Executive director Roy explains ISA problems

by Jim Borden

In a recent memo to student body presidents across the state, Idaho Student Association Executive Director Will Roy detailed what he thinks are the ISA's biggest problems, and offered a reorganization model for the group.

The ISA and the student body presidents or their representatives will consider the organization's problems and possible solutions to those problems in a meeting in Pocatello April 6-7.

The problems, as Roy sees them are:

—A one-way input mechanism whereby information flows out to member schools, but not in to ISA staff.

—Lack of clarity in purpose and direction of the ISA.

—Part-time commitment to the ISA by its staff (i.e. the Executive Board and ISA lobbyists).

—Poor communication from the ISA office to the member associations.

—Lack of programs, other than lobbying.

In the Memo, Roy proposes a restructuring of the ISA which would allow for a flow of information to and from the organization's office.

He suggests a more clear definition of the executive director's duties and functions.

Roy asserts that as proposed, the ISA would be back in the campuses it is supposed to serve. His model "would give the ISA the much-needed grassroots that are necessary in any association," according to the memo.

ASUI senator Rob Mitchell is planning on attending the April meeting. He said although the ASUI is no longer a member, he hopes "we can iron out the problems and keep the ISA running."

Mitchell believes the "concept" of the ISA is "outstanding." He feels it is possible for all member schools to receive the benefits per dollar spent the organization can provide.

He noted that the Idaho legislature needs the students of the state lobbying as a whole.

Mitchell also pointed out that when the senate voted itself out of the organization, "we didn't say we didn't want to belong to a similar type of organization."

Depending on the attendance of April's meeting, Mitchell said, "we'll know the future of the ISA," whether it will sink or swim.

Women confer on law

The specifics and legislation for women and their finances, battered wives, and historical and current legal practices involving women are special topics to be discussed in the "Women and Law: Perspectives and Policy" conference scheduled for April 28-29 on the WSU campus.

"The conference was developed for every woman," said Joan Wykoff, project coordinator. A gulf between women and legal access has become increasingly visible during the last decade of social change. The conference will present lectures and workshops reevaluating traditions and values to work with women's problems of today, she said.

Speakers for the conference include Helen Burgland, vice president of the Lincoln Mutual Savings Bank in Spokane and Karen Fox, credit and insurance specialist with the Washington State Human Rights Commission.

The conference is funded in part by a $14,000 grant from the Washington Commission for the Humanities, an agency of the National Endowment for the Humanities through the Women Studies Program at WSU. Workshops will feature citizenship and alien rights, due process and the woman defendant, domestic relations, physical abuse, and employee rights.

Day care is available for conference participants, said Wykoff. Further information on registration is available from Wykoff, Johnson Tower 320, WSU, Pullman, Wash., 99164, (509) 335-7005.

Ensemble performs at music fest

U of I's Wind Ensemble is one of four university wind ensembles from throughout the nation selected to perform at the Music Educators National Conference national convention in April.

The U of I group was chosen after a screening committee listened to tape recorded concerts. Robert Spevacek, director of the ensemble, said Dr. Robert Klotman of Indiana University, president of the national MENC organization, made the final selection.

Dr. William Billingsley professor and head of the School of Music, said the other three wind ensembles performing at the convention are New England Conservatory, Northwestern University and Kent State University. He said U of I's selection is "quite an honor."

He said the group was invited to the MENC national convention in Atlantic City two years ago but was unable to make arrangements to attend, Billingsley said. "We are really pleased to have this second invitation," he said.

No other college groups are attending from the West, according to Billingsley. However, two of the three Western groups attending are from Idaho. The other Idaho group is the Borah High School Jazz Choir, Boise, directed by Vern Swain. That group was a winner in this year's U of I Jazz Festival.

Spevacek said the 43-member wind ensemble is the "top performing group in the U of I band department." Its members are selected by audition.

"The Wind Ensemble gives the students an opportunity to perform literature not played by the larger groups, either because of the difficulty of the composition or because the work was not written for full band," Spevacek said.

The Wind Ensemble will perform at 12:15 p.m. April 12, at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, the site of the convention. Spevacek said some 10,000 musicians and music educators are expected to attend the national meeting.

The concert program will be selected from the ensemble repertoire. The repertoire includes two original compositions "The Starry Night" by Billingsley and Symphony No. 1 by Daniel Bukvich, U of I Teaching Assistant. Billingsley uses a variety of techniques, textures and tonal colors to capture the tranquility and tension of Vincent Van Gogh's 1889 painting of the same name. Bukvich's composition, subtitled "In Memoriam, Dresden, Germany 1945," is intended to reflect the horror of the fire bombing of the city by Allied Forces.

Poll presents student wishes

Students requested Student Union Building expansion for "more recreation, selective entertainment improvements and a center to bide time between classes" in a use poll, according to Jim Van Leuven, who conducted the $3,000 survey.

The Outdoor Activity Center was praised by the majority of students answering the survey, but many wanted it expanded and given more support from the student union, Van Leuven said in a SUB Board meeting. Organized recreation, such as intramural sports, and recreational facilities, such as the dome, were also listed as popular, but too limited.

Students want more entertainment facilities, too. Van Leuven explained, "The nature of the criticism is there is no place in the SUB for small informal meetings without an advance reservation. And there is no place for a craft center or a photo studio."

Off-campus students particularly requested a place to "sit and have some coffee while they study or talk to friends." Van Leuven said several students responding to the survey "felt uncomfortable buying a 15-cent cup of coffee during the noon rush, and then tying up a cafeteria booth while they talked to friends for an hour." Students said such an area for drinking coffee would provide study space with a more casual atmosphere than the library.

But not all expansion suggested on the survey was favored. Van Leuven said of 12 proposed stores to be attached to the SUB, students wanted only a bigger bookstore, a post office, and a bank with 24-hour check cashing.

Another area where students responded with little support was increased space for ASUI activities. Van Leuven maintained this is because only 2 percent of the 380 students surveyed are directly involved in ASUI activities or committees.

The survey was sponsored by the SUB Board, the SUB manager and the SUB Facility Ad Hoc Committee because of changes in the student body composition since the present SUB was built. Van Leuven said, "When this SUB was planned, there were not so many juniors, seniors and graduates and most of them lived on campus."

ASUI Roundup

Resolutions considered

Four resolutions concerning the proposed fee increase will be on the agenda at the ASUI Senate meeting Wednesday, at 7 p.m. in the Chiefs Room of the SUB.

Senate Resolutions 14 and 16 state that the senate supports the proposed $2 increase for intramurals, the $5 per credit increase for part-time graduate students, and the $10 increase for full-time graduate students. Resolutions 15 and 17 oppose the proposed $2 athletic fee increase and the $10 student facilities increase. The senate will also consider appointments to the ASUI Golf Course Board and Election Board.

ASUI files required

Students borrowing files from the ASUI office are now required to return them within one day, announced ASUI President Bob Harding.

The files could previously be checked out with no time limit. According to Harding, the policy change was instituted because files had been kept out for weeks at a time, preventing their use by other students. Students who fail to return files on time are now subject to loss of the privilege of using the files, said Harding.

$30,000 bill

The ASUI Senate, by an 8-1 vote, approved the England Dan and John Ford Coley concert contract.

The senate met in a special session Sunday evening, but a quorum did not attend the meeting. Therefore, ASUI Vice President Gerry Wright conducted a telephone vote Monday morning.

According to Entertainment Department manager Scott Baillie, the concert will cost about $30,000, and 4,892 tickets will have to be sold for the U of I to break even on the show.

Prof co-authors psychology book

A second edition of a psychology text, co-authored by the head of the U of I Department of Psychology and used by 400 American colleges, is now available.

"An Introduction to Experimental Design in Psychology: A Case Approach," by Homer H. Johnson and Robert L. Solso, has just been printed in its newly revised second edition version. Dr. Johnson is professor of psychology and head of the department of Loyola University, Chicago.

Dr. Solso, currently professor of psychology and department head, has taught at Loyola, where he was director of the experimental division, and has taught and done post-doctoral work at Stanford University.

He is the recipient of three grants from the National Institute of Mental Health and has published articles in professional journals, including the "Journal of Experimental Psychology," the "American Journal of Psychology," "American Psychologist" and "Behavioral Research Methods and Instrumentation."

The book offers 12 fully reprinted experiments for student analysis, seven of which are new. Experimental briefs, added to illustrate such concepts as independent and dependent variables, control groups and random selection, have also been added.

There is an instructor's manual which includes practical instructions on the use of the book, answers to questions posed in the text and a file of test items. The book is a Harper and Row publication.

Weaving class offered by expert

Threading heddles, slaying reeds, and other weaving secrets will be unravelled in a Continuing Education course in basic weaving techniques.

Beginning and intermediate weaving, taught by Sharon Kiilsgaard, will cover basic weaving, setting up a loom, tapestry techniques and other information needed for simple projects. Two-harness looms may be rented from Kiilsgaard at $18 for the seven-session course.

Registration fee for the class is $20. Sessions will be 7-10 p.m. each Monday, April 3 - May 15, in room 204 of the Home Economics Building. Interested persons should pre-register with the office of Continuing Education, telephone 885-6486.

Kiilsgaard is a member of Palouse Hills Weavers Guild and the Inland Empire Weavers Guild, Spokane. She has taught continuing education weaving classes for several semesters. She also taught weaving classes in Spokane for eight years.

Media students' meeting set

The U of I Chapter of the Society for Professional Journalists will meet Friday at noon in the Sawtooth Room of the SUB. Among topics to be discussed will be re-organization of the group, and upcoming conferences for journalists.

The meeting is opened to all students, members and non-members, interested in professional journalism in all aspects. Both print media and electronic media persons are welcome.

The chapter has been somewhat inactive over the last year, and the business part of the meeting will be discussion of needs and goals for the organization.

Information will be given out about three upcoming conferences of interest to journalists. The first conference will be held Saturday, April 1, in Spokane at Gonzaga University. It is being billed as the "Presidential Press Secretaries" Forum, and guests will include press secretaries for the last five U.S. presidents.

Also to be discussed will be the upcoming Region X SPJ Conference, scheduled for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, April 21-23. At that time, information concerning costs, rides, and agenda will be passed out. There will also be information about the Murrow Symposium at WSU.

Lawrence death self-inflicted coroner says

An investigation into the March 15 shooting death of Dr. John A. Lawrence, chairman of the agricultural education department, has found that the gun shots were self-inflicted.

Lawrence died from gun shot wounds to the chest after he was found in his Toyota pickup in the Student Union Building parking lot.

According to Moscow Police Captain Robert Means, the shots were apparently self-inflicted. Whether the shooting was an accident or suicide could not be definitely proven, said Dr. E. L. Boas, Latah County coroner.

Open house honors lab

The Laboratory of Anthropology will hold a formal open house from 3-10 p.m. April 5 in the Faculty Office Complex (FOC) West.

The open house is part of the 31st annual Northwest Anthropological Conference. All conference attendees and the area public are invited.

Washington State University and U of I are Conference hosts.

The laboratory, directed by Roderick Sprague, is now a decade old. It is the research, service and teaching support facility for anthropology within the Department of Sociology/Anthropology. It also serves as the Northern Idaho Regional Archaeological Center (NIRAC) as designated by the Idaho State Historic Preservation Officer.

As the NIRAC, the laboratory is responsible for maintaining all archaeological site inventory data and state-held archaeological collections derived from Idaho County north.

The laboratory is also the support facility for scholarly archaeological research projects and for archaeological survey and evaluation services to government and private institutions and individuals.

Students and staff members will be available to answer questions about the laboratory and its current projects.

Class discusses society

An accelerated one-credit Philosophy course (for non-majors), Philosophy 204-02, Values and Change in Society, will begin on March 28 and continue for the remainder of the semester. The class meets at 11 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday in UCC 302.

The course will be taught by three professors representing the fields of psychology, philosophy, and Sociology/Anthropology. From March 28 to April 13, Dr. H. Robert Otness, Professor Emeritus, Department of Psychology will discuss the changes in attitudes and practices during the past century relative to the areas of mental deficiency and related disorders.

Dr. Francis Seaman, Professor of Philosophy and department chairman, will discuss morals-values and change in society, April 18-27.

Dr. Alfred Bowers, Professor Emeritus, Anthropology/Sociology will discuss the problems of society as they change from simple to complex, May 2-11.

Groups fast for hungry

U of I students have again contributed money for the world's hungry persons by periodic Lenten fasting.

Currently, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Pi Beta Phi and Alpha Phi have brought contributions to the Campus Christian Center.

Living groups which have participated in the program and have not turned in the money saved can still do so. Individual contributions will be accepted for several days.

Pay up and shut up!

You've been hearing a lot about the administration's proposed $14 permanent fee increase. Your fees (most of you, that is) would be $234 each semester, not including an ASUI fee increase, at least until they were raised again.

You, of course, have no say in whether the fees will go up. They are raised for your own good, whether you like it or not and without your input. I thought you might like to know where the $14 you almost assuredly will pay in August and January and forever, will go in the coming years.

First is the $10 student facilities (see? Just for you) increase. This is expected to generate $120,000 in extra revenue (that's $10 times 6,000 students times two semesters. Get it?) The money is earmarked for (and these figures are from a memo to financial vice-president Sherm Carter from business manager Don Amos) improving and expanding general recreational facilities in Memorial Gym, resurfacing tennis courts, improvements at the Kibbie Dome, including: a retaining wall and grass seeding, landscaping, new fencing, new ticket booths, additional outside lighting, canvas floor covering, spot lights, portable stage and a portable iceskating facility. Much of this money would also go to establish a repair and replacement reserve for the Dome and another for the swimming center. More of it is for an additional outdoor iceskating facility.

Then, $2 of the $14 has been designated for intramurals. This money is solely to eliminate salaries and other support of intramurals from the General Education budget. The director of the intramurals programs is now being paid out of the physical education instructional budget, but will be paid from the intramural budget in the future, for example.

Finally, and you knew this was coming, the last $2 of the $14 is for Men's Intercollegiate Athletics. This would jack the students' share of the bill for this already-overfunded program to $25 each semester ($300,000 whopping dollars a year). But wait. That's on top of the $25,000 per year increase recommended by the Governor, and in addition to whatever else they're getting from the state, private donors, scholarships, and who knows what else. The memorandum, however, does not define where the money will go, it only says that additional funding is needed. Bull.

The Regents will almost assuredly approve the $14 increase at their April meeting in Pocatello. There's no sense in all of us crying about it, or writing the Regents or even storming the administration building. It's inevitable, so forget it. Just pay it and shut up.

in a pig's eye...

"An effective administration is always trying to reduce student flexibility, it makes their job a lot easier." A perennial U of I senior, quoted in the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

Recent events have triggered discussions about the "declining influence" of U of I students in campus affairs: university governance, fiscal policy, and most importantly, student input on activities for which student funds pay most, if not all, the costs.

The situation is not so much declining student influence, which like the tide ebbs and flows with the moon. It is, however, ascending power by university administrators, who have been taking advantage of the lack of continuity and expertise among student leaders. Highly paid administrators, who get rewarded for staying around, have the advantage over students, who must pay for the privilege.

A good example of this ascendancy is the relationship between the Activity Center Board the the Hill in the board's attempts to keep some handle on its duty: to formulate and recommend policies for the Kibbie Dome to the university president.

The board made an auspicious and effective beginning in 1975, when it was granted direct access to the president, and specific duties to carry out. Immediately, various vice-presidents and administrators did their best to undermine and erode student authority and voice. This was knowing full well that the student leaders would not have approved a fee increase for the roof unless they had some say in the facility.

In the summer of 1976, the vice presidents scored a victory of sorts when the Regents approved a new university flow-chart (something so loved in administrative bureaucracies) which placed another layer between the student and the president.

However, within two years of its formation, most of the board's duties had settled down to routine overview of the dome manager's functions. This exempts, of course, the annual spat over how much time the football team could have for inside spring practice. At the same time, the ACB served as a starting point for more than a few ASUI officials, who went on to other areas of student involvement, such as the senate, the Argonaut, and even KUOI.

Now even this routine approval function, much less room for initiative has been undermined. Currently, the Hill is pressing the ACB to come out with a student version of a "no container policy" for the Kibbie Dome. This presumably will add legitimacy to the administration's silly and ineffectual attempts to pretend to the Regents that beverages of any sort can be prohibited from the dome.

The ACB apparently is not quite as gullible as perhaps the Hill would like. It is currently drawing up several alternatives, ranging from the present "safe container" policy to a no-container policy, which will be presented to the students for their comments and feedback. The hearing will be held next week.

It will be interesting to see how the students, currently paying anywhere from $50 to $60 dollars a semester toward the $20 million stadium, feel about such changes.

The ACB has indicated that if the students don't go for a change the board will make no recommendation to the Hill. In other words, they could say, "You folks want to ban containers. The students we represent don't. Good luck."

However, the ACB was ignored by the administration concerning its feeling on the proposed $10 per semester facilities fee increase. One of the recipients of the new-found money would be the Kibbie Dome. As yet, the board has not been approached officially about its feelings on the increase, and more surprisingly, if the fee goes past the Regents, how the students might wish to spend the money.

The new university administration has shown that it is unable to convince the legislature that it needs the additional money. So, it looks for an easy way to avoid difficult decisions such as cutting back or eliminating expensive programs, and goes to the students for a fee increase.

Several weeks ago the president of the Regents said that the board is most reluctant to raise student fees unless the educational aspect of the institution would suffer.

Is the current proposal designed to rescue academics or bail out expensive auxiliary enterprises such as the Kibbie Dome and intercollegiate athletics?

Students, who in the main regard the U of I as a place of learning, are unable to devote all their energy to watching moves by the administration. But when a need arises, or a cause presents itself, they seem to come together. Let us hope they will do so again.

Semester grades available

Students who are enrolled in courses numbered 100-499 should pick up mid-term grade reports at the Registrar's Office in the Administration Building Annex. They should carefully check the data to verify correct registration in classes. Discrepancies should be brought to the immediate attention of the Registrar's Office to avoid problems and the possible need to petition changes.

Biblical paper doses students

Faith Fellowship, a Moscow non-denominational Christian church, is distributing one thousand copies of a weekly Christian newspaper, Today's Student, on campus.

Grads must interview

Students with National Direct Student Loans who are graduating or who do not intend to return to the U of I must schedule an exit interview with the University.

To schedule an interview, come to the Student Loan Office, room 211 of the Administration Annex, or call 885-6760.

Interviews are required by federal regulations, and provide holders of the loans with information about how the loans are to be repaid, cancelled or deferred.

"The reason we're doing it is to give students a regular dose or exposure to biblical Christianity," said Doug Wilson, lay minister for Faith Fellowship.

Faith Fellowship gets the newspaper from Ames, Iowa, and each Wednesday places copies in the SUB, Wallace Complex, Theophilus Tower, and the Administration Building.

Faith Fellowship meets Sundays in Green's Body and Paint Shop.

Writing test set

Writing proficiency tests for transfer students will be at 7 p.m. Thursday in Janssen Engineering Building 104.

Students may sign up and pick up topic sheets in the Department of English office, room 200 of the Faculty Office Complex.

Letters

Student station

Editor,
 Recently while traveling through the state of Idaho, I had the pleasure of staying in Moscow for a few days. During this time I had the opportunity to read your paper, the Argonaut (which by the way is a fine paper) and learn of the controversy concerning the student station KUOI. During my stay in Moscow, I was able to listen to KUOI for a number of days and found it more enjoyable and entertaining than any station here in the Bay area. This is not to knock the stations here, as we have some great ones. We, too, used to have a student station at the university here, but due to administrative pressure, lack of adequate funds, and student apathy, the administration took it over. What was once fine entertainment and a student voice soon became mundane and administrative hype, which by the way is one of the least listened to stations in the Bay area. Although it seemed there was some student concern, student radio can never get too much support. SUPPORT YOUR STATION! Don't let it happen to you!! Take it from one who knows, and lost. Good luck.

Student control

Editor,
 The Activity Center Board is the student board that is responsible for student input and for protecting student interests in the day to day workings of the Kibbie-ASUI Activity Center. The ACB feels that it is necessary to clear up several issues concerning the activity center.
 Lately, we (i.e., the facility, the student board, and the manager) have been the target of a lot of flack. It has been delivered in the form of esoteric and suspicion-evoking references to "loss of student control" or more tragically, the administration's snatching of the same right from under our noses.
 We would like to point out to Mike Mundt, Tom LaPointe, and Darrell Coleman that these unspecified and general accusations do nothing more than reinforce already distorted beliefs about the relationship between the administration and our facility.
 Specifically, in response to Mr. Mundt's charge that students can use the building only when the administration doesn't "happen to have anything happening inside which is more important," we say, "horsefeathers!" Actually, the administration 'per se' requests the Activity Center two days for registration and one day for commencement each year, plus an occasional inauguration.

 Maybe it's athletics to which Mike is referring. If that's the case, we'd like to point out that: 1) varsity teams (including men's and women's track and tennis, baseball, and until recently basketball) practice from 3-6 p.m. 5 days a week. We feel that this is the most efficient scheduling possible as it squeezes a conceivable 9-12 hours of practice time into three hours. You see, that leaves from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. for physical education classes and open recreation, and from 6-10 p.m. free and clear for open recreation. According to a recent questionnaire that we circulated to a random sampling of students, more than 75 percent of those questioned indicated that the time from 6-10 p.m. was most convenient for them. Sometimes, though, there are concerts, sports events, special attractions (like the Harlem Globetrotters and the circus), plus intramural and co-rec sports scheduled that take priority over open recreation, but which allow us to fulfill the multiple-use concept of the building.
 2) As far as student control goes, the ACB is alive and well and meeting weekly to set policies and to approve requests for use by a wide variety of groups (for example, individual Greek and independent living groups, and student organizations such as the Native American Student Association.
 3) The manager's job is to administer the policies which we set, as well as to supervise and organize the building's largely student staff to efficiently carry out both mundane and special events. As far as our board is concerned, Ed Chavez is doing an outstanding job. He is conscientious about minimizing scheduling infringements on open recreation, and he is receptive to and cooperates with the board's decisions.
 In conclusion, the board feels that not only is student input and control being maintained, but that we're actually gaining a little ground. Here are just a few of the things we've done recently:
 A) In conjunction with the Art and Architecture dept. we've funded and implemented a signage and graphics project. I won't go into details here, but take a closer look next time you're up there—it's pretty impressive.

 B) We've added a Family Hour in our open recreation scheduling to allow students, faculty, and staff to bring their children into the center from 6-7 p.m.
 C) There are now plenty of bike racks to which you can lock your bike or tie your dog.
 D) And finally, music has returned to the dome via an FM receiver and the sound system.
 We hope that this has enlightened you some about the Activity Center and that it may have dispelled some of the fear that student power has been usurped—at least in this area.

Visiting poet to speak

Keith Wilson, resident poet at New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, will read from his work at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 7, at the U of I Faculty Office Complex Lounge.
 Probably the best known of Wilson's dozen or so books is "Graves Registry" (Grove Press, 1969). His most recent volume, "While Dancing Feet Shatter the Earth," was published earlier this year by the Utah State University Press. Four other collections are slated for publication later this year.

King Tut tour is planned

Viewing Egyptian art from the time of King Tut will be the goal of a Continuing Education bus trip to Seattle this summer.
 Four participants will leave Moscow 8 a.m., July 31, and travel by chartered bus to Seattle. They will stay in University of Washington dormitory guest rooms that night.
 A, specially scheduled viewing has been arranged for 9:15 a.m. Aug. 1 at the Seattle Center exhibit. Ample time has been allowed for seeing the exhibit and the center before bus departure time at 3 p.m.
 The trip, open to Moscow area residents, will cost about $35. That fee includes bus transportation, a group rate admission ticket and double occupancy overnight accommodations. Single rooms are available at a $2 additional charge.
 Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis with a limit of 38 people. All children must be accompanied by an adult.

 Susan Burcaw, Continuing Education director, said, "The price is low due to dormitory use and the cooperation of the University of Washington, along with the donation of time by Joyce Thompson in arranging for the bus."
 Burcaw said that if the July 31 trip time is inconvenient, Travel by Thompson has a similar trip arranged for Aug. 8 and 9 and there is still some space available.
 Anyone interested in the trip should contact the Office of Continuing Education, 885-6486, as soon as possible.
 If enough people are interested, a pre-session on "what to look for at the exhibit" may be conducted sometime in July, Burcaw said. If such a session is arranged, the time, place and date will be announced later.

'Wildlife bowl' in Texas

The U of I "Wildlife Bowl" team will compete in the Western Students Wildlife Conclave Wednesday through Friday at Texas A and M University.
 The Wildlife Bowl is modeled after the televised College Bowl, and is part of annual regional wildlife conclaves.

 "Anything goes," according to Dr. Wini Kessler, team advisor and assistant professor of wildlife. Questions deal with trivia, concepts, or identification of bones, plants and animal species, Kessler said.

Dome board to discuss alcohol policy

Administration of ASUI-Kibbie Dome alcohol policy will be the topic of a 7 p.m. open meeting April 6 in the SUB Spalding Room.
 The Activity Center Board is conducting the meeting to obtain student input about how the new alcohol policy will be administered.

Women open spring tennis season

The U of I women's tennis season opens tomorrow as the team travels to Eastern Washington State University.

"The team is probably the strongest we have ever had. We should be in the top three of the small colleges in this region," said Coach Bonnie Hultstrand.

"Although Eastern will have an advantage, their courts are faster than ours in the dome", Hultstrand expects Idaho to adjust well. "The girls are excited and have been working hard all year," she added.

"Idaho's schedule for this season is realistic; we will be playing approximately three matches a week and the competition will be mixed. There won't be as many large schools on the schedule," said Hultstrand.

"Last year's record was 9-7. However, we were also in the large school division. Last year was also the first full schedule and the first for tournaments," she said. "We should have a good start for first year competition; we have added depth without losing experience," Hultstrand added.

"I feel we are equivalent to Washington State University this year. They are looking to us as a challenge," she said.

"The team has six strong singles and three doubles and the depth is good as long as we don't suffer injuries," she said.

Road trip ends on winning note for men

The U of I tennis team wrapped up an 11-day road trip into the Southwest defeating Big Sky rival Weber State College in Ogden. The win put the Vandals at 5-3 for the trip and 6-3 on the season.

A tournament at the University of Nevada/Reno started off the trip for the Idaho team. Three victories and one loss at the Reno tournament started the trip off on the right foot.

A 5-4 defeat to Reno was the Vandals only loss of the tournament. However, the Vandals also handed Reno a loss by the same score. Boise State University and Sonoma State both dropped matches to the Vandals. BSU lost 6-3 and Sonoma State fell 8-1.

Both number-one player, Jim DeRoeth, and number-six, Jim Gerson, were undefeated at the tournament.

Kladnik named as trainer

Kenneth Kladnik has been named head athletic trainer for the U of I, according to Bill Belknap, athletic director.

For the past year Kladnik served as head trainer at Whitworth College in Spokane. He also served as a physical education instructor at Whitworth. Prior to joining the Whitworth staff he was head trainer at Willamette University in Salem, Ore. for two years.

Kladnik, 27, received his bachelor's degree from Central Washington University in 1973 and his master's degree in education from the University of Arizona in 1975.

Spring proves busy; Intramurals in full swing

Intramurals are going full swing after spring break with today the deadline for men's paddleball and horseshoes entries, the opening of the men's softball season and the beginning of co-rec volleyball playoffs.

Paddleball and horseshoes competition will start next Monday while the weight lifting tournament will start April 10, with entries due April 4.

Women's tennis will go for another week, while bowling will continue for another three weeks. The entry deadline for women's softball is today and games are scheduled to begin April 4.

Winners of the co-rec tennis tournament were Dick Coleman and Julie McGee, while TMA 78 won the racquetball championship.

Spring arrives and seems to draw everyone outside and into the sports scene. Whether competitively or just for fun, as was Moscow seems to be on the mo- intramural competition u-

Runners plan April 1 trek

The U of I-Moscow Road Runners Club will have its first and hopefully annual April's Fools Run Saturday. The event, a 12-mile road run through the Palouse hills, will start at the Moscow Junior High School parking lot at 10 a.m.

It is a loop course with some hills, but predominately long sections of flats. Tee shirts will be awarded to all finishers.

Interested persons should call Ronald Klimko at 882-4711 or write Rob Pearson, 221 N. Adams, Moscow.

Vandals on road for doubleheader

A double header faces the Vandal baseball squad this afternoon as it travels to Eastern Washington University.

It will be the second time the two teams have met in a doubleheader this season. Friday, the U of I took both games here winning 14-13 and 9-2.

Friday's games came at the end of a nine-game campaign over spring break. The two wins over EWU brought the Vandals to a 4-5 record over the break and 6-7 overall.

March 17-19 the U of I team competed in the Banana Belt Baseball Tournament in Lewiston. Idaho dropped its opening game of the tourney to Brigham Young University, 6-1. Central Washington University provided the Vandals with their first win of the tournament, 7-6.

Lewis-Clark State College avenged an early season loss to Idaho 15-3 and the Vandals came back to defeat CWU a second time in the tournament, 10-4. A 13-7 loss to LCSC and a 12-5 loss to Washington State University wrapped up Banana Belt play for Idaho.

"Up until now we were at a point where I thought we would be in our win-loss record," Coach John Smith said. "I was disappointed in our defense the last five games though."

Against Eastern, Smith plans to start Mike Hamilton on the mound in the first game and Brian Stokes in the second.

"I hope they can go all the way," Smith said. He was pleased with the Vandals hitting in the first two games against EWU but was disappointed in the defense as Idaho committed seven errors in the two games.

Only home track meet opens season for female thinclads

The U of I women's track team will have its only home meet tomorrow. The meet is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. in the ASU-Kibbie Dome.

Admission will be free and teams from Eastern Washington University, North Idaho College, Washington State University, Idaho State University, Flathead Valley Community College and Spokane Falls Community College will compete.

Coach JoDean Moore is looking forward to this meet as a good beginning to the season. There are more women out for track than ever before and she feels they are of a higher caliber than in the past. She believes these two factors will allow the team to be more competitive at a higher level.

Moore expects to see a lot of improvement as the season progresses.

Patty O'Connor, Penny Rice, Debbie Danaher and Maliya Abele make up a mile relay team that Moore hopes will qualify for regional competition.

Moore is happy with her distance runners. Jeanne Nuxoll and Cindy Partridge both ran their best times in a recent indoor meet. Nuxoll runs the mile while Partridge runs both the mile and the two mile.

Semi-tough dissects latest fads

"You have sexual problems?"
"No."
"You are resisting. All American men have sexual problems."

Is pro football really like this? Maybe not, but America is...

In a montage of short scenes, Semi-tough takes some of the stuffing out of several new American past-times.

Amid the most gloriously vulgar interior decorating I have ever seen, the characters and screen-writer Walter Bernstein dissect such straw men as est, pyramid power, intellectualism vs. athletes, Rolfing, athletes in advertisements, and standard boy-girl relationships.

Burt Reynolds is charming as the Gene Autry-loving Billy Clyde. He tells lies well, falls asleep at strategic moments, and simply communicates, whether he's talking or not. Take it from one who never liked him before. He's great.

convincingly moronic as the recent BEAT convert; he epitomizes that recent American phenomenon, the Instant Metamorphosis: go away for a weekend to the Moonie Ranch in Mendicino and come back a new person; go through an est brainwashing seminar and your friends won't know you...if you want to see somebody like this get theirs, see Semi-tough.

Jill Clayburgh, as the girl who lives with both men and sleeps with neither, is excellent. She can also be surprisingly pretty at times. Her only problem seems to be the Case of the Vanishing Accent. She draws at the beginning and the end of the film—but what happens in between?

Semi-tough will be at the Nu Art through April 8, 7 and 9 p.m.

Tryouts start Wednesday

Tryouts for two upcoming theater arts department studio productions will be March 29 and 30 at noon and 5 p.m. in the U-Hut Studio Theatre.

Scripts are available at the theatre arts department office.

"Purgatory" by William Butler Yeats calls for three actors and one actress. Ray Fanning will direct.

"Dandelion Wine" by Ray Bradbury calls for four actors and two actresses. Joan Vaux will direct.

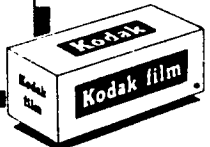

Both plays will be performed the last weekend in April.

Brothers wage war in animated Wizards

Animation has great as-yet-unrealized potential as an artform, and Ralph Bakshi, who did Heavy Traffic, Coonskin, and Fritz the Cat may be the hottest new innovator in the field.

Though Wizards has some very pretty effects, it is not the film we have all been waiting for.

Bakshi may not be guilty of the Hanna-Barbarianism of using only 8 frames a second or a looped background, although most of the too-prolonged war scenes look like replays. And admittedly Bakshi does not have the resources or the budget of Disney Studios. Still, there is too much narration and not enough animation in this film.

The story is not too hot either. Although Wizards purports to be about that cliché, basic conflict between good and evil, the ending negates any positive message the film might have.

However, if you've been longing for some exposure to elves, fairies, a robot or two, and some wizards, go see Wizards anyway. It may give you an idea of what Bakshi's Lord of the Rings will be like when it comes out three years from now.

Wizards will be at the Micro today and Wednesday at 7:30 and 9:45 p.m.

Members of the evil army of Blackwolf march to war in Wizards, an animated fantasy adventure in the future, playing today and Wednesday at 7:30 and 9:45 p.m. at the Micro.

Rock group Firefall plays in Kibbie Dome tonight

ASUI entertainment anticipates losing over $8,000 on tonight's Firefall concert, according to Scott Baillie, entertainment manager.

Tight sandwiching between the recent Heart concert and the upcoming England Dan-John Ford Coley show has contributed to the anticipated Firefall flop. The concert's proximity to spring break has also caused problems.

Ticket sales tallied at about 500 Monday afternoon, Baillie said. Entertainment would need about 4000 to break even. Baillie said he hopes the England Dan-John Ford Coley concert will make up the expected Firefall loss.

Firefall, a rock and roll group combining former members of the Burrito Brothers, Spirit, Zephyr and the Byrds, will perform with special guest Bryan Bowers at 8 p.m. in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome.

Known for such songs as "Just Remember I Love You" and "You Are The Woman," Firefall is composed of two writer/vocalist/guitarists, Rick Roberts and Larry Burnett; lead guitarist Jock Bartley; bass guitarist Mark Andes; drummer Michael Clarke; and Local retailers display goods

Over 50 Moscow area merchants will display their goods at the third annual home and recreation show March 31-April 2 in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome.

Cars, boats, furniture, sporting goods, stereo equipment and other home and recreation goods will be on display noon - 10 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

Edmond M. Chavez, dome manager said, "This is the third show and the community has really taken to it. It is a good opportunity to see a lot of goods all at once."

David Muse on keyboards and horns.

Publicity material for the band calls its music "branded...with earthy explosions, crystalline harmonies and precise quality control. Melodic and uniquely expressive, Firefall interweaves the spaces between hard-driving aggressiveness and gentle serenity."

FLASH! Because of the low ticket sales for the Firefall concert, ASUI president Bob Harding has decided that the concert will be FREE to anybody that shows up at the door.

Presidential grove: Teddy's tree was first

This Colorado Blue Spruce, planted by President Teddy Roosevelt in 1911 at the U of I, is still healthy and growing on the Administration lawn. Photo by Rosemary Hammer.

by Andrew Brundage

Theodore Roosevelt started it all during his historic visit to Moscow and the U of I on April 9, 1911.

Before delivering a speech while perched upon a platform of Idaho wheat sacks, the ex-president "honored a little tree by planting it on the low part of the campus just west of the tennis courts while the university students gave an Idaho yell" according to Class of '11 Argonaut reporter Arthur P. Beckner.

The Colorado Blue Spruce Roosevelt "honored" was the beginning of the "presidential grove" and an ongoing U of I tradition.

Not to be outdone by the former Rough Rider, President William Howard

Taft journeyed to the university six months later. Following a speech detailing an arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain, "President Taft immediately left for the place of planting, performed the necessary ceremony, and returned again to his automobile," leaving a budding Port Orford Cedar in his wake according to the Oct. 10, 1911 edition of the Argonaut.

Tree planting in the presidential grove apparently fell out of favor with presidents following Taft. The next two plantings in the area across from the Administration building's east side were performed by vice-presidents. Thomas R. Marshall, vice president under Woodrow Wilson, planted a Red Oak in 1918. Herbert Hoover's vice president, Charles C. Curtis, planted an Engelmann Spruce in 1932.

Eleanor Roosevelt, speaking at the U of I "under the auspices of William E. Borah Foundation for the Outlawry of War,...turned over a couple of spades of turf for number five of the presidential grove" according to an observant Argonaut reporter in March, 1938. Number five was a Douglas Fir.

In March of 1977, a Koster Blue Spruce, purchased by the Campus Democrats was planted by Senator Frank Church. Church was attending a two-day symposium at the University of Idaho which included speeches on wilderness policy and environmental pollution.

U of I senior wins Army ROTC award

James R. Oates has been honored with the George C. Marshall ROTC award for the University of Idaho 1977-78 academic year.

The award, being given this year for the first time, goes to the outstanding senior in Army Reserve Officer Training Corps programs at each of 280 participating colleges and universities. The award is given by the George C. Marshall Research Foundation in conjunction with the U.S. Army.

Oates, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Oates, Caldwell, is a business management major and will be commissioned a Regular Army second lieutenant in the Armor Branch following graduation May 20. He will attend the Armor Office Basic Course at Ft. Knox, Ky., before reporting to his initial duty station.

As Marshall ROTC award winner, he will attend the ROTC Award Conference on U.S. National security issues at Lexington, Va., April 20-22.

Winners will also receive a certificate from the Marshall Foundation and the biography of Gen. Marshall by Dr. Forrest C. Pogue, director of the Eisenhower Institute, the Smithsonian Institution.

Oates, who has served as cadet battalion commander and junior company commander, has completed army airborne training.
