Landlord-tenant bill wins approval

By JOHN HECHT

Boise -- After years of effort, a legislative act pertaining to the rights and responsibilities of tenants and landlords has passed the Idaho Legislature.

The law House Bill 34 passed in the Idaho Senate yesterday on a vote of 24-9-2. It was approved in the House

two weeks ago on a 56-12

It will now go to Governor John Evans for his signature or veto. It is expected that it will be signed into law. It will become effective, if signed, on July 1. Evans is in Washington D.C. attending the National Governor's Conference and was unavailable for comment.

Idaho Student Association representative Ralph Fortunato was quite pleased. "This bill has been a long time coming," he said.

"While the bill is not nearly as comprehensive as ones previously submitted, it is a start. However, this bill had the support of all groups: landlords, tenants, and student representatives from all schools."

Freshman Representative James Golder, R-Boise, who sponsored the legislation, also indicated satisfaction. "This act is an example of what can happen when all groups and interests sit down ahead of time and discuss their needs and complaints."

Golder said that as soon as he was elected last November, he called a meeting of the various groups, and has been working on the legislation since that time.

Ada County Prosecutor David LeRoy, who was in Moscow yesterday, said that the most significant part of the bill was a section that called for refunds of security deposits within 21 days after a tenant vacated the premises.

"In Boise, there is a large amount of low-income housing. This will significantly reduce the number of complaints that my office has seen relative to the recovery of security deposits."

Other sections of the bill provide that a tenant may file action against a landlord for violations of the law, and must have a court hearing within 12 days. It also removes treble damages against a tenant by a landlord, allowing recovery for only actual damages.

In addition, a tenant may sue for a landlord's failure to provide reasonable weather protection. Also the landlord must maintain in good working order such things as plumbing, electrical systems, ventilation, and sanitary facilities.

Weary participants, Sue Doak and Brian Nelson, take a break during the second annual Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon last weekend. The dance made about $1800 and was won by John Dean and Suzanne Gibbs.

Volunteer training begins tonight

A special 10-week program to help community service volunteers gain more satisfaction from their work and do a better job will start soon at the U of I.

Project TRACS, Training, Rights, Awareness, Communication and Skills, is designed to teach volunteers ways to be more effective in helping those they work with. Talisman House is sponsoring the series through a federal grant from Program Impact administered by the Idaho State Post Secondary education commission.

Beginning today, workshop sessions will meet from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday evening through May 10 at the U of I Child Care Center on Deakin and Taylor Streets. Child care services will be provided free of charge.

Among the topics to be covered are volunteerism, basic counseling and listening skills, assertiveness training, and management skills. Other sessions will consider tenant-landlord rights and responsibilities, the social and legal problems of senior citizens, adjustment to loss through divorce or death, and topics to be determined by participants.

A registration fee of $1 will be charged, and registration is on a first-come, first-served basis.

Prof explains German bombing at Moscow Hotel

Dr. W. Kent Hackman will set the record straight on the bombing of Freiberg, Germany, during World War II. Hackman is an associate professor of history at the U of I. He will give his presentation on Thursday at 8 pm.

In May, 1940, the German air force bombed their own city and blamed the allies for the raid. After the war, a noted military historian, General J.F.C. Fuller believed the German propaganda and called the incident the turning point of the war, blaming Britain's wartime Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, for the city's destruction. Those interested should contact R.L. Lee at the U of I Department of Sociology/Anthropology

Nine vie for Hartung's office

Contrary to previous reports, the names of all nine finalists in the search for a new U of I president will be sent to the Board of Regents for final screening. Previously it had been understood that only five or six names from the final nine would be forwarded.

All nine candidates were in Moscow last Thursday and Friday, and at that time they were interviewed by various campus groups, including students, faculty, administration, and other major divisions of the U of I.

Then the official 18 member search committee, headed by Regent A. L. Alford, Jr., of Lewiston, met with the candidates for two hours each, Friday through Sunday. At that time it was decided to submit all nine names to the board, rather than paring down the list.

Regent John Swartley, Boise, who led the search committee last year for a new ISU president, told the Argonaut that it seemed that all nine candidates were quite good in their own way, and that there was no reason that each should not be considered by the full board. Swartley is also serving on the U of I presidential search committee.

Originally, the names of the nine semi-finalists were to be kept confidential. However, both the Argonaut and the Lewiston Morning Tribune

Senators discuss dorm fee increases golf and finance managers tonight

A bill eliminating the assistant golf course manager, the long-awaited appointment of the ASUI finance manager, and a resolution opposing an increase in dormitory charges will be some of the proposals brought to the senate in tonight's meeting, at 7 p.m. in the Chiefs room of the SUB.

Senate bill 45 would eliminate the position of the assistant golf course manager, currently held by Patricia Snyder, effective this June 30.

Golf course manager, Mike Helbling, said lack of funds is the primary reason for eliminating the position. Helbling said the ASUI would save about $3000 by the action, which would help relieve a $13,000 overall deficit in the golf course budget. A lack of work is another consideration, he said, noting that the assistant manager's duties can be assumed by the pro-manager, Dick Snyder.

Snyder said the senate action is "merely a step process." He explained that the student action would result in a recommendation to the Administration, which would ultimately make a recommendation to the Board of Regents. The final decision rests with the Regents, the pro noted, because both his wife's and his positions are appointed by the Regents, and cannot be rescinded without the Regent's approval.

In other action tonight, the senate will act on a resolution opposing increased dorm fees. The resolution cites "the price of residing in a dormitory has risen above that of off-campus housing," and requests that the proposed increases in fees be opposed until a comparison study of on and off-campus housing costs has been done by the U of I Housing Services.

Several other bills will be considered tonight.

Senate bill 31 would appoint Charles Jones as an ex-officio member of the senate. It has yet to be acted on by the Rules and Regulations Committee. Gary Quigley, ASUI vice president, said yesterday that no action would be taken on the bill until the R and R committee made a ruling. They must decide if the appointment is in accordance with ASUI regulations.

Senate bill 40 provides for the appointment of an ASUI Finance manager. The bill appoints Jim Sabala, presently acting manager, for a term ending Dec. 31, 1977.

Senate resolution 16 will also be heard, requesting an increase of library reserve book hours until 2 a.m. during dead week and finals week.

NROTC explanation

To the Editor:

In reading Mr. Wayne Choquette's letter, under the title: "Sunshine and Guns," we feel that some explanation on the part of the University of Idaho NROTC is warranted.

The Washington Birthday weekend, for some years, has been devoted by NROTC students in the Northwest to a competitive event known as the Northwest Navy Tournament. It is hosted in turn by the four Northwest schools with NROTC Units: Idaho, Washington, Utah, and Oregon State. This year it was our turn. More commonly known as the "Powell Tournament," the name stems from the competition's first award, a civil war musket donated by Mr. H.D. Powell, a local Moscow business man, who gave us the weapon as a perpetual trophy for rifle marksmanship over 20 years ago.

The competition includes events in rifle and pistol marksmanship, regulation and exhibition drill under arms, Drum and Bugle Corps drill and performance, and men's and women's physical fitness.

A military inspection under arms is a part of the drill competition. A clean rifle, is of course, the basic essential part of this inspection. The University of Idaho Drill Team was, at the time of Mr.

Choquette's apprehension, cleaning their rifles for this inspection. The title of his letter was appropriate since it is necessary to work on the rifle in sunlight to insure it is immaculate for the inspection.

The Police department, while not technically correct in referring to the weapons as "dummies," did not tell an "official lie." The rifles in question are bolt-action Springfields of the 1903 vintage. As we told Mr. Choquette, none have firing pins, and at the time they were being cleaned the bolts were not in them. This Unit possesses no ammunition for these rifles and, since they cannot be fired, we need none. In fact, the only metal to travel the length of these Springfield barrels in the past 25 years has been a cleaning rod. Certainly they were not fired as indicated by Mr. Choquette. So, while our drill rifles are harmless, as was quickly ascertained by the campus police, we do regret frightening Mr. Choquette.

The weapons used for the live firing competition are .22 caliber match rifles that never leave the area of the armory or the firing range unless the rifle team is competing in a rifle match at some other university. When transported outside they are encased.

The tournament, an authorized University event, was announced in advance and covered by both the Idahonian and KLEW, channel 3 from Lewiston. The Argonaut neither announced that it would take place, nor, did they publish the results. Perhaps it would have served to assuage Mr. Choquette's fears if this had been done.

The Idaho NROTC students are quite proud of this year's performance. We won the overall drill competition for the first time since 1958, including 1st place in the inspection phase. We also won the pistol match and the men's Physical Fitness competition. Further we played host to three other schools who were impressed by the hospitality of the University and the Palouse.

U of I NROTC Drill Team

Chuckles

To the Editor:

Your opinion column of February 15 certainly coaxed a few chuckles out of me. I particularly enjoyed your comments on Steve Symms. That any population would be politically myopic enough to elect such a dolt into office is beyond me.

Brad Preston

Computer problems

To the Editor:

Recently a matter has come to my attention which causes me and my fellow students of the computer, problems of tremendously repugnant natures. This situation has been caused by the arrival of high school students at the University computer center.

Now, as many people know, Mathematics Majors, Engineering Majors, Business Majors, and people in almost all other fields need to use the University computer. Among the most widely used ways of accessing the computer is through the use of punched cards. And you guessed it, a key punch machine is needed to punch holes in those cards. A problem as you will hopefully see, arises when you can't get to a key punch machine because some high school student is using it.

I have personally witnessed: High school students butt in in front of others who were waiting to use a machine, hoard machines by having their fellow "high-schoolers" type their cards for them; and in general, cause a bottleneck at the computer center. Not only are these "high schoolers" rather inept at observing even the simplest computer center rules, but their presence alone presents an unneeded factor of delay in getting to a keypunch machine.

The only way this problem can be rectified is to keep high school students out of the computer center. Since I pay $1600 in fees each year to attend this University as a University student, I feel I have the right to demand that the University educate University students before it takes on the "high schoolers."

Jay C. Williams

Not so rosy

To the Editor:

I feel that I must respond to the point of view offered your readers by a Mr. Freudenberg in last Friday's Arg. In his letter, Freudenberg expresses the opinion that the ASUI senate adequately represents the student body and that the appointment of Charles Jones to an ex-officio position on the senate is therefore "absurd."

The question of accurate ASUI Senate representation of the desires of the student constituency is not so rosy as Freudenberg pictures it to be. The senate is charged with representing the student body as a whole, leading me to ask the question 'Yes, but does it really?'. It is interesting to note the defeat of a bill by a 5-7-1 vote at last Tuesday's senate meeting which would have kept a record of which senators were in the habit of regularly visiting their assigned living groups. Some senators at this meeting noted that they were too busy with such important issues as instate tuition, budgetary problems, and interviews with prospective university presidents to accomplish the trivial matter of visiting their constituencies to ascertain their opinions on these matters.

So, I submit that Mr. Freudenberg is in error concerning his thoughts on the ability of the ASUI Senate to adequately represent the feelings of the student body. I further submit that the addition of Mr. Charles Jones as an ex-officio member of the Senate would lend that body some badly needed credibility.

betsy brown / Radical Review

You, too, can be a student radical.

You needn't blow up the Kibbie Dome. You don't have to barricade President Hartung's office or carry picket signs outside the ROTC building. (After all, this is Idaho.) Despite what you've heard, being a student radical is quite easy.

This column is inspired by a letter to the editor in Friday's Argonaut. "Tired of apathy on both sides," as the author signed herself/himself, is dissatisfied with the academic situation at the University of Idaho. She/he is tired of "disputing with instructors just because they are the professor and I am the student", and tired of "garbage in, garbage out" in the classroom.

I was impressed. I have been at the U of I for close to three years, and I've had contact with a number of self-styled student activists. I've seen all sorts of hot issues hit the campus. But I've seen almost no student concern with the real guts of this university. I mean academics. Considering the trivial issues that most "student activists" involve themselves with, "Tired of apathy on both sides" has the soul of a genuine radical.

Since this person didn't seem to know quite what to do about the things that concerned him/her, I will try to provide the needed information. Hopefully, other students will take advantage of it as well.

The budding student radical needs a U of I catalog and a university time schedule. Every student has these, but the radical knows how to use them. Pages 37-51 of the catalog consist of something called "General Requirements and Academic Procedures". In the back of the time schedule, starting on page 60, is a "Statement of Student Rights". These sections of the time schedule and catalog contain most of a student's rights and responsibilities, as well as the procedures.

As an example of what you might find, on the top of catalog page 50, under "Academic Performance", is the academic appeal procedure. On page 50 it is applied to a specialized case, but I think it holds true for most times you've got a gripe with a teacher. After talking to the teacher, if you don't get satisfaction, you can "appeal through the appropriate department chairman and college dean, and finally to the Academic Hearing Board". It doesn't mention this in the catalog, but it might also help to consult the ASUI Attorney General. I think his office is in the SUB with the rest of the ASUI offices.

Additionally, I would suggest that "Tired of apathy on both sides," and other concerned people might do well to pester her/his senator about getting the ASUI senate to do something to start a student consumerism movement at the U of I. Most senators believe in "doing what the students want," but sometimes I wonder if they have the creativity to come up with a new idea on their own, without "the students" raising holy hell about it first.

So there it is folks. You needn't be run over by a hostile system if you're willing to fight back. If enough of "the students" show an interest, we might even get our student government to pay attention to something important like academics for once.

Troxel thinks big

The recruiting plans of head football coach Ed Troxel turned out to be big this year, literally.

21 players signed national letters of intent to the U of I last week, and all but one of them are more than six feet tall and weigh between 185 and 265 pounds.

Of the 21, five are junior college transfers while four are natives of Idaho. Most of those recruited are offensive and defensive linemen.

"I've been here ten years and we've signed some great people here at the University of Idaho...fine quality players," Troxel said. "But I believe we have more quality players this year who signed than we have ever signed in any single year for the past ten."

"I'm just tickled with all of them. As to who is the best of the lot, who can say till we get them here and they compete for you."

"So now all we have to do is coach them. And we as coaches have to take the athletes recruited and see that they get in the proper position.

We have to make sure we have the best 11 people on offense and the best 11 on defense."

Junior college transfers include two players from Clackamas, 6'4", 230 pound Mark Stenfeld, defensive lineman, and Nick Mayer, a 6'4", 265 pound offensive tackle. Other JC transfers include defensive linemen Kyle Riddell, 6'4", 265 pounds, Victor Lilliquist, 6'3", 235 pounds from Wenatchee, and Brian Zimmerman, a 6'4", 260 pound offensive tackle from Treasure Valley JC.

UW breezes past field

The University of Washington, setting five new Northwest records, totally dominated competition last weekend in the Northwest Regional swimming and diving championships at the U of I swim center.

The Huskies finished with a team score of 997, with Pacific Lutheran placing a distant second at 513. Third place went to Central Washington, who accumulated a total of 500, while host Idaho took sixth at 261.

Washington set records in the 200 and 400 yard freestyle relays as well as the 200 and 400 yard medley relays. Also, UW's Jackie Landry set a new mark in the 200 yard breast-stroke.

Other outstanding performers were Michelle Menkens of Oregon, who established records in the 100 yard freestyle and individual medley, and Washington State's Terri Leonard, who set an Association of Intercollegiate Athletics record in the three meter diving event.

There were no individual first place finishes for Idaho, although Debra Courtemanche placed second in the 1650 yard freestyle competition.

Dome hosts b-ball final

The women's intramural basketball championship will be decided tonight at 7:30 in the Kibbie Dome, when defending champs Off Campus #2 take on Houston #1.

A consolation game will precede the championship.

Off Campus #2 will be defending the title they have held for the past two years with an undefeated record.

Vandals' finale spoiled

By JEFF MARSHALL

After winning two of its last four games, the U of I basketball team returned to its losing ways by winding up the season with two conference losses to Idaho State and Boise State on the road last weekend.

On Friday, the Vandals were outplayed in every respect while being trounced 89-60 by the Bengals. ISU center Steve Hayes led the way with 28 points and 17 rebounds, while James Smith topped Idaho with 23 points and 10 rebounds.

Saturday, the Vandals blew a big lead late in the game and dropped a tough 61-60 decision to BSU.

Idaho, ahead 52-40 with 12 minutes remaining, tried to freeze the game away with a four corner offense. However, the strategy backfired, as the Vandals continually turned the ball over, and the Broncos scored the game's final basket with just under three minutes left, their first lead since the opening minute.

Idaho again stalled for a final shot, which James Smith missed with four seconds remaining. A turnover by BSU gave Jimmy Lee one more chance to win it for Idaho, but his shot was blocked with one second left and Boise had the game.

The Vandals finished with a dismal 3-11 conference record and 5-21 on the year. On the brighter side, Idaho will return a good nucleus of starting freshmen for next year, and hopefully their experience will make them a much improved team.

The Navy and Marine Corps offers the U of I graduate challenges and responsibilities you won't find anywhere else. Whether conning a destroyer, flying one of the Navy's many aircraft, or navigating a nuclear powered submarine the junior Naval Officer discovers the thrill of working with high quality men and equipment. The Marine Corps offers men and women the chance to become professionals in several challenging speciality fields such as Aviation, Communications, Engineering, and Computer Science.

The University of Idaho Navy Officer Education Program

The Navy Officer Education Program currently has several openings in the NROTC College and Scholarship Programs. The men and women in this program are participating in an unique and highly professional organization which trains and educates them towards their future careers as Navy and Marine Corps Officers.

The Two-Year NROTC College and Scholarship Programs

The two-year Scholarship Program pays all tuition, books, and a $100 monthly subsistence. To be eligible you must be a sophomore with an overall C average or better and you must be willing to serve no less than four years in the Navy or Marine Corps. The two-year College Program pays a $100 monthly subsistence and guarantees a commission in the Naval Reserve. All applications must be in by April 15th, 1977.

Community Theater presents N.Simon's 'Good Doctor'

What begins as a special evening at the theatre ends with the sneeze of death for an earnest civil servant, one of many characters in Moscow Community Theatre's upcoming production "The Good Doctor."

Opening Wednesday, March 9, at 7 p.m. in the University of Idaho SUB Ballroom, the hilarious collection of comic scenes is scheduled to run through Friday, March 11, as a dinner theatre. Tickets, available at Carter's Drug Store and the University of Idaho Theatre Arts Department, are $6 for both dinner and play.

Created by comic playwright Neil Simon, "The Good Doctor" contains 11 different scenes adapted from the short stories of Anton Chekhov. The segments display the entire spectrum of comedy from black, absurdist, humor to simple, warmhearted laughter.

Simon has captured strong emotions, especially Russian pathos, in this group of characterizations ranging from a young dentist eager to extract his first tooth to a sailor offering to drown for the discount rate of three rubles. An elderly couple in the park wonder whether to indulge in one last embrace while a timid girl auditions for three of "The Three Sisters," all at once. A father thoughtfully trying to purchase his son's loss of virginity for a birthday present is one of the more complex scenes, as is the civil servant dying of a sneeze.

Known for writing classic Broadway comedies such as "The Odd Couple" which provide the audience with "a laugh a minute", playwright Simon has expanded his craft with "The Good Doctor." It is his first play to abandon his characteristic setting of contemporary New York and his first to deal primarily with characterizations.

Simon has admitted to an intense enjoyment of Chekhov's stories and has chosen those he says he is most able to identify with--stories about losers. Unlike the later melancholy tales of Chekhov, the stories Simon has chosen are among the more jaunty, early ones. He has transformed them into quick, vaudeville-like skits complete with dramatic punch lines.

WHY IS SIGLINDA STEINFÜLLER DEAN OF BEER?

WHY NOT?

Fellow Beer Persons,

Life is full of unanswered questions such as: Is there intelligent life elsewhere in the universe? And if so, do they wear socks?

In beer, however, there are no unanswered questions. Because there is only one word for beer, and you know it.

Schlitz.

Therefore, as your Dean of Beer, I suggest you research the essential rightness of the word for yourself at your next social function. Or even your next antisocial function.

And please note: The recommended source material for locating the word can be found in any phone booth. In other words, look in the Yellow Pages. Under "Beer."

Thank you.

WHEN IT'S RIGHT,

YOU KNOW IT.
