

Cast announced for 'Hedda Gabler'

By Brian Lobdell
Argonaut News Editor

Looking to another busy season, Idaho dramatics began rehearsals last night for its fall production, "Hedda Gabler," by Henrik Ibsen, which will be presented on campus Oct. 24, 25, and 26.

The cast for the play, which sports seven actors in Ibsen's closely woven masterpiece, was announced yesterday by the director, Forrest Sears, professor of dramatics.

Hedda Gabler is the story of a neurotic woman, and will feature Corrine Rowland, Tri Delt, in the role of Hedda.

Hedda's husband, George Tesman, will be played by John Naples, off campus; Judge Brack will be John Daley, off campus; and portraying Mrs. Elvstead will be Leslie Leek, Tri Delt.

Eilert Louvborg will be played by Nicholas Vlachos, Sigma Nu; Berta will be played by Rebecca Barnes, Ethel Steele; and Shelly Mitchell, Oleson, will portray Julia Tesman, the aunt.

Hedda Gabler was one of the first pieces of realism to be written, and has played on stages constantly after it first premiered in the 1890's.

Ibsen, a much admired 19th century playwright, has often been called "the father of realism" as he based many of his characters on life studies of people he knew.

Sears also announced the various crews for the production as follows:

Stage manager, Frank Yamamoto, off campus, and assistant stage manager, George Grant, Delt.

Greg Melton, Gault, will head the building crew, while other crew members are Carol Anselmo, Campbell; Chuck Bonney, Theta Chi; Cope Gale, off campus; Catherine Triguero, Tri Delt; Phil Schmidt, off campus; and Jim Cash, Lambda Chi.

Heading the light crew is Mike Sheehy, Tri Delt; with Sandra Corey, Oleson, and Peggy Michael on the crew.

Marilyn Dalby, Gamma Phi, will be in charge of props, while Janey Cooke, Hays, will head up the costume crew. Working with costumes will be Suzanne Hilliard, Alpha Gam; and Margaret Jorgenson.

Leslie Leek, Tri Delt, will be in charge of makeup; while Mike Clay, Willis Sweet; Marie Werenette, Pi Phi; and Jo Anna McGee, Delta Gamma, will work on publicity.

Library lectures now available

Specialized instruction in the use of library resources for graduate students and upper classmen is available to all classes desiring it. The lectures are being given in the Library by subject specialists, with emphasis placed upon techniques of bibliographic searching, said Associate Librarian R.J. Beck. Far from being stereotyped orientation talks, these presentations are geared to meet specific needs and may be adapted to emphasize any points which the instructor deems desirable.

Beck said it has been found that when this specialized type of instruction is followed by individual consultation with the subject librarian, the student is able to make the best possible use of the library resources. Instructors may make arrangements for these classes by contacting the appropriate subject librarian. At least a week's notice should be given to obviate scheduling conflicts.

University museum schedules art display

Although many students pass by the small brick building on the corner of Pine and Idaho every day, few realize the extent of culture which is usually to be found inside the small structure.

Some students aren't even aware of what the building is!

This building, better known at the University Museum, will become the showplace this year for a good many exhibits and displays.

Beginning September 24 forty drawings from the 19th and 20th centuries surveying the development of contemporary Western art will go on exhibit.

October 19 will see a display showing an exercise in the symmetrical and geometrical elements of design from North Carolina State University.

Sixty antique maps will be shown beginning November 16, while two new exhibits will be displayed in December.

Highlights in American painting will display 57 color reproductions, while a textile display will also be shown exhibiting textiles used in the homes of illustrious Americans between the Revolutionary and Civil Wars.

In January reproductions of art masterpieces will be shown in correct and incorrect framing situations.

Approximately six other displays are scheduled for second semester, including artifacts from Easter Island, Contemporary graphics, and world-wide examples of successful anonymous architecture.

All students of the University of Idaho who own and/or operate a vehicle on campus or in the city of Moscow are required to register their vehicle with the Campus Security Center (U. of I. Information Center) by midnight September 21. Failure to do so will be penalized by a $5 fine.

Registration cards are provided in each registration packet. Decals are issued to students at no cost.

Classes begin, the work starts and students scurry to the library to study. With those who are registering late for classes, the total enrollment for the University has climbed to over 6200, a new record for Idaho. This year's enrollment figures show increases in the junior and senior class, while the freshman class has shown little increase.

Executive Board information week begins Monday

The Executive Board of the Associated Students of the University of Idaho has proclaimed next week, September 23-27, officially as "E-Board Information Week."

"The purpose of this 'Information Week,' said Chuck Wardle, E-Board member, "is a sincere effort for better and more direct communications between Executive Board and the students."

During this week, members of the ASUI Executive Board will visit the various living groups on campus and provide the students with information about the accomplishments, functions and operations of their student government and the ASUI, Wardle said.

One of the key issues of last spring's ASUI election was the question of true representation of student opinion in Executive Board sessions, said Wardle. "Information Week" was then proposed by many interested students as the solution to the problem.

Applications open for Marshall scholarships

Those students interested in doing graduate study in a foreign country but lack the funds should take special interest in the "Marshall Scholarships" now open for application from the British Government. The "Marshall Scholarships" are the highest award it is possible for U.S. students of either sex to win to any British university.

The British Government offers 24 of these scholarships annually as thanks for Marshall Aid. Four awards are especially reserved for students from Western States.

The value of a "Marshall award" is about $4,500. This amount includes fares to and from Britain, tuition fees, book allowance, plus a living allowance each month. Under certain circumstances a marriage allowance is also payable.

The scholarship is applicable to any of the 46 universities in the United Kingdom. Every effort is made to place a scholar at the university of his first choice where this choice is in keeping with his proposed degree program. The award is made for two academic years and may be extended for a third year.

The scholarship is open to students of either sex who are citizens of the United States, but under 26 years of age on October 1, 1969. Students must be graduates of an accredited college or university in the United States.

The Selection Committee looks for applicants who have demonstrated high intellect and distinctive character through scholastic attainment and by other activities and achievements. Special attention will be given to candidates who exhibit an ability to combine high academic ability with the capacity to play an active part in the United Kingdom University life.

All those interested in applying for a Marshall Scholarship should contact Dean Charles Decker at the Office of Student Affairs. Completed applications to be received in 1969 should be at the Pacific Regional Committee by October 22, 1968. Semi-finalists will be interviewed during December 1968.

Get your application in well before the deadline of October 22 as a point in procedure may be missed. Candidates can be notified as to errors if the application is in early, but not if it's late.

The second part of the program for better communications between students and E-Board will be during "Gripe Week" at the beginning of December. At this time, students can question the Board members on new issues or complain about some of the work that has been accomplished.

"Information Week" enables each living group on campus to have an E-Board member as a guest to stimulate the students about campus government, Wardle said.

During the visitations, students will have an opportunity to question E-Board members about new ASUI policies and regulation changes and new developments in the campus community.

"We sincerely hope that we can generate a greater interest among the students so that they will come to our Tuesday night meetings and observe us working," Wardle said.

wildlife society meets tomorrow

Students who are interested in learning more about the Student Chapter of the American Wildlife Society are invited to attend the first regular fall meeting which will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m., room 331, in the Forestry Building.

The first meeting of the newly formed University of Idaho Student Chapter was held last spring to elect officers for the 1968-1969 school year and to submit the Chapter by-laws to the Parent Society.

Officers elected were V.W. Howard, president; Duane Asherin, vice-president; Gene Eastman, secretary, and Monte Barker, treasurer.

Dr. Hornocker gave a talk and slide presentation to the charter members which dealt with the Idaho Primitive Area Cougar. The Student Chapter plans on having speakers and film presentations for the coming year which will cover a wide variety of subjects.

Three Ecuadorian scholars are guest students at Idaho

Imagine the excitement — and nervousness — of going to school in a foreign country and living among students with different costumes and habits.

Imagine being an Ecuadorian citizen and coming to live among American students at the University of Idaho.

Three top Ecuadorian students are living such an experience here at the University of Idaho this year. Sponsored by the Idaho partners of Alliance for Progress, two girls and a boy have come to attend classes and live within the various living groups on campus.

L. C. Zabala is staying at Forney Hall and majoring in linguistics. She takes mostly English and other language classes. Majoring in sociology is Ana Maria Oquendo who is a guest of Campbell Hall. Living at the Kappa Sig house this year is Andres Salvador. His field of study is civil engineering.

These students are guests of their living groups which means they do not have to pay board and room. Their flight from Ecuador was also paid for courtesy of Braniff International.

All three students had to undergo rigorous competition to be allowed the chance to attend school in the U.S. Only 12 finalists were chosen from a national contest and from those 12 were screened the final three.

They have had an equivalent of 2 years college work. The two girls attended the Catholic university in Quito and the boy went to the Central University also in Quito.

These students and others like them from Mexico and South American countries are continuing their studies here under the program administered by the Institute of International Education. Most have received assistance in the form of scholarships from the school of their choice or from foundations or corporations interested in furthering good will and better understanding between the United States and its Latin American neighbors.

The institutions they are attending include leading colleges and universities from throughout the country. They arrive from Latin countries such as Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Ecuador, Peru and Mexico.

Retardation discussed by Danish visitor

The Director of the Danish National Service for the Mentally Retarded, Nils Eric Bank-Mikkelsen, will visit the University of Idaho campus today to conduct a seminar and address a noon luncheon, it was announced by Dr. Robert J. Currie, chairman of Special Education.

The noted Danish authority, who heads the mental retardation service for 22,000 persons, will conduct a seminar on foreign programs, address a luncheon hosted by University President Ernest W. Hartung, and then meet with Idaho Governor Don Samuelson in Boise to discuss programs for the mentally retarded.

According to Dr. Currie, "The major part of Bank-Mikkelsen's work with the Danish National Service has been in the area of public relations. His job has involved the creation of a general understanding among the Danish people of the fact that the mentally retarded, no matter what degree of handicap, have the same rights of citizenship as any of us, and to tell of the obligation to provide for special treatment.

Bank-Mikkelsen will also visit the State School and Hospital for the Mentally Retarded at Nampa and direct a meeting of the State Association for Mentally Retarded Children at Pocatello.

The noon luncheon at the University of Idaho is open to the public and reservations may be made by contacting the Special Education Department.

Women's Health Education

Now only foundations and activity in back of the administration building, the new Women's Education Building should be available by the 1969-70 school year. The building, which is pictured here is an artist's model, will cost just over 1 million dollars. It will include two gyms, a dance studio, squash courts and class rooms. The new facility is anticipated to bring many graduate students to the University in the field of women's health education.

Editorial Opinion

Letters To The Editor

So you didn't like what we said: You don't think the University is being run right. The Moscow merchants have separated you and your hard earned cash. Oh, the pain and agony of it all.

We can't get your money back, we can't operate the University as you would have it done, and we probably can't even print the news that you want printed. But cheer up.

Why don't you take out your frustrations on the Letter to the Editor. It probably won't solve any of your problems. But at least if you tell everybody about it, you might feel better.

The Idaho Argonaut operates on the assumption that the more student opinion we can print the better chance the student body will have of coming to a reasonable consensus on the issues that face students. One of the easiest, the most informal methods of communicating in a newspaper is the Letter to the Editor.

We encourage all students to use our Letters to the Editor columns to express their ideas, complaints and criticism. The student body at large can often explore issues through the letters to the editor that is impossible for the Argonaut staff to cover.

All letters must be signed by the writer, and the writer assumes full and total responsibility for everything said. Letters should not be more than 300 words in length. We will make an attempt to print all letters we receive, but in the event that numerous letters are received on any one subject, we reserve the right to print only representative samples of varying opinions. Letters should not contain any obscene, offending or libelous material, and no such letters will be printed.

These rules must be established in order to give every opinion a chance of being printed, and to show a balance of opinion within the paper.

We hope you will take advantage of this offer. It gives you a chance to express your opinions and have them weighed by the public against the opinions of others.

On The Year To Come

By ED WEISKOTTEN

The past academic year witnessed some sharp conflicts between students and university administrators on numerous campuses in the land. Our university was no exception. Since the forces that lead to such confrontations have by no means disappeared over the summer, I, for one, will be surprised if we do not see more of the same during this academic year. So I make bold to publicly display some thoughts and reflections of my own on the situation here at the University of Idaho.

For no particular reason, I'll focus first on faculty and administration. Some of these display two serious shortcomings. First, they forget that education, being the primary task of any university, is best accomplished when the whole university is a community of learning and teaching. Effective educators never let themselves forget that they have a good deal to learn from the students. Of course it's not an even 50-50 proposition. Generally the students learn far more from faculty than vice versa. Nevertheless, as we are reminded almost "ad nauseum," but somehow fail to take seriously, dialogue is much more effective for learning than monologue. And the students rightly sense this, however poorly they may be able to articulate it.

The second shortcoming is the tendency by too many faculty and administrators to try to play it safe, to avoid any public position on matters of controversy that might prove offensive to regents, legislators, the governor, alumni or citizens. Carried very far, this attitude may save the institution, but it will lose the university. Genuine teaching and learning cannot flourish in an atmosphere of conformity, fear, and "managed" truth. Yet to some degree this is the atmosphere that exists at our university. Students and faculty are too often advised not to publicly express their opinions and convictions on touchy issues.

Admittedly, the risks are real these days whenever someone takes an unpopular stand. Reprisals might be attempted against individuals or against the university. But if so, they will have to be honestly faced and fought when they occur. To capitulate without a struggle is to sacrifice all that is worthwhile in the university.

With the adopting of the new constitution governing the university, the faculty has an excellent opportunity to take responsibility for the university. If the educators have to engage in struggle with politicians or alumni or the citizenry to preserve the integrity and openness of education, I daresay most students would quickly side with them. If some educators are wondering how to turn student critics into student advocates, they might give some thought to this means!

That's the point to be kept in mind. The administration and faculty are not some nameless, disembodied nemesis. They are people who, in turn, have to deal with numerous other people, viewpoints, traditions, etc. Two things in particular, which are no one's fault, have affected the particular development of the University of Idaho: traditions relatively untouched by some of the rapid, dramatic changes in our society and a chronic lack of money.

The University of Idaho is supported by one of the least populous states. It is therefore not going to be in the forefront of higher education in America! There is not and there will not be under any conceivable circumstances adequate funds for greatly expanded departments, nor for the newest and most sophisticated facilities and equipment. This by no means implies there can be no improvement. There can and must be. But let us not get carried away by our expectations.

If students are impatient with some of the academic and administrative traditions, they'd better take a close look at some of their own! The endless round of partying, the high degree of social competition, the mindless activities of Freshman week, these and similar pursuits may well impede improved education more than any of the practices of teachers and administrators.

Students, too, can destroy the university. Indiscriminate attacks against everyone in the "establishment" are neither intelligent nor good tactics. Some educators are not only allies who want to improve the university, they have been working for better education when this student generation was still getting its kicks from cartoons on television.

A further danger is complete despair over the possibility of redeeming the university. There are students in the land who think universities are so captive to "the system" that nothing short of total revolution will accomplish anything. Their aim is not so much to reform the university as to destroy it. I think this is not an imminent danger at Idaho. But it is a danger worth keeping in mind for the purpose of avoiding it. As faculty and administrators can destroy the university, on the one hand, by undue fear of conflict, so students, on the other hand, can accomplish the same destruction by a naive under-evaluation of the dangers of excessive conflict.

What About The Military?

What are you going to do about that military obligation? You can't run or go to school forever, and signs don't indicate a rapid end to the Vietnam war.

You can always move to Canada or go to jail. Some are even avoiding the draft by being conscientious objectors, but most didn't have the foresight to be conscientious at the right time.

It is possible to be totally unaffected by the impending service and just be drafted to fill the quota for your own local draft board, but then again, it is possible to do something positive about the situation.

What can you do? I would recommend joining a Reserve Officer Training Corp unit while you are in school.

ROTC offers pay for the last two years in school and for some a grad school deferment. It also offers a way to use the years you spend in the armed forces to your advantage instead of just wasting them as an enlisted man working far below his college capabilities.

As an Army ROTC officer you will be commissioned a Second Lieutenant and will serve just two years active duty. The draftee will also serve two years on active duty but the pay and responsibility for the officer are not even comparable.

The starting salary for a lieutenant is four times that of a private and the living benefits are better too.

The Army isn't the only ROTC unit on campus, but its programs are closer to the two year draft program than either the Navy or the Air Force. Of course they have fine programs but if you want to get in and get it over with the Army is the place.

ROTC enrollment is lagging this semester, which I attribute to the pending election and the possibility of a foreign policy change afterwards, but this is doubtful with the men we have running for office.

It isn't the nicest thing in the world, but life as an enlisted man isn't so cool either. And it will give you a chance to use two more years of your life instead of just existing.

THE DARKER SIDE

by Joseph Tasby

Shocking but true, on the Idaho campus, football players are regarded as a little less than animals. At the registration dance these players were usually the wall-flowers because they've already been branded for the year. Where do you get on calling the athletes "jocks" anyway? A jock is something you wear around your crotch—for support. No athlete has ever been in that position. And something new has happened to Idaho football players, they're gentlemen. Check it out around the campus. And knock off the jock business. Call a spade a spade, huh?

Vandals out pass, run Montana; still lose

The Idaho Vandals out ran and out passed the Montana State Bobcats Saturday night at Great Falls, Mont., but couldn't get the breaks or the crucial plays and saw a 14-3 lead give way to a 17-14 defeat.

It was first game of the season for both teams and their head coaches. Vandal head coach Y C McNease was of course unhappy with the loss but could hardly complain as the Vandals outgained the Bobcats in total yardage with 509 yards to their 373.

Jerry Hendren tied his own single game pass receiving mark with 10 and gained 185 yards for a school record. Quarterback Steve Olson connected for 23 of 45 passes for 329 yards, another school record.

The Vandals dominated play so completely in the first half that Hendren had the yardage mark broken by the intermission. He had seven completions for 147. Jay Buhler set the old mark in 1963 with 133 yards.

Even though the Vandals moved the ball well in the first half they had managed only one touchdown by half time that came on a 36 yard pass play from Olson to Hendren.

With 1:04 remaining in the half Olson tossed to Hendren to cap an 84 yard drive that had taken them just eight plays. Dwight Bennett added the extra point with a kick and the Vandals led 7-0 at the half.

With several minutes gone in the third quarter Frank Kalfoss cut the lead to 7-3 with a 30 yard field goal. He had missed an earlier 43 yard attempt in the first half.

Five minutes later the Vandals added another touchdown when Jim Pearsall cracked over from the two yard line and another point when Bennett added another kick.

This drive, which covered 70 yards, also took eight plays as Olson completed passes of 10 and 23 yards to Jim Wickboldt. The 23 yarder put the ball on the Montana two and set up Pearsall's run.

The Bobcats managed their first touchdown of the night with three minutes to go in the third quarter. Montana's quarterback Dennis Erickson passed 15 yards to Bill Fieldstead and Kalfoss kicked the extra point. Fieldstead had also caught an 18 yard pass on the series and Ron Bain accounted for a 23 yard pass play in the drive which covered 80 yards in ten plays.

The Bobcats' final touchdown was set up by a pass interference call on Ken Dotson. Even with the ball on the Vandal one yard line it took Erickson two quarterback sneaks to make it over for the touchdown. Kalfoss kicked again for the extra point and the Bobcats had it 17-14.

Wickboldt almost broke free in the final seconds of the game but was finally downed on the Bobcat 15 and the Vandals were unable to run another play from there.

With three seconds showing on the scoreboard clock Olson threw the next pass out of bounds to stop the clock, but the gun sounded after the ball had been ruled incomplete and the game was over.

McNease went onto the field and talked to the referees about the gun sounding but his pleas didn't change things and the final play from the 15 was never run.

Montana State stopped Vandal drives on their own 32, 37, 20 and 15 yard lines but the Vandals made the wrong mistakes at the wrong time and their yardage was all burned up in the middle of the field.

The victory was Montana State's ninth straight Big Sky win and left the Vandals with a 7-6-1 lead in the series between the schools.

Jerry Hendren

Vandals set ten records in 17-14 loss to Montana State

Ten University of Idaho all time football records fell by the wayside last Saturday evening as the Vandals racked up 26 first downs, tossed passes for 329 yards and had 509 yards of total offense, but the U of I gridgers still dropped a 17-14 decision to defending Big Sky champ, Montana State University.

Coach Y C McNease felt that the players did an outstanding job and he stated that he was mighty proud of their performance. McNease further stated, "They did have some mistakes, and three mistakes cost us three touchdowns, however they will win some football games for Idaho this year."

The Vandals showed a brilliant passing attack with Steve Olson, a Lewiston sophomore, throwing 23 completions of 45 attempts for a .511 percentage. The Vandals also showed an efficient running attack which featured the "new" Rob Young. Young carried 15 times and averaged 6.3 yards per carry. Last season Young had a habit of picking out the biggest defender he could find and then try to run over him. Jim Pearsall of Orofino also ran well as he racked up 65 yards in 16 carries and sophomore Ron Davis carried six times for a total of 30 yards. Davis also impressed the fans with his punting with four punts for a 44.2 yard average.

Jerry Hendren continued to thrill the crowd with his pass catching. Hendren tied his own record of 10 completions in a game and set a new mark of 185 yards gained in a single game. Olson who did all the throwing set all time records of, 45-most attempts, 23-most completions, and 329-most yards passing. Olson also added team records in the same categories. Olson also erased the single mark for rushing and passing plays and set a new mark of 58. The Vandals also ran 95 plays, both passing and rushing for another mark.

This week the Vandals will be looking ahead to the WSU Cougars. The Vandals clash with their traditional rivals this Saturday at Albi Stadium in Spokane and this game should be another thriller. The Vandals, with one game under their belts, will face the Cougars who have not seen action yet but have many returning veterans plus a new head coach, whose team is heavily favored to win.

McNease expects his Vandals to give the Cougars all they can handle and his staff will be working hard all week in correcting their mistakes and smoothing out their offense.

The Real Truth about Army ROTC

- Enables you to serve your active time as an officer.
- Entails no obligation or contract during your freshman and sophomore years. You may take or drop the course each semester the same as any other college course.
- Pays you $50 per month during your third and fourth years of ROTC and additional for attendance at summer camp.
- Does not extend your military obligation or active duty time. You serve the same length of time you would serve, if drafted.
- Has two programs available—a 4-year program requiring attendance of ROTC classes during 4 academic years plus attendance at one 6-week summer camp and a 2-year program requiring attendance of ROTC classes during 2 academic years plus attendance at two 6-week summer camps.

NOTE: The 4-year program is recommended for all students, when possible, as the 2-year program is very competitive with priority for acceptance being given to those students such as junior college transfers who were unable to take the 4-year program.

6. Enrollment in 4-year program is open until 2 Oct.

The KLH Model Eleven-W

will fill your home with music... for a minimum investment in dollars and valuable living space.

The Eleven-W is a superb stereo phonograph system that delivers a level of performance far out of proportion to its moderate size and cost.

Everything needed for surprising sound is built into the unobtrusive Eleven-W. There's powerful solid-state circuitry, a custom-built Garrard record changer with a Pickering magnetic cartridge and diamond stylus, and a pair of KLH's remarkable miniature full-range speakers. Beautifully housed in three small oiled-walnut cabinets. With jacks for plugging in a tape recorder or radio.

If you'd like to take this kind of performance with you, just drop the "W" and look at the Model Eleven—the same system in a handsome vinyl luggage case, ready to travel wherever there's an AC outlet.

Come see and hear how to get a maximum of music from a minimum of visible equipment.

Why would Bic torment this dazzling beauty?

Why?
To introduce the most elegant pen on campus.

Expensive new Bic® Clic® for big spenders 49¢

Only Bic would dare to torment a beauty like this. Not the girl... the pen she's holding. It's the new luxury model Bic Clic... designed for scholarship athletes, lucky card players and other rich campus socialites who can afford the expensive 49-cent price.

But don't let those delicate good looks fool you. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, the elegant Bic Clic still wrote first time, every time.

Everything you want in a fine pen, you'll find in the new Bic Clic. It's retractable. Refillable. Comes in 8 barrel colors. And like all Bic pens, writes first time, every time...no matter what devilish abuse sadistic students devise for it.

Idahogovernment studiescomputers

State and local government officials in Idaho may improve their knowledge of current data processing operations through attendance at one of seven computer familiarization conferences held throughout Idaho in October and November.

Charles W. Rice, assistant professor of management and statistics at the University of Idaho and project director for the familiarization conferences said, "State and local government officials have become increasingly interested in improving their data processing operations in recent years."

Idaho's three major state educational institutions, under a grant from Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965, are sponsoring the two-day non-credit conferences.

The seven identical conferences will be held October 3-4 at the University of Idaho Student Union Building, Moscow; October 10-11 for Ada, Elmore and Boise counties at Boise State College Student Union Building; October 17-18 at Coeur d'Alene's North Shore Motel; October 24-25 for southwestern Idaho, held at Boise State College Student Union; October 31 and November 1 at Idaho State University Student Union Building, Pocatello; November 7-8 for Idaho Falls area, also at Idaho State University; November 14-15 at Twin Falls, Holiday Inn Motel.

Rice said more information is available from himself at the College of Business Administration, University of Idaho, Moscow; Fred Keller, Computer Center, Boise State College, or Rob Rounds, Computer Center, Idaho State University, Pocatello.

Idaho fish and game laws posted in men's living groups

Posters concerning the fish and game laws will be posted in all men's living groups, Dennis A. Burkholder, District Conservation Officer, announced.

The posters will read as follows: Fish and Game licenses of the proper NON-RESIDENT class must be purchased by students from other states before fishing or hunting in Idaho.

In order for any person to lawfully fish for any species of fish or to hunt any wild game or nongame animal or to carry an uncased shotgun or rifle in the fields or forests of the State of Idaho, a license of the proper type and class must first be procured.

Idaho law further provides that only bona fide residents over the age of 12 years, who have resided in Idaho for six months last preceding the application for a license, shall be entitled to purchase a resident fish or game license.

Written application is required for the purchase of a resident license. It is unlawful for the applicant to make any false statement as to length or place of residence in such application.

The purchase or possession of a license of the wrong class is unlawful.

Penalties for the violations of these provisions, which are requirements of the Idaho Code Sections 36-401, 36-404, 36-406 and 36-410, are fines in the amount of not less than $25.00 nor more than $300.00, or imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Six months presence within the state while attending school does not in itself qualify a person as a bona fide resident of the State of Idaho. The Attorney General of Idaho has ruled that a non-resident student retains residence status in the country or state from which he comes to Idaho. If there is any question regarding your resident status, do not hesitate to contact the nearest Idaho Fish and Game Department office or field representative for further information.

For further information concerning these game laws, Burkholder can be contacted at 524 E. Morton; telephone 882-2942 after 6 p.m. or at the sheriff's office.

A special key orientation meeting will be held for all juniors who did not attend the first meeting. It is imperative that all juniors who are eligible for keys, and who missed the first meeting attend this orientation meeting which will be on Thursday at 7:00 p.m. in the SUB. The room will be posted.

If there are any questions, contact AWS President Carol Bennet at the Gamma Phi house.

Young Idahoans for Frank Church will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the Ee-Da-Ho room in the SUB.

There will be an organizational meeting of the American Chemical Society Student Affiliate tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Physical Science 111. All members as well as other interested students are invited to attend to help plan the coming year's activities.

Game Room hours in the SUB Basement are as follows: Monday through Thursday, 1-5 p.m. and 6-11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, 1 p.m.-1 a.m. Sunday, 2-11 pm.

Ninotchkas Classic Dance Studio, Moscow Hotel Banquet Room each Wednesday, 2 to 6 p.m. Teacher of professionals $2.50 per class.

UNESCO representative on campus October 11

Charles N. St. John, Jr., program specialist for the Institute of International Studies, UNESCO, will be on campus Friday, October 11, to meet members of our faculty who may be interested in a period of international service in developing countries in Latin America, Africa, the Near East-South Asia and the Far East.

The need is for people with broad training in such fields as science, engineering, teacher training (including the training of elementary teachers and teachers in some of the traditional high school subjects), educational administration, educational planning and statistics, educational research, and adult education and literacy. There are also a few openings in agronomy, agricultural engineering, and home economics.

Those interested should call the president's office if an interview with Mr. St. John is desired, according to Walter Stefens, academic vice president.

Interviews will be held for positions on the staff of the 1969 Gem of the Mountains Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. The meeting will be in the Gem office on the third floor of the Student Union Building.

Theophilus helps update legislature

The formation of a bi-partisan statewide committee called Idahoans for Modernizing the State Legislature was announced today by Dr. D. R. Theophilus,

Idaho grad nominated as commission member

H. Rex Lee, Rigby, assistant administrator for the Agency of International Development and a 1963 graduate of the U of I is under Senate confirmation as a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

Lee, who also served as Governor of American Samoa, was urged Senate confirmation by Senator Frank Church who appeared before the Senate Commerce Committee in support of Lee's nomination. "I first came to know Lee personally when he was deputy commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs," Church told the committee. "In this post, as in all others he has held, he did an outstanding job. He has much to commend him, including the fact that he is a fellow Idahoan."

Lee also holds an honorary degree from the University. In 1966, he received the Distinguished Federal Civilian Service Award.

former President of the University of Idaho.

"The objective of the group," Theophilus said, "is to help update the legislature by working for the adoption of two amendments to the Idaho constitution, HJR 1 and SJR 9, which were passed by the last session of the legislature, would provide for annual session of the legislature and allow better pay for legislators."

"The committee is an answer to public demand for a modernized effective legislature," he said. We feel that legislative sessions every two years do not provide adequate time for the legislators to give proper consideration to the issues. Annual sessions would facilitate effective economical government."

Commenting on SJR 9, Theophilus stated, "We must take steps to establish adequate compensation for legislators."

Theophilus said that student involvement in the group would be very much encouraged. "Students should be very interested in this sort of thing. Students should be interested in the affairs of local and state government, and they can be very effective."

Theophilus, who lives in Moscow, is chairman of the group. Other members of the executive committee from Moscow are William Marineau, publisher of the Daily Idahoian, Mrs. Elma H. Grahn and Mrs. Clifford Dabler.
