Warnick tabs five new senators

Five student applicants have been chosen by ASUI President David Warnick to fill the five empty Senate seats.

They are Scott Wendling, David Vest, Tamara Sloviaczek, Tim Sampson and Jeff Barrus. These candidates ship" in the ASUI; and second, that the experience and background be similar to that of the people they replace.

The five selected represent a diverse background but similar views on current issues. None of the five ran for office in past elections.

All five said they have kept a close watch on student and university affairs while they have been here, though two, Jeff Barrus and Scott Wendling, said this is their first semester at the U of I. Several others said they did not run in the last election because they were then were picked from 21 applicants for the positions.

Warnick also listed five alternates in the event "such nominees will not be approved by the Senate."

The alternates are Kerry Jaudoon, Jane Mannex, John Hecht, Tracey Barker and Thom Kinceloe.

Warnick noted in a letter indicating his choices that "I'm bound to upset 21 people." He applauded the "caliber" of several of the applicants who were not selected, and urged all applicants to run in the Senate election November 19.

Warnick said he made "a couple of understandings" in making the appointments - first, that the senate positions be "training ground" for "future leader-freshman and felt they lacked experience.

They generally agreed on the issues - all urged some controls on Blue Mountain, but did not wish to see it stopped; all favored incorporation; and while some wanted more research done, all generally favored the proposed change in the Moscow city ordinance which would end city prohibitions against alcohol on campus.

All were somewhat reluctant to say they would transform these opinions into policy, however. They said they felt living groups should be consulted before voting on major issues.

None of the nominees said they planned to embark on major projects except Tim Sampson. Sampson, a former Administrative Assistant to Warnick, said he will continue working on areas he has been researching - student services.

"Vice President, Tom Richardson has been preparing a mission report on the student services," he said, "and I will follow that." He also said he plans to try to force university buildings to comply with state laws enabling handicapped people easy transportation, such as elevators in buildings which now have only stairs between floors.

Sampson, like Warnick a member of the Young Republican organization, has worked as his assistant since April.

Nominee Scott Wendling, a second semester sophomore from Idaho State University, said he became involved in politics first at ISU, and moved to the U of I because "I like it here much more." Wendling lives in Graham Hall.

He said he would support the use of the dome for such events as Blue Mountain. "I'd hate to stop it," he said, "It lets out a lot of steam."

He expressed the prospects of the students as well being "shackled" - by the Board of Regents. Asked how he thought the students were being restrained, he said it was "in independence of expression - I think there is much pressure on the students not to rebel."

Jeff Barrus is probably the most conservative of the five - by his own statement - and he said the

do not drink but as long as there are no problems - I don't favor such laws that are unenforceable."

Barrus said this is his first semester as a student at the university, but he grew up here. "Then I went to California for three years on a mission. Now I'm ready to come back."

Tamara Sloviaczek, the only greek among the nominees, said she was "not too pleased" with the way the Senate is being run. She emphasized most strongly among the candidates the need to consult living groups, saying, "I want to think of what the students want."

The remaining candidate, David Vest, said he didn't run last February because he was a Freshman and, he said, "I just didn't have enough knowledge" to serve.

He added that while he has not been heavily involved in ASUI activities since then, neither has he "been handicapped by past political exploits."

Neither have most of the others; all are relative newcomers to the ASUI politics.

Jeff Barrus

Senate represented an opportunity to be active in such areas as changing liquor policy. Barrus, president of the LDS student organization on campus, said "I personally

The Vandals are on the road this weekend, and a long road it is indeed. Traveling to the state of Arkansas, Idaho will meet with Arkansas State in a game that may include a few surprises. See the story on page 6.

Reaction to the remodeling of the executive offices in the administration at the University of Idaho is strong. Burt Cross, Communications professor, believes the money spent on the offices could be used for better things. Bill Lewis relates the story on page 10.

Argonaut today

The United Way Fund Drive will begin this weekend, and the U of I campus is involved. Greek Advisor, Bruce Pitman is heading up the campaign for this charitable cause. Carolyn Harada gives the details on page 3.

The Troy Winery may have seen its last days. The business is liquidating its assets, and the small community expects a large gathering for the finish. David Morrissey has the facts on page 5.

Campus update Rural keggers need caution

Before you and your friends buy that cold keg of beer and head for the country to release all the pent up energy and frustrations of academic life, Latah County Sheriff Ed Pierce offers a few words of caution.

First, Pierce said, get permission from the landowner if the land is privately owned. Most landowners in the county will give permission to use their land if you explain to them in advance what it is to be used for, he added.

Second, don't block any county roads. Pierce said the problem is most severe at Robinson Lake. There have been times in the past when the sheriff's office has had to threaten to remove cars with a wrecker to allow traffic through, he said.

"And please," Pierce said, "clean up afterwards."

According to Mrs. James Ludwig, caretaker at Robinson Lake, a favorite party spot in the past, noise and parking are the biggest problems there.

"Some of the local people object because it gets pretty rowdy sometimes," she said.

There is a large open area at the intersection as you approach the lake, said Mrs. Ludwig, this is where we would like people to park.

There are no county ordinances against the consumption of alcohol in public, said Pierce. However, in national forest land, any fires built during the fire season could put an unexpected early end to the party.

Sheriff Pierce said he was pleased to see that problems with outdoor beer parties were on the decline. "More people are coming in to talk and consequently the problems are going down," he said.

"We really don't get any pleasure out of going out and hassling a bunch of guys,"

Preschoolers attend care center

Autumn's back to school trek includes 45 preschoolers who are enrolled at the Campus Child Care Center on the South Hill Terrace. The center, which is in its second year of operation, boasts $5000 in outdoor recreational equipment for the youngsters, in addition to the many other facilities provided by the highly qualified staff.

The self-supporting facility provides daycare facilities to any children, but preference is given to the children of students. The cost of the services are $70 per month for the full-day program. The center received twice as many applications this year as they did last year, and many of the youngsters returned for a second year in the the program.

In addition to the excellent outdoor facilities, the inside of the center features a full kitchen, washer and dryer upstairs and a downstairs area full of mind stimulating and creativity building toys and games.

The director of the center is Lori Edwards, who has her masters degree in speech therapy and minored in child development. Two additional full time workers, Marilyn Winegardner, who has a double major in child development and childhood education; and Sandee English who has a one year certificate in early childhood education, provide the adult supervision and attention for the children. Chris Nortman, working on his masters in child development, is the graduate assistant at the center.

Shopping mall takes shape

At least three major stores are near the contract signing stage for construction of business facilities in the new Palouse Empire Mall, one developer of the mall said last week.

Earl D. McCarthy, a Spokane developer of the mall which will be built on University of Idaho property, told the Lewiston Morning Tribune last Tuesday that plans for signing the three stores were progressing smoothly.

"We have working drawings on all three stores, but we haven't quite finalized everything yet," McCarthy is quoted as saying.

McCarthy has refused to name the stores until the contract negotiations are completed, but it has been learned that K-Mart, a chain of stores based in Los Angeles, is planning a 40,000 square foot store in the soon to be constructed mall.

The first phase of mall development calls for 92,000 square feet of commercial space.

McCarthy also noted that work on the mall has already begun. Installation of water lines, street and curbs, and sewer lines are planned for completion within the next three months. Blacktopping of the mall area is also soon to be underway.

The big problem, McCarthy said, was the weather. "We may or may not be able to meet that schedule."

University of Idaho Financial Vice President Sherman Carter has recently commented that he, too, is encouraged with progress of the mall.

"I'm optimistic and confident that everything is going to proceed well," Carter has stated, indicating his belief that the mall is a desirable asset for the university.

The new mall site, located on the highway between Pullman and Moscow, is expected to draw shoppers from both communities. In the first phase of the investment, the University of Idaho is expected to invest $2.5 million.

Their's plenty at steak with regents in town

Charging that "the students brought it on themselves" by their "indiscreet" behavior at last year's annual steak fry for the University of Idaho Board of Regents, the Moscow Chamber of Commerce Monday night refused to extend invitations to students leaders to attend the yearly event.

The event was originally conceived as an informal meeting of regents with the Moscow Chamber of Commerce. Last year students representatives from the University, including ASU President David Warnick, and Senator Maureen McProud, were invited.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Larry Grupp stated Tuesday following the Monday meeting that it was the behavior of the students that brought about their banning.

Grupp claimed the students "monopolized" the time of the regents, and in general, exhibited behavior that was "very indiscreet." "I don't think we wanted to take the chance of being embarrassed again," he said.

One example of this behavior, Grupp stated, was a girl student cornering a regent and shaking her finger at him."

Maureen McProud, the only girl student present, flatly denies that she acted in this manner. "I didn't do it," McProud stated yesterday in a telephone interview. She did comment however that she felt discussion of controversy surrounding the Blue Mountain Festival, during last year's meeting, might have been seen by the chamber as "lobbying" for the festival.

"We weren't lobbying," McProud said. "But if they thought we were it might explain their actions."

Give a day's pay the United Way

"Give a day's pay the United Way" is the theme for Moscow United Way Drive set for Sept. 13 through 26.

The campaign is divided into three areas. Tomorrow from 9 to 11 a.m., the U of I fraternities and sororities will aid the door to door drive collecting donations for the first time.

Volunteers should meet at 8:30 a.m. in the SUB, according to Jim Barnes, University Relations and Bruce Pittman, Greek advisor-organizers of the drive.

Starting Monday, September 15, an approximate two-week campaign encompassing the University employees and Moscow businesses will be underway.

Each business or firm will be urged to participate with its own gift first, and do all it can to get employees to participate for a "total giving effort" and attain the goal which is total participation, emphasizes Jan Schaumberg, assistant director for University development and assistant campaign director for United Way.

University of Idaho personnel will be permitted payroll deductions in an amount not less than $30 for not more than six months, or $5 a month for six months. Larger gifts may be spread over the period of a year after so indicated on the pledge card, according to Schaumberg.

The purpose of the drive is to receive support from Moscow residents for Moscow youth and service agencies.

To eliminate the need for agencies to mount their individual campaigns, this united "one-drive" campaign was set up.

This annual drive will support 14 agencies for 1975-76. The goal is to raise $28,800 this year. Last year, through payments and pledges, $24,000 was collected, Schaumberg said.

American Social Health Association: The principal national volunteer social health agency working in the field of venereal disease and drug abuse. Funds go to programs important to the prevention, treatment, and control of these serious health problems.

Arthritis Foundation: This agency assists persons needing to visit the Lewiston clinic as well as provides wheel chairs and other supplies for arthritic patients.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Camp Fire Girls: These well-known youth organizations serve both the community and its young people through a variety of projects and training programs.

Gem State Blind: This is an organization made up of blind people whose purpose is to educate both the visually handicapped and the general public about blindness. An important function is to work for legislative assistance to the blind.

Home Improvement Alliance: (HIA) Created for the purpose of improving the living conditions of disadvantaged residents in Latah County, the HIA assists those who are physically or economically disabled to make home repairs.

Nightline: Moscow's telephone crisis and information center, made up of volunteers representing all dimensions of the Moscow community. This service provides a telephone crisis center, rumor research, nutritional service, and answers any reasonable questions a caller may have.

Rape Crisis Clinic: This is an information and referral service. Besides assisting those who are victims by providing support and help, the service also educates the public to some of the legal and practical problems relating to rape.

American Red Cross: The Red Cross provides such local services as the blood bank program, swimming lessons, first-aid training, nursing classes, service to military families and aid in disaster.

Salvation Army: This group provides immediate assistance to people in Moscow needing food, clothing, and shelter. In addition, the Salvation Army supports a number of regional and national service programs.

Traveler's Aid Association: Not only does Traveler's Aid provide emergency assistance for travelers stranded in Moscow, but through its nationwide program, is ready to help Moscow travelers away from home. United Service Organization (USO): Established to further the spiritual, recreational, moral and welfare needs of over two million armed service personnel. It receives no financial support from the government, relying totally on volunteer support.

Volunteers in Moscow (VIM): VIM is a clearinghouse for volunteer services which helps the community to make the best use of people power by assisting agencies and organizations in meeting needs, avoiding duplication of services and programming for unmet needs.

Schaumberg explained that each agency requesting support must apply to the United Way Admissions Committee and must submit a budget which is either approved or revised by the United Way Agency asks that signature lines be signed when pledges are made.

If an agency receives excess contributions, they do not ask for aid the next year for the excess is carried over to the upcoming year, she commented. Schaumberg used the Senior Citizens Group as an example of an agency which received adequate funding last year.

Thus, they did not require further assistance this year, Schaumberg said.

President of the United Way is Susan Burcaw, executive assistant in the president's office and United Way Campaign Director is University Relations Director, Frank McCreary.

Something at steak

According to the Moscow Chamber of Commerce, the cost of steak is a little too expensive for mere students. Directors of this local organization have reduced the number of guests to be invited to the annual steak fry planned for the University of Idaho Board of Regents. Student representatives, now not invited to the function, will apparently go hungry.

The steak fry for the regents has been an annual event for the past three or four years, according to Jim DeMeerleer, Chamber President. However, DeMeerleer has stated that there has been no attempt to discriminate against any students.

None-the-less the only non-member of the chamber board now to be invited to attend the steak fry was Larry Grupp, at whose home the event is scheduled to be held.

In addition, the minutes of Monday's meeting suggest that improvements for the function were the hosting of individual regents, without the attendance of student.

The occasion was conceived as an informal, relaxed time to entertain the regents and their wives and to let chamber board members become better acquainted with the regents, according to DeMeerleer.

Perhaps it would be less expensive in the long run if hamburger was purchased for the event, rather than steak. In this case more people could be invited to the function, including students, who rarely have the chance to meet with the regents in an informal atmosphere.

"Some chamber members made it clear they didn't want students present," stated David Warnick, ASUI president and an ex-officio member of the board. Paul Mann, Moscow's Mayor, and Gary Morris, Latah County commissioner were also excluded from the event. However, it is not known if the board meant to discriminate against city officials either.

As ironical as it may seem, a decision on the request by Warnick that an ASUI representative be appointed to full membership on the board was postponed pending an investigation and recommendation from John Mix and Don Mackin. Evidently the appointment may have just been another mouth to feed.

Bircher complains of inaccuracies

Editor:

I felt compelled to respond to the article about the John Birch Society which was in Wednesday's Arg. I am the chapter leader of the campus youth chapter of the John Birch Society.

I am getting extremely tired of being misquoted and having to respond to erroneous statements and articles. In this article about the John Birch Society I found three incorrect quotes, one erroneous statement, and three totally misleading statements. If the Arg's reporters are unable to remember a man's words -- they shouldn't make up quotes that they think "Sound good." I hate to have some lazy reporter put words in my mouth. A friend of mine called me up after reading this article and asked me if I had been "grossly misquoted," he said he would have thought I was a nut if he hadn't known me and the Argonaut reporter who wrote the story.

The headline for the article about the John Birch Society was "Rockefellers, Kennedy part of conspiracy, Birchers say" -- is not what I or any other Bircher claimed. David Morrissey, the Arg reporter who wrote this article kept asking me to list members of the Conspiracy -- I told him that very few people were actually members of the Conspiracy but obviously many people helped them by pushing legislation or proposals to increase the size and power of the federal government. So Morrissey writes a headline saying they are part of the Conspiracy -- then later in the article saying these and others are either members or dupes of the Conspiracy, thus implicating that these Birchers are looking for conspirators under every bed. This is like saying because someone votes for a bill supported by a socialist or an anarchist that this person is a socialist or an anarchist -- an obviously absurd conclusion but yet this person is helping the socialist or anarchist achieve his goal -- but no sane person would say that everyone voting a certain policy is a socialist or an anarchist or anything else simply because he votes a certain way on only a few occasions.

I have covered only one of two errors and false implications but to fully respond to all seven points would fill this entire Argonaut to anyone wishing more information about what the John Birch Society really stands for and believes in, should contact me: David Dorn 882-4456.

I hope this will prevent any further erroneous quotes or half-truths from being printed about the John Birch Society, but I doubt that the Arg's staff can be objective enough to deal fairly with the John Birch Society considering its predominately liberal bias.

David Dorn

Editor's Note:

The Argonaut feels it necessary to respond to the above charges by explaining the procedure that went into the writing of the story on the John Birch Society.

Three different representatives of the Argonaut - two reporters and one photographer - attended the chapter meeting. The reporter that eventually wrote the story not only checked and re-checked his own personal notes from that event, but carefully examined the notes taken by the other reporter present. He then discussed the meeting with that reporter and the photographer in an effort to ensure that his impressions were accurate.

Still seeking confirmation of what he felt were areas of doubt he then called the chapter leader of the campus youth chapter of the John Birch Society, the above Mr. David Dorn, and discussed the meeting and the John Birch Society in a conversation that lasted over 20 minutes.

Following this conversation the reporter sought additional information from the University library in an attempt to clarify references to various individuals and organizations mentioned by Mr. Dorn.

When the story on the JBS was finally written, it was examined by those Argonaut staff members who had attended the meeting to ensure its accuracy.

No comment was taken out of context, indeed a strenuous effort was made to report the comments as they were made.

Curses: just another politician

Dear Editor:

Here I sit, sour graping my first political endeavor. Through-out my years as a quasi-student I had never before dreamed of being a politician. One day last week I read that there had been a mass resignation in the legislative body of the school and Whamò; a Joan of Arc light immersed me in the SUB lounge and a voice demanded that I strive to matyr myself as a student senator. Very clear thoughts entered my mind, "here is my chance to do something constructive and save this university from certain doom" or "maybe I can wrangle some money from the recycling center" or "maybe I can block off the campus to all traffic."

So I set up an interview with the universities truly most inspired partisan ambitious politician, David Warnick (who I'd probably vote for if he ran against Steve Symms to be questioned about the functions and desires of my university senator aspirations. The interview went something like this. "How do you feel about incorporation of the Student Body?" my answer-"what is a corporation?" "How do you feel about the Blue MountainRock Festival?" My answer-"It is great for the recycling center." Dave sort of stiffened for the cruncher, "What grade are you in?" My answer-"Senior eternally". ease off and a mood of patronization for "senior citizens" set in. What are your qualifications." My answer-"I feel inclined to represent an unrepresented faction of our unversity society- spatial buckaroo's and the independent canine packs. The eternal senior who sees graduation as a confrontation with the real world and therefore avoids it." Dave asks me with a Republican look in his eye, "Do you have any questions?" I grabbed courageously for a flittering thought-"What do you folks on the Senate do?" His answer was fast and concise-"We recommend." Seems logical, I think. When I left I was thankful he didn't hand me a list of the area rest home and cursed that foul inspiration that made me want to be a politician in the first place.

Kibbie distinguished?

To the Editor:

Only a supreme effort holds back the obscene words, gestures, and malicious intent that many of us wish the administration here. If we openly reject their proposals involving Blue Mountain, Dome, drinking policies etc. the sole action is one of covering up any possible embarassments.

The majority of the students here did not plead for construction of the dome rather, the opposite.

To generously give $300,000 or approx. five per cent of the total cost is admirable. But to name the structure after that contributor is going a long way. It is not uncommon to name structures of this size after distinguished persons, for example: Theophilus Tower. But Mr. Kibbie is hardly a 'distinguished' alumnus, he spent scarcely a semester here.

Perhaps if another individual contributes a half million, that person would recieve top billing. Ah, but I have been mistaken, I see it now; this situation works in reverse. "the least shall be first." Therefore taking the idea on to perfection we should search for someone who spent, oh say, a week on campus and promises to donate perhaps $3.00. That person deserves top billing.

Idaho's only winery to be liquidated

by David Morrissey

Over 14,000 gallons of Idaho and California wine, along with quantities of wine making equipment, will be auctioned off in Troy, Idaho, Saturday, as the Troy Winery ends its three year existence.

Wine dealers and interested individuals are expected from as far away as Indianapolis for the 10 a.m. auction, which local residents are describing as "possibly the biggest gathering of people here in Troy in a long time."

The wine to be auctioned off includes over 12,000 gallons of bulk Chelois wine. According to the auctioneers for the Saturday sale, this wine can be sold only to those possessing a valid wine license.

The quantity of the bulk wine also prohibits against individual buyers. The smallest bulk containers that will be sold are 21 barrels, each holding 50 gallons. Also to be auctioned are several vats of wine containing 2,800 gallons and 3,100 gallons respectively.

Two wine companies of California - Fortino Wine of Gilray California and Trentadue Wine of Gyserville, California - have expressed interest in these bulk purchases.

Also to be auctioned, however, are approximately 2,000 bottles of miscellaneous wines. These include Californian wines for which the Troy winery was a distributor, and unsold bottles of Troy produced Chateau Chelois wine.

These bottles of wine will be sold to the general public on a first come, first served basis. The wine making equipment to be auctioned includes, among other items, a hand operated wine press, several electric motors, four white oak tanks, capable of holding 3,500 gallons, two 6,700 gallon stainless steel tanks, and over 2,000 empty bottles and corks.

The Troy Winery filed for articles of incorporation in April of 1971, and began making its first wine in November of that year. In Early June of 1972, the winery held a grand opening, with the first tasting of its new Chateau Chelois wine.

Special ceramic decanters, in the shape of the state of Idaho, were first publicly presented at the grand opening and were sold throughout the nation in the following year.

Financial difficulties eventually overcame the young organization, however, and this Saturday will see the liquidation of Idaho's only winery.

After Saturday Idaho's only winery will close its doors forever. The liquidation sale, to be held Sat. morning at 10 a.m. will include over 14,000 gallons of Idaho produced wine.

Vandals open season in Arkansas

The U of I football season will begin tomorrow evening when the Vandals take on Arkansas State at Jonesboro, Arkansas.

Last weekend the Arkansas State Indians initiated their 1975 season by thrashing an inferior Northwestern Louisiana University.

"We will be moving into a dangerous frying pan in Jonesboro on Saturday evening." U of I Coach Ed Troxel said. Arkansas State is a very sound football team, perhaps the toughest defensive team that we will face all season. They proved to everyone against Northwestern Louisiana that they've found the right offensive combo too," he added.

ASU racked up 32 first downs--a school record--while holding their opponent to just eight. The Indians gained a solid 395 yards rushing and 92 more from their aerial circus.

Directing the potent offense is David Hines at quarterback, who personally cheeked it to paydirt four times. Hines recently was converted from safety to the quarterback slot and at 5-9, 180 lbs., he isn't shy of carrying the ball. Last week he toted 16 times for 59 yards.

The Indian Coach, Bill Davidson was pleased with his team's opener. "This was the kind of victory that scares you.

It gives you a false feeling. Northwestern didn't have the depth we did. Now we possibly are going to go into our next game with Idaho with a little more confidence than we should actually have."

Arkansas State is rated a 14 point favorite according to an AP poll, which appeared in yesterday's Lewiston Tribune.

The Indians outweigh the Vandals on both the offensive and defensive lines, but Troxel is counting on quickness and strength and determination to overcome.

The Idaho offense will be led by senior quarterback Dave Comstock, a 6-2, 205 pounder. Comstock recovered from shoulder surgery and is in excellent shape now.

Last year Comstock's bad shoulder was blamed for the poor record among other reasons, but he still managed to pass for 439 yards.

Comstock will be looking to throw to big Steve Duncanson at tight end. Duncanson, a 6-4, 225 pound senior is quick, has good hands and is a crushing blocker--a few of the reasons he was named All-Big Sky last year.

The Vandal running attack will be at its best with all-Big Sky fullback J. C. Chadband, a 6-0 250 pound senior. This year as co-captain of the squad Chadband will try to become only the third Vandal in history to garner 1,000 yards rushing. He gained 758 in nine and a half games in '74.

The traveling squad of 45 players left Moscow this morning and will hold a brief workout at Indian Stadium this afternoon. The team will return right after the game Saturday night.

Kickoff will be at 5:30 (PDT) Saturday evening

The Vandals will see plenty of action in their game against Arkansas State this weekend.

Alumni has full schedule

Dinners, dancing, reunions--you name it--the U of I Alumni Association has probably got plans for it in this year's entertainment schedule.

The first program of the season will be the Vandal Booster kickoff banquet at 6 p.m., September 10, at the Moscow Elks Club. All Vandal fans are invited.

Alumni get-togethers will be held prior to all home and away games, beginning September 27 when the Vandals host Idaho State University in their first home game in the Kibbie Dome.

Before the game, Idaho fans are invited to gather at the Moscow Elks from 5 to 8 p.m. for refreshments, a buffet or prime rib dinner, and a visit with Dr. Hartung and other UI officials. There will be dancing and celebrating at the Elks after the game.

Also scheduled for that weekend are a College of Business reunion and an Alumni Board and area chairpersons meeting.

The Student-Alumni Relations board will sponsor the first UI "Career Day" Thursday October 2, 9 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Student Union Building. Representatives from various occupations will meet to talk informally with students about job opportunities in their fields. A "Vandal Spirit Party" is planned to put every Idaho fan in the proper mood for the U of I-BSU football clash on October 11. Hamburgers, spirits, and entertainment will be offered from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. before the game--at Rathskellers.

Reunions for the Kappa Sigma, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Delta Sigma Phi are also planned for that weekend.

Planned for the Homecoming Weekend, October 31--November 2, are a Parent's Association meeting, reunions for the Vandal Marching Band and Vandalettes, and the class of 1965, and a fan gathering at the Elks from 4:30 to 8 p.m.

"Coeur d' Alene Day" at Moscow is planned for November 22 when the Vandals meet Northern Illinois for their final home game in the Kibbie Dome. All residents of Coeur d' Alene will be honored during half-time, and an Idaho fan gathering will be held from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Elks. Other activities scheduled are: a U of I jazz ensemble and swing choir tour through north Idaho November 3-7, a two week "South Pacific Adventure" tour for all alumni and friends to Australia, New Zealand, and Tahiti departing Boise February 14, and a vacation package to Reno, March 18-20.

Additional information about these activities may be obtained from the Alumni Office, telephone 885-6154.

Glasser workshop to study juvenile reality therapy

"Most young people in trouble are school failures," according to Dr. William Glasser who will be presenting a workshop on reality therapy at the University of Idaho Sept. 17-18.

Extensive work with the California juvenile correctional system and with the Watts area schools in the Los Angeles Inner City led to publication of two of Glasser's books, "Schools Without Failure" and "The Identity Society." Glasser currently works with schools where he uses his reality therapy techniques to motivate students and teachers to work together more effectively.

Glasser will be conducting the workshop involving his approaches to psychiatric therapy in the SUB ballroom on the U of I campus from 8:30-10:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 17, and 9 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 18.

Glasser developed the new psychiatric approach called reality therapy which emphasizes human involvement and problem solving, and is author of a book by the same name. He is also founder and president of the institute. The U of I workshop is being sponsored by the North Idaho Consortium for Health Education (NICHE), of which the University of Idaho is a member.

An event that is worth taking in this weekend is the Latah County Fair at the Moscow Fairgrounds. There will be exhibits on display, demonstrations and many rides for amusement.

Playing at the SUB this weekend is the motorcycle racing adventure of "Little Fauss and Big Halsey" starring Robert Redford and Michael J. Pollard. This takes place Sunday at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. in the Borah Theatre and admission will be 75 cents. For satiric comedy enthusiasts, the movie "The Ruling Class" starring Peter O'Toole is currently being shown through Saturday night at the Micro-Moviehouse. Due to the length of this movie the showings will be at 5, 7:40 10:25 p.m. and a later than midnight showing on Friday and Saturday. Starting Sunday is the historical adventure "The Lion In Winter." This is the movie where Katherine Hepburn won her third Academy Award as best actress of the year. The movie shows at the regular times of 5, 7:30 and 9:45 p.m. Admission is $1.50 daily and one dollar at the midnight showings.

For musical variety you can rock to "Calicoe" from Spokane at the Rathskellar Inn. They play all kinds of rock, especially the "Eagles." For more of a country flavor, you can boogie to Nar-Amores at the Eagles Capricorn.

Playing at the Mark IV Inn and Lounge is Tim Mansinger from the Tri-Cities. He plays three guitars and two banjos and his repertoire consists of anything from ballads to bull-roar.

Playing at the Kenworthy is the action packed adventure "The Eiger Sanction" starring Clint Eastwood and George Kennedy. Action starts at 7 and 9:15 p.m. daily. If you are into exorcism "Beyond The Door" starring Juliet Mills and Richard Johnson is currently showing at the Nu-Art nightly at 7 and 9 p.m. For those who like love and crime "Aloha, Bobby and Rose" starring Paul Le Mat and Dianne Hull is currently at the Cordova in Pullman. Showings are daily at 7 and 9 p.m. Also, the blockbuster "Jaws" will be soon appearing at one of the theatres in Pullman.

Noted actors to start PAC season

Noted stage actors Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy are slated to open the University of Idaho Theatre Artists' season in the U of I Performing Arts Center on Nov. 4.

Also planned for the season are Geoffrey Holder, the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with his "Instant Theatre" entertainment on Jan. 24, 1976, and Alexander Scourby, noted actor of stage, films, radio and television, presenting "Walt Whitman's America" on April 28, 1976.

With only one season under its belt, the UI guest artists' series "will sink or swim depending on the success of this year's ticket sales," commented Edmund M. Chavez, UI theatre arts head.

"Although the 1974-75 season went well enough, this season will ultimately determine if the Theatre Artists' series is to continue," Chavez added, indicating that the series is at present partially subsidized by university funds.

Cronyn and Miss Tandy, who are husband and wife, will appear in a program entitled "The Many Faces of Love," designed to bring opinions on the subject from authors as diverse as Shakespeare and Dorothy Parker, Robert Frost and Ogden Nash.

Beginning a limited, one-month tour in mid-October with this special program, the distinguished acting-duo state that "while not authorities on love," they hope to entertain and "leave the subjects of inflation, politics, the Watergate post-mortems, Evel Knievel and 'The Exorcist' to someone else."

Born in England, Miss Tandy has had a career spanning four decades here and abroad. Among her memorable portrayals was as Blanch DuBois in Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," for which she was awarded both the Tony and Twelfth Night Club awards in 1948.

Recent Broadway roles include Agnes in Edward Albee's "A Delicate Balance" with Cronyn as Tobias, and Marjorie in "Home" opposite Sir John Gielgud. She also appeared as the Wife in Albee's "All Over" in 1971.

She received the 1972-73 Obie (Off Broadway) Award for distinguished performance in "Not I" and a Drama Desk Award for her performances in "Happy Days" and "Not I."

Hume Cronyn is one of the theatre's most versatile and talented artists. In addition to a heavy acting schedule on the stage and in films and television over the years, he has written, directed and produced a number of plays.

Cronyn was awarded the 1972-73 Obie for his performance as Krapp in "Krapp's Last Tape," in which role he toured at the St. Lawrence Theater Center in Toronto, the Arena State in Washington, D.C., and throughout universities in the East and Midwest.

Miss Tandy and Cronyn appeared together most recently in the 1974 American premier of "Noel Coward in Two Keys" on Broadway.

Geoffrey Holder, winner of two Tony Awards as director and costume designer for this year's musical hit "The Wiz," will present his program of "Instant Theatre" Jan. 24 as the second guest artist's offering.

Holder originally came to this country from Trinidad with his own troupe of Caribbean dancers. He rapidly established an outstanding reputation, not only as a leading exponent of his native dances, but as a premier dancer, actor, director, choreographer and artist.

He has appeared with Josephine Baker on her American tour, and danced in the Metropolitan Opera productions of "Aida" and "La Perichole."

Lauded for his choreography, Holder was commissioned by the Harkness Ballet to do "Jeux des Dieux" and created a ballet to Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" for the Ballet Theatre.

"Instant Theatre" has been designed to display Holder's virtuosity as a total performer--in it he sings, mimes, dances and entertains.

Well-known actor Alexander Scourby will appear April 28 in "Walt Whitman's America," the final guest artist program.

Scourby's presentation has been described as a "powerful characterization" and includes Whitman's moving account of the assassination of Lincoln and selections from "Leaves of Grass."

Hailed by critics as a man of all media, Scourby has many distinguished acting roles to his credit. He appeared on Broadway with Sir John Gielgud in "Crime and Punishment"; Maurice Evans in "Hamlet," "Richard II" and "Henry IV, Part I"; and in 1972 with Claire Bloom in "Vivat! Vivat Regina!"

No vacancy

The critical shortage of available housing in the Moscow area does not seem to have eased any since the beginning of the fall semester.

The dormitories are 98 per cent full, leaving about ten beds available, said U of I Housing Director Robert Parton.

According to Donald Surfus, family housing director, the shortage of family housing is so acute that applications were not taken after the middle of July.

In a survey of off-campus housing, the Argonaut was unable to locate any housing available for rent.

Most landlords commented that this was one of the tightest years for housing that they could recall. Several also commented that most of their units were rented through the summer, whether or not anyone was living in them.

Parton said the problem was nationwide and no one seems to have an answer. "It's mostly economic I suppose," he said.

At the University of Arizona, Parton said, three students are being housed in two person rooms. And, he said he had heard the situation was so bad at WSU that students there were going to be put in the Colliseum.

Executive offices remodeled

Administrative needs take priority

By BILL LEWIS
of the Argonaut staff

The remodeling of the University executive offices has come under sharp attack from a University faculty member and members of the ASUI senate.

The planned remodeling is an example of the University putting more emphasis on administrative needs than academic needs, according to Journalism Professor Bert Cross and Senators Mike Helbling and Kim Smith.

The remodeling will cost a total of $106,500 and will combine the offices of the University President and Vice-Presidents with that of the Affirmative Action officer in an effort to provide more and better work space for executive secretaries, according to Susan Burcaw, administrative assistant to the University President.

Friday, Sept. 12, 1975

A University committee, made up of both students and faculty members should make recommendations before such remodeling expenditures are approved, according to Cross. If such a committee were given the authority to make those recommendations it would help correct what he sees as a tendency to favor administrative requests over instructional requests.

"Students are really getting the shaft," according to Senator Smith, who said at Tuesday's senate meeting he was "appalled" that executive offices were being remodeled while classrooms are in a bad state of repair.

Smith said inequities in the University's priority system created a situation in which administrative offices were "plush", but students "need a flashlight to get through the halls of the University Classroom Center and Faculty Office Complex."

The University should wait to undertake the executive remodeling plan, according to Senator Mike Helbling. "It's funny at a time when the University is $200,000 in debt that they undertake a project like this," Helbling said.

He added that academic needs, such as a new building for the school of communications seem to be neglected over a period of years while administrative budget requests are speedily approved.

ASUI President David Warnick defended the need for the remodeling plan, saying the secretaries in the president's office do deserve better working conditions, but he did agree that in general, the University neglects academic needs in favor of requests of University administrators.

"The takeover of Forney Hall (by continuing education and correspondence study) and the unwillingness of the University to press for a new communications building are better examples (than the executive remodeling plan) of the University neglecting instructional needs," Warnick said.

Decisions on faculty building priorities are made by Financial Vice-President Sherman Carter and Physical Plant Director George Gagon, without input from faculty members or students, according to Cross.

Carter recommended in a memo to University President Ernest Hartung that the Campus Planning Committee, which Cross says should make building priority decisions, be abolished, according to Cross.

"Carter apparently doesn't think faculty members are competent enough to make decisions on building recommendations," Cross said.

He spelled out his views on the building priority matter in a memo to Faculty Council last month and received an answer from Carter who claimed that such matters were outside of the realm of faculty members.

Carter said instead, such recommendations should be made by the University administrative council, made up of the University deans, vice-president and a faculty representative.

There have been improvements in academic areas over the years, such as the buildings for the colleges of law, forestry and education, but Cross said these improvements have been funded from the states permanent building fund and not from direct appropriations from the regents and legislature which have funded administrative improvements almost entirely.

Cross admitted he was irked over the lack of success he has had in getting a new building for the school of communications. The budget hearing board had made such a building a top priority item, but the request was dropped when the University needed money for matching funds in another area.

"The Communications thing is one of the reasons that I'm complaining," Cross said, "but you won't find anybody whose been getting all the gravy making a stink."

Travel the US the $76 way

All Americans can now travel all of America for $76 on Greyhound's new seven-day Ameripass.

At a news conference here today, Charles D. Kirkpatrick, Greyhound vice president-sales, said that a new seven-day unlimited travel ticket will go on sale tomorrow. The new plan has all the basic features of Greyhound's other Ameripasses, but offers a great opportunity for unlimited travel at even lower cost than ever before.

Greyhound's other Ameripasses include a new 15-day Ameripass for $125 which goes into effect Sept. 15, a one-month Ameripass costing $175 and a two-month Ameripass for $250.

"This means anyone can travel any day of the week and go anywhere over Greyhound's more than 100,000 miles of routes throughout the United States and Canada. Many connecting bus lines will also honor the new Ameripass," said Kirkpatrick. "Passengers can travel any route any day, inside and outside their state and they can stop over where or when they want."

Enrollment high in intro courses

Enrollment in introductory level courses is higher than what most departments planned this semester.

About 675 students are signed up for Psych 100, including 400 in a single lecture section, according to Professor Ray Paloutzian. "I look up and see a mass of smiling faces," he said, adding that it is obviously hard to get to know students in such a situation.

The English department reported turning away 150 or more students at registration because all sections were full. Professor Teoman Sipahigil said about 1100 students are enrolled in 42 sections in that department. He said there are fewer sections this semester than last, but they are filled "more efficiently."

The chemistry department has added 8 new lab sections to accommodate approximately 1290 enrollees. The new labs are taught at night and were described by Assistant Professor Dennis Brown as "overloaded."
