New Hours Voted For U of I Women

By JULIE ANDERSON
Argonaut News Editor

New women's hours, approved last spring by the Associated Women Student Legislature, are in effect on the University campus.

Margie Felton, Kappa, president of AWS, announced that all women's hours are 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday evenings and 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday. This is a change from 10:30 p.m. hours for all freshmen and sophomore and also junior women with less than a 2.6 grade point average.

This year, juniors will receive two 2 a.m. privileges each semester. Miss Felton stated that these two late permissions must be used during each semester and will be lost at the end of the semester. Previously, junior women with above a 2.6 grade point average were allowed 11 o'clock hours Sunday through Thursday with no two o'clocks.

The senior women key privilege is planned this fall for the third year. All senior women are requested to meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Silver Room of the Student Union Building. During this meeting the senior system will be explained by Miss Felton.

Felton, to acquaint senior women with the responsibilities and regulations of the privilege. All senior women, who have not attended a previous key meeting last spring and who do not already have keys, are required to attend the Wednesday meeting. All excuses from this meeting must be approved through Miss Felton. A woman student may gain key privileges after earning 94 regular credits or reaching the age of 22.

An AWS Legislature meeting at 7 p.m. is planned before the key meeting also in the Silver Room of the SUB. Miss Felton stated that this legislature will conduct regular review of the new women's hours and the key system.

Coed Capers Are Planned Sept. 28

The 14th annual Folk Dance Festival, held in conjunction with the AWS and WRA Coed Capers, will begin at 5:30 p.m., September 28, at the University tennis courts.

Information sheets have been sent to the women's living groups on campus explaining the festival procedure. The only rule change from previous years is a three minute time limit on each dance.

Mrs. William McIver, advisor, will help in the selection of dances if any of the living groups run into trouble.

Among the judges are Mrs. Marjorie M. Neely, Dean of Women, Mrs. Anes Mendiola, Pi Phi housemother, Edith Betts, Professor of Physical Education for Women. They will judge the dances on a point system, considering execution, originality of costumes, spirit and difficulty.

After the folk festival and a short program by the WRA and AWS, a picnic for all women students will be held in the Arboretum.

Activities Start With Nightgowns

Nightgowns, pajamas, and other dainty things will begin the homecoming festivities Friday night, September 20.

The annual Pajama Parade starting at 6:30 p.m. will feature the freshmen women in their night wear. The women, led by the Pom Pon girls and the Spurs will tour the men's living groups.

The Parade acts as a prelude to the Homecoming Rally at McLean Field starting at 7:30 p.m.

The rally will feature the announcement and the crowning of the Homecoming queen by Alumni President William Campbell, Boise.

Coach Steve Musseau will give a talk at the rally. The Idaho band will be on hand to provide the music.

Governor Robert Smylie, homecoming grand marshal, will attend the rally and fireworks. The traditional fireworks display will be presented around 8 p.m. after the rally.

Friday night's homecoming events will conclude with a street dance to be held near the Kappa, Phi Delt, DC, and Beta houses. The dance featuring the Gents will begin around 8:30 or 9 p.m. after the fireworks.

"The traditional fireworks will be a special animated variety which has never been seen outside the New York World's Fair," said Tim Rutledge, Beta, homecoming publicity chairman. The program for the fireworks follows:

1. Aerial Salute — "Hail to the Circus"
2. Shell Salvo — "The Grand Entree"
3. The Idaho "P" in colored Pom Pons
4. Silver and Gold Gerbs — "Circus Days"
5. Shell Salvo — "Aerial Acrobatics"
6. Roman Candle Batteries — "Lions and Tigers"
7. A Garden Set Piece — "Caves of Jewels"
8. Shell Salvo — "Rainbows and Clouds"
9. Changing Gerbs in Idaho colors — "Clowns and Elephants"
10. That Funny Crazy Wheel — "Aerial Merry-Go-Round"
11. Shell Salvo — "The Cloud Swing"

12. Spouting Candles — "Bounding Acrobats"

13. The Beautiful Niagara Falls — "Bubbling Waters"

14. Shell Salvo — "The S Ballet"

15. An Animated Set Piece — "The Man on the Fly Trapeze"

16. Shell Salvo — "The Sc Vandals"

17. The United States Fly Piece — "Our America"

18. Gun Salute to Our 50 States

19. Final Salute — "The Final Curtain"

20. The Homecoming parade committee needs convertibles to drive dignitaries in the parade. Those owning convertibles should call Tim Madden, Sigma Chi, TU 2-1441, or Vicki Haight, Pi Phi, TU 2-1594.

In correction of a previous Argonaut story, the limit for spending on floats is $50 per living group.

Twirler Tryouts Planned

Director of the University Marching Band, Martin Pachey, announces that tryouts for band twirlers will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at room 215 of the Music Building.

The tryouts are open to all students. Previous twirling experience is necessary stated Pachey. Twirlers will meet at the regular band practice at 4:10 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The activity can be taken for credit or non-credit,

Senator Perry Swisher Visits Moscow Tomorrow

A University student greeting committee will welcome State public, said Goddard.

Sen. Perry Swisher, independent candidate for governor, tomorrow morning at 9:45 at the Moscow Hotel, according to Ben d'Alene, Kelllogg, Wallace and Goddard, head of the North Idaho Campaign Headquarters for ICEP and the U of I Young Republicans are arranging a luncheon for the senator at tomorrow and will be guest of honor for a Chamber of Commerce day noon, according to Goddard. Luncheon at noon at the Hotel. All students will be invited.

St. Augustine Center Set For Completion By New Year

Projected completion date for St. Augustine's Catholic Center is Jan. 1. The new chapel and Newman Center are being built on Deacon St., across from the Student Union Building.

Father Andrew J. Schumacher, Newman Chaplain at the University, said that the new center will serve the 850 Catholic students, both single and married on the Idaho campus.

The teepee-like structure, which dominates the construction site, is the basis for the central roof which will top the circular chapel. It is 84 feet in diameter. The 12 foot high walls will be poured concrete with an exposed aggregate finish on the outside.

One of the main features of the chapel will be a round, wood-crete chandelier hung directly over the center of the chapel at the intersection of the cross beams. Interior walls of the chapel will be a soft stucco. Seating capacity will be 430.

Accompanying the chapel will be a two-story rectangular-shaped building with chaplain's residence attached. A covered walk will stretch the entire length of the building facing the chapel and will serve as a main entrance to both the chaplain's residence in the rear and the center itself.

Meetings and dinners can be held in a large two-story assembly room in the rectangular building. The room has an attached kitchen. Also in the center are a student lounge with fireplace, student offices, chaplain's office and work and service rooms on the first level. The second floor will house a student library and a double classroom.

The center, which has been in the planning stages several years, is part of a campus building program directed by the Most Rev. Sylvester Treinen, bishop of Idaho. A new Newman Center was recently completed at Boise College and another center will be ready in November at Idaho State University at Pocatello.

The first property for the Moscow center was purchased in 1958 and the rest was procured in 1962 under the direction of the bishop. The property was paid for by funds collected by the Knights of Columbus in Idaho and by donations from individuals.

Architects for the structure are Paul Blanton and Theodore Prichard, University arts and architecture faculty.

A building committee is directing the over-all program. Members are Dr. Thomas Walenta, professor of law; Dr. George Russell, assistant dean of civil engineering; Donald Kees, director of counseling service; William Snyder, professor of horticulture; Richard Beck, associate librarian; Joe Norrish, off campus; Dick Owen, FarmHouse; and Fr. Schumacher.

Until the center is ready, Catholic students at the University are attending Mass at the SUB at 9 and 11 a.m., on Sunday and Newman Club meetings every Tuesday evening at 8:15 p.m., at the SUB. The program will be transferred to the center as soon as possible.

All students, both married and single, are members of St. Augustine. Fr. Schumacher said.

AND THE WALLS WENT UP, UP, UP. This is the new Catholic Newman Center which was begun last spring and is now having the final touches put on. The Newman Center, which is across from the Student Union Building has a chapel, classrooms, and offices.

Enrollment Rises; 5,897 Figure Made

Registration totals gained a narrow lead on last year's figures leaving Idaho in better shape than some other Pacific Northwest schools.

At the end of yesterday's registration the total stood at 5897 compared with last year's 5,892.

"We will at least have an enrollment equal to last year and we have a good chance to go above last year," said F. L. O'Neill, registrar.

That situation would leave Idaho in good shape compared to the disaster that could be shaping up at the Oregon schools.

According to an article in the "Portland Oregonian," the schools which register this week are way down on pre-registration admissions.

Portland State University is 38 per cent behind last year in admissions while Oregon Technical Institute is 33 per cent behind.

Borah Theatre Shows "Psycho"

"Psycho," a Hitchcock shocker, will initiate the fall semester schedule of Student Union Borah Theatre films Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Borah Theatre in the Student Union Building.

Show times for the films are 7 and 9 p.m., Friday; 7 p.m. Saturday, and 7 p.m. Sunday. Admission prices are 35 cents for singles and 65 cents for couples.

Oct. 7, 8, 9, "Father Goose" will be the featured film. "Smiles of a Summer Night" will be presented Oct. 14, 15, and 16. A SAC plane carrying nuclear bombs accidentally going beyond the fall-safe limit toward Moscow is the theme of "Fall-Safe," which is scheduled for Oct. 21, 22, and 23.

"Sands of Iwo Jima," a war film, will be shown Oct. 28, 29, and 30. Charleton Heston, Richard Harris, and Jim Hutton star in the Civil War story, "Major Dundee." The film will be shown Nov. 4, 5, and 6. The movie for Nov. 11, 12, and 13 will be announced at a later date.

"Lilith" is the featured film Nov. 18, 19, and 20. On Dec. 2, 3, and 4, "The Captain from Koenig," a German comedy of a hoax involving a cobbler who tries to get a passport by donning the uniform.

Walker endeared himself to a great many of the Idaho Democratic party leaders when he withdrew from the governor's race at the Coeur d'Alene convention in the interests of "party unity." Many of the former Walker supporters have maintained their positions of power since the convention and several have achieved high posts in the party. Another note to remember is that it is in the Central Committee that Walker could have the best chance due to the fact that he is a past state chairman of the Democratic party.

Another fact to remember is that the influence of North Idaho's Tom Boise will probably be strongly felt in the central committee. It was the forces marshalled by Boise in north Idaho which contributed greatly to the Herndon victory at the state convention. The influence of Boise is far from dead and could be a decisive factor in the choice of the next candidate.

In general the public clamor would seem to be for Cecil Andrus but whether the clamor will be loud enough to be heard in the traditional "smoke filled rooms" is a question that no one can answer. If the Central Committee emerges united behind one man, whoever he may be, the scars of the meeting will be far from small. No one is a shoo-in. As a matter of fact, no one is ever a

Roll Call

By Mike Wetherell

A plane crash last week threw the entire party process in the state of Idaho into chaos. The many eulogies delivered for Charles Herndon speak far more eloquently of the man than I could. His belief in the improvement of higher education in Idaho, his faith in the people to determine their own destiny and his dedication to the people of the state are well known. Mr. Herndon's tragic death leaves a gap in Idaho politics that will long be felt.

Even as the tragedy glows warm the process of government goes on and, after the initial shock and sorrow, the question is raised: "Who now?" Cecil Andrus of Orofino would seem the most logical man to be chosen to carry the Democratic banner. However, this is the Democratic central committee which is meeting and not the state convention. Absent from the halls of decision will be the voices of the many state legislators who provided much of the Andrus support. Contrary to popular opinion the Central Committee is under no compulsion to choose the runner-up to fill the gap in the event of the winner's death.

WETHERELL

Many names are being mentioned besides the Orofino senator. Hax Hanson, who earlier this year announced for governor and later withdrew, is a strong contender. Another man who could well carry much weight at the meeting would be H. Westerman Whillock of Boise. Whillock's previous record as reform mayor of Boise and his honesty both during and after the Democratic convention may impress a large group of committee members. Another strong possibility is Lloyd Walker of Twin Falls.

Walker endeared himself to a great many of the Idaho Democratic party leaders when he withdrew from the governor's race at the Coeur d'Alene convention in the interests of "party unity." Many of the former Walker supporters have maintained their positions of power since the convention and several have achieved high posts in the party. Another note to remember is that it is in the Central Committee that Walker could have the best chance due to the fact that he is a past state chairman of the Democratic party.

U-I Students Should Take Interest In Outside World

Candidates. Campaigns. Posters. Speeches.

No, class elections are not here yet. But elections are here in the state of Idaho and as students we have an obligation to know of their existence and to form some opinion.

This past week a random sampling was taken of University students to see how they felt about the recent tragedy of the death of governor nominee Charles Herndon and about the upcoming state election. For the most part few students seem to know anything about the elections and of those who do many have an apathetic attitude. Naturally there were a few who were deeply concerned about the future of Idaho and were anxious to talk about the elections. These few were too few.

Regardless of whether or not you are 21 and therefore a legal voter you still have responsibility to know what is going on. College is not a place to go and simply go from class to class with no thought of what is happening in the world other than the small one on the campus. We are here to learn, to think, to form opinions, to respect conflicting viewpoints, and to take our place in the adult world.

"What's the use of caring?" said one student. "I am not 21 and cannot vote and even if I were what good does my one vote do among the hundreds cast." Unfortunately, this student did not stop to think that if everyone thought this way there would be no elections in the United States.

From now until November, candidates for various positions within the state government structure of Idaho will be on campus to talk to student groups. Perhaps the best way to get to know who the candidate is and what he believes, is to meet him, listen to him, and talk to him. As students on a University campus we have an opportunity to do exactly this. The candidates are coming to us.

They are interested to know what we, as present and future leaders and voters think and want. Every one of us will be able to cast a vote in the mock political vote which has been scheduled for November 1. We will be voting exactly as all interested citizens of Idaho will be in November.

Why not show Idaho that U of I students are interested in their state and have enough initiative to find out what the issues are.

In the past few years students have been tagged as a burden to society. Student rioters throughout the nation have earned this title not only for themselves but for all of us. We don't have to riot to prove our point. All we have to do is prove both to ourselves and to the nation that we are responsible and have the initiative to find out what we don't know. Apathy should not be a characteristic of young people. Is it at Idaho? MAS

Golden Fleece

By Ellen Ostheller, Jason 79

As the state's largest educational institution, the University of Idaho should be a hub of thought and controversy during this year's state political campaigning. Students should feel fortunate to be so near this center of action and can easily keep well informed.

Organizations which will be dedicated to following the campaigns during the semester are the campus Young Republicans, Young Democrats, and the Idaho Center for Education in Politics, (ICEP).

Decisions To Be Made

Today is the day for many important decisions in state politics, too. For students from our neighboring state of Washington, voting in the state's primary elections is today. If you haven't voted by absentee ballot, and are from a nearby election precinct, why not take the time to zip over and vote? On the Idaho political scene, the Democratic Central Committee meets today in Boise to choose the replacement for the late gubernatorial candidate, Charles Herndon. The probable replacement many believe to be State Senator Cecil Andrus, Orofino, who was the party's second choice during the primary elections this summer, losing only by about 1200 votes.

It is not known if Andrus will accept the appointment if he is named, but according to John Lemon, political writer for the Spokane Daily Chronicle, Mrs. Andrus has indicated that he has received many encouraging phone calls and telegrams from throughout the state, urging his re-entry to the race.

For a brief run-down on the other gubernatorial candidates, the Republican party is supporting State Sen. Don Samuelson, Sandpoint, an anti-sales tax man. Independent candidates are Lewiston businessman, Phil Jungert, pro-gambling advocate, and Pocatello's Senator Perry Swisher, who favors the sales tax.

Swisher will be in Moscow tomorrow and will be welcomed by a student greeting committee at the Moscow Hotel and will be honored at a luncheon given by the Moscow Chamber of Commerce at noon. The public is invited to attend both functions. A no-host luncheon is also being arranged for students to meet the senator Friday in the Student Union Building. Organizations sponsoring the luncheon are the Y's and ICEP.

Argonaut Usually Non-Partisan

If anyone is wondering, the Argonaut is traditionally a non-partisan newspaper, and does not usually endorse political candidates. We do favor advancement of education, however, and therefore support the candidates who have stood in favor of its growth and expansion. For this reason, the Argonaut feels the sales tax is an important issue in the campaign.

It has made a 30 per cent budget increase for the university, and has enabled it to set up the most progressive budget it has seen in many years.

The Campus Scene

On the campus scene, enrollment continues to rise, and reached the 5897 mark Monday. This decreased the problem of cutting funds from the ASUI budget, according to President Dick Rush. The problem continues to exist, however, and it is feared that about $5,000 may still have to be trimmed off the budget in tonight's Executive Board meeting.

The topic of Vandal football will be kicked around quite often in area news rooms this fall. Jason knows of two fellows on the Chronicle staff in Spokane that lost $5 on the Vandal game this weekend, so the results of the game were a disappointment to many people beside Idaho students.

What a Weekend!

But it was quite a weekend, anyway. The student exodus to Seattle, Spokane, and other nearby attractions was terrific. If you stayed on campus you were likely bored or feeling that you were missing out on something — and you probably were.

Vandal Football Not Bad

Jason ended up at Albi Stadium in Spokane Saturday, and saw Idaho's arch enemy, Washington State University, swallowed by the University of California Golden Bears. If you think Idaho was beaten this weekend, you should have seen the Cougars get tromped. From what Jason knows of football, they didn't even seem to have a line to hold when the Bears went charging through. The gaps opened up so nicely for the California touchdowns, that one runner made it through for a spectacular 108-yard dash to the goal posts.

So maybe we lost our game, too, but it is only the beginning of the season and sports fans have high expectations for the Vandals. Our loss this weekend was our first game and fans should take into consideration that Idaho is still a relatively small school compared with the University of Washington. It is interesting to note that the Vandals haven't beat the Husky team since 1905, and have NEVER beat them in Seattle.

"Marshalls" Ready For Application

The Pacific Region Committee of the Marshall Scholarships announces that application forms are now ready for the 1967-69 Marshall Scholarships. These are the most valuable and prestigious awards it is possible for an American to win to any British University.

Four "Marshalls" are specially reserved for the Western States of the U.S., and a fifth is often won as a "Scholarship at Large." Winners of the current "Marshalls" who were selected last fall, include four Californians and one from the state of Washington. Universities represented among the current winners include Occidental, Northwestern, and the University of California.

The awards, which can be used at any university in the United Kingdom for a period of at least two years, are open to students of either sex who are under 26 years of age on October 1, 1967. In exceptional circumstances, applications can be received from students up to the age of 28. The awards are given by Britain as a gesture of gratitude for Marshall Aid. Twenty-four "Marshalls" are given every year to American university students.

Application forms are now available direct from the Marshall Scholarship Committee, British Consulate-General, 160 Sansome Street, San Francisco, California.

Film World

By Phil Holaback

Editor's Note: A new feature added to the Argonaut this year is a regular film review column, to be written by new faculty member, Phil Holaback, who is an instructor for three classes in English Composition this semester. Formerly on the Washington State University faculty, Holaback previously wrote film reviews for the WSU Daily Evergreen. His column will appear weekly prior to the showing of a local theatre attraction or may give preview of a forthcoming SUB film.

After suffering through "Boy, Did I Get a Wrong Number," one of the most disappointing pictures I have ever seen, it was sheer pleasure to sit through Irvin Hershner's "A Fine Madness."

This film, somewhat reminiscent of another — "The Horse's Mouth," concerns the struggles of a rebellious poet with the expectations of an ordinary world. Samson Shillito, the poet, is perhaps intended to be a budding Gully Jimson, but he strikes me as being more a watered down version of Dylan Thomas.

Samson (and, sure enough, he's always got women in his hair) believes the poet to be made of special stuff, that a poet must pursue his particular vision of reality in order to truly live. Nevertheless, the basic problem with Shillito, as a character, is that he remains forever at an immature level of being, the fact that he remains essentially static. And if he proves himself to be virtually indestructible in the end, he also shows himself to be essentially incorrigible.

On the whole, the acting in this film is quite good. "A Fine Madness" contains a number of bit parts, and the character actors filling them are consistently fine.

Even Sean Connery does a surprisingly good job; his attempt to break out of the James Bond stereotype appears to be working. And he may even come to replace Marlon Brando's primitive man. The laurels for acting, however, must be awarded to Joanne Woodward, who plays Rhoda, Samson's harassed wife. She makes Rhoda a very convincingly brassy broad.

"A Fine Madness" is completely made, and seldom lags. All in all, it is a most enjoyable comedy.

Frosh-Forum, Tour Of Library Set

To better acquaint the new student with the University is the purpose of the Frosh-Faculty Forums set for Oct. 4 at 7 p.m.

Chairman Steve Bell, Beta, said that one professor or administrator will be at each living group to head the discussion. A meeting of student leaders at each of these living groups has been set for next Wednesday to discuss possible topics. A suggested topic by the committee was "Why does one come to a university?"

A third suggested topic is that of what services and opportunities are available to new students. The purpose of these is to exchange ideas between students and the discussion leaders.

Bell said that there would be no panel discussions on television as in past years. He added that a student within each living group has been contacted as well as the professors to help start the discussion.

The Frosh-Faculty Forum is a part of the New Student Days committee program for freshmen and other new students on campus.

Library tours for new students are scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 20-22, 26 and 27. Each living group has assigned a tour leader to explain the various departments of the library during the living group's scheduled tour.

U of I Orchestra Rehearsals Begin

The University Music Department is looking forward to another busy musical year. LeRoy Bauer, orchestra director announced.

The University Symphony Orchestra begins rehearsals this week, with membership open to the entire student body. Regular university credit is granted for participation.

This year's orchestral schedule includes presenting three major concerts in the University Auditorium, transcribing radio broadcasts in collaboration with the Radio-TV Center and assisting the Drama Department in presenting musical shows and operatic productions.

Student's Moods Become Lyrics

By KAREN Y. WALLACE
ARGONAUT FEATURE EDITOR
Dark hair falls over heavy black eyebrows and into steady brown eyes. . . neck muscles tighten, and the slight young man with the big talent, sings the songs that command the mood of his audience.

The young man is 21-year-old Jerry Tucker, Theta Chi, a talented senior from San Diego studying electrical engineering on a Navy ROTC scholarship.

Although his voice is often weak, and the sound of his well-used guitar often dominates his impromptu concerts, Jerry's talent sounds through with distinctive lyrics and sincerity of presentation.

Jerry, who never studied music before he started writing and playing the guitar five years ago, calls his song-writing a "hobby." "I think that I can accomplish something in this field, and with some work my lyrics can be professional," he said. "But as much as I intend to continue writing, let me emphasize that I write for myself and my music will in no way interfere with my career in engineering."

His friends agree with this analysis, and one fraternity brother added: "Some people write letters and tear them up when they feel depressed and frustrated. This is the way it is with Jerry — he is by no means a guy with a problem."

But the fact remains, Jerry Tucker impresses many as a guy with a talent for writing.

Three of his songs have been submitted to the Dunhill Recording Co. of Los Angeles and Jerry and his friends are awaiting word of their success.

"My agent said that 'In The Morning' has been submitted for review to the Mamas and Papas singing group" Jerry added "and I'm especially anxious to hear about their reaction."

So are his fans.

THETA CHI LYRICIST Jerry Tucker, impresses many of his fraternity brothers and friends with songs he has written as a hobby. Jerry has appeared in the SUB Blue Bucket and the Burning Stake since his freshman year. He makes his own guitars and plays both the guitar and banjo.

Paralleling the style of Bob Dylan many of Jerry's songs tell of sadness, defeat and frustration. Among them are "Wickham's Room," a depressing tune of empty bottles and filled ashtrays; "Sister of Mine" by a brother relating the woe and wonder of life to a younger sister; and "Time Wasn't Kind to Us," a song of regret for love lost.

In each case, however, there is no underlying philosophy, no bitter pessimistic streak guiding each theme.

"I simply write what I feel at the time and can think of only one time that I wrote with a specific purpose," Jerry explained. "Many who write songs to express a philosophy are generally trying to put people on."

His friends agree with this analysis, and one fraternity brother added: "Some people write letters and tear them up when they feel depressed and frustrated. This is the way it is with Jerry — he is by no means a guy with a problem."

LET'S DANCE! With that hundreds of U of I students filled the floor of the ballroom in the Student Union Building Friday. This dance was part of the week's events for new students. Tours of the SUB were given before the dance. Student-faculty forums and library tours this week and next will complete the activities planned by the New Student Days committee.

Pierced Ears, Pearls Stylish

(ACP) — Cameos, ivory roses, and pearls are the latest craze of an old style. A mode which began in Biblical days — ear piercing — is still popular today and has become the latest campus fad.

The Pow Wow, newspaper of Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, La., reported on the not-so-new activity:

Centuries ago women and even children wore earrings, believing they would prevent or cure diseases of the eyes. During the reign of Elizabeth I, men wore earrings suspended from one ear.

Earrings and ear-piercing have bobbed in and out of style since days of old. Most of the time, earrings have been popular when hair styles were short or piled high on the head. Seldom have they been popular with long hair as they are today.

All over the country coeds are getting their ears pierced and wearing the popular studs or wooden dangles. Jewelry stores are hard pressed to keep up with the demand.

Doctors, jewelers, and friends are being asked to perform the surgery. Regardless of who does it, a certain amount of skill is required to get the angle of piercing right and the holes symmetrical. If the holes are too low, a heavy earring will cut the lobe or stretch it out of shape. If the holes are too high, a stud earring may rub against the ear cartilage.

Amateur punchers generally use one of three methods — the ice cube method, the clothes pin method, or the slow-piercing method.

Perhaps the most painful is the clothes pin method. Some coeds agree it is a grueling experience to have clothes pins hung from the ear. The length of time for leaving them on varies, but the best time to remove them is before the coed faints.

The slow-piercing method, the most dangerous of the three, uses a self-piercing post, an earring that pierces the ear slowly. This method increases the possibility of infection.

The ice cube method is uncomfortable but is perhaps the nurse at the infirmary suggested. safest. Ice cubes are used to numb the earlobe before piercing. "It would certainly reduce the possibility of infection."

Cases of infection arise when coods do not clean the ear lobes and earrings properly. They must be cleaned regularly, even years after the ears have been pierced.

Tickets Almost Gone for Games

Vandal fans are reminded to pick up their football tickets as soon as possible since some of the games are almost sold out.

Plenty of good seats remain for the homecoming game with the University of Pacific on October 1, but tickets are selling at a reasonable rate. As for the other games there is some doubt as to how long there will be tickets remaining for them.

The Washington State game on October 22 is almost completely sold out except for a few tickets remaining from the five-yard line to the end zone.

These may be gone by the middle of next week.

As for the University of Oregon game down in Boise, tickets remain from the 12-yard line to the end zone but students are reminded that they will be admitted on their student body cards free of charge in section 15 which covers from the 30-45 yard-line.

The 1966 Idaho State University football season ticket sale has been the most successful in the history of the University, ac-ording to Athletic Business Manager "Babe" Caccia.

Caccia said at the rate the season ticket sales are going there may not be any single game admissions available and persons interesting in attending the four home games, including the Idaho game, October 8th should get season tickets as soon as possible.

"Many people have requested tickets for the Idaho game but we are not selling single game tickets until season ticket sales end Sept. 19th, Caccia said.

Caccia said we have received a good response for season tickets from several area industries buying tickets for their employees. The J.R. Simplot Company bought the largest block of tickets ever sold by the ISU office.

Caccia said every seat in the stadium is a good seat and all seats are reserved.

"We set our goal at the beginning of the ticket drive to sell every seat in the stadium and it looks as if we may reach this goal by September 20," Caccia said.

McDonald Chosen By Sport Editors

Well, What's new? Ray McDonald, Idaho's powerful deep-back has made another All-American Preview team. Last spring Ray was chosen to the first team All-America by PLAYBOY and this time the editors of SPORT MAGAZINE have selected him on their team.

McDonald showed his potential as an All-American this past Saturday in Seattle as he rambled for 135 yards in 27 attempts averaging five yards a carry.

At this rate McDonald would end up with a total of 1350 yards upon completing this year's ten game schedule.

Also selected along with McDonald were Gene Washington of Michigan State and Washington's Dave Williams at the end. Both of them made second team honors last year.

At the tackles are Syracuse's Gary Bugerhagen and Maurice Moorman from Texas A & M. Both weigh around the 240 mark.

Guards include LaVerne Allers from Nebraska who switched to offense this year after starring in a defensive role the past two years and Bob Hyland from Boston College.

Ohio State's Ray Pryor rounds out the line at the center position and may help to bring Ohio State national rankings.

Joining McDonald in the backfield is Bob Griese of Purdue at quarterback. Griese made All-America last year and is on his way again according to his performance last week against Ohio University in which the Boiler-makers romped, 42-3.

Finishing out the backfield at the halfback positions will be Michigan State's Clinton Jones and Floyd Little from Syracuse who was everybody's All-American last year.

MUSSEAU LOOKS on glumly as he watches his Vandal charges drop a 19-7 verdict in the rain at Seattle.

Basketball Coming Up Soon for Idaho

While football is the sport of the day, preparations for a new Vandal basketball program are already under way under the direction of new head coach Wayne Anderson. Still, busy with the orientation problems of assuming a new position, Anderson is slowly piecing together his plan for Vandal basketball, 1966-67.

The search for a replacement to assume Anderson's previous duties is still underway and it is hoped that the appointment will be made soon so that the freshman program will start smoothly.

In the Idaho varsity schedule, there are going to be a few new faces this year. Besides their regular Big Sky conference games, the Vandals will be entertaining California Western on Dec. 16th, the University of Alaska on Jan. 19th and a special game against the Australian Olympic Team on December the 14th. Following is this year's schedule.

Vandals Unable To Stop Washington Running Game

The Washington Huskies rallied for two touchdowns in the second quarter of play to pull away from Idaho in winning their opening game of the season, 19-7.

Idaho was on the scoreboard first after a scoreless first quarter as they marched 84 yards in 12 plays. The rally started at the Idaho 16-yard line as Butch Slaughter slammed up the middle for four yards.

Foruria gained five yards on a keeper followed by a four yard plunge by McDonald for a first down. Thunder Ray followed up with a 14-yard burst up the middle to Idaho 43-yard line.

Spokane's Denny McCanna then skirted the end for nine yards. Five plays later the ball was on the Washington 25-yard line thanks to some fine running by McDonald and Foruria.

Then with second down and eight yards for a first down Foruria took to the air for the first time in the series and fired a strike to Manny Murrell who romped into the end zone with the Vandal's first touchdown of the 1966 season.

Darrell Danielson was successful with the PAT and the Vandals enjoyed a 7-0 margin at the beginning of the second quarter.

Washington's Bob Pederson and he returned it to the Idaho 29.

Six plays later the Huskies were again on the scoreboard via a 1-yard plunge by fullback Jeff Jordan. The extra point attempt was again foiled but Washington took the lead at halftime, 12-7.

In the third quarter the Vandals moved from their own 15 to the Idaho 41 where John Foruria was shaken loose from the football on a pass attempt and Washington's Steve Thompson recovered.

This particular fumble led to the final score of the day for Washington as the Huskies marched from the Idaho 41 to paydirt in only 3 plays. The drive was capped by halfback Jim Cope as he sprinted around his own right end from the 11. This time the Huskies chose to go for one point and the conversion was good making the final score, 19-7.

The game drew a sellout crowd of some 55,300 which watched almost the entire game on a typical Seattle rainy day.

One highlight of the day was the running of Ray McDonald as he racked up a total of 135 yards in 27 attempts which was good enough for a 5.0 average. McDonald gained most of the yards on spurts up the middle but did manage to pull off a couple of fine end runs.

Washington's leading rusher last year, Don Moore, piled up 82 yards in 14 attempts followed closely by the Huskies' surprise sophomore halfback, Jim Cope who gained 73 yards in 12 attempts. Cope was Washington's frosh quarterback last year.

The combined running of Don Moore and the passing strength of Tom Sparlin helped put the Huskies on the scoreboard in this drive. Key plays in the drive were a 15-yard pass from Sparlin to Omar Parker and Sparlin's option around the left end which netted him 18 yards and a touchdown.

The Huskies elected to go for the two-point conversion but failed as Sparlin's pass to All-American end Dave Williams was broken up by Byron Strickland at the last second.

Following this score McCollum took the kick-off on his own five yard line and returned it to the Idaho 22-yard line. Four plays later a John Foruria pass was intercepted by Washington's Bob Pederson and he returned it to the Idaho 29.

WAYNE ANDERSON

This Saturday the Vandals travel to Bozeman to take on Montana State University. This will be the opening conference game for each team and the Vandals will be hoping to get on the winning side of things.

Montana State overwhelmed Portland State last Saturday, 50-7, in their opening game of the 1966 season.

Head basketball coach, Wayne Anderson, urges all boys interested in turning out for Frosh basketball to see him this week sometime. His office is located in the athletic department in room 135.
