

Demonstrators fined for obstructing traffic

Seven of the persons arrested Saturday, after a sit-down demonstration on Main Street, were given fines of $50 apiece this week. Thirty dollars has been suspended under the condition that the seven will not be arrested on similar charges (obstructing traffic) in the city of Moscow for the next six months.

The protesters staged a sit-down on Main Street Saturday as a demonstration of their feelings against the war, obstructing traffic for several minutes.

According to Molly Warn, coordinator of the event, contributions are needed for fines and other expenses incurred by the local peace coalition. Donations to the group should be made to any of the individuals involved she said. Warn encouraged the use of the black envelopes now on sale in the Student Union Building. The envelopes are labeled with phrases like "In memory of a person who died in Vietnam" and "End the War."

According to Warn, she and Sam Fortier, of Pullman Wash., have agreed to spend time in jail to pay for part of their fine. Warn said that the judge handling the case was reluctant to put a woman in jail. She said he offered to work out a payment schedule which she refused. Fortier and Warn will serve time during the weekends.

Asked if she thought the arrests would have any effect in influencing attitudes on the war in Vietnam, Warn said she thought they did. "Even a negative reaction is at least a step in the direction of becoming aware," she said.

"I was pleased," Warn said, "with the way the whole march and rally went. The arrests were mostly effective for those of us who were involved. . . . It gave us a chance as individuals to show our commitment."

Warn added that the peace coalition appreciated the "respect and cooperation given them by the police and community courts."

ON SALE — Black envelopes, a new form of war protest, are on sale in the SUB each weekday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The envelopes, which have the words "in memory of a person who died in Vietnam" on them, were designed by a University of Idaho graduate student and his wife.

Black envelopes

War protest takes varied forms

Last week's marches and demonstrations have started a new wave of sentiment against involvement in Vietnam.

Black envelopes for the mail are the most recent form of war protest put on sale this week by the originators, Wayne Hager, a graduate student, and his wife Deanna.

According to Deanna Hager, the envelopes are for personal letters, bills, and general correspondence until involvement in the Vietnam conflict stops. With enough white space for addressing and the words "in memory of a person who died in Vietnam" on solid black, Hager thinks the envelope will be a good reminder for anyone receiving or even handling the mail. She also offers a list of Idaho Congressmen and their addresses for anyone wishing to write.

3000 sold

Selling at 10 for twenty-five cents at Moscow's Something Different shop and in the SUB each weekday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Hager reports 3000 have been purchased so far. All profits are re-invested to print more envelopes.

She would like to see the black envelope campaign turn into a national movement and adds, "We're sending a form letter to David Brinkley, Paul Harvey, and big newspapers to get this thing going."

Asked if she had met with opposition at the SUB table where she sells her envelopes, Hager shook her head, "Even the parents this last weekend were buying them. We haven't had anybody say it was a bad idea."

What are other ideas for protesting the Southeast Asian war? Students have various plans.

Carl Baumgardner, who was McGovern coordinator for this district, said his campaign force supported all three candidates, McGovern, Chosholm, and McCarthy, against the war. They urged people to get out and vote through telephoning and canvassing the town and he added that he, himself, was joining the telephone tax resisters as a protest effort.

A freshman from California who was questioned thought marching and "minor trouble" were about the only forms of action that could be taken.

Peaceful demonstration

A junior liked the demonstration last week because it was peaceful. "If it's a noisy protest in a community like this, there's going to be repercussions. The townspeople won't even smile at a college kid."

Another student raised doubts, commenting, "People don't like the war but they only get out in small demonstrations. They're fine but are they going to change anything?"

Power to vote

The power to vote was voiced by many as a way to act against the war and petitions were mentioned by a freshman who collected nearly 19,000 signatures in the Lewiston area last summer.

Still another student proposed writing to Washington — eight letters at a time to flood the Capitol. "If everyone against the war would just do that in one specific week, it would be obvious that the majority of people were protesting."

One sophomore girl liked the idea of identification bracelets matching those of prisoners of war.

Another sophomore simply suggested, "give peace a chance."

BOB SERRANO, the current program director for the University of Idaho, announced his candidacy today for the Idaho state senate. Serrano, said he would not give up his current job to serve on the senate.

Committees deemed 'way to get involved'

A way exists for students to get involved in the ASUI and influence decisions made about them in the University, according to Doug Oppenheimer, personnel commission chairman. Interviews for ASUI committee positions are set for May 2, 3, and 4 in the Student Union Building and the Wallace Complex.

"You see the same people belonging to the same committees year after year," Oppenheimer said. "Not that they're not qualified people, but I just don't feel we're filling up the committees with the best possible students."

Committee members selected this spring will take office next fall. According to Oppenheimer this will enable the committees to get organized before the second semester begins.

The personnel commission, of which Oppenheimer is chairman, was established this spring according to the chairman, to "insure a better representation of students on ASUI committees." The commission is composed of one greek member, one independent, and one off-campus student. Oppenheimer says this is to insure fairness in the selection of committee members.

Students who wish to participate in ASUI and faculty committees should turn in an application, now available in the ASUI offices, by Friday.

A list and description of committees appears on page three. An additional list appeared in last Tuesday's issue of the Argonaut.

Students may voice views on Alaskan pipeline issue

Students on a number of U.S. campuses have begun a campaign to turn the Nixon Administration around on its refusal to hold public hearings on the issue of environmental impact of the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline.

Working with the Alaska Action Committee, an organization of conservationists living in the vicinity of Washington, D.C., these students are distributing a pamphlet entitled "The Alaska Pipeline Reading Lesson." The pamphlet deals with unanswered questions and inconsistencies found in the government's pipeline impact statement.

According to a news release from The Wilderness Society, Washington, D.C., the issue is whether the federal government will grant, as early as May 4, a permit for construction of the 789-mile, hot-oil pipeline that would carry oil from Prudhoe Bay in the Arctic to the Alaskan port of Valdez. There the oil would be transferred to tankers for transport along the west coast of Canada to western U.S. ports.

Canadians have expressed fears about the prospects of oil spills on their coast along the route. In addition, environmentalists fear that the pipeline, going through one of the world's most active earthquake zones, might exact severe damage on the wilderness, rivers, streams, wildlife and fishery resources of Alaska. All of the land over which the pipeline would be laid is owned by the federal government.

In its own study of environmental impact the Interior Department said there would be less environmental risk and no greater economic cost involved in constructing a pipeline through Canada. However, the consortium of seven oil companies seeking the trans-Alaska permit, already has pipe stockpiled and wants to go ahead with the project as originally conceived.

The government, in refusing to hold public hearings on the impact statement, urged interested citizens to read the report and render comments. Conservationists complain, however, that there are only seven copies of the nine-volume study available for public inspection in the "lower 48" states. Copies can be purchased through the mail, but they cost $42.50, and delivery time is still uncertain.

What interested students can do is send a letter — or a telegram — to the President, asking for 90 days to review the statement followed by full public hearings. Students may write the President at:

President Richard M. Nixon, The White House, Washington, D. C. 20500.

In spite of the imposing concern on the part of conservationists, ecologists, Congress members and students, the Nixon Administration appears determined to bow to oil industry demands to issue the pipeline permit.

Copies of "The Alaska Pipeline Reading Lesson" can be obtained in quantity from the Alaska Action Committee, 729 — 15th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

The Spring Kegger of the Associated Graduate Students is Saturday at the Eagles Lodge, 123 N. Main from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. $1 buys "all the beer you can drink" plus entertainment by a Dixieland band.

Dennis Agajanian will be the featured guitarist at a rally at Emmanuel Lutheran Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Local talent and a speaker from Lutheran Youth Alive in Portland will also be there. A $1 donation will be encouraged to help cover expenses.

Most of the certificates for Phi Kappa Phi members have arrived and are available in Mines 208, Prof. Joseph Newton's office.

Students enrolled on campus for Second Semester 1971-72 who plan to attend the 1972 Summer Session, must file an application for a Permit to Register Card in the Registrar's Office by May 22, 1972. By doing this, students will be assured of having a packet for summer school registration. The cards are available at the Registrar's Office.

Greek conference starts today

Approximately 250 students, alumni and national officers will be participating in the annual Pacific Northwest Regional All-Greek Conference this weekend.

The event hosted by the U of I Intra-Fraternity Council and Panhellenic Council will include workshops designed to bring sorority members closer together and to share common problems and discuss ideas.

Registration begins today at 1 p.m. and U of I students who have registered for the conference are asked to pick up their registration packets in the Ee-da-ho room of the SUB between 1 and 8 p.m.

The opening session begins at 8 p.m. in the SUB. Anyone with questions concerning the conference may call Linda Young at Pi Beta Phi.

Nightline Nutrition Service will answer questions about nutrition between the hours of 2:30 p.m. and 2:30 a.m. Callers should allow 24 hours for the service to research the question; replies will be phoned back to the caller. Call 882-0320.

"A Holiday in the Himalayas" and "Wildlife Sanctuaries of India" will be shown Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Borah Theater. The films, sponsored by the India Students Association, are open to faculty, staff and students.

The U of I Chess Club will meet Sunday at 2 p.m. in the SUB. Anyone interested may bring their chess set and attend.

Job counselling available

Looking for a job with the federal government? Dialing (800) 632-5916 now gives Idahoans toll-free access to federal job counsellors providing a wide range of services, according to U.S. Rep. James A. McClure, R-Idaho.

The Idaho Congressman has advised that the new Federal Job Information Center offers immediate counselling on the employment opportunities outlook; job requirements and qualifications; hiring programs for special groups such as the handicapped and returning Vietnam veterans; and special employment counseling and guidance.

In addition, information specialists can mail to your home job announcements; application forms; and pamphlets describing special employment and other civil service programs.

The Boise information center can be reached locally at 342-2711 (Ext. 2427) and is located in Room 663 of the Federal Building at 550 West Fort.

McClure said that pilot tests of the new toll-free service conducted in Virginia, Kansas, and four New England states were deemed by U.S. Civil Service Commission Chairman Robert E. Hampton to be "a most effective, efficient, and equitable medium for answering inquiries from the public. Many users pointed out how a telephone call had saved them considerable time and effort."

How not to lose your stereo or bike

The Washington State University Police Department has reported an increase in thefts at WSU. Stereos from dormitory, fraternity and sorority areas and bicycles from all over campus are the primary targets. According to Timothy R. Hart, chief of campus security at the U of I, even locks have proven no obstacle for the bicycle thieves and stereos have been stolen during all hours from unlocked rooms.

large chain-linked locks or double-strength locks to secure property and report any suspected thief who loiters around bicycle racks, rooms, etc.

He suggested students especially be on the alert for non students in student areas and pick-up trucks or vans near bicycle racks. Any unusual occurrences should be reported to the Campus Security Department at 885-6791 or 885-6111 immediately.

Hart noted that it is difficult for Campus Security Officers to tell if property being removed from dorms during and after finals belongs to the person carrying it out.

"Only cooperation from the students who know each other and patience with the Security Officer who might stop the 'honest' student will prevent many thefts," Hart said.

Hart has issued the following suggestions which are designed to make theft more difficult. First, students should be sure that their room doors are locked whenever they leave the room. Further, it is recommended that students: keep an eye on other's as well as their own property, attempt to park bicycles together whenever possible, use

More power to them.

More and more ways are being found to clean up our environment. The next time you hear about one of these ways, think about the power needed to make it work.

And as more and more of these problems are resolved they'll all need some kind of power to do the job.

Experts say this country will need twice as much electricity in the next ten years. New generating facilities must be built to meet these demands, and built in a way compatible with our environment.

We'll continue working to do this. But we need your understanding today to meet tomorrow's needs.

Students hurt during protest

Letters to Editor

You do not mention in your article concerning last Saturday's anti-war demonstration the real violence that occurred. This violence appears to us to be a very specific comment on the attitudes of those who condemned the protest. We are referring to those parents, some 6 or 7, who attempted to run down the students with their cars. These parents, whose only reaction to being questioned on their attitudes to the Vietnam War was one of blind fury are, it seems to us, in no position to criticize the peaceful, carefully reflected protest of the demonstrators.

Three of the protestors were hurt, fortunately, none seriously. It is food for thought that some of those who rage about student violence and irrationality have themselves so little control over their own reactions that they would risk committing murder by their totally irrational and violent response to peaceful protest.

Ambassador sends thanks to ASUI

Dear Roy,

I have not been able to write earlier because of pressing engagements I have had on my return to Washington D.C. in connection with the visit of the Minister of Finance of Lesotho here. We had a safe and pleasant journey from Moscow back to Washington D.C.

My wife and I wish to thank you and the student-body of which you are President, for most enjoyable and informative program which you arranged for us and for your warm hospitality. We were deeply impressed by the kindness and courtesy of all your colleagues throughout our stay. We think that the State of Idaho is indeed fortunate to have young people like yourselves.

We should like to think that our brief visit will be just the beginning of a long relationship between us. We would particularly be happy if some of you would visit Lesotho in the future, and then we can also look back to this visit as a point from where it all began.

With best wishes
Yours sincerely

Anti-war march set for May 13 at MHAFB

Dear friend -

Armed Forces day will be celebrated this year at the Mountain Home Air Force Base on May 13th. The base will show off the new F-111 f, the most powerful weapon for genocide in the American arsenal. The entire emphasis in the war in South East Asia has shifted to the Air Force with 26,000 of the 32,000 men stationed in Thailand being members of the USAF.

Mountain Home Air Force Base is the primary focal for a demonstration against the escalating air war since it is the only Air Force Base in the area.

AN ANTI-WAR MARCH ON THE MOUNTAIN HOME AIR FORCE BASE, STARTING AT THE COVERED WAGON (TEN MILES AWAY) IS BEING PLANNED FOR ARMED FORCES DAY. Participants are needed from all over

We are not suggesting that all parents acted in this way; Oh no bejabers begorra, too often have such generalizations been used against us. But in view of the above parent violence some of you are going to tighten up a little on some of the privileges you have allowed your elders in such a permissive age. We suggest an occasional bedside chat pointing out acceptable behaviour especially if you are going to let them wander around campus on their own.

Is Protest Effective?

One or two short comments concerning the "peaceful" protest march on Parents Weekend. Do the marchers and protestors really think America can forget the war? And how serious are they about protesting against those who have escalated the war? It has always been my understanding that it takes two to fight. Perhaps as fair "referees" the marchers should protest in the streets of Hanoi. Perhaps on an equal time basis.

I witnessed part of that peaceful march where "The sounds that came from their voices wasn't that of applause and cheering but of an occasional roar of 'peace now' and a soft chant of John Lennon's "Give Peace a Chance." (Quoted from April 25, 1972 Argonaut) Or perhaps as Mr. Boetlcher says, "praying makes people feel better. Marching is like praying." However, the soft, prayful chant I recall hearing went "Stop the f.....g war." Makes you wonder, doesn't it.

Carter says finances prohibit recycling

This concerns the following questions which you recently left in the President's suggestion box:

"How come recycling can't be coordinated with work-study? Why doesn't the University help the center more?"

The funds we have for work-study this year have already been fully committed for internal University projects. We have requested a substantial increase in work-study funds for next year, and if we do get the increase, we can expand the programs we are supporting by work-study, somewhat. Legally, we may use work-study funds for projects which help the University and the community, such as in recycling efforts. Our problem has been financial, not having enough money to fill all needs, and using the funds we do have to cover our most pressing needs. We should know about June what work-study money will be available next year, and I shall check at that time to see whether or not it will be possible to assist recycling efforts with work-study money next year.

As I remember, we now give to the recycling center paper from our Computer Center, other than used cards, which we keep and sell. I believe that various people concluded that it was not economically feasible to segregate, pick up and use other paper or waste materials here at the University. We did try to recycle cardboard boxes, but this did not work out. With specific reference to your question about why the University does not help the recycling center more, again, the primary problem is financial. When recycling can be made to carry itself financially, there should be no insurmountable problem. However, when it is considerably more costly to try to segregate and recycle materials than to dispose of them in other ways, considering the very tight financial situation facing the University, we will not be able to spend very much money for recycling. Not many people personally seem to be willing to take their own time to segregate, store and haul things being discarded. We have tried and will try to help when it seems that we can do so.

Sincerely,
Sherman Carter

Let me demonstrate

With a Godfather, a turtle and a hare-splitting if not an heir- (or error-, or a hot air-) raising debate.

It's interesting to speculate the impact the Godfather will have not only nationwide, but also right here in Moscow. If a fullhouse occurs for two weeks, — why — there may be more talk about the Godfather than the upcoming Rock Festival.

Now what will everyone be stirred to discuss about it? The violent killings? — The Family loyalties that caused them? The likeness of a powerfull business man or a Senator to a don? Maybe people will question if Presidents lead more legitimate lives than mafia leaders — or if their reasons for killing are any more justifiable.

The demonstration at the Turtle Race was looked upon by many parents as a demonstration-an echo of past violence on campuses that was common a few years ago. They didn't seem to want to understand why students were demonstrating.

Now let me talk like I want to talk, and try to follow, please.

Those parents, those taxpayers, living on the wartime economy, perpetuating a war, race along like the rabbit in the hare and turtle fable. Their Chevy seems to be moving fast, but in this human race — will they win? Is this nation of sheep sleeping while the turtle of their hardshell bombing crimes catches up, and at the Finish, compounded and recycled, drops the final nuclear bomb. Where else can such aggressive behavior lead?

As for wars — where will we draw the Finish line? Can't we stop bombing, stop killing while we've still got a head? That, my friend, is the only way humans will get ahead. Or are the rabbit ears really jackass ears? Or has that head already been lost along with the ears? Are you listening!

In the Godfather, Michael explains to Kay that his father, the don, is not unlike any powerful man responsible for the lives and livelihoods of many people.

She replies, "Don't be naive! Senators and Presidents don't have people killed."

An election draws near — will we elect a headman, — or a head, man? Let's not be naive any longer.

Senate sends ASUI budget to committee

Most of the proposed ASUI general operating budget was sent to finance committee after a four hour meeting of the senate Tuesday night.

Finance committee began deliberations last night so that the budget could be finalized for regent's approval next week.

Sen. Mark Falconer had attempted to cut salaries of several department directors and administrative personnel saying, "This is not the time to start raising salaries."

"The ASUI has to prove itself to the students," he said.

Attempted cuts

He had attempted to cut the personnel in Justice Administration from $60 to $50 per month for the Attorney general and from $30 to $15 per month for the Director of Justice and Administration and Legal Services.

ASUI President Roy Eiguren argued that higher salaries would attract people more inclined to work hard for the ASUI.

Raises proposed

The proposed senate budget would raise the vice-president's salary from $100 per month for nine months to $100 per month for 12 months. Senate salaries would be raised to $20 per month for nine months.

Under the president's salary, the administrative assistant would be paid $60 per month for nine months.

Budget director budgeted

Total general administration budget as proposed by Sen. Clive Strong would total $41,691.25. This would put the ASUI budget director under presidential control and he would be salaried at $200 per month for 12 months.

Minor problems in division requests should be solved in committee with final approval to come at the next meeting.

A stew-in

Stew will be held in Laird Park this coming weekend. It'll be a good chance to get your bogey warmed up for Blue Mountain. The idea behind Stew is to get everybody into a camping trip. If enough people bring stew type items such as potatoes, carrots, etc. we'll have a huge community stew-in. It wouldn't hurt to bring some wine or something to wash it down, being that I am one of the cooks. Laird Park is a nice large camping area about two miles out of Harvard. All you have to do to get there is to turn right at the Potlatch Junction and start truckin' towards St. Maries. The Park offers a gigantic frisbee field, and a real funky Jug-pan band (bring your own instrument). They ain't no guarantees on nothing, so come prepared. The stew will be ready for consumption around 7 o'clock Friday. We would really enjoy your company and we feel that you would be a welcome addition to the Laird Stew Jug Pan Band. We'll be bogeying from Friday until Sunday, so come for any part of it or all of it.

How you can help

Do you want to help others? There are a lot of people that could use your time and energy. An organization known as "Volunteers in-Moscow" functions as a clearing house for getting people that want to help together with people that need help. An agency that needs volunteer help contacts V.I.M. and they in turn try to provide the manpower.

To volunteer all you have to do is call V.I.M. at 882-7255 and tell them in what ways you can help and how and when they can get in touch with you. Their major need is transportation. In fact they need somebody that could drive a needy person to Lewiston May 4 for a Family Planning Clinic. They need people who can make minor repairs, and people that can work with youth groups. V.I.M. has a great need for people to man their office this summer. I'm sure they have a need for something that you can offer. They don't obligate you in any way and don't take very much of your time.

Another organization which needs volunteers is Big Brothers. Here is a chance to give a youth a strong male hand. These kids need the security that you can give them. If you are interested call Dave Helsley at 882-7562.

No matter what you are into there are ways you can help. If you are an environmental freak, the recycling center could use your time. Nightline needs volunteers for summer shifts. All you have to do is give up two hours of T.V. a week and give it to some organization. You know that there is a lot of needy people. You know that our environment is in trouble. There are no ends in how much you can give, but there are a lot of beginnings.

Park ends speculation, joins race

BOISE — Idaho Attorney General W. Anthony "Tony" Park yesterday announced that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

In his statement, Park said "There has been speculation about the role that I will play in this year's contest for the United States Senate. I am announcing today that I am a candidate for that position.

The Attorney General stated that his experience in office has "given me a deeper insight into the problems of Idaho, and I run to become a senator for the people of Idaho, working to help solve their problems, share their concerns and represent their interests."

Park said that his campaign will "meet the issues and speak directly to the people of Idaho."

Park listed problems of the environment, the economy and the Viet Nam war as being the most important in his campaign.

The economy
"We have for too long," Park said, "seen an economic policy from Washington that tries to fool the people by promising prosperity while delivering unemployment and spiraling inflation."

Park said that Idaho farmers "have been the victims of a national policy that calls for the demise of the family farm and its way of life. We must adopt a national policy that guarantees every farmer a decent return on his capital and labor. It is totally unfair to expect our farmers to work for nothing while feeding the nation."

Viet Nam
He advocated a rapid and complete withdrawal from Viet Nam. "In the decade that America has been involved in Viet Nam we should have learned that we cannot police the world. This nation must make a commitment to total and complete withdrawal from Viet Nam at the earliest possible date," Park stated.

The environment
Park stated that he will stress problems of the environment in his campaign and said, "We cannot continue to destroy our lands, pollute our water, and foul our air. We must have a national policy and a national effort to protect and preserve our environment for the future. We cannot continue to neglect our environment any longer if we are to have a future."

Park made his announcement in a series of news conferences held around the state. He began the series at 9:00 a.m. today in Idaho Falls, hosted a press luncheon at noon in Boise, and concluded with a 3:00 p.m. press conference in Coeur d'Alene.

Senate receives bills

The scope of the ASUI Senate activity on national issues would be narrowed by Sen. Ron Cuff's bill. The bill states that 1500 signatures petition must be obtained before a senate stand is taken on a national issue.

A bill putting the Gem of the Mountains on a subscription rate will be acted on in next Tuesday's senate meeting so that Regents can approve the measure at their next meeting.

The bill submitted at Tuesday night's meeting would provide for a subsidy by the ASUI in an undetermined amount, plus a $5,000 rate for each book.

A request for allocation of funds to send four delegates to a mock presidential convention to be held May 19-20 in Eugene, Ore., was sent to finance committee. The convention is in conjunction with the Oregon presidential primary and total costs of $80.63 would be taken from New Programs Development fund.

The senate voted to remove ASUI subsidy for the Amython, the university's literary publication, but delayed action on the section regarding the calendar.

ASUI Vice-President Mel Fisher submitted a request for approval of a $90.00 expenditure from program development for the ASUI-Regent's luncheon to be held on May 5. It was sent to finance committee.

The appointments of Elaine Ambrose and Charles Spencer to Communications Board were approved.

U of I's Kaus intends to seek seat in State Legislature

Dr. Paul Kaus, a resident of Moscow for seventeen years, has indicated that he intends to run for the Idaho House of Representatives from the legislative District 5.

Before officially announcing his candidacy for the democratic nomination he said, "I want to talk to a few more people first and also be sure there are no misunderstandings of Regents policy. The written and announced policy of the Regents is pretty clear and I really don't anticipate any difficulty."

He went on to say that there haven't been too many candidates from the U of I staff. The handbook states that staff members don't give up their rights of citizen but it does place limitation on campaigning on university time.

Since he doesn't intend to take leave without pay to campaign most of his campaigning will be done in the evenings, weekends and vacations.

Because of his background, Kaus said education is his prime concern. He went on to say "I am not unmindful of other problems of the environment, agriculture and forest industry. I'm not just for the education cause."

He also said he wanted to talk to students about their concerns.

He saw no easy answer to the tax problem and stated that he hadn't made up his mind on how or where the money should come from.

Kaus, a native Idahonian, has been active in education.

Before taking his present position as director of summer sessions and special programs at the University of Idaho, he was an instructor in the U of I Department of Education.

Kaus served as an instructor in the Orchard Elementary School and as principal of the College Elementary School in Lewiston before coming to Moscow.

In 1954-55, Kaus was president of the Idaho Education Association. He is presently regional Vice President of the National Association of Summer Sessions and chairman of the North Pacific region of the National University Extension Association.

Kaus has indicated he is looking forward to meeting more people and becoming acquainted with problems and concerns of everyone in the district.

He also stated, "When I become a candidate, I will be a candidate seeking support from throughout the District, not just one segment."

Wegner discusses the "old way"

Encouraging the passage of "loophole legislation" and delaying on demands for action are hallmarks of the "old way of conducting the people's business", said Glen Wegner, Republican U.S. Senatorial candidate, Wednesday.

Addressing the noon luncheon of the Boise City Club, Wegner said: "The old way produces red tape instead of service. When we ask for help, we should get help — not another pile of forms to fill out. When we demand action now, we should get action now — not the appointment of one more study commission."

Wegner pointed to the Sawtooth-White Clouds bill, against which he recently testified in Washington, D.C., as an example of "loophole legislation which benefits the few at the expense of the many. There is no reason to mine the molybdenum deposits there and so there is no need to include loopholes in this legislation that will permit mining to be resumed in just five years."

"Continuing the old way will just guarantee a yearly increase in the federal bureaucracy," Wegner continued, citing the federal takeover of fish and game management contained in the same bill.

Bowman attacks Nixon's bombing

Calling President Nixon's renewal of the bombing over North Viet Nam an "instant replay," Rose-Marie Bowman, of Boise Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate warned the people of Idaho not to become conditioned to this kind of action.

"This activity scares me," said Bowman, a University of Idaho graduate, here Wednesday. "We have to get out of Viet Nam and leave those people alone. It isn't our business and we've got to learn that we can't inflict our philosophy on them by military force."

The lone woman in the crowded Senate race said complaints that she lacks administrative ability are unfounded.

"I've never run for office before, but I've organized and administered political campaigns for men," she said.

She has worked for Sen. Frank Church, Gov. Cecil Andrus, and was chairman of the Treasure Valley Citizens for McCarthy campaign in 1968.

Bowman a former Moscow High School teacher began lobbying for kindergartens in the State of Idaho three years ago and says she is familiar with the legislative process and committee system.

"The McGovern movement in Idaho and elsewhere demonstrates that the Democratic party had better start listening to students," she said enthusiastically. Bowman is a McGovern delegate to the state convention.

Independent thinkers and voters are sought, many of whom have become discouraged with old-style establishment politics.

In her appeal to students, small farmers, minorities and other "average" citizens of Idaho, she is limiting campaign contributions to $25 per person. Independent thinkers and voters are sought, many of whom have become discouraged with old-style establishment politics.

Rose-Marie Bowman

Feeling that campaign costs have become prohibitive and that there is too much dependence on the large agribusiness interests of the State prompted this move.

"I believe the people of Idaho want candidates who won't be bought off," she has said.

Bowman admitted that people were skeptical of her campaign at first but said she has been well received in small towns.

Revision of the tax structure is favored by the liberal candidate who says the present method favors high-income people

She is also calling for cuts in military expenditures combined with new economic goals which would re-direct spending to provide for the medical needs of the aged, infirm and poor.

Bowman is traveling with her state campaign coordinator Ruth Pauly and was on campus Tuesday and Wednesday.

She has been joined in the race by Democratic contenders Byron Johnson, and Att. Gen. Tony Park both of Boise, and Idaho State University President William Davis.

Muskie won't actively campaign but stays in presidential race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, his once-bright prospects battered by a series of primary defeats, withdrew Thursday from active campaigning in Democratic primaries but said he'll stay in the presidential race.

Almost to the man, Muskie's big-name supporters said they will stand by his candidacy, hoping he might still emerge as a possible compromise choice at the Democratic National Convention this July in Miami Beach. Privately, however, some conceded this was unlikely.

Muskie told a jammed news conference his decision was forced by "diminishing results and diminishing resources," specifically Tuesday's twin defeat in the Pennsylvania and Massachusetts primaries. "I do not have the money to continue," he said.

Muskie said he would remain a candidate in deference to supporters who want to keep working for him. He conceded "this decision reduces my prospects in the campaign" but said a compromise candidacy at Miami Beach is "a possible option."

From a practical standpoint, Muskie's withdrawal from active candidacy is expected to accelerate the polarization of the Democratic race into a two-way fight between Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and George S. McGovern, the winners in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts respectively.

In Ohio, the two senators were already believed running ahead of Muskie in next Tuesday's primary despite support for Muskie by Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Others also are in the presidential contest, most notably Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who is trying again in Ohio after finishing third in Florida and fifth in Wisconsin, and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, who captured Florida and finished second in Wisconsin and Pennsylvania.

But most party leaders believe McGovern and Humphrey have become the unquestioned front-runners though most of the 3,016 delegates are yet to be selected. Muskie's decision is seen as likely to reduce the chances of a deadlocked convention that would turn to someone else, such as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

For Muskie, Thursday's announcement came a little more than seven weeks after he entered the primary season as the clear party front-runner, backed by an impressive array of governors, senators and other top party leaders.

In the primaries, however, this leadership was unable to produce at the polls for Muskie.

Muskie won the opening round in New Hampshire, finished a badly beaten fourth in Florida then appeared to be on his way with a substantial victory over McGovern in Illinois.

But his campaign faltered badly in the closing days of the Wisconsin primary, where he again finished fourth.

New draft registration rules outlined

The Selective Service System announced new registration procedures for the draft this week.

Under the new provisions, a registrant must register with a draft board or a draft registrar within the period 30 days before to 30 days after his 18th birthday. He must bring some official type of identification with him when he registers, such as his birth certificate, Social Security Account Number card, drivers license, school or college activity card, or a credit card.

Streamlined operations

The new registration procedures are designed to make registration more registrant-oriented and draft board operations more streamlined. Registration will consist of filling out a registration card. Additionally, a new registration questionnaire also must be filled out, although the registrant can take the questionnaire with him or have it mailed to him. He must return it within 10 days.

The new registration questionnaire requires the names and addresses of three persons outside the registrant's immediate family who will always know his address. The names, relationships, and addresses of all the registrant's family over age 16 also must be listed. In addition, the form includes questions inquiring whether the registrant believes he qualifies for a hardship deferment, for status as a conscientious objector, for a surviving son exemption, or for other Selective Service deferments and exemptions.

Two years of reform

The Selective Service System in mid-March issued its last major group of regulation changes and thus ended more than two years of almost constant reform in draft policies and registrant rights. The regulations concern procedures for personal appearances and appeals, among other subjects. The issuance of the new regulations removed the administrative hold on personal appearances and appeals which had been in effect since late 1971.

The regulations set a 15-day time limit following the mailing of a notice of classification card in which a registrant must request a local board personal appearance or an appeal. When he demonstrates that his failure to respond within 15 days was due to reasons beyond his control, his local board may grant an extension of the 15-day period.

15 day notice

The new regulations also require local and appeal boards to give a registrant at least 15 days notice of his scheduled personal appearance before his local or appeal board. Another change for registrants under postponement of induction, is consideration from their local board for a reopening of classification to hear claims for exemption, deferment, or conscientious objector status.

Three witnesses allowed

The new regulations also allow a registrant to have up to three witnesses appear in his behalf at his "personal appearance," at the local board, require that a quorum of the members of the local board be present, entitle him to 15 minutes for his presentation, and state that his local board list reasons if an adverse decision is received on his classification request.

A personal appearance before a quorum of his state appeal board, and, when the vote there is less than unanimous, the appeal board, also is provided by the regulations. These boards also must supply reasons for adverse decisions but he is not allowed to have witnesses appear before these boards.

Permanent residence requirement

Finally, every registrant must list a place of permanent residence, as well as a current mailing address. The draft board serving his permanent residence will be the registrant's permanent draft board, regardless of where he registers.

When he registers at his own draft board, the registrant will be issued his registration certificate along with his notice of classification stating that he has been placed administratively into a holding classification, Class 1-H.

Lottery at 19

Practically all new registrants will remain in Class 1-H until after their lottery drawing which will be held early in the year that they reach 19. Those who receive low lottery numbers will then be considered for classification out of Class 1-H. Young men become draft eligible unless they receive a deferment or exemption, during the year in which they reach 20.

All persons cashing checks shall be required to show identification. Students shall be required to show either their University student ID or their Registration fee receipt accompanied with other identification.

The amount of checks shall be limited to five dollars ($5.00) and two-party checks shall meet all restrictions.

All checks must be personalized and contain local address and only one check a day may be cashed on an individual's account.

All irregularities shall be handled through the Student Union administrative office until such time as the problem is turned over to the University Business Office. Those writing insufficient or irregular checks shall be placed on a "Bad Check List" and denied check cashing privileges until such time as they have settled the problem with the Student Union or University Business Office.

Offenders checked

Continual offenders shall be checked by the general manager, student union board and ASUI, and denied check cashing privileges until such time as they are reinstated by the general manager, Student Union Board and ASUI.

Any appeal of a denial of check cashing privileges may be made to the Student Union Board.

According to Frankes

Moscow rated one of nicest places in U.S.

by Rod B. Gramer

Most people do not give walking alone on the University of Idaho campus a second thought. Yet if they went to another school they would probably notice quite a difference.

In the larger cities and universities people are even afraid to venture out in pairs, because of the strong possibility they would be mugged or robbed. Yet at Idaho a person is very unconscious of going out at night to walk and get some fresh air.

Why? What gives all of us the confidence to walk out alone at night on the campus?

One of safest

This is Moscow, that is why. We live in Moscow and the university campus we walk on is Idaho; both recently rated among the safest places in the United States to live.

A couple of months ago a story came out in Time magazine which unveiled the answer to our question. A young married couple, David and Holly Franke traveled the country in 1970 and found the safest places in the nation to live. They wrote a book entitled Safe Places this year in which they revealed their surprising findings.

According to the Frankes more people from the U.S. were trying to emigrate to Canada in 1970 than were Canadians coming to the U.S. They said the situation in the cities was driving many people out. And they indicated there were many more in the cities wishing they could leave and find a safe place to live.

A safe place like the ones in the Franke's book.

Emigrants to Moscow

Of all the surprising findings revealed in the Franke's book — and probably the one most surprising to the people of Moscow — is that their little town is among the places these city dwellers are aching to emigrate to.

That may seem odd to many University of Idaho students. For many, their desire is to graduate and leave.

But there must be some characteristics of Moscow the Franke's liked; maybe the best place to start would be the beginning.

"Talkinmah"

Originally, Moscow was called "Talkinmah" by the Indians because of the deer that grazed in the meadows where Moscow is now. Then the settlers came, and with them followed trappers and prospectors.

Hogs came too. The settlers would raise these hogs for various reasons, but sometimes the hogs would escape. Because of this the settlers renamed Moscow "Hog Heaven." Named after the hogs of course.

But the women settlers, didn't appreciate living in a place called, "Hog Heaven." So they asked their men folk to change the name of Moscow to Paradise. But Paradise, like Eden, didn't remain Paradise long.

Neff influences

As all towns do, Moscow too had one gentleman with a great deal of power. His name was S.M. Neff. Neff ran the post office and rumors had it that he was from a small town in Pennsylvania called Moscow. Others said he came from Russia.

Nevertheless, it seems that Neff traded the post office to a grocier named Lieuallen. One of the conditions that went with the trade was that the name of the town be changed from Paradise to Moscow.

So today we live in Moscow.

Name draws Frankes

Actually one of the characteristics that first drew the Frankes to Moscow was its name.

The Frankes sent a number of letters to communities in the U.S. The first to answer their letter was Moscow.

"We were intrigued with its name, but impressed with its credentials as given us on paper-enough to decide we wanted to see it in person," wrote the Frankes.

Impressive scenery

Setting out from Coeur d'Alene the Frankes drove down U.S. 95 to Moscow. They were very much impressed with "the most beautiful wheat country we had ever seen."

Indeed, the Palouse Empire is a captivating setting for one of the safest places in the U.S. In the midst of wheat fields, that roll slowly like a golden shag rug which meets white pine trees at a distinct golden-green line, lies Moscow.

Low crime rate

The Frankes said they were amazed that in a city the size of Moscow there wasn't more crime. They said unlike most campuses, the University of Idaho was peaceful. One reason they attributed to this is the kind of students that attend the University.

Most schools that are filled with trouble are predominately liberal arts schools, they said. Unlike those, Moscow is strong in other fields such as forestry, law, and agriculture. Most of the students that engage in these fields are not interested in sit-ins or protests, according to the Frankes.

They said only one thing gave them second thoughts about Moscow. After they made their trip they learned about the May 5, 1970 bombing of the Navy ROTC building at the University. After some discussion they decided to leave Moscow in their book because as they said, "from our talks to students there, we were sufficiently impressed with the lack of organized radical activity among the students."

Whole Community good

But besides the campus the whole community of Moscow is supposedly a good place to live by the Franke's evidence.

Up until the Franke's visit there hadn't been a muder "in many years" except in 1969. The rest of the criminal records of Moscow are equally amazing. There were no recorded rapes or aggravated assaults.

"There were three robberies, twelve burglaries, four larcenies over $50, and eight auto thefts," they said.

Moscow's criminal record is making a "killing" on national statistics because Moscow's is so low.

The Frankes praised the university for making Moscow so nice.

The university provides the city with a great amount of business. Because the business is so good in Moscow the unemployment rate is only 2.7 per cent.

Besides helping support Moscow's economic life, the Franke's say a major factor is the cultural life the university provides the community.

Many places these escaping city dwellers are looking for is a place safe, but not primitive. These people don't want the problems of the city, but they want the conveniences. Moscow assumingly offers conveniences in the form of culture — which is supplied for the most part by the university.

Even for cooking freaks Moscow is a good place to live.

Split pea soup with ham stocks anyone? If you live in Moscow you had better eat heartedly of this dish. According to the Franke's, Moscow is the dry pea and lentil capital of the world and this is the community's favorite recipe.

Moscow nice

Unfavorable qualities

For all Moscow's good qualities there are few unfavorable ones.

One complaint of the Frankes, which is sometimes one of the students' is the quality of the water in Moscow.

The water here probably didn't bother the deer and Indians who lived in "Talkinmah", but the Frankes noticed and so do others. "that our water has an offensive smell due to unusual hardness."

What's happening

By M. K. (Flash) Schoeffler

Hey Man! What's happenin'? Many events, I assure you, the best of which may be this bright Spring sunshine that enhances whatever you do. For the outdoorsman, fishing season opens this week-end. I'm not sure which streams open, but I do know that Spring Valley, out past Troy, will find a lot of fishermen going all out, hook, line, and sinker, to make a catch. I can hear "the one that got away" stories already. If you're not a water-skipper, how 'bout a tooley-tripper? Last week-end I found mushrooms in the forest. If your food budget is running low you might consider living off the land or out of the water. Anyway it's worth a try.

Laird Park stew-in

A stew-in will be happening this week-end at Laird Park, two miles outside of Harvard. (see editorial page for story). All stewdents are welcome and hereby solicited.

If you want to travel the other direction for your entertainment, the Asotin County Fair is being held this week-end. It's the beginning of town festivals. Saturday morning they serve Cowboy Breakfast and there is usually a carnival on the hill for those whose style is more merry-go-round horses than gymkhanas.

At the Elks Saturday, you'll find the AGSUI throwing their annual Spring beer bust and wall-to-wall drunk. A dixieland band will be playing for this function to help everyone get "way down South".

Mad dog a go-go

The Spruce is hopped up this week-end with Mad Dog playing Friday night from 9 to 12:30 p.m. on a 50 cent cover charge. All of the musicians are U of I music majors, so you've probably heard them one place and another before. Playing opposite the Spruce are some go-go girls at The Alley. If the rumor is as true as the hot one that burnt my ears, all red-blooded voyeurs should place this near the top of their list of events, for it's still what's up front that counts I hear.

Cowboy Breakfast & Vandal football

If you go down Saturday for the Cowboy Breakfast, you might spend the day in the Lewis-Clark empire and drop by Adams Field in Clarkston, Wa. for the Spring Intra-Squad Vandal Football game. It happens at 7 p.m. and you'll get in free upon presentation of your student body card.

Friday the Utah Symphony Orchestra will perform in Memorial Gym at 8 p.m. Admission for students costs a dollar and the proceeds will go for a good, long-

All in the family

Greetings movie fans. For those of you who may regard this review as a little late in coming, let me defend that, relatively speaking, it isn't because The Godfather will be held over another week. Therefore, for those of you who found the regular $1.25 wouldn't cover the price of admission, here's a second chance to dig out an extra quarter from your money sock. And if you want your choice of seats, you'd better go early — The Godfather has been playing to fullhouses. Week-days the show starts at 7:30 — week-ends 6:30 and 9:30.

On Tuesday night I attended the show with suspicions it wouldn't be as good as its sales receipts at the box office suggest and fear it would last too long. Neither misgiving came true. The Godfather is an epic. Its length is justified. Unless you've read the book, you're not likely to be bored.

Marlon Brando as the don of the Corleone Family, has created (with the help of a very skilled make-up man and his own intuitive insight), a detailed portrait of a powerful man. The don is not only the force, the leader of a mafia family — he is also the American capitalist, the head of a corporation trying to make a living for the many people he's responsible for. Corleone is a man who commands respect and admiration. The wedding and the business he conducts during the first part of the picture, shows him to be a just man. He doesn't kill for blood money. When an undertaker asks him to kill some boys who marred his daughter for life — he refuses saying it would not be justice. The punishment he does promise is a severe beating — one that will mark the boys as they marked the undertaker's daughter.

The next most important character worth watching closely is the don's son, Michael. The don had dreams — legitimate dreams for his son — to become a Senator or a Governor. A mob war draws Michael into the family business though, and unforeseen events ultimately lead him to fill his father's shoes. Its enough to make one believe in destiny.

The characterizations are overwhelming. The killings are imaginative and the violence is almost tolerable, it seems so rational.

The filming is seldom artistic, but it can be excused because so many people must be followed. The story is such a powerful one, it is enough to simply tell it. However, the second half finds more scenes shot with imagination and subtlety. Especially fine is the don's death in the garden while scaring his grandchild with an orange peel held against his front teeth. Another excellent scene, (the film editor should receive accolades for this) is the splicing of murders of the other Family dons into a Baptism ceremony. Michael stand innocently in the church, becoming a godfather to his sister's child, and renouncing the devil, while the killings he organized take place.

Everyone has, or is going to see it. Don't be left out. Its popularity is well-founded.

Italian humor

If you've seen "The Godfather", you might be ready for something a little lighter in the Italian vein. The drama department has a free offering this Saturday at 8 p.m. It's an Italian comedy of the 17th century entitled "The Mistress of the Inn". The play is about a young woman inn-keeper, Mirandolina, whose amusement of making men fall in love with her causes some problems and some laughs.

Sunday night at 7:30 p.m., Dennis Agajanian will be the featured musician at a pre-congress rally being held at Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Dennis, who has been associated with Jose Feliciano and The Christy Minstrels, is billed as the world's fastest flat pickin' guitarist. There will also be local musical talent and a main speaker from the staff of Lutheran Youth Alive in Portland, Oregon. A $1 donation will be encouraged to help cover expenses.

The day the reviewer died

And now I'd just like to finish up by thanking Mark for this wonderful opportunity to show my stuff. And now that you've seen it, Mark, wouldn't you really rather have had a Buick? What I mean is "A funny thing happened on my way to the levy in my chevy while eating American pie . . . you see I was granted this great land of opportunity . . ."

BOOK ATTACKS TRICKY DICK

NEW YORK — A series of humorous attacks on Richard Nixon in the form of a new paperback book published this month by Paperback Library could prove to have substantial impact on the President's image during this election year.

The paperback, entitled "A Collection of Political Humor From National Lampoon," includes articles with such titles as "Richard Nixon's Dream Supreme Court," "Is Nixon Dead?" and "The Wit, Wisdom and Warmth of John Mitchell," as told by Richard Nixon.

Perhaps the strongest statement against Nixon in the book is a feature titled "Would You Buy a Used War From This Man?" with a cartoon portrayal of the President posed as a used car dealer against a war backdrop. The cartoon is also the National Lampoon paperback's cover subject.

The sum total of the articles fosters questions, however humorously, about Nixon's basic ability to cope with the office of the Presidency.

In defense of their book, however, the editors of National Lampoon point out that though their political attacks seem one-sided, it's the party in office that bears the responsibilities for the country's directions and therefore which must bear the brunt of satirical commentary. They assure one and all that the next President, regardless of which party he is from will undoubtedly be hit as hard. The "ins" are always the target.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, MOSCOW, IDAHO

Track

The Vandal track team opened their new track facility with a good start as they swamped Boise State, 106-51, in a dual meet here last Saturday before the largest crowd ever to attend an Idaho track meet.

The Idaho tracksters took an early lead and were never challenged as they took 12 first place wins out of 18 events.

Collie Mack was probably Idaho's best performer for the day as he took first place finishes in the long jump at 22'11" and the 100 yd. dash in a time of 9.9 seconds. He, also, finished second in the high jump at 6' and third in the triple jump with a distance of 41'7 1/2". To top it off, he was the anchor man for the 440 yd. relay team which took first place Saturday and set a new school record with a time of 42.2 seconds.

That record-setting relay team is made up of Clint Hall, Kyle Kennison, Al Bergman and Collie Mack who are all freshmen. The members of that same relay team swept the 100-yd. dash in the first four positions as Al Bergman tied Collie Mack's time of 9.9 seconds for second place with Clint Hall in third place at 10.2 seconds.

Another area in which the Vandals swept the first three positions was the javelin. Gary Tyler was first with a throw of 207'6 1/4", Joe Brogdon, second at 198' 8 3/4", and Don Huddleston, third with a throw of 186'11 1/4".

In the shot put, Steve Bruce and Al Carlson for Idaho finished first and third with tosses of 50'1 3/4" and 45'8 1/4" respectively.

Steve Bruce and Al Carlson also did well in the discus as they took first and second with throws of 147' and 141'3".

The Vandals, who felt the warm weather nice for competition, also swept the 120-yd. high hurdles. After getting off to a slow start, Jay Wheeler turned on the power and came in first at 14.5; Robert Martin, second at 14.6; and Paul Titchenal in third place at 15 seconds.

Idaho's Al Bergman showed poise in the event which he does best in, the 220-yd. dash, as he took first place honors as 21.9 seconds with Vandal Clint Hall right behind him at 22.1. Clint Hall, also, finished third in the long jump with a leap of 22'2".

In the pole vault, Mike Hamilton and Rock Lobdell for Idaho finished third and second with jumps of 14' and 13'6".

Besides Collie Mack's third place finish in the triple jump, Joe Brogdon got second with a jump of 42'3".

Idaho showed depth in the 3,000 meter steeplechase as Steve Peterson took first and Robert Moore, third, with times of 9:39:7 and 11:36:3.

Idaho's Jerry Collins was the only placer the Vandals in the mile run as he took second place with a time of 4:26:8.

In the 440-yd. dash, Dave Cacolias and Paul McNutt took second and third positions with times of 50:3 and 52:1 seconds.

Al Ramach took first place in the 880-yd. run for Idaho with a time of 1:54:6 and Jim Hatcher easily won the three-mile run with a time of 14:18:9.

Also, finishing in the high jump for Idaho was Joe Brogdon who jumped 5'10". Paul Tichenal and Jerry Collins took second and third in the 440-yd. intermediate hurdles with times of 55:8 and 56:5.

Also, Idaho's mile relay team took first place with a time of 3:23:1. Relay team members include Dave Dacolias, Jay Wheeler, Brad McKenzie and Al Ramach.

Football

The Idaho Vandal football squad will have a chance this weekend to show off their depth, as they will meet a tough alumni team this Saturday night in charity scrimmage at Clarkston's Adams Field.

The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. and according to Sports Information Director, Bob Maker, all Idaho students wishing to attend can get in on just their ID cards. Benefits from the scrimmage will go to the Lewis-Clark Valley Boys Club.

Some of the offensive starters for the Vandal alums include John 'Bull' Durham, Jim Wimer, 240-pound Dick Beaver, 240-pound Andy Kupp, a draft choice by the New Orleans Saints, and 235-pound Rich Kushlan.

On defense for the graduate team will be at least three of Idaho's most noted players. The first of those three is all-conference end, Tim Reese. Reese became notorious while at Idaho for his vicious tackles and well-timed interceptions. Three time all Big Sky linebacker Ron Linehan, a member of the Vandals championship team and all Big Sky noseguard Steve Barker, also on the championship team, will also be playing for the alumni.

Former quarterbacks Mitch Lansdell and Tom Ponciano will be running the offense for the alums with Hank Boomer and Steve Ball at the running back spots.

Other former Vandal Standouts Faustin Riley and Tom Jarmin will be stepping in at tackle and defensive end with John Knowles, Ken Salesky and Milt Newport rounding out the defensive line.

In the secondary for the alums will be Bob Miller, Pat Sprute, Art Chubb and Wayne Marquess. Bob Davis will do the punting with Idaho's record setting Ricardo Castillo kicking for points.

The alums will probably be playing a pro-style offense with emphasis on the passing game while this year's Vandals will put more strength on their running game.

Soccer team preps for upcoming season

The University of Idaho Soccer team will test its strength for the start of a new season this next Sunday, April 30th against the University of Montana. With very little hope to improve on last season's Northwest Intercollegiate League championship, the Vandals have nowhere to go but down. Too bad, and they were doing so well just a little while ago. The Montana match is a warm-up in preparation for the Washington State University Invitational tournament which will be held in May before the end of that month.

The night before the game in a grueling closed-door session, coach Nick Rossides will outline the team tactics using such training aides as a chalkboard and chalk. After the team has digested the material, a collective barf-in will be held. The skull session is designed to uncover a new formation. Rumor has it that the new team attack plan has been nicknamed, "Killer Dildo."

Yes folks, it looks like Super Jock and Jimmy are really in trouble this time, hung up by the thumbs in a pickling vat. Chances are slim for our heroes since they have been captured by the dirty, bad, nasty gungo, Crotch Rot. We open up on the scene with Rot addressing Jock:

Well my stupid foe, you thought you'd seen the last of me in that big scandal in '42. Guess again, as you can see I am in better shape than ever. (Removing his cape with the grace and ease of the entertainment at the AIME stag night, he exposed a grotesquely mangled and scabbed torso, flaking with mold, possessing an appalling stench which Super Jock gagged at.) In my years of seclusion, building up my powers I have also found out something more. Yes Super Jock, I have found out your secret!"

Our hero gasped in fear. His most precious secret had been revealed. No one knew the horrible truth except Jimmy. . .and now it could be assured that Crotch Rot would expose the mystery to the world. It was a fate worse than death.

Crotch Rot could sense the anguish of Super Jock and it only edged him on. "Well my friend, you will probably welcome death knowing that I have uncovered your secret. It will be said that you died in shame amid a wave of self-pity, demonstrating the cowardice that you possess. So for your acts you have been condemned to death by me."

With that statement, Crotch Rot vaulted out of the vat leaving Super Jock with a semi-conscious Jimmy. Suddenly, the vat began to fill with pickling fluid. Our hero was helpless to stop it.

Could this be the end? Unfortunately not. Tune in next week, same time, same page, same paper for the episode that you've all been waiting for (for one reason or another): the concluding episode of the Adventures of Super Jock.

In their first match, the Women's Golf Team beat WSU 202 to 247. The low scorer for the day was Vicki Mallea with a 46 and Kali Voyce was a close second with 47. Both Vicki and Kali are from U of I.

The next golf tournament will be in Pocatello this week-end. Also in Pocatello this week-end is scheduled a softball tournament and the U of I Women's Softball team is planning to attend.

The Women's Tennis Team will also be in action this Sunday as they play against Whitman. The matches will be here at the Ridenbaugh Courts.

The field hockey team isn't in intr-extra-mural competition, but they do have fun. Come rain or shine Miss Gorton has those girls out on the field practicing their drives and toning their swings. It takes a lot of concentration and accuracy to avoid the mud puddles.
