What's

Going On

At

Complex X?

By Kerrie Quinn
Arg. Managing Editor

Construction of Complex X, which consists of four units and a commons, (a dining area,) has started with the building of Tower A of the estimated $10,000,000 complex, due for completion in 1973.

Tower A, named after Dr. D. R. Theophilus, President of the University who retired in 1965, will consist of 11 stories and will house 416 students after completion in the fall of 1969. The first floor of the Theophilus Dormitory will consist of a lobby, lounge, a mail room, an apartment for the resident director and eight student rooms, according to George Gagon, Director of the Physical Plant.

Tower A of Complex X will be located behind Gault and Upham. Paradise Creek has been covered to make a road accessible to the new dormitory, although there is no adequate parking space near the dorm.

"The basement will have a laundry room with plenty of trunk space, facilities for mechanical equipment and a small area for vending machines," Gagon said.

"Every two floors will represent a living group," Gagon added. There will be 20 rooms to a floor, two students to a room and 80 students in all on the two floors of a living group.

Tower A, which will be composed of five living groups, will have on every even numbered floor, a small living room. The different student units will be located around the outside of the high rise dorm.

The odd numbered floors, according to Gagon, will have typing rooms and small study rooms, besides a pressing room. "The bathroom facilities for each floor will be located in the core of the building and will consist of six toilets, four showers and six wash basins."

"The Theophilus Dorm, which could be comprised completely of either men or women students, will have two elevators," he said.

Highlights of the new dorm include television and telephone outlets in each room. Two students will live in each room with the beds located in the rooms. Also in each unit will be a wardrobe, drawers and two desks.

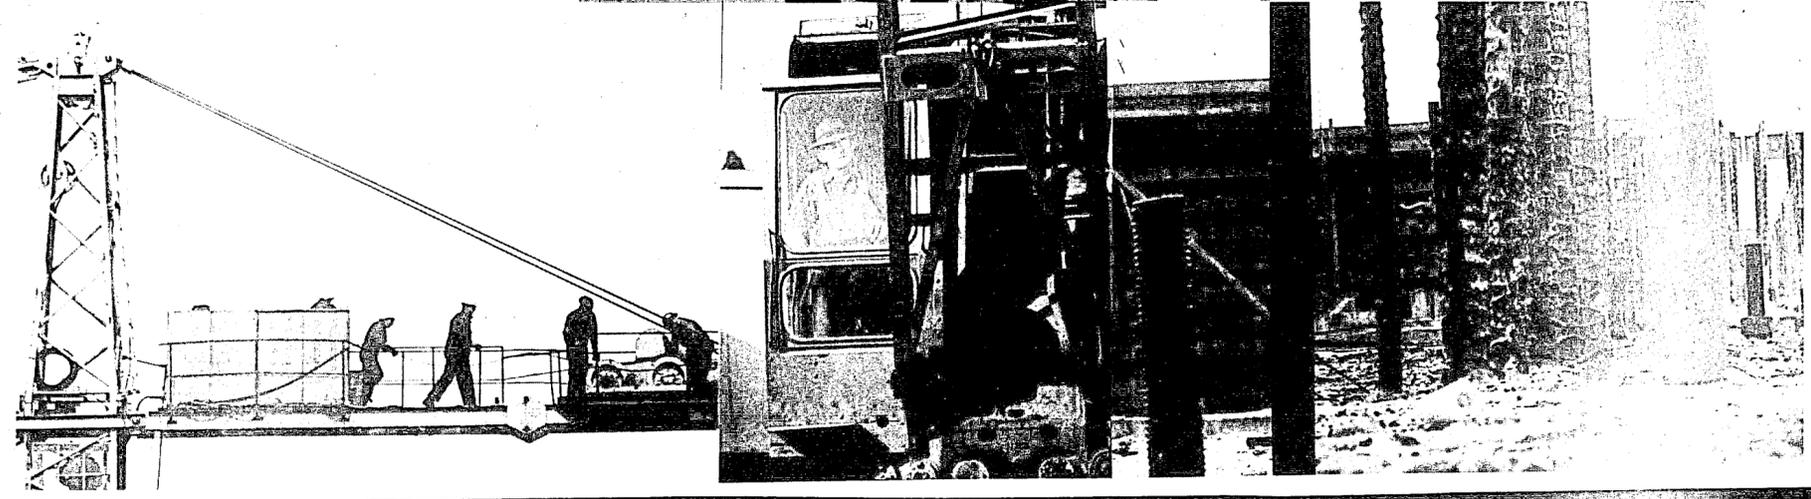

Future plans for Complex X include another high-rise dormitory, Tower B. "Tower B will also consist of 416 students and will be built exactly like Tower A," Gagon said.

At the same time Tower B is constructed, a Commons, (a dining area,) will also be built. The Commons, Gagon said, will be a satellite Student Union Building and will include a kitchen and dining area plus a small snack bar.

In the Commons will be vending machines, a game room, music listening space and a small library.

Long range plan for the Commons will be to facilitate eating space for 1500 students from Tower A, Tower B, Gault, Upham and McConnell.

Other plans for Complex X will be the construction of two low-rise dormitories, C and D. These dorms will house 160 students each and long-range plans schedule completion of C and D around 1973. (Bower - Korte Photos)

Editorial Opinion

Presidential Primary?

It somehow seems that Idahoans are getting cheated. Everybody else has a presidential primary, and we miss out on all the fun. In reality, few states do have presidential primaries. For that reason, winning all the primaries does not mean that a candidate will receive the nomination for president.

However, in this state where there is a presidential primary the people actually have some say in who will receive the nomination. In Idaho our individual say is minuscule. Our delegates to the national convention are selected by the State Central Committee, which is composed of several delegates from each county. The State Central Committee members are selected by the members of the County Central Committees, which are elected by the voters in each precinct.

The Idaho voter is actually three steps removed from his delegate to the presidential convention, and due to the time the precinct committeemen are elected, the voter is also two years removed from the selection process.

Now that the Idaho election laws are being reviewed, and the state constitution is being rewritten, those involved should look into the possibility of having an Idaho presidential primary.

If a presidential primary were to be held it would necessitate moving the usual primary election for state officers up to the first of July. The primary is now held in the first of August, but the national conventions are usually held in July or early August. If the date of the state primary were changed, the presidential primary could be included on the ballot.

That, however, would have the undesirable effect of lengthening the campaign by at least one month, which is not a pleasant prospect. The other alternative would be to hold a special presidential primary earlier in the year, and then hold the state primary at a later date.

The effect of the primary could either be binding or advisory. Some state's primary results are binding on the convention delegates on only the first ballot. In other states the results are binding until the candidate is eliminated from contention at the convention. Some other states totally bind their delegates to the choice of the primary until the candidate himself releases them. Any of these alternatives could be effected.

The other major questions that would have to be decided are how inclusive would the primary be, and how would the candidates be selected. Some states elect convention delegates at the time of the primary, while others have them chosen within the party structure. In some states all possible candidates names are on the ballot, while in others a candidate must certify his candidacy.

All of these various approaches to a presidential primary will have to be studied, and decisions will have to be made. But the idea of a presidential primary for Idaho is well worth consideration.

T. H. E. Column

By Marty Peterson

The last couple of weeks have been filled with discussion about narcotics legislation, anti-riot laws and a variety of other topics which can all be placed under the general heading of civil rights and associated fields. Today, let's take a look at the civil rights situation of the University of Idaho campus.

Some of you who feel that you are quite well informed may ask, "What the hell does the state of Idaho know about civil rights? The people there are so damned backward that they're just now finding out about woman suffrage." I, for one, would like to defend the people of Idaho by saying that anyone who would make a statement like that must be blind. That is, either blind or else they have seen no more of the state of Idaho than the University of Idaho campus.

At this moment, if you are part of the University administration, you will probably be thinking that Marty Peterson must be some sort of wild radical for making a statement like that. On the other hand, if you are a wild radical, then you are probably applauding that statement. In any case, let me qualify what I just said.

One of the major areas of recent civil rights legislation has been that of women's rights. Just about the only way you can say that Idaho women are being treated equally is by warping things around to say "All men are created equal, but some are created more equal than others." This will put the Idaho coed on equal grounds with the male students.

Take a look at some of the regulations which apply only to women students. How about the regulation which says that girls must have the written permission of their parents to visit a man's apartment. Does that mean that any coed who happens to receive an invitation to visit the Hartung's must have the written permission of their parents? The way I read the regulation there is no getting around it, they do.

How about some of the women's living groups which don't allow women to appear on campus wearing slacks. The way I look at it, if you are really going to be fair about this whole thing, then it is only appropriate that a regulation should be made requiring men not to appear on campus in skirts. How does this grab you?

What can be done about this? Well, there are several routes which could be followed. Probably the most obvious solution would be force the Archaic Women's Society (AWS) into taking some action. If this solution is not feasible, then there are other alternatives which could be taken.

Many years ago, when women in the civilized world were campaigning for civil rights, there was a woman named Carrie Nation. Her solution to the whole problem was to run around town with her hatchet and chop up bars. Can't you just see it now? Caroline Brooks walking into the SUB and chopping up the snack bar.

I guess in closing, I had better pacify the people who really count and make a final statement. "The views expressed in this column are those of myself and do not necessarily represent the opinions of the editorial staff of the Idaho Argonaut." On the other hand, who knows what they think?

The Golden Fleece

Promises, Promises

By Roger Anderson, Jason 82

Student power is a word that has almost become a cliché. In most peoples' minds, many faculty included, student power means bearded weirdos ousting presidents from their offices. Student government is a word that has almost become a cliché. In most peoples' minds, including many students, student government is a body which discusses next week's dance. Neither image ought to be true.

Student power through student government should be our slogan and the fact. At present, a powerful, meaningful student government does not exist. But the opportunity is here more now than ever before. The University of Idaho is blessed with an administration more willing to give responsibility to students than any administration in the past. But the student government must take it.

Unfortunately it is still possible for candidates to be elected without making any promises, without the students being completely clear about where they stand on the issues. It may still be possible for an Executive Board to go through the year without debating and pushing for the issues on which they were campaigning. E-Board has had a discouraging tendency to do so in the past. Hopefully the new board will be different. Hopefully, I will be different.

Year after year, candidates have hashed over the same issues. Year after year the newly elected E-Board members have done nothing about the issues upon which they were elected. Year after year, prospective E-Board members have promised students to represent them, yet rarely are the successful candidates ever seen by his constituents except during the annual "gripe week" drive. Hopefully, this Board will be different. Hopefully, I will be different.

In a reaction to the strain of the campaign, and a rush to catch up on studies, the temptation to let politics slide is overwhelming. The temptation to put things off for one more week, or for another month, or until I take office, seems so easy to accept.

In order to try to prevent this annual sleeping sickness in myself, and to encourage better student government, I am going to do something different. I am going to print the campaign promises I made during the elections, after I have won. Space is available in the "Argonaut" to any successful candidate who wishes to do the same.

During the campaign I said:

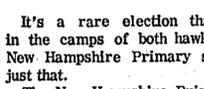

1. I will see that a committee is formed to investigate the university's parking plans. (Campus Affairs, on the initiative of Prof. Cecil Hathaway, is planning to form such a committee.)
2. I will submit a resolution to E-Board to form a committee to investigate the food in the Complex, and Willis Sweet and Chrisman, and to make recommendations.
3. I will submit a resolution to E-Board asking the administration to lower prices in the Bookstore.
4. I support the present draft of the Student Bill of Rights.
5. I will work for open meetings of Faculty Council.
6. I will submit a resolution to Executive Board or Campus Affairs to ask the Faculty to give the students votes on Faculty Council.

Now, for better or for worse, I am committed. Wake up, Anderson, and get on the stick. I pray I succeed.

News Analysis

New Hampshire Quibbles, Smith Dribbles

By Chris L. Smith

It's a rare election that causes jubilation in the camps of both hawks and doves but the New Hampshire Primary seems to have done just that.

The New Hampshire Primary is a race about which only two things are usually true. First, its relative importance is always overblown. And secondly, the results, which are often surprising, are almost impossible to interpret.

The primary is over-rated mainly because of its timing. Being the first, it offers the press a first taste of the tone of the campaign. News media flock there, and every candidate's every move seems to be analyzed. The press seems hungry to get some hard, factual election news, and when New Hampshire comes along it gorges itself.

Relatively, the few convention votes that New Hampshire can offer any candidate mean little, but the publicity of a good showing there is the thing candidates crave. Any other state of equal size holding a primary later on receives the lion's share of the political spade because it offers a lion's share of the political publicity.

If a candidate wants to get a campaign off the ground, New Hampshire offers a prime location. In 1964 Henry Cabot Lodge won the New Hampshire Republican primary, but was never really in serious contention either until, on long after that victory, in 1952 and 1956 Estes Kefauver won the New Hampshire primary, and both times Adlai Stevenson received the nomination.

This year, the New Hampshire race has come through especially big on the surprises, and offers a few things for the politicians to think hard about.

On the Democratic side Senator Eugene McCarthy scored impressively. In his race against Johnson, McCarthy is trying to accomplish the almost impossible: unseat an incumbent President from inside his own party. The trick has never been done in this century, but historically there are several precedents for such a move. McCarthy, even if he is not successful, will have offered an alternative within the Democratic party for those who oppose Johnson.

The final tally on the Democratic side was McCarthy 42 percent, President Johnson 49 percent, and the rest going to a scattering of other candidates.

The McCarthy vote far surpassed his own forecasts and those of his opponents. The President's supporters originally claimed that he would beat McCarthy by a ten to one margin. They later revised that estimate by three to one. The population ever later re-revised that.

McCarthy's performance was enhanced by the fact that he was a declared candidate, while President Johnson was not. McCarthy's name was on the ballot, but Johnson's had to be written in. The state's Democratic machinery waged a hard write-in campaign for Johnson.

New Hampshire has a strange election system in the primary that makes it necessary for a candidate to win two elections in order to say that he has taken the state.

There are two separate ballots, one is a preference presidential ballot. Its importance is mainly publicity, because its decision is binding on the national convention delegates only on the first ballot.

The important ballot is the one that actually selects the convention delegates. In that race, each declared candidate can put up a slate of delegates. Others desiring to attend the convention can put their own names on the ballot.

This year McCarthy put up a full slate of potential delegates, and 45 other people ran pledged to Lyndon Johnson. McCarthy took 20 of the 24 delegate spots, mainly because the Johnson supporters splintered their vote among 45 other candidates.

With New Hampshire behind him, and his campaign gaining credibility, McCarthy is moving on to Wisconsin. There he should do well, and that race could either make or break the campaign. McCarthy himself is from Minnesota, and there should be a good measure of local support for Johnson also.

So far the President has not announced that he will be a candidate for re-election. If he is also campaigning in Minnesota he will have to announce, and the presidential race will gain some clarity. If Johnson does not announce, he stands a chance of losing Minnesota, and that would not look good.

If Johnson were to not announce and lose Minnesota, the possibility is also raised of his retirement. A peaceful retirement to his Texas ranch, and a position as a party elder might appear desirable to a President faced with possible defeat. The stance of a Herbert Hoover would not make Lyndon Johnson comfortable. Stalling off an announcement longer also brings into the picture the possibility that Bobby Kennedy, the heir apparent to the Kennedy dynasty, might jump into the race. If Kennedy were to challenge the President it would change the whole complexion of the race, and would put McCarthy in a very strange position of having his platform stolen.

On the Republican side of the picture, the results were not so surprising in the actual tally, but the campaign maneuvering was extremely important.

The New Hampshire Republican race was the final political death of presidential aspirant George Romney. There he found that the support he had counted on would not materialize. Romney withdrew from the race, and his name was not on the ballot. Romney's withdrawal put his major supporter, Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, into a tight situation.

Rockefeller has denied for months that is or will be a presidential candidate. However, each of his denials seem to be weaker than the last. The old axiom that Presidential fever is incurable may be true, and Rocky has had the bug for a long time.

At the time of Romney's withdrawal, Rockefeller supporters and some former Romney men, began organizing a write-in campaign for the New York governor.

New York Governor. The campaign had little time to really get off the ground, and Rockefeller only received 11 percent of the vote.

Taking the race by 80 percent was former Vice President Richard Nixon. Nixon had announced, and his name was on the ballot. He had campaigned long and hard in New Hampshire, and stated that he was trying to beat his image as a loser.

If Nixon is unable to get rid of that image his chances of receiving the nomination are slight. He has tried to show a "New Nixon" and so far has been successful. But from a first success to the White House will be a long road, and once again "A funny thing could happen to him on the way to the White House" and the result could be another "Last news conference."

If Rockefeller is to win the nomination, he will have to announce soon, and should campaign in Michigan. If he stays out of the race too long he could be a repetition of the Scranton candidacy in 1964—a good idea thought of too late.

If one had to draw one conclusion from the New Hampshire results, it would be, "Well, ah, I think that, ah, maybe, it could be, and probably. Damned if I know."

Dear Jason

U-I Students Bought Off

Dear Jason,

The students at the University of Idaho are being bought off. The Argonaut is carrying on a very valiant stand against cowardly and arbitrary action by administration "finks" concerning the punishment of drug users. This issue is important and fundamental to student freedom. However, just how many students here at the U of I use drugs regularly? Very few, at the most several hundred. There has been much fuss in recent weeks over student elections. All of this attention of course was over fundamental issues—personality, appearance and E-Board. Every one of these fundamental issues are essential to each student.

Nowhere in sight here at the U of I are the fundamental issues to all the students. That is the Vietnamese war and power. Power is sometimes called politics.

Except for the recent Symposium on Vietnam no student action or attention has been directed in organized mass to the Vietnam war. This is not due to deep apathy or student misinformation concerning the war but simply a lack of impetus. There is an obvious feeling on this campus that we as students cannot affect government policy in Vietnam. The truth is we as students can affect national policy by what few votes we have, peaceful demonstrations and by disseminating the truth about Vietnam. But to do that here at the U of I the students need organization. There is only one anti-war organization on campus which seems to be totally defunct. Nowhere is there any evidence that it exists, holds meetings, demonstrations or puts out any kind of information to the students concerning its existence. Many students would actively participate in an anti-war organization if they only knew of its existence.

Idaho students are being bought off in politics by the pseudo political game given to us by our elders. This game is to keep college students busy with E-Board and drug controls while the truly important game or real political power is ignored. A good share of college students being under 21 cannot vote for any elections outside of the university. Yet any person over 21 no matter how ignorant, un-informed or just plain stupid is allowed to vote. College students under 21 who pay taxes who can be sent to die in the jungles of Vietnam and who are equally affected by local and national governmental actions have no vote. However they are given a fascinating little toy to play with. The plain truth is our elders are afraid of us especially the "benevolent despot" L.B.J.

Finally a man has come to the scene who will treat college students fairly. Eugene McCarthy has shown by the use of student power in New Hampshire that college students are the backbone and that s.p. can lead him to victory in November. If McCarthy is victorious he will owe us a great deal. He will ward the college students ending the war in Vietnam, selective service system and ending 18 year olds or at least attempt to give them their rightful political power to vote.

The above is a concept of political student power with student interest in mind and student rewards as a goal. The rewards can only be achieved by collective in mass student power. Preferably led by us. But where is the Democratic party at the U of I. Please stand up and identify yourself Democratic party.

Students of the U of I and the entire supernation unite, we have nothing to lose but your chains!

Sincerely,
Kelly Pearson

Drug Statement Discussed At Campus Affairs Today

A University statement on drug use, the Student Bill of Rights and the parking facilities problem will be discussed today at Campus Affairs meeting at 4 p.m. in the SUB.

Concerning the drugs statement at present, two conflicting policies have been presented to the Committee. One is E-Board report 138 and the other is a draft composed by President Hartung and Dean Decker.

The draft was drawn up after the Board of Regents was called into Gov. Samuelson's office. According to Decker, the meeting took place as a result of the recent appearance of Dr. Timothy Leary, drug cultist, at SU.

"The Governor is very concerned with the drug problem. He played Leary's taped speech for the Regents as well as the State Pharmacy Board. The Pharmacy Board said that Idaho Colleges are not complying with the laws regarding drug use," Decker said.

The two reports conflict mainly because of a difference in clauses. The two controversial clauses are section number four in the draft and the last paragraph of report 138.

The Hartung draft reads as follows:

The University of Idaho does not sanction, condone or remain indifferent to any act or conduct which impairs the pursuit or dissemination of knowledge and which may be judged to have a deleterious effect upon the academic community. The illegal use or abuse of hallucinogenic, stimulant, or mind changing drugs may have such an effect. Therefore, the University of Idaho does publicly pronounce that efforts will be made to inform students relative to physiological effects of such drugs as LSD, marijuana and other hallucinogens establishes a clear understanding of their mode of action, physiological range, and similar facts, we assume that the illegal use or abuse of hallucinogenic, stimulant, or other mind-changing drugs, may be detrimental to the maintenance of a suitable educational environment. Therefore, the University of Idaho establishes the following policies:

1. Every effort will be made to inform students relative to the known physical, psychological, and legal aspects of drug use;
2. The primary role of the University in handling matters potentially involving use and possession of drugs by its students is that of counseling;
3. Investigation, prosecuting, and disciplinary roles in relation to drug use where law violation is likely will ordinarily be the responsibility of civil and legal authorities who have expert knowledge;
4. The University will also assume a disciplinary role when the drug violations which jeopardize the interests of the academic community occur on-campus.

E-Board report 138 reads:

The University of Idaho does not sanction, condone or remain indifferent to any act or conduct which impairs the pursuit or dissemination of knowledge and which may be judged to have a deleterious effect upon the academic community. The illegal use or abuse of hallucinogenic, stimulant, or mind changing drugs may have such an effect. Therefore, the University of Idaho does publicly pronounce that efforts will be made to inform students relative to physiological, psychological, and legal aspects of drug use.

The University recognizes its responsibilities on the campus and will refer alleged violations to the proper non-University authorities.

The authorities must conduct any and all searches in accordance with state and federal laws.

The University views the possession of drugs and the use of drugs as a counseling rather than a disciplinary problem.

At last week's Campus Affairs meeting there was discussion among the Committee as to whether the Regents would accept report 138, which they supposedly never saw, according to Decker.

"Let's bear in mind that the Regents will have the final say, and let's make a statement they will accept," Dr. Arthur Gittens, entomology, said last week.

A motion to accept the Student Bill of Rights passed last week, and the Bill of Rights will be discussed today.

Other business on the agenda is the parking facilities problem. George Gagon, physical plant director, has been invited to the meeting.

Cecil Hathaway, English, reported last week that Gagon told him that he has a firm investigating parking facilities and possible policies, but refused to let the plans be published in the Arg. because they are only tentative.

It was felt by Campus Affairs that by inviting him to today's meeting the Committee would gain better understanding as to what these plans are. It was also suggested by Campus Affairs that someone from the architecture department and President's office also be invited to discuss this problem.

College Queen Contest Is 'Rewarding Opportunity'

"University co-eds don't realize how terribly easy it is for them to participate and final for Idaho College Queen title. All interested girls with activities around a 3.0 accumulative and that are "up" on community, campus and national events should really try for one of the most rewarding opportunities offered the American College Girl," stated Cathy Connor, Idaho's past College Queen.

The National College Queen Contest is now underway and entry blanks are available for this year's co-eds to try for the state and then national title.

"Last year the girls spent 10 days in New York, seeing the city by tours in their own small groups. The meeting of girls from all over the nation and making endearing friendships was one of my most memorable experiences. The state winners come from a variety of small colleges to large universities and are diverse in their interests from the serious intellectuals to the bubbly cheerleaders.

"This year the contest will be held in New York, Washington D.C. and West Palm Beach, Florida with the contestants flying to all three cities and touring each. All the contestants need to do is to fill out entry form blanks which they can obtain from me and they're almost there," continued Cathy.

Cathy also mentioned that each girl will have a suite mate and live "in style" at the Waldorf Astoria in New York, then four days later spend a day in Washington having lunch at the Capital and be honored guests at some official receptions. The 50 state finalists will then again board their jet plane and spend the final seven days in Palm Beach at an ocean beach hotel. Concluding the trip will be a live coast to coast TV special which will originate from Florida featuring the 50 contestants.

"One point that the girls may not understand is that this is not a 'bathing beauty contest,' again board their jet plane and spend the final seven days in Palm Beach at an ocean beach hotel. Concluding the trip will be a live coast to coast TV special which will originate from Florida featuring the 50 contestants.

Catherine Mary Connor

The contestants are never judged in swim suits nor are they asked to perform as in a talent contest with tap dancing, or dramatic recitations. We participated in forums which tested our intelligence, general knowledge and gave hints to our personalities. The judges conducted the forums in open discussion—town meeting style—and we as contestants gave our opinions on a wide range of topics," added Cathy.

All the people involved in the National contest impressed Cathy as very much interested in the college coed, her goals, and achievements. The judges for the various competitions are all professional people. In recent years Ambassador Franklin H. Williams of the United Nations, Mr. McCormick, editor of Doubleday & Co., and Mrs. Lenore Hershey, editor of McCall's Magazine,

ACLU Opposes Drug Policy

An emergency meeting of the Moscow chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union was held at 4 p.m. Thursday in the SUB. The purpose of the meeting was to consider possible threats to the civil liberties of students posed by the pending University legislation on drug abuse, according to Dr. E. Malcolm Hause, the chapter president.

After a lengthy discussion as to what the position of the ACLU should be in this matter, a committee was formed to draft a resolution opposing sections of both drug statements currently under consideration by Campus Affairs which may violate the civil liberties of students, and to offer legal aid to any student prosecuted under these sections if they become university policy.

This resolution is to be delivered to the Committee on Campus Affairs at their 4 p.m. meeting this afternoon.

Many of the members present expressed concern that the University of Idaho was attempting only to duplicate existing civil laws at both the state and federal level. Dr. Richard Osborne felt that "although a university does require some internal regulations not provided for by civil law, university authority should never be used to duplicate civil authority."

John Sullivan added that "the drug situation on this campus has been blown way out of proportion. Existing civil laws adequately handle whatever problems there are on the campus, as demonstrated last fall when two students out of 6000 were processed by the court for drug law violation. The University shouldn't take an alarmist position."

Hause concurred, stating that "the agency, be it federal or state, that makes the law should be trusted to enforce the law in its particular realm. Let the state of Idaho enforce existing drug laws; let the University of Idaho accept the judgment of the courts in good faith."

Pom Pon Girls Tryouts To Be Held April 14th

Tryouts for Pom Pon squad will be held the week following spring break, April 4, at 7 p.m. in the SUB. Prior to actual tryouts an orientation session and two practice sessions will be held in order that all girls trying out may learn the Vandal fight song routine.

It is important that all three sessions be attended and imperative that all girls interested in trying out attend the first session which will be March 19th at 6:30 p.m., at the SUB. If it is not possible to attend the first meeting or if there are any questions Candy Barnett should be contacted at Kappa Alpha Theta house, 5591. The other two sessions will be March 21 and April 2 in the SUB. The room will be posted.

All girls must have a 2.2 grade point to try out and this must be maintained to remain on the squad. Several judges will grade each girl on personality, enthusiasm and ability. The fight song routine will be performed in groups. Following an individual interview, each girl will perform a routine which she has composed herself. Six regulars and four alternates will be chosen with the yell queen being selected from the regulars of the last year's squad. All girls trying out have an equal opportunity to be elected. Prior membership on the squad does not necessarily assure a position on this year's squad. The most competent and able girls will be selected with enthusiasm and willingness to cooperate important qualities.

The Pom Pon squad represents the University not only at home games but travels to many of the away games. During the past football season the squad traveled to Boise for the ISU game; to U of Montana at Missoula; to the U of Oregon at Eugene; and to WSU at Pullman. Besides attending the away basketball games at Washington State University and Gonzaga University, the Pom Pon girls flew to the ISU game at Twin Falls and also flew to Ogden for the two Weber state basketball games and ISU game at Pocatello.

Sports events are not the only times the Pom Pon girls perform. They performed for rush, the FPAC kick-off banquet, Activities Council Orientation, and for cheerleading clinics.

Company members receive a salary and room and board.

Says Moe, "This is the fourth year for repertory summer theatre in Coeur d'Alene."

Journalism Conference Hosts 500 Students

The Idaho High School Journalism Conference for high school journalism students will be held April 5 and 6. The program of workshops, conferences, and awards will be open to any student attending a high school in Idaho.

Presently 52 high school newspapers have been entered in the competition for best newspaper in the state. Awards will be presented to the best girl editor, feature article, sports story, editorial and news writing. Newspapers will be rated according to their high school population.

During the two-day event, speakers from around the state will be featured. Among them will be Perry Swisher, associate editor of the Intermountain Observer and Lyle A. Young, secretary of the Idaho News Advertising Association. Honored speaker will be Oren Campbell, editor of the Idaho Free Press in Nampa. The speakers will entertain banquets, workshops and conferences.

Students will be arriving on campus Thursday, April 4, as registration will begin that day at 4 p.m. Registration will continue Friday morning. The Conference will continue throughout Friday and all day Saturday.

Last year over 500 Idaho high school students attended this conference with over 50 school newspapers being represented.

Applications for the Blue Key Talent Show may be picked up at the SUB Information Desk and must be returned by March 22.

Dear Jason

Willms Tells John To "Grow Up"

Dear Jason,
This letter is primarily for name calling purposes. Today's "cowardly" attack (legal according to the Politicians Code of Ethics, Article 67, Section 12, Clause 5, Sub-clause 97, paragraph 2, sentence 1, and Dixon vs. Alabama) of mud-slinging, Argonauting, and Wiping is directed at one John Orwick, Upper Slobovia, Idaho.

I speak as one of those dirty, law-abiding, conformists who has a ring in his nose (among other things) firmly attached to a chain from the local CIA office with an extension running to the Miami chapter of the KKK. Furthermore, my rubber stamp is bigger than anyone else's, because I wanted mine to have all those nasty civil laws on it.

Well, getting back to the purpose of this letter, name calling, let's talk about John Orwick. John called the Committee on Campus Affairs cowards. John called deans Decker and Martin liars. John called President Hartung a hypocrite. John called the Regents intimidators. John called faculty members cynics. John called . . .

Let's go back to the first name — coward. John Orwick, you are the coward. You are the coward because you refuse to face the fact that people in this old world have to get along with each other; that if they can't get along with each other they damn well better have solid logic in their arguments; that if they don't have solid logic in their arguments, they had better have a powerful organization behind them; that if they don't have a powerful organization behind them, they had better have the masses behind them; and that if they don't have any of these they had better be a hermit.

In the words of one of your cohorts, Chris L. Smith, "grow up," John.

As ever,
Jim Willms
E-Board member
P.S. If you don't, I'm going to buy a "John Orwick, you go to hell!" stamp. I realize that you don't believe in such rubbish, but even you might be surprised at the power of D.H.L.

(Editor's Note: "The Argonaut" also disagrees with John Orwick's column as should be obvious from last issue's Fleece. "The Argonaut" would also like to disagree with Orwick's dubious achievement award to Dr. Hartung for supposedly attempting to censor his column. Jason had two conversations with the President over the columns of Yankee and Orwick. Dr. Hartung was concerned that Orwick's and Yankee's opinions seemed to be the opinion of the "Argonaut". Dr. Hartung said that he had received pressure to give the "Argonaut" an advisor with censorship powers. The Argonaut agreed to write an editorial clarifying the position of the Argonaut toward Argonaut Columnists. Such an editorial was published. Dr. Hartung accepted Jason's policy of allowing the columnists as much freedom as possible. Jason feels that Dr. Hartung has been more than fair to the Argonaut, and certainly has taken his share of criticism for Argonaut policies. R.W.A.)

Writer Supports Peace Corps

Dear Jason,
Is the Peace Corps fulfilling its mission—that of giving service to various peoples of the world and of promoting better understanding between those peoples and our own? A recent letter from Miss Joy Vergara, an elementary school teacher in a small Filipino town, might be in point. She said:

"Today in many countries, cities, towns, barrios and elsewhere are countless Peace Corps (Volunteers) . . . in different fields of work, who make use of their knowledge and capacities to the maximum—they are loving enough, competent enough and concerned enough to guide, to teach, to inspire, and to challenge us to reach great heights in the country's progress; most of all, they help in promoting the real meaning of international brotherhood. . . . we wish we could have more and more Peace Corps (Volunteers) in the Philippines."

There are thousands of Joy Vergaras in the world who have had personal contacts with Peace Corps Volunteers. But there are many thousands more who are waiting for people like you, who are willing to give of themselves. Representatives are now at the SUB to discuss with you the Peace Corps and its activities. Do YOU care enough? Jim Fields Shoup Hall (Returned Peace Corps Volunteer)

The India Students Association will present the movie "The Householder" in order to raise funds for FPAC, Sunday, March 17, rather than Saturday, as stated in the last Arg.

Idaho Given Grant of $416,000, Women's Gym To Be Built Soon

The University of Idaho has been given the green light to proceed on a new Women's Health-Education Building, according to a message received today from the office of Senator Frank Church in Washington, D.C.

The message said that the U.S. Office of Education has approved a grant of $416,000 for the building, and that a call for bids has been authorized on the structure estimated to cost about $1,250,000. The state's share of the funds for the building was voted at the last session of the State Legislature.

Calling the project, "the biggest breakthrough in Health Education at the University of Idaho in 50 years," Dr. Leon Green, head of the department of physical education, said his division "will be competitive with the new building."

"We will be able to seek top graduate students and begin more programs in research at the professional level," said Dr. Green. According to Mable Locke, head of women's physical education, the new building will offer three times more teaching area than what the existing building does.

It will greatly expand our program and will be a drawing card in attracting more students to our professional program in health education. It will also expand our intramural program and will allow for better recreational facilities," said Professor Locke.

The new plant will offer five activity areas including a large multipurpose gymnasium, a smaller gymnasium, gymnastics room, dance studio, and squash court. It will have two classrooms and a kinesiology laboratory plus conference, first-aid, and reading for physical and health education majors.

Arg Thanked For Editorial

Dear Sir:
Thank you for your timely editorial "Automated Registration" in the March 12 "Argonaut." The Registrar's office has been studying the problem for some time and, more recently, a Faculty Council Committee and an ASUI Committee have been organized to recommend improvements in Matriculation, Counseling and Registration.

A questionnaire has been prepared and will be circulated by the ASUI, probably on Monday, March 18. It is hoped, that with the help of the "Argonaut" editorial, the Student body will recognize the importance of this survey and respond accordingly. The questionnaire must, by necessity, be short. Therefore, we request that persons having additional suggestions should contact any member of the ASUI or Faculty Council Committees: Steve McGuire, Beta Theta Pi, (Ch.) Don Nicholson, Lambda Chi Alpha Debbie Wright, Kappa Alpha Theta Jerry Woolf, Phi Gamma Delta R.W. Jones, Geology-Geography (Ch.) T.O. Bell, Education J.L. McMullen, Botany S.A. Very truly yours,

Steve McGuire, Beta Theta Pi

Five Girls To Represent Idaho At IAWS Convention in California

Five girls from the U of I will attend the Region 1 Associated Women's Student Convention at the University of California at Davis from Saturday, March 16 to Friday, March 22.

Carol Bennett, Gamma Phi; Sally Harris, Campbell; Donna Stevens, Kappa Alpha Theta; Phyllis Unzicker, Alpha Theta; and Bev Bosshardt, Gamma Phi will fly to the meeting.

Bev Bosshardt was chosen the IAWS contact last Thursday from a group of other contestants. The goals of this year's convention is to explore attitudes toward trust, anger, sex and men. Discussions will cover how the girls perceive these subjects, how this perception is related to their behavior and how this behavior determines what they become.

Issues of importance for the organizational business of IAWS will also be discussed.

A variety of workshops will include ceramics, finger-painting, rhythmic exercise, judo and swimming. Campus tours will preview points of interest such as the Memorial Union Art Gallery and the Primate Center.

The convention begins March 17 with registration at 2 p.m. In the evening the philosophy behind the convention and a general community meeting will be held.

The next day will be filled with standing committee meetings and a two and a half hour program in the afternoon. Another program is scheduled Monday night.

Tuesday recreation and workshops will be in the afternoon. The program in the evening is on college environment and total community.

Wednesday there will be a summary of the convention's discussions and activities. The next morning marks the end of the convention with a community meeting.

Steve Sunderland, from the National Training Laboratories branch of the National Education Association from Washington, D.C., is coordinating the convention.

Upham Apologizes For Leonnig

To the Women of Houston Hall: Unfortunately, in Upham Hall, there is an individual whose mouth sometimes outruns his brain. This was probably made very evident to you on the evening of March 6, when Doug Leonnig appeared in your hall under the guise of officialdom. We, the men of Upham Hall, sincerely regret this little door-slaming name-calling incident, and hope that you will accept this public apology for him.

Although we have reprimanded him for his actions, we cannot say that this type of thing may not happen again, because, unfortunately, we cannot oversee his actions at all times. We can, however, say that his actions are not sanctioned by us, and you should accept his personal comments for what they are—his.

Drive one of these dressed-up Chevrolets instead of a stripped-down something else.

'68 CHEVROLET prices start lower than any other full-size models. Look at it. Chevrolet's 4-door sedan is roomier than any other American car except one luxury sedan. Drive it. You tell by its smooth and silent ride that Chevrolet quality runs deep. Buy it! Get a Chevrolet instead of a medium-priced name and you can have, say, power steering, power brakes and a radio besides!

'68 CHEVELLE prices start lower than any other mid-size models. Obviously nothing's newer in mid-size cars than Chevelle. There's fresh styling, the long-hood, short-deck look. There are two nimble-footed wheelbases now—both on a wider, steadier tread. You get big-car power, big-car ride in a quick-size package. No wonder Chevelle outsells everything in its field.

'68 CHEVY II NOVA prices start lower than any other economy car so generously sized. Nova is big enough for a family on vacation, yet it slips into parking spaces others pass by. With its new wide stance and computer-tuned chassis, Nova rides as silent and steady as cars costing a lot more, and it comes with the biggest standard V8 in its field. Nova's the not-too-small car.

Meldrum Reads Conference

Barbara Meldrum, associate professor of English, is reading her paper today at the Pacific Northwest Renaissance Conference in Edmonton, Alberta. The conference is being held on the campus of the University of Alberta.

Meldrum's paper, "George Chapman and Henry Adams: A Comparative Approach," shows two authors writing at transitional periods focused on similar themes and arrived at similar conclusions, even though their starting points were radically different.

Chapman, a Renaissance humanist facing Jacobean skepticism, assumed an ultimate order in the universe and wrote about the politics of monarchies. Adams, an eighteenth century statesman facing late nineteenth century political systems and corruption, assumed an ultimate disorder (chaos) in the universe and wrote about the politics of a republican democratic system. Nonetheless, both writers concluded that "optimism" can apply only to the individual; "pessimism" prevails for the broader scope of society.

Dr. Meldrum's study reveals that universal statements about man and his society can be achieved even though the underlying assumptions may differ; the study of the Renaissance can yield truths just as applicable today as they were centuries ago. Also, her study points out one valid area for an American Studies approach, in probing the parallels between English and American literature.

RUTH CURRIER

Dance Symposium Opens With Artist Ruth Currier

The Northwest Dance Symposium at the University of Idaho will open today with New York dancer-choreographer Ruth Currier, guest artist, participating.

Sponsored by the Department of Women's Physical Education, Miss Currier debuted on the Moscow campus yesterday where she performed Samuel Barber's "Summer Music" with the Northwest Woodwind Quintet and the choreography of Lucy Melver, assistant professor of women's physical education, in support of her role.

The dance symposium is scheduled for Friday and Saturday at the following times—March 15, 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., registration (Women's Gym); 2:30 to 4 p.m., Master Class (Miss Currier); 4 to 5 p.m., refreshments; 7 to 9 p.m., College Presentations (University Auditorium).

Saturday, March 16, 11 a.m. to 12:30 noon, Master Class (Miss Currier); 1:30 to 4 p.m., Folk Dance (University of Oregon); 5:30 to 7 p.m., banquet (Student Union Building); 8 p.m., solo concert by Ruth Currier.

According to the Washington Post, "Ruth Currier is a radiant, quicksilver creature on stage, with a delicate femininity made more interesting by the strength that resides within it."

Opinions On Registration Subject Of Student Poll

Three thousand questionnaires will be circulated on the campus Monday, March 18 by the Opinion Poll Committee as they seek the students' opinions on the registration, counseling and matriculation process at the University.

The Administration has been studying the possibility of computer registration and recently committees to study the program have been set up by Faculty Council and Executive Board.

Robert Jones, chairman of the Faculty Council Committee, expressed the hope that the students would take the poll seriously and answer correctly and immediately.

A date was not announced for publication of the results.

Lewis Says Location Of Freeways Discriminate

Freeway locations should be made without discrimination toward wealthy or poor communities, a Spokane banker and city councilman told Washington State University's 19th annual north-west Road Builders' Clinic here Wednesday. The event was co-sponsored by the University of Idaho Civil Engineering Department.

Robert H. Lewis, vice president of the Lincoln First Federal Savings and Loan, told more than 150 highway technicians "let's put the freeways where they should be. If the wealthy community must be moved—then move it."

Lewis told the state, city and county highway engineers "military problems in the Far East have obscured one of the most significant battles at home. It's the battle to protect Negro and poor white communities against one of the most powerful lobbies in the nation—the freeway lobby."

He said Alan S. Boyd, Secretary of Transportation, "has done much to arouse the lobby's wrath in maintaining that freeways are not the sole solution of the transportation problem. Mass transit, subways, high-speed trains, even monorails, must be considered."

"For instance, Secretary Boyd held up the North-Central freeway in Washington, D.C., because it was shifted over from a high-bracket residential community to a low-bracket area."

Lewis said "we should make a determined effort to put freeways where the traffic wants it to go. We are going to have to find a better way to do it than say we are going to take the property of poor people and let everybody else alone."

Lewis was one of three speakers addressing the opening afternoon session of the clinic. Others included Orland Mayer, Boise, chairman of the Idaho Board of Engineering Examiners, and Douglas Jonas, representing the city of Seattle engineering department.

Mayer said the shortage of engineers in highway engineering "has been augmented by the emersion of new and perhaps more sophisticated and glamorous fields such as those in the fields of space travel, atomic and nuclear developments and others."

He said part of the shortage was due to lack of leadership by engineers at the local level in "bridging the gap between the students on one hand and the engineering organizations having material on the other."

Keithly Chosen Sig Sweetheart

Carolyn Keithly, Alpha Phi, was crowned the new Sweetheart of Sigma Chi last weekend in

CAROLYN KEITHLY Spokane at the annual Sweetheart

Ball. The other four finalists in attendance were Cathie Morgan, DG; Susan Goplerud, Kappa; Jeanne Ganguet, Pi Phi; and Christy Elguren, Gamma Phi.

The ball was held at The Spokane Club and began with a banquet featuring prime rib, baked potatoes, and cocktail. The dance was held in the banquet room with music furnished by the Scott Reed group. Couples were dressed in formal attire, the girls wearing predominately long formals and the Sigma Chi's, tuxedos.

The crowning took place approximately at 10:30, Carolyn taking the duties of Sweetheart from Margie Franklin, Theta, last year's Sweetheart. Miss Keithly will act as a hostess for the chapter house attending dress dinners and all house functions.

Draft Rockefeller Movement Begins

An organizational meeting for college students and faculty interested in working for the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as the Republican candidate for President in 1968 will be held Tuesday, April 2nd at 8 p.m., in the SUB.

Plans for campus campaigning in the Choice '68 Presidential Preference Primary will be discussed and officers for a University of Idaho Draft Rockefeller Committee will be elected, according to Arlen DeMeyer, McConnell Hall.

"With the withdrawal of George Romney from the Presidential race, only three serious contenders remain for the Republican nomination: Ronald Reagan, Richard Nixon, and Nelson Rockefeller," according to DeMeyer.

"Rockefeller's 11 per cent write-in vote in New Hampshire, in light of his late entry into the primary, illustrates a strong foundation of support among Republicans. It will be the goal of the U of Idaho Draft Rockefeller Committee to build upon such a foundation and win the Choice '68 Republican Primary, sponsored by Time Magazine. College students must take an active part in party politics. McCarthy's surprising upset in New Hampshire shows what students can do. Republicans across the country have the opportunity to win the Presidency. We must not lose it by default to "acting" politicians or to old gray mares," DeMeyer said.

Draft Rockefeller Centers will be established in each living group and house. Tentative plans include a political rally and bon fire as well as advertising and voter identification campaigns. Choice '68 will be held on the U of Idaho campus April 24th. Rockefeller campus headquarters can be reached by calling 6240. Suggestions, ideas and volunteers are welcome.

It's about that time of the year for football rumors to start flying around about possible recruits and this year is no exception. The hottest piece of property floating around right now is quarterback Bill Etter from Lewis and Clark Normal Prep. Etter was tabbed as a high school All-American and set just about every football record feasible in Spokane high school football circles.

Where is Etter going? Well that is strictly a judgment play and it depends which side of the fence you are on. In Vandal country, the rumor goes that Etter has narrowed down his choice of a college to two—Idaho and Southern California. Etter, who maintains that passing is his bread and butter supposedly heard the word that YC is going to pass and I am sure that this has been impressed upon his mind.

Over by the Cougar's cage, the story reads quite a bit different. According to rumors over there, Etter has narrowed his college preference also down to two schools—Washington State and Oregon State. There supposedly has been no mention of a passing attack at Pullman, but Etter seems to be interested in pursuing Journalism and he has likely heard all kinds of boasts about WSU's Communications Department.

Which school will Etter pick? Well, take your choice. If you went down South, you would probably hear that Etter is under the wing of Alabama or Tennessee. In other words, it's easy to be prejudiced when you are only dealing with rumors. I would like to emphasize again that the preceding information is strictly rumors but that the unofficial sources are pretty sure of themselves just the same.

One thing for sure is that Montana football coach Jack Swarthout has one grizzer in the fold for sure. The person that I refer to is Tuufuli Uperesa (pronounced to-foo-lee oo-pu-ree-suh) — that's like a Frenchman trying to pronounce Buddy Fernandez's name down at the Alley after socializing with him for six hours.

Fernandez and Uperesa do have one thing in common and that is that they are from Hawaii — they are just about the same size too. Uperesa, a former All-State and All-America high school player at Aiea High School in Honolulu, stands 6-5 and tips the scales at 255. The native Hawaiian transferred to Montana during the winter quarter from Wenatchee Junior College and was an All-Washington junior college selection this year.

Swarthout also has some other tricks up his sleeve. It is rumored that he has 10 other JC boys corralled but there will be no definite mention of names until March 25.

As for Idaho, McNease got three JC boys in this semester, but he has been traveling constantly. Knowing YC he is not one to procrastinate and he is death against coming out short-handed. Also Ed Troxel has his influence monopolized down South and it's not because they named a street after him either.

Over at Washington State, new head coach Jim Sweeney supposedly drafted 10 JC transfers this semester and somebody might have got their toes stepped on in Montana State football circles. There is no doubt that Sweeney has the initiative to do anything. Last week at the WSU-Washington basketball game, he got up and led the student body in a cheer and they loved it. The question is—Will they love Sweeney at the end of next fall? Things look good right now for Sweeney having 10 transfers in and all, but Bert Clark recruited the same number, but none of them could make higher than third string. Of course Clark is not around anymore either.

If nothing else, recruiting does bring up some interesting gossip. Another good example is UCLA's Lucius Allen. One source states that North Idaho Junior College was Allen's second choice in narrowing down a place to display his basketball talents. It does sound feasible in a way. After all, Gus Johnston decided to serve a basketball hitch in Idaho and there is no saying that some high-caliber character might come along and decide to do the same thing.

Take for instance Elgin Baylor. Rumor has it that he took a bus to the University of Idaho, but found out when he got here that he wasn't good enough to cut the mustard. This I would almost have to term as merely conjecture. WSU's Gary Elliott seemed to have faced the same experience, but in his instance, there might be some truth that he was turned down because of lack of cage talent. I am sure that there is no doubt in anybody's mind right now after Elliott's efforts at Washington State.

Recruiting runs almost parallel to voting in reference to making decisions. Everyone tells you who they are going to vote for before the election, but you never know what lever they pull once they step behind that curtain.

Vandal Netters Stage Tourney

The Idaho netters continued to prime for their opening match with Oregon State at Corvallis by competing in an intra-squad tournament. Idaho will open its season on March 28.

There were many upsets in the tournament as many of the frosh managed to conquer the veterans in match play. Said Stephenson, "Our freshmen showed some of our veterans that they can play tennis too, and it looks as though we could have some depth this season."

Freshman Dale Walters from Meridian emerged as the tourney winner sweeping past five straight opponents. Walters opened with a victory over fellow freshman, Don Hamlin from Walla Walla, with a 6-0, 6-0 win.

Walters followed up with a 6-2, 8-6 victory over Jeff Williams, the Vandals' top singles winner last year. In his third match, Walters came up against his toughest opponent in Bob Brunn. Walters came on strong to sweep Brunn in two sets, 6-3, 6-2.

Spokane's Frank Newman was Walters' next victim falling 6-1, 6-4. Walters finished up the tournament with a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Jerome's Larry Hessler.

Finishing second was Meridian's Bob Brunn, also a freshman. In third place was veteran Jeff Williams followed by Boise's Doug Demey, a two-year letterman.

Freshman Don Hamlin from Walla Walla came in fifth followed by Frank Newman and Larry Hessler.

Idaho Linksmen On Road Today

The Idaho linksmen under golf coach Dick Snyder open their season today at Walla Walla with a triangular match against Whitman and Washington State. The match will be played at the Walla Walla Country Club.

Snyder has eight returning lettermen this year which include Bill Cook, senior from Twin Falls and Mike Carter, senior from Boise who are both two-year lettermen. Other lettermen include Skip Pierce, Alan Hall, Bill Snyder, Dick White, John Green and Dan Green.

The Vandals will have two five-man teams. On the first team will be freshman Mark Cooper from Boise, Gary Evans, another frosh along with Alan Hall and Mike Carter. Rounding out the first five is Lewiston's Skip Pierce, who was voted the Most Valuable Player last year as a sophomore.

On the second quintet will be Mike Eldengata and Greg Trail, both from Boise, along with Burley's Rick Speath and Bill Snyder from Twin Falls. Battling for the fifth position on this five-man team are Tom Howard and Dick White.

These two five-man teams were selected on the basis of a 36-hole qualifying tournament and for the first time this year freshmen will be allowed to participate in varsity competition.

Bill Cook, who is a two-year letterman, will not make the trip since he is not working out due to an injured shoulder.

There are about 30 participants out for the golf team this year which includes freshmen, but Snyder said today that he was not planning on having a frosh team. For the rest of the season, Snyder said that they would have a six-man team competing instead of dual teams.

In conference competition last year Skip Pierce led all Idaho golfers with a score of 237 which gave him eighth place individually in the Big Sky meet. Close behind him was Mike Carter with a 240 followed by Dick White with a 241. Idaho's Alan Hall shot a 250 in the conference meet last year.

Teamwise the Vandals finished fourth in the conference meet last year with a 968 score. The defending champ is Montana which had a 936. Others finishing in order were Gonzaga, 949; Idaho State, 963; Idaho 968; Weber State, 974; and Montana State with 994.

After their match today, Idaho will travel to Lewiston next weekend for the Banana Belt Tournament where there will be eight teams entered. Those entered include Idaho, Washington State, Eastern Washington, Montana, Whitman, Gonzaga, Whitworth, and Oregon.

Doubleheader Set This Afternoon

Today, the Idaho stickmen will make their 1968 debut in Lewiston as the Vandals have a doubleheader schedule with Lewis and Clark Normal. The Vandals, who are the defending Big Sky baseball champs, will strive for another successful season after compiling a 21-7-1 record last season.

John Smith is still undecided about some of his starters but he will have a good opportunity to see everyone in action since the Vandals will be playing five games in the Banana Belt Tournament next weekend.

As far as pitching is concerned, Smith has six hurlers that he can call on. Front runners right now are Skip Ivie and Pat Myers, but it is hard to tell who will get the starting nod in today's opener. Both are right-handers.

Two other right-handers that Smith could call on are Fred Horn, a junior transfer from Moses Lake and sophomore Craig Christensen from Shelly. Smith has two left-handers on the staff which include Weiser's Pat Daniels and junior college transfer Bob Eicher, a Michigan product.

Behind the plate Smith is undecided. The starting berth could go to Steve Engstrom, up from the freshman squad last year or Boise's Monte McDonald. Experience is lacking here since both are sophomores.

Rich Toney will be starting at first base. Toney hit .303 last year and had two home runs to his credit. He will be a likely mainstay on first.

Clyde Coon seems to have won the starting berth at second base.

Coon hit .313 last season and is very adept at the double play combination. Joining him in the double play combination at shortstop is Gary Nitta.

Holding down the third sack will be either Dave Ball or Ron Davis from Post Falls. Ball is a junior from Kendrick.

Looking at the outfield, John Thacker will likely be stationed in left field with Phil Reser holding down the centerfield spot. Reser hit .239 last season with four RBIs to his credit.

Rounding out the outfield in right will be Steve Doyle. Doyle is a good defensive ball player and Coach Smith hopes that Doyle can provide some runs for the Vandals with his bat.

Last year the Vandals hit .280 as a team holding the opponents to a meager .199 average. Pat Myers helped shut out opponents last year with a 2.25 ERA while striking out six.

Skip Ivie hurled 43 innings last year and had a respectable 2.09 ERA. Ivie managed to fan 25 batters in the process while walking only 18.

After today's doubleheader with LCN the Vandals will then prepare for the Banana Belt Tournament wars, having to play five games in three days with 10 teams entered in the tourney.

Brown To Open Defense of Title At WSU Indoor

Steve Brown, the NCAA high jump champ, will be the only national champion on hand tomorrow as the Vandal track team travels to Pullman for the Washington State Invitational Indoor meet. Field events start at 10 a.m.

Gerry Lindgren will not participate in the meet because he and two of his teammates, John Van Reenen and Jim Precht are in Detroit competing in the indoor NCAA championships.

"Brown will be the Vandals' big chance for a win but he will get stiff competition from Keith Dalluge of WSU. Dalluge has jumped 6-3 while Brown owns the meet record of 6-11 that he set last year with only two weeks of training. Brown's training time this year is also two weeks.

Nipp and Nick Mignone will throw Rod Bohman, former Vandal basketball player, will use up his last year of college eligibility with the track team this spring as he competes in the 70 yard high hurdles, broad jump and the triple jump. His brother Bob will be entered in the pole vault. Dwayne Turpin, a senior this year, will also compete in the pole vault.

Other Vandals making the trip and their events are: Jeff Gullory, 70 yd. dash and 300 yd. dash; John Messinger, 300 yd. dash; Bruce Swayne, 440 yd. run; and Ted Quirk and Joe Ross in the 1,000 yd. run along with Vern Deahl in the mile and a half.

Bruce Brotnov, holder of the Idaho school record will throw the javelin and Rich Smith, Dan this year is also two weeks.
