

Deadline extended for petitions

The ASUI Senate granted a brief extension to candidates for ASUI offices who wished to turn in nominating petitions and nearly depleted the ASUI general reserve at last Tuesday's meeting.

The deadline extension for nominating petitions was granted at the request of George Peters, a candidate for ASUI vice-president.

The original deadline was 5 p.m. Tuesday, and was extended at Peter's request until midnight so he could hand in his petition.

The extension was granted with a ruling from ASUI Vice-President Rick Smith and came without a formal Senate vote.

The extension was opposed by Senator Bill Fay, who argued that students who took out petitions but were unable to receive the required number of signatures would not know of the extension.

Peters, who had failed to get this petition in by the 5 p.m. deadline, argued that in the interest of fairness the Senate should grant the extension.

"We must give the students a choice," Peters said, making reference to the fact that his opponent, Senator Gregg Lutman would be unopposed if the extension was not granted.

With an appropriation of $257 to the ASUI Election Board to conduct next week's general election, the ASUI General Reserve was left with only $60.

Because of University budgeting procedures, surplus money gained by the Argonaut and the Entertainment Committee cannot be deposited in the General Reserve until the beginning of fiscal 1976, leaving the total at $60 until that time.

A resolution requesting that the Board of Regents seek recommendations from the student Senate and University President in any firing of a faculty member was postponed by the senate for further study.

The proposal comes as a result of the revised policy of the Board of Regent concerning faculty dismissal which essentially eliminates student input.

In other business the senate revised the ASUI election rules to allow students who are not on campus to vote absentee if their ballots are postmarked by the day of the election.

The ASUI Committee on academics and Scholarships was separated into two different departments with the director of the academics department being assured a seat on the University Curriculum Committee.

Because of the depletion of the General Reserve the senate held appropriations bills, including a $1700 appropriation to the Rodeo Club for the purpose of hosting a rodeo.

Stadium Board to issue annual report Tuesday Faculty asks for more time to develop dismissal policy

The Stadium Board will issue its annual report to University officials Tuesday—a report which includes the final job description of the stadium manager and lists stadium priorities.

The board gives reports to the University annually to indicate its progress and activities relating to the stadium. This was requested by the ASUI Senate, which passed a resolution asking the board to keep certain officials informed.

The manager would be responsible for scheduling events for the facility, managing finances, supervising maintenance personnel and arrange for hiring additional stadium workers if needed.

The job description lists the qualifications and responsibilities of the job.

Another responsibility would be to "encourage the rental of the facility to non-University groups," subject to University regulations.

The salary for the manager, according to the committee, would range from $14,000 to $19,000 depending on experience and qualifications.

The description was approved at last Wednesday's meeting. The board's annual report also mentions its work in gathering information from University sources and ISU, University of Washington and other colleges.

The board also noted a "verbal commitment" from Financial Vice President Sherman Carter for $1000 to be used for helping applicants for the stadium manager position travel to and from Moscow.

In the shortest general faculty meeting in the history of the University, the faculty voted to approve Faculty Council's response to the Regent's new dismissal policy.

The meeting lasted twenty minutes and the quietness of the faculty present portrayed the mood generally felt since the new policy was sent to the four faculties. The only discussion came from Philosophy Professor Nick Gier.

Gier, a member of the local chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), said he had been in contact with the national headquarters of the AFT. He quoted the head of the College branch and University branch of the AFT as saying it would back any faculty member fired under the new policy proposal. Gier said the AFT would provide funds and lawyers for anyone needing them.

Gier quoted Robert Nielson of the national AFT office as saying no state board of education in the nation has been "stupid" enough to print such outrageous policies. Gier quoted Nielson as saying "it is a very sloppy paper."

The resolution being sent to the Regent's resolves the position of the faculty on the new policy proposal. The resolution calls the proposal "unworkable and unacceptable."

The second part of the resolution does something not tried before. The olive branch has been, in essence, extended to the board. The resolution reads "that the board be informed of the faculty's earnest desire to work with the board or its agents in order to resolve existing differences between the board and the faculty with respect to the board's proposal."

Apparently the faculty present at the meeting Wednesday thought the resolution a good one. No amendments were proposed and very little discussion occurred. Much of the credit for the resolution in its present form must go to the Faculty Secretary Bruce Bray. Faculty Council Chairman Tony Rigas called the resolution "not too harsh and not too tame but just right."

In other action taken at the faculty council meeting last Tuesday the council passed the proposal to reinstate "deadweek." The proposal goes before the general faculty at the next regular meeting which will be sometime in March or April.

Radio station run totally by students

The old saying that good things sometimes come in small packages holds true for a student-funded, student-operated service at the University of Idaho. It's KUOI-FM, one of the few college radio stations in the country that's run totally by students.

Although KUOI has only 10 watts of power, Idaho students can be proud of how it stacks up to other college stations in the northwest, according to station manager Bill Harland.

Harland, a junior radio-TV major, says KUOI's age — it started 30 years ago in the attic of what is now the graduate art studio behind the home economics building — has helped.

"We've had a lot of time to get the best equipment possible together, to gain a good reputation with record companies, and to become established on campus. And we're still growing, too."

KUOI's growth is evident this semester, as it now broadcasts, for the first time ever, 24 hours daily with the exception of Mondays from 2-6 a.m. Barry Lewis, program director, says that KUOI saw the need, and filled it.

"Before, there was no 24-hour station in the area that offered good entertainment and reception at night for college students. We felt a lot of students regularly stay up late and get up early, and since they pay for us, we want to be there when they want us," Lewis said. The sound of KUOI is also changing, according to Lewis.

"For too long, the only concern about KUOI has been its music. Sure, we want to play music the students enjoy, but the purpose of college radio is to offer something listeners can't get elsewhere."

One thing listeners can get exclusively from KUOI is radio news about campus activities and affairs. Rob Franklin, news director, is emphasizing campus news more than ever before, and stresses that KUOI offers instant, up-to-date coverage of campus events.

"We have eight reporters covering everything from campus events to sports to the ASUI elections," he said.

"Everything constantly changes, and we want to keep our listeners well-informed of what all is going on."

Newscasts covering campus, national and world news are run daily at the half-hour. In the evenings feature news spotlights the human sides of life, running once every two hours.

Music is of course still the meat of radio, and KUOI works hard to keep its listeners well-informed about new music.

The station, says Music Director Roy Knecht, gets shipments of records from over 50 companies and has close ties with 60 more.

"The musical purpose of KUOI," says Knecht, "is to play the new stuff commercial stations won't. We're not Top 40 by any means, because we don't play 40 songs to death all the time."

He said that while DJs can play what they choose, they try to play newer songs and groups to keep listeners aware of the constantly changing music scene.

KUOI offers two album programs to keep the music world in perspective. The station was the first in this area to originate an album preview program four years ago.

"Preview 75" features the best of today's albums played in their entirety nightly at 10:10 p.m. Thursday evenings Tom McGrane hosts "Wax Museum," featuring the finest albums from yesterday played in their entirety. "Wax Museum" begins at 8 p.m.

Others among the variety of KUOI's musical programs are "Jazz Sojourn," hosted by Ed Gladder Sunday nights from 6-10 p.m. Gladder reviews much of today's jazz releases, and blends in some blues and older jazz.

Allison Steele, the sexy DJ from "Raplne," hosts a new program beginning next week. Calling the show "Nightbird and Company," she talks briefly with today's artists about some of their newer songs. Monday at 6 p.m. her guests will be the new Steppenwolf, and Thursday the Average White Band.

KUOI's home-grown "Hologram," which last semester featured Billy Joel, Walter Carlos and the Moody Blues, will return in March with a musical biography of Elton John—Bernie Taupin, according to host Cooper Jones.

Two special treats are upcoming on KUOI. The station now receives the "Crawdaddy Radio Revue," which is produced by Crawdaddy Magazine. The monthly program looks at the best artists, past and present, with interviews and cuts from their albums.

Next Tuesday the program, also known as the "Crawdaddy Gazette of the Air," analyzes the zany Fesign Theatre. A special on the late Jimi Hendrix, featuring previously unreleased music by the immortal guitarist, will be aired next month.

Also coming up is a 65-minute program of interviews with George Harrison, Billy Preston and Tom Scott, all of the recent Harrison U.S. tour. The show was produced by a college station at Bucknell University and should arrive by mid-March, to be broadcast exclusively on KUOI.

The future for KUOI holds plans for more growth. Harland said the station hopes to increase its power to 250 watts and to become stereo FM.

"We're working on it seriously now," Harland said.

"Being a student service, we should be available to all students, on and off campus. Right now, we're not picked up in a lot of places because our signal is too weak."

It began 30 years ago as a tiny club, growing slowly with meager facilities and radio-crazy students. Today, KUOI-FM is the student's voice of the University of Idaho, offering a chance to gain valuable experience in station operation to any interested student.

Harland summed up the feeling at the station by saying, "KUOI was started by students, it's been kept alive by students, and at the rate we're going now, 30 years hence we'll be the best..."

Knowledge and skills for the presidency

Students will go to the polls next Tuesday and Wednesday to elect a new ASUI president, vice president, 13 senators, and three student representatives to the Faculty Council.

There are a lot of candidates — 47 altogether, 36 for the senate alone. It's believed that student dissatisfaction with two $5 fee increases in three months this year has brought most of the prospective senators out of the woodwork.

But campaigning has been limited so far; one of the Argonaut's columnists wasn't aware Thursday that the election was coming up. And that lack of campaigning has been most apparent by one candidate for ASUI President.

That contest was expected to be a two way race between former Entertainment Chairman Ken Buxton and Faculty Council Representative David Warnick. But Buxton has maintained a low profile thus far — so low, in fact, some have questioned whether he is a serious candidate.

Former SUB Board member Dan Yake entered the ring late but has mounted an organized campaign after inheriting the political machine of fraternity brother Bill Fay, who withdrew before he began. And there's a fourth, "fringe" candidate for president, Nile Bohon, who's seeking the office for the third year in a row.

The Argonaut's choice is Warnick. He has a solid record of accomplishment both within the University and the state.

He is the only student member of a commission that will for the first time be formally advising the Board of Regents on higher education in Idaho.

Warnick had made a name for himself for several reasons. First, he does his homework; he carries out the research necessary to propose acceptable changes in policy. Second, his communicative skills are superb — he's able to articulate what students are thinking to those in power.

When it comes time to speak up for the ASUI before the Board of Regents or the legislature, Warnick is the only one of the four candidates with whom we'd feel confident. Even if none of his other qualifications were to be considered, Warnick would receive the Argonaut's endorsement for that reason alone.

Buxton established a solid record in student services and was named the Argonaut person of the year last year. While we're aware of Buxton's rapport with the "common student" and his innovative approaches to solving student problems, he's been out of touch the past year. Buxton just hasn't developed the administrative skills and developed the contacts needed to head an organization as diverse as the ASUI.

We'll give Yake some credit at this point: as a SUB Board member, he recognized that the SUB could break even without a fee increase. He's right; the Student Union's problems are a result of a faulty management structure and poor employee relations. But Yake wasn't able to make any headway with his opinions on SUB Board. When the final board vote came, it was unanimous in favor of the $5 fee increase.

Both Buxton and Yake belong in student government, though; we hope they would accept appointive positions under a Warnick administration. Yake is the logical choice for Student Union Director while Buxton would serve well as Programs Director.

Finally we come to Bohon. Nile does have experience in one important area — running for president. This year, however, he's broken with tradition and is actually doing some campaigning. And he's even made a valid point: voting without knowledge could be worse than apathy. The Argonaut wishes Nile all the luck in the world. He just isn't the man for the job — this year, at least.

The ASUI is oft-kidded and criticized and we've made our share of comments about it. But its presidency still carries with it an awesome responsibility. Not only does he or she speak for the nearly 8,000 students of the University of Idaho, that person is charged with administering a budget of over $1/4 million.

Only one of the candidates possesses both the knowledge and the talents needed to carry out the duties as they should be carried out. That person is David Warnick. —K.B.

Lutman tabbed for veep; issues probed

The Argonaut endorses Gregg Lutman for vice president. Lutman has spent a year in the Senate, voting issues as he thought they best represented student interest, but never one group. His efforts toward securing student control of the stadium, followed by his service on the board gives him go-ahead points to begin with.

He is campaigning on the premise that his experience on the Senate gives him knowledge of ASUI finances — where the fat is and which programs of marginal value should go.

Peters experience has been on the SUB Board. His platforms center greatly around the SUB, including the procurement of a liquor license and the leasing of space to outside businesses.

Both candidates have come out against the Commons, but Peters has been getting in trouble because he voted while on SUB Board for a $5 fee increase. The resultant fight between the ASUI and the administration was probably the reason the Commons plan was proposed.

The issues of this election seem more complete, with longer reaching implications, than many of those in the past.

The Constitution, while extremely important, has virtually no opposition. The present document voted and accepted by the students five years ago (although never taken to the regents) has been shown to be outdated.

The question is whether this campaign has generated enough heat to get the necessary 35 per cent turnout.

Almost everyone has talked about increased "representation" but what does it really mean and how can it be done? Traditionally, each senator has been assigned 3 or 4 living groups or houses to "represent". Many students (including the senators) are under the impression this representation is much like a legislative district, and that senators are expected to respond to constituents' requests accordingly.

Such an impression is a fallacy, since senators are elected at-large. Over 53 per cent of the ASUI lives off-campus (as do half the present senators). Somewhere along the line it is going to have to be understood that assignments to living groups are for purposes of feedback and not to take orders like a waiter or waitress. Some persons have indicated their desire to have regular meetings to hear the views of off-campus students, but it would seem that if any student really cared, he would attend senate meetings.

Fees and ASUI incomes might be hit hard. The Committee for Student Rights could leave a strong imprint, especially if the Administration is reluctant to negotiate with it. If the registration fee is challenged successfully, there's going to be the belt-tightening coming up. Which side of the argument will the ASUI take? Cooperation (but with whom?) will have to be extended.

How about specific programs? Funding for Entertainment? What expenditure is your pet peeve? Outdoor Programs has had a tremendous increase of demand for activities and equipment. Where is the needed money going to come from?

Students have traditionally protested the lack of contact they have with the ASUI. However, students are the ASUI. There are over 100 positions on various committees, both student and student-faculty, that will soon be open. How many students will even bother to apply? Student government doesn't mean only elected officials.

Ask the candidates how you can get involved.

Ask the candidate how he is going to get involved.

Then vote. —J.H.

Law students making senate bid

By DAVID MORRISSEY

There are 13 Senate seats open in this upcoming student election and predictable, the candidates for the offices have so far represented the usual groups that run for these offices. But quietly, behind the scenes, the traditionally docile school of law has begun to flex its muscles and has put forward a "bloc" slate of seven candidates.

They call themselves "The Law School 7" and their motto is "No More Bullshit," a slogan borrowed from the populist oriented Presidential Campaign of Oklahoma Senator Fred H. Harris. If these seven law students have their way they could become a working majority of the student senate on Feb. 26.

The students, Linda Copple, Gary DeMeyer, Fred Gibbler, Tom Linville, Lance Salladay, Brian Shute and Barry Wood, have been distributing leaflets around campus the past few days.

These inexpensive flyers contain their names and a short political message under their eye-catching three word slogan.

My first question was "Why?" My normal reaction to student government was aptly portrayed in a recent Argonaut that satirized the ASUI senate as 13 featured turkeys. Law students didn't seem to be the kind of people who would fit into this mold.

Seeking an answer to this, and other questions, I sought out Barry Wood, one of the organizers behind the move.

Wood said that the campaign was based on three premises. "The first," he said, "is the inability of the senate as presently constituted to resist pressure from the administration and to make intelligent decisions." He mentioned fee increases, "the stadium roof," and the Blue Bucket as examples of "this inability."

Wood then emphasized a point that seems to be the most serious aspect of the seven students candidacy, and what may turn their drive for votes into a joint victory.

"We feel that many large groups of students are not adequately represented by the present make-up of the senate," he said. "Married students, veterans, commuters, and graduate students have no one to represent their interests. Our campaign is addressed to people who feel they are unable to influence the decisions made by the senate."

Wood believes that if they can tap this reservoir of students they will be able to form a new campus majority, of students previously unrepresented. Statistically this is a correct assumption. Should groups — notoriously inactive in student government in the past — actively take a part in this election, they could tip the scales in any direction they so desired.

The third aspect of what some have called "The Law School Putsch" is the Mayor Daleyish realization that it is much easier to put your ideas into effect when you have a majority of the votes. Thus, seven law students are running. If elected they will be the controlling majority in the ASUI Senate.

The reaction to the law student's drive for power has been mixed. Some have criticized it sharply, noting that in the past law students have been one of the most inactive groups on campus. "They're out of touch," one current student senator commented. "They spend so much time in the law school that they don't get out and learn what the students are thinking."

Others have wondered if perhaps the seven will represent only the law school constituency with which they are most familiar.

Some though, are openly enthusiastic about the seven. One graduate student commented that he liked the idea, and hoped that "someone with some legal training will go after Financial Vice President Sherman Carter's hide."

Another mentioned that the idea of "putting some legal eagles on the job" sounded like something that might benefit the campus.

Indeed, that latter expression seems to express much of the manner in which this campaign is being viewed on campus. Many students feel it would be a good idea to bring some persons with serious legal training to the ASUI senate. While they might object to seven such members, the idea itself seems to be popular.

Again, current senators will tell you that the senate already has such background, especially in the cumulative legal and political experiences of the 13 members, and deny the seven challengers have any corner on the market.

The U of I will either accept or reject the law student challenge in this upcoming election. But win or lose, the significance of what is happening in the law school extends beyond this contest. One group on campus running a slate, a bloc, may easily encourage others to imitate the action. Some may be as qualified as the law students, others, less so. But with the emergence of the law student's well-organized bid for power, student politics on the Moscow campus has suddenly begun to look like the real world.

Whether this is for the better or the worse, only time will tell.

Editor's note: Morrissey is a law student.

Corrections

Let's get it straight...

Wilderness, Wildland, Wildlife

To the editor:

Last Friday's Argonaut included a front-page article by Bill Lewis entitled "Forestry Students Protest Newby Firing."

This article so confuses two different programs within our College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences that a correction notice is in order.

Dr. Newby is the director of the Wilderness Research Center, not the Wildlife Research Center. He is the academic chairman of the Wildland Recreation program; there is no such department as the Wildlife Recreation Department.

In eight other instances in the article, there should be references to the Wilderness Research Center or the Wildland Recreation program rather than reference to Wildlife or department.

Thank you for your assistance in correcting these errors.

Financial aids director fills in details

To the editor:

We would like to thank and compliment Carolyn Harada for the excellent report she wrote on the Student Financial Aid prognosis for next year. Her distillation of a very complex problem was well-done.

One or two points deserve clarification. We anticipate that as many as 1,250 students will receive some sort of financial aid next year. Of these, as many as 1,100 may well share in our allocations of federal funds as well as utilizing local scholarship assistance.

Another point of possible confusion lies with the Federal Guaranteed Student Loan program. In the 1972-73 school year, these loans did not depend on a needs analysis before approval. In that year, this University processed about $850,000 worth of loans for our students.

The Congress changed the statute in 1973-74 to require a full needs analysis. Our level of processed loans dropped to about $475,000 as a result. For the current school year, Congress again modified the program to require needs analysis in only the more affluent cases. Our loan volume to date has been $406,000.

Failure to rise can probably be attributed to the fact that some banks have become less than enthusiastic about further commitments to the FGSL program.

Students, being aware of this fact, are not applying for this type of help.

University apartments would solve problem

To the editor:

Still another article about the "ghetto" has come to the same conclusions as the others—that is, nothing can be done about slum rentals in Moscow because of the lack of a housing code, etc.

While pushing for a housing code is one way of attacking the problem, the fact remains that without other housing to move to, the tenants of a condemned building are worse off than before.

The solution to the real problem here, which is the housing shortage, is for the University to take the responsibility for building more non-dormitory student housing.

If only 50 double occupancy efficiency apartments were built here, the 100 students occupying them would take the pressure off the housing situation. Then slums like the apartments at Jefferson and D would not be occupied at all.

Models for this type of university housing exist at Idaho State University. These are called the U-Courts, and they provide more privacy for the renters than do the dorms, combined with low rent and easy access to the campus.

Funding for many controversial programs, such as the stadium roof and the proposed Commons Building is being actively pursued while the University virtually ignores one of the student's most pressing problems—finding decent housing at a price he or she can afford.

Building such housing should be in the first priority of University building projects.

Four-letter words

To the editor:

After one semester at the U of I, there is one four letter word I'm really tired of hearing: ASUI. Next week's ASUI elections, especially the race for student council president, provide a chance for me and all other students to do something about this student "government" nonsense.

We have got the usual serious candidates for president. They expect us to believe that students are responsible enough to manage their own affairs. Most students are sensible enough to know that their here for an education and that they don't have the experience or maturity to know what's best for them. That's what Vice President Carter and other administrators are paid for: to know what's best for students in the long run.

Fortunately, there are two candidates for student council president who don't kid themselves or us about all these "serious responsibilities" of the ASUI. Either Dan Yake or Nile Bohon (I prefer Yake) would do a fine job of proving comic relief from the BuxtonWarnick types who take student government seriously.

Judging from his columns in the Argonaut, Yake seems to be the better qualified of the two, but Bohon is a very close second. Like Yake's campaign posters say, "Yake is just a four letter word, but so is the ASUI!"

If your part of the silent majority who agrees with me, make your voice heard at next week's election.

Athletic option foes skating on thin ice

To the editor:

Some candidates are talking about the optional athletic fee; opposing it on thin ice.

No one can say for certain that by making fees optional we would kill the Athletic Department. Nor will optional fees cause students to individually pay for the swimming center. The funding for the pool is unrelated to the Athletic Department.

There are problems with budgeting with an optional fee system but estimates are constantly being used to form budgets. I don't think the problems are as great as the opponents fear. Take the scare tactics some people are using with a heavy dose of salt.

Optional fees might cause football but it's hard to say. No one knows. And remember, there's a great difference between a survey question and that policy actually taking effect. So vote how you feel, not because of threats and fears of the unknown.

Newby firing questioned by students

By BILL LEWIS
of the Argonaut staff

Dr. Floyd Newby will be granted an appeal hearing before a board of faculty and administrators, President Ernest Hartung told College of Forestry Students yesterday.

Newby is academic chairman of the Wildland Recreation program and is the Director of the Wilderness Research Center. He was notified earlier this month that he would not be reappointed to either position.

Because the majority of Newby's salary is for administrat-ing the Wilderness Research Center, there had been some question among forestry students of whether he would be granted an appeal hearing, which is guaranteed for academic faculty members.

Assistant Dean of the College of Letters and Science Elizabeth Stevenson told the Argonaut that the faculty members who would hear Newby's case had not been notified and that there was a question about one of the members of the appeals board.

She said she would be notifying the members of the review board this morning, and could release their names at that time.

According to Rick Wilford, a College of Forestry student, some students had understood that since Newby was primarily an administrator he would be denied academic due process.

Newby is the third academic chairman of the Wildland Recreation program in as many years.

Asked about the inability of the program to get moving, Hartung said, "If we can't get the program going, we may be having a hearing on Dean Ehrenreich (John Ehrenreich, Dean of the College of Forestry)."

Because students and faculty members were not consulted concerning Newby's non-reappointment, student Mark Kelley asked Hartung if academic due process had not already been violated.

"If there has been a violation," Hartung said, "it will be brought out in the hearing."

Wilford said that Newby was advised by colleagues not to take a position at the University last year because of the "reputation" the Wildland Recreation program has received.

Wilford said it would be difficult for the University to get a qualified person to take Newby's job because the reputation of the college is "still sliding."

Wilford read a letter from the former directors of the Wildland Recreation program, Robert Dadarocco, who said he had left the University because he had lost confidence in the College of Forestry as a result of misrepresentation on the part of college officials and because of the general climate within the University administration.

Ehrenreich, who was out of town when Newby's firing was announced said he had returned and cancelled a subsequent trip to Washington, D.C. because he thought that meeting with students who were concerned with the Newby case was more important.

Ehrenreich told the students that Newby was fired because his service as Director of the Wilderness Research Center was "completely inadequate."

Ehrenreich said the college "was not getting the service it had contracted for."

The student affairs committee, student committee within the College of Forestry forwarded a resolution to Dean Ehrenreich, calling the failure to reappoint Newby a "severe blow" to the recreation program.

If the committee which will review Newby's dismissal finds that his right to due process has been violated Hartung said, he might be retained and receive a salary equivalent to the portion of the salary now paid him for academic work.

Since less than a quarter of his salary is for academics, Newby told the Argonaut that it would be "impossible" for him to continue working for that pay.

He added, however, that he didn't expect the review committee to recommend that he be rehired only for the amount of salary which relates to academics.

In an Argonaut story printed last week, Newby was incorrectly referred to as the Director of the Wildlife Research Center and Academic Chairman of the Wildlife Recreation Department.

These departments were misnamed and should not be confused with the Wildlife Research Unit within the College of Forestry which Newby is not connected with.

Once energy was mostly elbow grease...

Today, we just step on the starter. Energy to power factories and assembly plants has made our modern streamlined automobiles possible. Here and in a thousand other ways the demands are increasing. If we are going to keep our society moving, we're going to have to keep that energy coming.

We can do it. By saving and sharing and pursuing the intelligent courses that will insure a continued supply.

Survey taken on Blue Mountain

By RICH BROWN
of the Argonaut staff

George Hicks, a U of I student, conducted a survey for his Public Affairs Research class dealing with a rather interesting subject with some interesting results. The subject was Blue Mountain IV.

The questions which appeared on the survey were simple and straight-forward, but have been baffling virtually every segment of the community for as long as Blue Mountain has been in existence.

According to Hicks's survey, two-thirds of those interviewed were males and one-third females, which just about parallels the enrollment figures at the University of Idaho.

One of the major concerns in the past has been the number of those attending who have been under-aged. Hicks's survey revealed that only nine per cent said that they were from area high schools. You can project that virtually all of those persons under the age of 18 range in ages between 15 and 18.

Twenty-three per cent of those interviewed were older than 22. The vast majority of those interviewed (68 per cent) were between the ages of 18 and 22.

Almost 82 per cent of those interviewed originated at Washington State University and the University of Idaho. Sixty per cent of those were from the U of I. Nine per cent came from either the Moscow, Pullman, or Lewiston High Schools. Five per cent came from either BSU, the University of Washington or Walla Walla Community College. The remainder came from elsewhere within the states of Washington and Idaho. It is interesting to note that not one of those people interviewed came from any other state than Washington or Idaho.

Another survey question dealt with how those interviewed had heard about the Blue Mountain Music Festival. Thirty-three per cent of those interviewed said that they had attended Blue Mountain before, 55 per cent said that they had heard about it from a friend, 5 per cent said that they heard it through the press, and 6 per cent said that they read about it on a poster.

Over 80 per cent of those interviewed came to listen to the music and enjoy a day relaxing in the sun. Thirteen per cent had stated that they were curious, while seven per cent said that they didn't have anything else to do.

The people interviewed largely preferred popular rock and country rock music styles. It is worthwhile to note that 33 per cent said that they enjoyed all types of music.

Only one of the local heavyweight bands, Hog Heaven String Band got raving reviews from the persons interviewed. Most of the raving, however, was centered on the regional heavy weights: Whitewater (now Tarwater), Blind Willie and Applejack.

Sixty eight per cent of those surveyed said that they were currently students while 32 per cent said that they were not.

Hicks said that he really enjoyed conducting the research. Hicks said that the research "...was valid only to a point, but I would strongly encourage the use of this research in future planning and organizing."

He said that the compilation of the results couldn't have been done without Patrick Howard, currently enrolled at Corvallis. Howard, a friend of George Hicks, spent many of his summer weekend nights while working at the U of I computer center, compiling the research data on the computers. Hicks encouraged the continuance of an additional survey to reach more of the people attending.

One hundred and eighty-two people were exposed to the survey. Dr. Robert Blank, professor at the Political Science Department of the University of Idaho, stated that this was an "availability sample" which means that whoever would fill out the survey was taken. Blank said that it was extremely difficult for Hicks to set up any sophisticated survey program due to the circumstances surrounding the general disarray of an out-door festival.

Blank went on to say that this survey would be a fairly good indicator in future planning of this event and should be treated as a tentative information source.

Board says no smoking

The SUB board has decided on a policy for a non-smoking section in the new Blue Bucket.

Gordon Slyter, SUB Board Chairman, said the blue section of the cafeteria will be the non-smokers area but does not include the fire place.

Slyter said the only method of enforcement will be peer influence. The decision was made after several open hearings and an opinion poll. The poll received 246 responses. Of the 246 people, 102 were smokers and 144 non-smokers. Two people said that smoking offended them sometimes, 95 said they were offended and 140 said they were not.

50.8 per cent of the people responding preferred a non-smoking area in the Blue Bucket. The SUB Board voted five to three to designate the blue section as the non-smokers area. The policy will go into effect Monday, Feb. 24.

The stark reality of a young man's suicide attempt and the ensuing operation to save his life are the focal point of a new photography exhibit at the U of I Gallery.

"Transitions," a series of 16 photos by William P. Woolston, U of I assistant photography professor, opens Tuesday, Feb.

18 and will be on view through Friday, March 7.

Gallery hours are 12-3 p.m. Mondays; 12-5 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays; and 12-1 and 2-3 p.m. Wednesdays. Additional gallery hours will be announced at a later date.

Woolston took the photos in 1971 while working as staff photographer for Cook County Hospital's Department of Surgery at Chicago, Ill.

"I was there for just over a year when Gerry Jackson was brought in New Year's Eve after drinking sulfuric acid, Woolston said. "The photos were taken while the doctors labored for 12 hours in the operating room to save his life."

The operation and the eventual outcome of Jackson's fate were depicted in 15 inches by 30 inches black and white photos. These and other pictures taken by Woolston at

Cook County were used to show that "that terrible place was really a functioning vital hospital."

This work was to show the human side of the hospital, Woolston explained. It was an effort to try to change the image of institutions from cold political machines to places where people worked, lived and died. They were also used for recruiting doctors to the county.

Asked if he felt any emotions shooting surgical operations, Woolston explained that you to have the "emotional detachment of a surgeon" while doing them.

"You can't get emotional ... it's just a body, just an operation. By this time, I had photographed many abdominal operations at Cook County and had seen my friends die during the 1 1/2 years I spent in Vietnam. You have to detach yourself."

Also on exhibit at the gallery will be photographs by Arthur Okazaki, a Washington State University associate professor of fine arts.

Hewlett-Packard introduces a smaller uncompromising calculator: the HP-21 Scientific.

$125.00*

Now $125.00 buys:

More power than our HP-35. 32 pre-programmed functions and operations vs. 22 for our HP-35. The HP-21 performs all log and trig functions, the latter in radians or degrees. It's our only calculator short of the HP-45 that lets you:

- convert polar to rectangular coordinates, and back again ($\rightarrow P, \rightarrow R$);
- do full register arithmetic ($M+, M-, M \times, M \div$);
- calculate a common antilog (10^x) with a single keystroke.

The HP-21 also performs all basic data manipulations ($1/x, y^x, \sqrt{x}, \pi$) and executes all pre-programmed functions in one second or less. In sum, it's designed to solve tomorrow's problems as well as today's.

Smaller size. 6 ounces vs. 9 ounces for our HP-35.

Full display formatting. The display key (DSP) lets you choose between fixed decimal and scientific notation and lets you control the number of places displayed. (The HP-21 always uses all 10 digits internally.)

If a number is too large or small for fixed decimal display, the HP-21 switches automatically to scientific. It never confuses a smaller number with zero.

Finally, if you give the HP-21 an impossible instruction, the Display spells E-R-R-O-R.

RPN logic system. Here's what this unique logic system means for you:

- You can evaluate any expression without copying parentheses, worrying about hierarchies or re-structuring beforehand.
- You can solve all problems your way—the way you now use when you use a slide rule.
- You solve all problems—no matter how complex—one step at a time. You never work with more than two numbers at once.
- You see all intermediate answers immediately. The HP-21 executes each function immediately after you press the function key.
- You can easily backtrack when you err. The HP-21 performs all operations sequentially.

- You can re-use numbers without re-entering them. The HP-21 becomes your scratch pad.

H-P quality craftsmanship. One reason Nobel Prize winners, astronauts, conquerors of Everest, America's Cup navigators and over 500,000 other professionals own H-P calculators.

Your bookstore will give you a demonstration today. Challenge our new HP-21 with your problems. See for yourself how much performance $125.00* can buy. If your bookstore doesn't have the HP-21 yet, call us at 800-538-7922 (in Calif. 800-662-9862) for the name of a dealer who does.

Meet the candidates

Maureen McProud

Sincerely, sincerity, sincere. They're all over-worked words during any campaign period. Candidates who have it want the voters to know. And candidates without it, still want to have it.

But sincerely, really, the most important issue is not who wins the various races, but whether the new constitution passes. For this constitution provides for staggered senatorial terms of office. This would insure that we have an experienced governing body in office at all times. The constitution also provides for a veto privilege for the President and the wording is revised so that the instrument is workable.

All of the efforts to bring about this desirable change in our constitution will go for naught unless we get out and vote. Last year only 20 per cent of the student body bothered to vote. This year we are going to have to double our efforts if we plan to get this important job done. It is necessary for a quorum of 35 per cent to vote in order to pass the bill.

Sincerely ... Let's get out and vote.

Mark Lotspeich

It wouldn't be difficult to present a list of my own "personal programs" that I am sure would appeal to most students and probably get me elected. How about beer in the drinking fountains? Student tenure review of financial vice-presidents? A $50 fee rebate to the students when they pay their fees? The ASUI does not need new programs but a reevaluation of the presently existing services.

After being on the ASUI Senate for one year, I have seen how a newly elected Senate is persuaded to support programs simply because they presently exist. How many fee paying students benefit from Rally Services, Community Concerts, the Golf Course, or Gem of the Mountains? Sure, there are legitimate reasons for the existence of each of these programs, I heard all the reasons last year when the Senate continued to subsidize these areas in the budget.

There is over $35,000 involved in these programs, and I cannot see how the ASUI can keep entirely funding some of these programs that benefit less than half, if not a third of the students. I'm not advocating the end of these eprograms, but I support the greater funding of these areas by those who are directly affected by them.

The one-quarter million dollars that the Senate budgets should be directed to areas that can be made self-sufficient like the Argonaut and Entertainment Committee, and to programs that appeal to IDAHO students such as Outdoor Recreation and KUOI. More than new programs, the ASUI needs experience and responsibility.

Hindsight, as well as foresight, is needed for the students to be given programs that can be of a direct benefit to them. If the new senate does not have the experience to know what programs must be cut back, so that other programs can be improved, little change can occur in the ASUI.

In that case, we might as well forget about new programs or any changes on our campus, except those, of course, proposed by the university administration.

Special Survey Question: Should the $18 Athletic Admission Fee be made optional?
PLEASE READ the following before answering the question:
PRO: A student who presently has no interest in athletics would have the option of not paying the $18 fee; he/she could still choose to attend athletic events and pay a standard admissions price.
CON: The loss of a predictable fee and possible loss of revenue might threaten the existence of certain athletic programs. The admissions charge for students might be quite high if these programs are to be maintained.

He's tired of playing games

By BILL LEWIS

The person elected student president next week won't be able to do away with student fees, lower the price of beer, or even eliminate our daily frustrations.

But, if that person has done his homework, he can provide us with a responsible voice to represent students before the administration, the Board of Regents and the Legislature.

David Warnick is that person. He has had experience working with University administrators as a student representative on Faculty Council. In that position, he has promoted student voice in administration decisions:

1. He introduced the proposal which eliminated the requirement that freshmen must live on campus.

2. He is working for reform of the tape recorder policy.

3. He's working to do away with the faculty discount at the bookstore.

4. He's working for a better student voice in faculty dismissal.

5. And he's working on the problems of the English Composition program.

In matters concerning the Board of Regents he has been a strong voice working with the Committee for student Rights—the prudent use of student fees.

Because of his ability to voice student interests he has been appointed to the "Postsecondary Education Advisory Council," an advisory group to the Board of Regents.

He served as a messenger for the Idaho Legislature last year, and as a leader in the initiative effort to bring a presidential primary to Idaho, Warnick has much experience working with legislators.

This experience can be useful in dealing with the men and women who are the pocketbook of the University of Idaho.

Warnick is tired of playing games. Students should have a real voice in decisions on tenure and faculty dismissal. The new constitution is a good first step, but the associated students should move towards becoming a legal corporation.

He will fight for student decision on proposals like the Commons Building, because students should decide what services they want, not administrators.

Maybe the next student president won't be able to change the world, but he can make a positive difference for U of I students, as their representative to those who make decisions on the University.

David Warnick is that person.

Dave Warnick

Success means presidency

I was talking to a friend the other day. We were talking about the state of the world and things in general. He told me that it wasn't any good to speak up against the wrongs because your voice would be drowned in the noise of the machine. He told me that it wasn't any use to try and right the wrongs because in the end they always win. He told me that it wasn't worth his time and effort.

I told him he was wrong. I told him that if he spoke up loud enough somebody would listen. I told him that as long as there is a chance that something can be done it was worth his time and effort to give it a try. I told him that was the only way things will ever get any better. I told him the truth.

I have been at the University of Idaho for over three years now. I have served on a dozen committees and spent endless hours putting in my effort for that one remote chance to get something done. I have seen success in these committees ranging from Blue Mountain III to a new stereo lounge in the Wallace Complex. I have seen failures ranging from ASUI constitutions to an El Chicano concert that only 300 people attended. What I have learned out of this is that though there have been failures the successes are reason enough to keep trying. I keep trying.

What I'd like to do now is try to get more parking on the Greek side of campus. I'd like to get a system by which we can pre-register instead of standing in line outside the gym. I'd like to try and get federal funding to end the housing shortage in Moscow. I'd like to try and get the interest that is payed on the $25 room deposit in the dormitories payed back to the students to use in hall functions. I'd like to try and get an administration to tell us where our money goes. I'd like to try.

The one catch here is that before I can try I need you to place your trust in me. I need you to vote and tell me that you're willing to take a chance with me. Think about it and let me know at the polls on Feb. 25 and 26. I'm Ken Buxton and I want to be our President.

ASUI committee needs students

Students are needed for the new ASUI Costs Accounting Committee, announced ASUI President Dirk Kempthorne.

The immediate duties of the committee will involve an analysis of the present operating system for the SUB, the development of a list of needs and deficiencies in the present operating system, the development of an improved cost accounting system, the creation of budget projections to be developed on a monthly as well as yearly basis, and comparison and analysis procedures of actual versus projected costs and revenues for the Student Union.

Interviews for the committee will be scheduled when applications are received for the committee. Applications can be obtained at the ASUI Offices in the SUB, and further information can be obtained by calling 885-6331.

Third time around for Bohon

First, let it be known that all of the presidential candidates have had and will continue to have some degree of pull within the newspaper and other forms of the media.

This means that all of us know something about how to present ideas and statements to you.

It also means that if we did something which you may not like, we may have the power to lessen its implications when it is presented to you.

So I may venture to suggest a balance of power. If the media is on the side of the president, then who will keep a watchful eye on that president?

I'm not implying that being a newspaper, radio or T.V. person should disqualify presidential candidates. I would simply like to point out that newspaper and other media people spend their lives negotiating and learning how people react to what they say. As a matter of course, they learn to say what people wish to hear.

Not to say I have no affiliation with the very things I've just mentioned. I have those very qualities.

I suggest that if you intend to remain ignorant of the issues and candidates, it may be better for you if you don't vote. Voting without knowledge could be worse than apathy.

At least if you're apathetic the people who know the candidates will have a chance to elect a good president. and you could benefit from your not knowing and not voting.

In this particular presidential election it might benefit you if you think beyond, "Hey, that man is saying exactly what I wanted to hear."

It may be in your interest to think about each of the candidates when they all say, "I was always against the Commons building," and "We don't need another fee increase," and "Yes, I have had invaluable University government experience," and "I feel the most qualified to serve you."

Think—What student wants a fee increase? How can the university build a Commons building when they can't even put a roof on the stadium? Do you think for one minute that we are going to get our $200 registration fee back and be able to go to the U of I for free? Does experience guarantee good representation?

"How?" you are probably asking, "Can I judge who would be the correct candidate for the job if each say and do the same things?"

Past record, maybe. I personally know of three candidates who have been asked not to run by other candidates or by that candidate's friends. I'm reluctant to vote on past records which have involved burning bridges under other people.

Shirley McLaine has supported legalized abortion for years. During McGovern's campaign she gave a speech against putting a legalized abortion statement in McGovern's Democratic Platform.

She said, "I support legalized abortion, but McGovern cannot win with that statement in his platform. I urge you not to vote that burden upon him, I further urge you to simply, 'Follow Your Heart!'"

Administrative extravaganzas like the Commons Building destroy student living groups. Someone should come up with alternatives to one gigantic cafeteria.

Someone should tell the administration; students are people, not numbers.

Presidency at stake

At the present time, the ASUI is simply a four letter word. It has become so wrapped up within the trappings of power that the ASUI sometimes forgets just what it's here for, to serve the students.

We speak of a voice, the same one heard by the Board of Regents and the State Legislature, as being that of the ASUI. But these bodies have ignored the voice of the ASUI at times, because they didn't find it the same as that of the students.

I can see that the first priority of the Associated Students should be one of getting participation back into the organization. Only then will the ASUI be termed as a student government.

As evidence of student response in the interest of involvement, we find a record number of individuals running for office in this selection. I believe many of these people truly care about what's going on and are willing to do something to improve on the present situation.

The ASUI doesn't need expansion, but rather a concerned effort to improve and reevaluate what it already has in its possession. Our organization is large enough to provide far-reaching programs, and yet it should still maintain a close relationship with the students.

I believe that the practice of talking down to the students, and telling them what is or isn't needed should have died long ago. After all, we're college students capable (supposedly) of making rational decisions on affairs that affect us all.

Besides the selection of ASUI officers in this election, two other issues will appear on the ballot. The first and most highly publicized is the proposed revision of the ASUI constitution. I applaud the efforts made toward the elimination of an outdated group of standards which no longer apply, and I find the proposed changes a boost toward making it a more workable document.

Another measure of possibly greater importance to the students and to the University as a whole is the question of payment for student athletic fees. The issue asks for a decision as to whether the $18 per semester admission fee should be made optional. In essence, the question asks the students if they wish to do away with athletics at this University; since it is entirely infeasible for the Athletic Department to operate its budget in the future without the aid of this projected revenue, of which the $18 represents.

I would hope that the students look at this question with more than just passing interest. The very existence of this question on the ballot, indicates the Athletic Department has problems. However, I sincerely believe the present athletic staff is addressing the problem and will continue to do so. Although miracles can not be performed overnight.

As with the Athletic Department, the problems of the ASUI won't be solved overnight. I don't want to see a Greek ASUI or a GDI ASUI or an off-campus ASUI, but rather my hopes lie with the Associated Students of the University of Idaho.

Two vying for vice presidency

No self-seeking politician

By MIKE BRANSTETTER

Once again the ASUI elections are upon us and our minds again boggled by the campaign promises of more than forty candidates for the eighteen available positions.

Think back for a moment to past ASUI elections and the campaign promises we heard then, many of them are the same ones we're hearing again this year, and few of the others were ever carried out. Why is it that many of these campaign promises never became more than that, mere promises? Were we buffaloeed by self-seeking politicians?

In the majority of cases, I don't think so. Undoubtedly, many of these ideas and programs proved unfeasible for an assortment of reasons, some of which can be overcome. Specifically, the two reasons which probably kill more of these ideas than all other reasons combined: the lack of financial resources, and the lack of experience and continuity within the ASUI. This is why Gregg Lutman is seeking the position of the ASUI Vice-President, because he feels he can help the ASUI overcome these two obstacles, and diminish them for future administration.

The first problem, the lack of experience and continuity in the ASUI, is a complicated one, and can probably never be completely overcome, but definite improvements can be made on the existing situation. As we all know, while University administrators remain constant, names and faces in the ASUI change once a year. The first step the students can take to remedy this situation is to support the proposed ASUI Constitution which will, among other things, provide for staggered ASUI Senate terms. With this provision, Senators would serve one year terms, half being elected in the spring and the other half elected in the fall. Hopefully, this would provide continuity and experience with each newly elected half of the Senate learning the ropes from the incumbent half.

Another way to provide continuity and experience is a very obvious one, elect candidates with ASUI experience who have demonstrated the ability to serve the students.

Gregg Lutman does fit this criterion, he has more than demonstrated his ability to serve all the students and their interests, big or small, as a member of the ASUI Senate and the Stadium Board of Control.

Gregg was one of the key figures in obtaining student control of the soon-to-be-roofed stadium. He diligently opposed the five dollar fee increase for the SUB, as did most students, with the exception of those on the SUB Board. He has opposed and will continue to oppose the administration's proposal for a new Commons Building.

As for the lack of financial resources within the ASUI to fund new programs, Gregg feels he has an answer. No, it's not a fee increase for ASUI operations, the easy way out which seems quite common these days. Instead, current programs being funded by the ASUI should be evaluated and those not meeting the students demands eliminated. Stagnant programs should step aside for increased funding to current programs in high demand and new programs.

George Peters

Supporting student interest

It is about time for the students at the University of Idaho to realize that they are going to have an ever increasing share of the responsibility for guiding the direction of this institution in the future.

The first step in this direction, one in which all ASUI students can participate, is the passage of the new ASUI constitution.

This document will provide students with an even greater voice in their government and will pave the way for the incorporation of the ASUI. However, it is imperative to get a minimum of 35 per cent of the student body voting on the issue, with two thirds of those voting ratifying the constitution, in order for it to be adopted.

With the new constitution approved, I will work for the incorporation of the ASUI and will support: An assumption of the Bookstore by the ASUI giving an equal discount to students and faculty alike; Revival of the U of I creamery, providing quality ice cream, cheese and milk products for the students at a lower cost; a note-taking service for students, which would generate enough funds to establish an Instructor Evaluation Handbook for the fall semester and give students a greater voice in academic decisions; Alcohol on campus via cooperation with ISU, BSU and LCSC in a unified lobbying effort in the state legislature, thereafter seeking a liquor license for the SUB generating additional capital for the Student Union Building; Development of space within the SUB for lease to businesses on an open bid basis, to include student oriented activities such as 1) Bank 2) Hair styling 3) Travel Agency 4) Import Shop; Efforts to seek Federal funds assisting food and housing cooperatives for students, especially food cooperative, enabling all students with an I.D. card to save money on food, whether on campus or off campus.

The Commons again shows the students how little the present administration takes student opinion into account when planning for the use of student funds. This must change, especially when one considers that future alumni as well as present students become greatly alienated by such high-handed tactics. I greatly favor an evaluation of this question by our highly regarded architectural department, via students, before any funds are allocated.

Along the same lines, I would work with students in establishing a lobbying effort for landlord/tenant rights in Moscow.

In addition, I favor optional athletic fees and encourage individual programs. In closing, PLEASE GET OUT AND VOTE. This time it's IMPORTANT!

positions on the faculty council

Mike Rush

"Faculty Council... What's that?"

This question points out the biggest challenge facing a student representative on Faculty Council. No one knows such a thing exists. Although most of us come to the UI for an education, the bulk of our student input is directed to non-academic matters. Representation on Faculty Council can change this, but not without student recognition and support. Therein lies the problem. With only four students on a committee of 26 faculty our views can only carry weight when all of us get behind a proposal.

Some important issues are: Faculty discount for books — It strikes me as unfair that teachers who tell us what books we have to buy get a discount for buying the same books. (I don't believe, however, that the bookstore makes enough profit to give students a meaningful discount.); Teacher evaluations — All departments should be required to use the standard diversity evaluation form. Otherwise, some teachers cannot compare their performance with other professors. Student input — Faculty need to be reminded that students deserve to plan their own lives. Most faculty realize this and are more than willing to help. Some still need a few raps on the head with a slide rule. I'd like to give it a try.

Diane Lacy, candidate for Faculty Council, believes in quality education, supplemented with high-caliber professors and students. She is for greater student influence in the departmental review committee, (as in case of tenure) and faculty committees, aiming for direction and central organization.

She avidly supports Dead Week, the option of pass-fail, student control of Blue Key, and

Competition hot and heavy

Kathy Richter

Isn't it time that someone listened? I think it is and that's why I, Kathy Richter, decided to run for the office of ASUI Senator. It seems to me that a senator has to represent the students and in doing so must make herself available to discuss the present issues.

My current feelings on the different issues are: the Commons Building-$300,000 is a lot to spend on something we really don't need, why can't we remodel?; any fee increase-$10 is enough for one year, in fact enough for four years; the Creamery-it should be reopened, the sooner the better; and the new constitution-GREAT, even if you don't vote for anyone in this election go out and vote for this constitution.

I would be willing to put in the extra time to visit any living group, to talk to anyone that wanted to, and to get better communications going between the students and the senate. That's all that I can promise, and to do my very best.

Jane Mannex

There are three major points that I would like to stress. One is the idea of having alcoholic beverages sold on campus. The two proposed areas for this sale of liquor are at the SUB and the Golf Course. I feel that it would be a big mistake to allow the SUB to sell alcohol. One reason for this is that the SUB is supposedly a good place to study for on and off-campus students and I feel that the sale of alcohol could disrupt studying for some people. However, I have no objection to giving the club house at the golf course a license to sell beer. It might prove to be a good profit-making venture for the student body.

Secondly, I think that this campus has always put too much emphasis on Big Name Entertainment. Obviously we cannot afford it; we don't have enough students, and most importantly we do not have an adequate entertainment hall to hold a large crowd. I think we should work with WSU to get good entertainment into the area until we can get a roof on our stadium.

And last but not least, I would like to encourage every University of Idaho student to get out and vote on Feb 25 and 26 because not only are we voting for ASUI officers, but also the ratification of a new constitution which will prove beneficial to all students.

amendment instituting a system which will make Senators answerable to their constituents. If two-thirds of a Senator's assigned living groups sign a petition stating they are dissatisfied with his representation, he is removed from office. The ASUI President would then appoint a new Senator with Senatorial approval.

I am against fee increases of any kind without Student approval — not Senatorial. On the SUB fee increase, if the Senate had called for a referendum asking for student opinion, it would have shown the regents that the Students, as well as the Senate, were opposed to the fee increase.

I am opposed to any and all unnecessary expenditures of student funds, i. e., the Commons Building.

Another problem with the current structure is that off-campus people receive little representation. If elected, I will hold monthly meetings so that off-campus people may express their opinions. But what is needed is a committee to come up with a better manner of electing Senators for more equal representation.

any contributions in my campaign because I'm here to represent all of you and not just those who I would be indebted to.

I plan on working hard and taking my senate seat seriously with a real sense of responsibility. I intend to make sure that the stadium is multi-purpose, and is used by all equitably and fairly. I will work diligently with the Committee for Student Rights on the fees question. Although the funds are frozen for the Commons, you can rest assured that I will fight this should it reappear. I believe one SUB is sufficient!

You as students have the opportunity to give your views on the mandatory funding of the Athletic Department when you vote. I personally would like to see minor sports boosted. I pledge to abide by your decision on athletics and will attempt to implement your choice. I'm not going to be a yes man for anyone. I'm here to represent you. I intend to work with you. Vote! And remember: No Ifs or Ands...Just Butts for Senate.

Britt Nichols

ISSUE: University Expansion (Carter's Commons):

The ASUI needs to establish from within the means to effectively represent student opinion and desires to the Board of Regents. It must be able to prepare alternatives to "Carter's Little Commons Pills". If the need for cafeteria expansion is accepted, I suggest we look toward addition or remodeling instead of a $4 million dollar expenditure.

ISSUE: Improved Student Representation

—Student Senators need to be tied more closely to their constituency. Too often students have been represented by people more interested in themselves than in being an active member of the

—We need to ask for termination dates for fees which have served their original need. Students should be asked when fees are to be re-directed.

ISSUE: ASUI Budgeting:

—The ASUI must be able to take a long range look at where it spends, and allows money to be spent. It must prepare a budget carrying from one term to the next instead of the parcelling method now used.

ISSUE: In-State Tuition:

—The ASUI needs to take a strong stand against the imposing of in-state tuition. We should be able to ask the state to pay for the parts of education it is committed to in its own constitution.

We need to be asking each candidate not only what they believe, but how they hope to bring about those beliefs.

Thank you,
Britt Nichols

We are at a point where there is a lack of student representation. This is the reason I decided to seek a position on the ASUI Senate.

I feel that the students have been overlooked by past senators and it's time for representatives who will make themselves available to the students.

While I'm a senator I will not only visit my assigned living groups but, I will also visit other living groups.

Thom Kincheloe

I will make an effort to make myself available to students living off-campus while they spend time in the SUB and the satellite SUB.

It is time to have a senator who will gather student opinion and present it not only to the ASUI but also the administration and the board of regents. I will be that senator.

I plan on devoting an average of 20 hours a week to the students. This will not only be time spent in the SUB but will also be time in living groups and doing research.

On Feb. 25th and 26th I hope you will remember it is time for a new face and a new voice. I, Thom Kincheloe, will be that new face and new voice.

I've worked with the Argonaut and the Gem for the past three years. I am now editor of the student handbook and head of the photography department.

This involvement in the ASUI has shown me a lot of places that need improvement. Budgeting procedures themselves are bad— it's no wonder that money is spent the way it is. No one really knows where it goes!

Examples of Student Union budgeting are: running in the hole on its operations, small overhead and high prices, and controversies evolving around the golf course and the stadium roof.

My platform calls for better management of all student fees. Help me stop the rip-off.

Please vote for Jim Huggins for ASUI Senate.

Kim Smith

This is my third year at the University of Idaho, and I've watched three ASUI Senates come and go. Now, I'm a candidate for the Senate myself.

My first experience with student government was when I served on Communications Board. I learned some important concepts: how to make the ASUI Senate bureaucracy work, what budgeting procedures are involved with Communications, and how to budget personal time to get the most out of it.

For a year, I was administrative assistant to the ASUI President. I learned what the Senate was really like because I worked closely with them. To get anything done, personal perseverance was imperative. Certainly, the Senate has done some creative projects, but these have been because individuals have worked diligently to reach these goals. I will work diligently for student interests. This means bringing respect and responsibility to the Senate—what the Senate definitely needs.

Because I see what needs to be done, and how to accomplish it, I hope you'll vote February 25-26 for a mathematics student who is serious about getting something worthwhile accomplished. Bring some responsibility to student government—vote for Kim R. Smith.

Rene LaGrone

For persons to grow, there must be two-way communication.

I see the senate as a major focus for this communication, communication that extends through the University administration to the Regents.

I see a frustration growing among the student body, a feeling that students are ignored, regarded only as bank account numbers, ID numbers, but still uncounted. I want to serve in such a manner as to change this alienation.

Students need more activities to counter-balance the pressures of the educational system. Entertainment has done a fine job this year, perhaps the best ever, but that committee will need more support for more concerts, especially if the roof ever gets on the stadium, so that everyone can use it, not just an elite that consists of alumni and athletes.

Blue Mountain is worthy of support: this festival, when combined with the Renaissance Fair, brings attention to our University. The new Senate should be prepared to give direction to ensure the greatest student participation possible.

Most of all, we must increase our voice, tempered with experience. I see the new constitution, by the provisions that create staggered items, a strong boost for that goal. I will vote for the constitution, I hope you will too. I hope you will also vote for me, Rene 'Rabbit' LaGrone.

Mark Beatty

ASUI has PROBLEMS. No one alone can solve the problems, but I'm willing to pitch in with the others to try. Specifically, these items must be examined:

1. ASUI BUDGETING — Past procedures are inadequate, with the Senate making decisions with very little information which in turn cause bad decisions.

2. GOLF COURSE — I have become convinced that the ASUI golf course will have to make a stronger effort at breaking even, and not by just increasing the green fees. We can't continue to subsidize the course at a rate of $10,000 to $20,000 per year. A critical analysis of the golf course management is needed.

3. COVERED STADIUM — This facility should concern us all. We have a student stadium board established to set policy guidelines and oversee the management of the facility. This is a first for student government, as this board has more power, authority, and influence than any student board has ever had before.

However, there are some University administrators who would love to see this all student board fail in their duties. This, supposedly, would prove to the Regents that students are incapable of handling their responsibilities in the governance of the University. We can't afford to allow this board to fail.

4. If you agree with me, I ask for your vote, next Tuesday and Wednesday. Mark, Beatty, for Senate.

John Rupe

Experience in the Senate is helpful. For instance, when the budget is drawn up, that little bit of expertise accrued from past mistakes, can be helpful. Or when the administration presents Commons Building Part II, someone who has been through Part I can be handy. Or when long-promised student control of the new domed stadium is lost, someone who understands the situation thoroughly, should be around.

Tom LaPointe

The following are my positions on the most important issues facing the ASUI at this time:

I. Student control of the stadium: Since we students are paying for 90 per cent of the stadium, I am of the opinion that we should have more of a voice concerning events in the stadium than is currently the case. At present, the stadium board can only recommend the time and place of events like concerts. Ideally, the stadium board should have complete control. Recognizing, however, that that is over idealistic at best, I would suggest a system of voting to solve any conflicts in scheduling. The ASUI Senate, the Stadium Board, and the President of UI each to have one vote in each contested matter.

II. Since an informed student body is a necessity, I recommend increased funding for two major ASUI services: The Argonaut and KUOI.

III. I see no student support for the Commons Building, nor is there likely to be in the future, therefore I am opposed to any such project.

IV. I am opposed to the refund of student fees presently being attempted. The success of this refund would lead to one of two things. First, in the unlikely event that an amendment is passed to the Idaho Constitution permitting in-state tuition, we would undoubtedly wind up paying larger fees and contesting larger increases. Second, that owing to the loss of revenue and failure of an amendment, individualized sports and related services would be further cut in the effort to conserve funds. Either way, the student gets screwed over.

George Gauzza

Did you come to this University to sit in the Blue Bucket, "Your home away from home", or to watch the football team practice in a newly roofed stadium? Or did you come to this University to get an education? And what does it take to get a good education?

Whether on or off-campus your answer will be the same. It takes a good library, good classrooms, good laboratories, good student-teacher ratios and good teachers. And what does it take to get these? Money. And where is the money? It's in the wrong priorities. It's probably a fantasy to believe we could have a student run university but, a student run organization has the obligation to explore and lobby for alternatives to the misguided status quo. Who among you knows any ASUI Senator, and which are voices of your opinion? The ASUI has become a rubber stamp for the administration's increasingly non-education priorities.

It is time for a change. Monetary priorities that would best serve the student include: a student-run co-op bookstore, a student controlled SUB, no Commons, a completed performing arts center and a reduced athletics budget.

People today claim they are interested in ecology and conservation. I am — which is why I have made no posters — a waste of trees. And which is why I urge you to vote for me as your Senator: your money deserves to be conserved and recycled into the priorities which will serve your educational needs.

Nathan Neisinger

I don't want to say that if I'm elected I'll do what the students want, because collectively the students don't all want the same thing, so I'll try to give you some of my own ideas and let you decide if you think I could work for you or not.

In general I'm a conservative who's pretty satisfied with the relatively low price for a relatively good education. But I'm not completely satisfied with some things such as the SUB and the High School Recruiting Program.

I feel the "meeting rooms" in the SUB should be done away with, and the rooms leased to various shop people, such as barbers. These leases would help to make up the deficit in the operation of the SUB and deter fee increases like the last five dollar increase. The meetings could be moved to rooms in the Administration and UCC buildings which sit unused most of the time.

I support the College of Mines, and athletics and most other minority programs which are in hot water now. I feel these programs help attract good students to the University. I believe that all students in the University should pay equal fees, and that no fees should be made optional.

I'm sincerely interested in the U of I and it's students, and I want to be a part of making this University something for all of us to be proud of today and in the future.

Carmen Loera

I would like to announce myself as an ASUI Senate candidate. I ask you for your vote in exchange for hard work and real representation.

Ann Vogt

Experience in student government is necessary, but interest is vital. My experience has only been since last September when I won a seat on the Freshman Council. My interest and active participation in this position has prepared me to seek a more substantial influence.

This is not a year of so-called "imaginative," high cost student programs, but a year of reassessment and retrenchment. Within both the ASUI and the Student Union we must examine in depth the existing programs and assess their value to the students.

We must assert our voice in this University and let it be known that students will be heard. Administrators need to mean to voice your opinions, represent you and supply you with the information you need to decide what stand you want to take on the issues at hand.

At present, with the exception to the election period, we only hear rumors about what is happening to our money in the senate, such as the Blue Bucket investment or the Commons Building proposal. In most instances these rumors are misleading and we need the facts about these important matters.

This is why I want to represent you, to make sure you know what is happening in the senate while you still have a chance to voice your opinions. I will make sure your opinion is presented to the rest of the senate before vital decisions are made.

There are numerous ways of getting information from the senate to the students and vice-versa. Through the Argonaut, senate statements, or direct minutes, surveys, polls, news reports through KUOI and written reports to living groups.

Any or all of these would let you know what is happening and give you a chance to participate in final decisions. Remember: Carmen for senator.

Dennis Ross

My main concern, should I be elected to the ASUI Senate, will be "student representation." Listening to and putting into action the feedback I receive from the students will be my main objective. To achieve this goal I will, among other things, visit the living groups twice a month to get ideas and inform the students of senate activities. I will also be available this summer if I'm needed.

Currently, the ASUI has between one-quarter and one-half a million dollars to allocate to different programs. I feel that responsible and experienced people are needed in the ASUI Senate to do the job. Being a Business Management major, I feel qualified to work in the area of allocation of these funds.

In my opinion, the idea of the Commons Project is ridiculous. The students' money can be much more effectively and wisely spend in other areas.

Also, I feel the students should have equal access to campus facilities. These should not be reserved for special groups or departments only.

Finally, I would like to urge all students to vote. Even if you don't vote for me - vote for the Constitution. We need a 35 per cent voter turnout.

Dick Stevenson

In order to become fully aware of student problems in some of the following areas, I have talked to people regarding beer license, The Book store student fees, and Blue Mountain, and I feel work is needed in these areas.

It will take a couple of years to obtain a beer license for the SUB, but I would like to help lay the groundwork for this. One thing we can do in the immediate future is to get a beer license for the golf course. This should help to eliminate the 12,000 dollar deficit we are currently running at the golf course.

Another project I would like to work on is a student cooperative book store. We could possibly save as much as 20 per cent on text books using either a rebate or percentage discount for card-carrying U of I students. This would put money back into the student pocket and help destroy the cost of higher education.

There is a good chance we will not have Blue Mountain this year because of the problem last year of too many out-of-people. I would like to keep the festival but on a more local basis for the U of I student body.

Another problem area here at Idaho is the lack of student input covering student services. Students have the right to know what is being done with their money and not be given the run-around by the administration.

Mike Helbling

Follow-through. Every senate candidate should be judged by his record - to see whether he has follow-through.

Because no matter what programs a candidate favors, as senator they must have follow-through to carry them out.

Fall semester, I think I demonstrated follow-through by serving as Argonaut advertising manager and turning a profit for the first time in many years.

The programs I would like to follow through on:

1. Developing alternatives to the unwanted, unneeded Commons Building - I helped organize the petition drive which resulted in administration withdrawal of its request for architect's fees.

But they may be back - and we must be ready.

2. Developing a lecture notes system for large lecture classes where professional notes would help.

3. And most of all, following through to make sure the University administration stops their extravagant use of student fees.

As Vice-President of the Committee for Student Rights, I want to provide communication between the student government and the committee. The University administration must realize that students should decide what services are provided.

So now, I ask you to follow-through; and vote HELBLING.

Abby Fritts

What is the ASUI? Right now, the ASUI is a small group of people that are supposedly representing us and our needs and rights as students. But are they? ASUI means the Associated Students of the University of Idaho, every one of us now attending the University. Too often, the views of a few people replace those of the majority.

I am working toward a better system of representation, where all of the students are represented and have a voice in the matters concerning them. The Senators should represent a broad constituency including living groups of all kinds. They will report before every Senate meeting as to what is being discussed and find out your views on what will be done in the future. It is your Senator's obligation to tell you what will be going on, as well as listen to your views in order to represent you, the student.

Several issues will be under evaluation during this semester and next year, all of which directly effect you as students. The first is the itemizing of all fees and tuition, so we know exactly where our money is going. Secondly, is the future use of the stadium: who will be able to use it and how it will be controlled? And finally, attaining a liquor license on campus for the SUB and golf course.

We are the ASUI, let's get the students back into government.

Carl Rana

I've been a student at the University of Idaho for the past three-and-a-half years and during this time I've yet to see, let alone hear, my senate representative except during an election campaign or at the bars on a weekend.

I feel that true representation for the student should be the number one priority taken by an ASUI officer, especially a senator. All ASUI senators are assigned to specific living groups for the purpose of getting student questions, problems and criticisms back to the senate for possible action. Close contact and general interests for the student is what I feel the ASUI should be all about. With the rise in costs mounting everywhere I think a closer watch on student monies would be in order.

I think students should have a say in whether or not a new building should be erected. If a publication of the break down of student fees, which appears in the Argonaut at least once a year, were made more available to the student, I think their complaints about fund allocating would be more valid. But most importantly, I feel very strongly that all the facts of any issue should be made absolutely clear so that the bullshit can be kept to a very minimum, and clear sound decisions arrived at promptly.

Pat Borchard

The Senate has often been criticized by the Argonaut and students of not doing their jobs. Too many of them have other extra-curricular duties and are unable to devote full time as being senators.

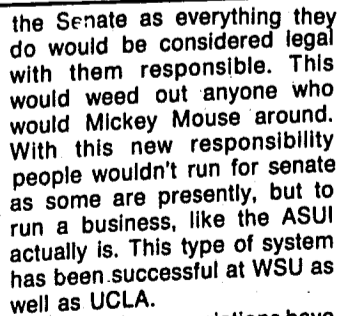

They often have closed minds in dealing with other organizations as I have found out being a member of this year's Frosh Council. These two falacies can be remedied damn fast. First of all have the students support a document that would enable the ASUI to become a corporation. This has advantages as students could then own their own facilities such as the SUB and UCC buildings without Administration control. The ASUI could then go directly to the Regents for requests that have student support, not Carter's recommendations. Also under State law this corporation would be tax exempt as a non-profit organization.

This would put a burden on

the Senate as everything they do would be considered legal with them responsible. This would weed out anyone who would Mickey Mouse around. With this new responsibility people wouldn't run for senate as some are presently, but to run a business, like the ASUI actually is. This type of system has been successful at WSU as well as UCLA.

Financial appropriations have been a fiasco especially in the cases of the Arg and KUOI, poor foresight of need is seen here which has been causing problems lately. Again this can be attributed to poor cooperation. Needless to say I support Senate reform. If you want your ASUI senate working as it should then you'll support me.

Tom Falash

My campaign poster depicts me as a "flasher," exposing myself to students with the caption: "Tom Falash. He'll stir up student interest." This poster might seem to be a joke; something to get people to notice and recall my name. But it also underlines one of my biggest concerns and an important reason that I'm asking for your vote.

Student apathy is a very real problem at the University. Inevitable or not, it is the Senate's obligation to give everyone a chance to be heard, and to keep open as many avenues as possible. I support one proposal that could do just this— providing one representative from each living group as a link between the students and senate. The representative would be an active member of the living group who would know and understand their problems and opinions. Currently, a senator is assigned four living groups and can't possibly know the living group as well as an insider.

There are other problems which also must be acted upon. I support the new proposed constitution and ask for your support of it. I also feel the students must be given more say in faculty council decisions. If you really want a man who will stir things up, I ask for your vote.

George Ambrose

On running for the senate, feel it is necessary to obtain the trust of the students, faculty, and administration of the university. A trust by the students to know that they will be represented with their views and concerns, along with a feeling given by the administrators. This now seems to be a blocking point with the current parties involved.

For good relations to evolve between the students and the administration and faculty, a good communication tie must be present. A series of down cutting remarks in editorials is not the way to get problems solved, let alone create a good educational atmosphere. If people are to realize their own mistakes and then with the help of others, come up with a solution for them, much of the disrespect for one another can be omitted.

If I were running on a campaign platform, it would be one of organizational and representational reform. The new constitution brought by the current senate will help this problem substantially. The turnover of senators during the term will hopefully eliminate some living groups fear of long-lasting power blocks. And the presidential veto will act as a guard against bad legislations. Therefore, I would encourage all voters to give a positive vote for this new constitution. I will not go into a long series of campaign promises, because I feel that if once elected, a senator is remembered more by what he does in office, rather than what he has said he will do before hand.

Storm Spoljaric

The bullshit is getting pretty deep around here. Sherm is trying to screw us over. The Arg is desperately trying to keep its head above water and Entertainment could use a few more bucks to put on a real concert.

A few people would enjoy watching us freeze on the way to an unwanted Commons Building and then ice-on the way back from our semi-multipurpose stadium (due to the lack of student locker rooms).

The University of Idaho has escaped the tangled web of tuition due to the State Constitution. Some of our fellow students have found a fault in the way the University collects fees and have all but set the wheels of in-state tuition in motion. The tuition process is a much easier way of raising fees. Their efforts are self-defeating. After serving on the Frosh council I recommended that it be abolished. Freshmen comprise almost a third of the university's student body and should have a right to say where their money goes. The constitutional amendment should fill the bill nicely.

Blue Mountain has made progress every year and we should continue to expand this worthwhile event.

Vote for the weatherman's most overused word at the U of I ...STORM.

ASUI leaders look at need for buildings

A six-member team of University of Idaho student government leaders is assessing student needs regarding U of I building plans, according to committee chairman Rick Smith.

Smith, ASUI vice president, said, "We are gathering facts on existing building uses and questioning students on their opinions to formulate a student position on this matter."

The committee is interviewing personnel related to food service and the campus bookstore, and studying various alternatives to construction of a new building to provide such student services.

Vandals home for Big Sky contests

The Vandals have returned to their headquarters, Memorial Gym, in hopes of stopping Weber State and Northern Arizona this weekend.

Idaho has just completed an ugly, unfriendly road trip with a 1-11 record. The Vandals are now 8-14 overall and 2-8 in the Big Sky Conference.

This weekend, Idaho will host the same two squads who were ungracious hosts last week. Weber, who rudely slapped the Vandals 81-72 in Ogden, and Northern Arizona, which beat Idaho 111-86 in Flagstaff, will find Memorial Gym and the Vandals very mean tonight and tomorrow night.

The Vandals have been faring poorly on the road and the last two games they have played without senior center Roger Davis, who was sidelined with a broken foot. Davis, Idaho's second all-time leading rebounder, broke the right foot in practice and put an end to his Vandal career.

Coach Jim Jarvis tried tilling the gap with freshman Chris Price but then called on the reserve list. Jim Nuess was given the chance in Flagstaff to fill Davis' slot and he performed quite well with 18 points and garnered 14 rebounds.

Nuess will be starting this weekend but Jarvis may be shuffling his decks and coming up with a new hand for the rest of the starters.

The Weber Wildcats, under coach Neil McCarthy, will roll into Moscow tonight leaning heavily on forward Al DeWitt. The game means a lot to Weber; with a season record of 9-12 they can't lose if they want to maintain their enviable record of nothing but winning seasons.

The Wildcats will have to deal with a Vandal squad full of revengeful ideas and one Henry Harris who burned them for 30 points (all from the field). The Vandals, a smaller team, were out-rebounded by only two grabs last week and at home the boards are much more inviting.

NAU, under the direction of first-year coach John Burkett, will also swing north into the Palouse. Set for a tilt Saturday night, the Vandals will be out to slap the Lumberjacks after a humiliating loss by 25 points last Saturday.

Both games will begin at 8 p.m. in Memorial Gym.

After 87 years, almost everybody is still evading the problem of tracking error.

Our leading position in the industry carries the obligation to solve the nagging little problems, too.

We spent seven years of our corporate life to devise a method that would keep the tonearm head at a constant 90° angle to the line drawn through the stylus tip and the turntable spindle.

So there'd be no distortion at all from that source.

The basic concept was simple. Why not put a hinged rather than a fixed head on the tonearm? Then the head could keep correcting its angle during play.

It was the execution of the concept that took all that time. We had to develop a whole new approach to tonearm engineering, from pivots to inertia distribution.

The result is available in the top models of the current Garrard line. The Garrard Zero Tracking Error Tonearm. Nobody else has anything remotely like it.

How important is the new development? High Fidelity magazine called it "probably the best arm yet offered as an integral part of an automatic player." And the first Garrard turntable to incorporate it received the Emile Berliner award for "An Outstanding Contribution to the World of Sound."

That's poetic justice.

For your free copy of The Garrard Guide, a 16-page full-color reference booklet, write to Garrard, Dept. G-12, 100 Commercial Street, Plainview, N.Y. 11803.

The tonearm of the original Emile Berliner gramophone of 1887 had tracking error.

Why? Because it was a pivoted arm with a fixed head, traveling across the record in an arc.

Just like almost every tonearm today.

The main difference is that today's tonearms don't have a big horn attached to them. But they have tracking error for the same inescapable reasons. The laws of geometry.

Mr. Berliner didn't talk about tracking error. He had bigger news for the world—and more important causes of distortion in his machine.

Today's manufacturers, on the other hand, have every reason to talk about tracking error, but they don't. They've refined their designs to the point where they call the tracking error and the resulting distortion "minimal," and they don't like to think about that irreducible minimum.

Except us. Garrard.

All conventional arms with a fixed offset have tracking error.

Women's varsity team ups win record

The U of I women's basketball team was busy over the holiday weekend bringing their record to 8-3.

Friday night the Vandababes traveled to Coeur d'Alene and rallied to defeat North Idaho College 48-41 after trailing by three points at the half.

The games high scorer was Darcy Aldrich with seventeen points and 23 rebounds. Jeanie Meyer followed with 10 points and Lou Anne Hanes with 7 points and 12 rebounds.

Saturday morning, the Idaho women hosted Walla Walla Community College and easily won the contest 47-34.

Lou Anne Hanes led the Vandals with 10 points followed by Mary Beth Roberts with 8. Sue Biery and Terry Janusiewicz each added 5. Janusiewicz controlled the Boards with 14 rebounds followed closely by Nellie Jones with 12.

Saturday night the home team lost to Northwest Nazarene College from Nampa in a hard fought game. With the lead changing hands several times, the Vandals couldn't hold the fouls down in the last few minutes and lost 54-46.

High scorers for the U of I were Mary Beth Roberts and Sue Biery, each with 10, Lou Anne Hanes and Darcy Aldrich with 8, followed by Nellie Jones with 6. Hanes and Aldrich pulled in 15 and 12 rebounds, respectively.

Tuesday the Vandals stomped the WSU "B" squad 52-43 in front of a large crowd at Pullman. Scoring honors for Idaho went to Anne Williamson with 13 points followed by Judy Willfong with 12 and Darcy Aldrich with 11. Aldrich also grabbed 28 rebounds.

The team will be on the road this weekend, playing Blue Mountain in Pendleton, Oregon on Friday, and Boise State and Eastern Oregon in Boise on Saturday.

Leslie Adonizio of Coral Gables, Florida, has bought eleven cameras, a watch that tells the time in each and every spiral galaxy, and a sports car that changes color when pursued, but the only thing that's fun anymore is his stereo system bought from us.

Leslie's system.

Leslie reports that his Advent, Kenwood, Garrard, Pickering system from our place is sometimes the only thing that keeps him going.

"I listen to those Advent/2 speakers," he writes, "which cost me so little, and I am so embarrassed at their splendidness and realism that I sometimes think that it would be nice to send Advent or you more money. But fortunately, music also heals my head so nicely at those times that everything comes out all right. I'm working on it, but money still means a lot to me."

Advent, which is helping us pay for this ad, informs us: "We are really happy that Leslie wrote in like that. We spent twenty years learning to make a speaker as good as the Advent/2, which (believe us) is really wonderful, for so little money, so we don't want any more scratch for ones we've sold. But we hope Leslie gets the money thing under control; it's been driving him crazy for years. Thank you."

Now, We've put this really terrific system together around the Advent/2's for only $325, and if you don't already own a really good stereo system, you'd be crazy not to get the money together in some legal way and buy it. Besides the Advent/2's, it's got a fine Kenwood KR 1400 receiver to power the Advent/2's. It will receive all the FM and AM stations you desire. We include a Garrard 42M automatic turntable with a Pickering V15 cartridge and diamond stylus that will do good by your records.

Don't be foolish and buy some mass-market chrome phonograph when for very few dollars more you could have this system. And don't go around buying super-fanatic cameras and things until you have a good system like this to help you see better.

Take it from Leslie, who sends his best.

For women only

"Stop the World We Want to Get On" is the theme of a women's conference to be held Saturday at the Moose Lodge, 210 North Main. The conference is co-sponsored by the U of I Women's Center and the Moscow branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW). The goals of the conference are to help build women's confidence to take themselves seriously; to determine and evaluate their needs; and then to implement these in their lives.

According to Alayne Hanaford, of the ASUW, the conference is open to all women. She noted that some of the topics to be discussed include the creative use to time, the pros and cons of volunteerism, women and the roles they play in family relationships, and ways to establish priorities for life goals.

The conference will begin with a Reader's Theater, followed by workshop and panel discussions, and will close with an evaluation by Anne Volleque, the president of the Idaho AAUW. The registration fee is $1.50. Child care will be provided for the day-long conference. For further information, contact the Women's Center at 885-6616.

Candidates to air views

"Meet the Candidates," a chance for students to find out more about the candidates running for ASUI election next week, will be offered by KUOI-FM Monday night.

Rob Franklin, KUOI news director, said that an open forum will be held in the SUB's Borah Theatre, sponsored by the station. Franklin said that all candidates are invited to the forum, and that any students who wish to question the candidates about their platforms should come.

"We'll be broadcasting the entire forum live, and we urge all students to stop by and ask the candidates about their stands on the various issues," Franklin said.

Franklin also said that those who can't make it to the forum will be able to call in questions to the station and have them answered by the candidates.

The forum will begin at 7 p.m. in the Borah theatre, and all concerned students are urged to attend.

What's happening

Outdoor Adventure Week, this is sponsored by the Outdoor Program for Issues and Forums Committee and they will be presenting a variety of speakers and displays during the coming week. The Outdoor Week is to familiarize students with outdoor activities. On Sunday, February 23 a slide presentation on "Communion with Nature" will be held at St. Augustine's Church at 11 a.m. Also a kayak pool presentation session will be held at noon at the swim center. Admission will be 50 cents.

Beginning Monday February 24 and running all week will be displays. In the SUB there will be an outdoor program equipment display while in the art gallery there will be an outdoor photography display. There will be an open house at the outdoor program center in the SUB from 7-10 p.m. Activities will include a spring trip planning, rap session, volunteer projects and refreshments will be served.

Speakers include John Roskelly who will give a slide presentation on mountain climbing on Tuesday Feb. 25 and mountaineer Bill March from Scotland who will give a lecture on ice climbing on Thursday Feb. 27.

This weekend the SUB will again be offering a variety of movies. Marlon Brando will be featured in two classics. First off he plays a tough guy role by playing the leader in a lawless gang in "The Wild One." In "On The Waterfront" he plays a longshoreman. This movie deals with waterfront gangsterism. Both movies will be shown in the Borah Theatre on Friday Feb. 21 and Saturday Feb. 22. "The Wild One" will be showing at 7 and 10 p.m. and "On The Waterfront" will be shown at 8:15 p.m. only. Admission will be 75 cents to both features.

Also in the SUB this weekend Mick Jagger will be starring in "Performance" in one of his more raunchy roles. This X rated feature will be shown Friday at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the ballroom. Admission will be 75 cents.

Over at the Micro-Moviehouse a greater variety of movies will be shown for those who like to venture off campus. Tonight D.H. Lawrence's "The Virgin and The Gypsy" will be shown. This movie is the story about a college girl trying to break family ties and becoming a woman. Starting Saturday and running through Monday will be "Play It Again Sam". This comedy stars Woody Allen as a neurotic movie critic whose bedtime clumsiness has made his sex life non-existent.

Those who enjoy classical music will be offered two concerts in the coming week. Tonight graduate music student Susan Haff will present the compositions of Bach, Hoffmeister, Berio and Copland in a flute recital to be held at 8 p.m. in the Music Building Recital Hall. On Sunday February 23, graduate music student and mezzo-soprano Kay Hale will present a voice recital at 4 p.m. also at the Music Building Recital Hall. Admission to both of these performances are free and open to the public.

On Saturday Feb. 22 the Sigma Alpha Iota Faculty Show will be presented. This is a humorous display of the varied talents among the faculty and spouses of the University of Idaho School of Music. The talent show begins at 8:00 p.m. in the Music Building Recital Show. This show is open to the public and admission will be 75 cents.

Turning to popular music, local musician Dean Conglin will be playing country and western at the Eagles Capricorn. Over at the Rathskeller Inn, "Power-potion" from San Diego will be playing solid funk through Saturday night. Starting Sunday and playing through Tuesday will be the "Wright Brothers" from Spokane.

Gamerom has new look

The SUB gamerom is receiving a new look, partly because of the efforts of two interior design majors who have donated their talents.

Sandy Butler and Marcia Lehman, designed the graphic and warm-earth colors now featured on the gamerom walls. The project, originally intended for credit in an interior design class, was given to Butler and Lehman just two weeks before the end of the fall semester, and was completed in time for work to begin over Christmas vacation.

The designing was done free of charge. However, according to Hoot Gibson, gamerom manager, the actual painting cost approximately $3,000.

Gibson listed future plans for the gamerom as including a new front desk, carpeting, and a pro shop, where various athletic supplies will be sold to students at usual retail rates.
