Student Turnout Needed To Approve New Legislation

Arg News Editor

Idaho students will go to the polls tomorrow to vote on five constitutional amendments and to elect the class officers for the coming year. The most important of the amendments include one that will abolish class officers, and one that would apportion the campus into districts for the election of Executive Board members.

The former would delete from the ASUI constitution all sections pertaining to class officers. The amendment makes no mention of resulting status of the ofofficers' election tomorrow if the amendment passes.

Get Out and Vote

Even if you think the class officer issue is petty, voting will be worthwhile for you in tomorrow's election. For many other major issues will be on the ballot and need student attention and hopefully their ap-

The biggest controversy on campus is, of course, the proposed amendment to abolish class officers, and perhaps this has drawn the spotlight away from other important proposals. These include a plan for election districting which, if passed, would be effective during ASUI spring elections. Executive Board and Campus Union Party's Legislative drafting committee drew up the proposal and are giving it endorsement.

Districting Provisions

It will provide a fair and representative method of electing Executive Board members from four geographic districts and includes provisions for a maximum of nine members elected by preferential balloting, four of whom would be elected at-large. Details of the district outlines will be worked out later by E-Board as well as election procedure and regulations, if the amendments are approved by the students in the election. The proposed legislation to improve elections also includes a way to fill vacancies which may occur under the plan, lengthens the poll hours, and delays spring elections one week to avoid their conflict with mid-term tests.

All in Interpretation

About the amendment to abolish class officers—students may vote for a candidate and cast a vote to abolish them at the the same time. The explanation for this is that Executive Board has done a crafty examination of the ASUI constitution, and interpreted the phrase under Article XI, Section 5, enactment, ". . . and all contrary documents and enactments are hereby declared null and void, except that this provision shall not be construed to be retroactive so as to affect past actions of the ASUI . . ." to apply to the election of this year's officers. They construe that if the ballots for class officers are counted first, and persons elected to office, the amendment would be retroactive and thus void for this year. So if class officers are voted out, those who are elected on this year's balloting will still take office.

Further amendments also provide for the selection of the secretary of the ASUI, and will create a department of the budget to be added to the ASUI departments. The budget department is a proposal made by Executive Board budget area director, Joe McCollum, which will provide for a constant student voice in the budget.

Prof. Active in Government

Still on the subject of government, but on a higher level, students should be interested to hear Idaho's Associate Professor of Political Science, H. Sydney Duncombe's discussions on local and county government, of which he gave a sampling to the Young Democrats last week. Duncombe is one of the University's more outstanding faculty members, in that he does both research and publishing besides instructing in regular classes.

His specialty however, is county government, and he published two books on the subject this summer. One is entitled County Government in America is being used as the text for his Political Science No. 76 class this semester, and the other, A Handbook for County Officials in Idaho, is being made available for use by various state department bureaus. He says that by default he is the foremost authority on county government in the country, but by the term default, the Argonaut would like pus Saturday night our fearless to point out that it is not only the time ele- hero spotted a speeding car. ment and lack of authors in this field which He pounced upon the offenders makes him good, it is also his interest, en- with great zest following them to thusiasm and thoroughness, which is catch- the SUB. E-Board Goofs Again, Or--l The Almost Illegal Election

After spending two days last week trying to help straighten out the latest bunglings of Executive Board, we decided it was time to add another installment to our running commentary on .

Well, E-Board, you goofed again. This time it was in grand style. Not one member of that august body seemed to realize that it takes time to organize candidates for class election and get the ballot printed. Better yet, no one seemed to realize that in order to make the election valid, the sample ballot must be printed in the Argonaut edition preceding the election.

It's hard to pinpoint exactly what went wrong. Art Crane, as ASUI vice president and chairman of Election Committee, should have been aware of what constitutes a legal election. He, E-Board and Election Committee should have realized how long it would take to prepare the number of amendments which are to appear on the ballot this Somehow the time factor was overlooked and the ballot wasn't ready for the printer until Wednesday night. Unfortunately, the proofs weren't back from the printer until Friday night, which was just a little late for the Friday morning edition.

It is to be assumed that those students who aspired to a position on E-Board would be aware of the workings of student government. Perhaps this is too much to assume. At least in the case of class elections.

Credit must be given to the group for realizing that something is wrong with the present ASUI governmental structure. After not too much deliberation, they decided to let amendments be placed on the class election ballot which would make the student government run more efficiently. After this last fiasco, perhaps any change would help things run more smoothly.

After this dry run on class elections, which seem to cause no stir at all on this campus, we're hoping that E-Board can be counted on to handle ASUI elections in the spring right. By that time they should be seasoned veterans and know all the ins and outs of student government. Maybe they will have even read the ASUI Constitution by then.

Does water poliution bug you? Or smog? Does it concern you that some places in the country never have enough teachers? Or nurses? And when you read about the growing pains of a developing nation, do you wish you could do something?

You can. Thousands of General Electric people are helping to solve the problems of a growing, changing world.

Generating more (and cheaper) electricity with nuclear reactors. Controlling smog in our cities and pollution in our streams. Using electronics to bring the teaching skills of an expert into many classrooms at once, the trained eyes of a nurse into many hospital rooms at once.

If you're not content with the world as it is . . and if you have the brains, imagination and drive to help build a better one, we'd like to talk to you. See the man from G.E. during his next campus visit. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.
