for the minor sports.

If the conference officials decide against raising the limit for football next week, where do the Idaho alternatives lie?

1. Accept the ruling as one earlier agreed to—probably an unpopular decision.
2. Quit the conference altogether and tough it as an independent.
3. Work for an agreement with the conference to allow our membership on a basis similar to Gonzaga's, without competing in football.

The problem is a perplexing one and one to which there will not be an easy way out should the limit increase fail to pass.

Dear Jason!

Directors, Band Say Thank You

Dear Jason:
On behalf of the University of Idaho Marching Band, may we take this means of expressing our thanks and appreciation to the many students, faculty and townspeople of Moscow who contributed so generously to send the band to Boise for the Utah State game.

This vote of confidence and interest in the University Bands is refreshing and gratifying.

A special word of thanks must go to John Mix, whose interest and energy gave rise to the idea and carried it through.

We sincerely hope we may continue to justify the confidence of all.

Davey Returns From 'P' Tour

Navy Capt. Harry E. Davey, Jr., Professor of Naval Science at Idaho, recently returned from a two-week tour of southern Idaho during which he spoke to about 1500 students at 28 high schools concerning the Naval ROTC program and the University of Idaho.

"I received very good response," said Davey, "and was very pleased with the trip in general."

Esox Fables

By Bob Banashek

Carpenter's hell will be an eternity of bent nails. Bricklayer's hell may look a lot like the new Physical Science Building. College professors will be doomed to teaching freshmen forever.

But for college students hell will be especially devilish. It will begin each day at 8 (a.m.) and throughout the day there will be midterms . . . Bleah!!

What Attila was to Rome, midterms are to the college student: the inspiration for humility. I always wondered why they didn't halt the world for something as important as midterms. The world is crazy! It goes on spinning in spite of deaths, midterms, police actions, and the Black Plague.

Imagine too, (if not experience) that while these academic bloodlettings are going on, you are still expected to carry on your much more significant affairs of honor, love, sacrifice, letter writing, and beer drinking. It's almost more than a man should be made to stand.

Take To Heart

Have you noticed the way

peeps are changing these days? They don't even carry their books the same way any more.

Used to be that all the guys carried their books at the waist with a straight arm. Now they are starting to bend their elbows a little bit, which moves the books forward to a position just forward and a little higher . . . closer to their hearts, if you will.

This may mean a whole new era in education, in which written knowledge comes closer to the human heart. Then, again, it may be a silent commentary on the dearth of a book that costs so much. It is an important trend to watch.

Bits And Pieces

Esox advises that you begin making your trips to the arboretum now, so as to avoid the spring rush.

This week Esox wants to give special congratulations to Ludwig von Beethoven for his splendid, "Variations on a theme by C. Checkers" and to Szymon Quantor, who did absolutely nothing . . . thus becoming the inspiration for this column.

I would close with a bit of irrelevant philosophy attributed to Fergy the Philosopher: "If we had some ham, we could have some ham and eggs — if we had some eggs." You see now how midterms can demote a man's mind. Happy post midterms!

KUOI Lines Reach More Than Planned

Six living groups not on the KUOI broadcasting lines are receiving radio broadcasts it was discovered Tuesday.

Pi Phi, Phi Delta, Sigma Nu, Theta Chi, Gamma Phi, and ATO are all receiving KUOI broadcasts because of a remote line running from the SUB to the Burning Stake, according to Alvin Burgemeister, Farm-House, station manager.

The set up is purely temporary until we receive a second transmitter, said Burgemeister. The station is not over-radiating and is not violating any rules of the Federal Communications Commission, he said.

The discovery was made when Dick Smith, off-campus, found he was picking up the signal on his radio, Burgemeister said.

Who Missed Spring Practice And Still Won Starting Spot?—Leetzwow

What kind of a football player can miss spring practice then step into a starting role at a new position?

"An exceptional athlete like Max Leetzwow," is head Vandal coach Dee Andros' answer to that question.

"Any man who can start for us two years at tackle, throw the discus 172 feet and beat every lineman on the team in sprints," Andros added, "can make the switch we asked Max to make this season."

As this spring's practice opened up Andros discovered that he had two squadmen, a red-shirt and a rookie lined up for tight end. At tackle he had four lettermen, two sophomores, and a pair of giant red-shirts who had been outstanding on the freshman squads of other four-year schools.

Tight Ends Scarce

Idaho only lettered two men at tight end last season — Hal Osborne, who graduated, and Mike Mayne, who left school with grade difficulties and a professional football possibility. John Whitney, who missed the first week on this fall's practice with ankle troubles, and Cecil Meiser were moved from the guard spot to tight end to give Idaho three men on the traveling squad.

"I think that we can spare Leetzwow to fill in a tackle position yet, but is more than glad to have the former Los Altos, Calif. grinder at the blocking end position.

More than once this season, Leetzwow has come up with the key block allowing Mickey Rice to get off a punt that may have been blocked.

Little Offense

To the men that play this position, the "end" part of their title seems to miss the target. More than half of the time the tight end is not even eligible for passes, and on defense they face the opposing tackle, making them more of a lineman than anything else.

Tight ends caught a total of four passes among them in the 1962-63 season.

"I think they throw the 'tackle eligible' pass more than they do anything to the tight end," Osborne once remarked, "and the tackles didn't even catch the passes thrown their way."

Max hasn't had much of a chance to be eligible for any passes, besides the ones thrown by the opposition, while playing mostly on defense.

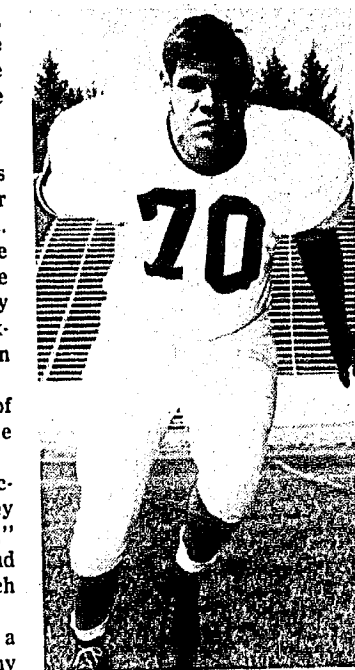

There Goes The Discus

Last spring Leetzwow broke a 10-year-old Idaho discus record with a toss of 172 feet. He also won the Big Sky championship and qualified for the nationals.

"If you qualify for the Olympic team," Andros told Leetzwow, "I'll break your arm."

Leetzwow did not qualify, but did manage to come up with a hernia in the first week of practice, which has put him in a

Max Leetzwow
Tight End

truss for his last year of college football.

"It's not an injury," Max says, "it's just a little pain, I can play with pain, but if it was an injury I'd have gone to the hospital."

WRA Hockey Team 0-2-1 On Oregon Trip

The Women's Recreation Association field hockey team journeyed to Corvallis, Oregon last week-end to compete in the Northwest Field Hockey Tournament.

They played a three-game series, tying with the teams from the University of Puget Sound 1-1 and the University of Oregon 1-1. Their only loss was to Everett Junior College, 3-1.

Meanwhile, the six-team Big Sky Conference is beginning to take shape. Basketball practice has been underway for more than a month at Montana State College and with the opener rapidly approaching, Coach Roger Craft's most pressing problem is that of developing a guard squad.

Craft says, "Our six guards

On The Court

Ten Days Remain Before First Game

With only ten days remaining until the Vandal hoop squad takes the floor for the first game of the 1964-65 season, it looks as if they will be faced with some real tough competitors. This year the Vandals play a 25 game season, with 12 contests on the home court.

1st Game

The Vandals first game is with the Cougars of Washington State, Dec. 1 in the Memorial Gymnasium. The biggest name on the WSU squad this year is that of 6-9 center Ted Werner. Werner, the tallest man on the roster, led the Cougars in rebounding last year and was the second leading scorer, averaging 12 points per game. Coach Marv Harshman is counting heavily on the big center to help the Cougars improve on last year's 5-21 mark.

Other returning lettermen are Dale Ford, Ken Hammer, Dennis Kolke, Bob Montgomery, Tom Tommervik and Doug Weaver.

Coach Harshman also expects five junior college transfers to be on hand for the first game. They are: Fred Boyer, Bob Pearson, Dennis Thomas, Ray Erickson and George Lounsbury.

Big Sky

Meanwhile, the six-team Big Sky Conference is beginning to take shape. Basketball practice has been underway for more than a month at Montana State College and with the opener rapidly approaching, Coach Roger Craft's most pressing problem is that of developing a guard squad.

Craft says, "Our six guards have good potential but too little experience to rate up with what we lost."

What the Bobcats are missing from last year's championship team are their three top guards — Bill Phillips, Dave Knostman and Andy Wyatt.

How tough we'll be this winter depends to a great extent on how fast our guards come along," Craft says.

Two returning lettermen, Ken Schweitzer and Ron Scott are vying for the starting guard spots. However, neither saw a great deal of action last year.

A pleasant surprise among four newcomers has been Darrell Furna, a 5-10 sophomore. Furna is an outstanding competitor, an excellent defensive player and has shown recently that he can score.

"If he continues to play as he has in practice, he could move right into the starting lineup," Craft commented.

However, the Montana State mentor continued by saying that he would do a lot of experimenting in an attempt to come up with a combination that could do the job successfully.

The 1964-65 Weber State basketball squad, under the direction of head coach Dick Motta has also been practicing for more than a month now.

The Wildcats should be improved in height and defense this year with the addition of some taller players and defense-minded assistant coach Phil Johnson.

Although the added height is not considerable, it will be an improvement over last year's team.

A request from the University to change the Big Sky Conference grant-in-aid limit from 60 to 75 grants will be laid on the line Monday when the six presidents of the conference institutions and athletic directors and faculty athletic representatives from members schools meet at Spokane.

President Donald R. Theophilus; John Thomas, acting athletic director and Dean Frederick J. Weltzin, faculty athletic representative will represent the University. The athletic directors will begin meeting Monday morning and meet through Tuesday. The six presidents of the member schools will begin a separate meeting Monday at 1:30 p.m.

A similar proposal by the University was defeated when the conference officials met last spring.

When the conference was founded three years ago—largely under Idaho's guidance—the Vandals were permitted to maintain the 75 grants they then were offering until January 1, 1965.

Idaho was granted the "grace period" in view of a tough schedule and commitments already made, Theophilus told the Argonaut yesterday.

"However, at the time the conference was founded, everyone involved with the University's athletic program understood that we would have to comply with the conference football ruling after the present season," he said.

Theophilus Proposes

The proposal that Theophilus has submitted to the conference member schools would change two sections in the Big Sky regulations pertaining to grants-in-aid to:

"The total number of full grants-in-aid to athletics (both varsity and freshmen) which can be given by member institutions shall not exceed 115. The number of full time grants-in-aid, for both varsity and freshman, shall not exceed 75 football or 20 in basketball."

Some Idaho fans have protested that if the football grant limit is not raised, Idaho should sever ties with the Big Sky.

Dr. Theophilus indicated yesterday that University officials had not decided on taking action if the limit is not raised. He expressed hope, however, that an agreement can be reached at the conference meeting.

Andros Warning

Idaho football coach Dee Andros has warned Idaho fans publicly on the effects of de-emphasizing a football program. He pointed to the University of the Pacific as an example. Until two years ago when Pacific de-emphasized football, the California school had been a power among independent Coast schools. In their last two meetings, Idaho defeated Pacific 64-6, and 40-0.

Big Sky Commissioner Jack Friel said that he has not taken a position in the matter.

Theophilus said that a decision by the conference officials should come either Monday or Tuesday.

At the Spokane meeting, the conference will also consider the application of a seventh school to become a conference member. Friel declined to comment on what school is applying but both Portland State College and the University of Nevada are considered likely prospects.

In addition to Idaho in the Big Sky conference are Montana State University, Montana State College, Idaho State University, Weber State College and Gonzaga University.

Vandal's Even Season Mark On Line Against ASU

Dee Predicts Thriller For Season Finale

Striving to rack up a .500 per cent mark for the season, Dee Andros and his Vandals will go all out against the Arizona State Sun Devils tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Tempe, in what Andros said may be "another one of those games."

Idaho will close out its grid season, which has seen the Vandals fight through four games that were not decided until the final play was called dead.

After winning three of the last four games, Idaho will have its work cut out for it if the current 4-5 record is to be improved.

To date, Arizona State has not given Idaho much to brag about by not giving up a victory in the three gridiron meetings between the two universities.

Arizona State, a consistently strong football power which has lost only two games in the past two years, has been dumped once this season. That setback came at the hands of Utah, which shut Idaho out, 22-0, by a 16-3 score. The single loss gave the Sun Devils a 7-1 mark to date.

Strong Air Attack

The ASU win-loss slate is backed up by an impressive air attack, which has rolled up a 244-yard-per-game average, the third best in the nation.

3rd In Nation

Coupled with a strong rushing game, the Devil passing attack has boosted their total offense to third in the nation, also, with a 377.5 yard per game total.

Due to the fine passing game of Arizona State, Andros has had his charges working on pass defense this week, and on sharpening their own passing game.

The Utah State game was a costly victory for the Vandals, as three regulars entered the injured column which already included Dick Litzinger, who has been out most of the season.

Bob Bassett pulled some leg muscles and collected some painful bruises as he hit the goal post trying to defense a pass in the final frantic seconds of the game.

Close Battle

Andros predicted another close battle with a lot of action and almost "Hitchcock type" suspense, which has seemed to mark the final minutes of Andros' games this year.

"Arizona State, Utah State, and Arizona are all about equal and will play about the same type of game on any given Saturday afternoon," Andros said. "It is who does the best job and makes the least mistakes that will beat these schools."

"We expect to be ready for the Sun Devils and will do our best to beat them," he went on, "but they have what it takes to pull a game out at anytime and that makes any lead small."

Nothing Special

Asked if he had made any special additions to the defense in an effort to stop Arizona State, Andros said, "No, we just went over our usual patterns with a little extra time on the pass play. We aren't going to worry too much about what they have—we'll let them worry about stopping us."

Mike Whiles Has Surgery

Idaho's senior safety Mike Whiles will miss his last chance to play in a college football game this weekend.

Whiles is in Spokane's Deaconess Hospital recovering from a five and one-half hour operation on torn ligament in his left knee.

Whiles was injured at the end of the third quarter against Utah State last Saturday in Boise.

Coach Dee Andros talked briefly with Whiles yesterday afternoon over the telephone. The defensive specialist wished his teammates all the luck in the world. Andros told Whiles the team would miss him, and would keep him in mind while they strived to put the Sun Devils in their place.

Whiles' surgery was said to be highly successful, by the attending physician. He should be back in class by the first part of the week, but will be on crutches for some time.

Idaho Ski Club To Reorganize

Vandal Ski Club plans to reorganize this year during the first week after Thanksgiving holidays, according to Mel Cook, Phi Delta, president.

Cook said that the club is open to anyone interested in skiing. Club dues are $1 per year.

The Idaho and WSU ski clubs plan a ski carnival together at Schweitzer Basin ski resort in North Idaho sometime in March, Cook said. The club is also planning a trip during semester break to either Kimberly or Rosland, British Columbia.

The Polaris is better known as the North Star.

'Chap Stick' goes along!

"Whether it's the fishing or basketball season, I always carry 'Chap Stick,'" says the L.A. Lakers' star. "During the winter, I leave a heated gym and go into the cold night air. That's when my lips used to get sore. And out fishing under the summer sun, they dried out—even cracked. But now, summer or winter, 'Chap Stick' does the job—soothes my lips and helps heal them fast!"

A favorite in Canada.

"Chuck's a swinger," says she. "His Coronet is quick and clean, with a lean and hungry look. It's equipped with a 426 cubic inch mill that will mock your turtle at the strip or on the street. He's got four-on-the-floor, buckets, belts, carpets, console, spinners, and a padded dash. And he said that everything but the four-speed stick and the 426 was standard."
