

McCann, McClusky Take Spots By Big Margin

Senate Okehs U-I Budget

BOISE — Little debate and opposition only from the economy bloc marked the 35-5 approval, in the Idaho Senate, of biennium appropriations nearing $20 million for the University Wednesday afternoon.

The little debate in the Senate on the measure was somewhat in contrast to 2½ hours of debate in the House the day before, even though opposition in both houses was by the same five vote margin.

Only the governor's signature now is required for the appropriation measure, of which the biggest part—$14.7 million—will go into the University's general education fund. Totals in the legislative-passed bill are the same as Gov. Robert E. Smylie proposed in his January budget message.

Passage of the appropriation in the Senate left unpassed $2 million appropriation for a new college of Education building and engineering laboratories among bills for the University facing the legislature.

The monies for the two buildings are part of a bill for $8 million total in the state building fund.

In the House Tuesday, representatives favoring the University appropriation bill resisted attempts to cut into the agriculture research and extension portions of the allocation. No objections were voiced to the $14.7 million for general education.

"More In General" However, former University of Idaho Student Body president, Rep. Charles McDevitt, R-Ada, asked that the bill be returned to committee so that extension service budget could be cut to put more money into the general election fund.

Objections to the appropriation bill in the Senate were mainly that too much was being spent for agriculture and agriculture research. These objections were voiced by members of the Senate economy bloc led by Sen. William

U-I Theft Case Under Advisement

Latah County Probate Judge C. L. Woodward cleared the courtroom Wednesday afternoon in a preliminary hearing of University student Jack R. Hutteball charged with burglary.

Judge Woodward cleared the court after a motion by Hutteball's attorney Cope R. Gale.

Hutteball is accused of taking $600 worth of books from the University student bookstore.

Judge Woodward took the case under advisement before deciding whether to bind the felony charged over to District Court.

The hearing called for 1:30 p.m. took an hour and a half and two witnesses were called.

The witnesses were Mrs. Sandra Ruby, a Student Union cafeteria employee who allegedly surprised Hutteball in the basement of the Student Union Building the night of the incident, and C. M. Kerr, bookstore manager.

ASUI Election Candidates Discuss Major Issues At Smoker - - Debate

A new form of student government, more student representation, and better communications between students, ASUI officers, and the administration were the major issues discussed by ASUI candidates at the smoker Tuesday night.

The candidates, speaking before approximately 75 students in the Bucket, each spoke for a few minutes giving their position on major issues.

Jim Johnston, ASUI president, moderated, keeping each speaker's opening remarks within a three minute time period.

After each candidate had spoken, Johnston asked for questions from the floor. Candidates were also given the opportunity to ask their opponents questions.

Craig MacPhee, independent candidate for president, listed two main areas that he feels are important in this election.

"First is responsibility both as an individual and collectively in student government," MacPhee said. "Second is representation. We do not need any drastic change in government, but simply a reorganization."

His opponent, Bill McCann, CUP candidate for president, also listed two areas of major concern to him. The first dealt with representation on E-Board.

"We need a change in student representation and government. This cannot be done immediately, but we should start now," McCann said.

McCann also mentioned the importance of working closely with the new University president, Dr. Ernest W. Hartung. "We must show him a strong student gov-

Record Of 7 Ballots Are Required To Elect Morfitt As The First E-Board Member For 65-66

Bill McCann became the 1965-'66 ASUI president by piling up 1,500 votes to beat independent candidate Craig MacPhee, who received 1,034 votes in Wednesday's balloting.

CUP vice presidential candidate Dave McClusky buried independent candidate Dick Tracy, Lambda Chi, by rolling up an almost three-to-one margin. McClusky, Sigma Chi, received 1,861 votes to Tracy's 640.

A total of 186 ballots were cast for other presidential candidates other than McCann or MacPhee and 228 for other vice presidential candidates.

Students cast a total of 2756 votes in the presidential race and one less in the vice presidential race.

Over 200 more students voted this year than last year. In 1964 Jim Johnston beat Carl Johannessen, 1,221 to 1,070, with 230 write-ins and 10 invalid votes for a total of 2,528.

Idaho students also topped the 1963 voting mark of 2,659 ballots cast by almost 100 votes.

McCann won the second spot on Executive Board last year with 250 votes. MacPhee was one of four candidates who made it on the sixth ballot.

After learning of his victory McCann told the Argonaut: "I'm extremely proud and happy to be elected ASUI President. I'm glad to see that such a large percentage of the students voted."

"It disproves the cry of apathy which was heard before and during the campaign."

In a prepared statement MacPhee said: "Win or lose, the greatest satisfaction in life belongs to the man who is actually in the arena... a leader who knows the great enthusiasm, the devotion of a campaign and spends himself in worthy causes."

A record seven ballots were counted before the first E-Board member was elected Wednesday night.

On the seventh ballot Mick Morfitt, SAE, was declared first place, and Ken Johnson, Phi Delta, second place.

On the eighth ballot Lon Atchley, Willis Sweet, was declared third place and Ruth Ann Knapp, Ethel Sweet, fourth on the ballot.

Judy Manville, Pi Phi, won fifth place and John Cooksey, Sigma Chi, took sixth place on the ninth ballot.

Jim Winger, Gault, a write-in candidate, took seventh place on tenth ballot.

After the tenth ballot Bob Aldridge, Theta Chi, and Don Fry, Delta Sig, were declared ninth and tenth place, respectively, although they didn't receive the minimum number of votes.

Samuel H. Day, editor of the Idaho Observer, will speak to Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism honorary, on the newspaper's role in public affairs Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Building, Appaloosa Room.

Day worked for Associated Press and Lewiston Morning Tribune and was editor of Salmon Recorder-Herald before becoming editor of the Observer.

"A newspaper worthy of the name can be sure of a life of struggle," maintains Day. One of the most valuable assets of a totalitarian state is control of newspapers. Day will emphasize the importance of free press in our present society.

Editorial In an editorial printed in the Salmon Recorder-Herald, shortly before Day left that paper, he said that while a newspaper need not advocate an unpopular cause, it should not close the channels of opinion for anyone else.

The degree of circulation of ideas, without fear of reprisal is a yardstick of the effectiveness of the newspaper and balance of a community, he added.

The newspaper fights a battle against the self-appointed censors and managers of the news and against officialdom in and out of government which regards the public's business as its own business.

U-I Student Acts Selected For Blue Key Talent Show

Sixteen acts will provide entertainment at the annual Blue Key Talent Show to be presented April 2 in the SUB ballroom.

Nearly 30 individual, group and house acts auditioned during the three days of tryouts, which closed Monday, according to Glen Atchley, auditions chairman.

Also vying for honors are the Ramblers, a group of folksingers from the Delta house; Margie Brun and Linda Tague, Pi Phi, interpretive dance; and Carol Tubbs and Nancy Matter, Alpha Phi, vocal numbers.

Kappa Sig and Hays will each enter an all-house act in the Blue Key Show.

Barbara Howard, Kappa, tap dance; Al Olston, off campus, accordion; Penny Gale, Alpha Phi, modern dance; John Napoli, TKE, violin; and Margaret Elder, off campus, vocal selection.

A. Robert Marley and Derold Hurlbert, both off campus, will share the master-of-ceremonies duties for the production.

"I am really pleased with the show," said Jim Johnston, ASUI president. "The acts are some of the best we've ever had try out."

Carl Johannesen, talent show general chairman, concurred with Johnston, saying, "This will be a bigger and better show than we've ever had before!"

A general meeting of sub-chairmen working on the show is scheduled for 5 p.m. Thursday in the activities room of the SUB, according to Johannesen, and advance ticket sales will begin in the SUB next week.

A dress rehearsal will be held at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 24, in the SUB ballroom, Atchley said.

Idaho Editor Is Speaker At Meeting

Samuel H. Day, editor of the Idaho Observer, will speak to Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism honorary, on the newspaper's role in public affairs Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Building, Appaloosa Room.

Day worked for Associated Press and Lewiston Morning Tribune and was editor of Salmon Recorder-Herald before becoming editor of the Observer.

The newspaper fights a battle against the self-appointed censors and managers of the news and against officialdom in and out of government which regards the public's business as its own business.

Students applications for committees are to be made by Wednesday and turned into the general manager's office in the SUB. Any interested students are encouraged to participate.

Committees need to be filled concerning plans for a parade, hospitality booths, greeting stations on the highways entering Moscow, for planning art shows, concerts, dances, and drawings.

"We will work with the students E-Board and other students in an effort for the business and professional community to get to know each other better, by working together in a joint project," said Mix.

"Already we have been given a pledge by Phi Delta Theta Fraternity for their service in preparation of the Moscow Airport, this is in conjunction with their National Community Day project," he said.

Surprise Shown

Jim Winger, Gault, was a surprise winner in the Executive Board race Wednesday when he received the necessary 270 votes on the tenth and final ballot.

The efforts to elect Winger were directed by members of Gault and Upham, according to Howard King, Gault, campaign manager and president of Gault.

The students began their campaign Monday night, he said.

Winger is athletic director of Gault and is a member of the University Athletic Board of Control, King said.

"Other than that he's just Jim," he added. "He will be a good man."

The campaign manager said he was definite that Winger had the required grade point of 2.2 to accept his election to E-Board.

The new Executive Board member is a senior.

Prescription But Not a Cure-all.

The Golden Fleece

By Jason

Rep. Charles McDevitt, R-Ada. had a point Tuesday in his arguments in the House of Representatives that the University's appropriation bill be sent back to committee for changes.

We won't argue here that his idea to cut the University's agriculture extension budget to add more to the general education pool, was right or wrong. But McDevitt did point out one thing, that the sales tax and the subsequent passage of the University's largest appropriation won't bring the cure-all for Idaho's higher education ills that some people expect.

Thanks Doc, But . . .

This isn't to say that we are ungrateful to the "Doctors" in the legislature who are prolonging our life with their prescribed appropriation.

The $14.7-million biennium appropriation for general education will indeed help. It will enable the University to raise some salaries by about 10 per cent and thus help to stop the outflow of teachers. For the first time in years we will be on a somewhat competitive level with neighboring institutions for faculty salaries.

Still cutbacks will have to be made in areas that are important to the level of education available at the University. Capital outlay improvements will be the first to be cut.

There still won't be enough money to buy more laboratory space and equipment for the sciences or enough money to buy many of the thousands of new library books that technology makes a part of our increasing educational expenses.

To Better Health

Even the funds for salary increases will probably look smaller when universities in neighboring states get their appropriations. But the appropriation we did get was essential. It will enable us to continue the programs we do have and to make some improvements. While the appropriation didn't cure our ills, it did put enough vitamins in our system to give us hope for a healthier future.

Alcoholism—Getting Better

WSU Professor Says

PULLMAN — Society's attitude toward alcohol and alcoholics is undergoing a gradual change, and in many ways it's for the better.

This is the contention of Dr. Milton A. Maxwell, Washington State University professor of sociology, who has devoted a major portion of his career to research on alcohol and its effect on man.

The sociologist points out that our Puritan ancestors were not the teetotalers we have come to believe, and that the temperance movement really began in the 1830s. Dr. Maxwell maintains that although the wet-dry controversy which raged for some 100 years has not run its course, the sociological reforms that began creeping in during the 1930s have intensified in recent years.

He explained that the scientists have tried to keep between the two extreme positions in the wet-dry controversy, but that there has been folklore and myth connected with the alcohol problem even in the medical and scientific worlds.

"Medical people, scientists and laymen are beginning to realize that alcoholism is an illness to be treated, and that the alcoholic needs help and is worth helping," Dr. Maxwell said.

He points out that scientific studies on alcohol began at Yale in the 1930s, and since then the National Council on Alcoholism has been formed and committees on drinking behavior have snowballed in recent years.

"The fact that people are more willing to accept the idea of alcoholism as a sickness is borne out by the fact that now more than 125 clinics for alcoholics in the United States exist today, including three in Washington," he said.

Dr. Maxwell, who did his doctoral dissertation on the social factors in the alcoholics anonymous program, said that the education work done by AA and other organizations is beginning to take effect. Alcoholics are coming in for help to clinics and the AA at an earlier age, and a bigger percentage of women alcoholics are seeking treatment than ever before.

"In a sense, a real social movement is needed to produce a new climate, more objectivity and additional research on alcohol problems such as drinking and driving," he said. "Work on the latter is lagging because of public sentiment.

P.S. For Contributions

The Argonaut wants to add a postscript to the recognition recently given two University of Idaho educators by the Idaho Observer, a weekly Boise newspaper of news and commentary.

Philip E. Peterson, Dean of the College of Law, was featured on the cover of the Feb. 25, 1965, issue of the Observer. Peterson unofficially helped out in the 1963 legislative session and was an official consultant during this session.

A noted authority in the field of taxation, Dean Peterson was chiefly responsible for reducing whims on a sales tax to an acceptable piece of legislation. He also helped with the waters resources agency bill.

The Observer tabbed Gordon Law, head of the Department of Communications, as "Mr. ETV" (Educational Television) and honored him with the cover and leading story in the March 11, 1965, issue.

Law has been instrumental in the progress to date of a state-wide system of educational television which will offset Idaho's teacher shortage and lack of modern teaching facilities.

Law and Peterson are exemplary of many University of Idaho faculty members who are willing, sometimes at great inconvenience to themselves, to perform public services around the State. For Law and Peterson it meant researching additional hours at home and "commuting" weekends to southern Idaho by airplane.

Other faculty members have investigated special problems involving a variety of subjects from business administration to potatoes and tree-infesting insects. Together, they have displayed that the University of Idaho not only has top talent available, but that this talent is willing to help the State progress. The result builds a favorable University image across the State.

For this, they should be congratulated.—J.H.

Music Meet Draws 400

Some 400 musicians from 12 north Idaho high schools converged on the University campus Friday for the annual District I solo and ensemble music competition festival.

Glen Lockery, acting head of the department of music at the University and local chairman of the festival, said all the students are individual soloists. They will compete in the categories of vocal, instrumental and piano solos and vocal and instrumental ensembles.

Lockery explained that the competition will not be between students, but a determination by an adjudicator of each individual's ability.

Adjudicators are Idaho faculty members LeRoy Bauer, Warren Bellis, Phillip Coffman, Norman Logan and Charles Walton. Others are Jerry Bailey and Howard Deming from Washington State University.

NEW CARS

The University recently purchased nine new 1965 Chevrolet from Fahrwald Chevrolet, Moscow.

Recital Planned At U-I Thursday

Two members of the University of Idaho music faculty will collaborate in a faculty recital at 8 p.m. Thursday, in the Music Recital Hall.

LeRoy Bauer, violinist, professor and director of the University Symphony Orchestra, and Thomas Turner, pianist, assistant professor, will present three sonatas as a part of the series of faculty recitals scheduled by the department of music.

The program will include the Sonata No. 3 in E by Bach.

University Joins Nation In Facing Shortage Of Doctorates, Professors

Things are tough all over! While Idaho faces a problem of staffing its faculty with competent professors and doctorates, schools across the nation are facing similar situations.

The University of Wisconsin's placement bureau had more requests for college teachers last year than the total number of Ph.D.'s the university has turned out in ten years.

More than 6,000 requests were received last year, with only 700 qualified and available teachers registered for college placement. The total number of Ph.D.'s produced at Wisconsin from 1953 through 1963 was 3,825.

A startling example of this demand reflected across the United States was given by President John Hannah of Michigan State University.

"The University of California has indicated that during the next five years it should employ all of the new Ph.D.'s in the country just to keep up with the students on all its campuses," he said in a news letter of the Office of Institutional Research, an association of state universities and land grant colleges. He also noted that the University of Illinois stated that during the next five years it should "employ one-fourth of all the new Ph.D.'s produced in the country" just to keep up with the students on all its campuses.

The U of W Commissioner of Education Francis Keppel, reflected on the growing shortage of new doctorates on college faculties: In 1953 over 40 per cent of college teachers possessed the doctorate, but, by 1970, "our colleges will fall approximately 90,000 short of having as many as 30 per cent with doctorates," he said.

Last December the Carnegie Foundation issued a report offering several suggestions to combat the shortage.

The invention of a new degree, between the M.A. and the Ph.D., for those who do not need to produce dissertations in order to teach, was proposed Idaho Dean

Idaho Dean Samuelson of the College of Education was asked his opinion of such a measure in an interview yesterday.

"The MAT started by Harvard and now offered by many private and state universities serves this purpose," he said.

Poetry Contest Announced; All I Students May Enter

The Annual Anthology of College Poetry sponsored by the National Poetry Press will be published this spring. All students are eligible to submit manuscripts to be considered for publication in the collection, said D. Hartman, director of the contest.

The contest gives the entrants a chance to compare their work with that of other students across the country and have the satisfaction of seeing their efforts in print, he said.

The student's name, home address and college must be typed or printed on each entry submitted and each contribution must be on a separate piece of paper. Failure to follow these rules will disqualify the entrants, Hartman said.

Inasmuch as space is limited, more favorable consideration will be given to shorter poems, he said.

Manuscripts must be submitted by April 10 to National Poetry

Press, 3210 Selby Ave., Los Angeles 34, Calif.

During the past ten years, colleges throughout the country submitted over a hundred thousand manuscripts. Approximately ten thousand of these have been published, Hartman said.

She was in Moscow to address a luncheon of the Engineering in Training conference at the SUB and a meeting of the Moscow Historical Society.

New U-I Star Created At Hirt Idaho Concert

A new star was created at the Al Hirt concert Saturday night.

"Gale Mix," Student Union Building manager, was talking with Hirt after the show while Hirt signed programs.

Recalls Mix, "After a while, when he had become swamped with programs, Hirt gave me a pen and told me to start signing too. So I started signing programs 'Al Hirt' too."

"This system worked fine," Mix said, "until a small boy wandered up and asked 'Say, who is this fellow Gale Hirt?'" That boy was one of the 3,800 to 4,000 persons that viewed the show.

When Bills Paid
When all the bills are paid, Mix said, there will be a net profit of between $1,500 and $1,700.

Mix reported that he was very happy about the profit considering the cost of bringing Hirt to the campus.

Mix said that Hirt was very pleased with his reception and said that he would like to come back again if he was in the area.

This was in spite of poor airline connections and speaker problems.

Hirt, whose band arrived early Saturday, had difficulties flying out of San Francisco and did not arrive until Saturday evening. This, followed by problems on the stage, still did not deter audience enjoyment of the performance.

Best Sellers
Hirt performed many of his best sellers including: "Cotton Candy," "Fancy Pants," "Sugar Lips" and "Birth of the Blues." "Whiskey and Beer," sung and played by Hirt; "Girl from Ipanema," and "Carnival of Venice" drew applause from the audience.

Members of the band included "PeeWee" Joseph Spitelera, on clarinet; Fred H. Cirane, piano; Gerald Hirt, trombone; Jay Cabe, base fiddle, and James H. Zitano, drums.

Cirane was featured playing a jazz version of "Beyond the Hills of Idaho" during the program.

T' Stickmen Open Slate Saturday Against CBC

Idaho's baseball coach Wayne Anderson is a man with a problem. The Vandals open their 1965 season on Saturday with a double-header against Columbia Basin College in Pasco, Wash., and Andy says, "I don't know where to play anybody."

The Idaho mentor is going after his sixth winning season in a row and he isn't really that perplexed. "It's just that I have not worked out with the team much in early spring because of the long basketball season and the tournaments that followed," he explained. Anderson is the assistant basketball coach.

Harriers Plan For Cougars, Banana Belt

Idaho's track coach Doug MacFarlane says he's just going to load up his whole track team and head for Pullman's Washington State Indoor Invitational meet this Saturday.

If that seems like a casual approach to the first meet of the season it's probably because the Vandal cinder boss has a bigger problem on his mind — staging the first annual Banana Belt Relays in Lewiston a week from Saturday.

It's not just a hit-or-miss affair either. Gerry Lindgren and Montana's Doug Brown will duel in a special two-mile race at Vollmer Bowl next weekend.

"The NCAA has given us written sanction for the race," MacFarlane reported, "and we're going to kick this meet off with a bang."

The other event that is catching almost as much attention as the running of Lindgren and Brown is a "fat men's relay." MacFarlane has established a set of ground rules for this one that could make it resemble feeding time at the elephant farm. Each runner must be over 200 pounds or show proof of being well fed.

MacFarlane may have loaded this one, however. One of the legs of the race will be run by the Inland Empire's other famous young athletic personality — Ray McDonald, who holds a few Idaho prep running records as well as a handful of Vandal football rushing marks.

Fifteen teams are entered in the Relay event including eight college and seven junior college and frosh teams. Slated for action in the varsity competition are host Idaho, Montana, Montana State, Washington State, Whitworth, Whitman, Eastern Washington and Eastern Oregon. In the other lineup are the Idaho and Washington State Frosh, Lewis-Clark Normal, Columbia Basin, Big Bend, North Idaho and Blue Mountain JCs.

Defensive coach Steve Musseau steps into the head coaching role at Idaho this season with a team he helped recruit and coach for three seasons as the Vandals make their Big Sky debut.

Joining Musseau as assistants are Walt Anderson, a former assistant to Steve at Orange Coast college, and a successful prep coach in southern California; Gary Jacobson, an all-American guard at Orange Coast and Whittier college; John Smith, assistant coach at Caldwell High School when Ray McDonald was tearing up the Idaho prep scene; and Al Daniels, former Boise high assistant.

Tough Slate

Musseau faces a typically tough Idaho schedule and must fill at least three vacated positions in the backfield. The fullback spot, however, is in the greatest shape in the history of the school with big Ray McDonald on hand. The 6-4, 232-pound junior letterman is on his way to becoming the greatest back in the 73 years of intercollegiate football at Idaho. Missing the first three and one-half games last year as a sophomore because of a summer ankle injury, McDonald came back to break the summer rushing mark, ball carrying record, and closed in on the scoring standard.

The Vandals will have to find replacements for starters Rich Naccarato, Tom Morris in the backfield and Max Leetzow at defensive end, but the rest of the two platoons are in good shape.

McDonald won't be the only record-wrecker around this season either. Fleet Joe Chapman, the great split end from Coeur d'Alene, already has gained more yards receiving in one season than anyone in history and is taking dead aim on another half-dozen records.

Opener Against Washington

Idaho opens against Washington in Seattle on Sept. 18, then returns home for another battle with San Jose State. Only once in the past five years has the margin been greater than a touchdown. Washington State at Pullman is next on the slate as the Vandals go for their first back-to-back wins since 1924.

The Vandals head for Logan and a rematch with Utah State. The Aggies are still smarting over the 27-22 loss in Boise last season, but the Vandals aren't forgetting a 69-0 bombing in Logan in 1961 either. Idaho has won two in a row in Boise and would like nothing better than to make it three at the expense of former Vandal mentor Dee Andros and his new team—the Oregon State Rose Bowl Beavers.

League Premier With Montana

Big Sky play for Idaho opens in Missoula on Oct. 23 against Montana. Idaho hasn't beaten the "Tips in Missoula since 1958. Oregon at Eugene is next, followed by three straight Big Sky battles. Weber State at Ogden will match Idaho and the Wildcats for the first time on the gridiron.

The Keys Will Be:

1. How the Vandals fare in their opener against an always tough University of Washington;
2. How the Vandals adjust to a new staff and any changes in the program that Musseau and his crew install;
3. Whether anyone can find a way of stopping McDonald or any of the variations in the offense that Idaho installs to use the "Big Horse" as a decoy against a stacked defense.

Karl von Tagen

SAE Wins IM Bowling

Sigma Alpha Epsilon beat Sigma Chi for the intramural bowling championship last week to gain 100 points toward repeating as campus intramural champions.

This issue's standings do not include the bowling points as the final match between Alpha Tau Omega and Chrisman Hall was to be played last night. Skiing, captured by the Deltas, which was to be played last night, is included along with golf which was played last fall.

The half-way point of "B" basketball is rapidly approaching. Only two major sports are left, softball and track, and two minors, horseshoes and weightlifting.

Karl Von Tagen, Idaho record busting swimmer will represent the Vandals at the NCAA swimming championships at Iowa State University, March 25-27. "I'm extremely happy that Karl has a chance to go to the nationals," head swimming mentor John Cramer said. "He has trained very hard, and I know he will represent the University to the best of his ability."

Cramer added that he didn't think he could predict the outcome as far as Von Tagen was concerned.

He's Ready

"However," he noted, "I do know that right now, without competition, he has one of the fastest freestyle times in the country. The question is whether he will be psychologically ready when the gun sounds. Physically, he is ready to race right now."

The senior tanker from Walnut Creek, Calif., qualified in both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events at the Big Sky meet a week ago in Missoula. He set conference records in both events with a time of 22 seconds flat in the 50 and 49.3 in the 100.

Both marks broke the records which Von Tagen had set a year ago in the conference meet and both were new Idaho records for varsity competition. Von Tagen also held the old standards.

Although the big sprinter qualified in two events he also smashed his own school and conference record in the 200-yard freestyle competition, with a time of 1:53.5. The old record was 1:57.

He also holds a share of the 400-yard freestyle and medley relay records at Idaho.

This is Von Tagen's third trip to the nationals, having qualified in both events last year and the 50 as a sophomore.
