By KIT FREUDENBERG

Human cloning, genetic screening and other forms of genetic research and its implications highlighted the social science seminar Tuesday night. Robert Blank, chairman of the political science department, spoke on the growing need for social scientists to become involved in "providing guidelines and directions" for the results and trends of genetic engineering.

In the past, politics concerned itself with the distribution of funds and public works building, said Blank. Now, the government has become involved in environmental and moral problems and questions.

Science has the capability to keep people alive longer and sometimes indefinitely by artificial means, according to Blank. With the limited resources of the U.S., perhaps one answer would be euthanasia. He said he becomes more concerned with this solution as he nears the age of 50.

The benefits of genetic engineering are there, said Blank. It could reduce and eliminate birth defects. He said 20-25 percent of the defects are due to known genetic causes. It costs $1.5 billion to care for these births, he said.

Since the 1960's, 43 states mandate a required test of newborn babies when three days old to find if the child carries a genetic disorder called PKU. PKU, a metabolism disorder, leads to severe retardation if a special diet has not been prescribed for the child for the first six years.

According to Blank, PKU occurs in one of 10,000 births. He said that some questions have been asked about the money spent on the tests. It would be cheaper to allow the children to become retarded than to pay for all the tests performed.

Suppose through prenatal examination, the doctor discovers Down's syndrome—a chromosome disorder which results in a mongoloid child. These children can live to middle age and become well-adjusted, but cannot be cured, said Blank. An attempt can be made to stop the birth through abortion. He said that a "high pressure situation" develops which pressures the parents to make a decision for or against a therapeutic abortion. According to Blank, several problems can happen in this type of genetic screening. It can increase the psychological pressure on the parents, especially in a case where parents in no instance would have an abortion.

It also could bring about a "tort for wrongful birth"—a lawsuit of the child versus the parents for having him with a genetic defect. Blank said that the courts are now against these cases, but as screening and prenatal diagnosis becomes cheaper and more reliable, the decisions could be reversed. Blank said attempts at genetic screening might lead to discrimination. "We put people into categories," he said. When labeled as a "Carrier", a person becomes stigmatized. Some races and ethnic groups carry different genetic diseases, for example sickle cell anemia among blacks, said Blank. The classification of certain individuals as carriers could lead to a worse type of discrimination.

Human cloning, is "theoretically simple, but hard technically," said Blank. Cloning involves the duplicating of a donor's cell and the implanting of the cell in a natural or artificial womb. This will produce an exact genetic duplicate, he said.

Why should there be cloning of humans, Blank asked? Cloning can bypass genetic disease. It would give exact replicas of beauty and genius to improve the population, he said. "Geniuses don't happen often." Blank said that cloning Kissinger "is not mentioned anymore."

Cloning would give children to infertile couples, but there would be problems with a "real" John junior, said Blank. A large benefit of cloning would be the creation of a perfect donor for organ transplants without fear of rejection.

Most of these benefits can happen through other methods rather than cloning, said Blank. "But are these things persons?" he asked. Technically, it would not be an individual, only an extension of another person. Blank also raised legal questions about a clone—does it have rights?

"I see a very strong movement in literature from individual orientation, to common food orientation," said Blank. The national trend of society's good may not be good for individual freedom, he said.

"Social scientists have a responsibility to society and future generations in terms of genetics and biomedical decisions," Blank said. The political system is not responsive to those on the lowest level, he said. Interest groups dominate politics and play against each other.

He said he believed strongly that current reactions to genetics will structure future developments. "If we fail now, decisions in the future will be harder to make," Blank said.

Decisions must be made cautiously, according to Blank. Federal programs have eliminated the use of federal prisoners for drug testing. The testing has been moved to Central and South America. Fetus research has become very limited, and now must use black market fetuses, he said.

Big business invests in South Africa

(ZNS) A study by a Washington, D.C. research group concludes that more than half of the 100 largest corporations in America maintain significant business investments in South Africa.

The investor responsibility research center says that its most recent tabulations indicate that about 320 American companies have operations in South Africa, and that their investments there in 1976 alone totaled around $1.67 billion.

The companies with the largest South African sales during 1976 are reported to be Mobil Oil at $500 million; CALTEX, a joint venture between Standard Oil of California and Texaco, at $500 million; Ford Motors at $288 million; and General Motors at $250 million.

American companies, according to the researchers, currently control about 43 percent of South Africa's petroleum market; 23 percent of its auto sales; and 70 percent of the computer business.

In the meantime, the New York Times is reporting that American banks have outstanding loans and credits to South Africa exceeding $2 billion, including a recent $300 million loan from Citibank of New York directly to the apartheid regime.

David Rockefeller, the chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, which has invested heavily in South Africa, told bank stockholders earlier this fall that Chase Manhattan would not make any loans that could be used to support apartheid.

However, the New York Times reports that less than one week after Rockefeller made that statement, the chief of Chase's operations in South Africa assured Johannesburg newspapers that, "we (Chase Manhattan) are just carrying on as before, and we'll shortly be moving to bigger premises."

Michael Wendling and John Hansen join together in pickin' them blooz away. The two guitarists perform last Saturday night in the Hartung Theater. The concert was co-sponsored by NORML and KUOI.

Nepotism charges face Snyder

By DAVID NEIWERT

ASU! Golf Course manager Dick Snyder, already in danger of losing his job, has recently had further charges of nepotism and violation of university procedure leveled against him. According to press releases, Snyder and the U of I administration hired Snyder's wife Pat in 1973, thus violating university procedure on hiring and possibly Idaho code concerning nepotism.

According to a story by Kevin Roche in the Lewiston Morning Tribune, hiring Pat Snyder violated Idaho's state laws concerning nepotism and state employees. However, it appears that since the concern falls under the jurisdiction of the Board of Regents, the state code would not apply in Snyder's case. The Regents, however, have a definite policy against nepotism, the hiring of one's own relatives.

Mrs. Snyder was originally hired by the U of I with her husband in 1952 as a man and wife team to manage the Golf Course. She took a leave of absence for five years, beginning in 1968. When she came back and requested re-employment in 1973, the funds for her former position were no longer available. Mr. Snyder, in a meeting with U of I officials, recommended that he receive a 25 percent cut in pay that would then be transferred to his wife's salary.

According to E.M. Barton,

Director of Personnel Services, Mrs. Snyder's job was "created primarily to ensure that she did not lose her retirement benefits."

Thus, the charges of nepotism probably will not stick, since the administration did the hiring and not Snyder himself. However, there may have been a violation of university procedure during the act of hiring. U of I policy makes it illegal for a staff member related to a person being considered for employment to "participate" in the decision to hire.

Snyder's recommendation, which apparently came at his instigation, that he take the cut in pay and that she indeed be hired, could thus be construed as "participation." But according to Tom Richardson, vice president for student and academic affairs, such construe "would be stretching it."

"The administration was in no way forced to hire Mrs. Snyder," said Dean Vettrus. "Dick was called in to give his recommendation, and the university decided to follow it. They certainly didn't have to follow it. We wanted to be sure that she was hired in a proper fashion, and the only way to do that was to get input from all sides."

Mrs. Snyder says that when she left in 1968, "the university understood the situation, and it was kind of understood that I'd be hired when I got back."

"The university understood the situation at the Golf Course," said Vettrus. "We were just looking for ways it could be done right, without shuffling finances. This was

Scholarship fund may be tapped to build bookstore

By KIT FREUDENBERG

Students receiving money from the ASUI Bookstore Scholarship Fund might have to look elsewhere for help by 1979.

The university's internal auditor and the bookstore advisory committee have recommended to the administration that the $25,000 currently put into the fund be used as "seed money" for building a new bookstore.

A representative of the bookstore advisory committee reported to the ASUI Senate last week that the current bookstore can barely function with the existing space and a new store would be an asset to the campus.

The bookstore does not make money on textbooks, according to Richard Long, bookstore manager. K-Mart and Pay 'n Save have cut into the sales of paper goods and the store relies on one or two items to make the scholarship fund. He said, "If we don't expand, we cannot make money for the scholarship."

Stan Shephard, associate director of the library and chairman of the bookstore committee, said the committee's function is to "advise on bookstore operations, procedures and policies." He also said that last year's committee made the same recommendation to the university.

Scott Abbott, ASUI Scholarship Director, told the ASUI Senate that outstanding students would be discouraged from enrolling here if the scholarships were eliminated. Abbott later said he was concerned that once the fund lost the money, it would not receive more funding at a later date.

Abbott said he felt there was "no malicious intent" on the part of the committee, "but there are many alternatives" to the $25,000 seed money concept. "What do we spend money on, buildings or students?" he asked.

All of the $25,000 scholarship money is used, according to Kevin McMahon who worked last year with the scholarship committee. It has been used as an incentive scholarship for incoming freshmen who apply in the areas of journalism, drama, debate, music and leadership and other academics. He said the committee awards $150 per semester for one year to freshmen who participate within the various department programs.

About 70 or 80 scholarships had been awarded last year, said McMahon. Minority student programs receives $3,100 for scholarships for minority students. "Any money left goes to the U of I SEND program", he said.

Minority student scholarships for black students are totally funded from the ASUI Bookstore Scholarship Fund, said Jerome Mayfield, program specialist from Minority Advisory Services. "We have nothing. We have zero," he said, referring to any other external funding for scholarships.

It has been proposed to take the $25,000 from the scholarship fund in the 1979-80 school year, confirmed Don Amos, business manager. The administration will have to go to the Board of Regents for approval of this measure. He said the proposal will probably be presented to the Regents at the January meeting.

New county library still a possibility

Moscow may still get a new public library building if the city can get a grant to help pay for construction, according to Tom Neal, City Library Board chairman.

The board has asked the Carnegie Foundation, as well as the other foundations, about grants to help pay for a new library. Neal told a University of Idaho journalism class last Thursday.

If the board receives a grant, and if the city council allows results of the November bond issue vote to stand, the balance of the library funding would come from the sale of revenue bonds in Moscow.

In the November election, the library bond passed with 76 per cent approval in Moscow. County voters gave the measure 52 per cent approval; passage required two-thirds approval from both.

Neal said that a grant would help, but added that he thought county residents should "put in their fair share

The first issue of Snapdragon includes poems from about twenty students, faculty, and community people; line drawings and photographs from local artists; and fiction.

Copies of Snapdragon are available from Bookpeople, the University Bookstore, and from the Humanities Library on the first floor of the University Library. Proceeds go towards publication of a spring issue.

That difficult age...legal schizophrenia

"This act is passed in the exercise of police power of the state. It is not designed to abridge the personal privilege of a responsible adult..."

Idaho Liquor Act

Idaho Code, Section 23-102

"Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States, who are eighteen years of age or older, to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any other state on account of age.

Section 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate action."

An eighteen year old in the state of Idaho experiences a legal schizophrenia in his citizen's rights. The 26th amendment to the United States Constitution classifies him as a citizen. But the Idaho liquor act has another name for him—minor.

While the U.S. Constitution states 18 as the voting age, the Idaho Code has set 19 as the legal age of alcohol consumption. Voting rights and the legal age are not necessarily in direct contradiction with each other. But both cases are evidence of age of majority.

The State of Idaho has several statutes dealing with drinking under age. Among these are:

—Idaho Code, section 23-949, which states "Any person under the age of nineteen (19) years who shall purchase, attempt to purchase, possess, or consume alcoholic liquor shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

—Idaho Code, Section 23-946, which requires every business selling alcohol to post a sign forbidding minors to enter under state law.

—Idaho 23-944, which allows persons under the age of 19 to enter some liquor businesses including:

A. A railroad club or observation car, a commercial airline, and restaurants.

B. Any establishment which partitions off its bar or tavern from the non-drinking areas. Minors must remain in the non-drinking areas.

C. Baseball parks, sports arenas, or fairgrounds.

—Idaho Code, Section 23-1024, which declares falsifying of legal identification to be a misdemeanor.

—Idaho Code, Section 23-1013, which imposes penalties to any adult who supplies minors with liquor —Idaho Code, Section 943A, which provides misdemeanor penalties for anyone who refuses to provide legal identification to a police officer while possessing alcohol or while on the premises of any business which sells and serves liquor and beer. This measure was passed by the last session of the legislature. State laws enforcement officials revealed a loophole in the law which did not impose a penalty for refusing to show ID. The officials said many minors had become aware of the loophole.

Many states including the three Pacific coastal states, have left the drinking age at 21. The majority of states, however, have brought the drinking age down to 18, in line with other adulthood rights and privileges.

Idaho saw fit to lower its drinking age—but axed an "18-year-old" drinking bill because of a fear of booze in the high schools.

That is a good practical reason. And if the 26th amendment had not been ratified, the action would have entirely sound. Unfortunately, that is not the case.

In the mad dash to ratify the amendment (and possibly obtain some votes in the process) the nation's lawmakers neglected to consider all its ramifications. That was the time to consider drinking ages. Not now.

But it appears certain that Idaho, and other states, will not lower the drinking age. As Idaho Attorney General Wayne Kidwell said, it will take a Supreme Court action to decide the matter.

It sound trite and it is a worn out phrase, but here it applies: It's a hell of a way to run a railroad.

Send in the Clones

Did you hear the one about the secretary who fell into the Xerox machine? He was just beside himself! (Old joke from editor's childhood)

The research in human genetics and cloning is indeed fascinating. The various quests into genetics seem fairly legitimate to me. If our new knowledge in this area is used with moderation and humanity, "genetic engineering" isn't a frightening concept at all. It's an extension of medical science, not a method to create a bizarre new collection of people.

Cloning, however, is more than a mere addition to existing science. It's a whole new game, and one with infinite possibilities.

Cloning could be great fun. I'd love to have myself cloned. With an entire army of me, at least some of us could get some sleep. We would also have more time to raise hell which would please us to no end.

Unfortunately, I doubt if "ordinary" people like myself would ever get a chance. Cloning is usually presented as some sort of opportunity to preserve forever the great minds of our time. Well, that's OK, but how many great minds are recognized in their own time? And, conversely, how many mediocre folk are thought to be hot stuff today? Whatever would we do with an even larger surplus of Farrah Fawcett Majors?

The Argonaut is curious. Who, if anyone, would you like to see cloned? Send us your entries, typed, 50 words or less, before noon, December 15. The victor of the Argonaut clone contest will receive several of whatever we decide to give out.

Now they're spraying weed

(ZNS) The national institute on drug abuse reports that government chemists have found residues of the powerful herbicide "paraquat" in samples of marijuana recently seized along the Mexican-U.S. border.

The herbicide is turning up in weed smuggled from Mexico as a result of an anti-marijuana spraying program sponsored by U.S. drug officials in Mexico.

The United States has assigned helicopter crews to Mexico to spray paraquat and other potent weed killers on drug crops. A potential health problem is being created, however, because marijuana containing residues of paraquat is apparently surviving the spraying, and then is being harvested for sale.

The drug abuse institute says that, in addition to testing samples of weed coming in from Mexico, the agency is spraying marijuana plants grown by the government in this country to determine the maximum levels of the pesticide that can be retained by a living marijuana plant.

In addition, says the institute, contaminated pot is being burned to see if paraquat remains in the smoke; and test animals are being subjected to the smoke to see if it has any adverse effects on them.

White House drug official Lee Dogolof insists there's no evidence yet that the paraquat-dope is a health hazard, adding "My main concern is not to be overly alarming to smokers."

While all of this is going on, High Times Magazine reports that the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration has just contacted the nation of Colombia about future plans to spray paraquat on drug fields in that country.

Wind Ensemble kicks off season

The U of I Wind Ensemble will open its 1977-78 season with a concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Administration Auditorium. Admission is free.

Works on the program include "Fantasia in G" by J.S. Bach; "Concerto for Piano and Wind Orchestra" by Igor Stravinsky; "Choose Something Like a Star" by Randall Thompson;

"Lincolnshire Posy" by Percy Grainger; "Valdres," a Norwegian march by Hansenn; and "Grand Serenade for an Awful Lot of Winds and Percussion" by P.D.Q. Bach.

The Thompson composition was originally written for chorus and has been scored for winds by Dan Bukvich, a graduate student in music composition.

Dr. Richard Neher, associate professor of music, will be piano soloist for the Stravinsky work, one of Stravinsky's first neo-classic pieces, written in 1924.

The wind ensemble has been selected to perform for the biennial convention of the Music Educators National Conference in Chicago in April of 1978.

Powell on TV

(ZNS) White House press secretary Jody Powell says he is currently debating whether to accept an offer to appear as guest host of the program "Saturday Night Live."

Powell says that the T.V. emcee job was offered to him by the N. B. C. producers of the program, and that he is inclined to accept it, since it would be in keeping with the administration's "anti-pomposity" efforts.

Powell told reporters: "If I decided to make an ass of myself on national television for an extended period of time rather than briefly, as it has been up to this point, I'll let you know."

Former President Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, guest-hosted the same show last year.

Chorus croons tunes

The University chorus and the Chamber Orchestra will perform two Christmas works at 8 p.m. Thursday, in the Administration Auditorium. Admission is free.

"Magnificat" by Luciano Berio and "Missa Sancti Nicolai" by Joseph Haydn make up the program for the concert.

The "Magnificat" was written in 1949 and reflects the music of Schonberg, Milhaud, Hindemith, Bartok and Webern, all composers whose works Berio had not been able to hear until the defeat of fascism in 1945 due to fascist "cultural politics," according to Harry Johansen, assistant professor of music. Johansen will direct the concert.

The words of Mary after the Annunciation, taken from Luke 1:46-55, are used as the text for the work. Soprano soloists are Carol Franklin and Karen Purtee.

"Missa Sancti Nicolai" was written for four soloists, mixed chorus and chamber orchestra. Soloists are Carol Franklin, soprano; Patricia Burns, alto; Michael Williamson, tenor; and Robert Kincaid, bass.

The composition was written in honor of Prince Nicholas Esterhazy.

Michener revisits Hawaii

James Michener returns to the scene of one of his greatest literary successes in "Hawaii Revisited." The hour-long documentary will be broadcast on KUID-12 Tuesday at 7 p.m. It will be repeated on Friday at 10:30 p.m. and Sunday at 4 p.m.

Offering a personal perspective of Hawaii, its colorful heritage and the varied inhabitants who peacefully co-exist there, Michener delineates what he terms "a unique evolving experiment, a fascinating and mysterious crucible of time, space, life and people."

For Michener, Hawaii is "unlike any other place in the world, a physical setting created by a remarkable and seemingly unrepeatable chain of events, which is intimately linked to human landscape."

Erupting from the ocean floor in a red hot explosion of molten rock, the 2,000-mile-long string of islands is the youngest and most remote geologic creation on the globe. By the time they were taking their final form, Michener notes, Stonehenge had already been in existence a thousand years, the Egyptians had built the pyramids and the Chinese were developing a complex written language.

Beginning with a dramatic re-creation of the islands' violent birth, "Hawaii Revisited" goes on to depict their evolution—from pagan paradise to whale oil capital to strategic military base to fiftieth State to magnetic Pacific tourist attraction.

Gymnasts lose meet to Spokane

Idaho gymnasts lost to Spokane Community College, 118.15 to 104.85, in the season opener Dec. 9 in Spokane.

The Idaho women took the first three places in the vault. Cindy Bidart was first with a 7.7, followed by Leslie Miller, 7.6, and Susan Hawk, 7.1. The team earned 29.85 points on the vault.

Kathy Bernard took fourth on the beam with 7.35 and Susan Williams took fifth with 7.1. The team scored 27.5 points in this event.

Jeannie Swanson placed fifth on the bars with 6.45 points.

Bernard also placed fifth in floor exercise with 6.8 points and the team earned 26.85 points.

In all-around competition Bidart took fourth with 23.6 points.

Next scheduled competition is Jan. 28 in Vancouver, B. C., against the University of British Columbia and Boise State.

Kibbie Dome closed over break

The Kibbie Dome will be closed Dec. 24 to Jan. 2, and during that time the track surface will undergo a major cleaning, said Edmund Chavez, Dome manager.

Hours will be 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Jan. 2-7, instead of 8 a.m. until 10 p.m., because most of the supervisors will still be on vacation, Chavez said.

Two games are scheduled during Christmas break. The Vandals will go against Northern Arizona Jan. 6 and Weber State Jan. 7. Both games start at 8 p.m. and students are admitted free.

trouncing Whitworth Dec. 6, but dropped their second game to Washington State University Dec. 10.

Idaho defeated the Whitworth women 95-74. The U of I women led 41-35 at halftime, and added another 54 points in the second half. Idaho had a 50 percent scoring average in the second half, making 23 of 46 attempts.

Terry Janusiewicz scored 22 points and Jean Chamberlin added 20 for Idaho. Chamberlain and Cathy Feely each had 16 rebounds, and Janusiewicz added 13.

Whitworth's Meredith Jung was high scorer for the game, with 23 points.

Other scorers for Idaho were Kathy Bell, 12 points; Feely, 11; Betty Fiandaca, nine; Tawneen Mountjoy and Mary Flomer, seven; Pat O'Conner, five and Kim Morine, two.

In the game against WSU in Pullman, Idaho fell 70-50.

Janusiewicz again led the U of I women with 13 points and eight rebounds.

"We played a tough, scrappy team in our opener against Whitworth," coach Bonnie Hulstrand said. "They have some great outside shooters, but our offense stayed with them and in the second half we shot 50 percent. The home crowd helped to really psych our players."

"In our loss to WSU, we were hit with a five-minute lapse and they pulled away," Hulstrand said. "Our defense looked strong, but we couldn't get the offensive rebound. We held their top scorers, however, and I was pleased to see that."

The women have a month-long break before their next game against Eastern Oregon State Jan. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the WHEB main gymnasium.

Statement claims Disney attracts unstable people

(ZNS) You've heard of an "environmental impact statement", but what about just a "mental impact statement"?

The mental health director of a Northern California county has prepared a report, which attempts to predict the psychological impact that a proposed Walt Disney resort would have on Nevada County inhabitants.

According to the county's findings, the one million visitors attracted to the Disney resort will include 10,000 schizophrenics; 4000 to 5000 manic depressives; and about 900 people attempting suicide, 100 of whom will be successful.

The report concludes that the resort project "may well be a disaster" for the county's mental services department.

Vandalsports

What was

Friday: Gymnastics, Idaho 104.85, Spokane Community College 118.15.

Saturday: Men's basketball, Idaho 86, Whitworth 76.

Swimming, Whitworth forfeit to Idaho

Women's basketball, Idaho 50, WSU 70.

Men's basketball, Idaho 61, Portland St. 64.

What's coming

Today: Men's basketball, Eastern Montana here, 8 p.m. in Dome.

Wednesday: Women's basketball, New South Wales here 8 p.m. in Dome.

Swimmers make it 4-0

Both the men's and women's swim teams took a forfeit victory Dec. 10 when Whitworth failed to show for a scheduled meet.

The next competition for both teams is a double dual meet against Eastern Washington and Highline from Tacoma. The meet is scheduled for Dec. 16 in Spokane.

"We will be swimming in a meter pool which adds 20 yards to every 200," men's coach Chet Hall said, "so it works on the swimmers mentally and physically. But we practiced hard right through the scheduled meet with Whitworth which we knew would be an easy match."

Women's coach John DeMeyer said, "We entered this meet so we could face Highline. This is the only chance we'll have to face them so we took it. They will give us some stiff competition, but I feel the women need it at this time to see where we stand in our area."

Both teams have 4-0 season marks for dual meets and a relay meet.

Idaho plays Eastern Montana

Following last Friday's 86-76 win over the Whitworth Pirates and Saturday's 66-61 loss to the Vikings from Portland State, Idaho basketball will see itself matched against the Yellowjackets from Eastern Montana College tonight at 8 p.m. in the Kibbie-ASUI Dome.

A tiny crowd of 400 saw the Vandals win their first this season last Friday. Idaho is now 1-4.

Sophomore guard Reed Jaussi lead the Vandals to victory by coming up with 25 points. A college career best for Jaussi.

Wayne McCalley was second with 15 points.

Whitworth's leader came up with 22 points before he was taken out. Saying that his player was "a little tired," coach Dave Manley pulled center John Hodge out with about five minutes left to go.

Idaho was in control most of the game, using either a man-to-man or a 1-3-1 zone, trapping the corner man. Idaho coach Jim Jarvis was particularly pleased with the latter.

Saturday was a different story.

Led by Freeman Williams' 24 points, Portland State led the Vandals most of the game until Idaho pulled within one point of PSU with one minute left. Idaho guard Bill Hessing hit long from the top of the key and the Vandals led for the first time in the ball game.

Half a minute later, PSU's Greg Slider was fouled and sank two free throws giving the Vikings the lead again. Teammate Chuck Smith added two more from the line wrapping it up with one second left.

Rodney Johnson played fine defense keeping Portland's Williams, last year's leading scorer in the nation, to only 16 points throughout three-quarters of the game. Williams managed to cut loose with 4 baskets in a row near the game's finish just when PSU needed him.

Idaho's Reed Jaussi makes a quick move and catches Portland's Bob Sisul off balance. The Vikings won Saturday's game 66-61.

Delta Tau's win swim championship

Stroking their way to victory, Delta Tau Delta's squad of five swimmers took top honors in intramural swimming with team competition ending Dec. 1.

The Delt's 186 team points was first out of 24 participating clubs. The off-campus Town Men's Association (TMA 3's) were second with 158 points, barely squeezing past the Pi Kaps, who had 157. Fourth were the Delta Chi's with 149.

The only record broken was during diving competition as TMA 3's Riordan earned a total of 145.65.

Five after athletic director slot

Applications have been rolling in and officials are in the process of selecting who will be the next athletic director at Idaho.

Dr. Leon Green has been at that spot for four years and will retire Feb. 1.

According to informed sources, the field has been narrowed down to five people. Their names have not been released.

Roland Byers, chairman of the search committee, said they'll meet Friday. He would not disclose the place or time.

The meeting's not open to the public.

Not wanting to pin himself down to a specific date, Byers said he would like to select someone before Feb. 1.

"We'll look and look until we find the one we want," he said. Seven people are expected to be interviewed in person.

That person will have a bachelor's degree and some administrative experience in order to be chosen, said Byers. He said that the "practical ability to do the job" was important, but that the final decision had to come from the President's office.

Subject to approval by Dr. Gibb and the Board of Regents, the new director will probably get paid in the neighborhood of $30-$35 thousand. According to the Idahonian, Byers refused to disclose the salary, but said, "It's a good salary; compared to other athletic directors in the Big Sky, it's equitable to them."

Byers added that more than two-thirds of the candidates were considered serious prospects by the committee.

The committee's selection is subject to approval by President Richard Gibb.

"Of course I'm happy to look at all their recommendations," he said, "but I'll make the final decision. He added that the Board of Regents then approves the position, as they do in every personnel change.

"I'm looking first for total integrity," said Gibb. "Secondly I want someone who can inspire the university community and all over the state; someone who can be a good sales person. Thirdly, I want someone who wants to win."
