The Residence Hall Association will sponsor an Independent student conference Friday and Saturday for all residence hall associations in the Northwest, according to Lee Gray, Residence Hall Association president.

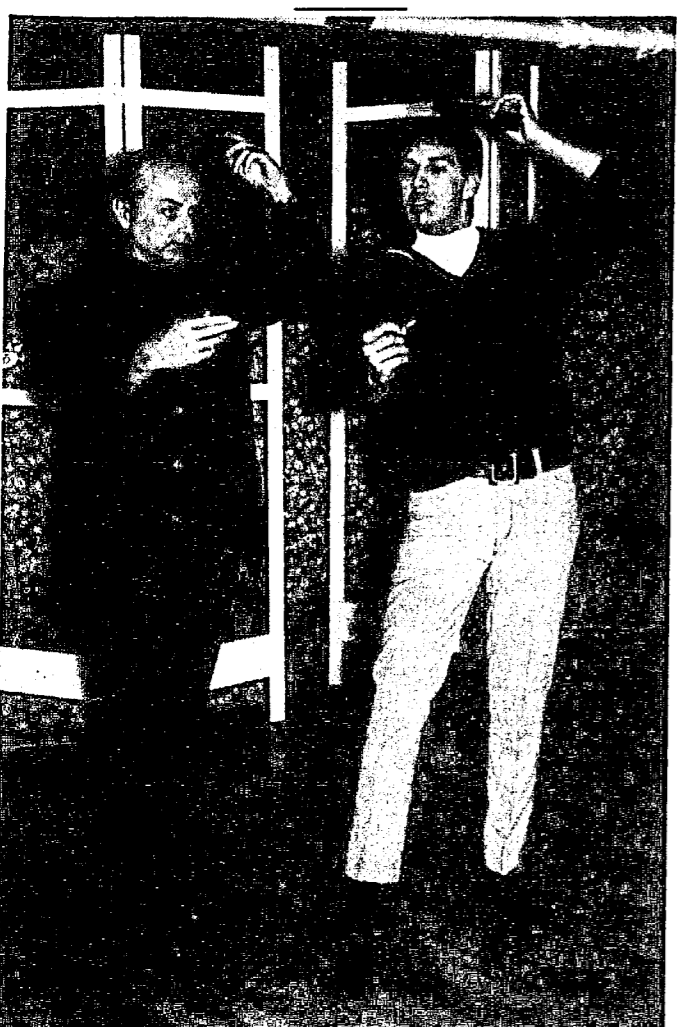

Haley To Speak At U-I Tuesday

Alex Haley, co-author of the "Autobiography of Malcolm X," will speak in the Memorial Gymnasium on "What the Negro Must Do For Himself," at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Five-Night Showing

Tartuffe Starts Run

Moliere's "Tartuffe," a 17th century French satire, opens a five-night run at the University of Idaho Arena Theatre, Monday at 8 p.m. under the direction of Forrest Sears, assistant professor of drama.

IT GOES LIKE THIS—H. Paul Kliss, Buhl, and Gerald Henry, off campus, under study for the part of Tartuffe in the coming U of I dramatics production of the same name, compare notes on style of acting and "business" used in the play. The production will run Monday through Saturday. (photo by Seale)

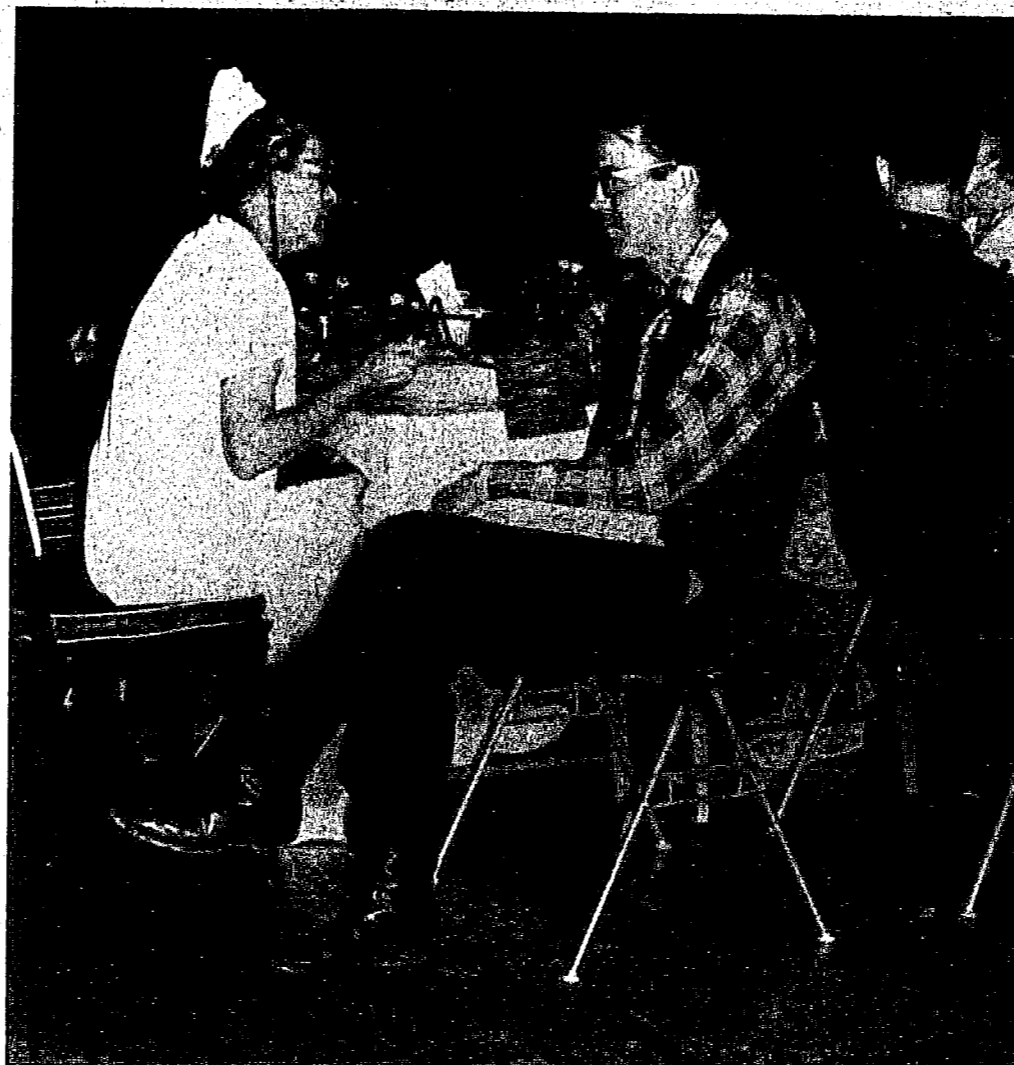

State College, Western Washington State College, and Whitman College are expected on the campus Friday for the conference. The delegations will stay in the various independent halls while on campus, and will eat at the dormitory cafeterias. Registration for the event will be held in the lobby of McConnell Hall from 2 to 8 Friday afternoon. After registration the delegates will go to their living groups. Friday evening there will be a picnic for the delegates at the Arboretum, Friday night Gault, Campbell, Forney and Snow Halls will be open for tour by the delegates.

Saturday the delegates will gather at 8:30 a.m. for a keynote address in the Wallace Cafeteria by Captain Harry E. Davey, Assistant dean of students. After the general session the group will divide into discussion groups. Morning discussion groups will feature talks on the problems of dormitory government and the academic dilemma of the dorms. The academic dilemma discussion will deal with the problems students find in trying to study in residence halls. It will be led by Kenneth S. Russell of the counseling department, Russell Garmize of the Psychology Department, Jeanne Jacobs, French House, and Bill Brock of Graham.

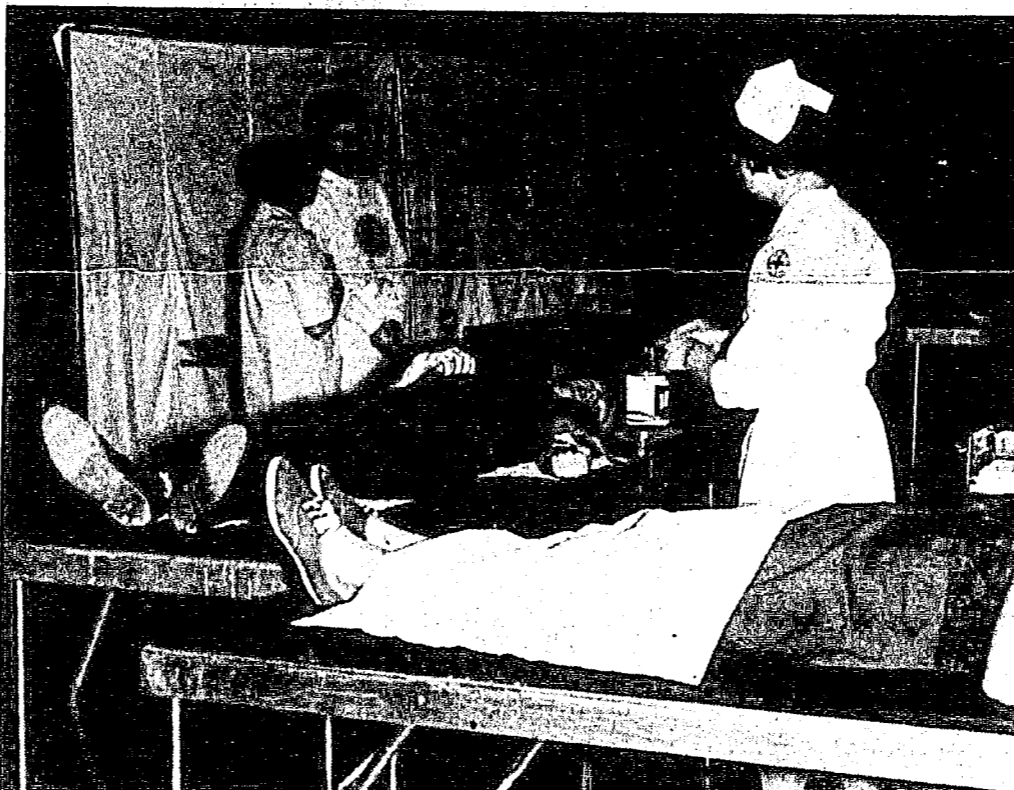

working models of various dormitory rooms. The discussion group in Dormitory construction will be led by Mr. R.W. Reed of the Housing Department, Mr. Dewey Newman, Sam Bacharach of Upham and Jack Elder, Snow. Conducting the discussion on dormitory food facilities will be Mrs. Anne Goff, head dietitian of Gault Hall, Holly Hatch, Hays, Mary Gallagher and Yvonne Holmes of Forney and Kent Aggers, Graham. Gray emphasized that all interested Idaho students are welcome to attend any of the discussion sessions, and to register for the conference.

Theta Sigs Start Corsage Sale

Carnation corsages for Mother's Week-end, May 28-30, can now be ordered through all living groups on campus. Theta Sigma Phi, national journalism honorary for women, is sponsoring the sale. The price of each corsage is $1.50, and they may be ordered in white, pink, red, yellow, or peppermint. All orders must be in and will be picked up no later than Wed., May 26. Corsages may be ordered for mothers, sisters, other relatives, and guests, as well as housemothers and cooks. The flowers will be delivered to each living group by 9 a.m., Sat., May 29. The person's name and color of corsage must be specified when ordering. Corsages cannot be ordered without full payment of the price.

THE PAIN DOESN'T LAST, HOLD YOUR BREATH—Part of the procedure during the University Blood drive this week was the "finger prick" bit. An estimated 903 pints were donated during the three-day drive. (photo by Seale)

Idaho To Choose New Campus Queen

The reigning Miss U of I, Pam Jones, Gamma Phi, will relinquish her crown tomorrow night at the Miss U of I Pageant, slated to begin at 8 p.m. in the SUB Ballroom. The new queen will be chosen from six candidates: Ann Cline, Gamma Phi; Janet Jackson and Bonnie Dowd, Thetas; Colleen Houser, Alpha Chi; Cherre Felton, Delta Gamma; and Sally Pulley, Ethel Steel. Emcee for the annual IK-sponsored pageant will be Wilbur Heflin, who has served as master of ceremonies for the state and local Junior Miss Pageants held in Moscow. The evening will include swim suit, evening gown, and talent competitions, and a fashion show in which the candidates will model spring suits. An added attraction for the evening will feature Dave Knutson, Sigma Chi, who will sing a solo during the pageant. Judging to select Miss U of I will be done on the basis of 25 points, according to Gene Gerard, IK co-chairman of the Pageant. A possible total of five points will be given a candidate in the three separate categories of general appearance and personality, bathing suit competition, and evening gown competition. A candidate may receive a possible score of ten points in the talent competition.

General appearance and personality are judged separately from competition during the pageant, said Gerard. Candidates will be evaluated in this category Saturday afternoon. Personal interviews have been arranged for this purpose. Talent competition will be presented by the candidates during the show. Dancing, speaking, "talking", singing, piano playing, are on the agenda for Saturday. Ann Cline, will arrange her own choreography for the dance she plans to perform during the pageant. Bonnie Dowd will sing "The Italian Street Song", and a contemporary number, "On a Clear Day". Janet Jackson will present a speech, written by herself, entitled "The Profession I Wish To Pursue - Teaching". Alan Sherman's "King Louis" will be sung by Colleen Houser, with piano accompaniment by Debbie Watts. Her second song will be "talked" while accompanied by Carolyn Ely on the guitar. Cherre Felton will perform a modern dance, for which she has arranged the choreography and Sally Pulley will entertain with a piano solo. The new queen is scheduled to represent the U of I at the Miss Idaho Pageant to be held in Boise this summer. Selected to judge the contest are Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander, Boise; Mr. Watson, Pullman; Mrs. Wayne Anderson, Moscow, and Mr. Jack Williamson, Pullman. Song Fest Trials Scheduled Sunday Song Fest, an annual Mother's Day weekend singing competition between living groups, will hold preliminary elimination this Sunday, in the Student Union Building Ballroom. The time schedule for Sunday afternoon's elimination is as follows: 5:00 French House; 5:15 Ethel Steele; 5:30 Delta Gamma-Beta Theta Pi; 5:45 Campbell Hall; 6:00 Alpha Chi Omega; 6:15 Pi Beta Phi-Pi Kappa Alpha; 6:30 Kappa Kappa Gamma-Sigma Chi; 6:45 Alpha Gamma Delta; 7:00 Delta Sigma Phi; 7:15 Sigma Alpha Epsilon-Delta Delta Delta; 7:30 Alpha Phi; 7:45 Forney Hall-Farm House; 8:00 Campus Club; 8:15 Willis Sweet-Pine Hall; 8:30 Gamma Phi Beta; and 8:45 Kappa Alpha Theta-Delta Chi. Judges for the preliminary elimination are Norman Logan; David Whisner; and Winston Cook. New judges will be chosen for the final competition. The Galena Room will be available as a warm-up room and can be used by the living groups

The disappearance of 108 empty donation bottles caused the University of Idaho to lose its title "The Bloodiest Campus in Idaho" to Idaho State University by 66 pints of blood. Judging on a percentage basis, the U of I should have donated 969 pints of blood to keep its title. "The students contributed a total of 903 pints because of the loss of the bottles. We had to turn donors away," said Ron Douglas, Lambda Chi, general chairman.

The bottles were reported missing from the Student Union SAE; and Campus Club over Alpha Gamma. All blood was shipped to Boise within 24 hours of the donation time. Each pint of blood is tested in the lab located at the Red Cross Chapter House in Boise. Each donor will then be sent a card indicating his blood group and RH factor. This information will be recorded and filed for future reference in Boise. "I would like to thank the faculty wives, IK's, Spurs, Alpha Phi Omega, and other volunteers who helped during the drive," said Doug Stanton, set up chairman. All blood collected can only be used as whole blood for 21 days according to federal regulation. The blood is then used in preparation of blood components or plasma fractions. "No blood is ever wasted," Sestero added. There were no waiting lines Tuesday or Wednesday mornings but the wait was as long as three hours for donors Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. "Our main problem was getting students to come Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. This would have cut down the waiting period for many," said Douglas. The Blood Drive Committee Chairmen were: General Chairman Ron Douglas, Lambda Chi; Set Up and Clean Up Chairman Doug Stanton, Lambda Chi; Competition Chairman Steve Cannon and Steve Oliver, Fij; Publicity Chairman Ginny Eiden, Gamma Phi, with Co-Chairman Tim Alden, Lambda Chi.

Winners of the individual competition between two living groups were Gault over Upham; Hays over Forney, Willis Sweet over Christmas; LDS House over Farm House; Houston over Campbell; and Snow over Graham. Others were Carter over Pine; Ethel Steel over French; Borah over Lindley; and McConnell over Shoup. Fraternity winners were: Lambda Chi over Phi Delta; Tri Delta over Theta; TKE over Delta Sig; Fij over Beta; Pi Phi over Kappa; Delt over ATO. Others were: Alpha Phi over Alpha Chi; Kappa Sig over Sigma Chi; Theta Chi over Pi Kappa Phi; Tau over Delta Chi; DG

Board Defeats Salaries Revises Districting Plan A revised election districting plan to go into effect next fall, was passed in about 20 minutes of executive board meeting time Tuesday night, while other business including members salaries and student recruitment dominated the discussion. The new districting plan, proposed by Randy Stamper, off campus, reduces the number of campus voting areas from the nine on the previous plan to five. It also provides for an executive board of four at-large members and five from representative geographical election districts. "The reason for this plan is because the other one was about to be dinged," Stamper said. "So now whatever we do, we have an alternative plan," he said. The new board indicated dissatisfaction with the small size of districts on the former plan. The new system provides that candidates are eligible to run in one district or at-large but cannot file in both. (For grouping of individual living groups in the districts, see end of story.) Salaries for board members was brought before the board for the second time by Roy Haney, off campus. The proposal defeated by a six to four vote, was to give the board members a $15 a month salary. Members argued against the allowance because they said there was not sufficient financial backing in the ASUI budget to support them. "What bothers me," said Howard Foley, Fij, "is that we don't have the funds. These will amount to a little stack of money," he said. Randy Byers, Delt, argued that the board would have a hard time justifying a salary, and said the timing of such an action would be poor for the board. Haney said the salaries would be an expense balance for the members who wanted them and that they would be optional. "It would defray expenses, and is a compensation not a salary," he said. He added that any government pays it's officials. Other business discussed was new organization of the Interfraternity Council sponsored high school recruitment program. Foley proposed an elaborate board including Residence Hall Council, Panhellenic and Executive Board membership in the program. The board argued the composition and number of representatives and finally tabled the proposal awaiting approval of IFC. Foley was in favor of leaving the "actual running" to IFC, he said, but included five members from other organizations on the board. Jim Willms, Upham, and Stamper stated they were afraid the program would turn into a rushing program if left to IFC and did not want to see the recruitment be one-sided as far as the campus was concerned. "We have to sell the whole U of I program," Willms said. "IFC is in favor of keeping the program as it is. It doesn't push one or the other side of campus life," Foley protested. The matter was finally tabled. Visitation programs, proposed (Continued on Page 3, Col. 4)

Golden Fleece

Students Miss The Boat

We hate to say anything, students, but you appear to have missed the boat. You have been yelling and screaming about the need for interesting and controversial speakers on this campus. Finally some materialize and what do you do? You certainly didn't appear at the speeches.

A good opportunity to hear controversial speakers was offered Saturday with the Spring Peace Meeting or the human be-in or whatever you want to call it. As Jason understands it, there were plenty of people at the Arboretum with their own philosophies on the Vietnam situation who would have been happy to expound these theories.

Then there was the chairman of philosophy at WSU, Donald Wells, who proclaimed that war is immoral in Vietnam. If you want controversy, there obviously must be another side to that statement.

Along the same lines, Russell Johnson, an officer of the American Friends Service Committee, spoke on campus Tuesday night. He echoed the Wells philosophy of war.

Few Students

According to one student who attended both speeches, only about 50 students attended the be-in, the rest were interested non-students, and there were only about 100 students at the Tuesday night speech.

However, considering the complexion of the Idaho student, we think that 100 turning out on a weeknight is rather good for a start. Now that the start has been made, perhaps the number in attendance will increase.

If there is still interest in controversial speakers, Alex Haley, co-author of the "Autobiography of Malcolm X" will be here Tuesday to speak on "What the Negro Must Do for Himself." An interesting topic for Idaho, but then, perhaps controversial.

Missle Decoration

Going back to the Vietnam question. The Air Force Titan missile display seems to have drawn a reaction from the campus.

Someone who is handy with a paintbrush decided that the Air Force markings on the missile were not adequate and decided that the time had come to alter this situation. Subsequently, anti-Vietnam slogans appeared on the missile, the truck it was mounted on and the signs pertaining to the display.

It seems rather funny at first look and then loses its humor with the second look, for if no other reason than that it will cost the taxpayer money to get the missile cleaned up. Famous Idaho hospitality strikes again.

Speaking of striking, it looks as if the pro-Vietnam forces on campus are finally making themselves heard. Two letters to the editor today rather sarcastically expressed distaste for the anti-Vietnam faction.

Idaho Observer Editor Sam Day asked where the students on the other side of the controversy were when he was on campus last month. Evidently they are slowly rising to the provocations of the first group.

Lack Of Efficiency

What's going on at the Blood Drive this year? Comments about the organization of the thing have been far from favorable. This is too bad because Idaho students are notoriously eager to donate. If they get discouraged at the outset, they're not going to be so anxious to give the next time.

A few barriers to guide the students to the three typists handling the preliminary work would have made all the difference in the world. As it was, the students had to fight their way through another mob to get into the donation room. There must be more effective ways to channel the donors.

Disappearing Bottles

This has to be the week for student pranks (?). It was impossible to reach the 1000 pint goal because 108 donation bottles suddenly came up missing. The only question is, what in God's green earth would anyone want with that many bottles?

The answer may be either they are planning to bleed themselves and all their friends dry or they have a still with a pretty good output rate. Have fun with your nine cases of bottles, whoever you are.

One question about the Blood Drive has come up in our minds every year. Why must it be in the spring? By the spring everyone is run down, anemic or fighting a chronic case of the flu. It seems that the fall would be a much better time for such an enterprise.

Get the students while they're still healthy and full of vigor after summer vacation.

Sun Dance Season

If you don't like the weather these days, you can do something about it. The Pi Phi seniors are sponsoring a sun dance on their front yard today at 4 p.m. Swim suits and summer outfits are in order.

It might be entertaining to see the Pi Phi's who are tired of their gray complexions, frolicking about trying to invoke the favor of the gods and get the sun to shine. Here's hoping they don't have to construct igloos before they can hold the function.

Poor Paddy

The latest report from the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house is that their Irish friend, Paddy Murphy, is very ill and sinking fast. A reliable source said, "He is hacking and wheezing around now."

If poor Paddy is gathered to his ancestors, it will be very sad. To express their grief, the Sig Alphas will no doubt have to hold an Irish wake. Saints preserve us.

Sugar-Coated EIC Results Hide Evaluations Worth

The University of Idaho has a teacher evaluation program. But that is about all that can be said.

It is not an organized, mandatory program that evaluates all the faculty. If a teacher does not want to be evaluated, he does not have to.

The results are not published. If a teacher receives a bad rating no one knows but him if he does not want the results released.

The students pay for the program out of the ASUI funds, but only those on the Education Improvement Committee ever see any concrete results.

There are many things which could be improved about the evaluation, it has been conceded. Faculty members working on the committee wrote up the criticisms of the results and those mentioned above were among them. But the attitude still remains—it is an evaluation program and that, in itself, is good.

But is it good? The attitude of the committee has been to have any type of evaluation that will induce the teachers to take part. "If we can build up the confidence of the evaluation in the faculty they will participate," has been the consensus.

The evaluation in itself is good—but the participation and the use of the results are not. Only one-third of all the University classes saw the evaluation forms and it is not known what percent of the teachers used them, according to the committee.

Evaluations of the evaluation admit that the survey was anything but a random sample from which no inference of the entire teaching population can be drawn.

The over-all picture says teachers are good, but with only a small portion of them participating how can the results make an accurate analysis?

Perhaps those who did not participate were the poor teachers and they would lower the over-all calibre. But this can't be proven.

Another apparent problem with the ratings and written evaluations is that they were done in the smaller classes—small enough for the teachers to watch the students write their analysis and small enough for them to see who rates the teacher highly.

This could have an influence on the student's grade, or at least it could have an influence on the way the students rate the teacher if they think it could influence their grade. Thus the evaluation forms shouldn't be administered by the teachers.

Also the evaluation could have more influence if it were reviewed by more people. If a professor can throw away bad results without effort to improve his teaching techniques, what is the use?

Students want to know which teachers are rated better by other students, and the administration probably does, too. The teachers themselves would probably take more interest if they could see how they compare with their contemporaries. None of this can be done if the results are not published.

However, we can not say the evaluation is not good. It does show the interested professor if he is doing a good job. And as Stan Smith, student chairman, pointed out, it can help the committee weed out the very bad teachers. But it could be better. And as long as it could be better, why not make it better? E. H. O.

If I Ran The Menagerie

By Don Fry

Last week's column was somewhat one-sided. No discussion of the coed is complete without giving equal time to her male counterpart, Joe College.

Like the coed described in last week's column, Joe College is probably not representative of the majority of college men. There are thousands of serious men on American campuses who have healthy attitudes and goals. Joe College, however, is the one who creates the image of the college man.

The "typical" coed of last week is overly protected by her parents and yet indulged in her whims. Joe College has often been given the same treatment. He comes to college with Daddy's influence and sometimes Daddy's car and checkbook as well.

While the coed has marriage in mind as a goal, Joe may have no other goal in mind than avoiding the draft.

Maybe that's an unfair judgment. Joe has some goals. Let's look at them:

One is affluence. Joe admires the man with the large car and the lush pad. He pictures himself driving around in Hefnersville, in a sort of James Bond environment with women, alcohol and excitement close at hand.

Most of his energy is directed at winning approval from his contemporaries in two areas, booze and women. He holds in awe any kind who can hold a lot of liquor and the more held, the greater the awe.

As far as women are concerned, Joe lives for the conquest. Women cease to be people and become challenges. His goal is to get them into bed and then tell his buddies about it so that they can applaud. This goal is what makes it profitable for Connie Coed to heist her skirts in the SUB. She knows what he's after and she uses it like a matador uses his cape.

With goals like these, it's not hard to understand why Joe seems pretty frustrated sometime. Even when he attains them he has no real sense of accomplishment.

Let's consider his drinking goal. People have been swallowing for thousands of years. Even Joe has been swallowing since he was born. So really, there isn't much accomplishment in downing a beer, is there?

And as for women, some of the world's greatest idiots have managed to beget children. The process is simple and millions of years old. If Joe College makes it with a woman, so what? So did the Neanderthal man.

And how about his goal of affluence? The big car, etc., etc. Today, with "a dollar down and a dollar a week" being the rule, anyone can drive a new Supersport, Mustang, or GTO. It means NOTHING to have all these things because ANYONE can have them. Joe in a big car probably just fell for the Senior Plan.

With such goals, Joe usually finds himself pretty dissatisfied. At the time in his life when he has more energy, more strength, and more drive than he will ever have again as long as he lives, he has no place to go. He, too, is in a cocoon, but unlike the coed the cocoon is of his own choosing.

Luckily, Joe College usually grows out of it about the same time that the coed does. After a year or two of marriage he usually has found himself some pretty healthy attitudes.

The tragedy is that after he is married it is too late. He no longer has a choice of where to direct his energies. Payments, debts, his job, and a hundred other things tie him down. Joe College has become Average Joe.

Well, maybe that's not too bad. That is if being average is all he wanted in the first place.

U-Singers Concert Set

The University Singers will feature the latest work of Dr. Jean Berger, "Skelton Poems," in their spring concert Tuesday, at 8 p.m. in the University auditorium.

Dr. Berger is well known to musicians of America and Western Europe as a composer, pianist, conductor, and musicologist. This will be the first performance of "Skelton Poems" in the Inland Empire. The poetry was written by John Skelton around 1500, and set to music in 1957.

Norman R. Logan will be conducting and baritone soloist will be Tom Parnell, off campus. Corrine Rowland, Tri Delta, will be accompanist.

The first part of the program, arranged by H. R. Wilson, will conclude the program. The concert is open to the public without charge.

Doctor Sprock Praises Committee

A rumor has been going around campus that the Committee for a Peaceful Settlement of the War in Vietnam recently received a letter of support from that well-known baby doctor and noted authority on world history, Dr. Benjamin Z. Sprock. The rumor is true.

The local committee was saving the letter to publish in its anniversary volume commemorating the 50th day since its founding, but I have obtained a copy of the letter through my friend, Mr. Drew Parson, off campus, a well-known columnist for an off campus newspaper. The following is the text of that letter.

"Congratulations on your noteworthy stand against the evil, mean, and corrupt oppressors of mankind who sit in council in Washington deciding which brave North Vietnamese peasant should be napalmed next.

"Those of us who have a grasp of military strategy must make our presence known so that our country will remain strong and peaceful and not be led astray by those bungling amateurs in the Pentagon.

"If we only persist in our struggle, make known our demands by organized protest, and continue to demonstrate our remarkable awareness of the real situation, we cannot fail to achieve our goals—to stop the United States aggression and to allow the Communist nations to return to the peaceful existence that they have always advocated.

"Our country, which has fostered such great humanitarians as George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Gus Hall, must not now allow itself to become a warmongering nation. We must

Use Proposed For Pet Clark Profits

Dear Jason,

To what better use could the profits from the Petula Clark show be put than investment in a new PA system for Memorial Gym?

I must now hurriedly close and return the above letter to Mr. Parson, off campus, who wants to smuggle it back into the office files of the local committee before they notice it is missing.

Missle Painting Student Praised

Dear Jason,

I heartily congratulate the unknown crusader, who boldly and quite appropriately smeared "Love Thine Enemy," etc., across the model of the USAF Titan III which was recently displayed on this campus.

In doing so, he has firmly established himself as being an outstandingly open minded, well informed and conscientious member of our student body.

In his passionate zeal against the immorality of war, he was no doubt very much aware of the fact that this missile was designed to place satellites in space for such hideous purposes as predicting the weather and further expanding the communication system of the world. I think it is very clever how you forced the government to squander the taxpayer's money on repairing a toxin model instead of on some diabolical farce such as education.

It is doubtful that I can make any suggestions which can improve his methods, however I shall make an attempt. He might:

- 1) Spend fewer nights "vandalizing" rockets and more studying.
- 2) Avoid rash actions by being truly informed.
- 3) Take the time to thoroughly investigate both sides of an issue before he takes a firm stand.

If he does this starting now, he may be capable, by 1968, of casting an intelligent ballot, and thus show his disapproval of the current administration in a much more widely accepted American way.

Homecoming Plans Are Many, Varied

The 1967 Homecoming Committee has their plans well underway after the first month of meetings and there will be some basic changes scheduled for next fall.

General chairman for homecoming next year is Tom Gannon, Lambda Chi. Other chairmen include Connie Hoffbuh, Pi Phi, queen contest; Twyla Brunson, Hays, halftime and pregame; Linda Nordby, Alpha Phi, dance; and Ann Glenn Tri Delta, alumni.

The annual homecoming dance may see a change of dress due to the fact that the dance theme will be correlated with the wild west general theme, but this is merely in the discussion stages.

Homecoming weekend will be on Oct. 6, 7, and 8 with the Vandals playing host to the Montana State Bobcats. The general theme for homecoming will be wild west with the more specific theme being, "Showdown at Vandal Corral — Bobcats Bite the Dust."

The homecoming parade will feature a number of bands as well as campus and state dignitaries. The committee hopes to have some floates entered

By selecting a wild west general theme the committee hopes that the various living groups will be better able to construct a float that will correspond to the western atmosphere that will surround all of the homecoming activities.

Each residence hall in the Wallace Complex will be considered as an individual living group. Living groups may work together on float projects.

Also each living group is requested to select a float chairman by this time and a meeting of float chairmen will be scheduled this spring to discuss the theme and rules of the parade.

Queen applications will be sent out in the near future and they will be due May 17. Living groups are not allowed to change their candidate after the closing deadline, but if a candidate does not return to school in the fall, the living group will be allowed a substitution.

The publicity area has been working on area promotion of the queen with all finalists required to appear down at the Idaho State game in Boise the weekend before homecoming.

David Lean is normally a fine director. But even the best of directors can GOOF. And Lean, in my opinion, has not done justice to Pasternak's epic novel.

Plans are also underway to bring in a celebrity to act as Grand Marshall of the homecoming parade. Meanwhile, it has been suggested that the homecoming committee promote a rally in the Boise area at the Idaho State game but there was no further discussion on the topic.

The entire film contains not one great sequence. The actors' accents are phony and disconcerting. And finally, David Lean uses sound sensationistically to compensate for a general lack of substance.

Plans are also underway to bring in a celebrity to act as Grand Marshall of the homecoming parade. Meanwhile, it has been suggested that the homecoming committee promote a rally in the Boise area at the Idaho State game but there was no further discussion on the topic.

Beautiful photography and color simply cannot salvage a motion picture that is fundamentally wrong. "Doctor Zhivago" is the right picture... with the wrong director.

Dr. Karl H. W. Klages, professor emeritus and former head of the agronomy department at Idaho, died Wednesday evening in Gritman Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Klages retired from the University February 1, 1966. He had been head of agronomy since joining the staff in 1936. He came here from the faculty of South Dakota State college, and prior to that had taught in Oklahoma.

He was the author of a book "Ecological Crop Geography," which was a standard text in colleges and universities throughout the United States. He also authored numerous technical bulletins.

by Bill Gigray, Beta, was passed by the board on a dissenting vote. Willms protested that the program was a dead horse and that the students were not interested in hearing visiting executive board members.

"You can't force it on them. It will not work, it has been proven," he said. Gigray said it was the responsibility of the board, "to keep in contact with our constituents."

The board also okayed a new tractor for the University Golf course and proposed more telephones be installed in the complex and other large halls.

Hanoi Visitor Speaks Tuesday

Patriotic To Protest, Says Johnson

It is an act of patriotism to protest this war in Viet Nam," Russell Johnson of the American Friend's Field Service told a crowd of 200 at the SUB Tuesday evening.

Johnson has recently returned from a four month tour in South East Asia, and visited Hanoi, described the war as being "illegal, immoral, and atrocious," "Justice," he said, "is on the other side."

Johnson referred to his capacity in Asia as that of an "unofficial American." This, he surmised, gave him more rapport with the people of the area who "are more likely to tell American officials what they think that they would like to hear."

"The first point I would like to make," he said, "is that South East Asia is a different world than the one we inhabit. It is like medieval Europe. Eighty five per cent of the people are peasants and we identify with the elite of the country."

"The violence of the status quo, which we help perpetuate, does not get into the headlines," he said. "But," he continued, "when people learn that there is something better than a subsistence level of existence they will demand that change come, either peacefully or violently, and it may be that the people will adopt communism if not given any alternative."

Johnson warned his audience, "Do not underestimate the dedication of the communists. It is unpopular to be a communist, and that just increases their dedication. It is really no use to criticize the communists if we cannot supply an alternative answer to the problems of the people."

"The real threat in South East Asia," he said, "is not communism, but the failure of the elite to make changes in the status quo. This failure we are aiding, by aiding the status quo."

"In South East Asia the only ones helping the little people are the communists," he told the group. "And unless we do a better job of meeting the needs of the little man we should give up and get out of that part of the world."

"I believe that bombing can do little in North Vietnam," he said. "The only thing that bombing can do to the little man is kill him."

"The people of the area have had their entire lives dominated by people like us, white, western, and christian," he said. "It is only natural that they should strike out."

"In the past 100 years," he said, "all the old colonial nations have given up their claims, but we have picked up the white man's burden. We have become the dominant colonial power. But," he said, "because of our folklore we cannot identify with that reality."

"I suggest," he stated, "that we are an empire and all empires have serious liabilities. When we are told that we are defending freedom, we are being lied to. It is not freedom that is at stake in our actions, but the freedom of American financiers, the peoples' freedom is a different matter."

"The idea that we blundered into Vietnam unsuspectingly," he told the group, "is entirely false. We have been knowingly getting ourselves involved for the last quarter of a century in an attempt to maintain a system of American special privilege around the world. We have been establishing an empire for the United States."

"After the French were pushed out of Vietnam, we moved in," he said. "The American presence in Vietnam is identical to that of the French before us. The day they left we were paying eighty percent of their war bills. We just moved right in," he said.

"But," Johnson stated, "we have been raised in a myth of innocence. We have been continually told that America is against colonialism. But, with the Vietnam situation, Dean Rusk has not been telling the people the truth."

"The real truth is," he said, "that we have been trying to maintain a position of power and privilege around the world."

"We have been told by the American propaganda line," he said, "that the Chinese will be the aggressor. If we do not stop them here we will have to stop them in California. We are also told that the National Liberation Front is supported by Hanoi, which is in turn supported by Peking."

"But," he said, "that is simply not so. China does not want to be the aggressor. There are no Chinese soldiers outside its borders today. In Korea, Tibet, and India, the Chinese only acted in their own self-defense."

"Frankly," he said, "China has been quite prudent in light of its provocations. Yet we have the nerve and hypocrisy to believe that China is the aggressor."

"If American bombs fall on China," he stated, "we will be told that we had to do it. But the government will be lying to us, that is the credibility gap. When we say that China is backing the masses in the wars of liberation, we do not tell the people that China is backing them only ideology. Lin Piao has made it quite clear that China will not support these uprisings militarily."

"We must," he said, "support social revolution in Southeast Asia. We must learn not to call all who support social revolution Marxists."

Johnson next discussed the individual nations of Southeast Asia as he had found them.

"The Philippines," he said, "is one area where the social gap between the rich and the poor is widening." He also discussed the situations he observed in Thailand and Cambodia.

"In Vietnam," he said, "the people, especially in the north, equate the American presence with the French presence. They are only patriots trying to free their country from foreign oppressors, and our bombing of the land will do no good."

"Bombing," he said, "will only drive the Vietnamese into the hills. We must begin to think of Vietnam as one united nation, which it should be, not two countries."

If you're graduating this June, here's your chance to get a running head start in a successful career.

There's only one hitch: it will take eight months of your time. But measured against results, these eight months could be the most advantageous ones you'll ever spend.

If you have the right qualifications—a B.A. or B.S. degree and a genuine interest in succeeding—you may be one of a select group of young men participating in the new Management Internship Program at Saranac Lake in the Lake Placid area of upstate New York.

This unprecedented program starts in early September and is sponsored by the American Management Association—the world's largest and foremost non-profit educational organization devoted to advancing and sharing the principles of sound management throughout the entire management community.

Everything about the Management Internship Program is unique. The Management Center where you'll live and study is equipped with every recent technical advance in educational methodology. The faculty is drawn from the nation's most gifted and successful practicing managers.

In addition, you will have the invaluable opportunity to associate with the company presidents, labor leaders, government officials and other top-level administrators who participate in AMA's regularly scheduled meetings.

It's unlikely that there is a manager at work today who would not have welcomed a comparable opportunity to get a practical orientation in management before embarking on his demanding career. Can you afford to pass it up? For further details on the Management Internship Program—including information on scholarships and fellowships—write to:

FILM WORLD
By Phil Holaback

Doctor Zhivago

EDITOR'S NOTE — This column will be the last review written by Phil Holaback. Holaback regretted giving up "Film World," saying that the pressures of school and of his teaching forced him to quit. The staff of the Argonaut would like to thank Phil Holaback for his work and his excellent reviews.

David Lean is normally a fine director. But even the best of directors can GOOF. And Lean, in my opinion, has not done justice to Pasternak's epic novel.

I went to "Doctor Zhivago" full of high hopes and great expectations, and I came away crammed full of disappointment.

"Hoo ha," I thought to myself, "'Doctor Zhivago' is the winner of six misplaced academy awards. The Public has another golden opportunity to be fleeced. In fact—you've just been fleeced, Jason!" Etc., etc., and so forth.

"Holy Zhivago, Bacteritic, what's wrong?" In the first place, "Doctor Zhivago" is what a movie should never be—BORING.

David Lean does not have full control over his material; thus the film's structure has turned out sprawling and amorphous. Indeed, Lean wanders about almost as much as Zhivago himself.

The plot is often confusing; too many threads are left dangling, too many questions unanswered. The overall acting is mediocre and the characterizations shallow.

The University of Idaho has good teachers. That is what the Educational Improvement Committee (EIC) discovered recently after receiving results of the evaluation sheets filled out by students at the end of the first semester. The questionnaires, which were administered on a voluntary basis, were filled out by 316 classes (about one-third of the classes and an estimated one-third of the faculty members).

With a rating of 5 as high and 1 as low, the mean for the 3,877 participating faculty members was almost a whole point higher than anticipated, according to EIC chairman Stan Smith, Upham.

There could be several explanations for the unexpectedly high rating, Smith explained. There may have been a larger proportion of "good" teachers participating in the evaluation, he said.

Or students tended to be tolerant, showing leniency in their evaluations of instructors. Or, he added, there might have been a cautious point of view evident.

Since students knew their instructors were receiving their evaluation forms (although students' names were not included) before grades were reported, students had no wish to risk jeopardizing their grades by being too frank.

Since there was a marked correlation between small classes and high ratings, the committee felt the latter explanation had some merit. The committee felt that if students could be used to administer the questionnaires after the term grades were turned in to the registrar's office and thus alleviate the idea that the student's grade might be affected by the forms.

The committee also felt that another improvement might be in a change or elimination of several questions which helped to bring down unfair ratings of certain individuals. These questions had to do with the text being used in class, the use of visual aids and the amount of discussion in class.

Julie Pence, Gamma Phi, headed the subcommittee drawing up the questions. She explained that the instructor might have used the best book available or one that the department selected and yet be graded down on this question.

Professors with lecture courses of 100 students or more cannot stimulate discussion, so students should not give these people a bad rating; rather they should mark the question not applicable, she said.

This week teachers should receive the evaluation sheet with accompanying statistical data. From this information the individual can compare his rating with those of others and get some idea of his performance.

Teachers should, however, keep in mind that this is not a sample of all University classes but only a sample of those instructors who asked for the questionnaires. Therefore, the participating instructor can only compare himself to those who participated and in no way compare himself to those who did not.

The committee hopes when the teachers see that students are not using this program for vindictive purposes they will be more enthusiastic about it and that more teachers will be willing to give the forms to their classes, Smith said.

"Besides satisfying a normal curiosity about students' opinion of his ability, the forms may prove very useful to the better teacher," he said.

"Anyone with a high rating would probably wish to show it to his immediate superiors."

"At the University of Washington, for example, a special office turns out rating sheets at the request of the instructors for use in obtaining raises and in applying for other positions," he said.

Smith added that the University of Washington also publishes the faculty ratings compiled by students. "When the EIC first proposed a faculty evaluation program here, many of the members wanted the results published."

He said the committee voted against this idea, however, with the hope that if the evaluations were done responsibly, the program would receive widespread faculty acceptance.

Asst. Prof. of business, Charles W. Rice, said that a similar procedure would be used again next year.

He explained that the results are made to the individuals involved, who can use them for reference to their superiors if they desire. He added that it is not the intention of the committee to make the results public. The purpose is simply to provide the instructors with student opinion of their teaching.

Blue Key Plans For Membership

A permanent trophy will be presented to the winner of the Intercollegiate College Bowl Championship. Next year, ISU will host the Idaho team in a return match to determine the state champion.

In the future, Idaho hopes to attain competition with Central Washington and the University of Washington.

Each school participating in the matches tomorrow will provide half the questions. Mike Jessup, off campus, will be moderator. Scotte Hecht, head of the Speech department, will be the judge.

"We should give these two teams all the support we can. They should be commended on their academic achievements," said Vicld Haight, chairman of the Idaho College Bowl program, which is hosting its first year.

Pi Phi Seniors Sponsor Sundance

An all campus Sun Dance, sponsored by the Pi Phi seniors, will take place on the Ad lawn this afternoon. Everyone is invited to come in bathing suits, shorts, and sandals, and bring beach towels, beach balls, suntan lotion (along with sun lamps) and radios.

Although this is the first time the Sun Dance is being held, according to Margie Braun, Pi Phi senior, it may become an annual event, at least "any time it snows in the middle of April."

Honorary Hosts WSU, U-I Men

Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism society, will host a Region 10 conference tomorrow on both WSU and Idaho campuses.

Starting at Washington State Jack Marineau, managing editor of the Idahonian and president of the Palouse professional chapter will give the welcome. The conference is slated to begin at 9:15 a.m. at the Compton Union Building.

At 9:30 a.m. Perry Swisher, editor and publisher of the Pocatello Intermountain and a 1966 gubernatorial candidate, will be the featured speaker at the CUB, according to Leo Jeffries, president of the national journalism honorary.

Billy Hall, editorial page editor of the Lewiston Morning Tribune and Sam Day, editor of the Idaho Observer in Boise, will both speak at morning sessions of the conference.

James Dooliver, administrative assistant to Washington Gov. Dan Evans and a former assistant to Rep. Jack Westland, R-Wash., will deliver the address.

Journalism men will then transfer to the Idaho campus for the rest of the convention. Robert Duncan, Portland attorney and a 1966 Oregon democratic U.S. Senate nominee, will address a conference afternoon session at the University of Idaho campus, Jeffries added.

"That the people shall know," a Sigma Delta Chi Firm will follow.

Speaking at the afternoon session will be Perry Swisher. Dinner will follow in the Blue Bucker at the SUB.

"All interested public is invited," Jeffries said.

Have you ever wondered why the varsity letter sweaters are red?
Do you know why? Do you know when the color was first used?

My mail has shown some concern about why the University of Idaho with colors of silver and gold, awards letter sweaters that are red (WSU's colors).

I have done some basic research into the matter, but I have not found anything significant or concrete. I am still looking and will report what I come up with, if anything can be found.

If you should know why it is this way or can point me to an alumni or faculty member who can shed light on the situation I would appreciate it.

I did discover that several movements have been started in the past to change the color, but they have never managed to alter the color for any length of time.

One-Hundred At Sports Banquet

One hundred people attended the first annual Winter Sports Banquet which the Moscow Chapter of the Vandal Boosters sponsored Tuesday evening. The event was held to honor the participants and coaches of varsity winter sports, Members of the basketball, wrestling,

INJURED—Steve Brown, Idaho high jump record holder, bruised his hip April 8 at Cheney and will be unable to compete this weekend as the Vandals travel to Missoula. Coach Doug MacFarlane hopes he will be able to compete against Idaho State when both teams travel to Boise next weekend. (photo by Maker)

Maybe Golfers Will Host U of M, Gonzaga, EWSC

The golf team will host Eastern Washington State College, Gonzaga, and the University of Montana tomorrow if the weather breaks and the course dries enough to allow competition.

Coach Dick Snyder said the decision to play or not will probably not be made until Saturday morning.

Their meet scheduled with WSU and Montana for last Tuesday was called off because of rain.

Vandals competing this weekend will be Bill Snyder in the number one spot and Skip Pierce, sophomore in the second position. The rest of the team will be Mike Carter, Bill Cook, Dick White and Lex Talmant. Carter will be third, Cook fourth, White fifth, and Talmant sixth.

The meet with WSU and Montana has been rescheduled for Tuesday, May 2.

Billiards Pro Schedules Show

Jimmy Garase, a former champion billiards player, will give two exhibitions at the Compton Union Building on the WSU campus on Monday, April 24.

Gonzaga Bulldogs Invade Palouse

The Vandals will open defense of their Big Sky crown tomorrow afternoon as they host Gonzaga. The doubleheader which will begin at 1:00 p.m. will be the first conference competition for both teams.

Their first two meetings were during the Banana Belt Tourney which was held in Lewiston almost a month ago. The Vandals won the first 3-2 and then took the second 5-0.

Coach John Smith expects his top pitchers, Ken Johnson and Al Simmons to handle the hurling chores but he has not decided which game they will each work.

The Vandals' last contest which was scheduled for last Tuesday in Spokane against Whitworth was cancelled because of weather and this may be the case tomorrow if the weather doesn't break.

Pitchers Ken Johnson and Al Simmons are currently tied with three wins each and no losses on their records.

Johnson is leading the earned run averages with a low of 1.63. Simmons is close behind with a 1.95 era. Skip Ivie, Johnson and Simmons have been handling most of the pitching chores.

Shortstop Gary Johnson has retained his lead in the batting race with an average of .422 which is better than two hits in five trips to the plate. He has hit the Vandals' only home run and leads the club in triples with five. He also has a total of 34 bases for the best in that department.

Rich Toney, the Vandals' first baseman, is second in the batting average department with a .385 average. He has stolen two bases to tie with Johnson for the lead in stolen bases.

Third sacker Doyle Demond and second baseman Steve Garman complete the list of Vandals hitting over .300.

Demond is right behind Toney with a .381 average and Garman is there with a .340 mark at the plate.

Doyle Demond is second with total bases with 25 and second in the three base category with three three-baggers.

Steve Garman fills out the infield at second base and is also the last man over .300. Garman has been to bat 47 times and has 16 hits.

The infielders dominate the .300 hitters, while Phil Reser leads the outfielders with .250 average. Dean Cherbas is next with nine hits in 38 trips to the plate for an average of one hit for every four and one fourth times at the bat or .237.

Catcher Wally Posey finishes the list of hitters above .200 with an average of .206 or seven hits in 34 trips to the plate.
