

Jackson, Kent State one year after

Bullshit analysts and over-50 chroniclers of the times have looked with amazement upon this generation of ours for nearly ten years.

They saw a free speech movement sting the complacent university system and jolt it into the realities of the 20th century. They saw Beatlemania sweep the land and young people form a unique identity based on "narcotic music" and a free-wheeling, hang loose

They were taken back when we suddenly (it seemed) rejected their generalizations and openly and freely dissented against tyranny and oppression. They observed, frozen with fear, our antics at the hands of Hayden, Cleaver and Hoffman. We looked the 21st century squarely in the eye and called "bullshit" on the notion that this nation was created "with liberty and justice for all."

Burn baby, burn

So we burned baby burned, and we shouted "power to the people" and marched and sat-in and campaigned. We supported a little-known man named McCarthy or a well-known man named Kennedy, we went to Chicago and we gave "their" system one more chance.

And the system swallowed us. We became cannon fodder for a war machine so terrible and awesome it was unimaginable. We found our faces slapped and our ideal crushed.

And we continued the protest. Until 1970.

The President of the United States kissed our anger off and wrote us up as communists or effete snobs. The nation, masked under the guise of the "silent majority" laughed at us.

And then, with a volley of shots at Kent and Jackson State, they killed us.

The ordeal of 1970

And the ordeal of 1970 was upon our collective conscience. We questioned our purpose—our generational analyzation of life as "it was supposed to be."

For nearly one year we have been inside ourselves. We have covered our frustration in a cloak of despair.

Once again the analysts—the knee jerk motherfuckers who have spent the better part of the past ten years pretending they knew "where it was at"-were confounded. They girded themselves and their police forces and their complacent bastions of "democracy" for an onslaught from the young.

And we didn't respond. We waited. We watchedburned out from the trauma of three hard years of disgust and inarticulation. Fearful of fascist repression and fully cognizant that the fat cats really meant business we have gone underground in the aftermath of Kent and Jackson.

And it wasn't until a week and one-half ago that we came back out into the air.

In our unwashed and collective battle paraphernalia we once again challenged the system. Three-hundred thousand strong we met our government head on. For the most part, we are now confirmed and united in our struggle to nonviolently change the course of this

We have seen death

Since Kent and Jackson we have learned a lesson. We have seen death in our ranks. We witnessed overreaction and looked over the brink of total destruction. We learned we had the power to bring this country to its knees and we shrunk from the eventuality with the innocence and inability expected of us.

Tom Hayden estimates there are at least 13 million Americans between the ages of 13 and 30 who are committed to the "cause" that brought about the deaths of students at Kent and Jackson State.

Just a little more than a week ago it was estimated more than one million of them joined hands.

Pray for the dead

This week many millions more will stand up and bow their heads and pray for those murdered at Kent and Jackson and millions will pause and reflect on the causes and consequences of the action. We should all stop, at least momentarily, slow our pace and reflect on the kind of commitment we are willing to make to preserve some semblance of sanity in this world we

Four dead in Ohio

May 4, 1970.

Four students, not a lot unlike you and I, were killed on a grassy hill in Kent, Ohio...

Today, one year later and somewhere within the wake of those killings the unanswered questions that led to the tragedy still linger. The questions transcend the mere legalities of the question; that is, who was at fault. They bore into the very fibre of American life. They strike at the heart of our life style and they have caused many young, many black, yellow and red to violently reject a system which may or may not take, as tax due, the essence of life, or perhaps life itself.

The issue goes beyond the draft, racism, genocide, religiosity and hypocrisy. It bases its foundation on a total philosophical concept.

This generation of college student has protested the war in at least four massive demonstrations. We have closed our universities, burned our campuses, traumatized and radicalized millions of young people.

We have felt death and destruction in a foreign land and reacted with death and destruction at home.

We have stood by and watched helplessly as one President of the United States, our mothers and fathers, our teachers, our employers, our neighbors and our fellow students have debated, have justified and glorified a senseless war and wanton killing. With frustrating regularity we have watched our brothers and friends, our husbands and fathers conscripted and forced to kill — to kill nameless little people in a onceforgotten little country.

And we continue to protest. We continue to complain, to debate. And we will march on Washington again and again. We will see the looks of distrust on the faces of police, the expressions of horror and fear on the faces of young National Guardsmen and we will feel the pain and shock when Kent

How to talk dirty and influence people

A word appears in a page one editorial of today's Argonaut. It is sure to inspire a fair share of comment and controversy. Without a doubt we will be charged with being "dirty-mouthed" or "base" because of it.

You deserve an explanation of the context and intent.

Initially, it should be said that this word was not used for sensational value or in a flippant manner. Considerable thought and soul-searching went into the decision that the word should stay in the story.

Why? Simply because it accurately and concisely conveys the precise connotation intended.

The word is commonly used by many young people actively involved in social revolution simply because it offends because it assaults the sensitivities of many who do not understand the message. It is meant to point out a striking inconsistency in our moral fibre - how can human beings find a simple word, an inanimate object, offensive, and yet condone, even actively support, the most offensive action known to man — war.

If you are offended by our language — we are sorry. —

Baumgardner and Skrbek a case of mistaken identity

It's beginning to be a springtime tradition: the young teacher versus the administration with the students and faculty lined up on opposite sides of the fence.

Dr. Carl Baumgardner has recently made charges that he has been fired without provable cause. He claims that it is only a personality conflict and not a lack of ability which

Some U of I students look at these allegations of Dr. Baumgardner and see Tony Skrbek all over again. It was about this time last year that Skrbek was informed that he would not be rehired. A massive protest among the students followed the announcement—but to no avail.

Even a petition which carried the signatures of 1,700 students in favor of having the young teacher remain on campus was futile against the will of the Regents.

Many of those same students are still on campus. Now they look at Dr. Baumgardner and they see a man who reportedly relates well with his students. They see a fruitless attempt to stop the workings of well-oiled establishment machinery. They see a line of faculty members standing arm in arm against them. They see Tony Skrbek.

The point to make, however, is not that Dr. Baumgardner is Tony Skrbek or even that the two cases are the same, although they may be. The point is that students think the two are uncomfortably similar.

This is a time when young people are reflecting more and more on the life of a man named Jesus Christ, who was also persecuted by the establishment. Perhaps the university administrators, with their precious channels and red tape, should keep that fact in mind. Idealistic as the students may be, they will take what they consider suppression for only so long. - RUGG

"Would you like to sign a treaty to establish peace in Vietnam?" This question is being asked to many people at the U of I and all over the nation. It is amazing to see how many people will whip out their signatures without even bothering to read the People's Peace

The Treaty is sponsored by the National Student Association (NSA), which sent a delegation to Hanoi to negotiate the Treaty. According to Ron Eachus, a member of the delegation, the Treaty was drafted by the Hanoi government. NSA did not dispute any points of the Teaty

The Treaty is essentially a reiteration of the demands of the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong at the Paris peace talks. The first article of the Treaty states, "The Americans agree to total withdrawal from Vietnam, and publicly to set the date by which all U.S. military forces will be removed." However, no mention is made in the Treaty of a date by which the North Vietnamese forces will be removed from South Vietnam, Laos,

The second article states that as soon as the U.S. sets a date for withdrawal of U.S. forces, the Communists pledge to "enter discussions" on the release of Americans held prisoner. It is significant that the Treaty requires the Communists to "enter discussions" — not actually to release the prisoners. The Communists are still involved in similar "discussions" about many Americans captured during the Korean War, twenty years ago. The Treaty also states that the Communists will "enter discussions on the procedures to guarantee the safety of all withdrawing troops." Again, however, no concrete commitment from the Communists is required - only that they enter

The fifth article states, "The Americans pledge to end the imposition of

Thieu-Ky-Khiem on the people of South

Vietnam...' However, the South

Vietnamese Government is not "imposed," but was elected with a plurality of 34.8% of the votes. This election contrasts favorably with the ones in North Vietnam, where the Communist Party invariably receives 100% of the vote, due to the fact that it is the only party allowed to exist. Yet according to the Treaty, the U.S. is supposed to depose the South Vietnamese Government in favor of a "provisional coalition," presumably with the Communists. This coalition, according to the sixth article, is supposed to organize democratic elections without the presence of foreign troops. The Treaty thus provides no means of outside enforcement to ensure that the election is democratic, but relies on the good faith of the Communists. The Communists are old hands at using terror, fraud, and armed force to achieve their ends. The outcome of the election would

The speech I will not give

Last night in the SUB, while innocently drinking a cup of coffee, a strange man with long hair came up to the table and asked me if I'd like to give a speech at the Festival of Life which will be held this coming Sunday. I told him I didn't know if I would or not, but I'd try to come up with something. I came up with the speech below. I'm not going to give it at the Festival of Life because nobody will want to hear it. But I believe it should be heard.

Good afternoon. I'll try to keep this speech short, I have only a couple of things I want to say. We are gathered here today, one year after the Kent State and Jacksonville state massacres to celebrate life. But — while we are celebrating life we cannot forget our brothers and sisters who have died for Richard Nixon's sins.

Willie Ludlow, while he was here in Moscow, said that he felt the main reason that there has been little campus activism this year is that the students of America have been intimidated by the National Guard and the police forces which do the hatchet work of the politics of retribution

One thing that can be said in favor of the Communists is that they certainly do like to enter into discussions. On other matters, though, their record is not so favorable. So far, they have murdered about 31,000 South Vietnamese "collaborators," including 5,000 during the few days when they had control of the city of Hue. We can assume that only the failure of the Communists to achieve control is preventing similar atrocities elsewhere in Vietnam, since the perpetrators of the Hue massacre were applauded for the slaughter by Hanoi. A large-scale blood bath has been characteristic of Communist take-overs everywhere. It is significant that the Treaty calls only for "discussions" of the safety of "collaborators;" it does not actually guarantee their safety. The intentions of the Communists in Hanoi

The eighth article states, "The and assination played by the present administration. We know, by reading the news from Washington D.C. that at least some people are no longer intimidated, if in truth they ever were. There have been over nine thousand young people - of all races - arrested in the course of the last two weeks in our nation's capital, that shrine of democracy.

But — around here something different seems to be happening. During the last school year, the Coalition of Peace and Survival died. There is no longer any effective peace organization around Moscow, and as far as I can tell that goes for Pullman also.

Sacrifice

This shows two things. The Majority of the peace-seeking people don't want to sacrifice the time and trouble it takes to try to bring about peace and social change in America, and that there is no effective leadership left in the local peace movement. However, as I look at this crowd that is celebrating life, while Americans, Cambodians, Laotions, Latin Americans, North Vietnamese, South Vietnamese, African blacks, Israelis, Arabs of several nations, Pakistanese, Ceylonese, Irishmen and Hindus and Moslems, are dying in Southeast Asia, Central and South America, Ethopia and South Africa, the Middle East, India, Pakistan, the island of Ceylon, Northern Ireland, Canada, and here at home, I know I must be mistaken.

If you people are not willing to work for peace, it seems to me that the very least you could do is support those who do. I'm

In summary, the Treaty adds up to a U.S. propaganda; for example, "...we

The Treaty is thus nothing but a tool of the Communists, designed to aid them in their campaign of conquest and

You can spend a half an hour every once and a while demonstrating for something you believe in. You can write a letter to the editor of a newspaper. You can call the Army recruiter collect. You can even stop and rap to strange people on the streets about the war. All these are small things, but small things add up. If everyone who professed a belief in the peace movement three years ago had done them, I'm sure that we would not be in southeast Asia right now.

This goes for more than the war. We can help to bring about social change the same way. In other words, the fine points of protest are just as important as the big sensational points.

All of this depends on just how much you want to end the war and on just how much you want to change America. From what I've seem around this area nobody, myself included, wants anything very much, with the possible exception of wine, dope, and sex.

How long did it take to find five ex-GI's who expressed virtually the same ideas. How many of these five men took part in any community action, or Vietnamization. It seemed that these people based their idea that the Americans were hated by the reaction they got when they moved through a village with a rifle team. Don't waste your time—trash the Argonaut

Editor, the Argonaut:

To a conservative, it is always reassuring to note how the Left finds it necessary to lace their utterances with deceptions, distortions and falsehoods. Aside from demonstrating their characteristic lack of ethical consciousness, they moreover are telling us that the straight, unclouded truth does not serve their ends (as indeed it never does).

Last Friday's issue of the Argonaut had. as usual, several glaring examples of the type of slant and falsification of which I speak. In a front page, feature article designed to "find out what someone returned from the war thinks about the protestors, about war and the South Vietnamese," the Arg. handpicked five veterans to interview. Thus, in supposedly representing a crossection of vets, all five just happened to reflect strong anti-war sentiments. A non-biased survey, of course, would likely have yielded results opposite to those desired, and so was not allowed.

Bruce Leary's column on "The Peoples" Peace Treaty" was another masterpiece of deception. He at one point writes, "That YAF is representative of student viewpoints anywhere (that makes a lot of sense!) is questionable and its extremely low membership on the Idaho campus l hardly equate with popular support..." Again, it certainly would not serve Leary's interests to admit that U of I YAF has in fact over fifty-five (55) members and as such, is among the largest YAF chapter in the Northwest. Thus, he deliberately tells his readers what he personally knows to be untrue. One soon realizes that most of Leary's "facts" (eg. that 80% of the U of I students supported the lettuce boycott-remember that one?)

are pulled out of thin air. We should bear these things in mind in particular and the dig in general - or better yet, not waste our time in reading Sincerely,

If it hadn't been for the water, Idaho starts Pre-med program

A student-initiated program for students of pre-med and related medical sciences has been formed at the University of Idaho.

The program got its start when three pre-med students, Kim Culp, Ron Sestero, and Frank Michaels, decided that the University Health Center could be used as ground for experience for student in the medical sciences.

The program was passed through Faculty Council in December and went into effect second semester.

Applications are now available at the Student Health Center for any students interested in entering the program next fall. A meeting for all interested applicants will be held May 4 in the SUB, time and room to be announced.

Culp, Sestero and Michaels, along with coordinator Dr. William Fitzgerald, will attend a national convention of the American College Health Association April 28th through 30th in San Francisco. This association has devoted a portion of its agendum to presentation of student initiated and student oriented programs. The three are to present their program along with other student groups from across the nation.

Quotations misplaced Friday; Argonaut corrects mistakes in story about Idaho veterans

On the front page of the last issue of the Idaho Argonaut a story titled "Veterans say protestors reflect minority" contained several inaccuracies. The five men interviewed in the story were misquoted extensively because of a series of unfortunate occur-

The following is a correction which the Argonaut hopes will clear up the legitimate complaints resulting from the original report.

The first point of view was expressed by Derrick Ater, a freshman in drama.

"I don't think any army, volunteer, draftwise or other, should or need be maintained." he said.

Admitting opposition to the Vietnam war, Ater thinks the G.I. bill is a good deal. "I was fortunate to get out of the service and still retain G.I. monies. I spent two years and nine months in the service: 14 months in Vietnam, two months in the United States prison in Vietnam for refusing to do duty after awhile. I'm very much against the war."

No protest here Ater isn't sure if there will be any organized protest by veterans at Idaho because organizational procedures have been, he thinks, "hit and miss" the last couple of years.

"I think veterans are beginning to assimilate their life styles and assimilating the knowledge they have obtained through entrance in a war-type situation and bringing it back home, and that is a form of protest," Ater continued. "They live it. It's no longer a march or

'we are against... A second veteran, Dwight Schuh had his own ideas about the topic. Schuh, a senior majoring in English, was in Vietnam in "I don't think my being there has anything to do with my thinking we shouldn't be there, really," he said. "because when you're there your view is so absolutely limited."

Newspaper opinions

His opinion is based more on what he sees in the newspaper, Schuh said. "Now that I'm home what I feel is more based on my personal ethics than what I saw when I was over there."

The U.S. making such a permanent operation out of the war by building up different base camps is what turned Schuh off as far as being there goes. "I mean they talk about Vietnamization of the war but it's Americanization. I mean as far as I'm concerned they're not turning it over to the Vietnamese.

"I doubt seriously that they (the South Vietnamese) would fight as hard if the U.S. wasn't there," he continued. "The Vietnamese army from what I saw when I was there was insignificant. Now maybe, with Vietnamization, significant.'

Protestors are doing some good, according to Schuh, but to a certain extent they are ignored. "Maybe withdrawal can't be done any faster than it is being done but I think the active protests are doing some good."

Political animosity will bestir action,

Alan Steele, who ended up in Vietnam when his national guard unit was activated, is now a sophomore in business management at the university. "I was skeptical to begin with," he said.

"because I had never heard of a guard being sent to Vietnam in the first place, and I didn't feel that we were trained adequately to go into a Vietnam style war situation. Evidently some state official, higher up, figured we were."

There is no doubt in Steele's mind that the South Vietnamese people don't want the U.S. in the war. "The South Vietnamese government does. The South Vietnamese government is making a lot

'Another point which turned me against the war was the corruption," he continued. "The war wasn't corrupt until the U.S. moved in. Like, for instance, Saigon used to be one of the most beautiful cities in the orient. Now its population has gone up and it has slums, filth, dirt.'

To the bottom

Jon Norstog, a senior majoring in architecture, served on a Coast Guard Cutter but never went to Vietnam.

"After being on the ship for a couple of years. I decided that if they ever sent it to combat, I'd put it on the bottom," he said.

"I think they ought to get on the boat and leave today. They should have done that yesterday. They should have never gotten mixed up in it.

People who are against the war seem a lot more dedicated than the ones who are for it, according to Norstog.

"I don't think there are very many people who believe in fighting a day longer. There might be a few. This is a war that is killing the country. It's killing the government. People are getting turned off by everything the government does now," he continued.

Bruce Durdy, a sophomore in forestry management, thinks the veterans who demonstrated at Washington, D.C., this week had a legitimate protest.

"This should open a few old eyes in Congress," he said. "They should know that men, men who have actually been through it, demand that we get out. They should listen now."

The more intelligent people want the United States in Vietnam but the peasants don't, according to Durdy.

"We blow up their rice, their fields, their homes. I would say the more intelligent people want us there mainly because they're making one hell of a lot of money off us," he said.

'La Boheme' termed opera about 19th century hippies

"Puccini's 'La Boheme,' which opens tomorrow at the University of Idaho, might well be called an opera about hippies", remarked Charles Walton. assistant professor of music and director of Opera Workshop.

The opera, produced jointly by the School of Music and the drama department, will run Wednesday through Saturday, at the University Auditorium. The program will start at 8 p.m. each

The major characters in the story about young bohemians in the garretts and cafes of Paris are a poet, a musician, a seamstress, a painter and a philosopher.

Eager
Walton noted that he was particularly eager to hear the opera sung by young students rather than mature singers.

" 'La Boheme' is probably one of the most beautiful operas ever written,' Walton remarked when asked why the work had been chosen for production. He added that the opera has great dramatic potential making it appropriate for a joint production by the drama department and the School of Music. It will be sung in

The 7:30 p.m. game will be held under the lights at Adams Field in Clarkston. They open the season next September 11 with the Boise State Broncos in the first Idaho game in Moscow since the 1969 season.

Varsity-Alumni football in Clarkston

The defensive lineup head football coach Don Robbins sends into action this Saturday night for the Vandal varsityalumni team will be essentially the one that finished the season last year with only defensive ends Tim Reese and Jesse Craig lost to graduation from last year's team. The game will take place at 7:30 p.m. at Clarkston's Adams Field.

Back for the Vandals are defensive tackles Bill Cady and Mike Newell along with Steve Barker at nose guard. Barker is battling with Lloyd Grimsrud for a starting position.

Leading the battle this spring for the defensive end positions to replace Reese and Craig are two sophomores, Oscar Nelson from Wenatchee and Alan Vance from Boise. They will be joined this fall by Rick Simmons, who is pitching for John Smith's baseball team this spring, and possibly Tom Jarman, although the status of Jarman is still uncertain after he was sidelined last season with an injury. Simmons is almost a sure starter and Jarman, if he is healthy, would bolster the position.

The linebackers are headed by the two who led Idaho's "wild bunch" defense last cyear, Ron Linehan and junior Rand Marquess. Their action coming through the line on tackling missions paved the way for the Vandal's four wins last year.

Among these backing up this front seven on defense and giving the Vandals depth in the defensive platoon will be Tom Doud, a J.C. transfer from Walla Walla; Mark Busch, a junior from Genesee; sophomore Bill Martson from Moscow; Ralph Sletager, junior from Sandpoint; and Keith McCallum, a senior from Ennis, Montana,

The defensive secondary is also highlighted with returning lettermen including Kelly Courage, Kirby Cook, Bob Miller, Kurt Karlson and Pat Sprute. In addition they are backed up by some promising sophomores who should gain the veterans.

Courage and Cook are returning as cornerbacks and are being hard pressed by Tim Conlon for the two starting positions there. Conlon, like Rick Simmons, has been pitching for John Smith. Also vying for the cornerback position is Rodney Maynard, a J. C.

team came through with three convincing wins and a disappointing loss in games played Friday and Saturday against Boise. State College, the University of Montana, Southern Oregon College, and Whitworth.

The Vandals are now 7-0 in Big Sky action, with 44 straight victories over Sky opponents in the past five-and-a-half years. They are now getting ready for the Big Sky Tournament to be held in Boise

In defeating Boise's Broncos on Friday afternoon by a score of 7-2, the scoring went as follows: Tom Carter (I) d. Dan Owen, 6-0, 6-1; Steve Schulman (I) d. Dave Graham, 6-1, 6-2; Frans Hoogland (I) d. Jim Smith, 6-1, 6-2; Greg Strawn (BSC) d. Tom Leonard, 6-4, 10-8; Scott Atkinson (BSC) d. Jim Ferrell, 6-3, 6-3; and Don Hamlin (I) d. Randy Heidel, 6-3, Doubles action saw Idaho take all three matches as Carter-Schulman d. Smith-Strawn, 6-3, 6-3; Hamlin-Hoogland d. Dan Lester-Heidel, 6-0, 6-1; and Leonard-Ferriel d. Graham-Atkinson, 6-2, 6-3.

Later that afternoon, the Vandals continued their winning ways, defeating Montana by a score of 8-1. The scoring went: Carter d. Steve Green, 6-2, 6-2; Schulman d. Dirk Miller, 6-4, 6-2; Hoogland d. Don Harris, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1; Leonard d. Chris Green, 6-2, 6-0; Gary Isreal (M) d. Ferrell, 6-2, 6-3; and Hamlin d. Al Shiotsuka, 6-2, 6-3.

As in the Boise State match, Idaho defeated Montana three times in doubles action. Carter-Schulman d. Miller-S. Green, 6-1, 6-2; Hamlin-Hoogland d. C. Green- Isreal, 6-1, 6-2; and Leonard-Ferrell d. Harris Shiotsuka, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Saturday's action began with Southern Oregon College slipping past the Vandals by a score of 5-4. In singles action, Carter lost to Vern Loy, 7-5, 6-1; Schulman d. Jim Brochis, 8-6, 6-2; Hoogland d. George Gebhardt, 6-3, 6-2; Leonard lost to Jim Gail, 6-1, 6-2; Ferrell lost to Jim Brockley, 6-4, 7-5; and Hamlin d. Steve Craft,

In doubles action, it seemed as if Idaho fell completely apart as Carter Schulman lost to Loy-Gail, 6-3, 6-3; and Leonard-Ferrell lost to Gebhardt-Craft, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3. Hamlin and Hoogland won their match, defeating Brochis- Brockley 6-3, 6-4.

Winding up the weekend's tennis action. the Vandals defeated Whitworth by a score of 8-1. Carter started off the winning ways by defeating Butch Tomlison, 8-10, 9-7, 9-7. The match took three hours and 45 minutes.

In other play, Schulman d. Bruce

Fournier, 6-3, 6-4; Leonard d. Joe Dennison, 6-3, 6-3; Ferrell d. Scott Nelson, 6-3, 6-2; and Hamlin d. Ward Glvnn, 6-2, 6-0, Doubles action saw Ferrell-Leonard d. Nelson-Fournier, 6-3, 6-2; and Hoogland-Coach Jeff Williams, d. Dennison-Glunn, 6-4, 6-0. The other doubles match between Carter-Schulman and Tomlison-Grogan was defaulted by Idaho because of the lengthened match between Carter and Tomlinson.

Idaho's next matches come Friday at 3 p.m. against Oregon State and Saturday at 10 a.m. against Oregon. Both matches will be played on the Vandal home courts.

Vandals drop doubleheader to

The Vandal baseballers had a crucial doubleheader with Gonzaga Saturday and came out on the bad side as they dropped both games to the Zags. The Idaho losses, by scores of 3-1 and 5-0, gave Gonzaga a two game lead in the Northern Division of the Big Sky, a seemingly insurmountable Going into the twinbill, Idaho and Gonzaga were both 3-1 in the Sky with a split in Moscow and doubleheader wins over Montana by Idaho, and over Montana State, by Gonzaga. The team with the best record at the end of the regular season in the N.D. will face the winner of the Sothern Division either Boise State, Idaho State, Weber State or Northern Arizona. The winner of that playoff will go into the NCAA regional playoffs.

In order for the Vandals to take the North crown now they would have to win two games more this weekend against the Montana schools than Gonzaga. Saturday, Idaho will be at Bozeman for a doubleheader with Montana State and then will travel to Missoula to face Montana. The Zags reverse the process.

The game scheduled for Wednesday with Washington State has been moved up to today. That will be a single nine inning game at Baily Field in Pullman. Cougar coach Chuck Brayton requested that the game be moved up, probably because the Cougars have to face PAC-8 foes Southern California and UCLA this weekend and Brayton would like to have fresh pitchers.

The women's extramural sports department has sent teams to the road the past week with the Track and Field team at Spokane for a four-way meet and the softball team off to Cheney and Missoula.

The track meet last Friday was in Spokane with host Spokane Falls Community College, Eastern Washington and Washington State. Picking up a second place in the long jump was Karen Stunch with a jump of 6'1" and garnering a third in the high jump was Gail Herlist with a jump of 4'1".

The softball team went first to Eastern Washington and lost a close one to the Savages 7-6. From there they went to Missoula for games with Montana and Montana State. They were whalloped by Montana State 26-6 but salvaged some victory with a final 10-6 win over completion October 1, has not been completed because of weather restrictions. Specifications called for weather with highs at least 65 degrees and lows no lower than 45 degrees for at least a week, according to Ed Troxel, track coach. These are set so the rubberized surface can be layed on the asphalt.

The contract for the stadium specified a penalty clause to be invoked if the stadium was not finished on the original completion date. The athletic department has recommended that the clause be invoked and the recommendation has been sent to the Board of Regents, according to Athletic Director Ed Knecht.

Water under the track has caused "nominal winter damage", according to Knecht, but this should be correctable when the final running surface is completed. The damage amounts mostly to very minor buckling of the asphalt bottom surface.

The possibility of any track meets this year has been ruled out but it is hoped that with the track usable next year Idaho can have some meets at Moscow instead of traveling every weekend as the harriers are now forced to do. Additional use by the men's and women's intramural departments is also expected along with women's extramural use.

Needing every ounce of what coach Ed Troxel called, "our top effort of the year," the Vandals outscored B.S.C. for the second time in three meets. Troxel stated he felt the whole team had come a long way and added that he thought the win was due to great team effort. He pointed out the fact that seldom can a team win the 880, the mile, and the two-mile with three different individuals.

Times and distances for the meet were held down because of the heat, but Idaho managed to take 10 out of 17 first places.

Double winners were again Al Carlson in the discus and shot, and Jerry Collins in the 440-yd, dash and 440-yd, hurdles.

The remainder of those first place finishers were: Al Ramach in the 880-yd. run, Jim Ferguson in the mile, Jay Wheeler in the high hurdles, Bob Hamilton in the two-mile, Gary Tyler in the javelin, and the combined efforts of Ferguson, Collins, Cleve Moss and

Day of Shame

An assembly commemorating the memory of students killed at Jackson and Kent State a year ago will begin at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow on the Administration Building

Called a "Day of Shame for America," the event is being planned by Roy Holloway, a University of Idaho law student.

"Everyone was going around saying something should happen, so we're going to see what we can do," he said.

Bill Martin, Alan Rose, Tom Slayton and Holloway are attempting to line up some speakers for the occasion. The assembly is being staged by students and has no official university or ASUI support.

"A lot of people assumed that Issues and Forums (an ASUI committee) would do something," Holloway remarked. "but they decided not to."

A telegram was sent to Governor Cecil Andrus from the five state-supported schools requesting that flags be lowered on the campuses tomorrow.

"We're hoping that we can put together something that will make people stop and think. Too many people have died for them not to be remembered," Slayton said.

died for them not to be remembered," Slayton said.

"If people can't take the time to reflect on last May, they ought to grab a TV set and a six-pack and permanently lock themselves in their damned closet. It has a lot more merit than getting Sigma Chi written on your ass or racing sick turtles."

ASUI resolution
Earlier the ASUI passed a resolution declaring tomorrow a "Day of Shame in America". Following is Senate Resolution No. 2, submitted by Slayton, ASUI vice president, and passed April 20:

Calling to mind the senseless murders of our brothers and sisters Jeff Miller, Allison Krause, Sandy Scheur, and Bill Schroeder at Kent State on May 4, 1970, and of Phillip Lafayette Gibbs and James Earl Green at Jackson State the following week:

Earl Green at Jackson State the following week; And wishing that their memory should remain ever before us;

Be It Resolved that the ASUI Senate proclaims May 5, 1971, as a "Day of Shame for America" on the University of Idaho campus.

The ASUI Senate hopes that all members of the University community will observe this day with a pause and reflect upon what has occurred at Kent, Ohio, and Jackson, Mississippi.

The ASUI Senate further requests that all flags on the campus be flown at half mast in accordance with this observance.

University involved in controversy; letter protests sale for landfill

By Bart Quesnell

The University of Idaho has become involved in another controversial issue. This time it involves citizens of Moscow who are demanding that lands presently owned by the University should not be turned into a landfill.

A letter signed by 208 East Moscow residents and 18 Elks Club members was sent to the Board of Regents protesting the move, in which the city of Moscow would purchase 80 acres from the University which have been appraised at $900 an acre.

Part of the letter read "Currently, the city of Moscow is very much engrossed in a downtown beautification project. The University of Idaho has a campus planner engaged in upgrading the beauty and functional design of the campus. It seems inconsistent that these two entities should be so involved in beautifying their environs within and at the same time collaborate on a pact that would dispose of their unwanted debris and dump it just over the hill and out of there, but still in plain view of many rural residents."

The decision to sell the land didn't go through the campus planning office nor did campus planner, Kenneth Hollett, know of any transaction taking place, until he read it in the paper.

Financial vice-president, Sherman Carter explained that, "It doesn't have anything to do with the campus."

The mayor and city council approached the University according to Carter with the proposition to buy land from the University. The decision was made he said by the president; the Dean of Agriculture; Joe Watts, Business Manager and Bursar; and by himself after meeting with city officials.

The University has been interested for some time in acquiring land to the west of the University, close to the University Farm. A package arrangement was thought possible to finance new land on the west side through the sale of 80 acres east of the Elks golf course.

Land isn't usable

"It's better farm land," said Carter explaining the great interest in land to the west of the campus. Much of the land east of town isn't usable by the College of Agriculture according to him.

"The city has been looking for some suitable area for some time," said Carter. Feasibility studies were made by the city council and the mayor and the land was decided upon.

No decision

"There has been no decision by the Regents to accept the offer or do anything about it," Carter said. "The objection of these people saying this shouldn't be done is a very important reason why they might not want to do it."

He did not want to speculate what the Regents decision might be however. The letter, in Carters' opinion, was "not quite fair."

"This is the city's problem. It's not that we're not trying to help."

According to Carter the university is unfairly accused and remarks should be directed toward the city council since it was the city that made the offer.

"It's unlikely they're going to find a place where it doesn't offend somebody,"

"Tin soldiers and Nixon's army...we're finally on our own...this summer I hear the drumming...four dead in Ohio." (Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young lyric commemowashington (AP)—Antiwar demonstrators clashed repeatedly with police and snarled rush-hour traffic in the capital today, but the arrest of more than 5,000 frustrated protesters' efforts to paralyze the nation's government.

Flying scuads of police, backed by National Guardsmen and federal troops, kept traffic flowing across major bridges into the capital, but numerous intersections in the city itself were blocked temporarily by the demonstrators' hit-and-run tactics.

"The city is open. The traffic is flowing. The government is functioning," Atty.

Gen. John N. Mitchell said at midmorning. Mayor Walter Washington agreed, saying the demonstrators "did not succeed."

Absentee records were not immediately available, but quick surveys of major agencies indicated the normal complement of federal employes had shown up for work today. "It looks like a normal day," several personnel officers said.

Many of the employes, however, had to drive or walk through billowing clouds of tear gas. They joined demonstrators in holding handkerchiefs to streaming eyes and smarting nostrils.

Volley after volley of tear gas had been fired by riot-equipped police, who also wielded billy clubs to disperse crowds of demonstrators.

The protesters, mostly college-age youths, tied up traffic in the Georgetown and downtown areas by hurling debris—and in some cases themselves—into the streets.

themselves—into the streets.
Some vehicles were overturned and others set afire. Vandalism was widespread.

By 9 a.m., about 2,200 Marines and Army paratroopers were moved into the city from nearby staging areas—some of them in helicopters which landed on the Washington Monument grounds. Officials said they had been requested by Police Chief Jerry Wilson, who at midmorning radioed his men in the streets:

"You are prevailing against great odds.
You are doing an outstanding job. Keep up the good work."

With the aid of 2,000 federal troops, police kept demonstrators from achieving two of their major objectives—blocking four major Potomac River bridges and marching on the Pentagon.

But the toll was high for both sides in the skirmishes.

Emergency rooms at city hospitals were crowded with injured demonstrators and policemen. No count of the number hurt was available immediately.

The arrested demonstrators were herded onto buses and rented vans and taken to a makeshift compound near Kennedy Stadium.

At Mayday quarters, the demonstration's planners were guarded in their appraisal of the event. "We had an awful lot of opposition today," said Carol Martin of the Mayday press office.

"Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh, NLF is gonna win," the demonstrators shouted. A few Viet Cong flags were carried. Some protesters wore motorcycle helmets as protection against police nightsticks.

Police were told to disregard arrest forms and to forego pictures of those arrested and load the demonstrators into buses for the trip to jail.

About 100 soldiers, in full battle dress and carrying rifles and sheathed bayonets, marched across Key Bridge and the 14th Street Bridge before dawn.

Tin soldiers and Nixon's army
We're finally on our own.

Four dead in Ohio
Gotta get down to it,
Soldiers are coming uptown.
Should have been gone long ago.
What if you knew her and Found her dead on the ground?
How can you run when you know?

Goal was nonviolence

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Nonviolence isn't for sissies. It takes guts to be nonviolent.

It was the eve of the long awaited May Day attempt to stop the Capital in its tracks through massive, nonviolent civil disobedience and a smattering of troops from the "Peace Army" were getting a final lecture before the dawn.

It has been a long and trying day beginning with the "army's" eviction from its campsite in Zest Potomac Park early Sunday morning. Now doubts about nonviolence were springing up like mushrooms after a rain.

"If the police don't scare us like they've been doing everything will be all right," said a young man with an Indian headband.

The lecture platform in a George Washington University courtyard was a shower-soaked patio. The lecturer was a raspy-voiced Southerner, wearing a white shirt, jeans and unlaced brown boots.

He called for volunteers to illustrate his lecture. A young man volunteered to play the role of a Washington policeman.

He was immediately equipped with a rolled up newspaper and proceeded to beat those acting the role of demonstrators. The demonstrators then jumped on the "policeman." The result was a melee.

"Now we'll do it the other way," the lecturer said. This time as the "policeman" beat the demonstrators, other protesters began throwing, their bodies between the victim and the "policeman."

"See, Sister Pocohontas really had it together," the lecturer said.

"Sure people are frustrated and ticked off," said Bob Lamb of Mayday Collective, the organizing arm for the latest peace offensive, but the tactics will remain unchanged.

"Tactically, we are winning," Lamb said. "The media is full of antiwar protest. In Mapes, N.D., all they are getting is antiwar protest, a sense of continual turmoil and protest in the nation's capital. To them it isn't all that significant if tomorrow we stop 50,000 cars or 2,000 cars. The emphasis conveyed through the media is disruption."
