

Church's resignation sought in petition drive

by Marty Trillhaase

Copyright The Idaho Argonaut, 1978

Angry at Sen. Frank Church's support of the controversial Panama Canal treaties, an Idaho Falls organization is seeking his resignation through a petition drive, the Argonaut has learned.

"The Letterwriting Campaign to Save Our Canal in Panama" intends to release in mid-April signed petitions requesting Church step down from office.

Church, traveling in Spain this week, was unavailable for comment. But it is considered highly unlikely he will step down or change his position on the treaties.

The organization is charging Church with misrepresenting the wishes of Idaho voters. Church is the only member of Idaho's congressional delegation supporting the treaties.

Those treaties, if ratified, would turn over control of the canal to Panama by the year 2000. The Senate has ratified the first of the treaties. That treaty guarantees the neutrality of the canal. The second would give Panama authority over it.

The chairman of the organization, Joel Miller Jr., of Idaho Falls, said the drive had accumulated 3,500 signatures by early this week. He added the movement had not planned to go public until 10,000 signatures were obtained. Miller said that goal should be met in two weeks.

The petition says:

"Dear Senator Church,

We the citizens of Idaho consider the continued U.S. sovereignty of our canal in Panama vital to the economy and defense of our nation. We have entrusted you with the sacred honor to represent the people of Idaho. If you are not willing to represent the people of Idaho we formally request as citizens that you resign from the office of Senator."

Miller stressed that the petition is not aimed at recalling Church. Recall is the process whereby an elected official is removed from office by a special election.

The Idaho State Constitution provides for such a process. But both the Idaho Secretary of State's office and the Attorney General's office noted the constitutional precedent set against recall of U. S. Representatives and Senators.

"It's not within state jurisdiction," Assistant Attorney General John Sutton said. "Once those guys are in, it's tough to get them out," he added.

Sutton noted a 1967 attempt to recall Church was immediately dismissed by the Idaho Supreme Court.

Technically, Congress alone can remove individual members. The U.S. Constitution provides no method for recall.

But that hasn't stopped recall movements in at least five states. Those movements, against U.S. Senators who voted for the first treaty, are reportedly forming in Arizona, Louisiana, Montana, Tennessee, and Wisconsin. Similar drives were begun in Oklahoma and Colorado, but were dropped when backers learned of the constitutional impediment.

Miller acknowledged he would support a recall-Church movement if it were feasible. But he added, "I think we could get every signature in the State of Idaho and still not get a recall." He said the petition's purpose is to "establish a mandate that he resign."

Media theorist McLuhan to appear as Pound lecturer

Marshall McLuhan, the man who coined the phrase "the medium is the message," will appear at the U of I April 25 to deliver the 1978 Pound Lecture in the Humanities.

McLuhan is well-known for his theories of the development of different mediums of communication. He feels that the invention of the moveable type in the fifteenth century caused man to depend more on his eyes rather than his ears as his principal sensory organ.

The switch from oral to written communication created a self-centeredness in man and a fragmentation in society according to McLuhan.

McLuhan theorizes that the advent of electronic communication has placed man in a "global village" environment.

McLuhan will speak on the "The Decline of Classical Education in America" at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets for the lecture will be available for $1 at the door and at the Student Union Information Desk, Bookpeople of Moscow and the University Library.

A film "This is Marshall McLuhan—the Medium is the Message" will be shown continuously on April 24 beginning at 7 p.m. in the Borah Theatre. Admission to the film is free.

Regents eye dorm, fee increases

Money matters, including increases in student fees and housing rates, will be the major issues facing the Board of Regents next week.

Up for regent approval are a $14 per semester fee increase and an increase in housing rates ranging from 8.8 percent to 9.4 percent.

The regents' meeting is scheduled for next Thursday and Friday in Pocatello.

The proposed $14 fee increase would, if approved, raise the total uniform student fee to $234 per semester. It breaks down as follows:

—$10 for student facilities. Revenue generated by this increase would pay for facility repair and maintenance. Among the areas earmarked for the funds would be recreational equipment, auxiliary facilities, remodeling projects related to recreational or auxiliary functions, campus improvement and campus beautification.

—$2 for the intramural sports program. The revenue generated here would pay salaries currently financed through the general education budget. The goal is to free dollars for academics.

—$2 for men's intercollegiate athletics.

Students enrolling for the summer session will also pay a $2 increase. This would, if approved, raise the total fee to $132. The increase includes 50 cents for accident insurance, $1 for student facilities, and 50 cents for summer session activities.

Graduate students may also face a fee increase. If approved, full time graduate students would pay a $10 increase over the current $50 per semester tuition currently paid. Part time graduate students would pay an additional $5 bringing the total up to $30 per credit hour for residents, and $35 per hour for non-residents.

Those increases do not include an increase in ASUI fees. The ASUI requested a permanent $6 fee increase per semester last fall. The regents, after a series of decisions, opted for a one semester only $3 increase. ASUI may re-submit its $6 fee increase request later this year.

On the housing end students face proposed increases of roughly $100 per year.

The increases are combined in a room and board package. Rent for a general double room would cost $500 a year. On top of that, students with an "A" plan (10 meals a week) would pay $736. The total increase comes to $106.

A "B" plan (14 meals a week) would cost $840 a year. The total room and board package would cost $110 more next year.

Students opting for the "C" plan (19 meals a week) would pay $904 next year. The increase for room and board comes to $114.

Single rooms would command an additional $250. Rooms with private phones would cost another $40.

Increases also face non-dormitory housing. Steel Hall would pay $424 per year if the $59 increase is approved. Targhee Hall would face a $59 increase, bringing the total rate up to $414. Single student apartments may command an $825 per year price tag if the $105 increase is approved.

Residence halls must also be self-supporting by July 1. Currently the halls receive subsidies from the education budget amounting to $40,000.

Students apply graphics to Kibbie Dome

Last spring eight art and architecture students designed banners, a logo, graphics and signs for the ASUI-Kibbie Dome. This year fifteen-odd students and Jim Englehardt, assistant professor of art and project coordinator, are putting the designs into effect.

"They've been painting warm orange and brown on the concrete buttresses and on this wide expanse of cold and ugly gray cement," said Kristene Weiss, the dome manager's secretary. "They're painting up the concession booths, making them look like ice-cream bars and stuff."

The orange-yellow-brown color scheme was chosen for warmth, to bring up the light, and to reflect the earth colors of the Palouse area, said Englehardt.

Judges Leo Ames, Dennis Hedges and Englehardt chose the dome logo in a campus-wide competition sponsored by the ASUI last spring. Kris Larsen, one of the eight students in the design group, designed the logo, which includes representations of a football, a tennis ball, a basketball and the dome.

Englehardt said the logo could also represent a stage. "The logo is just the beginning of what we're trying to do in establishing the Kibbie Activity Center as more than just an athletic field," he said.

Students are doing the work for credit and minimal wages; they have $13,000 to work with, $500 of which was donated to the project by the parents' association.

Church resignation

Miller said the organization is not anti-Church as much as anti-treaty. He added several members, including himself, are or have been Democrats.

Miller said his organization has representatives in several eastern Idaho communities including Aberdeen, Rigby, Shelley, and Pocatello.

Miller said he will not expand the petition drive to northern Idaho. "We intend to let others do that," he said.

No such petitions had surfaced in the Boise area, but one leader of an anti-treaty group there said the potential for such a movement exists. Betty Hellman, chairwoman of the "Sink or Swim Committee," said her organization is not involved with any such action.

The "Sink or Swim Committee" has sponsored anti-treaty advertisements in the Boise media.

"The Sink or Swim Committee" is undecided but if the calls of support keep coming in as they have been from around the state, we will most likely unite with eastern Idaho's effort in asking Frank Church to resign," Hellman said.

She added the canal treaty issue has aroused much opposition to Church. "I wouldn't doubt one bit that it wouldn't snowball," Hellman said.

Church's north Idaho representative, Larry LaRocco, said Church is well aware of the unpopularity of the treaties in Idaho. But he added opinion polls taken in Idaho in January show increased support for them since October.

LaRocco noted Church addressed the Senate on this issue March 2. "I can only reply that I have always believed it to be my duty, as a senator, to uphold the public interest as I honestly perceive it," Church said at the time.

"To those who warn me that my support of these treaties will cost me my job, I have responded that my vote is a matter of conscience, and I must live with my conscience much longer than with my job," he added.

Senate considers resolutions on KUOI, fee increases

Resolutions concerning KUOI-FM and the proposed fee increase were the hot topics on the agenda at the ASUI senate meeting Wednesday night.

A resolution submitted by senator Rob Mitchell requests that the Board of Regents amend its recommendations concerning the management of KUOI-FM to say that student advisory boards will be responsible for the selection and review of performance of the station manager. The institutional liaison would then appoint the manager chosen by the students, and would have the power to remove the manager for violation of the Board of Regents' policies, FCC policies, or upon recommendation of the student advisory boards. The resolution was passed and will be sent to the Regents.

Resolutions were passed expressing opposition to the proposed $2 fee increase for men's intercollegiate athletics, and the $10 student facilities increase. Also passed was a resolution in support of a $2 fee increase for intramurals. A resolution in support of the $5 per credit part-time graduate student increase and the $10 full-time graduate student increase was tabled.

A resolution was submitted by President Bob Harding, stating that the senate supports keeping the period during which a student may drop a course up to the last four weeks of the semester, but limiting the amount of credits during eight semesters here to 20. The resolution passed and will be sent to the Faculty Council.

In other business, the senate approved the appointments of Thom Kincheloe, Election Board Chairman, Ken Crocker, Golf Course Board; and Pat White, Juntura Committee. Also approved were the expenditure of $250 to help with the Renaissance Fair, scheduled for later this spring, and $27.20 for the installation of an AM-FM radio in the new ASUI car, an American Motors Concord Wagon.

Opinion

Alternative government

Students at Lewis-Clark State College recently took a step backwards in student government. But in a day and age when student government is burdened with political mumbo-jumbo and student representation is questionable, backwards may be better.

The "open meeting" form of government is based on one of the oldest forms of government known to the United States, the town meeting. Student government at LCSC has decided it needs only two elected officials, the student body president and vice president. With a little help from five specialized committees, students will represent their own particular viewpoints on the issues.

Without the aid of elected senators, the LCSC student will vote on issues facing student government as he or she sees fit. No one could then complain about whether or not he or she were being ably represented because the only people representing the student viewpoint would be the students themselves.

It sounds great. Imagine bills and legislation which could be introduced and approved in one meeting. Visualize, if you can, increased student awareness of campus issues. If the individual student did not care enough to participate, things affecting his or her student lifestyle would go directly to hell.

Senators, believe it or not, are students also and it is not always possible for them to represent the student body as they or the students believe they could be represented. How many U of I students, living off-campus have their views honestly represented?

Nor are those senators always qualified to represent students in areas which confront them. How many student leaders know anything about entertainment, communications, public relations and fiscal management?

Could an open meeting type of student government work here at the U of I? Probably not. Idaho is a much bigger campus with many problems, ranging from apathy to just controlling the departments which currently exist under the jurisdiction of the ASUI. Any attempt at a simplification of the U of I student government and hierarchy would be next to impossible. That doesn't mean the idea shouldn't be explored thoroughly.

But what of the advantages? The $40 per month paid 13 ASUI senators could be saved and put to use in other departments. The social trappings of being a senator would be destroyed because the position would no longer exist. Students who are truly concerned with student government might be able to accomplish something.

Legislation might even move a little faster if the bureaucratic paperwork could be partially done away with. Specialized committees might be able to deal with problems more effectively and redistribute the work load saving time and money. The ASUI budget might get finished on time.

Who knows, maybe backwards is better.

ron bush

When the ASUI Golf Course Board decided recently to recommend turning the responsibility for operation of the golf course over entirely to the administration, I was duly sympathetic. I'm sure the members of the board had grown tired of playing Punch and Judy in a puppet show where the administration pulled the strings.

The idea of ending the apparently unimportant role of students in operating the golf course is strangely appealing to me. I was reminded of what a friend had recommended to me a short time ago, only half in jest. He suggested that all the operations of the ASUI, departments, programs, etc., be ended. At the time I considered the idea laughable but now I'm not so sure. It is possible that such a step could force people to recognize the important role the ASUI plays at the U of I.

Consider the possible effects of abolishing an associated students' organization. Forget financing for student clubs and organizations. Eliminate such diverse events as homecoming, blood drives, inexpensive movies, parents weekend, and recreational trips organized by the Outdoor Programs department.

Students would no longer see art exhibits in the SUB, hear friendly music at relaxing coffeehouses, or be able to see national figures and personalities at Issues and Forums programs.

We would all have to read textbooks instead of the Argonaut and without a Gem of the Mountains, a mirror would be the only place for students to see their faces. KUOI-FM could abandon its struggle against outside influence from faculty liaisons.

The list is virtually endless. I don't want to sound apologetic, however. Not everyone uses ASUI services and most students probably aren't concerned about whether the ASUI is benefiting them. But the end result of eliminating the ASUI would be catastrophic to the university. Ask yourself if you would choose to attend a university which provided no services or programs for students. Many students would transfer and fewer and fewer freshmen would choose Idaho.

golf course turnover

Administrators and students alike would soon realize that the ASUI is an essential part of the university, not only as a part of student life but also as a valuable recruiting tool. In most areas of our student government and departments the ASUI excels. If the university tried to fill the void left by an absent ASUI it would soon become obvious that the cost of achieving the same results would be much more than the approximately $20 each student pays now. It is hard to find non-students to work for free, while many students in the ASUI do so willingly.

So perhaps the ASUI golf course would serve as a sacrifice to make a point. Without a student board watchdogging the course operations, the administration would have to pass that responsibility to someone on the hill. And that would take someone's time. The important difference, of course, is that on the hill, time costs money. Probably quite a lot of it.

Apparently, the golf course board, at least, is tired of being the cheap labor on the university plantation.

Letters
Entertainment

Editor,

Well, so the ASUI entertainment committee put on a free concert for the students of the U of I. It sounds great doesn't it? But is it so? This supposedly free concert only cost the students of the U of I about $18,000. That's right, $18,000. Now some of you may remember reading in Tuesday's Arg that Scott Baillie, entertainment chairman, was quoted as saying the concert would only lose over $8,000. Well, I guess $18,000 is over $8,000.

But how did the entertainment committee manage to lose $18,000 on two and a half hours of music? The main problem seems to be one of incompetency.

Why was one concert, Leo Kottke, scheduled right before spring break and then another one, Firefall, scheduled right after break. On top of this, WSU was on break during the Firefall concert. I wouldn't call this competent planning. And where was the promotion for Firefall? Wasn't the lack of promotion the main reason only 500 tickets had been sold by the morning of the concert?

But the problems go deeper than this. Did you know most of the stage security was provided by the residents of Gault Hall? Did you know Scott Baillie, who is entertainment committee chairman, is also president of Gault Hall? Did you know that part of the $18,000 went to buy a keg of beer for those people from Gault Hall? That's right, those people in yellow shirts telling you not to smoke were back stage drinking beer provided for with your money. Let's put that another way. ASUI money was used to buy beer which was drunk backstage at the ASUI-Kibbie Dome. This is in direct violation of Moscow City ordinances and the Board of Regents' alcohol policy.

Now one would think that after blowing $18,000, Mr. Baillie might not be given another chance. But the ASUI in its supreme wisdom has decided to give the entertainment committee over $30,000 for the next concert. This brings up the possibility of losing almost $50,000 in two concerts.

I would like to think that Mr. Baillie might have solved some of the problems that caused him to lose over $18,000 on Firefall, but I'm afraid not. The next concert, England Dan and John Ford Coley, is scheduled for only a week and a half from now, and still there is no promotion out on it. But Mr. Baillie hopes to make up the Firefall loss on the next one. In other words, he intends to take in around $48,000 in ticket sales. Does Scott really think that he can sell something like 8,000 tickets for $6 each when only 2-3000 people came to a free concert? Or are we going to lose the whole $30,000?

There is a need for concerts at the U of I, but should they be run in such a way that the president of Gault Hall, who also happens to be the entertainment committee chairman, buys beer for residents of Gault Hall with ASUI student funds?

And then, to top this off, the beer is drunk in the Dome where the rest of us are forbidden to drink. I don't think this is how we want the entertainment committee run. Steve Risken are Italians. Beyond being mildly baffled, I am seriously concerned over what the future holds for us constant readers of the Argonaut. Everyone knows that the average Mundt cartoon adventure lasts 13 months, or approximately 3.2 Argonaut editors. Nothing happens, but they last until Mundt gets another idea.

If Tuesday's strip is indeed the beginning of such a long series, then both Italians and dinner music are in for some tough times. Does anyone know where on campus Mundt is employed, enabling him to hang around and make trouble?

Abstinence

Editor, There has been a lot of talk from the opponents and proponents of abortion. Those favoring abortion say it is a woman's right to control her body. Those against abortion say that from the moment of conception life begins, and abortion is willful murder. How will this controversy be resolved?

When pondering this question, consider the following simple argument: If xx and xy never come near each other, no one will ever have to worry about what to do with "it", or him, or her.

Everyone is working at this problem from the wrong end! Why not stop a problem before it starts? Couples could try the new and exciting practice of refraining from the sexual act unless, positively, both desired a baby. (Incidentally, the odds favoring successful prevention of conception would not be 98 percent or 99 percent, they would be 100 per cent.)

It seems likely that if this plan were faithfully followed, there would never be another argument concerning abortion, and we could turn our attention elsewhere. Think of it; for one pleasure sacrificed, an uproar silenced.

Off-campus

Editor, The last off-campus students' meeting was a success. There was enthusiasm for getting involved in student affairs. This Friday, a second meeting is planned to be held at Johnnie's Cafe again at 3 p.m.

The ASUI Senators who represent the off-campus group would like to explain to the off-campus students what is happening with KUOI, and about the petition on KUOI. Other matters to be discussed will include ASUI fee increase, the Landlord/Tenant Act, the Moscow Annual Renaissance Fair, etc.

Though I won't be at this particular meeting because of a prior commitment, the other Senators will be there. It is very important that all concerned be there.

Letter policy

The Argonaut will accept open letters to the editor until noon on the days prior to publication. Letters must be signed in ink by the author, but names may be withheld upon request. In the interest of allowing space for as many letters as is possible, we request that letters not exceed 500 words. Letters will be edited for spelling and grammar but not for content. The Argonaut reserves the right to refuse to run letters containing offensive or vulgar language, or libelous material.

Alcohol survey prepared

The Office of Student Advisory Services at the U of I has prepared a questionnaire concerning alcohol use here, according to Bruce Pitman, Director of Resident Student Programs.

Pitman said the purpose of the survey is to determine attitudes toward drinking and the patterns of drinking among U of I students.

He said 2,000 students have been selected at random to answer the questionnaire, and "all responses are 100 percent confidential."

Board granted APA exemption

After years of conflict over the issue, and several compromise bills, Gov. John Evans has signed a measure granting the State Board of Education alternative methods of complying with the Administrative Procedures Act.

The bill becomes effective July 1.

The bill, Senate Bill 1558, establishes legislative review of state agencies through interim sub-committees. The committee may review and voice objection to new rules and policy changes made by state agencies.

Then under existing law, the legislature may, by resolution, override the regulations.

S.B. 1558 was amended to include the bulk of a measure sponsored by the State Board of Education.

The governor's signature stops a year long battle between the board, the legislature and students concerning the board's plan to modify its requirements for compliance with the APA.

The APA sets standards for state agencies' enacting new policies. The law calls for advance notice publication and open hearings.

The APA exempts agencies from conducting the hearings on "internal management" areas. The Board had maintained the bulk of its concerns were "internal management."

But on at least one occasion, the Idaho courts disagreed. A Boise judge ruled the board's uniform alcohol policy for the four state colleges and universities invalid because it did not follow APA guidelines.

That ruling occurred last May. The board followed by enacting an emergency alcohol policy last fall. That decision was in compliance with the APA.

The board then opted to ask for a legislative clarification on the "internal management" issue. It submitted a bill to the lawmakers in January providing including such items as student fees and tuition under the "internal management" heading.

That bill, Senate Bill 1352, was rejected by the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

But the board had already reached a compromise measure when S.B. 1352 went down to defeat. S.B. 1435, which was endorsed by several organizations including the Idaho Student Association, passed the senate, 29-6.

The House State Affairs Committee killed the measure in the Idaho House of Representatives. But another measure dealing with the APA, S.B. 1558, was amended to include much of the previous bill.

The new bill provides the board will be considered in compliance with the APA if:

—notice is given of any impending decision in the official agenda of a regularly scheduled board meeting.

—notice of intended rules and policy changes are referred to the germane interim sub-committees created by S.B. 1558.

—the intended action is discussed at the meeting, but final action is postponed for a following meeting.

—a brief description of the intended action is mailed to anyone upon written request at least 15 days before the scheduled date of final action.

—a brief description of the intended action is printed in advance in a newspaper of general circulation.

—upon request, the board furnishes a concise statement explaining the reasons for its decision on a proposal.

Conference play opens for Vandals

Two doubleheaders face the U of I baseball team this weekend as it opens Nor-Pac conference play. Portland State will meet the Vandals on Guy Wicks field at 1 p.m. tomorrow and Portland University will be on the Idaho diamond noon Sunday. "Portland State has a real impressive record," Idaho Coach John Smith said.

Portland has compiled a 13-2 record against opponents like the University of Oregon, Oregon State and the University of Washington.

"It looks like they will be as good or better than last year and they were really good last year," Smith said. Along with an impressive win-loss record, astounding pitching statistics follow the Oregon team.

Doug Brown and Mike Hamilton are scheduled to take on pitching duties in Saturday's games. A sore shoulder has plagued number one pitcher Tim Martin.

"I hope he's ready this weekend," Smith said. "It puts us in a bind because our pitching is not that deep."

"We're going to have to play well in every phase," he added. "Portland State is as good as we've played this year."

Smith said he hasn't heard anything about PU.

"Last year they were pretty good. They were a young team," he said. He anticipates a team similar to last year's.

On the mound for the Vandals will be Brian Stokes and Scott Morse.

Idaho, 6-7 on the season, has batters hitting .300 or above. Dennis Phillips is leading the team with a .333 average followed by Bill Stokes at .324 and Terry Hiller at .323. Ken Druffel is hitting at .302 and Kelly Davidson .300.

Brown is leading the pitching staff in win-loss records at 3-1. Martin has pitched 23.1 innings and has a 4.29 earned run average.

Two week layoff helpful to U of I tennis team

One week of a two week layoff remains for the U of I tennis team before it faces competition again after a long road trip over spring break.

"The layoff should be really helpful," Coach Rod Leonard said. It will allow the team to rest and recover from the effects of the trip along with injuries and illness that plagued the team, he said.

Number three player Rob Knox missed the trip because of pneumonia while Joe Hignight played the entire trip on a sprained ankle. Mike Maffey was brought up to fill Knox's place on the trip but is currently out with the flu.

"I was really pleased with the players," Leonard said of the trip that showed the Vandals coming off with a 5-3 record. "We did better than I expected to do with a healthy team," he added, saying that he had hoped to come off the trip 5-0.

Next weekend the Vandals will play co-host along with Washington State University to the Inland Empire Championships. Matches will be at the U of I and WSU. Idaho will play all its matches on home courts as will WSU except when the two teams meet and the Cougars will come to Moscow.

"We have a good shot at the tournament. I feel we're the favorites to win it," Leonard said. Along with the U of I and WSU, Central Washington University, Eastern Washington University and Montana State University will be at the tournament.

"As for the rest of the season I will be surprised if we lose any other matches," Leonard said. "No guarantee, of course, but that's what I feel."

"Our toughest competition is behind us. It's pretty nice to come out 6-3. Two of our three losses came to top ten (in the nation) teams," he added.

Eastern plays host to Idaho

The U of I women's track team will meet Eastern Washington University at Pasco tomorrow in a non-scoring meet. No scores are given; each athlete just tries to improve on her previous best.

"We just look for improvement, and the competition really helps," Coach JoDean Moore said.

Moore was "very pleased" with her team's performance in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome Wednesday against EWU, Washington State, North Idaho College and Flathead Valley Community College.

Cindy Partridge, Jeanna Nuxoll and Patty O'Connor were double placers for Idaho. Partridge placed fourth in the 1500-meter run and second in the 3000-meter run while Nuxoll placed fifth in the 1500 and fourth in the 3000. O'Connor placed third in the 300-meter hurdles, running them for the first time, and second in the high jump.

Moore called O'Connor's performance in the hurdles "a very pleasant surprise."

The team placed fourth behind EWU, WSU and NIC. Moore was "extremely happy" with the entire squad's performance.

Home opener for women

The women's tennis team will play the University of Montana today at 3 p.m. behind the Women's Health Education Building.

Tomorrow morning at 9 the U of M and Whitman will play. At 2 p.m. the Vandals will meet Whitman.

Idaho lost its season opener 5-4 Wednesday afternoon to Eastern Washington University.

"We suffered from first match jitters and played some excellent ball some of the time and Eastern was tougher than we expected. Eastern added two new transfers to their number one and three positions," Coach Bonnie Hultstrand said.

Tournament upcoming for Dusty Lentils

The Dusty Lentils women's rugby team travels to Spokane this weekend for the St. Paddy's Day Rugby Tournament with Gonzaga University.

Gonzaga does not have a women's rugby team and asked if the Lentils would help play host for a women's tournament.

The Lentils will meet three teams from the Northwest. The Lentils have previously encountered two of the teams: Montana's Better Side and Western Washington State University. The Lentils will also meet Elliot Bay of Washington. Caldwell may send a team from the College of Idaho.

The women's tournament is in conjunction with Gonzaga's annual men's tournament. The Lentils are being co-host for only the women's segment.

Top ranked Blues beckoned to St. Paddy's games

Blue Mountain Rugby Club is one of 16 teams expected to play this weekend at Spokane's Gonzaga University in the St. Paddy's Day Rugby Tournament.

The tournament will be single elimination but each team will play four games. Winners will advance and losers will continue to play for fun.

Last year Blue Mountain placed fifth in a 16-team field.

Blue Mountain is currently number one in the Columbia River Rugby Union.

Triangular meet awaits Vandals

Vandal track will be competing in Spokane this weekend to a triangular meet with Spokane Community College, Washington State University and Oregon State University.

"What's really going to hurt us this weekend is the fact that we have three athletes out because of injuries and all three could have placed for us in the meet," Coach Mike Keller said.

"Missing them will cost us a lot of points," Keller said. "We don't expect to win a meet against schools like WSU and Oregon State, but are concerned only with trying to come up with good marks. We just don't have the team depth those two schools have."

Golf team debuts at invitational

Poor scheduling foils Firefall's success

by N. K. Hoffman

Several factors contributed to the low ticket sales for the Firefall concert, according to Scott Baillie, ASUI entertainment department head.

The concert was originally scheduled for earlier in March, but "Firefall management changed the time and Heart came into the picture," said Baillie. "The scheduling fell wrong and we were tied to a contract."

Having the concert two days after the spring break didn't help either. "We had super promotion, but we were advertising to a non-existent audience," Baillie said.

"We got the tickets two days before the break," said Gerry Wright, ASUI vice-president. Approximately 500 tickets were sold before Bob Harding, ASUI president, made the decision to open the concert for free instead of cancelling it.

The ASUI lost roughly $15,000 on Firefall, according to David Schulz, ASUI Financial Manager. "The money will have to come out of the general reserve—that's the only place there's any money to come out of," said Schulz.

The attendance at the free concert rivalled that of the Heart concert, according to Baillie. But the financial failure of the concert has raised some questions about the England Dan and John Ford Coley concert scheduled for April 9.

Harding called a special senate meeting March 26 to vote on the England Dan and John Ford Coley concert contract, but was unable to get a quorum. So Gerry Wright held phone vote at 8 a.m., March 27. The contract passed with an 8-1 vote; four senators were out of town.

"A phone vote was a poor way to get the Senate's opinion, especially when there was a several-page contract being discussed," said Senator Greg Switzer, who also did not vote. "I don't know how I would have voted then, before I saw how much money we were losing on Firefall, but right now, for sure I'd say no."

Baillie hopes that some of the money lost on Firefall will be recouped with the $30,000 England Dan and John Ford Coley concert and the also upcoming Bob Hope show, scheduled for April 16 at 3 p.m. in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome.

Firefall red hot for entire concert

by Kathy Barnard

Firefall and Bryan Bowers gave a million dollar performance Tuesday night under the Dome, even if admission was free.

Bowers and his autoharps opened the show with some good down home, foot stompin', hand clappin' tunes that, at first, seemed a little out of place. After songs like The Dogs Had A Party and My Get up and Go Got Up and Went, however, the audience shifted its attention, not to mention its hands and feet, to Bowers' Virginia hillbilly style.

Firefall came on shortly after 9 p.m. The fact that no one had to buy tickets to see them didn't seem to hamper their performance. They entered with, maintained, and left with an almost contagious energy.

The most incredible thing about Firefall was the wide spectrum of music they covered, and the ease with which they shifted from style to style. They moved from the haunting softness of Strange Ways to the hardest of hard rock in Mexico professionally and with little effort.

The variety of Firefall's music reflects the variety of personalities and talents within the group itself.

Firefall's Rick Roberts and Mark Andes blended voices several times during Tuesday's concert. The group followed two writer/vocalist/guitarists in the group, went from the lightness of a Leo Sayers to the roughness of a Rod Stewart and added his own style to boot.

Larry Burnett, the other writer/vocalist/guitarist, added a mellow touch with a smooth, full voice.

Lead guitarist Jock Bartley (the cute one with the hat) was the "entertainer" in the group and made many a groupie swoon with his numerous treks around the stage.

In contrast, bass guitarist Mark Andes and drummer Michael Clarke were quiet, but good.

David Muse, on keyboards and horns was the frosting on the proverbial cake. His solo contributions on flute, saxophone and harmonica were just enough to pull the whole sound together.

The crowd, which numbered near 4,000, seemed to agree. Although there was a certain lack of enthusiasm in the audience, teeny boppers and adults alike brought the group back for two encore numbers. They played their hit song You are the Woman and closed with Sold on You.

When Bartley yelled "The price is right" during the concert he was dead wrong. Firefall in concert is well worth paying for.

Travolta's dancing saves flick

by N.K. Hoffman

Saturday Night Fever is a movie that can't seem to make up its mind. Should it be an accurate portrayal of the almost mindless existence led by a gang of Brooklyn teenagers? Or should it moralize?

The movie is by turns compelling and brutal and occasionally both. Sometimes, it's boring.

During the dance scenes, however, it's hypnotically fascinating. Strong chinned and weak eyed, John Travolta dances with the contained energy of a panther. He moves as if a hot fury were just under his surface and he were its master.

The flashing lights of the 2001 Disco wrap him in the only environment he seems to belong in. All the daylight scenes in the film are washed out, as if they weren't real.

The film's basic weakness is its plot. Characters act out of character. The ending is ridiculous! There is a kind of weak hearkening back to Rebel Without a Cause. And these little morals keep popping up when you least expect them.

Saturday Night Fever will play at the Kenworthy at 7 and 9:10 p.m. until April 11.

Among the hundreds of components on the market, as in any other manufactured products, there are winners and (unfortunately) some real losers. One of the really valuable services we perform for our customers is to critically evaluate each available component. The losers never make it to our listening rooms!

So, when you shop at STEREOCRAFT, you won't see all the gear in the world. But you will see the best! Whether you buy a single item or an entire system, you know you're getting the strongest combination of appearance, features and performances your money can buy!

Today's system, for example, is one we recommend without hesitation to our audiophile friends, most of whom, like most of us, are on budgets. It combines the fantastic Smaller Advent Loudspeaker, the super clean and powerful Yamaha CR-420 AM/FM receiver, and the quiet, belt drive Technics SL-23 turntable, which we equip with an Ortofon cartridge. This sophisticated package sounds like at least a $700 system. In rooms of average size, it pleases the most discriminating listeners. It could make you very happy indeed; and it's yours for $599!

Human rights symposium topic

by Sandi Stacki

Whether the United States should make its commitment to worldwide human rights, the central theme of its foreign policy will be discussed by national and international speakers in the 30th annual Borah Symposium scheduled April 10-11 at the U of I.

The Borah Symposium is concerned with facets of the theme, the causes of war and the conditions for peace. The Outlawry of War Foundation was established at the university in 1929 in honor of Senator William Edgar Borah, prominent in peace efforts. Annual conferences began in 1948.

The first major session of the symposium will open at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 10, at the SUB ballroom with an overview of human rights violations. Four speakers representing three continents will address this problem.

Keynoting the session will be Rose Styron, a member of the board of directors of Amnesty International, an organization which received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1977.

She is also on the board of directors of New Directions, a foreign policy lobbying organization.

Godfrey Binaisa, a native of Uganda who earned his law degree from King's College, University of London, has experienced the denial of human rights imposed both by the British and by his own countrymen. In 1959 the British jailed Binaisa for his leadership in Uganda's struggle for freedom.

As Uganda's first African attorney general following the country's independence in 1962, he resigned in protest of a law allowing the government to detain citizens without trial. Branded a traitor by General Idi Amin, Binaisa fled the country under fear of execution.

Binaisa labels Amin a madman and evil itself. "I cannot understand why the American press is not devoting more attention to the dangerous nature of Idi Amin. We are all interdependent. The implications of such a monster controlling such incredibly vital natural resources are stupendous," said Binaisa.

"Idi Amin is a bully, a robber, a pervert and a coward, all hatched in one egg. He is by turns desperately timid and wildly bold. But at all times he is everlastingly thirsty for human blood," he said.

Speaking on human rights violations in the Soviet Union will be Dr. S. Glagolev, former Soviet economist and member of the Institute for World Economics and International Relations of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. Glagolev served on a number of committees of the Communist Party Central Committee before coming to this country in 1977.

Eugenio Velasco, former dean of law school at University of Chile and Chilean ambassador to Algiers and Tunisia, will discuss the human rights conditions in Latin America.

Calling for the Chilean Bar Association to take action on human rights violations in 1974, Velasco was arrested, brought to trial and later dismissed due to technicalities. In 1976 he was seized by Chilean Secret Police for presenting a similar petition to Henry Kissinger. He was forced to fly to Buenos Aires and has not been able to return to Chile.

Following the speeches a panel of experts in politics, economics and journalism will ask questions and discuss the issue.

The symposium will continue Tuesday evening with a discussion on the place of human rights in American foreign policy, also at 7:30 p.m. at the SUB ballroom. KUID-TV, channel 12, will broadcast the two evening sessions live.

Daughter hits campaign trail

During the past week at the U of I, Laurel Jackson, daughter of Republican gubernatorial candidate Larry Jackson, met with living groups to talk about her father's campaign.

Jackson spoke to living groups with campaign supporters Scott Fehrenbacher, Farm House, and Jim Redinger, Tau Kappa Epsilon, over the week. She told the groups her father has been in the Idaho Legislature since 1970, serving two years as co-chairman of the joint appropriations committee, and heading the Idaho Republican Party in 1972.

Students were also told that an open meeting with the candidate will be held at the SUB at noon, Friday, April 7. The meeting will be held so interested students can meet Jackson and ask him questions. All students are invited to attend.

Shakespearean folio display

Original 17th Century Shakespearean folios and quartos will be on display at the University Library during the month of April. The traveling exhibit is sponsored by the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington D.C.

First folio extracts of The Merchant of Venice (1623), a quarto of King Lear (1619), original 17th century handbills, and original prints will be displayed on the first floor of the University Library.

The exhibit also includes photographs of Shakespearean quartos, a facsimile of the play Titus Andronicus, a rubbing from Shakespeare's tomb and a facsimile of Visscher's famous View of London. A collection of over 40 photographs in color and in black and white accompany the exhibit and depict Shakespearean subjects, and portray Elizabethan and Stuart life.

Budgets near completion Harding says

After several delays, ASUI departmental budgets may finally be nearing completion, ASUI President Bob Harding said Wednesday.

Harding cited a backlog of work and numerous interruptions in explaining the budgets' lateness. About one fourth of the budget has been completed, he said. Harding added that he hopes to finish work on the budgets this weekend.

Reverend Chumleigh, a member of the Alligator Revue vaudeville act encourages Brodie, Dog of the future in a free sketch Wednesday. Chumleigh, Brodie and the rest of the group will appear tonight at 7:30 in the Administration Building Auditorium. Tickets, available at the door, are $1.50 for adults, and 75 cents for children 12 and under. Photo by Rosemary Hammer.

Funding undecided

Gibb backs scholarships

The controversy over funding for the ASUI scholarships which were supposed to end at the close of fiscal year 1978-79 has been solved. President Gibb guaranteed the money for the scholarships would be available for the future.

The scholarships have been funded by the bookstore in the past, but in January the Board of Regents approved a measure to use the $25,000 usually given annually for scholarships as "seed money" to expand the bookstore or construct a new store.

ASUI president Bob Harding said Gibb said he would look at left-over finances to continue the funding. In the past the scholarships have been given to students in journalism, drama, music and minorities.

Although Gibb has promised the funds will be available for the scholarships, "we're not sure yet from what budget or funding source the money will come," said Bob Steele, trust and investment officer.

"It's premature to worry about where the money is coming from," said Harry Davey, director of financial aids. "It's been guaranteed and there's plenty of time before the fall of 1980 when the funds will be needed."

Computer training brings high schoolers in June

Some 75 outstanding Idaho high school juniors will be selected later this spring to attend the 11th annual computer programming school June 12-23 at the U of I.

The computer training is offered by the U of I College of Engineering in cooperation with the Idaho chapter of the Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS), according to Roland O. Byers, general engineering department chairman and computer school coordinator.

A special, two-week "Women in Engineering" program will follow the computer school. Hosted by the U of I Department of Chemical Engineering in conjunction with several industrial companies, the women's program aims to acquaint 16 of the women chosen for the JETS program with engineering career opportunities.

Eligible to apply for both programs are high school juniors who have an overall grade point average of 3.2 or better. In addition, candidates should have completed at least three credits in mathematics with grades of "B" or better.

According to Byers, the JETS program is for the "beginner" who has no knowledge of computer programming. To learn how to use the university's IBM 370-145 computer, students will attend classes in the mornings and will write programs to be run on the computer in afternoon laboratory sessions.

Designed to show participating students ways to use computers as problem-solving tools, the JETS program relies on a problem-oriented point of view, Byers said instructional sessions will stress programming logic which is independent of computer make.

Students who decide to enroll at the university after high school graduation may receive academic credit for the JETS course equivalent to two semester hours in digital computer programming, Byers pointed out. The credit will be recorded on the student's transcript.

Each woman selected for the "Women in Engineering" course will receive a stipend of $80 a week for the four weeks of both the JETS and "Women in Engineering" sessions. Participants are expected to pay their own expenses for room and meals.

Four press secretaries meet

Four presidential press secretaries will appear at the Presidential Press Secretaries Forum at Gonzaga University April 1. The forum will be held in Kennedy Pavilion at 8 p.m.

The four are Pierre Salinger, who worked for President John F. Kennedy; George E. Reedy, with President Lyndon B. Johnson; Ron Ziegler, with President Richard M. Nixon, and Ron Nessen, with President Gerald Ford.

Tickets for the forum are available at the Gonzaga office of university relations. Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for students.

In addition, a reception and dinner is scheduled for 5 p.m. at the Gonzaga Student Union Building, so that those attending will be able to meet the press secretaries. Reservations are available through the university office of university relations.

This is the first time four presidential press secretaries have ever appeared at the same time.

Schweitzer offers ski deal

Schweitzer Ski Area is offering U of I students a special package rate for one last day of spring skiing on Saturday, April 8.

Schweitzer officials say there is plenty of snow and should be a good chance to get a sun tan.

Included in the package is transportation by Greyhound Bus, a one-day lift ticket and a wine and cheese party on the hill in the afternoon. Cost is $21 per person. If interested, call 885-7376 before April 4.
