ASUI Funds Draw Interest

ASUI reserve funds totalling $50,000 have been deposited in the First Security Bank of Idaho it was reported at last Tuesday's Executive Board meeting.

In a letter from financial vice president Kenneth Dick, it was stated that the funds had been given a certificate of deposit drawing 4 1/2 per cent interest annually. In action earlier this fall, E-Board had recommended placing $50,000 of the $70,000 presently available in the general fund in such a savings account. The money, while remaining available to the ASUI for possible increases in the budget in future years, will also be drawing interest.

Students Injured In Fire Are Better

KING BELSHAZZAR trembles before the handwriting on the wall in an episode from "The Play of Daniel," to be broadcast over KUID Christmas Eve. The 12th Century music drama is one of the National Educational Television's 1965 special programs.

KUID-TV To Present Musical

"The Play of Daniel," will be presented by KUID-TV as the National Educational Television's feature for its Christmas Special, Dec. 24.

An annual Christmas favorite in the 12th-century, the 90 minute musical drama will present colorful acting, period costumes, and instruments of the medieval setting.

The liturgical drama, revived after six centuries by Noah Greenberg, will be performed by the New York Pro Musica and set in the Cloisters in New York City.

Fifth-Year Students Not To Be Deferred

Fifth-year students in a four-year curriculum should not expect to be deferred from the Selective Service for a longer period, Registrar F. L. O'Neill said yesterday.

Students are expected to complete a four-year program in four years, he said. Students in a five-year curriculum are deferred for the additional year.

O'Neill and Joseph E. Frazier, assistant registrar, received this information at conference at Seattle earlier this month. The Selective Service director for Washington and Oregon and some top officials in the national department attended.

Seven U of I students who had withdrawn from school at the end of the first eight weeks this semester said they were leaving to enter the armed forces. This does not necessarily mean they were drafted, said O'Neill.

Another reason for withdrawal was lack of interest in studies, he said. Eleven have given this reason.

A total of 53 students had left school at the end of the first eight weeks, giving a total of 12 different reasons.

"When students registered first semester, all male students were requested to fill out form FSS 109A, which the University submits to local draft boards," said O'Neill. "The only information on this form is the name of the student, his Selective Service number, the date and whether the student is full or part time."

Fire Completely Destroyed Housing; Injured Better

Charles T. Rich of Wendell who dove out of a second-story window when the house in which he was living at 626 Ash Street caught fire has improved a great deal said Dr. Larele Stephens, owner of the burned house.

"Rich, who dove out hand and head first, suffered a skull fracture and two broken arms," Stephens said.

Rich was taken to Deaconess Hospital in Spokane by local emergency fire squad, Dr. Stephens said. Dr. Stephens thought that Rich would be brought back to Moscow in the next few days.

Also improved but still in the hospital is Leonard L. McConnell, Moscow who suffered severe burns over one-third of his body. McConnell will probably be in the hospital for at least a month," Dr. Stephens said.

Two of the other students who were badly burned, were released yesterday. They are Dennis C. Chamberlain, Delco, and Marvin L. Bingham, Rupert.

Others Released There were six other students in the house at the time. All had burns, cuts, and bruises but have been released from the hospital. They include Clive E. Chipman, Salmon; Richard W. Revoir, Ketchum; Elden J. Larson, Lewiston; Dale E. King, Heyburn; Leslie D. Larson, Shoshone; and Alfred E. Barrus, Wendell.

These students are all members of the LDS Institute. Because of the need for office space there are no students living in the Institute according to Dan Gillette, president.

"Dr. Stephens bought this house for some of us to live in," Gillette said. "The students were paying rent to Dr. Stephens," he said.

"We have plans for building a new LDS house in the near future," Gillette added.

Temporary Living Quarters "The students in the fire have found temporary living quarters," Dr. Stephens said.

"Five of them are living with Mrs. Stephens and myself. Three others are living at the home of Leon E. Orme, associate professor of animal science.

Two of the other students involved in the fire and one other who had already left for vacation will be living in other homes in the area," Stephens said.

Fire Chief Leon W. Sodorff said that the fire had been caused by a coal furnace in the basement.

Furnace "The boys had stoked the furnace about 1 a.m. and then apparently closed it, Sodorff said. "Because there was a lack of sufficient draft, the furnace caught on fire and soon the basement was on fire."

"The basement burned for quite a long time before the boys who were all on the second floor became aware of it."

Eldon Larson was the first to wake up and woke up the others, but by this time the stairway was on fire and the only way to get out of the building was from the windows.

Explosion "Gases built up within the furnace and crept out which caused an explosion and then the fire spread rapidly throughout the house," Sodorff said.

It was all very quick, he said, and the fire was contained within a short time thus protecting the neighboring houses.

Sodorff said that the alarm came into the fire station at 2:35 a.m. Wednesday morning.

The students did have time to get a few of their personal belongings out of the house.

A discussion will follow.

Mistletoe Madness Campus wide "mistletoe madness" will also be put up Sunday, Vest said.

Tuesday night the contestants will perform in a fashion show in the Student Union Building ballroom.

Kathy Snyder, DG, fashion show chairman said that there would be four categories including dress dinner dress, cocktail dresses, school clothes, and stretch pants and that each girl would model two outfits.

After the style show the finalists will be announced, Vest said.

Caroling Wednesday night the sophomore class will divide into two groups for caroling around campus. Afterwards there will be refreshments and dancing in the Bucket.

Dr. Hosack will speak on "The One Man, One Vote Rule, Its Drawbacks."

His speech will center on state government problems arising from recent supreme court decisions on reapportionment of state legislatures.

A discussion will follow.

U-I Navy Ball To Be Open To Students

The annual Navy Ball will be held Friday at 8 p.m. at the SUB ballroom.

At the 10:30 p.m. intermission Capt. Harry Davey, professor of naval science, will crown the new Color Girl with the assistance of Gwen Tolmie, Gamma Phi, the present Color Girl, Fortin said.

Music Music for the dance, titled "Ebb Tide," will be provided by the Thirteenth Naval District Dance Band which consists of 22 professional musicians.

WHITE HOUSE—Dr. Boyd A. Martin, dean of the College of Letters and Sciences, left Sunday to attend a White House conference on International Cooperation at Washington, D. C. He will return Thursday afternoon.

Art-Architecture Building On Schedule

The new Art and Architecture Building is going up and is nearly on schedule despite the weather, George Gagon, University engineer said yesterday.

"The construction is progressing reasonably well," Gagon said. "Considering the weather the contractors feel the building is coming along fine," he said.

"Unless the weather becomes real adverse such as 15 degrees below or a heavy snow falls, the construction won't be slowed too much," Gagon said.

The fine fall weather has aided the work on the building, he added.

Currently precast floor sections shipped from Spokane are being set in place with cranes. Work is now being done on the fourth floor and mezzanine.

Ready Next Fall The building is scheduled for completion in mid-July and should be ready for school next fall.

Theodore Prichard, head of the department of art and architecture, said that because of increased enrollment the building will almost be filled when it is completed.

Plans for an additional building in the art and architecture complex are already being discussed, he said.

Behind Gym Tentative plans would put the structure to the south of the new building, behind the Women's Gymnasium, Prichard said.

Pritchard said that he is recommending the addition to fulfill the departments needs for the next ten years.

Laboratories The two-building complex will contain offices and laboratories, but only one classroom.

As soon as the frame is up work will start on the walls including the north face which will be completely glass.

Covered Walkway The entrances to the buildings will be through a covered walkway between the two buildings.

"A decorative fire-escape," an open stairway will rise up the west face," Pritchard said.

Painting, pottery, and sculpture will be taught in the basement, he said.

The main floor will be devoted to drawing, design, and commercial art as well as the offices.

The second floor will house freshman and sophomore architecture classes, he said, while the juniors and seniors will occupy the third.

Idaho Cadet Dunked In Solo Flight Rites

Army ROTC Cadet Larry J. Baxter, off campus, was dunked in the University swimming pool as part of the ceremony of congratulations for his first solo flight, Maj. Norman A. Matthias, Jr., flight program coordinator and S. Sgt. Harold W. Dean, supply sergeant, assisted with the dunking, according to Lt. Col. Ralph R. Rusche, executive officer.

The Golden Fleece By Jason

Students plus an apartment house with a faulty furnace equals a fire plus unfavorable publicity. Off-hand, we would say this could be the equation describing what happened last week.

Poor Publicity

Suddenly, not only students, faculty and townspeople know of our off-campus housing situation, the whole state is aware of it. The explosion of a furnace, destruction of the house and injury to these students has resulted in poor publicity for both the University and the City of Moscow. Now, this situation is not unique—the fire could have happened just as easily in a number of off-campus units in the city.

No Authority

Let us stand back and look at the situation. As we understand it, the University has no legal authority of any sort as far as regulation of off-campus housing is concerned. The University can neither set standards for student accommodations, nor can it inspect off-campus housing. As former president D. R. Theophilus indicated last spring, the University has no objection to having a list of housing, but it will not set up any standards or enforce any rules.

A new committee on off-campus housing was formed last spring—it's only authority being that of listing approved housing in the city. Approved housing was to consist of that which had been inspected by the Moscow Fire Chief. Unfortunately the Fire Chief does not have the authority to inspect a private home for fire hazards unless he is asked to do so. As of early October only 12 units had been approved and the names have been withheld at the request of the owners.

Housing Code?

It seems to Jason that the most feasible idea at this point would be the establishment of a housing code for the city. The city council will not be up for election soon and it seems like a good time for such a move.

A building code was established in Moscow during the 1950's but we understand that as such it is not retroactive. Thusly, houses or apartments built before the code was established could not be examined. We feel there is a definite and crying need for a code authorizing the re-examination of apartment housing in Moscow on some sort of periodic basis. Wiring, furnaces and anything else which would make such establishments a hazard to live in should be examined.

Risk Their Lives

We are continually being told that students are crying out for inexpensive apartments. This is true, and some students would rather risk their lives and personal property in order to save money. In addition, the danger of some off-campus housing is not always apparent and can generally be ignored until something happens, as it did last week.

Enough said, but maybe students living in off-campus housing should ask for an inspection by the Fire Chief. At least they would be aware of any dangers involved in the building in which they are living. May we suggest that legally this is a city responsibility. Morally it is a responsibility of the owners, the University, and the students. And practically nobody seems too enthused about taking the responsibility.

Same Nameplate

At least the Argonaut has not been forced to change its nameplate yet. As a result of a lost wager between the staffs of the Oregon Daily Emerald and the Oregon State University Daily Barometer, the Emerald ran the Barometer's nameplate in its Nov. 22 issue. The agreement provided that the school which suffered defeat in Saturday's football contest would publish in its school paper the nameplate of the victor. Next year a wager with WSU Evergreen?

A. Marley Urges Housing Action, Citing Tues. Fire

The unfortunate fire last Tuesday night and resultant injury to five University students is a characteristic demonstration that something has to be done about off campus housing. A quick survey of some of the other off-campus housing in Moscow would point out that the incident could easily happen again. Housing with improper fire exits, poor wiring, unsanitary conditions and health hazards are not uncommon; they may be the rule rather than the exception.

A student-faculty community off-campus housing committee with no authority or power cannot hope to solve any of the off-campus housing problem without the aid and cooperation of the University administration and the city of Moscow. Neither seem too eager to remedy the problem.

I hope that the administration and the city of Moscow will now accept their responsibility to University students and take positive steps to insure minimum standards of health and safety to all off campus students. Somebody has to stop playing ostrich or U of I students lives will sooner or later be lost.

Fire Information Delayed

Too often inaccurate reports and incomplete conclusions result when public officials refuse to release information until they have contacted everyone who they feel may be indirectly affected by the release.

Such was the situation Wednesday morning when six University students were injured in a fire on the U of I campus. Early reports presented a sketchy picture in area newspapers and on the air via radio stations.

The early stories said a fire was being battled by campus firemen and a building used as a University dormitory. The fact that students even lived in the house, injuries, and other basic facts were not released by either University officials or Moscow Fire Chief Leon Sodorff.

The house, located at 626 Ash St., is not a dormitory but off-campus housing. The number of students hospitalized as a result of injuries in the fire was six, not seven as reported in one early story; and there are no U-I campus firemen—only city firemen.

Several rumors were floating across campus and, undoubtedly, throughout the state. Many parents who read the first reports probably wondered whether their sons or daughters were in the "dormitory" which was burned down. Students wondering if anyone was hurt and who.

Often the names of individuals injured must be withheld until parents or other close relatives are notified, but the release of basic facts about the fire at the earliest moment possible would have enabled the newspapers and radio to suppress the many unverified rumors circulating.

Moscow Fire Chief Leon Sodorff is a public official who handled the battling of the fire well and who exhibited a spirit of cooperation with University officials. But he neglected another role—the responsibility to notify the public. They have a right to know.

The first story came over the Associated Press wire about 7:10 Wednesday morning and the announcement was made over an area radio station. Shortly after the first report, about 7:31 a.m. Chief Sodorff asked that further information on the fire be withheld until after a conference with University officials. Is the fire chief's responsibility to U-I officials greater than that to the public?

Some story on the mere fact of the fire, the number of students injured and the building in which the fire was located could have been released. Director of Information Rafe Gibbs was not even contacted until about 7:15-7:30 a.m. Wednesday morning, and he was first notified by a reporter of the Associated Press from the Spokane bureau. If he had been made aware of the fire earlier, some report on the basic facts of the fire could have been released.

The big problem evidently was working with two agencies. Why was the fire chief gun shy to release any information without first contacting U-I officials and Dean of Students Charles O. Decker?

The names of the students injured first came from Gritman Hospital at Moscow and Deaconess Hospital at Spokane. No official information came from Moscow until 45 minutes after a conference at the Office of Student Affairs scheduled at 9 a.m. Attending were Gibbs, Sodorff and Decker.

Representatives of the mass media evidently originated the story from Spokane, where one of the students, Charles T. Rich, was in critical condition at a Spokane Hospital. Why didn't the first report, which would have surpressed circulating rumors, come from Chief Sodorff? And why did U-I officials have to have a 45 minute conference before emerging with any story at all?

Pancake Night Set For Blue Bucket

The Blue Bucket Committee is planning a Pancake Night Sunday in the Blue Dining Room of the SUB from 5 to 7 p.m. belongings out of the house, Sodorff said, but not much. He added that all of the students were insured by the University.

Were Insured Kenneth Dick, financial vice president verified that they were insured. "All University students are insured for accidents while they are on the campus. This is paid as part of the registration fees," he said.

Details of the accident were not available to the press until 10 a.m. Wednesday morning, Fire Chief Sodorff explained to the Argonaut that he did not release details of the fire until after he had a conference with Academic Vice President Walter H. Steffens.

Here's More About DRAFT DEFERMENT

students are classified as full time if they are carrying 14 or more credits. Graduate students must take 12 credits.

The Idaho registrar pointed out that most universities and colleges use 12 credits for undergraduate students. O'Neill said he didn't feel this was fair to the student, who might think he could continue studies at 12 credits a year for five years but would be eligible for the draft at the end of four years.

All graduate students on appointment by the Board of Regents, including those doing research or serving as teaching assistants, are automatically certified as full time.

Graduate students who are not on Regents appointment and who are carrying less than 12 credits are referred to Dean of the Graduate School Melbourne Jackson. He may classify them as full time even though they may not be registered for 12 semester credits but are making normal progress towards their degree objective, said O'Neill.

The building was completely destroyed by the fire.

"Selective Service states that the institution has no responsibility to submit information on its students; however, if they don't the students may be drafted," he said. "The student is responsible for initiating action in regard to this information. It's not the institution but the individual student that's asking for the deferment."

Part Time Selective Service Boards are only asking whether students are part or full time, he said. No scholastic averages have been requested.

Commentary

LESS THAN TWO years ago President John F. Kennedy was killed and the initials in newspaper headlines changed from the familiar JFK to the now familiar LBJ. During the last two years everything from babies to streets to scholarship funds have been named after the youthful president.

But despite the growing legend of John F. Kennedy, few people remember some of the shocking statements and actions of many Americans. Some children in Texas may have applauded at the announcement of the President's death, as was reported at that time.

But on Friday, Nov. 22, 1963, on the U of I campus, some students shouted for joy. One unfortunately remembered incident was when one Idaho senior came running upon hearing the announcement and shouted, "Isn't this a wonderful day for the nation?"

The legend of Kennedy will probably grow with the volume of material flowing from America's presses but perhaps another lesson will also be remembered. That is the responsibility to oppose and differ on public issues but to remain within the democratic process as the "loyal opposition." This same student at Idaho who shouted for joy when John F. Kennedy died had also expressed the opinion that such action would be the best course for the country, in order to avoid going down the road towards socialism.

A democracy is the process through which a government is responsible to the people. It is not an ideology composed of rigid capitalism, home-made pie (however delicious it might be), and picnics on Sunday. If the American people decide to choose the trend toward the welfare state, that's their decision. If they decide to go the other direction, that's also their decision, but to oppose the very process of democracy itself because the individual is violently and ideologically opposed to a particular trend is destructive to that process. Then, those opposed in this manner lose the title "loyal opposition."

Perhaps it is pessimistic to consider such individuals as the Idaho student who celebrated Kennedy's death with such seriousness. He may have been just a vocal student who became so enthralled in his own philosophy that he forgot what he was fighting for when he considered America and democracy. He probably would have stood in line just to see Kennedy like so many others did. But, then again, perhaps that's being too optimistic.

ANOTHER ITEM OF concern to Idaho students is the illegal use of draft cards. In cases where students lend their cards to others to be used as identification for buying beer or liquor, both the loaner and the borrower could receive from two to five years in a federal prison.

This might be something to consider next time a friend request such a favor.

TEACHER EVALUATIONS are in this year, at least for students. And many campuses across the country are joining those that have had elaborate systems of evaluating their professors. Andy McCluskey, SAE, is chairman of the teacher evaluation at the U of I this year and is now in the process of selecting his committee (composed of students with a 2.2 grade point average).

President Hartung at a meeting of the Interim Committee earlier this month requested that group to designate three of its members to serve as a special subcommittee which will begin revising the present rating or evaluation form.

President Hartung will appoint an additional member from the faculty at large. Administrative Council earlier this semester considered using the evaluation forms in reviewing the rank, tenure, and salary of faculty members.

Cooperation between students and the faculty committee might be the basis for constructive action in this needed area.

There's always one problem that seems unsurmountable. Those faculty members who could use the student evaluations most are those who would be most likely to ignore them. The evaluation forms, if properly constructed, would point out that those professors who are considered good by students actually are excellent instructors. The opposite would also be the usual result.

Here's a problem for the committee to work out in constructing the evaluation forms.

Lambda Chi's Steal Housemothers

The Lambda Chi's went on a little outing a week ago Monday night and managed to cop nine house mother's from their respective sororities during their dinner hour.

Among those stolen were as follows:

- Mrs. Mendola — Pi Beta Phi
- Mrs. Fleming—Delta Gamma
- Mrs. Waller — Gamma Phi Beta
- Mrs. Zweck — Delta Delta Delta
- Mrs. Ackley — Alpha Phi
- Mrs. Shorzman—Kappa Kappa Gamma
- Mrs. Shaw — Kappa Alpha Theta
- Ors. Anderson — Alpha Gamma Delta
- Mrs. Smith — Alpha Chi Omega

The reason behind the mass evacuation of house mothers was for the benefit of charity. With guns flashing the bandits quickly frisked away each house mother and left a ransom note demanding one can of food from each pledge of the respective houses.

Each sorority was requested to come down later that same night to the Lambda Chi House and serenade for their particular house mother. The sorority showing the most enthusiasm in trying to regain their house mother was awarded a trophy.

Mothers Entertained While waiting to be ransomed off the mothers enjoyed coffee and cookies while playing cards. Then came the mass migration to the Lambda Chi house with each sorority in high hopes of regaining their house-mother.

All of the sororities sang different songs and put on skits which were quite entertaining. Each house mother was presented with a corsage before once again returning to their respective houses.

The food drive was real successful with nine boxes of canned food being collected which figured out to one apiece for each sorority. The Lambda Chi's in turn added nine turkeys, one for each sorority, and all of the food was given to the Lewiston Children's Home for Thanksgiving. Alpha Chi Omega was presented with the trophy for showing the most enthusiasm in apprehending their housemother. The night turned out to be wet and dreary, but everyone appeared to have a good time in spite of the bad weather. The kidnapping of the sorority housemothers has to be one of the biggest steals made on the Idaho campus in quite some time.

SORORITIES PLEAD FOR HOUSEMOTHERS: As the rains came down on campus all nine sororities could be found at the Lambda Chi Alpha House Monday night before Thanksgiving serenading for their housemothers.

U. Programs Accredited

The University today became one of 75 universities in the nation (four in the Pacific Northwest) to have its sixth-year and doctoral programs in education and psychology accredited by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education. Bachelor's and master's degree programs of the College of Education have been continuously accredited by NCATE since it began its accrediting program more than 10 years ago. Accrediting by the professional organization for the College of Education is in addition to the institution-wide accreditation long held by the University from the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher School.

Tribute
"The accreditation by NCATE of our sixth-year and doctoral programs in education and psychology is an unusual tribute because the programs have been in operation only four years," said Dr. Everett V. Samuelson, dean of the College of Education. "This tribute has meaning for the entire state," he said.

Advantages
"In addition to the accreditation's other advantages, membership by school superintendents in the National Association of School Administrators is limited to those superintendents who have completed a sixth-year or doctoral program at an institution in which the program is accredited by NCATE, Dr. Samuelson stated. "Thus, NCATE accreditation of these two programs is especially important to Idaho school administrators and teachers. This accreditation will also be significant in attracting particularly qualified persons into the sixth-year and doctoral programs in education and psychology at the University of Idaho."

U-I Prof. Attends Administration Meet

Dr. Donald Duncanson, associate professor of school administration at the University is in Columbus, Ohio, this week attending a seminar for selected professors of school administration.

Duncanson was one of 25 throughout the nation selected to attend this national seminar by the American Association of School Administrators. The seminar is being conducted by the University Council on Educational Administration and will deal primarily with theories of school administration.

Joining the College of Education faculty this fall, Duncanson came to the University from Indiana State University. He received his B.S. degree from Wisconsin State college and holds the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Minnesota.

General Electric is an easy place to work.

All you need is brains, imagination, drive and a fairly rugged constitution.

Oh, yes. Something else that will help you at G.E. is an understanding of the kind of world we live in, and the kind of world we will live in. There's a lot happening: The population is continuing to explode. The strain on resources is becoming alarming. At a time when men are being lured by the mysteries of space, we're faced with the task of making life on earth more livable. There's a lot happening at G.E., too, as our people work in a hundred different areas to help solve the problems of a growing world: Supplying more (and cheaper) electricity with nuclear reactors. Controlling smog in our cities and pollution in our streams. Providing better street lighting and faster transportation. This is the most important work in the world today: Helping to shape the world of tomorrow. Do you want to help? Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

Five Vandals Tapped In NFL-AFL Grid Draft

Dobson Signs; Three 'Futures' Are Named

Five University of Idaho Vandals, three of whom still have another year of college eligibility, were selected by the American and National Football League drafts last weekend.

Four Vandals, tackles Joe Dobson and Dick Arndt; LaVerl Pratt, linebacker; and Ray Miller, defensive end, were drafted by both NFL and AFL teams. Bill Scott, defensive safety, got the nod from the San Diego Chargers of the AFL.

As graduating gridders, Dobson and Scott were immediate draft choices. Arndt, Pratt and Miller, as juniors, were selected as "future" choices.

Future draft choices are normally those who have one year of eligibility remaining but who were held out of collegiate competition for a year as "red-shirts."

Dobson Goes To Steelers
Dobson was selected by the New York Jets in the seventh round of the bidding Saturday. Later, he was picked by the Pittsburgh Steelers with whom he has since signed a two year contract.

Scott was the sixteenth round draft choice of the San Diego Chargers.

Arndt was selected by the Los Angeles Rams of the NFL and the Denver Broncos of the AFL. Former Vandal and tight end Max Leetzow, is now a defensive tackle for the Broncos.

Both the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL and the San Diego club picked Vandal linebacker Pratt as a future choice.

Miller was selected by the Green Bay Packers of the NFL and the New York Jets. Slate Lengthened
This year's drafting lengthens Idaho's long list of pro gridders to thirty six. The slate dates back to 1924 when Bob Fiske was picked up by the former Frankfort Yellow Jackets. Two years later, Tom Bucklin was selected by the old Chicago Cardinals. He was later traded to the New York Giants.

John Vesser and Lillie Stephens was drafted that same year. Vesser went to the Chicago Cards and Stephens to the former New York Yankees. In 1929, Sam Diehl was picked up by the Cards, later traded to the Cincinnati Reds and then to the St. Louis Gunners. In 1931, the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Willis Smith was also drafted off the 1933 Vandal club. He signed with the New York Giants. In 1937, George Thiessen was drafted by the former Cleveland Rams. Two other Vandals, Stono Pavkov and Dean Green were picked that same year. Pavkov for the Rams and later the Pittsburgh Steelers. Green went to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Four years later, George Nixon signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers and, then, in 1946, Delmer Owens and Bill Miklich signed pro contracts. Owens played for the New York Yankees and Miklich went to the Giants and later to the Detroit Lions.

In 1949, Glen Christian was drafted by the Calgary Stampers. Then, in 1954, Burdett Hess and in 1956, Dick Foster, signed with the Stampers. Chuck Fries signed with the New York Titans in 1956.

The year, 1957, was the big one at Idaho with the signing of four Vandals to pro teams. Wayne Walker went to the Detroit Lions. Today he is a star defensive linebacker for them. Jerry Kramer signed with the Green Bay Packers. Today, he is a defensive guard on that squad. Bob Dehlinger went to the Toronto Argonauts and later to the New York Titans. Tony Anderson signed with the Chicago Bears and later was traded to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Three Vandals signed contracts in 1959. Stan Fanning went to the Chicago Bears and later to the Los Angeles Rams. Jim Norton signed with the Houston Oilers and Jim Prestel went to the Cleveland Browns and later the Minnesota Vikings.

In 1961, Reg Carolan signed with the San Diego Chargers. Jim Moran signed with the New York Giants in 1963 and, last year, Max Leetzow went to the Denver Broncos.

Vandal Cagers Open Season Against Oregon

The 1965-66 Vandal cagers make their debut tomorrow night in Eugene when they take on the University of Oregon. Head Coach Jim Goddard feels that his squad is ready.

"We are averaging over 40 percent from the field in all of our workouts," said Goddard, "and I think that we are going to have some fine outside and they too are a stalwart basketball power.

Schlotthauer to Play Center
At the center position Dave Schlotthauer seems pretty well set and will be counted on to provide a little rebounding strength. Rob Bohman and Mike Wicks are making strong bids, for starting positions and Goddard said, "I wouldn't hes-scorer on the Frosh squad last year with a 20.5 point average. He is rated one of the best sophomores in the Northwest and will get his first crack at varsity competition tomorrow night.

The Webfoots will have the height advantage but the Vandals are figured to counter with their fastbreak offense that shooters."

Four Starters Back
Four out of five of last year's starters are back this season and there is quite a scramble for the fifth man. Right now it looks like John Rucker could start at our strong side forward even though I'd like to keep him at guard," Goddard commented.

The Vandals will probably stick with their veterans in the opening tilt, especially since they are opening against Oregon, which always provides top rate competition. Goddard said that the rookies and transfers are progressing along real well. After the first couple of games they could see considerable duty since the Vandals play Utah State this Saturday in their first home tilt of the season itate to start either of them." The University of Oregon has been stressing rebounding and defense in their first six weeks of pre-season training. "I'm not too concerned about this team's offensive ability," noted Webfoot coach Steve Belko, "but I feel our rebounding and defense need considerable improvement over last year."

Three regulars are returning from last year's squad. They include Bill Jennings, 6-6, from Yakima, Wash.; Nick Jones, 6-2 from Portland, and Jim Barnett, 6-4, from Riverside, Calif. Oregon's key center spot will either go to John Pinkstaf, a 6-7 sophomore from Eugene or Bill Thomas who stands 6-6 and is a junior also from Eugene.

Pinkstaf Could be Key Pinkstaf was the leading they have been holding in the wing. Jerry Skaife will be counted on to provide some scoring punch for the Vandals and will be captain for Wednesday's game.

12 VANDALS ARE PICKED

Weber State and San Jose State College today announced the selection of twelve Vandal "Gunderics" and "Gizerics" to their respective all-opponent teams.

Two Idaho gridders, tackle Joe Dobson and deepback Ray McDonald were named to the Spartans' offensive lineup. Defensively, Dick Arndt, tackle; LaVerl Pratt, and Jerry Campbell, linebackers, drew the nod from the northern California crew.

Narrow Miss
McDonald missed by two votes of being a unanimous selection along with Utah State's Roy Shivers.

The Vandals placed 7 men on Weber State's all Big Sky opponent team and 5 men on their all-opponent squad — two more than their closest team contender, Montana with 5.

Offensively, in the Big Sky, the Wildcats selected center, Steve Buratto; guard, Dave Triplett; and fullback, Tim Lavens. Four Vandals were picked to the Weber crew's all-league defensive opponent's squad. They were: tackle, Arndt; end, Tom Stephens; and linebackers, Campbell and Ron Porter.

Weber's all-opponent offensive team saw Buratto, Triplett and Lavens as repeaters. Defensively, Arndt and Campbell were named.

With volleyball and handball to continue after the holiday break, there should be some close contests with many games still scheduled before Christmas vacation. Intramural director, Clem Parberry, announced today that Intramural pool would begin January 6th with pool matches being played on each Tuesday and Thursday. Each house will have three players.

Also starting after Christmas vacation will be "A" basketball. This begins on the 4th of January. The following scores are from games that were played before the Thanksgiving break.

Vandals Lead Big Sky Grid Poll

Co-Champion Idaho dominated the Big Sky Conference Third Annual All-League football team by placing 11 players on the 23 man team.

The coaches of the five conference teams selected five backs on their first offensive team and 11 defensive players for a total of 23.

Those chosen from Idaho for the offensive squad were Joe Dobson, tackle; Steve Buratto, ceter, and Dave Triplett, guard. In the backfield were Ray McDonald, fullback, and Tim Lavens, halfback.

Vandals Rate on Defense

On defense the five coaches selected a five-man line with three linebackers. The Vandals' Jerry Campbell was named as end, linebacker and defensive halfback and was placed as the third linebacker since he played the "rover" or inside safety in the Vandal defense.

In the defensive line were Tom Stephens, end; Dick Arndt, tackle, and linebackers Ron Porter and Jerry Campbell.

Bill Scott was picked as a defensive back.

Honorable mention choices included John Whitney, end; Gary Fitzpatrick, tackle; Steve Ulrich, guard, and Joe Rodriguez, quarterback.
