SUB fee increase decisions due

By KENTON BIRD of the Argonaut staff

A $5 per semester fee increase to finance Student Union operations has been requested by the administration and will be considered by the Board of Regents at its meeting this week in Boise.

The proposal for $5 for the SUB comes in the wake of a similar $5 fee increase for the stadium roof approved by the board last month. If approved, the latest increase would raise student fees to $200 per semester beginning in January.

The SUB Board, an all-student committee, has endorsed the proposed fee increase—a fact which the administration points out in its proposal to the regents.

A special ASUI Senate committee, however, has opposed the fee increase and instead has proposed that a portion of the SUB building bond fee be redirected to finance operations.

In a report to be presented to the entire senate at its meeting tonight, the senate's SUB study committee recommends diverting some of the reserve being accumulated by present bond fees, which it says can be done without jeopardizing repayment of the bonds.

The SUB suffered a $8119 loss last year, mostly as a result of increased costs for food and higher salaries and wages. To offset this and provide working capital for this year, the regents approved a $25,000 loan to the SUB from its bond reserves.

At its June meeting, the Board of Regents rejected the proposed Student Union budget for this year, stating that it was projected with expenses unrealistically low and income unreasonably high.

According to SUB Board Chairman Gordon Slyter, a $5 per semester fee increase would serve a four-fold purpose:

- to pay the loan required to meet last year's deficit.
- to create the ability to cope with inflation this year.
- to provide working capital for expanded auxiliary services.
- to enable the SUB to offer expanded student programs.

The bond reserves have been developing from a $35 per year student fee instituted in 1961. Part of these excess bond reserves are being used to finance the remodeling project now under construction at the SUB.

According to Fay's report, funds for SUB operations will not be obtained by reducing the present reserve but rather by increasing that reserve by smaller increments.

The committee also recommended:
—An already-appointed student committee be directed to analyze SUB operations, develop a system of cost accounting for the facility and prepare an operations manual for employees.

—A serious consideration be given to possible reorganization of SUB management. "More firm and concise job descriptions should also be drafted to minimize vagueness," the panel's report said.

—The SUB cafeteria-fountain and game room, presently considered as "non-subsidized" operations, be required to break even financially.

—The main building be closed during the summer months with only the satellite SUB remaining open for summer school students. This could be "in the better interests of a majority of students," the report explained.

—The SUB begin a program to promote its services to the students in an attempt to increase revenue.

Should the senate adopt the committee's report opposing the $5 fee increase, ASUI President Dirk Kempthorne may find himself caught in the middle at the regents meeting later this week.

Kempthorne has previously taken a cautious stand on any fee increase for the SUB but acknowledged Monday he would probably oppose the $5 raise if the senate took that stand.

"If the senate presents a sound case for diverting bond monies instead of raising fees and if I feel comfortable in presenting that to the regents, I'll support that viewpoint," Kempthorne told the Argonaut.

Beer license, fee payment plan also to be discussed by regents

A proposed deferred payment plan for student fees and a request aimed at obtaining a beer and wine license for the ASUI golf course will be considered by the University of Idaho's Board of Regents this week.

The payment proposal—a type of "learn now, pay later" plan—would allow students to defer payment of up to 60 per cent of tuition and fees for a semester.

Under the plan, at least 40 per cent of the charges must be paid at the time of registration along with a variable non-refundable service charge.

For an out-of-state student paying both $195 in fees and $500 in tuition, a payment of $293 would be required at the beginning of the semester rather than the total amount of $695.

Roger Davis (25) laid up two points against the University of Puget Sound Saturday night as the Vandals opened their 1974-75 basketball season with a 79-76 victory. Details of the game are on page 5. (Photo by Mike Helbling.)

The program sets service charges of $5 for amounts less than $100 deferred, $10 for amounts from $100 to $300 and $15 for amounts more than $300. The deferred balance would be payable in two equal installments which would be due by Oct. 10 and Nov. 10 in the fall and Feb. 10 and March 10 in the spring.

Students would sign promissory notes for the balance owed, according to the proposal. Students who withdraw from school during the semester would be held responsible for the difference between the amount that would normally be refunded and the amount paid.

The ASUI is seeking permission from the regents to apply for a beer and wine license for the golf course in an attempt to increase revenue for the facility.

ASUI President Dirk Kempthorne said student leaders have consulted with the city attorney and Idaho's attorney general regarding such a license and it appears likely a license would be granted if the regents approved.

Some change in the zoning for the clubhouse might be necessary because of the golf course's present proximity to a residential area, Kempthorne said.

A beer license is expected to increase the golf course's revenue both by the income the bar itself would generate as well as by the increase in play at the golf course that would probably result from the attraction of a bar.

The request for a beer license for the golf course is seen by most observers as a prelude for the seeking of a beer or liquor license for the Student Union.

Campus directory change considered by council

Consideration of catalog changes for the college of business and economics, and discussion on the campus directory will lead off today's meeting of the Faculty Council.

The council meets weekly on Tuesday afternoons at 3:10 in the faculty office building lounge.

At last Tuesday's meeting, Student Representative David Warnick moved that the changes from the college of business and economics not be given routine approval, but be considered as a separate agenda item.

Included in the list of catalog changes is one changing Accounting 131-132, to Accounting 201-202. Corresponding changes are made in the upper-level accounting courses.

In other business, the council created an "Audiovisual Committee" composed of eleven members. The committee shall recommend policy and procedures for the audiovisual, photography, and instructional materials preparations services on campus. Faculty Council member George Roberts of the art and architecture department stressed the need for a graphics service on campus. He pointed out that the U of I was way behind the other state schools in this area.

An old policy on "outside employment" was considered, and the Faculty Council decided to leave it out of the University Handbook. Most members contended the regents' policy on "outside consultation" had superseded this policy, originally passed in 1958.

An Affirmative Action form which had been distributed in the college of letters and science was discussed at the meeting. A question on the form asking each faculty member's religion drew much criticism.

One Faculty Council member called the form "well-intentioned but hare-brained snooping." Other questions on the form drawing fire were concerning marital status, and number of children. According to an administrator at the meeting, these questions were included for the benefit of the University News Bureau, not the Affirmative Action office.

The governing body received a memo from Dr. Elizabeth Stevenson, who is serving as chairman of the Faculty Affairs Committee. This committee is seeking comments on how the tenure-competency review process is working.

Last spring, the University adopted procedures to conform with new policy requiring student participation in tenure recommending for faculty members. In addition, the new policy provides for competency review of all faculty members with tenure at least every fifth year.

An addition to her memo states: "At the time a faculty member was recommended for and placed on tenure, that faculty member was presumed to be competent. If the competence of a tenured faculty member is open to substantial and legitimate challenge subsequent to that action, the institutional arrangements of the university are at least partly responsible, either directly or indirectly, for that change due to one or more of the following: the lack of stimulation, motivation, or adequate supervision; the lack of research funds, facilities, or assistance; a relatively high teaching load; requiring faculty members to teach out of their area of specialization or the lack of adequate funds for faculty attendance at professional meetings or seminars or the prevailing salary scale."

Anyone interested in commenting on the new procedures and policy is asked to contact the Faculty Affairs Committee.

Today's council meeting will also have for its discussion a draft statement by Faculty Council Chairman Tony Rigas which urges the Board of Regents to consider several items before deciding whether Professor Everett Sieckmann of the physics department should be dismissed.

Sieckmann, who received tenure when the University adopted tenure in 1967 (prior to that the U of I had worked on a "continuing appointment" basis), has been recommended for dismissal by the physics department and the academic vice-president.

Sieckmann appealed his case, and the appeals board voted 3-2 to recommend that he stay on.

Rigas states: "The competency review system is new this year and deserves the chance to prove itself. If the decision of the Sieckmann hearing board is overturned, then we cannot expect more than a pro forma fulfillment of the competency-review system."

The Faculty Council Chairman goes on to say in his draft statement: "Much can be learned from the Sieckmann case to assist us in formulating viable procedures. We hope that the Board of Regents will recognize the faculty's efforts to improve professional standards."

Senate considers board appointments for stadium

Last Tuesday's ASUI Senate meeting was cancelled, but it is scheduled to meet tonight at 7 p.m. Among the bills up for discussion will be the final appointments to the stadium board.

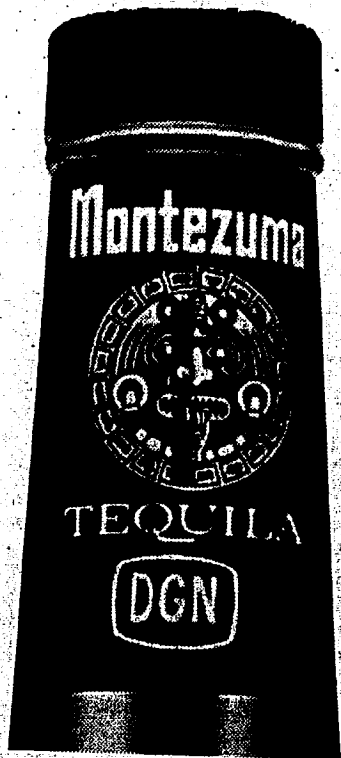

A bill now before the senate would confirm the appointment of five students to the board; Chairman Mark Beatty, Elizabeth Brown, Irwin Brown, John Hecht and Greg Lutman. Beatty and Lutman were members of the senate committee which negotiated with the administration over the stadium board and other matters such as the cost and duration of the fee increase.

The entertainment budget will receive $1034 to cover cost overruns in that department if another bill is passed.

Old bills scheduled for consideration include the bill for reimbursement of Dean Johnson for money he spent for the extension cords at the Blue Mountain IV project. A resolution condemning the principle of such reimbursement in the future is also to be considered.

Interviews for media positions to be held

Interviews for student media positions scheduled for this week will be open to students, according to Dave Carlson, Communications Board director.

Positions open are Argonaut editor, KUOI station manager and handbook editor. Interviews, conducted by the board, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday and if necessary, at the same time Thursday.

Although the interviews will be open, the board reserves the right to hold an executive session at which all but voting members of the board and the director would be asked to leave, Carlson said.

All persons attending may direct questions to prospective media heads after board members have finished their questioning, he explained,

Applicants for a particular position may not sit in on the interviews of other persons applying for the same position.

Applicants are asked to specify on the application which evening they plan to attend, Carlson said. Interviews will be closed if all applicants are interviewed Wednesday.

The following schedule for interviews is planned for both nights: Argonaut editor, 7-7:40 p.m.; KUOI station manager, 7:40-8:20 p.m., and handbook editor, 8:20-9 p.m.

Applications are available at the ASUI office and should be completed and returned by 5 p.m. today, Carlson said.

Applicants should be prepared to outline their interests, including any plans they might have for the position they are seeking.

Committee for Student Rights says resident fees unlawful

No more "registration fees? Impossible? It just might not be.

The elimination of student registration fees for Idaho residents attending the University of Idaho is the goal of a new organization, the Committee for Student Rights.

David Warnick, a spokesman for the group said, "The charter of this University forbids the charging of tuition to any resident of Idaho. We believe these so-called registration fees are a transparent subterfuge designed to circumvent the prohibition against tuition."

John Orwick, another member of the group's interim steering committee, noted that the Idaho Supreme Court has ruled on numerous occasions that the University charter is incorporated in the Idaho constitution.

"We think that it's about time the University began conducting itself in accordance with the law by which it was created," Orwick said.

Warnick said the steering committee is in the process of organizing a permanent structure for the group. "We are currently contacting and involving student leaders representing a wide variety of interests," he added.

"The Committee for Student Rights isn't really a new organization," Orwick said, "It has been active sporadically since 1966, whenever the need has arisen to protect student rights from encroachment by the University administration."

Previous activities of the committee included the securing of regents approval for a statement of Student Rights in 1970, and a successful court challenge in 1971 against University residency requirements for non-resident tuition.

Know why we carry Advent speakers?
 Because they're terrific, all three of them. You can spend a tubful of money and not do nearly as well.

The reason that Advent speakers, largely on the strength of word-of-mouth advertising, have become the standards of value in the stereo business is that they do exactly what they are represented to do.

They weren't designed in imitation of anyone else's, or to make a broad line of speakers with entries every ten dollars or so to make sure to get everyone's money. What they do is what you really hoped for, at a price that's less than you expected to pay.

There are three Advents. The original which costs $115.00 to $130.00 depending on cabinet finish, was designed to compete with the most expensive speakers in every audible respect for a fraction of their price. The Smaller Advents, which cost $79.00, have the same range as the originals (not close, but the same) and essentially the same sound, but they won't play quite as loud. The new Advent/2's, which cost $60.00 come within a half-octave at the bottom end of the other two (plenty low enough for the heaviest rock stuff and virtually everything else), and are the lowest-priced speakers you can find with absolutely convincing overall sound.

Now. The way Advents help us to set thing up, we can offer three systems - at $325.00, $409.00 and $639.00 based on the original, the Smaller, and the Advent/2. Each one of them has a good reason for being that's based on people's real needs and each one of them is unbeatable at, or anywhere near, the price.

State of the Union

A $5 fee increase for SUB operations is on the agenda for this week's Board of Regents meeting.

At first glance, it appears that the increase is necessary in order to repay a $25,000 loan incurred to cover a deficit at the SUB last year as well as to cope with spiraling inflation.

And the administration is quick to point out in its proposal to the regents that the $5 fee increase has been endorsed by the appointed student members of SUB Board.

Not mentioned, however, is the fact that the fee increase has not been endorsed by the students' elected representatives, the ASUI Senate.

The senate has been wary of a fee increase for the SUB from the beginning (in contrast to its position on the stadium roof) and appointed a committee to see if there weren't some alternatives to an increase in SUB fees.

The committee did its homework and discovered an alternative not pursued by either the SUB Board or administration that appears very plausible.

Instead of increasing student fees by $5, the committee has suggested redirecting $5 per semester from SUB building bond fees for financing SUB operations. These fees are not only making required payments on bonds but are also building a sizeable reserve—part of which is financing the current SUB remodeling project.

There's some question as for what purposes excess bond reserves can be used. Whether "maintenance and operation" of the building could include such subsidiary operations as the cafeteria and the game room remains to be seen.

But it's an alternative definitely worth exploring. We urge the entire senate to support its committee's proposal rather than a fee increase.

And we hope the Board of Regents takes a look at the idea, too. If it appears the plan wouldn't be workable immediately, perhaps the $5 fee increase could be imposed for one semester only to repay that $25,000 loan.

But on a permanent basis, consideration should be given to some internal financial juggling; or if that isn't possible, a cutback in SUB operations—rather than a fee increase.

Someone else got fooled

Editor's note: The following editorial appeared in the ISU Speculum issue of Nov. 22. While some of the facts may be erroneous, the sentiments expressed are heartening.

U of I students are actually paying closer to $15 per semester for the stadium roof; plus $37.50 for "Athletic Facilities," which include the Swimming Center, and the rest of the Stadium.

The $5 fee is simply the increase necessary to fund the covered stadium.

Students at the University of Idaho recently made the same mistake as ISU students did a few years ago—they got sucked into paying for an athletic complex. Fortunately, U of I students only have to pay for the roof of their stadium, but that roof costs more than the whole Minidome.

The students and senate of Idaho should have realized that they are getting ripped off, just like ISU students. However, whereas we have to pay an incredible $25 per semester for a facility that we can seldom use and don't really own (the State of Idaho is in possession of the title), Idaho students will only have to pay $5 per semester for a facility that they won't in all probability, be able to use except as occasional spectators.

If the students at Idaho colleges are going to be fooled into paying for their own athletic arenas, or even for a good portion of one, then it is only fair that the State help us out by paying for academic facilities, like a new library. We're here to do more than build Minidomes, but without even a sufficient library, that's all there is to do around here.

Our new library is waiting for more finances, since the original $5 million won't be enough to pay for the original floorplan. Let's hope the state legislature can scrape up the rest in the next session. If it can't, we could sell the Dome and invest it in the library. For Sale by Owners would look real nice on the Minidome.

We can beat the fee increase

To the editor:

Recently, the ASUI Senate voted unanimously to raise student fees by $5 a semester. That is $10 a year and $40 for an average student to pay over his college career. All of that comes to about $75,000 every year.

The Senate voted for the hike supposedly to put a roof on the football stadium, but Mr. Kibble's contribution would have paid the total cost of the roof and end walls. The Senate ~~got~~ we "needed" a sound system and some other nonsense, so it voted to steal $5 every semester from every student at the U of I.

This fee increase was not only unnecessary but it was also opposed by most of the students. Of course, the enlightened Senate obviously doesn't care what students feel about this—or any other—issue.

If all of the students who are annoyed about the higher fees would quit mumbling to themselves and actually do something, we could stop this ripoff. If $300,000 over four years—and $40 right out of your pockets— isn't worth action, don't complain. We can stop this fee increase if enough students get mad enough to come to the SUB, Thursday night at 7 p.m. We will try to be in the Saw Tooth, but if you can't find us, check the information board under "No Fee." The meeting will take only 10 minutes of your time and save us all a lot of money.

If you don't come, you have nobody to blame but yourself for the higher fees.

Team protests

To the editor:

When is a tournament not a tournament? When the losers can get a replay by crying!

This appears to be the case in the most recent tournament of Women's Intramural Volleyball. The runner-up team complained that in view of their season record they were entitled to another game. The winner of the Round Robin Tournament, Houston Hall, has been told that they must replay the runner-up team for the championship.

Any person or group that has participated in tournament play knows that the season record is not counted in determining the tournament championship.

Should the rules be changed everytime the losers cry that they were treated unfairly or should they apply equally to all?

ASUI requests beer license

November was a busy and productive month for the ASUI. Many important issues facing the students of the University of Idaho were resolved.

Dirk Kempthorne, ASUI President, attended the gathering of the Idaho Legislature at the North Idaho Chamber of Commerce in Coeur d'Alene. At the legislative conference, Kempthorne addressed both houses of the legislature and the new lieutenant governor.

Kempthorne discussed the expanding role of student government in the state. Student leadership at the University of Idaho and at the other institutions in Idaho are looking forward to the convening of the legislature to see a good relationship with the legislature so that student opinion on issues concerning them will be respected.

"We are proud of the University of Idaho and we want to maintain its fine quality and environment. The legislators appreciate our positive approach," Kempthorne said.

Last week, members of student government at the University of Idaho represented student interests at the Idaho Student Lobby meeting in

Kim R. Smith

Boise. Kempthorne attended the conference, along with Jeff Stoddard, president of the Idaho Student Government Association and Emily Hansen, ASUI senator. During the meeting ISL directors, lobbyists, and public relations personnel were chosen.

Results of a recent state-wide student opinion survey were revealed, showing the priorities in which University students are most interested. The four priorities which ISL will pursue are 1) higher education appropriations from the Idaho Legislature; 2) financial aid programs; 3) tenant/landlord regulations; and 4) environmental quality. The members of the Idaho Student Lobby also met with Governor Cecil Andrus during the two-day conference to discuss issues vital to the students.

The ASUI president and vice-president will be approaching the University Board of Regents with three proposals this week. Proposals which the ASUI are most concerned with at the upcoming Board of Regents meeting are: 1) deferred payment, a program by which students may spread fee and tuition payments over the semester; 2) a beer and wine license for the ASUI golf course to help make it self-supporting; and 3) the administration's proposal for a $5 fee increase to cover the debts of the Student Union Building. The ASUI Senate will determine its position on the five dollar fee increase Tuesday evening.

Student government is working in many areas of student concern: student problems, the Board of Regents, the Idaho Legislature, and the Moscow Chamber of Commerce. "We do not limit our scope of student government to the University community—we extend our scope to include all areas of student concern," said Kempthorne.

Vandals open with upset

By RICHARD FAYLOR

Would-be basketball fans still picking over Thanksgiving's turkey missed an explosive season opener at Moscow Saturday night as the Vandals out-hustled a talented Puget Sound ball club for a 79-76 victory.

Puget Sound, featuring Curt "the Peak" Peterson, their mammoth 7' center, could not deny the determined Vandals who staved off a last minute UPS threat. In fact, Peterson himself undid the Loggers by missing a one and one free throw opportunity with 29 seconds left and his team behind by only one point.

The hot shooting Vandals (50 on FGA in the 1st half); namely Steve Weist, Henry Harris, Erv Brown, and sub Rodney Johnson; managed to counter the Peak's 23 first half points for a 43-37 lead. Roger Davis, Idaho's 6-9 center, was unable to stop Peterson, but did garner 9 rebounds to Peterson's 6 in the first half.

Outhustled and behind by halftime UPS coach Don Zech decided to slow Idaho's furious tempo with a zone defense. At the same time Vandal Coach Jim Jarvis was designing a zone for the second half to limit Peterson's rampage. The result was a dismal third quarter for both Peterson and for Idaho's momentum.

The UPS zone impeded Idaho's movement and the Vandals simultaneously lost both their hustle and their hot shooting hand. And while Peterson was held to but one point in the third quarter UPS freshmen forwards Rick Walker and Tim Evans took up the slack and slowly closed the Vandal lead. In fact the two freshmen collectively hit on 15 of 18 field goal attempts for the game and were UPS' only field goal scorers the second half until Peterson scored with 3:40 left in the game.

With that lay-in UPS narrowed the gap to 3 points, 71-68, and the entire crowd tensed, sensing how close the Vandals were to losing. But now it was time for the heroics of Idaho sub Tim Bollin. Trading Buckets with UPS Bollin swished two 15 foot jumpers in the patented Bollin style. Two ensuing UPS buckets, however, made the score 75-74 and Idaho coach Jim Jarvis, aware of the one and one ruling in effect, called a time out and elected to stall the remaining minute and a half. The unpolished but effective four corner stall worked the clock to 45 seconds before Erv Brown was fouled by Evans. Brown missed on the one and one try, however, and freshman Chris Price, in for Roger Davis at center, fouled Peterson on the rebound as Memorial Gym swooned. Fortunately for the Vandals Peterson could not connect on the one and one try as Brown redeemed himself with the rebound and was then intentionally fouled by Tanac. After a UPS time out with 29 seconds left and the score still at 75-74 Brown sank his two free throws for a three point

Vandal lead and Henry Harris, with the most educated move of the game, drew an offensive foul from Peterson who was frantically driving for the basket. Harris finessed the win with two more successful free throws and the game was Idaho's.

After the game both UPS coach Don Zech and Jarvis characterized the game as a typical season opener with both teams making numerous mistakes. Both admitted to second half zone defensive strategies; but UPS, in Zech's words, was simply "outhustled." The UPS ball club lacked the get up and go which characterized the Vandals.

Indicative of Idaho's scrappiness was its big lead in field goal attempts, 72-49. The Vandals came up with virtually every loose ball and while UPS was usually held to one shot each time down the floor the Vandals often got several tries before scoring. UPS' 61 shooting from the floor kept them in the game.

UPS undoubtedly missed the floor leadership of veteran guard Noble Johnson, sick with the flu this week, but will have a chance to avenge Saturday's defeat Dec. 14—when Idaho meets UPS in the first round of the Daffodil Classic in Tacoma, Washington.

Jarvis was pleased that so many members of his club could play, and play so well, and only reluctantly singled out Rick Nelson before the others for his outstanding hustle, rebounding, and shooting after coming off the bench.

Volleyball team takes 17-4 record into tournament play at Salem

By TIMOTHY MCDERMOTT of the Argonaut Staff

Their 17 and 4 record doesn't mean that the University of Idaho Women's Volleyball team is ready to take on the Japanese of Olympic fame. However, it does mean that they're going to raise all kinds of hell at the Northwest "B" tournament in Salem, Oregon this weekend.

The high and mighty Vandals, who recently crushed the Eastern Washington State College team, are physically and mentally capable of walking away with all the marbles in the week-end tournament. According to Kathy Clark, who is in her freshman year as a varsity coach, "the girls do a really good job of putting it all together in a game situation."

The team practices four days a week working mainly on conditioning and player skills. "It's a very emotional game - psychologically and mentally exhausting," Clark said.

Leading the way for the Vandals this season is junior captain Julie Schweitzer. Clark said that of the six people that start, "We couldn't do without any of them." Rounding out the team are Maureen and Kathleen Taylor who supply the height for the team - both are close to six feet. Mary Beth Roberts, Debby Bock, and Sue Biery are also having fine seasons. Nancy Monroe, the only senior on the team, has alternated as a starter throughout the year.

"Our strong point is that we have good servers," Clark said. Schweitzer, Biery, and Roberts are leading the team in points scored. The whole team takes part in the scoring effort, but the player who served the ball gets the credit for the score."

The team puts on a fine exhibition with all six players working in a well co-ordinated manner. While the team takes it to their opponents, their coach sits calmly on the bench as if she has been at it for years. Occasionally rising from her seat to cheer on her team, it seems clear that the team's success rests primarily on her shoulders.

George Gallup to speak at WSU tonight

PULLMAN, Wash.—Pollster George Gallup will present a public address Dec. 3 at 8 p.m. in Bryan Auditorium at Washington State University.

Gallup's topic will be "Polls: Do They Reflect or Affect Public Opinion?" His appearance is sponsored by the Student Political Union at WSU and is open to the public free of charge.

Gallup is president of the Gallup Poll, one of the best known polling services in the nation.

In addition, he serves on the Board of Directors of the Roper Public Opinion Center at Williams College and is a member of the American Association of Public Opinion Research and the World Association of Public Opinion research.

Bus chartered to transport students

A chartered bus for University of Idaho students will leave the campus for Christmas break at 5 p.m. Dec. 20 and terminate in Idaho Falls, returning to the campus Jan. 12.

Imogene Rush, U of I Student Union program coordinator, said Mrs. Leland Love, Idaho Falls, has arranged for the bus for several years. The price of a round trip ticket is $40 and the Sun Valley Stages bus will stop at Boise, Twin Falls and Pocatello en route to Idaho Falls.

Mrs. Rush said if enough students for two buses sign up for the trip, one bus will stop at Boise and terminate at Twin Falls, while the other will continue to Pocatello and Idaho Falls. In that case, she said, ticket price for the Boise-Twin Falls bus will be $32 and for the Pocatello-Idaho Falls bus $40.

A week for the arts

Ballet slates Nutcracker

Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker," perhaps the most famous and best-loved of all ballets, will be presented in three locations during the coming Christmas season by Ballet Folk of Moscow.

The dance company in residence at the University of Idaho will present its lavish production Dec. 7-8 at the University of Idaho Auditorium, Dec. 14 at the Washington State University Performing Arts Coliseum and Dec. 20-21 at Boise High School. All performances are at 8 p.m., except for an additional 2 p.m. matinee at Boise Dec. 21.

Tchaikovsky's fairy tale ballet, based on E.T.A. Hoffman's fantasy story "The Nutcracker and the Mouse King," was commissioned by the Imperial Theatre at St. Petersburg early in 1891. The composer, who was engaged in a concert tour in the U.S. that year, set to work reluctantly at first, but by the time he completed the full score in 1892, he had created some of his most inspired music.

The ballet tells the story of the enchanted Christmas Eve adventure of a young girl, Clara, who receives a nutcracker shaped like a soldier from her mysterious uncle. A battle with huge mice, travel through the Land of Snow and visit to the Kingdom of Sweets follow.

The Sugarplum fairy is danced by Paula Brantner, while her prince will be Michael Hurd. Kevin Montgomery, a new member of Ballet Folk, will appear as the Nutcracker and Deanne Hurd as the Snow Queen.

Clara will be danced by Gayle Davidson, a Ballet Folk School student, in the Moscow and Pullman performances. Mary Kay Brooks of Boise will dance Clara in the Boise shows.

Joining Ballet Folk in the North Idaho performances will be about 100 students from the Ballet Folk School, as well as the Washington-Idaho symphony under Martin-Beatus Meler and the U of I Vandaleers Women's Choir under Glen Lockery.

With the dancers, the symphony and the choir, the audience will have the opportunity and pleasure of seeing over 200 performers in this treasured Christmas story-in-dance. The production is under the direction of Carl J. Petrick and Jeannette Allyn, who are the co-directors and choreographers of the Ballet Folk Company.

Ticket prices are $3.50 for adults, $2.00 for students, and $1.00 for children under 12.

Flea in Her Ear production set

An evening of funny complications and mistaken iden-

Michael Hurd and Paula Jo Brantner will be among the performers in Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker." The production will be presented by the Ballet Folk Company Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m.

titles is on the playbill for the University of Idaho this month.

The University's theatre arts department will present "A Flea in her Ear," a French farce by Georges Feydeau, as its winter production. The play runs Dec. 5-7, at the Performing Arts Center on campus. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The "flea" in the play's title is an itching suspicion on the part of a young wife, played by Connie Brown, senior theatre arts major, that her husband, played by John Naples, a graduate student in theatre arts, is philandering.

Determined to catch her husband in his alleged infidelity, the wife persuades her friend to write a love-note asking for an assignment at a hotel known for such trysts.

The note gets handed to a friend's husband—and the fun begins.

Amahl and visitors staged by opera

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" by American composer Gian Carlo Menotti will be performed by the University of Idaho Opera Theatre Thursday and Friday.

The world famous opera will be presented in the Music Building Recital Hall at 8 p.m.

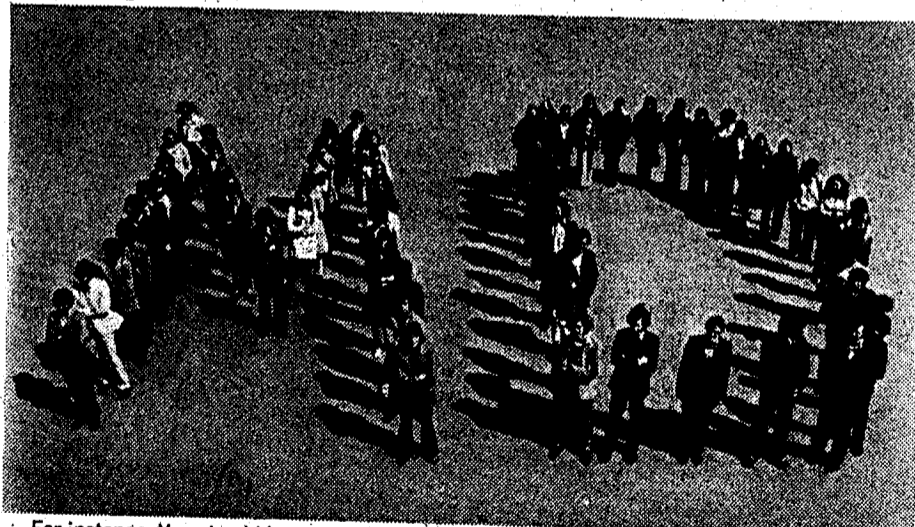

The Opera Theatre, under the direction of Charles Walton, U of I professor of voice, is composed of University students who are assisted in some performances by non-university singers. Operas and scenes from operas are performed by the group twice a year.

"Amahl" first appeared on NBC-TV Dec. 24, 1951, and was performed at the University several years ago. The story tells of a crippled boy and his mother who are visited by the three kings on their way to find the Messiah.

Tickets at $1 each for the evening performances will be sold at the door.

Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program

If you're one of tomorrow's physicians, there are some things you should know today.

For instance. You should know about the opportunities offered by Armed Forces Health Care. As an officer in the service of your choice you'll work in modern facilities. With up-to-date equipment. And modern, up-to-date professionals in every area of Health Care.

For example. You should know that Armed Forces Health Care offers opportunities for initial training and advanced study in practically every specialty. Not to mention the opportunity to practice it.

You should know, too, that we make it possible for you to pursue a post-residency fellowship at either military or civilian institutions.

And if all this strikes a spark, then you should certainly know about our scholarship program.

If you qualify, the tuition for your medical education will be covered fully while you participate in the program. And during that time you'll receive a good monthly stipend.

Just one more thing...we think if you know all the facts, today, you may want to be one of us tomorrow.

Find out. Send in the coupon and get the facts...today.

There are limited openings for academic year 1975-1976.
