(The Argonaut looks backward at 1972 and forward to 1973)

The Senate

Decision and indecision

by Charles Spencer
Argonaut Staff

A $5 fee increase to "maintain services at their present level" in the U of I Student Health Center was supported by the ASUI Senate in its next-to-last meeting this week.

University Vice President Tom Richardson and Health Center Director Dr. William Fitzgerald reported to the Senate that a fee increase is needed next semester to maintain operation at its present level.

The resolution supporting the increase said health fees at Boise State and Idaho State are "substantially lower...for far more limited services."

Mel Fisher, senate president and regional Idaho Student Lobby director, presented an ISL questionnaire to the senators, seeking initial student government input to help guide ISL lobbyists in Boise in January. Fisher received a setback at the same time as the senate turned down funding for an ISL lobbyist from the U of I.

ASUI Housing Referral Service received a boost of $369.60 for services dating from November 1, 1972.

Steve Woodard was appointed manager of KUOI for the coming semester, while an Argonaut editor will be voted on at the Dec. 12 meeting.

Greg Casey presented a resolution requesting the ASUI president appoint a special student committee to study "the desires of the students in the realm of a student newspaper" and "the present level of satisfaction of their publication." The resolution, sent to GOA committee, will create an unofficial committee to analyze the Argonaut, which presently spends over $40,000 in student fees for two semesters of operation.

And what a year it was...

by Rod Gramer

This semester I have written stories on everything from the Occult to the ASUI. Every story is unrelated to the others except in one respect—each deals with something that affects student's lives in one way or another.

I began the semester with a feature on the senate. "What is it, and why do we say those terrible things about it?" At this late date very little has changed with the senate. I commented then that few senators kept their office hours: they still don't nor have they all semester.

The senators claimed they were overburdened by being senators and full time students at the same time. Little has changed, they still feel overburdened. Maybe the rules and regulations committee (another do-nothing organization), which is supposed to be a watchdog over inefficient senators should begin to eliminate those who feel overburdened so they can improve their GPA's next semester.

Social Work

Another story was on the Social Work department. I wrote about the "weary and frustrated" professor Zaye Chapin, the female chief of a practically non-existent department.

Chapin said then, "I really think it is premature of him (Hartung) to single out one program that can go, because the regents haven't started looking into which programs are duplicated." Chapin said she was short of funds because the administration opposed her.

Later I learned indirectly that she was unhappy with the picture she drew of the social work program in my story. I heard she even wrote a letter to President Hartung. But I talked to many social work majors and students and they want the program here.

Tuition

Another story I thought would raise hell was the one on in-state-tuition. "How they spend your money." But nothing was said until recently about in-state-tuition and last week, a petition started circulating against it.

Tuition would put a great strain on many students and many may have to drop out of school because of it. Some people argue, "That's okay; too many people are going to college anyway. We can't give jobs to all the college graduates."

Again, the concept of education has been lost. Is education the pursuit of truth as it was intended to be or is it a search on the part of an outside industry for future engineers? If the only purpose of education is to put people in little company niches, let the industries finance college.

Mental Health

My last story, "Mental Health", is one I have wanted to do for a year. The amount of problems a college student meets in his daily life always amazed me. Students react to problems many ways just as Hipple commented in that story.

I became more optimistic, however, after doing this article. We at Idaho have a remarkable counseling program. Perhaps it is the most efficient program on campus.

The only excuse for someone not having anyone to talk to is that he won't seek out help himself. Our counselors and psychiatrists are proficient and full of human understanding and concern.

Argonaut seeks staff

Interviews to select staff members for second semester's Argonaut will be Wednesday and Thursday from 2-4 p.m. Positions which need to be filled include editor, advertising manager, sports, entertainment, political and feature editors, reporters and ad salesmen. Anyone interested in applying may do so. The Argonaut is an equal opportunity employer.

Golf course grows... reserve shrinks

In review, key actions of the ASUI Senate first semester included:

Much action was taken in the area of Big Name Entertainment, an ASUI committee which initially received no funding for the current year. Steve Smith, BNE head, organized several concerts before submitting his resignation to the senate. He listed lack of senate cooperation with the committee as the basic reason for the resignation.

The senate, working around its own committee, organized the "Grass Roots" Homecoming concert and almost brought in the popular "Cheech y Chong" for a Dec. 7 concert. Smith also complained that the senate did not properly consider BNE committee's recommendation to bring in the "Walt Wagner Trio." Smith resigned a week after the senate turned down funding that concert.

Smith's resignation was the second demonstrative resignation during the present senate's term. A majority of the Communications Board members resigned in protest at the end of last semester. The board was never reappointed by the senate.

In other areas of ASUI programs, senate support was generally available. The programs office was able to put on a variety of programs ranging from a special Olympiad program featuring Jesse Owens to a week featuring the Occult.

VP Fischer... Mr. Chairman

BNE's Smith... no cooperation?

Expenditures included a purchase of a set of Idaho Code books for the ASUI Legal Aid Service and a funding of an ASUI Housing Referral Service. These helped to strengthen the expanding areas of ASUI student services.

The ASUI General Reserve was hit by a $1,375.94 expenditure for "needed additions" to the controversial ASUI golf course driving range. An additional $5,433.30 was needed for "over-expenditure" on the 1972 Gem of the Mountains.

A Foreign Language Department experiment, the student live-in French House, received some support from the senate in the form of a one-year scholarship to pay for a native French graduate student for the first semester of next year.

Resolutions were passed endorsing various University proposals urging implementation of both a community government system for the university and a non-punative grading system.

Another resolution asked the UCC to consider making English 101 and 102 into "pass-fail" graded courses.

The senate also took a stand on the Big Sky Conference issue, endorsing the Board of Regents recommendation asking for an increase in U of I football scholarships from 62 to 75 for the coming year.

A resolution that did not pass concerned a proposed discontinuation of mid-term grades. Some concern was raised that the grades were not relevant enough to justify the expense.

The ASUI Library Hours Questionnaire circulated at registration first semester spurred some action by the library. Richard Beck, associate director of the U of I library, reported this week starting December 11, and continuing through next semester, the Sunday through Friday hours would be extended to 11 p.m.

Mike D'Antonio, a not-very-vocal but very active member of the senate, spent many hours of personal time compiling the results of the survey.

A great deal of time was spent by the senators on simple budget transfers and expenditures, leaving not much time for discussion of important student issues. Until a more efficient method of handling budget matters is found by a senate, a continuation of this trend looks unavoidable for next semester.

Tuition boost downed

Eiguren comments

The Idaho Board of Education passed a resolution against a tuition increase at a meeting in Boise, yesterday.

ASUI president Roy Eiguren spoke against the increase on behalf of representatives of three schools: Boise State College, Idaho State University and the University of Idaho.

The Board also passed a resolution for a $5 increase in student health fees for next semester, stating that it would be subject to review at the end of that time. The resolution further stated that a $1 service charge would be assessed the students for each visit to the health center.

Ken Marsey's tenure evaluation was discussed at the meeting and sent to the Board's planning commission, while the U of I — Big Sky Conference controversy was put on the agenda for today.

Enlightened Senate

The ASUI Senate is presently considering a bill to create a 14 member committee to study the desires of the students in the realm of a student newspaper and to study the present level of satisfaction of their publications.

Analysis of student satisfaction with all ASUI programs, including the Argonaut, is a step that is long overdue. Such studies, have, however, been resisted by several Senators. And it would seem that they have good reason to resist such a study, because such a study would inevitably reveal the lack of student support which the Senate itself has.

This particular bill, in fact, does not represent an attempt to study the relevance of the Argonaut. As it is constructed it is an attempt to stifle the one official ASUI program which has criticized the Senate and some of its programs. It has, it should also be noted, praised the work of some senators who have worked hard for student interests.

The Argonaut has since its original criticism, suggested that the Senate and other ASUI bodies, such as the Frosh Council, attempt to evaluate their relation to the students at this university. Argonaut editorials have said that both bodies are not relevant to the life of the average student.

If Senators had wondered why more than 60 per cent of the students at the U of I did not bother to vote in ASUI elections, they could have created a committee to study the situation. A survey could be prepared by the Political Science department or some other unbiased group. Student input might be enlightening.

If the Senators are interested in determining the relevancy of the ASUI to the life of the average student at the U of I the means are available. Student input might be enlightening.

If the Senators are interested in determining the "adequacy with which the Argonaut fulfills its duty, they might also be interested in determining the "adequacy with which the Senate fulfills its duty." Student input might be enlightening.

If the Senators are interested that the students have "ample opportunity to review programs designed in and for their behalf," they might consider the Senate's programs as they consider the Argonaut's programs. Student input might be interesting.

If the Senate really cares what the average student thinks about ASUI programs, why don't they ask the students? Student input would be enlightening.

Lucky winner

For the last few months the Student Chapter of the Wildlife Society has been selling raffle tickets. The lucky winner won a $100 gift certificate from any of the Moscow merchants.

Let me be the first to congratulate the President of the Student Chapter of the Wildlife Society for winning first prize. I would also like to congratulate the Student Chapter for having a president dedicated enough to contribute his 100 dollars to the club.

I'm not suggesting that the raffle was rigged, but wasn't it a lucky and happy circumstance that the major cost of running the raffle was kept within the chapter. Congrats again, and don't forget to look me up next time you run a raffle.

Favorite pastime

It seems to be a favorite pastime of students on this campus to knock the Argonaut. Before it is delivered to the dorms in the morning, they are up, asking why the "Damn Thing" isn't here yet.

The favorite expression is, of course, "The Rag, you know, it really sucks." At three o'clock one morning this guy crawled in our window, took off his shoes, and was bouncing up and down on the bed...knocking the Argonaut.

What many of us would like to know, then, is why they bother to read it...especially during class time. Does a week go by without an instructor telling, asking, or suggesting that "The Rag" be forgotten during his lecture? Mr. Byrd of the communications department may have come up with one solution this very morning. After waiting for papers to stop rattling and conversation about Jonnie Rivers to subside, he threatened to give a test over The Argonaut.

What's happening

Final wrap

by Mark Fritzier

Considering the finality of this issue, I had better have a last crack at itemizing the "happenings" available to you for the next few days.

Cabaret

We have a couple biggies this weekend. Tomorrow night, ASUI Programs and Alpha Phi Omega are sponsoring the second "Cabaret" nightclub in the SUB Ballroom. Those who caught the last one are probably looking forward to this one. This Cabaret will not feature the food but will feature some superb entertainment and music for dancing.

The headliner act is Mike Nuen, no doubt a household name for all of us. However, he is hoping to become one and, according to the news of his act on the coast and in Canada, he is an excellent humorist with an exciting act. Just reading about him, I feel he is worth a gamble of $1.50 per person, which is what it will cost you to go.

In all seriousness, I feel that the Cabaret will be a success and offers some unique entertainment for this weekend.

Christmas Concert

Another biggie—moving on with this compression job that I've begun so well—is the annual Vandaleers Christmas Concert at 8:00 p.m. Sunday in the University Auditorium. The repertoire will include many traditional holiday songs plus a condensed version of Berlioz' "The Childhood of Christ" and several South American folk carols, among other selections. I saw the concert last year and loved it. I expect at least as much this year. It's a good way to kindle that holiday spirit and it's also free.

For the western minded among you, the WSU Equestrian Club and Lariat Club is sponsoring a western dance at the Albion Grange tomorrow night beginning at 9:00 p.m. This is billed as a real western dance and everybody is welcome provided you can spring $1.00 a head for the privilege, which is not much if you dig cowboy music.

Faculty Originals

A rather different genre of music will be presented tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the Music Building Recital Hall. Students will be performing original works composed by members of the faculty.

Graduate student compositions were created by William Cope and Robert Knable. Faculty composers featured will be Landon Bilyeu, Lynn Skinner, Sandra Hahn, Ronald Klimke, and William Billingsly.

Movies

Among the movies we lead off with the selection offered by the Public Library at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall tonight. "Goin' Home" is a shorty with Arlo Guthrie accompanying himself and singing against appropriate background scenes.

"The Season" is about the commercialism of Christmas but about people and the season, as well. "Opus Op" is a wild flick of a performance by the famous Jeffrey Ballet with the music of "Crome Syrcus", a rock group. These flicks are, of course, free.

Film Society

I received a note from Charles Johnson, one of the gray eminences behind last year's Film Society informing me that the Society is not dead, merely re-grouping. They plan to get it on next semester with such films as "Birth of a Nation", "Fellini Satyricon", and "On the Waterfront," among others.

The Eight Days of Christmas are still counting down in the SUB. Rounding out the choral entertainment in the Lounge will be the Deary Junior High at noon today and the Lena Whitmore Junior High this afternoon at 2:00 p.m.

I didn't mention the local movies this time because I'm not impressed with the selection, typically, and you can find out the names by calling the Theatre Billboard yourself. I did see "Making It" playing downtown and don't highly recommend it, unless you're still in high school. It shows us the life of a priapic teen-ager doing his "thing" to any female he can seduce, including the coach's lonely wife (why are the wives of coaches in book and film always lonely—and horny?). The coach catches on and one day does an interesting calisthenic to our hero that leaves him writhing on the floor and clutching his, ah, brow.

Thin Study

The film explores thinly the life of a boy to whom "making it" with girls is an enterprise much the same as hustling drugs or publishing an underground newspaper are to a couple of his friends. He is a cynic who has marvelously adapted his considerable intellectual talents to appear in harmony with his society while at the same time raping its benefits.

The film does present a few interesting character studies, notably in the person of his English teacher. He is a tormented man but one who understands the boy while opposing him in a constant battle of philosophical and emotional wits.

"Making It" is shallow when it might have been great with better direction and script. Its conclusion, which is supposed to make us believe that the boy is waking up to his cynical inhumanity, is totally dissatisfying. It felt as if the company said, "Well, we're out of film. Wrap it up." I can recommend it for its character studies of his friends and associates only. The message is obvious.

I'm told that the SUB will be showing at 12:30 p.m. today a free screening of the film of the Idaho-BSC game. Check the Info Desk for place.

Dance Experience

The University Dance Theatre will be presenting a dance concert entitled "Dance Experience" tonight and tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. in the Women's dance studio in the Women's Gym. These dancers are marvelous and dedicated to the virtues of dance in self discovery and expression. They should be well worth seeing. The admission is $1.00 for students and $2.00 for non-students.

Wrap Up

That wraps it up for the weekend, the semester, and the year. It may also be wrapping it up for me, as I might not be around next semester. I've enjoyed it.

The infamously... The stupendous T-HOUSE NEWS

FREE U. INFO. Now that winter has definitely established itself in Moscow, the free University is offering some indoor activities. Supplementing marathon coffee consumption and fire-stoking are classes in photography (in the new T-House darkroom), astrology, and swimming at the U of I indoor pool. And for more information on that swimming class...

KEEPING YOUR HEAD ABOVE WATER: Want to learn to swim? Maybe brush up on a few strokes? Pick up a little basic lifesaving? The Free U. swim class will be held at the U of I pool. A tentative meeting will be at 3 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 9, at the pool. If you're interested, or have any questions, please contact Mikel at Talisman House, 885-6738.

NOTICE: For all those interested in helping out older people in a progressive way, there will be a meeting at 12 noon at Talisman House, Tuesday, Dec. 12, to implement a nursing home project in the Moscow area.

White Pine seeks members

Applications for new residents of White Pine hall, the university's experimental coed dorm, are available at the Housing Office in the Wallace Complex and at White Pine.

White Pine was a freshman dorm and all members were part of an interdisciplinary studies program. The second semester dorm will have no academic tie-in and is not limited to freshmen.

The application is a brief questionnaire which asks why the person wishes to move into White Pine, what he might be able to contribute to the hall, and what he hopes to learn from living in a coed situation.

Applicants will be screened by the present members. The applicant's name will not be made known to the screeners, however. Those accepted will be notified by Dec. 15.

Applications may be returned to the Housing Office and to White Pine. The deadline for applying is noon on Dec. 12. Further information is available from John Hecht or Jay Radavich at White Pine.

A control group is needed for a state-funded study of hair metal levels in mentally retarded children. The requirements are: that the child be considered to be normal, between 0 and 8 years of age and born in Idaho (preferably North Idaho). Anyone interested in allowing their child's hair to be used in the study may contact C. A. Park (882-0726)

U of I reassesses policy

The University's anti-discrimination policy has been given a hard look by an ad-hoc committee which will present its opinions to Campus Affairs Committee Monday.

Problems with the policy arose when the Agricultural Consultant Council held a meeting at the Lewiston Elk's Lodge on Nov. 10 in violation of Regent's policy.

The incident was called to the attention of the Juntura Committee and the matter was passed on to the Campus Affairs Committee by the Faculty Council for recommendation.

Interpretation and scope of the policy, plus enforcement procedures were the main issues. After much debate, the Campus Affairs Committee appointed the ad-hoc committee composed of its members and members of Juntura.

Report Prepared

Following meetings this week, a statement prepared by math professor William Voxman was adopted. In essence, the report will attempt to re-define parts of the policy and provide for an enforcement mechanism that was lacking when passed originally by the University general faculty.

A major point was clarified when it was decided to exclude application of the policy where religious beliefs are involved. The statement on this matter reads as follows: "Since the separation of Church and State is one of the accepted values of this country, the above policy does not apply to situations where religious beliefs are involved..."

The ad-hoc committee interpreted the policy to prohibit official University activities from taking place on the premises of any organization which has a discriminatory policy on the basis of race, color, sex, or national origin.

Individual Action

However, it was noted that individual members of the University community could speak at or participate in these events as private citizens. The statement then reads, "In this case, however, such individuals should be aware of the possible connotations that their individual participation may have for members of minority groups at the University."

Enforcement is to be provided by a five-member committee appointed by the President of the University. Members are to be the Student and Administrative Vice-President, a member of Juntura, a male and a female faculty member, and one student. At least one of these shall be a member of a minority group.

The enforcement committee would have duties to investigate infractions of the policy, respond to possible violations of the policy, and report any infraction to the President for appropriate action. The

The feeling of the ad-hoc committee was that this was an administrative matter and should be responsible to the administration.

statement further says that, "If it is felt that extreme extenuating circumstances necessitate a temporary exception to the policy, than an appeal may be made to the committee for permission to exercise such an exception. Appeals of this nature must be made prior to the occurrence of the event in question." Voxman concludes by stating that "The policy is not to be interpreted as a vendetta against any particular group, but rather is simply an expression of the University's concern with and attitude towards discriminatory practices."

Texas Instruments electronic calculator

FULLY PORTABLE, SLIDE RULE CALCULATOR. Easy to operate, the SR-10 allows most calculations possible with classical slide rules, but with split-second accuracy.

RECHARGEABLE NI-CAD BATTERIES FOR LOW-COST OPERATION.

AC adapter/charger included to charge batteries and operate calculator from household outlet. A switch is provided on the AC adapter/charger to permit operation on 50 Hz/220V power.

BUILT-IN RELIABILITY.

Bright red, LED (light emitting diode) display with distinct, easy-to-read characters. The display plus other solid-state components and a calculator-on-a-chip MOS/LSI circuit deliver long, trouble-free operation.

SMALL, COMPACT DESIGN

An easy-to-use portable replacement for the classical slide rule, the SR-10 calculator comes with a protective carrying case of quality vinyl material.

SPECIFICATIONS

Read-out: Texas Instruments manufactured 10-digit, 2 sign, light emitting display.

Overflow: [ sign on display indicates positive calculation overflow. Division by zero causes positive calculation overflow. E indicates negative calculation overflow.

Negative Sign: Minus sign appears on display to indicate true value—negative or positive.

Power source: Three replaceable NiCad batteries (AA size) that can be recharged hundreds of times are provided. AC adapter charger input 115 volts /60 Hz or 220 volts /50 Hz. UL and CSA approved.

Weight: Less than eight ounces.

Included: Calculator, adapter/charger, carry case and owner's manual.

KEYBOARD

The keyboard consists of 10 digit keys plus decimal point and 12 function keys. All keys are single function for simple problem entry. In addition to the standard four functions of addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, other SR-10 calculation capabilities include reciprocals (1/x), squares (x<sup>2</sup>), square root (√x), change sign (+ -), scientific notation (EE), automatic conversion to scientific notation when 8-digit mantissa overflows, and mixed calculations. Data may be entered in free form, that is floating point, scientific notation or any combination of the two.

DISPLAY

The 12-character (8-digit mantissa, 2 signs, 2-digit exponent) light emitting diode display is clearly visible from either hand-held or desk-top operation. The readout shows all numerals, floating decimal, negative signs, calculation overflow and error indications and a low battery warning. The calculator will display numbers as large as ±9.9999999 × 10<sup>±99</sup> (200 decade range).

WARRANTY

The Texas Instruments SR-10 electronic calculator is warranted for a period of one year from the original purchase date against defective materials and workmanship to the original purchaser.

Vandals whip Pirates

The Vandal basketballers, under the direction of head coach Wayne Anderson, got things together Tuesday night before a hometown crowd in Memorial Gymnasium and handily defeated the Whitworth Pirates, 67-52.

The game started out as a defensive battle with neither team doing much scoring and both teams turning over the ball several times. However, Idaho then started to take advantage of several fast break plays and moved ahead to stay.

Midway through the first half of play, the Vandals connected on 13 straight points to move ahead by 12 and then continued to expand that lead, at one point leading by over 20 points.

Throughout most of the game, Coach Anderson was substituting in different players so that he could get a look at them all and give them some game experience.

Nerves

Although a case of the early game nerves caused the Vandals to turn the ball over many times, they showed a lot more overall speed than last year's club and were able to use their superior height to an advantage as they blocked many of Whitworth's inside shots. Roger Davis, a 6' 9" sophomore, led in that department as he blocked seven or eight shots besides being the top scorer of the game with 16 points.

Idaho's quick guards, Frank Munos and Tyrone Fitzpatrick, were tied for second in scoring for the Vandals with eight points each. Fitzpatrick, who shows many of the tricky moves of last year's Malcolm Taylor, missed several easy layups and with some better shooting, promises to be one of the Vandals top starters.

Showing the apparent depth they have, Coach Anderson substituted Chris Clark and Jim Valentino in at the guard spots and they put on a speed show of their own, scoring seven and five points respectively.

First Win

The Vandals shot well throughout the game, making 56 per cent of their shots from the field in the first half and making 13 of 19 free throws for the game.

The win was Idaho's first, having lost games on the road to the University of California at Santa Barbara and to the University of Nevada at Reno. The Vandals will be at home against Sacramento State Friday and then meet touring San Jose State Saturday night.

At halftime of the Whitworth-Idaho game, Ken Muhlbeier and his family were honored. Muhlbeier has been named first team center for the West team of the East-West Shrine game, first team center for the Pops Warner Alumni team and first team center for the All-Big Sky Conference team. The Shrine game in which Ken will be playing is scheduled for Dec. 30 and will be nationally televised.

In the preliminary game, Spokane Falls Community College easily defeated the Idaho JVs, 92-77. The leading scorers for the junior college were Ervin Brown, with 24 points and Tony Hicks with 19 points.

Idaho's Jayvees won the top scoring honors, however, as explosive Steve Weist scored 36 points, the second time he has reached that figure so far this year.

Ah! The long awaited literary issue is here. A combined effort by poets, artists, photographers, and the Arg staff. We will welcome your comments over lunch in the SUB, or by letter.

A newspaper is not the best medium for literature and art, but perhaps this issue will serve until Amython's re-birth.

Contributors may pick up their submissions starting today at the SUB information desk.

*Watching the rain fall I walk over the falling-leaves covering the sidewalks like Bandages.

*Cold days foster thought of a warmer yesterday.
I think of it less now.
My body seems to acclimate itself to windy mornings and chilly nights.
And you?
I know somewhere in your self-acclimated life you too suffer breakdowns.
But the snow is coming closer and there are so many holes in my weathered coat.*

*In these colder days when the air doesn't warm itself -
I am reminded of you;
Hurrying past me as you run to keep warm
I am chilled by the swiftness of your shadow as it all too quickly passes me by.*

What is the Amython? The Amython has been for some years now a struggling publication of students of the University of Idaho, incorporating student artwork in earlier, more "underground" editions and using photography entirely in last spring's issue. Last spring's issue is available at:

- 1) U of I bookstore
- 1) Wind, Sand & Stars
- 3) SUB Information Desk
- 4) WSU bookstore

Poetry contained therein was submitted by known poets of the little-magazine media throughout the country. We can be proud to have had a literary magazine that has caught the interest of nation-wide poets in what was a student-funded magazine.

No longer. In a Senate meeting of last spring, the Amython, which had been budgeted as are the Argonaut and Gem, was not sponsored because some people felt that it was not representative of the students of the U of I.

Little magazines can receive funds from the Idaho Commission on the Arts and Humanities, and pending further interest, Amython may live again, if some funding can be obtained.

Why Amython? Amython is one contemporary outlet for artistic or interested students which has offered them an area of competition common to most large schools. Operating on a criteria of artistry existing everywhere, a great many kinds of endeavor have been made to show what Moscow, the Palouse, the Northwest, really is. It has been a healthy outlet for creative peoples sadly limited by a small following, as a small unit in a large bureaucracy.

The "students" have seen fit to do away with Amython. No doubt another type of literary magazine will spring up. No institution of higher learning is without economically-feasible outlets for its creative peoples for long. Money is the excuse for its death, in form, though it had and still has many friends. It is a symbol of creative freedom and cannot die if the people care.

W.D., an introduction

Great men are made not born.
 Like hot air balloons and dead fish they seek their own levels.
 Slow-rising from purple depths of adolescent fantasies
 They burst full blown; pregnant toads, bobbing like cork boats on the lemon yellow waters of their madness.
 Walking backwards and grinning at strange multiple shadows they climb impossible soft glass mountains only to slip-fall off the edge.
 Sure, he's cute, but would you want your daughter to marry one?
 Watch him run through tall green midnight grass, chasing skunks up the long marble steps of the old Law Building, tripping over busy young lovers in his path and walking barefoot on the thin tubular steel railing of the Lafayette Street bridge - tempting God to send him to the hungry trains sixty-five feet below.
 Watch him light 100 candles under a railroad bridge.
 one each night in memory of a memory of a . . . . .
 Remember that girl? (grinning cat-faced girl in the library)
 white rose and an offer of unfulfilled nothings.
 "But I don't know your name and haven't finished Chapter three. . ."
 She looked troubled and more than a little frightened
 She didn't know the rules.
 Rules? There aren't any rules. He grins, the soft glass lopes of his private mountain fading quickly in the distance.
 Falling through crystal air he cries, "I can do anything, anything I want to:

Walk thirty miles for Kris Thompson,
 Put a dead tree in Jane's front yard,
 Wear a white tie and float - falling Forever through crystal pure air."

ASHES

"I love you."
 The words were dry and not real they floated then fell on the dirty ground
 I watched them turn to ashes
 I stood to grab the ashes but too late the wind came and blew them from my reach I watched the ashes fly away and disappear
 I know you were gone

Hustlers

My hair was easily as long as his, but I started straight ahead and didn't smile or show a trace of emotion as we sped past him at seventy miles per hour somewhere in Northern Nevada.

He stood alongside the highway leaning on a green Kelty pack not even sticking out his thumb.
 Why bother. Wasn't I driving one of those converted busses that spell dope and a quick hassle free ride to L.A. Somehow I still remember his face: flash frames from an old slow motion movie.
 He was giving me the standard help a freak slouch, but as we drew nearer, began to wave, slowly, then in frantic semaphore bursts.
 I think he gave me the finger just before we passed him. Goddamn hippies I said aloud and hoped she hadn't heard. I turned the tape deck up a notch and the music of the Rolling Stones filled the truck.

I'd picked her up only a few minutes ago - fifteen miles down the road. I looked across the seat.
 She was nervously fingering her five rings and seemed like she'd be more at home wearing Bobbie Brooks button downs than in the clothes she had on: tie-dyed halter top, worn Levis and a peeling suntan.
 How can you be a strung-out freak at seventeen? She noticed, when I roared past the lone hitchhiker, stranded in the sun, but didn't comment on the situation.
 She smiled a seventeen year old smile and began to tap her bare feet in time with the music.

Chapter 27

Such as has been given, we are far beyond.
It cannot be touched with but the relish of sunrise, culminating with shards, shreds of nonsense.
We know not what to do with our time.

There is a male humor and a female humor operating here, unmixed yet entwined within themselves, an equanimous assault of logic.
The rape of logic is the fullest pleasure, though rape be logical, regions of our honor disdained, and furthermore — the insidious demands of fortune. If your variables have limit then, must one be always writing for himself?

Take your poison with a grain of salt. Down the hallways an accolade so highly pitched, the children shriek and fall unconscious, succored by their dreams.
We are a victim, but there are many others.

Trips may become an element of surprise. Some little revolution happened here a short time ago, I feel that. The designs of our dentist have not been breached, and several cold aires blow in.

Just a smack freak with nothing to do. To breach the idiosyncrasies is the beauty of education, such as has seemed impossible, still is in its own way.
We are not capable of engeandering more, thank God.

Marsha has become a Sister Carrie and Linda her Lola.
Weigel bananas wept through the morn, their lot.
"Lots may be bought at $.50 each, "ladies and gentlemen, only half a dollar." The badger was quick.

As if a quirk of luck, sonorous to our temperament, we found Sonora to be not far away. It is the breach of wit, if you are not able to concentrate or scrutinize, nature helps you flow. It is magic. I wish to die.

The Black Virgin presides, with Athenogoras near, in a symphony to the bedazzlement of the peasants and we are still within its conservative reaction, since the peasants were confronted with a tradgedy for which they had no use.

What one dwells on, one becomes (as much as nature allows) until he either forshadows or passes it by. That foreshadowing may be called affection or affectation, whichever suits our purpose.
It has become redundant.

When I stand in the foreshadow, I cannot quash it nor can I deal with it in any way. I can walk off and have done so but so remain away. It runs askew, the fat logic of our brethern, and threatens to hang us.

Effetery is dead, having survived all such turmoil as logic devised, the quelling like from afar blackened.
A symbolic lack of effigy still remains, looking for a champion, of which I am none, alone.

Fleshy tits bit into my lapels, I crie for succor, and the rank impression is deal cards to our alack. A very thin sheet of membrane was the ivory of the tuskers.

"Aimless mercy has called sir," implied Habib," and wishes to speak with you!" Habib was such a foolish old Moroccan.
"I will have none of her!" he replied, our reverand reflect the considerations, a few lost amidst the denseness, the fog had brought."

Fog-blight was a new creature of this sun. He lay quietly in the fog-bound mysteries, waiting — Blink.
Ape-bound mysteries, awaiting (hysteria waited) three maniacs away, (voicing his disgust to the angels. Such are the shreds of twilight, take what you know and use it.

Vaults lay bare in every direction. This was not the Morocco I knew. Let your impetuses be unleashed.

dan stephenson

Snakes shed their skins every year but when the old oak table in my parent's dining room began to delaminate, (having been subjected to steam heat and twenty-three years of hard use) revealing plywood under a thin but expertly crafted veneer of oak, it would shed no more.
It remained, as long as I remembered it, a plywood table — cleverly disguised.

The master craftsmen who could once create wonderful illusions by laminating exotic hardwood veneers to nondescript plywood cores have all died — dusty antiques remain. Now, the people want injection molded plastic.

Jane was one of the last.
I still marvel at the way she so carefully matched Sunburnt Amber panty hose and Polished Bronze lip gloss and Sunflower eyeliner with the long yellow dress she'd made from a Vogue pattern.
You'd think it was a matter of life or death and maybe it was. She worked in an art museum in downtown Memphis and tried to project herself as one of those young-sexy urbanite-sophisticates who reside between covers of fashion magazines.

She knew I still wrote at times and made an effort to point out how much she enjoyed poetry. I liked her face and took her to one of Fred's parties, thinking she might like his party-time monologues.
Pseudo-intellectual bullshit sounds suspiciously like wisdom to the virgin ears of strangers, and Fred, sensing a new audience somehow managed between tokens to remble on and on about contemporary poets dropping all the names he could:
Roethke, Snodgrass, Dugan, not to mention John Berryman, Dickey, and Richard Wilbur;

Jane brought up Rod McKuen and when everyone started laughing, she began to cry.
Tears ran like rain down her face dissolving the Sandy-Peach makeup she had lightly brushed on earlier in the evening.
Her cheeks were plywood, hidden till now by translucent icing. We left. On the way home she told me she grew up in Marvell, Arkansas.
Her father raised chickens and liked Johnny Cash records.

She was apologizing.
I couldn't get her to stop.

For A Friend

You ask me friend,
 What you will be
 To me after you are gone.

You will be like the golden wheat,
 After harvest; you will nourish me,
 For months to come.
 You will be like the memory of,
 Freshly fallen snow that comes to me,
 In summer.

Thinking of you will make it better,
 Like the memory of the summer sun,
 Does in January.
 I will be able to eat the fruit you,
 Have given me all year long.
 Like the sweet smell of jasmine and rose,
 I can breathe you in forever.

You are another piece to my puzzle,
 And you have added another man,
 To my chess set.
 You have tried to make my set complete,
 Yet knowing it will never be complete,
 I thank you.

I also thank you for the dreams, visions,
 And faith, and for the beers,
 Sleepless nights and fulfilling days.
 And I thank you for the sunshine,
 And not just on the beach.
 But most of all I thank you
 For being a person.

You know friend? I believe.
 It is not how long you have known someone,
 But how well you knew him.
 And it is not how long you have loved someone,
 But how well you have loved him.

The Second Fall

All the men came into the center of town, and turned their faces toward God.
"Our lord," they said, "we want the answer;
we have met and concurred: we want the answer, now —!"

Nothing happened.

The old men left the streets.
A few of the younger, cynical ones, swearing under their breaths, went into the bars, or hurried off, afraid of having wasted their time.
The rest remained, breaking up into little groups, like men do around a union hall.

Then it came, the second fall!

What remains is a heap of broken glass and in the shops without men, a windowless air, and the lonesome whir of an up-side-down automobile, wheels spinning.

(I do not claim to understand; what I have seen I do not believe.)

I am the last one. It ends now. . . .

Laments of an Olive Pit

Nestled calm and sheltered there with sleek warm comfort all around, frolicked sure the Olive Pit ignoring fate and void of sound.

elaine ambrose

A fat man came with puffy eyes and plucked the olive from its nest chewed the skin and juicy womb and gallantly spit out the rest.

Naked, lonely and slobbered on the slimy pit rolled out of sight.
A baby cried, a horn blared out,
and so expired the endless night.

A Builder of Bridges

I sat with a Moslem hoja, white-haired and wise,
I, searching for the truth, he firm in the finding of it.
And he pointed his wise old finger at me (every part of him was wise and old,
"Your mission in life is not as a teacher,
But as a builder of bridges."
So I am a builder of bridges, not with the skill of architect or engineer,
Possessing no slide rule or scale-model plans meticulously executed.
Equipped only with my frailty and questioning mind (Which I curse as a demon, disturbing my peace).
"A builder of bridges,"
A crossing the chasm between Allah and God, between Kismet and Predestination, between Mohammed and Jesus.
Painfully piling stone upon stone for the crossing from disdain to appreciation, from envy to admiration,
from imitation to creativity,
from chaos to order,
from idleness to activity.
And quietly, the people cross...
Those on the far side walk arm-in-arm, gesturing, chattering.
I cross last, welcomed only by vanishing backs.
I linger on the bridge, filling the chasm (now an on-flowing river)
With on-flowing tears.

Houses that Last Past Their People

O you flag men, once again your servants
 Have reset the table.
 So many times under bloodshot skies,
 They've repieced the patchwork.
 And now, after so many tears, we're told of A poker morning peace that has ended
 This flint and stick party.
 But have we walked down our last doors?
 When will we again thrust our hatchet flag,
 Into the jugular vein of another country,
 And watch our screaming green outlaw band
 Ride down its - river flow of blood.
 You with stars on your shoulders and bars
 Over your eyes, can't you see further Than their dusty sunsets?
 Won't you throw down your die of sadness?
 Slash at the wrists of your tower games,
 And end this chemistry of madness.

Hunting Out of Season

We learned to find clams by looking Closely to tidal pools for signs
Of excrement. Clam shit. Fucking

Little white turds. It took some time To learn the difference between These minute signs and the small lime

Colored droppings and rotting green
Fragments littering the ocean Floor, but once you'd been trained, it seemed

Oh so easy - the slow motion
Mollusks never even had a chance.
Whenever we got the notion

We dug them out - the absurd dance
Of the hunter and the hunted.
Perhaps we thought it might enhance

The clam's humble life, so stunted
After bleak years buried under Ocean gravels, to be shunted

Quickly from life to death. Wonder How they liked it - their shells shattered
On a large smooth rock. Suck. Plunder.

His blood is wine
His body, bread

Financial aids help many continue education

If a U of I student really needs financial help to go to school, there are many programs available to come to his rescue.

However, a problem arises, according to Leo McGarvey, of Student Financial Aids, in that "the student who most needs help is usually the last one to look for it."

The Financial Aids Department does no active recruiting, according to McGarvey, assistant to Director Charles Decker. So essentially, the student seeking aid must find out for himself where to go and whom to talk to.

Brochure Help

Once the student has found the office in UCC 228 ("around the corner and down the stairs," as the sign says) he is helped by a brochure describing the different types of aid available.

McGarvey said "We have done everything we could to make the brochure as complete as possible," and it does a good job of explaining the programs and the application procedure.

The brochure tells that "Since financial aid from the University of Idaho must be considered supplementary to the efforts of the student and his family," the element of financial need must be estimated.

This is done through the use of a budget, estimated by the student, and a calculation of expected contribution by parents if the student does not claim financial independence.

Parents Confidential Statement

The parental contribution is estimated by the College Scholarship Service in Berkeley, California, through the use of a Parents' Confidential Statement.

McGarvey emphasized that because this is a national service using computer calculation, there is no favoritism. He noted that the financial need estimation used to be done within the department. But no more — it is all "equal opportunity."

Once the student has established that he needs additional money to go to school he is considered for one of the programs. He may be automatically funneled into the program checked on his application or the department may try to fit the student into a different one deemed more suitable for his needs.

The major types of aid are:

Scholarships. Currently, about $225,000 is given in outright grants to some 700 U of I students. The grants are based mainly on "scholastic achievement and/or potential" and partly on financial need.

Equal Opportunity Grants. These are Federal grants aimed for the undergraduate whose family's gross income is under $5,000. Each EOG must be matched by funds from one of the other programs.

Student Loans. The major loans are National Direct Student Loans and Federally Guaranteed Student Loans. The first is done through the University and is aimed at families with annual income up to $15,000. The second program consists of borrowing from participating banks with the Federal government guaranteeing repayment.

Work — study. Under work — study students are employed in such University jobs as typing, clerical work, library jobs and lab jobs. Students are usually fit into the departments of their major study, according to McGarvey.

A new program known as BOG (Basic Opportunity Grant) was recently created by Congress.

When asked if Idaho was low comparative to other area schools in the amount of aid it provides, McGarvey only mentioned that a few area schools received a little more federal money than the U of I does. He felt that this was only indicative that the students' family incomes were generally lower in those schools than those of students at the U of I.

Winter Session Credit Courses (Dec. 22—Jan. 12)

Special Programs Office

The following represents courses that have been proposed or requested for offering during the Inter-Session between semesters. The offering of each course is subject to a minimum enrollment as indicated. To be certain that the minimum number has enrolled, it is required that registration fees be paid in advance by December 15 at the Summer Sessions and Special Programs Office in the Adult Education Building. Based on enrollments through December 15, decisions will be made on which courses will be offered and an announcement made on Monday, December 18. Registration fees are $18.00 per semester credit hour.

- Ag. E. 502 - Directed Study, 1 or 2 credits (contact Department Chairman for project approval)
- Bot. 499 - Workshop - How to Know the Lichen, 1 credit (minimum 12 students), Doyle Anderegg (January 8-12, 1:00-4:00 p.m.)

- M. E. 502 - Directed Study, 1 or 2 credits (contact Department Chairman for project approval)
- Pol. Sc. 299 and 499 - Directed Study, 1 to 3 credits, Dr. Syd Duncombe, (contact Professor Duncombe for project approval)
- Psych. 400c - Human Relations, 2 credits (minimum 12 students), John Hipple (January 5-14, 9:00-12:00; 1:30-4:30; 7:00-10:00) (At Ross Point), also contact Nancy Barber, Psych. Department to pay housing and food service charges.
- Psych. 400d - Theory of Self Management, 2 credits (minimum 12 students), John Lloyd, (January 5-14, 9:00-12:00; 1:30-4:30; 7:00-10:00) (At Ross Point) also contact Nancy Barber, Psych. Department to pay housing and food charges.
- Speech 131 - Fundamentals of Speech, 2 credits (minimum 12 students) Paul Miles (January 2-12, 7:00-9:40 p.m.)

Courses must meet the equivalent of three class periods per day for five days per credit. Thus, holidays missed will be made up with Saturday sessions.

Other individual type courses, such as directed study and research and thesis may be arranged if faculty are available for supervision during this period of time. Students interested in such projects during the Inter-Session should contact the appropriate department chairman and ask that he direct a memo to the Summer Sessions-Special Programs Office authorizing offering of the course, indicating faculty member who will be in charge, and including the name of the students who will be enrolled. Student should then report to the Summer Sessions-Special Programs Office to pay fees.

In the event that the course for which the student wishes to register is not offered, all fees will be refunded. If the course is offered as scheduled, none of the fee is refundable after December 15.
