

Argonaut

Friday, April 22, 1977
Moscow, Idaho 83843
Vol. 81, No. 58

Argonaut/Lenore Garwood

The Argonaut regrets that not even the power of the press can change the uncertainty of spring in the Palouse.

Senate stymied by rules and regs in effort to fire Argonaut editor

A potentially explosive senate meeting Tuesday was defused when senate bill 95, which called for the suspension of Argonaut Editor, Mike Kossman, was placed on the agenda, then withdrawn.

The bill, authored by George Ambrose, was pulled back when an informal ASUI attorney general's opinion indicated that under present ASUI rules and regulations, only the Communications Board has the power to suspend or remove an editor.

The Comm Board did suspend Kossman last week for 72 hours, but Kossman was reinstated. The issue at that time was a disagreement over certain salary procedures that apparently has since been solved.

Ambrose expressed his disappointment that under the present system there is no method to fire a person employed by the ASUI "on the spot."

He said the ASUI "should not and cannot in any way and by any means be proud of the low-rent scum which we now have involved in our student government." It was unclear whether he was referring to elected or appointed ASUI officials.

Mike Ayersman, ASUI Senator, agreed with Ambrose, saying perhaps the senate needed to be more "forceful and subjective" when appointing editors. Tarl Oliason, ASUI Senator, suggested the senate inform the editors that the senate had the option of firing if work is poor.

At the beginning of the otherwise routine meeting, the senate went into executive session, permitted under its bylaws, to discuss matters of personnel relating to the SUB.

After returning to public meeting, the vote came up on whether to hire an outside auditor to evaluate the management of the SUB.

Referring to information discussed in the executive session, it was decided that such an auditor was unnecessary. It was pointed out that the Office of Financial Affairs has already gathered, several times, the information and reports that an outside management audit would produce. The bill failed on a voice vote with no dissents.

In other business, the bill providing for the establishment of a committee to develop a five-year plan to set long-range goals for ASUI communications passed. The committee will be given a life of one year. It will consist of a representative from the senate GOA committee, Rules and Regulations Committee, Finance Committee, the ASUI President, the ASUI Communications Manager, and a faculty member from the School of Communications.

Also established and accepted was a guideline policy for the senate to interview applicants for staff positions for the SUB.

ROTC: A conflict of time

By MARTY TRILLHAASE

Whether or not you take ROTC at the U of I, you are affected by it. And, for the time being, the situation isn't going to change.

Since the U of I was established in 1889, ROTC programs have had priority status when class schedules were drawn up. Currently, classes that are held at one time during the semester and are required for majors can not be held in conflict with ROTC classes. ROTC classes meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m. to noon.

But some faculty members have expressed dissatisfaction with that policy.

A motion to abolish it was voted down at Tuesday's Faculty Council meeting, 14-3. But one professor has promised to appeal that decision to the general faculty.

Barbara Meldrum, U of I English professor, sponsored that motion which in part read "No academic discipline including ROTC shall have a time reserved to it." Meldrum said her motives for the move were not personal since English classes are rarely in conflict with ROTC. "I have no personal ax to grind," she said.

Meldrum said the debate on her motion focused on the merits of the ROTC program itself. "I think that's unfortunate because that's not the issue at all," she said. The issue is, Meldrum said, "whether any single department can in a sense dictate the schedules for other departments."

Meldrum said the present regulation is too rigid. "It seems to me that it should not be a fixed policy but a policy of give and take."

Meldrum said she doesn't plan to take any further action on the issue. "Mainly I brought up the motion as sort of an unsettled principle and thought it might be good to get some kind of vote on it," she said.

But one professor said he plans to take the issue to the general faculty. David Campbell, U of I associate professor of economics, said he is willing to let the ROTC claim a time slot, but not the 11 a.m. to noon period. "I'll make a compromise," he said, but "if anyone gets priority, it has to be at the extremities of the day."

The 11 a.m. to noon slot is the busiest of the day, he said.

Campbell added this is because many students who work part time while attending school desire the hour. With ROTC scheduled from 11 a.m. to noon, many students are left with a two and one half hour lunch break. "Their day is disrupted," he said.

At the same time, Campbell said "ROTC students are on scholarships so they can get up at eight."

Campbell said he is disappointed the issue has not had more student involvement.

"The students here are so apathetic, they got the wool pulled over their eyes," he said.

But the schedule for next year is near completion,

Campbell said. "We're running out of time," he said, adding he doubts any action will be taken on the issue this year.

Col. Richard Stockton, Department Head of the U of I Naval Science Program, said setting aside time blocks for ROTC lab classes "has been policy for a long period of time." He added the ROTC program does allow its candidates waivers from attending the class if a conflict with a required course develops. This is rare, he said, since the conflict must be with a single section class for the waiver to be granted.

Bruce Bray, University Faculty Secretary, agreed with Stockton that the policy is not new. "Since time immemorial, that has been the policy," Bray said. But he added it won't be found in the university handbook.

"That unfortunately isn't a written policy. It's always been that way. No one thought to write it down," he said.

Bray said the problem began recently when some professors scheduled classes during the 11 a.m. to noon hour. This, he said, was coupled with a problem developing at the College of Letters and Sciences when professors scheduled three credit classes to meet twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Usually, a three credit class is scheduled to meet for one hour periods on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Bray said the Registrar's office is currently working on a plan for next year which would alleviate some scheduling problems. But he added, the ROTC programs will continue to have priority on the Tuesday and Thursday 11 a.m. to noon slot.

Registrar Matt Telin and Jo Baldrige, Associate Registrar, were out of town at press time, but a secretary in that office confirmed the new schedule will continue the ROTC policy.

The fashions of spring. Page seven.

State orders curtailment of Eagles liquor sales

By KENTON BIRD
Reprinted from the Daily Idahonian.

An inquiry from Moscow's assistant city attorney about the management agreement at the Eagles-Capricorn Ballroom prompted the state investigation that led to an order temporarily forbidding the tavern to serve alcoholic beverages.

Richard Cade, chief of the Idaho liquor law enforcement bureau, said today his letter of last Friday questioning the arrangement between the Eagles lodge and the Capricorn's manager resulted from "a review of the file and the paperwork in it" for the Capricorn. He acknowledged that the review was initiated after a conference with Moscow "city officials" but refused to identify them because the investigation is still in progress.

But Mayor Paul Mann said the contact between the city and Cade's office was Robert Tunnick of Caldwell, who was hired earlier this month to assist City Attorney Robert Williams. "He (Tunnick) advised me yesterday he checked with the state people in the process of reviewing the liquor question for the council," Mann said.

In his letter to Eagles lodge secretary Ernest Wycoff, Cade directed the lodge to cease the sale of all alcoholic beverages on the premises "until licensing problems are corrected." The Capricorn was closed Monday and Tuesday but reopened yesterday with all alcoholic beverages removed to a warehouse.

Verla Wheeler of Moscow has managed the Capricorn the past two years under a management contract with the Eagles Lodge which holds the state, city and county licenses to sell liquor by the drink. She is also a co-owner of the Rathskeller Inn, which has been issued state and county liquor licenses and has applied for a city liquor license.

State law prohibits the owner of one liquor license in a city from having a financial interest in another and that question was raised two weeks ago when the council received the Rathskeller's application.

Tunnick was hired primarily to recodify city ordinances but has been performing other legal tasks while Williams has been ill the past month, Mann said. He was asked to find answers to some of the council's question about the operation of the Capricorn and that led to his contact with Cade.

Tunnick formerly "worked either for or with the liquor enforcement office," Mann said. Tunnick was in Caldwell today and couldn't be reached for comment.

The Eagles' license has been neither suspended nor revoked, Cade said, and he said no action to do either would be made unless an attempt was made to serve alcoholic beverages.

Mrs. Wheeler's attorney, John Walker of Moscow, said his next move is to contact Cade "to determine specifically what he finds objectionable" about the agreement between Mrs. Wheeler and the lodge. "Assuming what they find objectionable isn't too out of the question, we'll try to comply with their wishes," Walker said.

Meanwhile, the Eagles Lodge has retained attorney Win Moore to assess the lodge's position on the management contract. "As far as I can determine, the Eagles as a lodge are within the guidelines of the law," Moorer said. He was scheduled to meet this afternoon with the lodge board of trustees.

And while the legal dispute continues on several fronts, the Capricorn Ballroom is for the first time a soft-drink only establishment. Since no alcohol is being served, persons under 19 years of age are being admitted, and an Idahonian survey at 11 last night found the average age to be 17.

Mrs. Wheeler estimated about 60 persons paid the $1 cover charge last night to hear the rock band, "Leroy and Company", which had been booked to play here this week before the licensing questions arose Monday.

Campus Capers

Bruce R. Woodruff, Alpha Theta Omega, was summoned to appear on April 25 to face charges of petit larceny and killing animals. Woodruff is suspected of taking two test chickens from the animal farm last week, and then killing them at a party at the fraternity.

Randy Moser, Upham Hall reported that fog lights, a tire cover, and a chrome grill were stolen from his Toyota between April 18 and 20. Total value of the items taken is estimated at $106. Campus Police also report that a pair of "Lucas" driving lights, value $70, and a set of "Zelmot" driving lights were taken from vehicles parked on campus.

Bruce Reilly, Theophilus Tower, told Campus Police April 20 that someone took a stereo-receiver and 8-track, value $100, from his room.

Fran Schoultz, Campbell Hall, reported April 18 that $20 and some checks were taken from room 121, and $15 and a wristwatch from room 123.

Two U of I students were arrested last night and charged with malicious destruction of property in connection with damage to a phone booth in the parking lot of Korn's Shopping Center on north Main last night.

Monte E. Carlson, 19, and Mark J. Medley, 19, both of Borah Hall, were arrested at 10:40 p.m., shortly after witnesses saw a yellow Datsun pickup drive up to the phone booth and tip it over.

Both men were released on their own recognizance and are scheduled to appear in court next week. No estimate of damage to the phone booth was available.

Study Abroad 77/78

London, England or Avignon, France

Regular University of Idaho credit for Liberal Arts Study Abroad Program.

Application for fall programs
DUE JUNE 1, 1977

Brochure which includes specific details on courses available, fees, schedule, living arrangements, etc., now available.

CONTACT
University of Idaho
Study Abroad Office
Betty Hottell or Paul Kaus
Guest Residence Center — Room 114
Moscow, Idaho
885-6486

EQUAL REPRESENTATION

DANIEL PROHASKA

for ASUI SENATE

EXPERIENCE • COMMON SENSE

SUB REORGANIZATION

U OF I ENTERTAINMENT

Law dean announces resignation, says school deserves new ideas

The man who guided the U of I College of Law through a period of significant growth has announced he will resign as dean effective June 30, 1978, or as soon as a replacement can be found.

Dr. Albert Menard came in August of 1967 to find a law school crowded into the south wing of the Administration Building with the law library spilling down the hallway and classes meeting in borrowed classrooms all over campus.

Today, the College of Law is housed in an efficient, modern building, the student body stands at about 260, double the 1967 figure of 115, and there are 13 faculty where there were six authorized positions but only four teaching.

In making his announcement, Menard, 59, noted there are a number of reasons for his decision to return to teaching. He said that during the current year, the college has been inspected for accreditation by the Section on Legal Education of the American Bar Association.

"With cooperation from the President's Office, the Regents, the Legislature and the Governor, I believe that adequate action has been taken to meet nearly all of the problems noted by the inspecting team and the Council of the Section," Menard wrote, adding, "Thus the time is particularly appropriate for another person to take the office of dean and provide different leadership. This person would have ample time available to develop and test new programs and new directions before another in-depth scrutiny from experts."

Menard added that, after 10 years, the law school deserves an infusion of new ideas that can be provided by a new dean.

Commenting on changes in legal education over the past few decades, Menard said there has been a slight shift toward increased practical education—"how to do it now."

Menard also noted that the law school currently has about the right number of students for the size of the building and the needs of the state.

Sigma Chi holds Derby Days for children's home funds

The final events of the annual Sigma Chi Derby Days wind up this Saturday at the U of I fraternity's house with their hilarious "Crazy Contests." The evening will end with a live-band street dance and an awards presentation.

Derby Days is a fund-raiser, organized by the Sigma Chi's, and executed by women's living groups on campus. So far, this year, almost $1500 has been raised. This money will be donated to the Wallace Village for Children, located in Broomfield, Colorado.

The action begins at 12:30 p.m. at the house, which is located at 735 Nez Perce Drive. Among the fun-filled frolics include the (baby) beer chugging; the 'zip-strip,' which is a sleeping-bag relay in which the contestee must change clothes inside the bag; the rope ramble, where the girls straddle the rope and run; the Deck-a-Sig; and others.

The Wallace Village has received previous support by the Sigma Chis, who are most famous for the sweethearts in their song.

The money from this year's drive will go to help pay off the cost of a rehabilitation complex for the slightly handicapped children.

KUOI to air fee increase forum

KUOI-FM will broadcast live a forum on the proposed $3 fee increase Monday starting at 6:30 p.m.

The increase, which will be voted on next Wednesday during the general election, will be debated and discussed by ASUI Senators George Ambrose, Bob Harding, and Mike Ayersman, ASUI President Lynn Tominaga, senate candidates John Hecht and John Christensen, and Tom LaPointe of KUOI. The moderator will be Eilene McDevitt, a communications student.

The forum will be broadcast live from the Borah Theatre and phone-in questions from the listening audience will be answered.

Fourth Annual Regional Conference Of The Muslims of Northwest America

sponsored by Muslim Student Association
University of Idaho

Theme: "Economic Problems of Mankind: and its Present Day Islamic Solution."

Place: Borah Theater: (SUB)

Day & Date: Saturday, April 23, 1977

Time: 9:00 AM - 9:00PM

Leading Muslim speakers are expected to discuss this subject.

OPEN TO ALL INTERESTED

For further information please call:

Fathi Krershy
(208) 882-8437

Abdul Mannan Sheikh
(208) 882-1149

"Even

In

The

Quietest

Moments"

SUPERTRAMP

Drop this coupon off on the 3rd floor of the SUB at the KUOI-FM studios for your chance to win this new album. Drawing the 29th of April at noon. All winners will be notified.

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

ID Number _____

ENTER AS OFTEN AS YOU WISH

northwestern mountain sports compares prices with R.E.I.

Item	Our Price	REI Price
Packs
Kelty Tiogn	$85.00	$89.00
Kelty D-4	66.00	70.00
Low Expedition	72.00	77.00
Chouinard Ultimate Thule	70.00	75.00
Boots
Galiber Peutery Boot	$90.00	$99.95
Danner Trail Boot no. 6490	51.95	54.00
Climbing Equipment
150' x 11mm Perlon 5 Fall Rope	$67.00	$75.00
Chouinard Poilet Ice Axe	52.00	60.00
SMC Oval Carabiner	2.75	3.40
Salena Crampons	26.00	26.00
Chouinard Tubular Ice Screw	7.70	8.50
Misc. Backpacking Gear
Eureka Timberline 2-Person Tent	$84.00	$86.00
Ensolite 3/8" x 21" x 56"	6.50	6.60
Svea 123 Stove	23.00	23.00

Prices Based On Our Current Prices & 1977 Spring REI Catalog

S. 130
Grand
Pullman

NORTHWESTERN

SPORTS

410 W. 3rd
Moscow

'Goading the Bull'

Tuesday night the ASUI Senate was taught a simple and hopefully effective lesson in how to represent the best interests of the students. They were taught a second lesson as well, one they may choose to ignore, on the need for a free press.

Senate bill 95 was introduced by George Ambrose. The intent of senate bill 95 was to immediately suspend me as Argonaut Editor.

You cannot fire an Argonaut Editor without following specific guidelines established at a prior time. In the seven years since the Student Bill of Rights was adopted our political leaders have failed to establish any sort of guidelines for the removal of any appointed or elected ASUI official.

An oversight which they will no doubt scurry to correct.

When the guidelines for removal are drawn up I hope the senate will operate in a more mature manner than was illustrated by its actions Tuesday.

I want to print here the actual words of the senator who both introduced and withdrew 95.

"I personally feel that the ASUI (should) seriously look at their rules governing personal qualifications, employment and suspension of their hired employees. Primarily because the ASUI should not and cannot in any way and any means be proud of the low-rent scum which we now have involved in our student government. . ."

The removal of an Argonaut Editor will require very careful and critical analysis at each step to insure that student rights to a free press are not put second to a growing desire by the political elements of this campus to exert tighter control over the press.

I find it ironic that the author of senate bill 95 did not differentiate between appointed officials (i.e. Argonaut Editors) and elected officials (i.e. ASUI senators) when he referred to "the low rent scum. . . now involved in student government. . ."

KOSSMAN

david neiwert

Hard look at a fast three bucks

It's election time again, and this year, for a change, I'd like to have you folks reading this column take a good close look at the ballot.

First look down at the bottom of it. There you'll find a few boxes for you to fill in. One in particular asks you whether you are personally willing to dish out another three bucks to pay for the services rendered by the ASUI.

Now, we students are being told that if we don't mark an 'X' in the "yes" box, there will be no entertainment budget, a crippled KUOI, and hardly any Argonaut. But don't worry, kiddies, you'll get the Gem regardless.

Now this is really kind of strange. Entertainment (which means concerts, dances, Mom's Weekend shows, etc) is, by a queer chance, the foremost service that the ASUI gives the students -- at least in their minds.

When the Kibbie Dome was still in the fund-raising stages, the students were not the least bit interested in paying five dollars extra to pay for the thing until they were promised that they could bring concerts into it.

The most common complaint heard among students about the ASUI today is that they "Don't bring in enough concerts."

And if you ask the average U of I student -- in fact, if you ask yourself -- what the best thing that the ASUI does for him-her is, the answer will usually be: "They bring in concerts."

Now the Argonaut and KUOI are questionable. I somehow get the feeling that the students won't really miss either of them terribly once they're gone. Personally, I'll miss them because I'll be out of a job.

But the Gem is another matter. Nobody really gives a damn about it anyway, it costs seven bucks and usually winds up stuck in some box in the attic. It is one of ASUI's least participated-in programs, but they keep it around anyway for tradition's sake.

One begins to question the Senate's powers of reasoning on this deal. Why cut out the programs that the students most want, the ones that seem to really matter to them?

Well, that's the whole idea, really. You see, the Senate figures that the majority of students are irresponsible cheapskates and the fee increase measure would go down in the elections like a canoe on the Salmon in spring.

So they reasoned that if they threatened the students with a loss of the good stuff, most of them would vote in favor of the fee.

Good reasoning, boys. But one problem: weren't you elected by the students to help them out, to be on their side?

Frankly, it galls the hell out of me. How much longer are the students going to elect a bunch of prestige-hungry bureaucrats who constantly cajole and threaten them? Why can't we find a group of students to put into those offices who will work with, not in opposition to, the student body.

If we had a group of elected officials that were working on the students' side, a simple plea for the fee increase would have sufficed. You see, contrary to the rumours that the Senate appears to have been hearing, most of the students on this campus are intelligent and well-informed. If they had realized that a major loss of services would have occurred without the fee increase, it would have passed. I'm personally tempted, just to give the Senate their just desserts, to vote 'no' on the fee increase. Unfortunately, I realize that I'd be cutting everyone's throats if I did. The services that are rendered by the ASUI are surely worth another three bucks. So, I've found another way to get my satisfaction. If you look up at the top part of the ballot, you'll see a list of names, mostly candidates for senator. I'm going to watch those candidates extremely carefully this year, and vote not for the ones that I like; but for the ones that I feel are trying to do more than soothe their egos and fulfill their needs for prestige and achievement.

After all, it was George Ambrose, the Finance Committee Chairman himself who said just this week (actually, I think he was referring to the Argonaut staff) that "the ASUI cannot and should not in any way and any means be proud of the low-rent scum which we now have involved in our student government." Right George.

Letters

Preston?

To the Editor:

Tuesday's front page interview with letter writer Brad Preston seemed to me as a step in the wrong direction. With all due respect to Mr. Preston, I think there must be something more immediate and newsworthy than any one student's opinions, even if they are "opinions which have something to say," as the interviewer put it.

Perhaps a feature story on our champion tennis team, or the article on new Regent president Alford (or both) would be more appropriate for page one.

But, alas, the editors evidently don't share these views, so let's get to the meat of my letter.

Since the Argonaut shows so much interest in the authors behind the letters to the editor I expect last Tuesday's interview to be the first of a series. I suggest that if you are seeking a likely subject to decorate next week's front page, you look no further. That's right, I volunteer to briefly tear myself away from a hectic schedule of studies and community service projects and spill all in the name of journalism. I'm an informed, vibrant, scintillating, fascinating, devilishly good looking chap who is not above sharing his valued thoughts with his fellow students.

By now you must have received numerous requests from anxious readers as to my religious beliefs, the brand of beer I drink, why I write letters, etc. I merely want a chance to separate rumor from fact and in so doing provide a glimpse of Todd Jackson, the Man.

My opinions may not reflect the lucidity and pure logic of Mr. Preston, but they are certainly as newsworthy.

I am awaiting your call, Mr. Kossman.

Respectfully Yours,
Todd Jackson

P.S. Tell the interviewer to supply his own Heineken.

The real Jesus

To the Editor

During the recent holiday much has been said about Jesus. Jesus was a soul brother, Jesus wore Levis, Jesus did the bump - everyone claims to know what Jesus was and why he was what he was. In this publication itself several letters have appeared condemning or praising Jesus and his followers. To the surprise of probably no one these, letters have been, for the most part, rather dogmatic in nature and seem to express the views of two diametrically and fundamentally opposed beliefs about Jesus. Indeed, whole lifetimes have been devoted to supporting either of the two sides, which seems to me to be a big waste. At any rate, since so much crap has been thrown on the pile, my shovelful, being relatively harmless, will probably not add much, but is worth smelling anyway.

On one side we have those people who feel (and say) that the existence of this man, for which there is evidence, and the truth of His teachings is enough to supplement the lack of faith in God that our modern world can sometimes create in ourselves. According to these people, everything Jesus said then is relevant to our lives now.

On the other hand we have those people who either totally reject the fact that this man existed, or, if they do admit the possibility of His existence, hold that this teaching of His, while possibly relevant to B.C. Middle East, has no bearing whatsoever in our 20th century world. (I myself, not being a praiser or condemner, lie somewhere in the desert between these two oases of thought).

Why is it, then, that this man, the "son of God," created such a situation, when His mission, as he related it, was to bring peace and everlasting life to our material world? The answer to this question can be found between quotation marks in the previous sentence. If Jesus was the Son of God why did He not use the power obviously inherent in such a person to change our material world? If He was not the son of God, why did he have such an influence on the people who believed He was, and leave such a mark on the world who believed He was? The answer lies in forgetting that Jesus was, or could have been, the son of God. Once you make this separation, it is very clear to me who Jesus was; He was an idealistic person, a person who saw what the world was, and at the same time, saw what it could be. It seems to me He said what He said, not because he knew those things to be the truth, but rather because He knew them to be one of many answers to questions people ask until, tired of receiving no stimulating answers they give up asking. This man knew full well He was an enigma, that is the beauty of His whole idea. Until a division is made in something, we have no sides to choose from; Jesus provided this division

Continued on page 6

STORAGE

Moscow Mini Storage

882-6564
882-3480

Multiple Choice
B. McGuire Wrote:
1) His Name
2) Green, Green
3) Yummy, Yummy,
Yummy I've got
Love in My
Tummy
4) Winnie the Pooh

YAMAHA XS750

A totally new road machine for 1977, the XS750 features shaft drive and a triple cylinder for maintenance-free reliability. The smooth running shaft drive ends the problem of chain vibration and you'll never again have to adjust the rear wheel alignment. This plus the sureness of front and rear disc brakes, are more reasons we say: "When you know how they're built, you'll buy a Yamaha."

Now Just $1995

Widman's Sport Center

Widman's
April Special
Hwy 95 S Moscow

Argonaut

EDITOR
Mike Kossman

MANAGING EDITOR
Rosemary Hammer

BUSINESS MANAGER
Charles Hopkins

SPORTS EDITOR
Jeff Marshall

POLITICAL EDITOR
Rod O'Dell

FEATURE EDITOR
Bill Loftus

STAFF WRITERS
Jim Borden
Betsy Brown
Mark Erickson
Ed O'Brien
Marty Trilhaase

COPY EDITORS
Eddie Sue Judy
Andrew Shepard

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Jim Collyer, Director
Steve Davis
Clark Fletcher
Lenore Garwood
Rick Steiner
Fritz Wells

ADVERTISING MANAGER
Mark Becker

ADVERTISING SALES
Sherry Bijan
Mark Eames
Ken Harris
Dennis Matsuda
Linda Westburg

PASTEUP
Kristen Moulton

STAFF ARTIST
Kristin Hurlin

PRODUCTION
John Pool, Director
Alberta Carr
Diane Gillespie
Molly Hill
Brenda Hirte
Charles Hopkins
Hugh Lentz
Molly MacGuire
Kevin McMahan
Collett Pruitt
Chris Santos
Laurel Simos
Sandra Stacki
Mary Watt

CIRCULATION
Keith Schreiber
Bob Kambitsch

Published twice weekly, Tuesdays and Fridays, by the Communications Board, Associated Students University of Idaho, Craig Heitman, chairman. Offices are located in the basement of the Student Union Building, 620 Deakin Avenue, Moscow, ID. Phone 885-6371.

The opinions expressed on the editorial pages of the Argonaut are those of the writer solely. Nothing printed in the Argonaut necessarily represents the view of the University of Idaho, or its Board of Regents.

Distributed free of charge to students on campus; mail subscriptions $5.00 per semester, $8.00 per year. Second class postage paid at Moscow, Idaho 83843.

—more letters—

Continued from page 5 (as have many others, who are not so well known), for the sole purpose of keeping the argument continually kindled.

Although, as I said before, I claim no religious persuasion, I think I am like many other people in that I have a certain spiritual desire in myself that present-day Western religions leave unsatisfied. My opinion of Jesus is just another viewpoint that can personally be judged right or wrong, but I at least feel good about not supposing that someone was more or less than He actually was. This is my opinion of the man, Jesus.

David Hutto

ATO solvent

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to all you dorm rats or off campus granolas who found it necessary to voice your opinions about the ATO article in the last edition of the Argonaut.

I'm sure that the ATO house is quite capable of dealing with their own problems. Furthermore, I am equally positive that if they wanted an opinion from some eccentric nut who has nothing better to do than stare at the walls of his room and write letters to the Argonaut they would have asked for it.

It is not hard to see that Mr. Ostertag and many of his kind find the ATO house much less than desirable but the ATO's problems are probably quite small in proportion to those of a social reject who squirms around campus judging other people's problems because he is too insecure to solve his own.

Charlie Schmoeger

no way did any one of us condone the poultry performance.

The accused has become popularly known at our house as simply "Feathertooth". Please address any further criticism to him and not to us.

Alas it is you, Ms. Gorga, that seems to have been force-fed beer, not the chickens. How else could you write such an article? It is you, Ms. Gorga, who should be giving a public apology and not the innocent bystanders of the Kappa Alpha Theta and Alpha Tau Omega fraternities.

Innocently yours,

Vicki Maule and Denise Tilley

Good Greeks

To the Editor:

In response to Ms. Gorga's letter in the Tuesday Arg, I'd like to say that aside from hating the Greeks she obviously didn't bother to get the facts before writing the story. Kappa Alpha Theta was in no way involved in the fowl scandal until, of course, Ms. Gorga's article accused us all.

We less than appreciate Ms. Gorga's slandering insinuations of Kappa Alpha Theta's participation in the chicken massacre. The only thing we participated in was getting our coats and leaving. No one was more dismayed than us, except the ATO's, when we saw a headless, bloody chicken writhing on the floor and one more on the way.

Contrary to Ms. Gorga's belief, that night was not our idea of a good time. We also find Ms. Gorga and others overly critical in condemning the whole ATO fraternity for the antics of one or two members. The majority of men present during the feather feast were just as shocked as we were and in

Shocked Greek

To the Editor:

I too am shocked to hear of the incident concerning the theft and destruction of the University's two experimental chickens. However, it is sad when the ATO's and the whole Greek system must suffer the insults incurred by only two individuals. These two are the ones who should apologize. I can also assure you that the Greeks are not happy with the situation and that the ATO's have already dealt with their two fraternity brothers.

Isn't it also sad that we must always read of the evil, detrimental, and scandalous incidents and not of the accomplishments of others. Did you know that the three

Continued on page 15

Fish & Sea Food Orama
every Friday
5:30 pm-9:30 pm Fantastic!

$1⁰⁰ off
All Barry McGuire Albums Thru April 30
CROSSROADS BOOKSTORE
309 S. Main Moscow

U-Cities String and Racquet
We string all Rackets
Special: 20% off on gut
1 week only-offer
Limited to Supply Located In
P&E Athletic Supply
215 W. 3rd

LAW SCHOOL INTERVIEWS

Counselors are available daily at the UNIVERSITY OF SAN FERNANDO VALLEY COLLEGE OF LAW

to offer guidance and career planning

Call or write USFV, 8353 Sepulveda Blvd.
Sepulveda, California 91343. Tel. 213-894-5711

The College of Law offers a full-time 3 year day program as well as part-time day and evening programs. The school is fully accredited by the Committee of Bar Examiners of the State Bar of California.

Lion's Mane

SUMMER STYLE

SPECIAL

April 22—May 14

THE NATURAL MAN

Permanent Wave

Give Your Hair That Special Summer Look With A Permanent Wave

Your Hair Is Cut & Styled To Your Choice Of

- Afro
- Curl
- Body Wave

Reg. $30⁰⁰ NOW $19⁹⁹

Lion's Mane 524 S. Main 882-1584
Appointment Welcome But Not Necessary

Peace Corps/Vista Representatives Will Be On Campus
April 26-28 ONLY

Interviewing for Peace Corps positions and Vista openings beginning this summer in 65 overseas countries and throughout the western United States.

June graduates must apply now for these positions.

Interviews will be at the Career Planning and Placement Center from:

8:45 am—4:45 pm
April 26—28

of us y become our house tooth".

further not to us.
Gorga, been the e could article? It who public e innocent Kappa pha Tau ntly yours,
enise Tilley

Greek

to hear of ning the on of the perimental
r, it is sad
d the m must curred by.
. These ho should so assure s are not ation and e already fraternity

at we f the evil,
andalous
f the f others.
he three age 15

ta
s s and in 65

the ng

MY HOW THINGS HAVE CHANGED

FASHION '77

Waves of the Future

By PETE CARLSON
Reprinted from Gentleman's Quarterly,
© April 1977

Remember fashion's avant-garde--that informal coalition of influential designers, self-appointed taste makers and fanatical fashion freaks who unflaggingly lived the Sixties' clothes renaissance? Today, when excess is passe and any look that's mystical or magical considered gauche, the avant-garde innovators of five years ago have become the loss leaders of 1977. Originality would currently appear to be as out of date as conspicuous consumption. Or is it? There are straws in the wind that indicate the contrary. Paris, for example, has just opened its glorious glass-and-steel toolbox of an art center, dedicated to promoting experimentation and daring in all the arts--and we firmly include fashion in this category. New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art has yet another Technicolor fashion epic drawing crowds, this time a Russian extravaganza, while the city's Guggenheim Museum is gushing over its forthcoming rendezvous with fashion and fantasy, obviously hoping to make money as worlds collide.

So, it would seem that the avant-garde, the outrageous and the intricately fashionable are about to make a re-entry into our collective consciousness.

How do men's wear designers reflect these new goings-on? Enter Joe Collins. "I dislike unnatural evolvments," the designer begins firmly. "Fashion is organic. It has a history, and history, contrary to rumor, almost never repeats itself. All of which means that I'm very much against the current tidal wave of romanticism in clothes. Of course, it's chiefly affecting women's wear at the moment but, like all fashion movements, it's essentially genderless and will eventually affect the way men dress."

Does this mean that we should brace ourselves for soulful peasants in sackcloth shirts and muzhiks in homespun muslin? "Not if I have anything to do with it," Collins counters. "But be patient with me for a few minutes while I give you my version of where we are now and where we should be going in men's wear--particularly tailored clothing, which is where my interest is focused at the moment. Consider the suit. It's positively medieval! It's like armor. Interfaced, interlined, padded and fitted to death. The average man is as securely bound into his suit as he would be in a straightjacket. For years people have been talking about loosening up, but

"...clothes should be tactile, but not sexual.."

I haven't seen it. Now, don't misunderstand me. I can look at a traditional garment and admire it as an esthetic object. I can even make a suit! But I wouldn't want to. I'd never make something that I couldn't function in. As soon as I'd raise my arm, I'd feel tension in the fabric; I'd feel constricted. Instant claustrophobia! What I had on would begin interfering with my relationships with people."

Collins feels that clothes should be tactile, but not sexual. "Nothing I design fits tightly," he explains. "If I depended on what I wore to express me sexually, I'd be in a mess," he grins.

"Tibetan philosophy, believe it or not, is at the core of my outlook on fashion," Collins continues. "Like many philosophies, it holds that there are three states of being: the body, which I translate into the feel of clothes--their texture; the emotions--that's color, obviously; and the intellect--function in dressing. Getting all these qualities to work together is an intellectual challenge, of course, and when it comes to making clothes, all three must be finely balanced. Although I personally think function is way at the top, there is one way of testing clothes: Do something that requires all three faculties, like dancing. If you can dance in my clothes, I'll consider them a success."

Put yourself in some great arm weather partners, in white or blue denim.

THE BACKROOM

Creightons

Certainly, Collins seems to have the same confidence in the clarity and logic of his clothes as Paul Poiret did when he answered Isadora Duncan's complaint that she couldn't dance in his clothes with a laconic, "You can't dance." A sort of sublime, almost guileless self-assurance is necessary in original people if they are to be truly convincing.

"I can see the hard edge receding," Collins says. "In five years, people will be wearing clothes that are soft, calm and elegant in a way that's completely honest, because it's functional."

A typical Collins outfit is very much a layered affair. A simple wool or silk shirt might be topped first by an unconstructed tunic in fine tweed, and then by a wool caftan. The trousers are either drawstrung (and therefore, minutely adjustable) or double-even triple-pleated (allowing plenty of room to maneuver).

"...Americans are obsessed with style over content..."

Karl Lagerfeld is one of Collin's favorite designers--a revealing choice. Lagerfeld's exquisite, complex and gently contoured clothes are not only a highly refined expression of the subtlety of good fashion, but also quite elitist, not to mention demanding, in the way good clothes always are. Joe Collins also makes it clear that he requires certain things of the wearers of his clothes: a good body, a reasonably healthy psychology, an open mind about nutrition and certainly no sexual or other hangups. "I'm like everyone else. I want something to live for," he says quite seriously, "and that's why I'm doing something I enjoy. Designing clothes that people feel good in is really an end in itself. Of course, I am also passionately interested in dealing with what might half-ironically be called taste and beauty."

Nobody could be farther from the fine-honed rationalism of Joe Collins than Jim O'Connor. He and his wife, the deliciously and improbably named Pamla Motown, are refugees from Britain. From their base in chic TriBeCa--the triangle beyond New York's Canal Street that is replacing SoHo as the city's downtown headquarters for the upwardly mobile who also wish to retain radical credentials--Jim and Pamla are maintaining a specifically European strain of fashion. Clothes are seen as a sort of perpetual art-school joke, full of slangy references to the wider culture around them, especially its pop elements.

"When people see the way Pamla and I dress, they always say, 'Oh, you're into the Fifties, aren't you?'" begins O'Connor, "but that's really too much of a generalization of our style. A lot of things that I like began in the Fifties--two elements in particular. One is a sense of humor about clothes, the other an interest in the future. Science fiction first reached the popular consciousness at that time. 'Purple People Eater' was on the jukebox, and such colors as shocking pink and aquamarine were being worn. The Fifties were really an outrageous time, come to think of it. The spikiness and angularity of everything, from Danish modern furniture to ponytails and pointed shoes. Everything was very hard-edged and sort of garish. It's the healthy vulgarity of the period that interests me most, I guess. Today, fashion has become so timid and respectable, especially in the United States."

Technology is another reason for O'Connor's preoccupation with the Fifties. "Jeans were beginning to become important, and suddenly clothes revealed their construction for the first time. Like a modern building, with its skeletal steel frame, jeans were seamed and riveted in a very frank way. And, of course, there was the music. I remember growing up wondering what Patti Page or Jo Stafford had to do with my life, and then suddenly, rock was born, and there were people singing about things that really concerned me. I think the Fifties were also the first time we were involved in a participatory culture. And remember, living in Britain at the time meant that all of this had an additional impact to rumor, at itself. All that I'm very current tidal criticism in e, it's chiefly wear at the all fashion essentially ll eventually dress."

"...sportswear is the only area where Americans let themselves go..."

Continued on page 14

n that we rselves for n sackcloth uezhiks in "Not if I do with it," "But be for a few ve you my we are now uld be going particularly which is is focused onder the medieval! Interfaced, and fitted to e man is as o his suit as aightjacket. have been ning up, but ould ut " Now, don't I can look arment and etic object. suit! But I I'd never at I couldn't oon as I'd el tension in onstricted. bia! What I interfering ships with at clothes , but not design fits ns. "If I I wore to y, I'd be in

hy, believe core of my n," Collins ke many olds that states of , which I feel of ture; the color, intellect- g. Getting to work intellectual urse, and o making must be Although I nction is ere is one hes: Do quires all dancing If y clothes, uccess

Now, don't I can look arment and etic object. suit! But I I'd never at I couldn't oon as I'd el tension in onstricted. bia! What I interfering ships with

at clothes , but not design fits ns. "If I I wore to y, I'd be in

hy, believe core of my n," Collins ke many olds that states of , which I feel of ture; the color, intellect- g. Getting to work intellectual urse, and o making must be Although I nction is ere is one hes: Do quires all dancing If y clothes, uccess

hy, believe core of my n," Collins ke many olds that states of , which I feel of ture; the color, intellect- g. Getting to work intellectual urse, and o making must be Although I nction is ere is one hes: Do quires all dancing If y clothes, uccess

hy, believe core of my n," Collins ke many olds that states of , which I feel of ture; the color, intellect- g. Getting to work intellectual urse, and o making must be Although I nction is ere is one hes: Do quires all dancing If y clothes, uccess

hy, believe core of my n," Collins ke many olds that states of , which I feel of ture; the color, intellect- g. Getting to work intellectual urse, and o making must be Although I nction is ere is one hes: Do quires all dancing If y clothes, uccess

Your Place In The Sun For Fashion

(Our New Junior Dept.)

"THE ORANGE CRATE"

Women's High Fashion Shoes

connie

Floyd's SHOE STOP

511 S. Main (Next to Ken's Stationery) 882-0830

Fiber in your Diet: what it can and can't do for you

Reprinted from Glamor Magazine, © March 1977

Fiber is supposed to work all sorts of wonders, from helping a dieter lose weight to preventing cancer. Although fiber (or plain old-fashioned roughage) has been around as long as food has, exactly what it does-and doesn't do- is still very much an infant study. While nutritionists and scientists are trying to test further on fiber, you might want to do some of your own by answering true or false to the following:

- Salads and vegetables are the richest fiber foods.
- I can lose weight if I eat a lot of fiber.
- All breads are high in fiber.
- Since fiber is so lacking in our American diet, the more I eat, the better off I'll be.
- Fiber prevents heart disease and certain types of cancer.

1

False. Salads and vegetables have relatively small amounts of crude fiber compared to miller's bran and bran cereals, two of the best sources of fiber. Fiber, a type of carbohydrate like sugars and starches, is found primarily in the cell wall of plant material. We get it via foods like grains, fruits, vegetables, nuts and seeds, but fiber passes through our system mostly undigested.

Bran, the outermost layer of the wheat kernel, is touted as the high-priestess fiber in most fiber books and diets. (Readers are encouraged to stir it into everything from meatloaf to parfait.) One ounce of miller's bran has some 3 grams of crude fiber (about 60 cal.), and all-bran cereal has about 2 grams per slice (56 cal.). But don't be misled into thinking that bran is the one-and-only miracle fiber. Most nutritionists say that any diet should contain a True and false. Fiber foods-such as bran cereal, whole grain bread, apples, raspberries, cucumbers, peas and squash-characteristically take longer to chew (because of the texture, edible skin and seeds); they are also more filling because fiber, especially bran, absorbs liquid and swells up in the stomach. A large volume of high-fiber foods also has comparatively fewer calories. This seems the dieter's dream of more satisfaction from less food. (There has actually been a study showing that it takes more time to chew and eat whole wheat bread than it does white bread.) Most dieters agree that the time and effort it takes, for example, to peel and eat a whole orange, fibrous pulp and all, helps make the orange more gratifying than the effortless drink of a glass of orange juice. Both have a similar number of calories, but the first experience gives more the feeling of having eaten.

2

Using fiber as a weight-loss gimmick because you think it speeds food through your system-and thus prevents you from digesting and absorbing all the calories you eat-is partially false thinking. Food you eat is digested and absorbed; a very small portion of some foods higher in fiber is neither digested nor absorbed. So don't fall through this trap door; understand that eating fiber does not mean you can eat anything and everything.

3

False. Most differ in their fiber content: White bread has almost no fiber, and up until recently, the high-fiber breads were whole wheat and bran. But in the eagerness to bandwagon a diet fad, as many as six different new brands of high-fiber breads have been introduced. These contain about five times the fiber of whole wheat bread and about one third the calories; it was in trying to concoct a low-calorie bread that breadmakers found that replacing some of the high-calorie flour and fat with wood pulp cellulose lowers the calories and (eureka!) increases the fiber. However, these breads with "powdered cellulose" are not without kinks. Although processed cellulose from wood pulp is "Generally Recognized as Safe" by the Food and Drug Administration, there have been no studies to show that eating wood pulp cellulose over an extended period of time is safe. Studies have shown, on the other hand, that consuming large quantities of

Starting at the bottom

This is Joe Famolare's patented sole with four waves. It's not for the sake of making waves. It's for the sake of making feet, legs and backs as comfortable as possible.

Why four? Well, let's start with the first wave. It absorbs initial shock to the heel and ankle.

The second wave absorbs shock to the arch.

The third rolls you forward.

And the fourth pushes you off.

DEPARTMENT STORE - MOSCOW

and not be ne food.

se. Fiber ran céréa
d, apples,
bers, peas cteristica v (because e skin and also more especially and swells
A large foods also ly fewer eems the of more ess food.
y been a t it takes w and eat
d than it ) Most
e time and ample, to le orange,
all, helps ge more effortless of orange a similar s, but the ves more eaten.
weight-loss
ou think it ugh your events you absorbing ou eat-is ng. Food
sted and hall portion r in fiber is ed nor don't fall
ap door;
ating fiber
u can eat
ning.

cellulose from wood pulp over a long time may interfere with the body's protein utilization and vitamin syntheses; it may also lead to mineral deficiencies. Says Dr. Barbara Harland, an FDA research biologist and fiber expert, "Wood pulp from a tree has been used for animals, but we don't know its consequences as human food." Until more is known about its long-term use, it's sound nutrition sense to eat fiber from natural sources.

them-but up to a limit. Most fiber books with bran at their core advise that one try, by trial and error, to establish how many teaspoons of bran a day are "right" for her. Too much bran too soon can result in painful intestinal cramps. However, since fiber study is so new, there is no recommended daily requirement at present.

4

True and false. No one denies that since the turn of the century, Americans have increased their consumption of processed foods (white bread and sugar) and high-fat foods (prime steak, some dairy products and many baked goods with large amounts of shortening), while they have decreased the consumption of high-fiber (whole grains) and high-complex-carbohydrate (fruits and vegetables) foods. It is estimated that over the past 70 years, fiber consumption has dropped to about 4-6 grams per person per day. Many nutritionists are calling for a rebalancing of the diet, and a nutrition-minded dieter might take a lead from

5

False. Most claims that a high-fiber diet can prevent such ailments as appendicitis, hardening of the arteries and cancer of the colon, were sparked by the studies of epidemiologist Dr. Denis Burkitt, the "guru of grain," who compared the high-fiber African diet with the low-fiber American diet. He found in Africans a much lower incidence of these diseases and attributed this to their high-fiber diets.

Since epidemiological data will reveal association but not always cause, there are some loopholes to this deduction. Says Dr. David Kritchevsky, an expert on heart disease and fat metabolism, and associate director of the Wistar Institute (which also researches cells, cancer, aging and viral

Continued on page 13

THE CLASSIC LOOK

that can take you out into the business world

Creightons

fer in their White fiber, and high-fiber wheat and gerness to d, as many brands of ave been e contain e fiber of and about s; it was in ow-calorie ers found e of the d fat with e lowers (eureka!) However, powdered without processed d pulp is nized as and Drug ere have show that cellulose period of ies have hand, that antities of

41 ways to get a head start on spring

Reprinted from Glamor Magazine,
© March 1977

Change the station on your clock radio so that you wake up to something different in the morning—perhaps classical music or country-western songs.

2. Treat your favorite man to a strawberry ice-cream soda—one soda, two straws.

3. Throw a coin in a fountain and make a wish.

4. Collect all the winter clothes you didn't wear this year (and probably never will), and give them to the Salvation Army or another good cause.

5. If it's still too chilly to eat your lunch in the park, have your coffee there instead.

6. Plan a rites of spring party.

7. Clean out your wallet and makeup case and pocketbook.

Get rid of old tissues, dirty scraps of paper and leaky pens.

8. Adopt a kitten.

9. Change the perfume you've been wearing—perhaps try and eau de toilette.

10. Eat a papaya for breakfast. You'll feel as if you just woke up in the Caribbean.

11. Clean your windows. A quick trick is to spray them with a water and ammonia solution and then wipe them clean and dry with old newspapers.

12. Read The Secret Garden by Frances H. Burnett (Lippincott, $7.95; Dell, $1.50), a children's novel for grownups.

13. Take a mental-health day off from work.

14. Paint your nails fire-engine red.

15. Put up a bulletin board in your kitchen or bathroom with schedules and reminders of all the things you plan to do this spring.

16. Buy an inexpensive music box with a pretty tune—like "On the Street Where You Live."

17. Give flowers to someone you work with.

18. Develop a crush.

19. Have a different kind of sandwich for lunch.

20. Sit on a park bench with a friend, and watch the clouds change formations, and decide what their shapes remind you of.

21. Hang some of your hand laundry out in the fresh air to dry.

22. Pay a call on the elderly person who lives down the street or the corridor from you.

23. Drink an exotic tea.

McNulty's Tea & Coffee Co. in New York City blends its own orange spice, cinnamon and Jamaican ginger teas. Find a shop near you that offers something similar.

24. Go to the museum to look at the Impressionists: Don't make it an all-day, headachy experience. Take an hour or so to consider the fleeting moments captured by the Impressionist painters.

25. Get something fixed that's been broken all winter.

26. Buy a pair of great new sandals and wear them with bright-colored socks until it gets warmer.

27. Find an old movie playing at a theater or on the late show... something like The Philadelphia Story or Splendor in the Grass. Eat popcorn and drink grape soda while you watch.

28. Send a man you like a crazy little gift in the mail—and don't sign your name.

29. Visit someone you haven't seen in a very long time.

30. Bake meringues.

31. Buy a pair of jazzy gym shorts for spring jogging.

32. Play Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps."

33. Don't just give yourself a pedicure—give him one too.

34. If you're the world's worst letter-writer, send your friends notes on postcards of reproductions of paintings.

35. Get a new pair of sunglasses—you don't have to wait until summer to wear them.

36. Change the news program you watch at night.

37. Look closely at the designs of nature—the grain of a cucumber, the patterns in leaves.

38. Pay off a debt. The interest you pay on a credit card account is more than the interest you would receive on a savings account.

39. Buy some bubbles and blow them at someone who isn't expecting it.

40. Take a child to the zoo.

41. Wear a ribbon in your hair.

Step Into Spring and New Fashions
At

"Rare Earth" Boutique Sizes 3-13

Spring Has Sprung In An Array of Contemporary Styles and Vast Colors

Jump Suits
Cool and Comfortable Summer Dresses
Tennis Sets
Denim Jeans (European fit)

Come in and Browse
We think You'll Like it!

Located Behind
"Berg's"
203 E. 3rd 882-2425

Open Monday-Saturday
9:00-5:30

3/21/77
3:30 PM

Fiber in your Diet . . .

diseases), "There are no studies to show that if a population prone to heart disease is put on a high-fiber diet, the incidence of disease decreases. Americans also live longer than Africans, and our longevity predisposes us to certain diseases. No one knows whether the Africans would also get these diseases if they had longer life spans. There are many non-dietary factors to consider."

Dr. Kritchevsky also explains, amusingly, how scientific data can be misconstrued: "For example, if you drink Scotch and water on Monday, bourbon and water on Tuesday, gin and water on Thursday, and get drunk on all four days, you could conclude that water-the common denominator-made you drunk." Faddists also often conclude wrongly that if lack of one nutrient causes some ill, then a high dose of it will prevent it.

At present, it is only certain that a low-fiber diet can cause constipation and diverticulosis (abnormal sacs in the lower intestine). As for cancer of the colon, a comparison of thirty-seven countries revealed no significant cause-and-effect between fiber and cancer. Recent research shows that bran does not lower blood cholesterol, but other studies did indicate that pectin (one form of fiber abundant in apples, pears, oranges) does. Because medical evidence is so skimpy, the FDA recently challenged a high-fiber bread's (Fresh Horizons) original claim that "There is increasing scientific and medical opinion that fiber may help prevent several serious diseases," implying that eating that product could prevent them. The FDA maintained that there is no violation in making a high-fiber claim, but making unsubstantiated medical claims would make the bread an unapproved new drug. As a result, the makers of Fresh Horizons withdrew all such claims on the package and in ads.

We are still in the middle of the furor over fiber, and until more is known, think fiber foods, but in moderation.

PCB has the first and best of the Great Spring Looks

Pazzazz Clothing Boutique 210 SOUTH MAIN

waves . . .

because it was American and powerful and exotic."

O'Connor's transatlantic point of view has made him particularly sensitive to fashion in New York. "Americans always seem to be brighter and larger-than-life to Europeans, but when you actually live here and become involved in life on a daily basis, you realize that there's a lot of self-consciousness in this country. There's a fear of being controversial, for one thing, of being noticed in a group, of being original. Americans put their fashion energy into looking almost inhumanly well-groomed. They're obsessed with style over content, I guess. But that's not a criticism. There's no reason why style can't be considered an end in itself.

"Clothes should acknowledge the fact that you're bringing something new to a situation. It's not important whether people think you're a nice person or not, but it's critical that you feel you're expressing whom you really are."

O'Connor's own style is, of course, reflected in his clothes. The language of sport is very important to him right now. Football boots, rugby shirts and tennis visors might co-exist happily on O'Connor's body at one moment, while at another, he might be wearing one of his own Day-Glo sweaters in tones of orange and green. "At the moment, I feel happiest designing active sportswear, because that's just about the only area where Americans really let themselves go and wear what's practical, functional and just plain good-looking. I saw a man walking down Madison Avenue the other day in a bright red ski suit. He looked fabulous, and nobody stared or thought him bizarre. But if he had been wearing an overcoat of the same fabric, he immediately would have been put down as an eccentric or an attention-getter. Americans are only comfortable if they can explain something on the grounds that it's super-practical for one, specific purpose. As soon as something is made simply to look good, sexy or witty, they get very suspicious."

While Collins and O'Connor may seem poles apart on the direction they feel fashion should take, they do have one thing in common: an impatience with the shoddy and second-rate. "There's one eternal value," says O'Connor, serious for a moment, "and that's quality. Good workmanship and fine fabrics are always valid, no matter what the needs of the moment might be."

Clothes designs:

Designs by JOHN POOL

RAINWEAR

These clothing designs developed in a fit of creative madness many years ago. They were designed to allow the wearer to alter hemlines to meet changing fashion moods. The rainwear features a clear, hard plastic globe fitting over the head; the bottom section of the coat can be removed completely, and the section about the knees can be drawn up and fastened inside the top section.

DRESS

The dress is composed of sections of material joined by strips of velcro, allowing the wearer to selectively remove sections to create a different look, shorten the hemline or whatever. The sections are white or bright primary colors; the overall design is strongly geometric.

My thanks to Collett Pruitt for the turning my rough drawings into finished artwork.

creative madness?

We've Got Great Spring Looks For Any Body

Stykeburst
MOSCOW

—more letters—

Continued from page 6

basic goals of the Greek System are scholarship, leadership, and service. Did you realize that the Greek gradepoint average is an outstanding 2.8!!! Or that the Greeks are involved in community service, such as the United Way, besides each living group supporting its own national philanthropy! Did you know of the involvement of Greeks in campus leadership positions (Just take a look at last year's senate and ASU president!). The Greek system has the lowest college drop-out rate as compared to other college students, and the Greeks house high school students for the University at no additional cost to them.

I only hope that the whole Greek system will not be judged according to the actions of two irresponsible individuals.

Deb Konen
Panhel President
Kappa Alpha Theta

Who's to say?

To the Editor

I was surprised at Bill Loftus' April 15th critique of the Thursday night performance of the Threepenny Opera. Loftus felt that although Mrs. Peachum (Wendy Jacquemin) portrayed her character very well, her singing voice was "medium" compared to the "best voices" of Macheath's women. I felt that Wendy Jacquemin's voice was EXCELLENT for the part; she articulated her words well and she was the only one in the whole play who could really project. True, Ceceliu Lund and Gayle Ahomen had very pretty, feminine voices, but even though I was close to the stage I could barely hear them or understand the words at times.

In a play like The Threepenny Opera the main characters should lead the play, and be the most influential. But for me, even though the main characters were good, Mrs. Peachum and other minor characters (such as Macheath's second hand men) carried the play with their acting ability and true musical talent, and not Macheath and his three women.

L.J. Skelley

Confused

To the Editor:

I don't understand why the Argonaut picked Brad Preston, a Freshman with "something to say about everthing" to interview. There are so many well-informed people on campus whose views are backed up by facts or who are working on unique research that surely an interview with one of them could prove to be much more informative or controversial. Just because Brad's views are extreme and unconventional doesn't mean they are worth devoting the entire front page to. I don't mind encountering his views in letters because their "feather-ruffling" effect is deadened by all the other opinions in surrounding letters, but when I encounter his views on the front page it's a little more than I can handle. Brad has the right to express his views like everyone else, but do they need to be expressed in such a lethal dose? Couldn't the front page be better utilized by evaluating the success of parent's weekend or by reviewing the effectiveness of a fee increase?

Sue Meyer

Other stuff

To the Editor:

Last Saturday was the annual May Fete, the Spring Awards Ceremony for the University at which all awards recipients are announced for this year's graduating class. Also, new members are tapped for the various honorary groups on campus. My question is, "Why wasn't the awards ceremony reported on in the Argonaut? Surely this would be an item of interest-if you can devote an entire front page to an interview with the infamous Mr. Preston, why can't you find room to cover the more positive aspects of campus life, if only at least to give both sides of this issue? Let's give some recognition to those students who are being honored and a little less time to someone who seems to be against practically everything.

-no signature

Computer note

To the Editor:

In this letter I would like to express concern over the recent decision concerning Computer Center Operating Hours.

Up until now the CC has remained open until 2 a.m., which has allowed our overburdened printer to keep up with the barrage of administrative, governmental, and educational paperwork. Now the hours of operation have been shortened to 8 a.m. 'til 12 p.m.

This move was made suddenly when Computer Services was confronted, as we all have been, with the need to conserve energy. The unfortunate part of this cutback is that it comes at the time of maximum computer usage, the end of the semester. Large administrative and graduate level printouts are common at this time of year.

Turnaround time, the time the job spends inside the Computer Room, increases from one or two hours to several hours. Students who have to run several programs per day are unable to complete necessary work in the allotted time. I think that the 2 a.m. weekday closing time should be extended to the end of the semester and a period of less computer usage.

Secondly, I wish to extend the following requests to all computer users. Be as economical as possible. We are possibly all guilty of inefficient programming techniques. Run programs on the Fastbatch educational compilers to check for syntax errors. Correct as many errors at one time as possible. You need not run the job once for every error.

The days for "paper wasters" and calendar pictures are over. Please don't request dumps unless there is no alternative. Don't print out large data sets repeatedly with no changes. And maybe the users in the Administration Building and Annex can cut back too?!

These few hints won't give us miraculous turnaround; however, they will help until alternative solutions can be found. B. Michael Gerringer

Guitars Friend
If You Play Music... Visit Us!
We have Martin, Guild, Givan, Ovation, Dobro Guitars, Great Lakes, Smith, Stelling Banjos, Dulcimers, Mandolins, Fiddles, Recorders, Harmonicas, Books, Strings, Repair Service, Lessons and more.
All At Discount Prices
Guitars Friend Gummings Alley Sandpoint, Idaho
Write for our free Price Book
263-7732 263-7640
We Buy Old Stringed Instruments

ALL SEATS $1.75

SPECIAL 3-D HELD OVER
Marilyn Monroe - The Hula Hoop - 3-D Movies
This Was All A Part Of The 50's
THE CREATURE FROM THE BLACK LAGOON
A 1954 Classic Monster Film With 3-D Glasses
MICRO MOVIE HOUSE
230 W. 3rd - Next to Kentucky Fried Chicken
Micro Bionic Robot on Duty 24 Hours 882-2499

Sip into something COMFORTABLE

Comfort* & Cola Comfort* & Tonic Comfort* & Bitter Lemon Comfort* & 7UP Comfort* & Milk Comfort* & Orange Juice

COMFORT

Try this sextet of combos. Because Southern Comfort is so delicious just by itself, it makes terrific drinks in combo with juices, sodas, etc.

There's nothing so delicious as Southern Comfort® on-the-rocks!

Use this handy Order Blank... be the first in your crowd to own one!

Slip into something Comfortable... order a SOUTHERN COMFORT T-SHIRT

A real 100-proof bargain... only $2.50 each. A conversation piece! Wear this authentic reproduction of the famous Southern Comfort label, in black and gold on a quality T-shirt by one of America's leading makers. Machine washable, color fast. Great for juv in pairs. Order now!

SIZE	Quantity	$ Total
Medium
Large X-Large

Order Blank $2.50 each shirt, plus shipping charge.

Raye Ltd.
P.O. Box 21508
St. Louis, Mo. 63132

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____

Editor's note:

These are the candidates for the ASUI elections, which will be held on April 27. The following statements were submitted by the candidates and in some cases they had to be shortened to fit in the space available.

Senate

Jim Cheney is an Upham Hall resident majoring in electrical engineering. He is a sophomore running for the senate.

"There are many aspects of the ASUI I wish to see developed into a more self-sufficient system which will boost their service to the students and the community as a whole," he said.

"I am running for ASUI Senate because I believe the senate and the ASUI should work closer together as a unit in meeting the problems facing the students now and in the future. I believe the time is now to disregard old prejudices and feuds which have plagued our ASUI in the past. Unity in our senate and ASUI can and will lead to a stronger student voice and then maybe things will get done."

John Christensen, a communications major, is an off-campus student vying for a senate position. Christensen is a junior.

"I feel that I can do a lot for the university as a senator and a lot needs to be done. Changes need to be made in the financial distribution here. I think Gem money could be used for other things, and I am opposed to the fee increase this spring. The Gem should either support itself, or we should cut down the cost of producing it.

"I support increased representation for off-campus students. There should be a change in the university's parking policy, with a break being given to off-campus students who have to commute each day."

Ken Harris is a senior accounting major. Harris is running for the senate and is an off-campus student.

"I am very much concerned with the well being of us students, and it is for this reason that I am running for senator. I am convinced that the ASUI provides many excellent benefits for the students and I would like to be a senator so as to insure that these benefits inure to the students.

"I support the proposed $3 fee increase because of the very reasons it was proposed. The minimum wage is going up, the legislature's new pay scheme (the Hay Plan), inflation, and a projected decrease in student enrollment.

"I am against the noon classes as proposed. I personally don't think noon classes are the solution to staggering all the lunch lines at the complex.

"My views on the parking policy are somewhat undefined. I would like to see some sort of reorganization on a minimum scale in the area of zoning.

"I think there should be at least two senators assigned to off-campus representation. I been made to bring the students music.

"I was formerly president of the Committee for Student Rights, while it was working to hold back fee increases as much as possible. Last spring, as executive director of the Idaho Student Association, I assisted in blocking the in-state tuition bill and worked for the landlord-tenant bill in the legislature.

"I will be in Moscow this summer, a time of crucial importance. President-to-be Gibb will be taking office this July, and I feel Mr. Gibb's first impressions of student to at least expose the time-honored patronage or buddy appointments system in the ASUI. Once that system is exposed to the students, they will, at least, be able to decide whether they want it or an alternative system.

Ken Harris

"After watching the ASUI work, it appears to be a governing clique, rather than a representative body.

"If I am elected, my basic objectives will be to inform students of the nature of ASUI proceedings, to discover what students think their government is and what they want it to be and to do my part from within the system to implement necessary changes in that system."

Bruce Moorer is a senate candidate. He is an off-campus student and a junior in accounting.

"I am running to study and publicize how ASUI money is being spent. The ASUI spring budget is evidence this is not being done. That isn't the way I think it should be done.

"It's not fair to surprise students in the spring with a fee increase. I do know that the ASUI is short of money and probably does need the increase, but it could have been handled differently.

"I also want to find a way for present programs to contribute to their own operation. The ASUI should format change. What we have now is a high school yearbook.

"I'd like to see the senate more accessible to living groups. They now act on their own initiative rather than talking to people. The senate also has to become more unified, or they will continue to accomplish nothing.

"Programs and irregular help have been cut drastically because of inflation. We can get around that problem by promoting more small concerts like Afternoon Delight and the Wilson and Fairchild concert. Concerts of this type can be continued and upgraded.

"But, I really feel the major problem is in communications. I think I would definitely be able to help fill in that gap."

A junior majoring in elementary and secondary education, Chad Pharis said he is running for the ASUI Senate because "I'd like to see a few things changed or restructured." Pharis is an off-campus resident.

"Probably the most important issue is the proposed fee increase. I think the increase is necessary and the amount quite minimal but I question to all of the areas the money will go. I greatly question the funding of the GEM. If my figures are correct, the ASUI provides $17 for every GEM published. The GEM provides no useful part to the university and there is money going for it that could be used better elsewhere. I am also in favor of SUB reorganization."

Bruce Moorer

Election 1977

John Hecht is a senior majoring in interdisciplinary studies in communication and political science. Hecht is running for the senate and lives in the alumni resident center on campus.

"After watching this year's senate in action, especially during budget time, I am not happy with the way things turned out.

"I have been involved with entertainment on and off for the last few years. I am distressed that no provision has government will be timely; we need to show we care.

"I think that I am qualified on the basis of my past experience and also because I will be in Moscow this summer during the initiation of a new president's term in office."

Eddie Sue Judy is a journalism major living in French Hall. Judy is running for the senate and is a junior.

"My campaign is operating on a reform oriented rather than an issue oriented basis. I feel issues are transient, while the ASUI structure is not.

"If I am elected, I would like curtail the Gem subsidy, and make it make money, with advertising. The ASUI should ask the students if they want to continue funding some of the programs now in existence."

Mark Nuttman is an off-campus student. Nuttman is an education major in social science with a minor in social science and is a senior.

"I think the three dollar fee increase is justified. We need the dollars under the present system of priorities.

"About the Gem, I think they should seriously consider a

James Cheney

John Christensen

John Hecht

Eddie Sue Judy

John "Mark" Nuttman

at we have l yearbook.
the senate
to living act on their rather than
The senate
ome more continue to d irregular t drastically

n. We can problem by e small Afternoon
Wilson and Concerts of ntinued and

I like major unications.
efinitely be at gap."

oring in secondary Pharis said the ASUI
"I'd like to changed or ris is an off

e most is the ase. I think er

ecessary and inimal but I e areas the I greatly ng of the gures are provides published.
no useful
y and there that could ewhere. I ttman

Chad Pharis

would much rather see this money go to either the academics department, to the programs or entertainment.

"I've also heard that students need to see more of their senate representatives. As a senator I would try to be at every hall meeting, also extra meetings if necessary."

ASUI Senator Daniel Prohaska is running for re-election because he believes "My senate experience will be beneficial in dealing with internal situations, especially SUB reorganization and 1978 budget hearings, and in initial relations with the new university president's administration." Prohaska has also served two years on the ASUI Activity Center Board.

"I believe the Senate should maintain a primarily internal focus, concentration on ASUI operations and student services. Major reforms I support and will work to implement are:

"1. SUB reorganization-- To increase management responsibility to students and maximize operational efficiency;

"2. Restructure Entertainment--

Establish a student committee with a salaried department head, operating on an improved budget, working to upgrade the quality and quantity of U of I concerts;

"3. New, stricter golf course pro-manager contract;

"4. Off-campus representation--

Two senators exclusively assigned as off campus liaisons; and

"5. Expansion of program department."

Imogene Schumacher is an off-campus student majoring in secondary education and English-art. Schumacher, a sophomore, is running for the senate.

"I am becoming concerned about our student government. My major concern is the handling of the ASUI budget, and the services that were provided for and are not being implemented.

"We have to be realistic about planning for the upcoming year, and I don't feel the senate was. We have been developing an entertainment program for the last four years, and as if

Imogene Schumacher

comes a little closer to being self-supporting, the senate decides to cut off funding. The senate is hoping to use the cut as a club to get the fee increase.

"The ASUI probably does need more money, but there has to be a strong examination of the programs we already have. I would like to create an awareness among students of our economic status with serious consideration of our future operations.

Daniel Prohaska

"There are other issues at hand and I will do my best to inform students objectively about their options."

Greg Switzer, candidate for the ASUI senate, is a business management major. Switzer, a junior who resides off campus, said he has chosen to "concentrate on a few issues which I believe are of importance to us all.

"I support the current $3 fee increase with a few suggestions for usage. I believe budgeting of entertainment should not be strictly for big name entertainment (BNE). Rather a mixture of BNE, smaller concert, and occasional feature lecturers would stretch our dollars further and add greater variety.

"I support greater equality in funding of women's athletics. This could be achieved by applying constraints on usage of student monies destined for athletics.

"The inherent force of resistance to change seems to be causing great anxiety among students concerned with the noon classes issue.

Greg Switzer

I'm afraid as much as we may dislike the proposal, it will take effect anyway. There seems to be no practical solution to the problem caused by the remodeling of the Wallace Cafeteria."

"One other important thing I must point out is the need for continued student say and input with the incoming new president. We must see to it that this channel remains open in the coming years."

Vickie Tucker is an interior design major in her sophomore year. Tucker is running for the senate and lives in Alpha Gamma Delta.

"This semester I was appointed as G.O.A. senate assistant. For the last two months, I have been sitting in on and listening to the parking committees, the Ad Hoc committees and the senate.

"What I would really like to see is an efficiency check made on the ASUI and its departments. The check would show who is doing their jobs and who is not.

"My main goal is to represent all the students and seek student input. That is how I would be a representative of the students.

"I feel the fee increase is necessary. I also feel the Gem is useful. It is good p.r. I am also in favor of the off-campus seminars and feel they should be continued."

David Walters, candidate for the ASUI Senate, is an Education Major in his junior year. Walters, who served as president of the Associated Men Students at Rick's College, said he "would enjoy working with the students here at the U of I."

Vickie Tucker

David Walters

"As a student I support the fee increase. I recognize the ASUI's need for increased funding, however I believe that the budget must be carefully controlled to avoid misuse and waste."

"I feel that the real issue we need to be concerned with is the direction we are headed as a university. By this I mean that the ASUI should look at all issues, both present and future, with this question in mind: will this upgrade the name and accreditation of the University?"

"I believe that improvement can be made in communications between students and the senate so that bills are formulated that will treat the students' needs and desires. I would like to see a letter box system initiated so that students could easily make contact with a senator."

A.J. Wilkinson is a junior in bacteriology. Wilkinson is an off-campus student seeking a position on the senate.

"I am a conservative. I believe in working for the whole student body, but especially for some groups I don't feel get adequate representation, such as off-campus and foreign students. I live off-campus and have close friendships with members of several minority groups.

"I favor efforts to get ASUI appendages, such as the Gem, Kibbie-ASUI Dome, and golf course, at least partially self-sustaining. I have the ability to compromise, but only on issues which don't violate my own principles.

"The U of I should neither be a kennel nor a bar--it should be a place to learn. I favor efforts to keep it that way.

"I believe we, as students have the right to listen to both sides of a question and I would actively support efforts to bring in conservative as well as liberal guest lecturers.

A.J. Wilkinson

"I feel we need an off-campus housing approval inspection committee with the power to rate off-campus housing which would improve such housing. I also feel the university needs a better image, and I will actively work towards that goal."

Gerry Wright

Gerry Wright is a junior forestry major and lives in Targhee Hall. Wright is running for re-election to the senate.

"I have served as a member of the ASUI Housing Advisory Board. I will be finishing my present term as senator this May.

"The issues that I support are the development of a new entertainment program to bring in concerts that will satisfy a majority of the students. Second, I support the investigation of the parking program and evaluation of its effectiveness. Third, I support the three dollar fee increase. As I see it, it is the only way to maintain the programs within the ASUI at their present capacity.

"I am completely against the administration's proposal for noon classes. The change would have a negative effect on many of the living groups on campus. I hope that you will consider me, Gerry Wright, in the upcoming elections."

Today, we are running the candidates for the ASUI Senate. Tuesday, we will run the candidates for Faculty Council positions.

Troxel looks to '77 season with enthusiasm

By DAVE KELLOGG
Sports Information Director

Optimism surrounds the U of I football team as it prepares for its 1977 season.

It's a season that holds the promise of improving on last year's 7-4 record—one of the best in the school's history.

Head coach Ed Troxel admits it won't be an easy task as he lost All-American center John Yarno along with honorable mention All-Americans Wil Overgaard at offensive tackle and linebacker Kjel Kiilsgaard. In fact, six of the 11 players lost to graduation were all-conference performers in the Big Sky.

But Troxel believes he has more than enough talent returning to mold the Vandals into a championship team. It is a veteran-laden squad this year with 39 lettermen returning.

Troxel is entering his fourth year as the Vandals' head coach with an overall record of 13-17-3. There's not any talk of rebuilding, only solidifying a team he believes can push his record past the .500 mark.

His main goals offensively this season are to improve the Vandals' passing game and to find the right people to take over the responsibility on the offensive line.

"I think it will take quite a bit of time experimenting this spring to find just the right combination of five people inside on the offensive line that we are going to use this season," Troxel said.

One of the big pluses of this year's team is the backfield. Troxel can't help but smile when he thinks about the return of everyone except Kevin McAfee, including quarterbacks Rocky Tuttle (6-0, 180, Jr.) and Craig Juntunen (6-2, 195, Sr.).

Troxel says Tuttle, who took over for Juntunen following an injury last season, will start this year because "that's the way he finished the season."

Robert Brooks (5-11, 190, Sr.), last season's leading rusher, heads the list of running backs. Brooks averaged 4.9 yards a carry in gaining 770 yards.

Also returning are veterans Robert Taylor (5-9, 195, Sr.), Tim Lappano (5-9, 182, Jr.) and Lance Hubbard (6-2, 225, Soph.).

The receiving corps is solid with the return of last year's starting wide receivers Kirk Allen (5-11, 179, Jr.) and Mike Hagadone (6-4, 215, Jr.) and tight end Rick Mayfield (6-4, 230, Jr.).

Defensively, the emphasis will be placed on the linebacking corps. Both the down linemen and the secondary are strong with the return of numerous starters.

The Vandals plan on changing from the popular 5-2 defensive alignment to a multi-front four.

In so doing, they are calling the defensive ends linebackers this season. The Vandals have two good players returning in Chris Tormey (6-4, 230, Sr.) and Chris Eads (6-4, 222, Jr.).

Robert Cafferty (6-3, 200, Jr.) is another player Troxel is expecting great things from. Although Cafferty ranked ninth defensively last season, the Vandal head coach said he believes Cafferty has the potential of becoming one of the finest linebackers in the country.

The defensive line boasts the return of three starters in Joe Pellegrini (6-3, 255, Sr.) and Tom Eilertson (6-3, 240, Sr.) at the tackle spots and Tim Sanford (6-1, 235, Sr.) at nose guard.

Four starters return in the secondary this season in Brian Charles (6-2, 190, Sr.), Bill Clark (5-11, 181, Sr.), Greg Coman (6-0, 185, Sr.) and Rick Linehan (6-1, 186, Jr.).

"We are really going to have some heated battles this spring for positions," Troxel said. "Whoever wins the position at the end of spring ball will be the starter for the first game in the fall. I really believe in that."

Idaho has a favorable schedule in '77 with five home games including three home conference games in Kibbie Dome (18,000 capacity).

All the ingredients are there for the Vandals to continue winning and come away with the Big Sky Conference championship this season.

Times Getting Short!!

Let us help you plan your trip home or help you plan your summer fun..

TRAVEL THOMPSON

SIXTH & MAIN - NEXT TO THE FIRESTATION (882-1310)

Vote

PROHASKA

ASUI SENATE

MOM'S WEEKEND

RICH LITTLE

with special guest

Sat. May 7th 8pm

Tickets - $ 6 & 5 Reserved

Available at:

Pullman - Coliseum, Cub, Budget

Tapes and Records

Moscow - Magic Mushroom,

Paradise Records

Lewiston - Budget Tapes

mail orders - self addressed stamped envelope with check or money order to: wsu performing arts coliseum pullman wa 99163 for more info - 335-3525

Sports banquet honors women

Eight U of I women athletes—representing each intercollegiate sport offered women at the university—were singled out for most inspirational awards at the annual U of I Women's Athletics Program awards banquet Wednesday night. For fall sports, Nancy Hubbard of Moscow and Linda Dartsch of Barrington, Ill., were named most inspirational by women on the field hockey and volleyball teams respectively.

Women competing in winter sports honored four women for their inspirational attitude throughout the season.

Jean Hayman of Cataldo, a transfer student from North Idaho College, received the inspiration award in basketball.

Moscow senior Marcia MacDonald was tapped by the bowling team. Last year, she was a member of the U of I team that rolled to eighth place in national bowling competition, and this year, she capped the season with a sixth place finish in doubles at the national roll-offs, taking all-events honors in regional competition as well.

Idaho's women swimmers honored Julie Olson, a freshman journalism major from Wallace, for her inspiration, even though illness forced her from competition during the latter part of the season.

Receiving recognition from the gymnastics team was Barb Madsen, a physical education major from Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Idaho hosts rugby event

This weekend the U of I will host the Miller-Columbia River International Rugby Tournament, which features eight Northwest teams competing in the two-day elimination event.

Action gets under way Saturday and Sunday at 9 a.m. and concludes at 5 p.m. The site of the games will be the intramural field behind the Wallace Complex.

First-round pairings include Washington State-Whitman, Blue Mountain of the U of I (team I)-Spokane Rugby Club, Trail B.C.-Blue Mountain (team II), and Gonzaga-Castlegar, B.C. The BM II-Spokane game will begin Saturday at 11 a.m. with the BM II-Trail contest starting at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Track meet at U of I

Coach Mike Keller and the U of I track and field team will host Eastern Washington State College, Central Washington State College, Spokane Community College and Spokane Falls Community College Saturday in their only home outdoor meet.

Field events are scheduled for noon and running events, beginning with the 10,000 meter run, will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Along with the Vandals, Eastern and Central Washington will be the only teams involved in scoring.

Spokane and Spokane Falls were late entrants in the meet and will be competing in separate heats in the 120 yard dash, 440 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 800 meter run and 440 yard intermediate hurdles.

Coach Keller will look for a good showing at home and expects the strongest competition to come from the Eastern Washington team.

The Vandals will be without the services of 440 yard record setter Ben Omodiale, out with a strained hamstring, triple jumper Osita Nsofor, who is suffering from calcium deposits on his knee, and distance runner Doug Beckman, who is out for the season with mononucleosis.

It was mistakenly reported in Tuesday's Argonaut that Idaho finished last in last weekend's All-Idaho meet. Idaho placed third in the meet ahead of North Idaho College, College of Southern Idaho, Ricks College and Northwest Nazarene. Apologies are in order to coach Mike Keller and the Vandal track and field team.

INTRODUCING:

The Bistro

(the old Wren House)
...Where it's morning
any hour of the day!

Open 24 Hours!!

913 South Washington
882-9663

Classifieds

A Gonzaga batter takes a rip at the ball during their game with Idaho on Wednesday. The Zags went on to rout the Vandals 14-4.

Vandals belted twice

The sky, the roof, everything fell in on the U of I baseball team Tuesday and Wednesday as it was demoralized 18-1 by WSU on the winner's field and 14-4 by Gonzaga at home.

The Cougars and Gonzaga are among the best teams in the Northwest and their constant harassment of the Vandals certainly helps to uphold their reputation. It was the sixth straight time this season that Idaho was bumped off by WSU and the third defeat at the hands of the Bulldogs.

About the only consolation for Idaho in the WSU game was that coach John Smith was able to give some of his substitutes some playing time.

Dan Prohaska, Steve Grego, and Pat Bailey collected the only three hits for the Vandals and starting pitcher Jim Guy (2-4) was stung for the loss.

Against Gonzaga, Mark Harris and Steve Gregor belted home runs in the seventh inning but at that time Idaho was already behind by twelve runs on the strength of an eight run Bulldog rally in the sixth.

Idaho is currently in fifth place in the Northern Pacific league with a record of four wins and seven losses. They dropped to 8-20 overall.

Saturday and Sunday at Guy Wicks Field, the Vandals play host to Portland State University and Portland University for doubleheaders starting at 1 p.m. and noon, respectively.

All-comers meet slated

Sunday there will be an all-comers track meet at the U of I outdoor track behind the Kibbie Dome. The event will get under way at noon and will have classes for all age groups, men and women. The meet is AAU sanctioned and will cost one dollar for entries.

1. APARTMENTS FOR RENT

For summer rent one or two bedrooms in fully furnished apartment, $65 or $130 per month respectively. Call after 6:00 p.m., 882-7042.

Apartment for sub-lease during summer months. Two bedroom, completely furnished. Rent negotiable. 882-1134.

Transferring to ISU? The Village Apts. in Pocatello is accepting applications for housing for fall semester 1977. Write 2271 So. 5th Ave., Pocatello, Idaho 83201 or telephone 233-4782 for information or application.

3. TRAILERS FOR RENT

Moving to Boise? Rent one-third space in U-Haul truck for $40. Leaving May 9th. 882-7388 after 6:00 p.m.

5. TRAILERS FOR SALE

Trailer for sale. 12x60 Fleetwood. Excellent Condition. Three bedroom, partly furnished. Robinson Trailer Court No. 3, Ph. 882-0685.

1970 12x60 Nashua mobile home, 4x12 tipout, all electric, airconditioned, two storage sheds, etc. 882-5602 after 6:00 p.m.

FOR SALE 1972 Biltmore Trailer 12x56 2 bedrooms, all electric, carpeted, air-conditioning, all appliances, excellent condition. Syringa Trailer Ct. No. 10., 882-0017 after 5 p.m. on weekdays.

7. JOBS

Applications for the position of lifeguard and assistant lifeguard for 1977 season are being accepted for city of Pocatello. All interested persons should send applications to: City of Pocatello, Idaho 83855. Please list all qualifications and past experience. Water safety instructor, Red Cross, or aquatic leader examiner YMCA Certificate required.

8. FOR SALE

Ten speed bicycle, Dawes, Reynolds tubes, Simplex, Atom, Weinman. Well used but rides swell. Call Todd, room 305 885-7578 $45.

Ham, CB, and accessories. Catalog discounts. 332-3456.

Sale: New Martin Guitars, 35 per cent discount. Guitar's Friend, Gunnings Alley, Sandpoint. Call 263-7640.

20 acres of seclusion in Orofino Creek drainage. Nice location for home with water near by.

10 timbered acres South of Winchester Lake. Fully surveyed with road and utilities furnished.

26 acres. Four miles East of Peck. Little Canyon Creek frontage. Large barn. 10 acres tillable. Low elevation and southern exposure for gardens and orchard.

20 acres Southeast Latah County. Some tillable ground with balance grazing and timber. Excellent Location for country living.

Clearwater Investments, Inc., Branch Office, P.O. Box 1918, Orofino, Idaho 83544, 475-3168 or 476-3583 evenings.

9. AUTOS

1973 Challenger low miles, Full instrumentation, radials, stereo, new paint, $2,750 or best offer, 882-1766.

'65 Dart, hardtop, 4spd 273 V-8, $125. Novelty car, home built frame, BMC 1100cc motor and drive train, $75. Must Sell. 882-6010.

'64 Dodge 100 Suburban 4 speed, posi-traction, slant 6. Extra tank, very clean runs good $650 or best offer this week only 882-2581, ext. 57. After 7 p.m., leave message.

1970 Fury II, P/S, P/B, A/T, Radio, 49,600 original miles, excellent shape 4 doors, 318 engine, 882-9945, ask for "Steve."

1966 Ford Custom, 3-speed, 390 V-8, 4 BBL. 18 MPG average. New shocks, good tires, good overall condition. Asking $300 or best offer. 882-6228 anytime.

10. MOTORCYCLES

Kawasaki 500. 1972. Looks and runs new. Extras. New chain, sprockets, tires, tune. Asking $600. Call Bill. Lambda Chi, 885-7512.

12. WANTED

Family needs housing for summer school. Two children. Furnished preferred. Moscow references available. Randy Reynolds, 2135 113th Way SW, Olympia, WA 98502 (206) 943-7008.

Young couple needs inexpensive house or trailer next fall. Will consider subleasing summer months if necessary. Must be able to keep dog. Will consider purchase of reasonably priced trailer. Call 885-7281 12:00 noon. Ask for Ki. Keep trying.

13. PERSONALS

WATERBEDS--buy from friends! Get floatation comfort, local service and reasonable prices from people who care. Magic Mushroom, 6th & Main, 882-8569.

14. ANNOUNCEMENTS

ARTISTS-DESIGNERS: Creative Workshops, Incorporated, is interested in developing local talent. We are renting studio space at low rates. Anyone interested should contact Roger Slade or Bob Morton at 882-3751 days or 882-2382 nights.

Comfort Zone is the BEDDER PLACE for waterbeds and accessories. Remember we're the waterbed professionals. Visit our two locations: South 185 Grand, Pullman, 567-6111 and 322 Main, Lewiston, 746-3130.

Secretarial Center: Typing and Notary Public. 9 to 5, call for appointment, 332-6565. N.W. 1620 Kenny Drive, Pullman.

Seniors and graduate students wanted for 12-week full-time internship in: Range, Wildlife and outdoor Recreation Management, Forestry, Fisheries, Botany and Archeology. Obtain applications at Student Placement Office or call collect (303) 492-7177.

10 PER CENT OFF ON WEDDING INVITATIONS, NAPKINS, THANK-YOU NOTES, WEDDING BOOKS, GRADUATION ANNOUNCEMENTS, SCROLLS, GARTERS, ALL ACCESSORIES. LARGEST SELECTION ANYWHERE. FAST SERVICE. THE WEDDING SHOP. PHONE: 882-3789, MONDAY-SATURDAY.

16. LOST & FOUND

Lost dog, Black lab and setter. South Moscow. May be dragging chain. 65 to 75 pounds. Phone 882-7658

Multiple Choice
B. McGuire Wrote:
1) His Name
2) Green, Green
3) Yummy, Yummy,
Yummy I've got
Love in My
Tummy
4) Winnie the Pooh

THE STORY OF ADELE H.
The story of the daughter of Victor Hugo and her love for a thankless soldier.
Rated R
April 21, 22 & 23
6:00 - 7:30 - 8:45

WHAT'S UP TIGER LILY?
Woody Allen's spoof of a Japanese James Bond
April 24, 25, 26, 27
6:00 - 7:30 - 9:45

Micro Movie House
220 W. 3rd 882-2499
All Seats, All Shows
$1.75

VOTE!
Wednesday
April 27, 1977
Polls are open from 8:45am - 5:15pm:

- SUB
- Library
- Ad. Building
- Physical Science
- Life Science
- Wallace Complex
- Theophilus Tower
- Forestry
- Ag. Science
- Jansen Eng.
- Law Building
- Education Bldg.

ASUI ELECTIONS
Wednesday, April 27, 1977
We need YOUR vote on:

- 7 Senate Seats
- Constitutional Amendment
- 3 Faculty Council Seats
- Fee Increase Referendum

Events

...Annual conference on British Studies all day at the SUB.
 ...American Society of Civil Engineers Regional Conference at WSU, today through Sunday.
 ...Visiting architect Charles Moore from UCLA will discuss 'Color and Architecture' 10 a.m. at SUB Ballroom, will speak at Art & Arch Library 2 p.m.
 ...Women Aglow Fellowship at Holly's Restaurant, Pullman, with speaker Kris McKarcher, 11:15 a.m., by reservation.
 ...CEC last meeting of the year. Elections for next year's officers will be held, noon Ed Bldg. 106.
 ...Kappa Sigma Derby Days are today through Sunday.
 ...Sigma Alpha Epsilon registration for leadership school this morning. A dinner is planned for tomorrow night.
 ...Film, Inherit the Wind, about the famous Scopes 'monkey' trial. Free, 7:30 p.m. Moscow City Hall.
 ...Senior Recital with B. Granzow, 8 p.m. Music Bldg. Recital Hall.
 ...Film, W R -- Mysteries of the Organism, 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., SUB Borah Theatre.

TOMORROW

...Columbia River International Rugby Tournament, today and tomorrow 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Intramural Field.
 ...Orienteering Club, registration 9 a.m. Mem Gym. Free transportation to Big Meadow in Troy for orienteering courses. Compasses available, newcomers welcome.
 ...Track at the Dome with EWSC and CWSE. Golf with EWSC and U of M, here. Baseball double header, Portland State, 1 p.m. Wicks Field.
 ...Moscow Parents' Assoc. Swim Meet at Swim Center, all day through tomorrow.
 ...Knights of Columbus state convention today at the SUB.
 ...The Pullman-WSU International Folk Dance Club will hold its annual festival, the public is invited to join club members at today's workshops and other festival events. Featured instructor will be Sunni Bloland from UC (Berkeley), specialist in Romanian folk dances, teaching at various levels, morning and afternoon. Registration 8:30 a.m. Gladish Middle School, NW 115 State, Pullman. Potluck, Pullman Community Center, 5:30 p.m. Dance exhibition with visiting performers, 8 p.m. to midnight, Community Center. Cost for entire festival, $6 members, $7.50 nonmembers. Info, 332-5625, 567-6662.
 ...Authentic Basque dinner, $2, reserved. 5 p.m. and 7 p.m., St. Augustine's Center. Call 882-4613. The famous Basque Oinkari dance group will perform, 8 p.m. SUB Ballroom, tickets available at info desk, St. Augustine's, or at the door, $1.50.
 ...Film, The Twelve Chairs, an excellent Russian comedy with English subtitles, SUB Borah Theatre 7 p.m.
 ...Star Anise Coffeehouse. Homemade goodies, music by Dodie Smith, Griff Jones, and Mark. No cover. At Talisman House 625 Ash St., 8 p.m. to midnight.

SUNDAY

...Baseball, Portland State here, noon.
 ...Road Runner's Club all comers AAU-sanctioned runs: one and twelve mile, at the Outdoor Track, 1 p.m. Entries at noon, $1.
 ...Sheryl Pullen playing piano classics in a senior recital, 4 p.m. Chris Gulhaugen, composer, on bass trombone, 8 p.m. Music Bldg. Recital Hall.

NEXT WEEK

...U of I - U of M joint band concert Monday with guest conductor Randall Spicer, 8 p.m., Auditorium. Lewis & Clark Sweet Adelines 8 p.m., SUB Borah Theatre.
 ...Kathy Purcell will perform on flute in a student recital, 8 p.m. Tuesday, Music Bldg. Recital Hall.
 ...Women's Volleyball, U of Alaska, 7 p.m. Tuesday, the Dome.
 ...ASUI-Red Cross Blood Drive, Tuesday and Wednesday, SUB Ballroom. Thursday, St. Augustine's Center.
 ...General discussion on law school and women, noon Tuesday at Women's Center. Dramatic readings by Women's Theatre Group, noon Wednesday.
 ...Northwest Gay People's Alliance, Inc., meets Tuesday 7:30 p.m., Women's Center.
 ...Sister Lucia, C.H.S. of New York's Community of the Holy Spirit will speak at St. Mark's, Wednesday.
 ...Idaho Water Conference, Wednesday and Thursday.
 ...ASUI Spring Elections, Wednesday.

KEN HARRIS
 for ASUI Senate

Mysteries of the Organism laughs at weird sexual theory tonight

Coming to the SUB Ballroom tonight as a presentation of the ASUI Film Society is an X-rated film that, believe it or not, isn't really a skin flick but is concerned with philosophical and psychological theory.

W.R. Mysteries of the Organism is a 1971 film that takes a look at the off-beat theories of cult psychologist Wilhelm Reich (the 'W.R.' in the title). Reich was the man responsible for the "Orgone Ray" theory of Freudian psychology that held that human genitalia emitted powerful rays similar to X-rays. In addition, Reich maintained that these rays were one of the most powerful influences in the universe.

In spite of its potentially offensive material, the film was given rave reviews from almost all quarters of the press, including The New York Times, Newsweek, Time and The Village Voice.

Blood drive visits campus

U of I students and area residents will have an opportunity to give blood Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday when the Boise Regional Red Cross Bloodmobile is on campus.

The bloodmobile will be at the SUB Ballroom Tuesday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Thursday the bloodmobile will be at St. Augustine Catholic Center from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Patients in 52 hospitals depend upon the Boise Regional Red Cross Blood Program to meet their ever-increasing need for blood and blood products. This need averages 550 pints of blood each week, or 28,000 pints per year.

A Recording Star- Priced Right!

Sansui SC-2000 w/case
NOW $229!
 LIST $315

The Sansui SC-2000 cassette deck has all the features you've been looking for: convenient front loading; Dolby noise reduction system; front panel headphone and microphone jacks; switch for regular or chrome tape; plus large, easy to read meters and smooth level controls.

Now the SC-2000 is more affordable than ever. With wood-grain cabinet, a $315 value, it's being offered at just $229. Isn't it time you added cassette to your system?

SPECIAL: With Sansui SC-2000 purchase, we'll sell you a case of 12 Advent C-90 chromium dioxide cassettes ($72 value) for $39.95

STEREOCRAFT
 5. 306 GRAND, PULLMAN 567-5922

Country Kitchen's

First Annual Peanut Butter Sandwich Eating Contest

- Each living group from UI and WSU can sponsor 1 person for $5⁰⁰ entry
- Entries must be in by April 27th
- Competition starts May 2-3-4-5-6
- Championship on May 9th
- Starting times posted at Country Kitchen
- 10-minute time limit
- Nothing to drink
- Eat off between UI and WSU
- Winner receives $100⁰⁰ and a free dinner for two
- School will receive trophy
- Plaque will be displayed at Country Kitchen with winner's name

Get More Information at Country Kitchen or from Bill Glass at KUOI Radio Good Food, Good Service, Breakfast, Lunch and Supper
 On Moscow-Pullman Highway