Regents failure to notify students possible law violation

By DAVID NEIWERT

The recent $5 fee increase for part-time students at the U of I is once again under fire, this time from the ASUI president's office.

According to David Warnick, former ASUI president, and Lynn Tominaga, president-elect, the Board of Regents may have violated state law by failure to notify the ASUI of the intended increase in time.

According to the Administrative Procedures Act, the Board was required to inform the students of the fee change at least twenty days before it was acted upon.

The notification, in this case, took place in the form of the Regent's agenda, which arrived at the ASUI office only ten days before the meeting.

In addition, Warnick told the Argonaut that he had written a letter to the Board of Education about a month before the regent's meeting, requesting them to notify him of any planned fee increases. No such information was ever received.

The section of the APA which may pertain to the fee increase is headed under the number 67-5203, entitled "Procedures for adoption of rules." It requires that, before a new rule—in this case, the fee increase—may be adopted, the agency involved must "give 20 days notice of its intended action... The notice shall be mailed to all persons who have made timely request in writing of the agency for advance notice of its rule-making proceedings..."

But there is some question of the applicability of the Act on the increase. There is the possibility that the enactment of the new fee may not fall under the heading of a rule change. In addition, Tominaga stated that it is possible that part-time students may not be covered by the Act.

Warnick said that ASUI Attorney General Andy Brassey is currently investigating the problem. If the fee is found to be applicable, then action will be taken accordingly.

In the same section of the APA pertaining to adoption of rules, the Act states that "no rule hereafter adopted is valid unless adopted in substantial compliance with this section." The APA also provides for a hearing on grounds of noncompliance. If the ASUI considers their case to apply to the act, then an effort will be made to enact such a hearing.

Poet Wakoski here Tuesday

As the semester draws to a close and finals approach, UI students are hard put to find time for aesthetic pursuits. But on Tuesday, Dec. 14, they will find it worth their time to take the evening off and spend a few hours at a poetry reading by one of the country's best-known poets.

Her name is Diane Wakoski and her reputation as a poet is one of the more widespread in literary circles. She has been published in almost every literary magazine in publication, and her works are among the most-respected in the field.

In recognition of her work, she has been the recipient of such honors as a Guggenheim Fellowship, a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, and teaching appointments with the New School of Social Research in New York and the Poet-in-Residence programs.

Her published collection -- which totals in the vicinity of 30 all told -- include "Waiting for the King of Spain" and "Dancing on the Grave of a Son of a Bitch".

Her schedule here begins with a discussion at the UI Women's Center at 12 noon Tuesday. Following that she will lead a poetry workshop at the Faculty Office Complex lounge from 2:30 to 5:30 (promotional posters, incidentally, give the location for this workshop in the SUB, but that information is wrong). Then, at 8 p.m., she will give a reading of her poetry, also in the lounge of the FOC. A reception is planned to follow the reading.

All of the scheduled events are open to the public without charge. Her visit to Moscow, which will be her last in the Northwest, is being sponsored by Friends of Diane Wakoski, the UI English Department, the Women's Center and the UI Library. Following her one-day visit, she will be leaving for Michigan.

Take heart in these words I speak, for I am the ghost of College Christmas'past. Tis that end-of-the-year rush that fills the souls of many a student at ye old U of I, and closes the text for another semester; the anticipation that kindles a warmth in the tummies of athletes and politicians, businessmen and city dwellers.

Times past bring to mind the meaning of the Christmas season and basketball. Remembering back to my first B-ball game in college; a home game found a team mate of mine extending what seemed to be a friendly gesture of "Merry Christmas buddy" after the other player had just scored a basket. I, in turn, followed suit and offered my wishes for a pleasant 25th. My humbleness was repayed by an elbow to the mouth, next time down the court.

The political world views Christmas in many ways also. In past days of this month, the Board of Regents gathered in Boise to discuss and return not sugarplums and whatever else goes into X-mas stockings, but four lumps of fossil fuel. But wait! From far to the north, there came a wise man and was named ASUI President David Warnick. Warnick stated, "since they (regents) didn't do anything on in-state tuition, I'll forgive them everything." If anything is to be construed from this probity it is, that David Warnick made his New Year's resolution twenty-nine days in advance.

In preparing for "Santa Season", businesses throughout the Palouse have stenciled fluffy snowflakes on their store windows, hung red and green paper bells by Hallmark and have put forth that holiday spirit in their item pricing.

For the young and old alike, there exists the Santa Claus hotline. The line (sponsored by an area business), is directly linked to Mister Claus at N.P. Central. Upon dialing the number (no area-code necessary), the caller is greeted by a "ho, ho, ho" and sounds of a raging blizzard in the background.

One call in particular from the FAA advised Mr. Claus to install better surface-to-air lighting on his sleigh. "that one little red light," they said just wouldn't cut it.

The call from the IRS, well, I just can't say enough about that scene. Those people weren't nice to St. Chris at all. They wanted to know if he had been telling the truth when filing his income tax returns. The IRS hinted around that maybe the duties he should be paying on all those toys weren't being paid in full.

The final straw was drawn when they asked Santy if he had been claiming each of his elves as dependents, all thirty-two of them.

I'll tell ya students, it really makes me wonder what keeps the kindly old gentleman going. He takes orders all year long, then about two months before Christmas, his elves arrive and begin the hours of building presents of every shape, color, and variety, so that all of you can have a Merry Christmas. Where's the gratitude?

Oh, just one more thing. I hear the people in Plains, Georgia were minus a tree-top ornament on the town Christmas tree. It seems their shining star went to Washington. Ho ho ho Merry Christmas -- MP

Impact of Warnick

To the Editor:

Fairly soon the ASUI will inaugurate a new President, with the Arg printing new pictures of the relatively new faces and "their" ideas. And while such acclamation is inevitable, I think it appropriate to note the impact David Warnick has made on this University.

Within a short time, his name will join the ranks of Mann, Eighorn, Wurster and Kempthorne. Merely another picture in the SUB.

Some people disregard student government as a group of self-serving power hungry individuals, supplementing their resumes. Most believe it to be the same rhetoric at each new election, different bodies singing the same familiar tunes.

Fortunately, those conceptions are not always true. Students do have an impact, and in recent years, none have been larger than Warnick's.

When Kempthorne ran for office, we all knew of the UI budget crunch, but ASUI never took any actions to help solve it. ASUI dealt with student fees, concerts, KUOI, and the ARG Academics? Other items were too important.

Warnick has nearly singlehandedly changed the outlook of ASUI. I was amazed in reading the campaign interviews in the Arg this fall. Improvement of academia at UI was in nearly every statement. Shifting the emphasis of a student body from traditional activities to academics is no small trick; the credit belongs to Warnick.

A few examples: Last winter, Warnick with his aides (John Orwik especially) presented alternative recommendations for budgeting departments at the university budget hearing board; the most comprehensive student effort to my knowledge. Last summer, through student action and effort, the Board of Regents approved over $100,000 for new faculty salaries at the UI. If memory serves me, the actions were initiated entirely by Warnick's administration.

I am not claiming Warnick has been successful in all his efforts in student government, for many have tried and failed for booze on campus, at the golf course, and increasing student control of activities affecting their daily lives. Student government is inherently weak and powerless. Token concessions are often made, but rarely are real power and influence transferred. Any major accomplishments while in student government are a tribute to the individual.

of academic problems, some solutions may be forthcoming, but never will all the problems be solved. David Warnick tried to increase that awareness, to make public the issues and problems facing the university and the student's education. He has succeeded. His name will undoubtedly fade, like so many others. His impact, however, is hopefully here to stay. He is to be commended.

New names, new faces must carry on these new tasks.

Good luck, Idaho.
Mark Beatty

PEA thanks

To the Editor:
Open Letter to the University of Idaho and the Moscow Community.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all the people who enthusiastically attended the concerts this semester at the University of Idaho. We are looking forward to next semester with confidence that we can continue this service to the students and community. Our desire is to offer the highest quality of entertainment available. Again we complement all of you, for without your support our efforts would be in vain.

Issues & Forums

Ralph Nader, Germaine Greer, F. Lee Bailey, John Dean III, Allen Ginsberg, and Doug Kenney, are some of the speakers being considered by the ASUI Issues and Forums Committee at the U of I next semester.

The committee is conducting a survey this week asking students which speakers they would like to hear and which ones they would be willing to pay from $1.50 to $2.50 for. Ralph Nader is considered the nation's leader in consumer interests, and is one of the leading critics of everything from baby food to Congress. Germaine Greer is the author of "The Female Eunich" and considered one of the leaders of the feminist movement. F. Lee Bailey is perhaps the world's most famous trial lawyer and he has defended such cases as Sam Sheppard, the Boston Strangler, and most recently Patricia Hearst.

The survey is being distributed at most on-campus living groups, and copies are available in the SUB.

FINANCIAL AID for 1977 - 78 and Summer 1977

Students who plan to return to the University of Idaho next year or Summer of 1977 and expect to need financial aid should pick up application materials at the Financial Aid Office in U.C.C. 228 between December 6 and December 17. In most cases, parental information is needed.

Basic Grant applications will not be received from the federal government until late January. Undergraduate students applying for need-based aid MUST obtain this application from the Financial Aid Office and submit it at that time. Other aid, except Summer 1977 aid, will not be awarded until Basic Grant entitlement is determined. It takes about six weeks to complete your file, so early action on your part is important in order to meet the April 4 closing date.

Applicants for "scholarship only" are reminded that many scholarships are based on need and must have the same documentation as other aid.

Students who expect to need financial aid for Summer School 1977 or who wish to apply for full-time College Work-Study during summer 1977 must pick up separate application forms along with the other aid applications for 1977-78. Closing date for summer aid is April 4, 1977. Late applicants will receive lower priority for funding.

Two wins in three days brings the Vandal's current season record to 2-2. Officially, Idaho scored their first win last night as they walked away from Cal. State Sacramento, 77-67.

Idaho's fifth game will be on the road, as they travel to Seattle to take on the U of W Huskies, another nationally ranked team. The Huskies are coached by Marv Harshman and should provide good competition for the Vandals.

...it's rather ironic...

By BILL KIRTLAND

At the end of December, the University of Idaho will be losing a hard-working individual. Dave Cochran, forced to resign in June, will be leaving his Sports Information Director post.

It wasn't because Cochran did a poor job that pressure was placed on him to resign. It was because "he was too fast-paced an Easterner", at least for one of his bosses.

Politics is what did Cochran in. Backstabbing by a few prominent Vandal boosters in Moscow and a minor sports coach at the university led to his downfall. Considering what, and who Cochran had to work with, it is amazing the fine job he did.

The promotion it takes to have a member of Idaho's team named to the Associated Press All American team is phenomenal. Taking nothing away from the athletes that did win the honors, without Cochran their chances would have decreased significantly.

Cochran was faced weekly with awkward situations. One administrator thought it would be a good idea to charge the members of the press to report the games. The number of schools in the country that employ this type of idiotic policy could be counted on your fingers. Cochran fought the ridiculous idea and it never came to pass. A weaker individual would not have been so successful.

Cochran had to pay his own way into the recent sports banquet and for the wall plaques that were presented to the seniors. Even though all the money eventually goes back to Vandal athletics, it's the idea of the whole thing that makes it second rate or maybe third.

With a small working budget, long hours spent at work, no assistance, no support and marginal salary, it is indeed amazing a person could put up with these working conditions as long as he has. Dedication to the University of Idaho and the athletic program is the only way to explain Cochran and his loyalty.

After all of this, it's rather ironic that he was asked to step aside. The University of Idaho has shown its appreciation for a job well done. Many ballplayers and members of the press know Cochran and the excellent work he accomplishes.

As a member of the sports media I would like to thank Dave Cochran for his help in providing me with the necessary information and the other miscellaneous details it takes to report Vandal Athletics. As a member of the University of Idaho, I would like to apologize for the shortsighted and selfish decision of a few people. It won't take them long to realize that they've made a stupid mistake.

Sports Opinion

No. 56 won't be forgotten

Editor's note: Since being named to the Associated Press All American football team John Yarno has been out of town and unavailable for an in depth interview.

By CRAIG CARTER

Although John Yarno will be leaving the U of I campus next spring his name and accomplishments will stay here in Moscow. Never has one athlete received the attention or the awards Yarno has in the school's history.

How does one go about becoming a bona-fide All American from a school that isn't on national television even once a year? The Vandal coaches, local sports writers, Idaho's sports information director, and other coaches that have seen Yarno play have all helped John get the attention, but he did the rest on his own. Every game was a crucial one for Yarno as he had to come up with big blocks and perform like he had been billed...All American. That type of pre-season press put a great deal of pressure on Yarno. He knew it and he came through.

It could have been that Yarno was being groomed to be an All American from the time he found out from his father that there were a couple of choices open to him. John could either play football and eat dinner at home or find another place to reside. John decided to play football. He can only thank his father for making a move that will let John meet Bob Hope. You can bet Mr. Yarno will be watching his son that night.

Another guy that will be watching Yarno is Vandal offensive coordinator John McMahon. McMahon developed the great offensive line of the Vandals that opened the way for a winning football team this year. McMahon taught Yarno a lot.

Head coach Ed Troxel will be watching the Bob Hope show. Trox hopes that a lot of high school and junior college football players will be watching the show too.

An All American will make recruiting a little easier this winter. With a winning season and Yarno's awards, the Vandal coach hopes to continue winning and producing football players like Yarno.

Yarno still has some football games to play. The East-West Shrine game, the Senior Bowl and maybe the College All Star game. A lot of pro scouts will be watching Yarno. Again the pressure will be there for Yarno to produce, and again he should. There is little doubt that Yarno will be drafted by some team in the pros. Good offensive linemen are the backbone of any team and a lot of pro teams are in the market for a good center.

A great opportunity awaits John Yarno in football. You can be sure Vandal fans, coaches and boosters will long remember him. His picture will join those in Memorial Gym of Jerry Hendren, Jerry Kramer and other past greats. His jersey will probably be retired. Number 56 won't be forgotten.

Wilkins comes to U of I

A powerhouse athlete, world discus recordholder Mac Wilkins, has made his final decision as to whether he will or will not compete in the second annual Vandal Indoor Track Meet scheduled for January 23, 1977. It appears that Wilkins has given the green light to U of I track coach Mike Keller, who is footing the bill for the big man.

Wilkins is very hopeful in breaking the world's indoor discus record of 198' 6" by John Van Reenan, formerly of WSU. Said Keller, "The Kibbie Dome track facility will give Wilkins plenty of room since we have 400 feet of Tartan on the infield. We plan to spotlight the event by shutting down the invitational running events about three-fourths of the way through the schedule."

Winning the gold medal for the discus in the '76 Olympic Games, "Big Mac" has compiled an impressive resume.

Other accomplishments, he has broken the world record for the discus four times, three of them in one meet. At the '76 Olympiad in Montreal, Wilkins threw a 224' 0" opening shot, twelve feet more than the former Olympic record. His average toss of the discus in 1976 was 218' 6" his top ten throws rounded out to 228' 10".

Women's B-ball preview

The sport of basketball comes in two styles, women's and men's. This year's women's look will feature a northern route to Alaska to compete against the teams from the U of A at Anchorage and Fairbanks.

Other features trimming the women's basketball schedule are a host game to the New South Wales All-Star (Australian Touring Team) and Eastern Area Tournaments.

Under head coach Bonnie Hultstrand, Idaho women will be playing all the top teams in the Northwest. Said Hultstrand, "we'll face a tough schedule this year. We start against tough WSU, who finished fourth in the Northwest Regional." The U of I vs. WSU game is slated for this afternoon in Pullman.

After a weekend breather, Idaho female round-ballers will meet in an international game with the ladies from "down under". The New South Wales Women's team is an All-star team comprised of players from various clubs in Sydney and county areas of Australia.

The Aussies are currently holding the position of Australian National Champions. Each of the players lead working lives.

HENRY V

Dec. 11th & 12th
Sat. & Sun.
7:00 & 9:30 p.m.

In this, the first of his extraordinary film adaptations of Shakespeare's works, Laurence Olivier has, as Pauline Kael commented "charged the screen with glorious exultation..." And how appropriate the expansiveness of tone and style are to this most patriotic affirmation of the English nation. Olivier convinces us throughout of what the text itself celebrates; the greatness of this English king--of his personal wisdom, his belief in himself, his virtue, his morality, and his complete devotion to his country.

HENRY V is indeed a masterpiece. Of the makers of the film, James Agee wrote: "They have done somewhere near all that talent, cultivation, taste, knowledgeability, love of one's work...can be expected to do; and that the picture testifies, is a very great deal."

HENRY V should be of great interest not only in terms of literature and drama, but also to students of cinema because of its transfer of a stage play to the screen. The film begins in the Globe Theatre, enclosed within its circular walls, the parts of women played by boys. Slowly we move outside of the theatre's restraints, eventually to the battle scenes shot on location. Then slowly, almost imperceptibly, the stage begins to encircle us until we are finally within its walls. It is a

Fall 1976

*It is not where my arms stop
That yours begin--someone is always Resting a leg across a leg or Tangling up the hands...*

*We have lost the boundaries
And forget to be afraid wondering
When you lay yourself against me
Whose pulse it is you listen to*

*We remember being children now
Such vividness you say you
See yourself--precisely--
As you were at eight...*

*Nights we lie awake
Curled against each other
The way we curled against our sisters
Talking of grandmothers and gardens*

*I know the way you look
When you are alone, your face
Quiet against that pillow your Hands at rest against themselves...*

*I know the way you breathe as
You turn slow-motion toward sleep
And greyness, sometimes in the first light,
I know, you dream.*

*But it is not sleep we crave
Always distracting each other from it.
Your saying: Anytime or place,
Any bed would do...*

*Still, we get up laughing
Wanting to stretch like cats
At dawn wanting to bite down
On the the day like an orange*

*And even when I am alone
I am always resting against you
Now . . . even my sleep contains you*

By DAVID L. LANGFORD of United Press International

They pay taxes, hold office, and involve themselves in community action.

They worry about getting their bills paid, their children through school, and their lives in order like everyone else.

They are writers, truck drivers, bookkeepers, artists, bartenders, etc.

They are people, human beings, who like all people must find room enough in this small world to survive.

They are gay and for whatever reason that one difference in their lives has subjected them to a history of misunderstanding and a legacy of suffering and self denial wholly unwarranted in a country such as ours.

They are indeed a minority; a minority of people who basically want the same rights and freedoms and chances as all people want. They do not wish to change the world, only to find a way to live at peace with it.

This gay section is not an attempt at sensationalism nor is the Argonaut advocating the merits of a gay life style.

The issue does not reflect the views or lifestyles of all gay people either in this community or any other community. It is an attempt to improve and expand the channels of communication between one element of society and another, so that both might profit from a much needed contact.

With homosexuals pouring out of the closet in ever increasing numbers, including pro athletes, military personnel, clerics and cops, the gay rights movement is gaining momentum.

In a cramped office in Greenwich Village, the leaders of the National Gay Task Force keep an eye on the streets, the TV tube, the courtrooms and legislative chambers, anywhere this country's estimated 20 million homosexuals are under threat.

This is headquarters of the NGTF--a listening post, clearing house and brain trust for some 1,100 gay rights organizations.

In a passionate plea to be heard, they flood the media with news releases.

Some news they consider good:

A new TV series called "Snip" to be aired by NBC this fall, will feature a gay hairdresser who is "open and happy" about his homosexuality.

Dave Kopay, the former Green Bay Packer who publicly announced his homosexuality, is elected by his teammates as co-captain of an alumni team at the University of Washington.

Air Force Staff Sgt. Rudolph (Skip) Keith joins Sgt. Leonard Matlovich in declaring his sexual preference and challenging the military's policy of discharging gays.

And some they consider bad:

A teenager in Tucson, Ariz., asked by police why he beat to death a homosexual outside a gay bar, says, "That's the way I was taught."

The Navy starts a purge at Boca Chica Naval Air Station after a Wave, angry that she could not live off base, complains that the barracks were "filled with lesbians."

Despite the 6-3 decision by the U.S. Supreme Court in March that defeated a challenge of Virginia's "Sodomy" laws, gay leaders are optimistic that their battle can be won state by state and that eventually the federal Civil Rights Act will be rewritten to protect homosexuals.

"We are very optimistic," said Jean O'Leary, the co-director of the task force, a lesbian who was a delegate to the Democratic Convention. "In the wake of virtually unanimous criticism of the recent Supreme Court decision...Iowa and West Virginia have repealed laws that criminalized sexual behavior between consenting adults."

So far 17 states have repealed sodomy laws over the past few years and similar legislation has been introduced in most of the others. Major newspapers criticized the Supreme Court for rejecting the challenge of the Virginia Law filed through the Virginia Civil Liberties Union.

About 70 gays convened in Chicago in March and decided to set up a national organization.

Office in Washington with two full time lobbyists.

The organizer of this summit was David B. Goodstein, 43, a Wall Street whiz kid who now publishes a twice monthly national newspaper for homosexuals. He says that in most big cities today homosexuals could "come out of the closet" without suffering.

"Most of society is ready to accept us right now," said Goodstein, whose newspaper, The Advocate, has a circulation of about 60,000. (He says his average reader is 34, urban, college educated and makes at least $15,000 a year.)

About 500 homosexuals from the South met in Atlanta in June to parade down Peachtree St. and cheer Mayor Maynard Jackson who proclaimed "Gay Pride Week" over the objections of critics.

But Goodstein and some other leaders think demonstrations have lost much of their effectiveness.

"The activists of the '60's deserve a lot of credit for bringing the movement as far as it has come," he said. "But that (the demonstration) is yesterday's method."

Movement leaders recite a list of accomplishments, such as:

Over the past four years, 38 communities have passed legislation including gays in antidiscrimination statutes.

A bill has been introduced by 25 members of the U.S. House of Representatives to amend the 1964 Civil Rights Act to bar discrimination on the basis of sexual preference.

A number of major corporations have issued statements pledging nondiscrimination against gays in employment.

The American Psychiatric Association has ruled that homosexuality shall no longer be listed as a mental disorder.

But there also have been setbacks.

Progress has been slow in opening church doors to gays, with the Vatican recently reaffirming its policy of sexual morality which does not embrace homosexuality.

Ginny Vida, a task force media director invited to testify before a house subcommittee on communications this month, is also concerned about the image of gays on TV.

Lesbians only recently made their TV debut, she said, as the brutal rapists of pitiable young girls and the killers of dear, sweet ladies in an old folks home.

But she sees a better portrayal of gays in the 1976-77 season. In addition to NBC's "Snip" which features a gay hairdresser built like a linebacker ABC has purchased the "Nancy Walker Show," with its pilot episode featuring a gay man aspiring to be an actor who earns his keep by doubling as a secretary and the "Bob Newhart Show" on CBS will include a

Personal perspectives

By Dave Bliss

Since gay people live in a society made up largely of straight people, the gays are often mistaken for being heterosexual. Coming out can be a very painful or a very rewarding experience, depending upon whether the homosexual is accepted or rejected.

Coming out is an on-going process. There is always some friend or relative who one feels a need to tell. Though coming out to friends can be very difficult--after all, who wants to lose a friendship--telling one's parents is often the most traumatic experience.

How does one tell his or her parents? It can be done face to face, by telephone, or letter. The latter route is often the safest and best method. The parents can go through their period of hysteria upon reading the letter--without the son or daughter having to be there to experience it--and then be able to reread the letter after they have calmed down. Everything is there in black and white, making for fewer misunderstandings. The letter format also gives the gay person a chance to compose carefully what is to be said.

When I came out to my parents last winter, I did so by letter. Besides the obvious barriers of distance (I live 3000 miles away), the previously mentioned reasons made this seem the most appealing method.

I spent months writing and rewriting my letter. After I was finally satisfied, I sent it off, not knowing quite what to expect. After all, my parents held typical middle class values, and homosexuality did not happen to fit into them. Below is the letter that I sent to my parents:

*"Dear Mom and Dad,
I really don't know how to tell you the things I have to tell you, but I will try my best.*

This past fall, I have been visiting a counselor at the student counseling center, here on campus. What I have to tell you has been very difficult for me to accept.

After much thought and anxiety, I have come to the undeniable conclusion that I am a homosexual. For a long time I just fooled myself into trying to believe that I was a bisexual, or that it was all just a phase that I was going through. Neither of these possibilities seem at all true. I was so distraught because of this a few years ago that I made two half-hearted attempts to kill myself. But I am in no danger of that now, as I feel that I am now a much stronger person.

I do not wish to be "cured," for I can't see that it is even possible. I am the way I am. It is no one's "fault." I only hope and pray for your love and understanding. I know that no matter what happened I shall always love you both.

I don't know how much you know about homosexuality, but I guess that I assume that you have the same impressions that most people do. Homosexuals are not people who stalk restrooms, molest little children, or wear dresses. I am not like that. The only difference between you and me is sexual preference. Other than that, I share the hopes and desires of most people, in that I hope to be happy with myself, and hopefully someday will find someone who I will feel very special about.

Right now, I am in the process of "coming out." This means that I am being more honest with other people. I have told a number of my friends. Most have reacted positively, assuring me of their continued friendship, and if I need it, their support. Almost everyone has been very understanding, as they have accepted me because I am me.

I have been in touch with the local gay political organization in Moscow. The gay people I have met include students, office workers, professors, and business people. I am sure that both of you come into contact with gay people, even though you are not aware of it. Most are afraid of the consequences of being known, so they remain in their closets.

My gayness is only one small part of me, but it's a vital one. I still have the same goals I've always had--to graduate from college, apprentice, get my license, and set up my own practice. I realize that because I am coming out that I may experience many obstacles, but if I am to live with myself, I have no choices. Small advances are being made in the field of gay rights, so at least things are moving in the right direction.

I hope that you will try to be understanding, and accept me as I am. If things seem too difficult, maybe our minister will be able to help you. I realize how painful this will be for both of you, but I have tried to tell you as best I can. If you wish, I will recommend some books for you.

I know that I haven't said everything I wanted to in this letter the way I wanted to, but it's the best I can do. I will wait anxiously for some word from you, praying to God for your understanding and love, as you shall always have mine.

Societies differ in the various kinds of ideals they espouse, and in the sorts of madness they regard as legitimate. There is a prevalent neurosis in this society called "homophobia"--fear of homosexuals.

An examination of the roots of this prejudice reveals that it is founded upon a whole set of misconceptions, fallacies, and folklore that we have all been raised to accept unquestioningly as true about homosexuals. Many of these views and prejudices are not only questionable, they are more often than not pervaded by a negativism which saturates assumptions, reasoning, and final conclusions. The basis of this negativism is the idea that homosexuality is undesirable, or at least less desirable than heterosexuality, that it is inferior, that it is a second-rate condition at best and a 'sickness' or 'disease' at worst. At any rate it is assumed to be a condition not good for society, and one that should be changed or otherwise eliminated.

Probably one of the most common attitudes held by the general public about homosexuality is that it is a sickness or disease; psychiatrists until very recently have operated on the assumption that adult homosexuality was pathological. Very often these assumptions have been based on homosexuals who do have real problems and have sought help, ignoring the large numbers of homosexuals who are healthy, well-adjusted individuals in spite of the hostility and hatred directed at them as a minority.

In 1973 the American Psychiatric Association eliminated homosexuality as a mental disorder and substituted the category "Sexual Orientation Disturbance." This definition reads: "This is for individuals whose sexual interests are directed toward people of the same sex and who are either disturbed by in conflict with, or wish to change their sexual orientation. This diagnostic category is distinguished from homosexuality, which by itself does not constitute a psychiatric disorder. Homosexuality per se is one form of sexual behavior, and with other forms of sexual behavior which are not by themselves psychiatric disorders, is not listed in this nomenclature."

Along with this attitude follows the idea that homosexuals should be 'reformed' or 'cured'. It is immoral for a majority to assume that their way is right and best for others, and minorities should thus be forced to conform to the 'normal', i.e. 'best' way to be. This assumes the inferiority of the minority group. As Franklin Kameny states in an article entitled "Gay is Good": "One does not eliminate irrational and unfounded prejudice by reforming the victims of that prejudice; one reforms the prejudiced." The assumption of homosexuals that homosexuality is in any way inferior is simply not true. Psychiatry commits a gross injustice to homosexuals in considering a homosexual patient 'helped' when he or she is encouraged to enter into heterosexual relationships.

Very often the homosexual relationship is characterized as purely sexual and lustful, devoid of any love or affection. Homosexuality is not a sex act. It is a preference or orientation just as heterosexuality is, and directly on an equal par with it. The same joy, openness, love, the same problems can be found in homosexual relationships that can be found in heterosexual relationships.

There is a common misconception that homosexuality is immature. This stems partly from misinterpretation by Freud and others, and partly from the circular reasoning that uses heterosexuality as part of the definition of maturity. Freud was responsible for developing the theory that homosexuality is a stage of psycho-sexual growth which occurs, typically, near puberty, and precedes heterosexuality. According to this theory, nearly everyone goes through this stage, but some fixate at this level and never develop beyond it. Immaturity, according to this theory, is inherent in a definition of homosexuality. The negative effect of this assertion is disastrous both in terms of a homosexual's self-image and in terms of general attitudes toward homosexuality. An alternative to this way of thinking might be to consider the possibility that homosexuality is a non-pathological preference, a choice that the homosexual makes according to mature awareness of his own needs and individuality.

There exists the myth that homosexuality stems from a fear or inability to relate to members of the opposite sex. What if we turn this around to read "heterosexuality is the fear or inability to relate to members of the same sex." Both statements are equally absurd in their negativity, and fail to take into consideration the vast possibilities of interaction between individuals. A preference for members of the same sex does not imply a fear of the opposite sex, nor does it negate the possibility of developing meaningful relationships with members of the opposite sex.

There is often an assumption of femme-butche roles, the male homosexual characterized as effeminate and the woman as masculine. Gay men and gay women are far too varied and individualistic to be lumped into any one stereotype. In fact, often a gay individual has been able to break out of the rigid role models that society dictates, the result being a greater awareness of his or her potential as a human being.

The attitudes and policies of the federal government in attempting to exclude homosexuals from civil service employment, from eligibility for security clearance, and for induction into the armed services has given official sanction to these myths. One effect of these discriminatory federal policies has been to surround the homosexual with an aura of disloyalty, irresponsibility, and unreliability. This attitude is unwarranted by the facts--- homosexuals can be and are responsible, effective citizens--- and their sexual preference does not determine their responsibility toward a job, reliability as a parent, in short, their potential for happiness and self-fulfillment on whatever levels they deem important.

Organization

Northwest Gay People's Alliance was conceived out of a sincere desire to promote a change in the attitude of the general community toward homosexuals.

A small nucleus of people drew together in the late fall of 1974 to evaluate the needs of gays in this area and to see what course of action might be appropriate to meet those needs. They were dissatisfied with the political activism of existing groups in the Moscow-Pullman area. They felt a very real need to generate a positive acceptance of gays in the surrounding heterosexual society, and they recognized the lack of an effective political arm to negotiate changes (i.e. through attitudes and legal structures) within the framework of the community. The outcome of this initial gathering was the birth of NWGPA.

It was decided that the best course of action would be to incorporate as a non-profit organization. This would act as a legal umbrella, and afford some protection to officers and members. A lawyer was procured, and incorporation proceedings were started. After several months, NWGPA was officially instated in Idaho.

With this basic core, we have striven to achieve an organization that is responsive to gay people and still serves the community as a whole, in the much needed process of education and acceptance of homosexuality as a positive way of life. The goals of NWGPA are threefold:

1) to act as a counseling and referral center, and to offer other kinds of support, to the gay people of the two communities. A list of local physicians and counselors, as well as legal advisors and other professionals, is maintained for gay people who might need their services. We also maintain a library with books and other resource material dealing with gays.

2) Education. It is assumed that the general homophobia (fear of homosexuals) is due to lack of information and misconceptions imposed by society. We maintain a Speakers Bureau that is available for groups and classes, and we are available for other projects in which groups or individuals might need information about gays. Our primary aim in doing these services is to eradicate the fear that an ignorant and misinformed public holds toward homosexuality.

3) Our most important goal lies in political action. The present legal structure denies homosexuals basic civil rights because of their sexual affection or preference. We wish to see gay rights legislation enacted in this state and in the community that will give homosexuals the rights that every citizen is entitled to. We especially want to focus on housing and employment-again, basic civil rights often overtly or covertly denied homosexuals. We also wish to work in affecting changes in the current laws and criminal code in Idaho, which make criminals of homosexuals for their sexual preferences. And lastly, we wish to serve as a hub for uniting gay people politically in the Northwest, and most specifically in Idaho.

In Idaho

Sexual preference legislation is not expected to be passed in Idaho for quite some time, according to Liz Sullivan, chairman of the Human Rights Commission.

Sullivan said that anti-discrimination legislation against homosexuals has been tested in other states and unless the Equal Rights Amendment was expanded to include sexual preference, anti-discrimination legislation is not set up to cover the rights of homosexuals.

There are no laws in Idaho covering the civil rights of gays, Sullivan said.

"There is no legal protection other than the same rights everyone else has," she said.

"We will protect their charter," but said she didn't think legislative intent in Idaho sex discrimination laws was meant to cover homosexuals.

"As a group we really don't protect them other than the same rights

Which lot are you willing to pay for?

A space is a space is a space -- but not according to the new university regulations

Paid parking will be implemented for the University of Idaho effective second semester for the 1976-77 school year. Parking permits will be sold for core lots and perimeter lots at $15.00 and $5.00 respectively by the Controller's Office. Permits will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis and may be obtained by mail-orders beginning December 15, 1976 or can be purchased at the Controller's Office beginning January 3, 1977 or in the registration line on January 11. Registration forms will be available in departments, the Controller's Office of Campus Information Center and the Controller's Office.

The following procedures, in addition to the Campus Traffic and Parking Regulations, will be applicable to this program for the second semester of the current school year.

The purchaser of parking permits will be required to furnish license plate numbers for all vehicles associated with a permit.

Payroll deduction will not be available for core permits this semester only, but will be available for the 1977-78 school year.

Parking fees will not be prorated during the year nor will they be refundable.

Permits that are lost or stolen are to be reported to the Campus Information Center for a replacement authorization before another permit will be issue. Lost or stolen permits become invalid and will be cancelled.

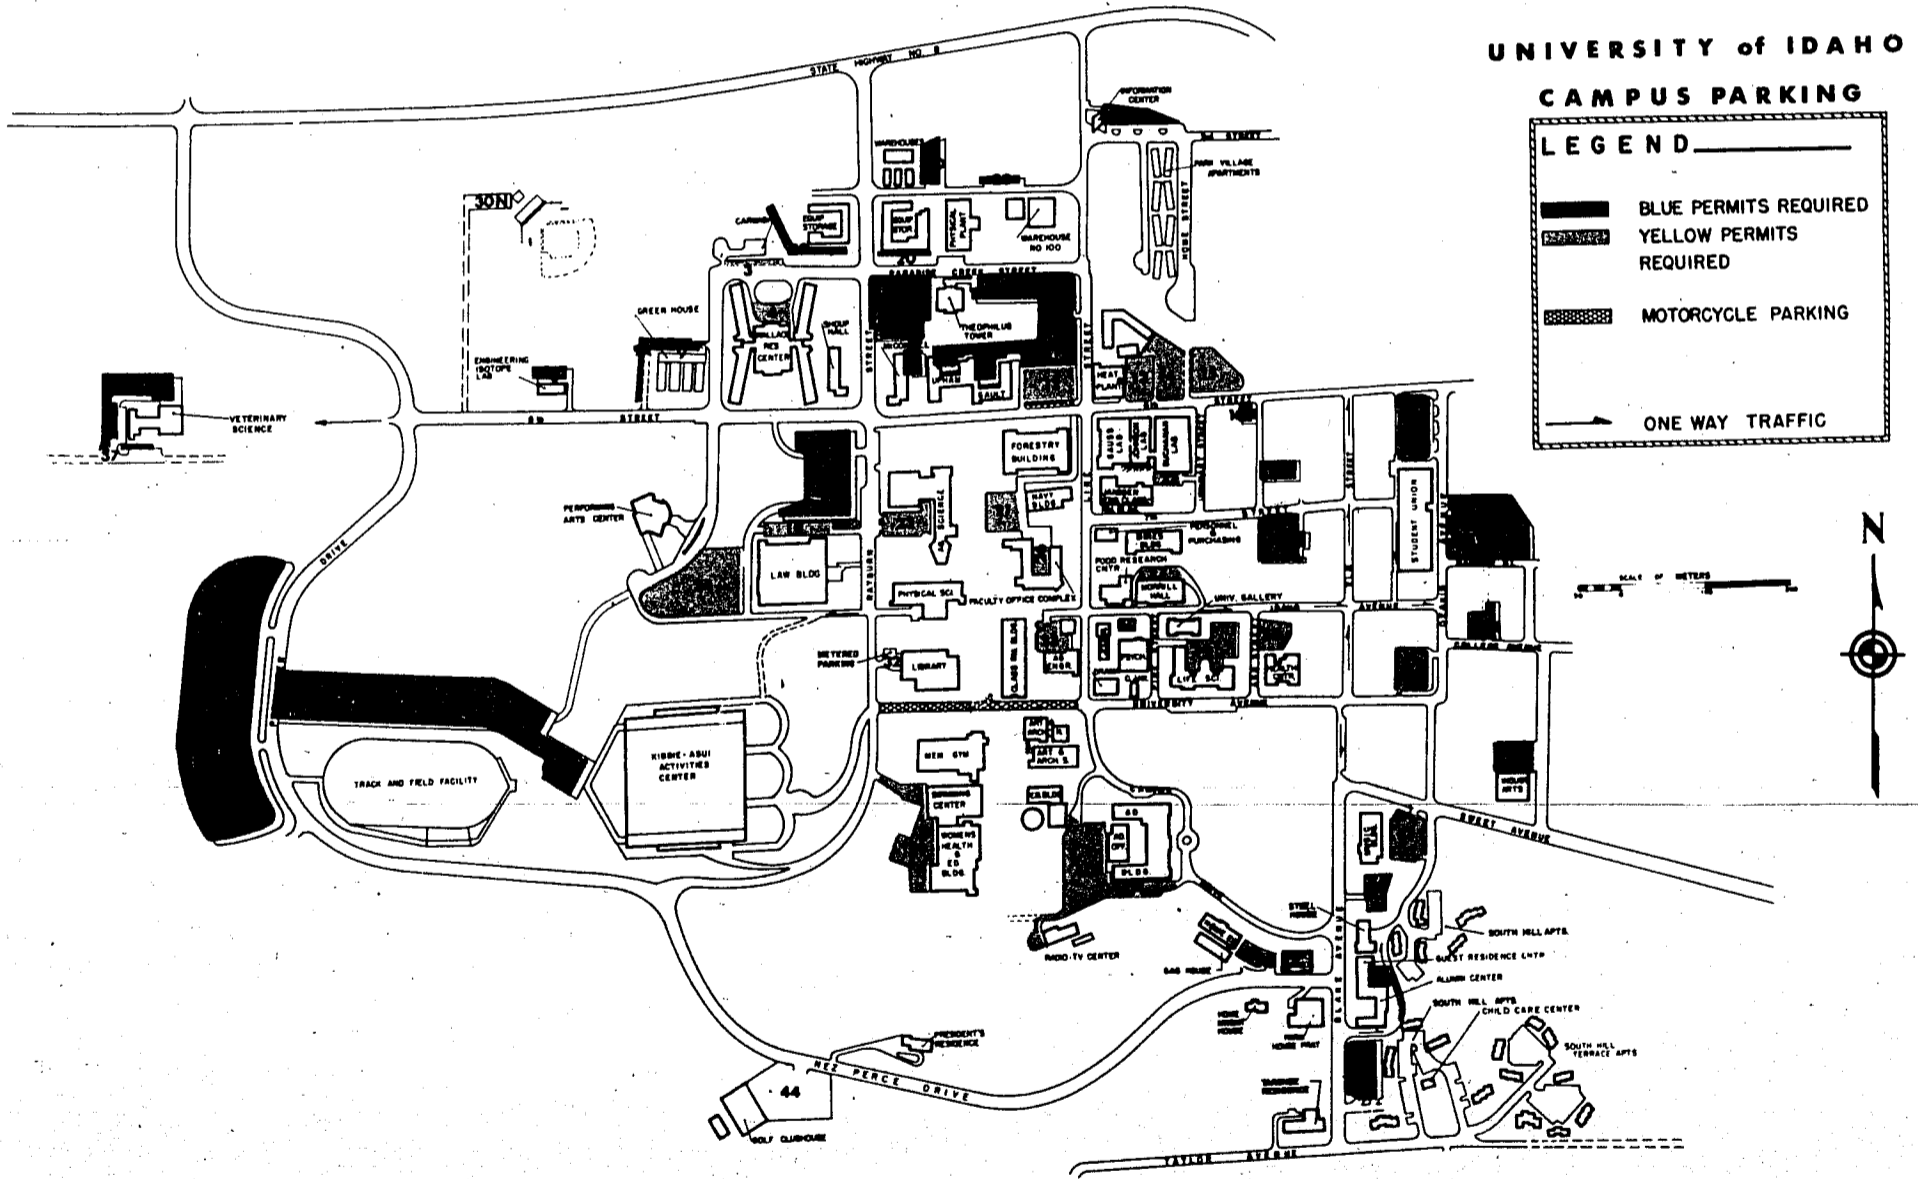

Decals attached to vehicles that are subsequently disposed of must be removed and turned in to the Campus Information Center to obtain a replacement authorization.

Persons purchasing perimeter parking permits may purchase core parking permits at a later date. If such are available, but the fee paid for the perimeter parking will not apply toward the price of the core permit.

Impounded or immobilized vehicles will not be released until all citations and fines are paid at the Controller's Office. No persons are authorized to waive, reduce or compromise amounts assessed on citations or fines except the University of Idaho Traffic Committee.

Handicapped permits will be issued at $15.00 each for the second semester in the Controller's Office based on authorization provided by the University physician.

New Campus Traffic and Parking Regulations will be in effect on January 1, 1977. To ensure that students are aware of the significant changes which will be made at that time, the entire revised regulations are printed here. Students should note that, for the second semester of this year only, those students who live in University housing may obtain a $10 blue permit at no charge from the housing office in the Wallace Complex. Effective with the fall semester of 1977, however, all students who wish to park vehicles in University lots must obtain and pay the regular charge for the appropriate permit at the Business Office or in the registration line.

CAMPUS TRAFFIC AND PARKING REGULATIONS

The rules and regulations are available at the University Information Center and should be obtained by all staff and students at the University of Idaho.

A. PURPOSE

Parking and traffic on the campus of the University of Idaho are regulated at all times by the Campus Traffic and Parking Regulations. The purposes of these regulations are:

- To expedite the University's business, protect University property, and provide maximum safety and convenience to the staff and students.
- To regulate parking with priority given to:
 - Access at all times for emergency equipment
 - Services of the University
 - Parking for staff and students purchasing parking permits
 - Providing funds for the administration of the regulations and to construct, improve, and maintain campus parking facilities.
- To inform all staff, students and visitors of the campus traffic and parking regulations.

B. DEFINITIONS

- The word "campus" for purposes of these regulations includes all property owned and leased by the University of Idaho in and around the City of Moscow. It includes all roads, streets, alleys, parking lots, and other areas on what is known as the main campus, the University farms, the athletic fields and other University property.
- The word "staff" as it appears herein includes faculty and staff, as well as employees of non-University organizations who work on campus and are assigned office, laboratory or equivalent space in a University building.

C. GENERAL REGULATIONS

- The motor vehicle laws of the State of Idaho, the traffic ordinances of the City of Moscow, and the Campus Traffic and Parking Regulations apply to the campus area.
- Not being familiar with or ignorance of one or more of the Campus Traffic and Parking Regulations shall not constitute a defense for violation of a rule or regulation.
- Pedestrians have the right-of-way.
- Speed limits on the campus are as posted.
- Traffic signs have been erected for the purpose of defining parking areas and to notify drivers of other regulations. They must be complied with.
- The University assumes no responsibility for the liability or protection of any vehicle or its contents while operated or parked on the campus.
- In any violation of any section governing the standing or parking of a vehicle under these regulations, proof that the particular parking permit number described in the citation was displayed on a vehicle parked in violation, together with proof that the person named in the citation was at the time the owner of the parking permit, shall constitute in evidence a prima facie presumption that the owner of the parking permit was the person responsible for the violation.
- Driving a motor vehicle on University property other than authorized roads, driveways and parking areas is prohibited.
- No disabled or inoperative vehicle shall be parked on the campus for a period in excess of seventy-two hours. Vehicles which have been parked for periods in excess of seventy-two hours and which appear to be disabled or inoperative may be impounded and stored at the expense of either or both the owner and operator thereof.
- The position of any vehicle when parked shall be such that the whole of the vehicle is located within the boundaries of the parking space. The fact that other vehicles are parked improperly shall not constitute an excuse for parking any part of the vehicle over any line.
- Only one vehicle per parking space is allowed.
- Parking is prohibited at all times in all alleys, access ways, service roads, sidewalks, crosswalks, loading zones and yellow curbs, within 15 feet in either direction of all fire hydrants, on lawns or grass, and in spaces marked for the handicapped, state vehicles, or visitors.
- Persons engaged in University business who park their private car in a loading zone should leave blinker lights on while loading or unloading material from the vehicle. All loading zones are live-minute zones.
- Parking a vehicle in a reserved space (e.g. reserved for state vehicles only) constitutes a violation when the permit displayed is not for that space.
- Vehicles parked in spaces reserved for handicapped persons must display a handicapped permit.
- Backing a vehicle into a DIAGONAL parking space constitutes a parking violation under any circumstances. Backing into a space perpendicular to the traffic flow is permitted.
- No truck larger than a pick-up shall be allowed to park on a permanent or continuing basis in University parking lots.
- A vehicle parked in a University lot must display the appropriate permit. Parking with no permit, or parking with an improper permit for that lot, constitutes a parking lot violation.
- Vehicles with permits may not park in spaces reserved for visitors. For more information on visitor's parking regulations, please see Section G.
- Double parking is prohibited.
- Parking in a metered space when the time on the meter has expired constitutes a parking violation.
- Driving against designated traffic flow constitutes a violation.
- Parking in a painted no-parking zone constitutes a violation.
- Arrangements for parking trailers must be made with the Information Center.
- Motorcycles and bicycles must not be parked in spaces designated for automobiles. Specific motorcycle regulations appear in Section D.
- On special occasions and in emergencies, parking limitations may be imposed by the chief of campus security as required by prevailing conditions.

D. MOTORCYCLES AND BICYCLES

- Motorcycles shall be parked only in designated areas (see cross-hatched areas on map).
- Bicycles are to be parked in racks where provided, otherwise parked in such a manner so as not to block walks, driveways, or entrances to buildings.
- Bicycles must be registered and operated in conformity with city ordinances. Further information is available at the Moscow Police Station.

- Motorcycles or bicycles in violation of D1, D2, or D3 will be ticketed and are subject to impoundment at the owner's expense.

E. PARKING AREA CLASSIFICATION AND CHARGES

Parking regulations with respect to designated classifications are enforced from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. except on Saturday, Sunday, University published holidays, or as announced by official University publications.

1. Yellow Permit Parking (yellow on map) — $30 per year. Parking spaces in Lots 3, 4, 12, 13, 14, 15, 19, 21, 22, 23, 24, 26, 27, 34, 35, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 46, and part of 33 are assigned to this category of paid parking. The fee for this class of parking permit is $30 per year. This permit is transferable for multivehicle use, is issued for use in any yellow permit parking lot, and will authorize the purchaser the use of blue permit parking lots 1, 20, 30, 31, 45, 18, 29, and 37, but in no other blue permit lots.

2. Blue Permit Parking (blue on map) — $10 per year. The following listed parking lots will be designated as blue permit parking areas: 1, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 16N, 16, 17, 18, 20, 28, 29, 30, 31, 36, 36E, 37, 38, and 45. Permits for these lots will be sold to those employees and students who desire to use only University-owned blue permit parking facilities. These permits shall be transferable as in the case of permits for yellow permit lots. Blue permit parking holders will be allowed to park in any lot designated as a blue permit lot. (NOTE: Lots 30 and 31 may be closed preceding special events in the Kibbie Center. Notice of time and date of closure will be posted.)

3. Permit Packets — $1 each. A charge of $1 each will be assessed for each packet over five issued for one permit.

4. Handicapped Parking — $30 per year. Handicapped permits will authorize parking in spaces reserved for handicapped persons or any other nonreserved spaces throughout the campus.

5. Residents of Family Housing in Park Village. South Hill, South Hill Terrace and on-campus Stirling houses will be provided a green decal at no charge to authorize parking only in spaces provided in each family housing area. These residents may purchase an additional campus lot permit if desired.

6. Special Lot Assignments. Lot 32 and part of lots 18, 29, 40, and 33 will be metered spaces. Lot 44, Golf Course and lot 30N, Baseball Field, will require no permit. Retired employees and visitors will be issued special permits at no charge allowing them to park in any lot.

7. Official Vehicle Spaces. Signs indicate spaces that are reserved for vehicles with federal, state, county or city licenses.

8. Visitor Parking. See Section G.

F. PARKING PERMITS

- Required. All vehicles parked in a University parking lot must display a valid permit for that lot as outlined above.
- Where sold. Permits will be sold at the Controller's Office located in the Administration Annex Building, and at the ASUI Kibbie Activity Center during regular semester registration.
- When sold. Permits will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis beginning prior to the start of classes for the fall semester. The date permits will go on sale will be announced in University publications.
- Prorated charges. Permits sold one week prior to the start of classes for the spring semester will cost one-half of the above listed charges (yellow permit $15, blue permit $5). Otherwise, parking charges will not be prorated.
- Payment. Payment is due at the time of purchase. Staff members who wish to do so may arrange to pay the $30 annual parking charges through salary deductions at the rate of $5 per month.
- Transferability. To encourage car pools, permits may be transferable for multivehicle use. Packet parking will allow a permit to be shared by members of a car pool and will allow a person having two or more vehicles to pay only one charge as long as only one vehicle at a time is parked on campus. As a general rule, decals will be issued to a purchaser with only one car, and packets will be issued to purchasers with more than one car or to members of a car pool. Purchasers of packet parking permits must, at the time of purchase, register the license numbers of all vehicles which are intended to share a permit.
- Display of permits. Permits must be placed as follows: Decals must be placed on the inside in the lower left-hand corner of the rear window (driver's side) unless the vehicle is a convertible. Packets and decals for convertibles must be placed on the inside lower left (driver's side) of the front windshield.
- Termination. At any time, after initial purchase of a parking permit, if a staff member terminates employment or if a student ceases to be a student, it is the responsibility of that person to notify the University Information Center.

G. VISITORS

Visitors are welcome on campus. To facilitate parking control and to avoid penalties for parking violations, visitors who wish to park in University lots are requested to obtain a parking permit at the Information Center, located at Third and Line Streets.

1. Permanent Visitors' parking permits identify visitors who have a need for being on the campus regularly. These permits are issued at no charge only to individuals whose presence involves a service of direct benefit to the University. This service must be identified when application is made for a permanent visitor's parking permit.

2. Temporary Visitors' permits are available at no charge to individuals who occasionally are on campus for their own purposes. They are valid for a maximum number of days as indicated on the permit and are extended or renewed only upon reapplication.

3. Vehicles driven by contractors, vendors, and their employees working on campus projects must be registered and decals must be purchased for designated areas at a cost of $30 per year, $3 per month, or $1 per week.

4. A reciprocal agreement between the University of Idaho and Washington State University provides for honoring the parking permits of one institution on the alternate campus when those permits have been issued to students from one University who are enrolled in courses at the other University, or to faculty members who are participating in the cooperative educational program between the two institutions. This privilege is automatic and is based on information furnished to Parking Control at each university by the head of the department with which each such student or faculty member is affiliated.

5. Vehicles driven by contractors, vendors, and their employees working on campus projects must be registered and decals must be purchased for designated areas at a cost of $30 per year, $3 per month, or $1 per week.

6. A reciprocal agreement between the University of Idaho and Washington State University provides for honoring the parking permits of one institution on the alternate campus when those permits have been issued to students from one University who are enrolled in courses at the other University, or to faculty members who are participating in the cooperative educational program between the two institutions. This privilege is automatic and is based on information furnished to Parking Control at each university by the head of the department with which each such student or faculty member is affiliated.

H. METHODS FOR ENFORCEMENT OF RULES AND REGULATIONS

Enforcement of motor vehicle traffic and parking regulations on the University campus is provided by both the Moscow police and the University parking control personnel.

1. Violations on Streets and Alleys — Jurisdiction. Moscow city traffic and parking regulations apply on all streets and alleys throughout the campus. They are enforced by the Police Department of the City of Moscow. Citations are payable at the Police Department located in Moscow City Hall.

2. Violations in University-owned Parking Lots — Jurisdiction. Campus parking lot regulations are applicable to all employees, students and visitors, and are enforced by the University through the system of penalties outlined below. The University requires employees and students to have knowledge of and to obey campus traffic and parking regulations at all times. Information on payment of penalties appears in Section I-4.

3. Penalties for the enforcement of the campus traffic and parking regulations are as follows:

a. Impounding or Immobilizing Illegally Parked Vehicles. The University may order the impounding and storage of, or the mechanical immobilization of, any vehicle parked in parking lot areas where parking is not allowed, or when no permit is displayed, or when parked in a lot other than the lot authorized by the permit displayed, or when illegally parked in a handicapped or visitor's space, or when two or more unpaid citations are outstanding against the permit displayed on the vehicle. The owner or operator of the impounded vehicle shall not recover his/her vehicle until he/she has paid the amount of $25 to the University. The owner or operator of an immobilized vehicle shall not have the mechanical device used to immobilize the vehicle removed until he/she has paid the amount of $15 to the University. In either case, all outstanding parking violations shall also be paid prior to release of the impounded or immobilized vehicle. If the $15 is not paid and the vehicle is not removed within 24 hours, the vehicle will be impounded and the owner or operator will be subject to the charge for recovery of impounded vehicles.

b. Parking Violation Citations. Employees, students, and visitors who violate campus parking lot regulations are subject to parking citations. Each citation charge will be $4, except for parking meter violations where the charge for each citation is $2 (if, however, the fine for a parking meter violation is paid within five calendar days from the date of issuance of the citation, the charge will be decreased to $1).

c. Permit Revocation. Parking permits may be recalled, revoked, or suspended for violation of any provision of the parking regulations or for the following reasons:

- When the purpose for which a permit was issued changes or no longer exists, the permit may be revoked.
- Falsification on a parking permit application shall be grounds for permit revocation.
- Continued violation of parking regulations or nonpayment of three or more citation charges shall be grounds for permit revocation.
- Counterfeiting or altering of parking permits shall be grounds for permit revocation.

4. No person shall be liable for more than $250 total penalties per semester.

I. ADMINISTRATION

1. The Traffic Committee is composed of eight voting members including four members of the faculty and/or staff, three students, and one representative from the Division of Institutional Services.

2. The Traffic Committee is authorized by the University Administration to:

- Act on request for special permits.
- Provide for the hearing of appeals.

3. The Institutional Services Division is responsible for the administration and enforcement of the campus parking lot regulations. Additional responsibilities include the keeping of a registration record system, the issuance of permits, the patrol of the University parking lots, and the keeping of a record of violations and warnings.

4. Payment of penalties and arrangements for release of vehicles may be made at the Cashier's window of the Controller's Office, located on the first floor of the Administration Annex Building, during regular business hours. After hours and on holidays, such matters are handled at the Information Center, Third and Line Streets.

5. The Controller shall account for all proceeds from fees and funds collected pursuant to these regulations and deposited in a separate account as administrative funds for Institutional Services. The funds collected shall be used to administer the parking regulations, to provide additional parking facilities, and for improvement and maintenance of the parking lots.

J. HEARING

The Traffic Committee is authorized to conduct hearings regarding parking violations of circumstances and situations relating to the citation and to aid in the appraisal of parking and traffic problems. The hearing procedure is as follows:

1. The request for a hearing must be in writing and must be received by the Office of Vehicle Registration within 10 school days of the date of issuance of the citation. Forms for this purpose may be obtained at the Controller's Office, the Information Center, or at the information desk in the Student Union Building. Complete information for filing a request for a hearing is printed on the form.

2. The committee shall, when possible, hold scheduled hearings and make its determination within 14 days of the date the request for hearing is filed and shall send written notification of its decision to the person concerned within 14 days thereafter. When an excessive workload precludes hearing all appeals within 14 days, the appellant will be notified within 14 days when the appeal will be heard by the committee.

3. The essence of the following hearing procedures is essential to satisfy the requirements of due process of law:

- No member of the hearing committee who is otherwise interested in the particular case shall sit in judgment during the proceedings.
- The violator appearing before the hearing committee shall have the right to be assisted in his/her defense by an advisor of his/her choice.
- The burden of proof shall rest upon the officials bringing the charge, and five members of the full committee must concur in upholding a citation for violation.
- The violator shall be given an opportunity to testify and to present evidence and witnesses. He/she shall have an opportunity to hear and question adverse witnesses. In no case shall the committee consider statements against the violator unless he/she has been given an opportunity to rebut inferences which might otherwise be drawn. Failure to appear will result in the citation being upheld.
- All matters upon which the decision may be based must be introduced into evidence at the proceedings before the hearing committee. The decision shall be based solely upon such matters. Improperly acquired evidence shall not be admitted.

K. APPEALS

Decisions of the Traffic Committee regarding traffic violations are binding unless reversed. Such decisions may be appealed to the Administrative Hearing Board when that board consents to hear them.

Tree harvesting may total 30 million

Christmas is just around the corner and Christmas tree growers throughout the nation are busy harvesting trees for market. According to Dave Hash, Princeton, Idaho, 27-million to 30-million trees will be harvested this year for the American market. Hash produces 5,000 trees annually on 30 acres in North Idaho.

Before the actual cutting of the trees begins, Hash will have surveyed his plantation to determine which trees are to be cut.

"These trees are tagged according to the U.S. Standard of Grades for Christmas Trees," Hash said. The best quality trees are called "Premiums." Department of Agriculture standards consider "Premium" trees to be fresh, clean, healthy, well trimmed, of not less than medium density, with normal taper and with each of the four faces free from damage by any cause. Trees that do not meet premium specifications can be graded U.S. No. 1 Choice, or U.S. No. 2

Standard. The lowest grade category is utility.

"Growers who produce premium, or choice trees are extremely proud of the trees and with the strict grading standards, one can see why," Hash added. After trees have been tagged, they are ready for cutting.

"Most trees are harvested with some type of saw," Hash explained. "The pointed bow saw is a favorite among growers who harvest several thousand trees a year. Power tools are used by the larger Christmas tree producers."

After trees have been cut, they are usually wrapped in twine or in plastic netting. This makes transporting the trees easier and helps prevent damage to the branches.

"Trees are harvested in November and early December for a number of important reasons," Hash said. "If cutting is delayed until late December, heavy snowfalls may make harvesting and transporting the trees extremely difficult. Early cutting also prevents some species of Christmas trees from losing their green coloring and turning yellow. Another reason for the early cutting is that temperatures below 10° F. can cause branches to become brittle and easily damaged."

Hash pointed out that early cutting does not mean that the tree will not be fresh.

"Trees that are harvested this year," Hash explained, "will be replanted on a two or three for one basis. The new trees will not be ready for harvest until 6 to 12 years from now."

Some history of Christmas

By MARTY TRILLHAASE

The traditions of the way the Christmas holiday is celebrated are actually the result of the blending of cultures through the ages. Even cultures which had no relation to the Christian religion had a hand in forming the way we now celebrate Christmas.

Christmas as we know it had its beginnings in two non-Christian cultures; the Norse and the Romans. Both cultures believed in their own peculiar type of mythology and both used this time for a period of feasting and celebration. The dominant feeling of those celebrations was anything but religious.

The word "Christmas" was tagged to the celebration in the ninth century, which up to this time had been called the Midwinter Feast. Christianity made its mark on the celebration, substituting the saints for the pagan gods, but several elements of the pagan celebration remained such as the Feast of Fools which is said to have been a debauch reminiscent of the pagan past.

The Reformation changed the Christmas pageant slightly, reducing the number of the saints and giving us the Christmas tree. The Puritans of England stressed that Christmas was a heathen practice and should be discarded, however. When that group came into power in Great Britain, such traditions as caroling and the Christmas dinner were discarded. In fact, the British army was called out to tear down any greenery found on the doors of the British people and the 25th of December was proclaimed to be a day of fasting.

Although the Puritans eventually lost power in Britain, they brought much of their philosophy with them when they started to settle in American colonies. It was not until the 1690's that Christmas services were held in Boston amid protest from several civil authorities. In fact, Christmas itself did not become a legal holiday in the United States until 1836, sixty years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The idea of celebrating Christmas had been declining for nearly a century and a quarter in Great Britain when Charles Dickens published his now beloved classic, A Christmas Carol. The spirit of that story, helping the impoverished, coupled with the great poverty in Britain during that time, transformed Christmas from a time of celebration to a period of helping the less fortunate. Christmas was given a new lease on life in Britain in the form of a special benevolent dinner.

To the Germans go the credit for the concept of a Christmas tree. It has been said that Martin Luther first originated the practice of having a Christmas tree, but the practice goes back into German history before Luther ever appeared on the scene. The tribesmen of Northern Europe supposedly worshipped the tree, but it was the Germans who took this idea, transplanted it into the Christmas celebration and gave it to the Christian cultures of the world. Americans first saw the decorated evergreens when they were fighting for their independence against the German mercenaries. The Pennsylvania Dutch also carried the Christmas Tree to the U.S.

By the early third of the 19th Century, Christmas was once again popular in the Western world. The Christmas card first appeared in 1844 and it was followed another six years later by the paper hat which was worn at Christmas parties. Kissing under the mistletoe also became a custom in America and Britain.

Perhaps what many could agree with is the affirmation that a great deal of the content which we in the Western Culture give to the word Love seems to be heavily indebted to a life lived sacrificially on behalf of others in an ancient corner of the earth many years ago.

Dr. Brooks: cuckoos and their nests

By BILL LOFTUS

Jack Nicholson, dehumanization, Ken Kesey, mortification, shock treatments, late-night phone calls and lobotomies. That's how it was Monday night. Dr. Dean K. Brooks was in the SUB Ballroom with the last Issues and Forums presentation for the fall semester. The title of his talk was "A Bushel of Shoes". Brooks is a well-known psychiatrist and the superintendent of Oregon State (Mental) Hospital; he also was in the cast of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." The evening was a melange of scenes, with Brooks alternating between the role of reformer and entertainer. Even the program was in two parts: the one that wasn't about the film and the other one that was.

The title only fit part of the program. It referred to an incident that made Brooks realize the problems in mental institutions. It was on the day of the Kennedy funeral that Brooks saw how a different mental hospital abused its patients. During a break from the funeral, he and the other superintendent decided to tour the wards and it was then that Brooks found patients subjected to continuously lighted wards according to an archaic law and where he stumbled over a bushel basket of the patients' shoes that were no longer personal property but had been taken from them.

Those shoes came to be symbolic to Brooks as a symbol of "dehumanization." Brooks defined dehumanization as "the divestment of human capacities and functions...where one person is responsible for...the comfort and welfare of others."

Actually the shoes represent one aspect of dehumanization called "mortification." That occurs when patients are subjected to treatments to make them less individualistic and so more malleable to institutional needs. The institutions can be the Army, fraternities, or mental institutions. Brooks used those terms to describe how he tried to change existing conditions at Oregon State Hospital. He tried to institute programs that made for better conditions by brightening up the environment in the wards, allowing the patients to regain more control over their individual affairs, and taking them out of the wards for recreation.

The goals of Dean Brooks sound like the things that Randall P. McMurphy accomplished in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." McMurphy was the character portrayed by Jack Nicholson. He lived up the ward with card-sharking, got the patients to realize their individual control over their affairs by stealing them blind of money and cigarettes, and taking them out in the great outdoors on a salmon fishing trip for reasons of his own.

Brooks first signed on as a technical consultant for the movie that was filmed for 14 weeks at Oregon State. He was instrumental in helping the directors gain permission to shoot the movie there. He also provided the audience with some information that maybe wouldn't have been known otherwise, like the fact that Kesey used Oregon State as the setting for his book. Dr. Brooks told of how he got the part of Dr. Spivey in the movie, including descriptions of his first reading and enactment of a late night phone call ("Dean. This is Milosh. We want you.") from the producer of "Cuckoo." The reasons the directors wanted to film "Cuckoo" at Oregon State Hospital was because it would provide the atmosphere they needed.

Brooks held a question and answer period afterward. In response to questions he said that the last lobotomy at Oregon State was performed in 1958 and that the shock treatments that were depicted in "Cuckoo" as violent are no longer so, because tranquilizing drugs are actually on the decrease in hospitals, and increasing in private practice.

Last night was the last Issues and Forums program for this semester, but as was mentioned in last Tuesday's Argh there will be more next semester. There is a survey sheet available in the SUB's Program Office for student preferences and opinions. The committee is thinking of charging for programs next semester because there isn't enough money available to them to get more than one speaker of quality that was mentioned. According to Tom Rafetto, an ASUI senator, "they would have control of the monies raised."

The only other money that might become available would come in March from post-registration budget surpluses. Otherwise, funding will probably prove inadequate for many "big name" speakers. Unless the senate can see fit to release some more of that $3600 in its General Reserve Fund

Finals schedule

Regular classrooms will be used for the examinations unless instructors make special arrangements through the Registrar's Office. In order to avoid conflicts, rooms should be reserved in the Registrar's Office for "Common Final" examinations. Instructors will announce to their classes rooms to be used for all sectioned classes having common final examinations. No quizzes or examinations shall be given in lecture-recitation periods during the week before the final-examination week. Examinations in laboratory periods and in physical education activity classes, final in-class essays in English composition classes, and final oral presentations in speech classes are permitted that week. Announcements of time and room should be made by the instructor for all examinations. Instructors are required to meet their classes during the examination period for which they are scheduled during the final examination week, either for an examination or a final class session. Instructors may deviate from the approved schedule only upon recommendation of the appropriate college dean and with the approval of the Academic Vice President.

Kossman, Raffetto receive Comm Board nod

By BILL LEWIS

The ASUI Communications Board, Wednesday, recommended Mike Kossman and Tom Raffetto as the Argonaut Editor and KUOI-FM station Manager respectively for spring semester.

The appointments will be reviewed by the ASUI Senate next Tuesday. Kossman was appointed unanimously, but Raffetto's nomination drew some fire, with present KUOI employees as well as two of Board members, voting by secret ballot, opposing the appointment.

The KUOI employees opposed a plan submitted by Raffetto, designed to reorganize the station, eliminating some positions and changing the music format.

KUOI announcer Tom LaPointe criticized Raffetto's plan to consolidate announcing and production activities under one Broadcast director, as well as his intention to eliminate some announcing positions, saying the change would limit participation at KUOI to Radio-TV majors.

Raffetto countered that criticism, saying he wants "dedicated hobbyists" who would put in enough time at the station to give KUOI a more professional sound. He said the station could attract good announcers because of the "incentives" it offers, including class credits and experience, which might aid students in getting jobs after they leave school.

"Progress is another incentive," Raffetto said, contending that a dedicated group of students would work longer hours to improve the overall sound of the station.

Other planned personnel changes were criticized by present employees. Assistant KUOI news Director Pat Erickson said Raffetto's plan to cut back on paid news reporters will make it hard for the station to gather news. Erickson said with four paid reporters now they had difficulty covering all the news that occurs.

Erickson also criticized Raffetto's plan to structure the music at the station, saying a change from the present format where announcers pick their own music, would put KUOI in the same programming format as area commercial stations.

Raffetto, who drew up the organizational plan for the station, along with Mike Freedman, a KUID-FM employee and the designated Broadcast Director under Raffetto, said announcers will still be able to "do their own thing" on the air although a format would be enforced to give some continuity to the sound of the station.

He said present plans are to require announcers to play music from specific years during different parts of the day, although announcers will still be able to pick the type of music they wish to play.

Present KUOI-FM station Manager Mike Mundt said he did not like Raffetto's plan, and it would meet with quite a lot of opposition from the station's staff, although he said he would not ask the senate to reject Raffetto's nomination.

Raffetto, who worked at the station until a year ago, when he resigned to run for the ASUI Senate said he was confident he could find a good staff to help carry out the plan, which he said would make KUOI a more "business like" operation.

Because of lack of continuity in sound and in following up on management decisions Raffetto said, "the station is not reaching its full potential."

He said he had presently filled many top level student positions, including News Director and Chief Engineer, although he said the station will be looking for announcers. Raffetto said the people who will work at the station could make it "the best a student station could possibly be, if the students give us enough time."

Raffetto said he expects some problems in carrying out the new plan although he is confident students will like the programming changes including the new music format.

The appointments of Raffetto and Kossman could face some opposition in the senate. Supporters of other candidates for station manager might lead a fight against Raffetto's nomination and Kossman was turned down for the Argonaut appointment a year ago.
