Council to vote on core curriculum today

After two weeks of debate, the Faculty Council today is expected to vote on the proposed changes in requirements for baccalaureate degrees.

The council will also consider an amendment to the proposal submitted by English Professor Roger Wallins and Civil Engineering instructor Jim Hardcastle.

The amendment states that the proposal be included in and effective for students who graduate under the 1983-85 catalog. This had been a point of discussion in past meetings because for the proposal to be included in the 1981 catalog, it would have to be passed almost immediately by the council general faculty and the State Board of Education/Board of Regents. The 1981 catalog goes to the printer in November.

The council will also be asked to reaffirm the statement of "Mission, Functions, and Objectives of the University of Idaho" as stated in the 1979-80 catalog.

At last week's meeting Robert

Furgason, vice president of academic affairs, said the board of regents is asking all universities to affirm a statement of mission, so the board will know what each university's mission is. The mission statements are to be presented to the board at its meeting this month.

Proposed revisions to the handbook concerning reasons for non-renewal of non-tenured faculty and other exempt personnel also will be discussed.

Presently, giving reasons for non-renewal or recommending non-renewal of a fixed-term appointment is not required but the president usually provides them. As a general rule, non-renewal or a recommendation of non-renewal is not grievable within the University of Idaho and is not appealable to the board.

Prepared by the Faculty Affairs Committee, the proposed changes would require the president to provide the non-tenured faculty member or other exempt employee with reasons for a non-renewal recommendation, if requested.

The changes also would allow the employee to appeal a non-renewal decision to request the person or unit responsible for the recommendation to reconsider it.

Faculty Council meetings are held at 3:30 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the Faculty Office Complex.

Nine students to get ASUI posts

The ASUI Senate will consider a variety of appointments for ASUI and Faculty council positions Wednesday night.

Rob Wood and Jane Freund are being considered for ASUI Activity Center Board members by the Government Operations and Appointments committee.

GOA is also looking at Jim Slyfield, Terry Harris, Randy Terashima and Randy Luten for ASUI Recreation Board members.

In other old business, John Windju is being considered for the appointment of Issues and Forums Committee chairman.

In new business, a bill providing for the appointment of Jennifer Pottenger as Faculty Council representative will be considered.

Also, the senate will look at a bill which, if passed, would provide for the appointment of Jack Gerard as ASUI Lobbyist.

In other old business, the senate is looking at a bill providing for an amendment to the ASUI Rules and Regulations which would create a Student Judicial Council.

If passed, the council would consist of five students, one of which must be enrolled in the College of Law.

The Rules and Regulations committee will also be considering a bill to create a Political Activities committee to work with the ASUI lobbyist on issues concerning the Idaho Legislature.

Buck off Broncos posters available

Students who plan to travel to the Boise State University/University of Idaho game Saturday should pick up "Buck off Broncos" posters at the ASUI office, said Scott Fehrenbacher, ASUI president.

"Let's let Boise State know that Idaho will be in Boise in force and expecting to win. The posters will be for everyone to hold up so that Idaho will be as visible in the stands as they are on the field," Fehrenbacher said.

The posters will be available Wednesday through Friday at the ASUI office in the SUB.

Educational aims

Women start over as students

by Helen Meyer
Staff Reporter

Ellen Darling is in her mid 20's, married, and the mother of two young children. After six years of marriage, she decided to go to college and is now in her third year as an elementary education major at the University of Idaho. "I went back to school because I needed to do something for myself," said Darling.

There are many other women all over the United States who, like Darling, have returned to school after marriage or previous schooling.

Alayne Hannaford, director of the U of I Women's Center, said the number of women re-entering college is steadily increasing. "The old saying that life ends at 21 after you get married is fading quickly," said Hannaford. "There is so much hope for women re-entering school and starting again."

"I'm glad I waited as long as I did to start college," said Darling. "When I graduated from high school, going to college was farthest from my mind. Now, I just budget my time between my studies and my children. My husband helps me a lot and is very supportive."

Lin Colson, secretary at the Women's Center, also waited several years before entering college. After graduating from high school, Colson became, and remained, a secretary until she was 27 years old. Then, she began attending night school in Denver.

"I was bored with my job," said Colson. "It lacked any sort of intellectual stimulation." Colson added that even though she is still a secretary, her job at the Women's Center is "anything but boring."

At the age of 30, Colson got married and went to school full-time, majoring in English education. "I didn't go to college to be someone, I went to learn," Colson said.

"If I didn't wait as long as I did to enter college,

I wouldn't have learned a thing," said Colson. "Because I waited, I was more serious about learning, instead of worrying about partying and boys."

Mary Morris is a returning student at the U of I who is working for a Master's degree in business. She has already earned a BS degree in physical education and master's degree in education. "I returned to school to start my life in a new direction," said Morris.

"When I first decided to go back to school, I had visions of being stared at because I was older than the majority of the student body," Morris said. "But, I have no problem relating to the other students."

"I find I tend to lead a class discussion more than the younger students," said Morris. "To me, teachers are still people. I don't view a professor as being on a pedestal."

A graduate of Sacred Heart School of Nursing, Jane Day is another student at the U of I who has returned to school to broaden her chances for advancement. Currently working for an interdisciplinary degree in zoology and animal science, Day hopes to work in genetics counseling after graduate school.

"I now have a greater appreciation for education, plus I get a lot of emotional support from the younger students," Day said.

The Women's Center currently holds informal re-entry support sessions. Beginning in January, formal workshops will be held at Washington State University, in cooperation with the U of I, to give rural women educational information on updating skills they already have and on returning to school.

The workshops will include courses on self-development, individual family finance management, and writing skills.

"I think it is important that the University's administration realizes the support groups for re-entry students are necessary," said Morris.

Breadth at the expense of depth

The breadth of education future U of I students get hinges on a decision that will be made today.

A plan to create university-wide degree requirements—requirements that would expose students to an array of disciplines—is expected to be put to a vote at today's Faculty Council meeting.

The plan has been in the works for nearly two years. It stems from a perception by many faculty members that U of I graduates are not getting a broad enough education. That too many students don't even get glimpses of many fields of study.

As it is, each college has requirements for its majors. The only university-wide requirements are in English composition and physical education. The proposed core curriculum would require all students to take courses in each of 10 areas.

The desire of the faculty to modify the system so students' eyes are opened to more than their narrow fields of study says a lot for their dedication to education.

As the changes have been mulled over in several committees, opponents among the faculty have been somewhat appeased and the proposal a bit watered down.

But some faculty are still fighting the core curriculum. Engineering and mining faculty claim the requirements would push the number of credits required of their majors beyond a workable point.

That has to be a concern, but it should not stand in the way of an endeavor to give students a broad education. Surely the courses those colleges now require students to take outside engineering and mining could be shuffled around to accommodate the new requirements.

A more serious objection came from a faculty member who questioned whether a broad education was necessarily better than a technical education.

His suggestion that a highly specialized undergraduate education is desirable runs counter to what the university should be doing.

We students should not be unleashed upon the world with only a narrow knowledge of some technical information. We should be ready to live as well as to make a living. We should know something about human behavior, about the natural and applied sciences, about technology, about history, social and philosophical thought, and the arts.

More than anything else, the university should provide an environment in which students learn to use their minds.

No group of required courses is ever going to turn someone into an educated person.

But the core curriculum will prod more students into taking courses that may pique their intellectual curiosity.

And that curiosity should be the prime fruit of a college education.

The members of Faculty Council have it in their hands to say whether that curiosity should be nurtured on a grand scale, university-wide. The meeting is at 3:30 p.m. in the Faculty Office Complex lounge.

Eugene McCarthy to speak in SUB Thursday

Eugene McCarthy, former U.S. Senator who ran for president twice—as the Democratic nominee in 1965 and as an Independent in 1976—will speak at the University of Idaho at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Sponsored by the ASUI Issues and Forums Committee, his speech will be given in the SUB Ballroom. It is free and open to the public.

Because of his grass-roots campaign in the New Hampshire Primary in 1968, McCarthy is said to have been a significant force in galvanizing anti-Vietnam War sentiment throughout the country.

In 1975, he renounced his affiliation with the Democratic Party and charged that the two-party system was an idea whose time had gone. Both the Democratic and Republican parties, he said, "are beginning to pay the penalty of incompetence. We have had a bipartisan war, bipartisan economic failures and abuse of the Bill of Rights under both parties." He won five major primaries in the 1976 Presidential race.

Beginning in 1949, he represented Minnesota's Fourth District in the U.S. House. He served on the Agriculture and Ways and Means Committees, and founded the Democratic Study Group, perhaps better known as "McCarthy's Mavericks." He was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1958 and again in 1964, and served on the Senate Agriculture, Finance and Foreign Relations Committees, and then chaired the Special Committee on Unemployment Problems.

He left the Senate in 1970. Since then, he has returned to teaching, writing and public speaking. He has written more than 50 essays and articles for major publications, and is the author of seven books since 1960. His most recent book is The Hard Years: A Look at Contemporary America and American Institutions.

Vandals stop Vikings, 37-27

by Kevin Warnock
Sports Writer

All week long the pre-game story was NCAA passing record holder Neil Lomax. The Portland State senior quarterback was bringing his passing legend to Moscow to put the Vandal defense to the test once again.

After Saturday night's ASU-Kibbie Dome confrontation, Lomax had some impressive individual statistics, but it was quarterback Ken Hobart and the Vandals who outplayed their opponents and led the only category that counts, scoring.

A combination of big plays, ball control and strong defense proved to be the margin of victory in three wins and one defeat.

Big plays like Russell Davis's 80-yard touchdown run to open the second half and a 56-yard Hobart-to-Jack Klein, paydirt connection later in the third quarter.

Ball control, which resulted in a time of possession mark, favored the Vandals by more than eight minutes. Idaho's game plan called for moving the ball on the ground to eat up the clock. The Vandal's successful execution was due primarily to the offensive line, according to Hobart.

"Those five guys up front (Seman, Monico, Hills, Girnt, and Fery) were the key. Our line is coming on more and more each game," said the sophomore from Kamiah.

Equally superb was the effort turned in by the entire Vandal defense. Portland State's pass-oriented offense, capable of producing big point totals and scoring in an instant from anywhere on the field, was contained most of the night.

Furthermore, two turnovers by the offense put Coach Leland Kendall's defense in a bind.

"Of the 27 Viking points, only 17 were actually their fault (the defense's)," said Vandal coach Jerry Davitch after the game. "I thought the whole secondary played well."

And it was a secondary that even included defensive end Jay Hayes at times. Lomax was intercepted twice on the night—once by left corner Greg Jennings and once by right corner Carlton McBride.

Idaho's defensive front had a little trouble catching Lomax after they broke through the protection wall. Lomax's sprint-outs and scrambling gave him the time needed to complete 30 of 52 for 315 yards and two touchdowns.

Credit, however, defensive right end Larry Barker with two of the biggest plays on the night.

In the second quarter with Portland State driving toward a commanding 10-point lead, Barker ran down Lomax on a 4th-and-goal play at the Vandal two-yard stripe. The 11-yard sack showed off Barker's speed and kept the game close at 10-7.

"He's very quick," said Davitch. "His 4.6, 40-yard dash is as fast as any of our running backs."

Late in the fourth quarter Barker met up with Lomax again, this time for a punt-forcing sack on 3rd-and-eight.

Still, Davitch didn't rest assured until after Idaho's offense pushed another 50 yards into Viking territory on the change of possession.

"I didn't feel secure until the 40-second mark," Davitch said. "Our kids never played harder than they did tonight."

Davitch added the fan and student support were another factor in the victory. "Had the game been played on the road it would have been a different story."

Idaho finished the contest with 556 yards of total offense to Portland State's 369.

All Big Sky placekicker Pete O'Brien saw his streak of 18 straight extra points vanish when he missed the conversion after Klein's touchdown reception. The junior from Lake Oswego, Ore. did connect on all other attempts including a 35-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Russell Davis had another big game, scoring three touchdowns and leading the Vandal running backs with 129 yards. Hobart picked up 140 on the ground to go with his 139 gained through the air.

Women runners finish second in Casey run

Before the Camp Casey Invitational in Whidbey Island, Wash., last weekend, Vandal coach Roger Norris was hoping his women's cross country team could finish in the top five. The Vandal women quickly put Norris at ease by taking second place in the 17-team race that drew 235 runners. The Vandals finished with a team total of 70 points to beat out Seattle-Pacific, last year's NCWSA Regional Division II Champion that placed second nationally.

University of Oregon won the meet with 22 points with Seattle-Pacific in third at 104. The Falcon Track Club took fourth while Montana edged out Washington State for fifth place. Patsy Sharples was the top Vandal finisher, covering the 5,000 meter course in 17:43 to claim fifth place. Her fifth place finish broke her six-meet winning streak. "Patsy made a few errors during the race and lost a couple of places," said Norris. "It was a tough course with woody trails." Sonia Blackstock was the next Vandal finisher in ninth place in a time of 18:06.

spectively with only a second separating the two runners. Roloff finished in 18:38 while Warren came in at 18:39.

Caroline Crabtree finished at 18:51 for 21st place while Penny Messenger finished 23rd in 18:54. "We got a good look at our opponents in our region, and I'm pleased with what I see," said Norris. "Boise State is the only team I haven't seen at full strength."

Norris said the team learned a lot from this race. "Our number six runner had only two Division II runners ahead of her," said Norris.

Volleyball team wins tourney

The U of I women's volleyball team accomplished a big goal this weekend in Lewiston by winning all three of their Interstate League games.

The Vandals, now 7-2 on the year started off against Eastern Washington Friday, a team that beat the Vandals earlier in the year. This time the Vandals turned the favor with a 15-8, 15-6 win.

"We're elated," said Vandal coach Amanda Burk. "This win not only helps in seeding, but we defeated last year's defending champion."

Jenny Rothstrom had an outstanding day for the Vandals making 12 blocked shots. The freshman also served three aces and committed no errors in the match.

Beth Johns, another freshman, also enjoyed a fine match. She had eight stuffed blocks. Pam Ford had eight kills for the Vandals also.

On Saturday, the Vandals defeated Boise State 15-11, 15-6. The Vandals then revenged an early season loss to Lewis-Clark State College by dumping the Warriors 5-15, 15-2, 15-4.

Yvonne Smith and Ford paced the Vandals; Ford had 15 kills in the two matches and Smith had 12. Johns and Rothstrom each had 11 kills apiece.

"We not only stopped our opponent's game in the middle, our attack was much improved in the middle," said Burk. "This is necessary for our multiple offense."

The tournament was also very important to the Vandals as it was used for the seedings in the post-season tournament. Last year, the Vandals finished third.

"Our team is improving every game," said Burk. "Our bench is just great. There is a lot of good things happening."

The Vandals junior varsity squad will host the Whitworth J.V. team at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the PEB building.

Entries open for health run

Entry blanks for the Third Annual "Go to Health" Fun Run to be run Saturday, Oct. 25 are due this Friday, Oct. 11.

The race/fun run is being sponsored by the University of Idaho Naval ROTC and is sanctioned by the Inland Empire Board of Athletics.

Late entries to the eight-mile race will be accepted but will be charged an additional dollar.

All participants will receive commemorative T-shirts donated to the Moscow Parks & Recreation Department.

The 10 a.m. race begins at Fourth and Jackson streets and concludes at East City Park.

Tonnemaker leads Vandals to fourth place in Casey run

The Idaho men's cross country team came close to defending its title by taking fourth place in the Fort Casey Invitation this weekend in Whidbey Island, Wash.

Kole Tonnemaker continued his hot streak for the Vandals by winning his seventh race in a row. Tonnemaker turned in a time of 30:00 over the six-mile course.

"He did it again," said Vandal coach Mike Keller about his star runner. "I don't know when he is going to stop."

The Vandals finished with a team total 128 points with Bellevue in second at 57. University of Washington edged out the Vandals for third with 120 points.

Ray Prentice was next Vandal finisher in eighth place. "Ray had a good race as he had had the flu and a cold bothering him," said Keller.

Gary Gonser finished in 23rd place while freshman Steve Lauri was in 33rd place.

"Gary didn't run one of his better races," said Keller, "but Lauri ran quite well comparing his high school time of three miles to this six-mile race."

The Vandals suffered another big injury. Dave Henderson has a pulled hamstring and will be out for two weeks. Earlier last week, Andy Harvey suffered small muscle tears in his leg. He will also be out for about two weeks.

The Vandals will take two weeks off before their next meet Oct. 24 in Boise. Keller said the rest will be good for his team.

Hockey team drops two

Idaho's field hockey team dropped two matches over the weekend to lower its season record to one win and three defeats. The setbacks came at the hands of powerhouse Simon Fraser and Division I opponent Washington State.

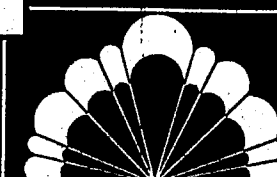

The Vandals did get some strong defensive performances from Holli Glidden and Laura Rosecrans in the second half of the contest after giving up three first half goals due to a slow start.

According to women's Sports Information Director Ann Rice, the Vandals seemed to be playing in awe of their Canadian counterparts, but regrouped at half time to play even with Simon Fraser in the second half.

On Saturday, the visiting Cougars topped Coach JoDean Moore's squad 4-1. The women either tired or suffered a letdown according to Rice, in the second half as the Vandals were shut out after scoring the opening goal of the game.

The team travels to Boise this weekend for its first look at Northwest Nazarene College and the Boise State Broncos. The three teams (Idaho included) will be vying for a trip to nationals next month in competition in Moscow.

Film Review by N.K. Hoffman

The powerful rhythm of The Tin Drum

"We dwarves and fools shouldn't dance on concrete that was poured for giants."

In Danzig in 1927, Oskar takes a careful look at grown-ups and decides he doesn't want to be one. He falls carefully down the cellar stairs and spends the next 17 years being about three feet tall.

In The Tin Drum, Oskar lives through a frightening period of history. Danzig/Gdansk, a seaport between Germany and Poland, is a frightening place to be; the first battle of World War II takes place there. The film depicts the quiescent culture of pre-war days and then shows the mounting tension and intolerance as Nazism becomes a national fervor.

Superb cinematography reveals a world painted in rich, creamy colors, a world both gorgeous and revolting. The culture fascinates and disgusts simultaneously.

All of the actors remain true to their characters throughout, from the Jewish toy merchant to the grandmother to the handsome Polish lover. Oskar, played by David Bennett, is especially stunning. He's a creepy little bugger.

The Tin Drum does not lend itself to easy comprehension. Fraught with symbolism, the film is a multi-level epic; I expect to be thinking about it for some time. Whatever it means, it's a marvelous movie.

The Tin Drum will play tonight and Wednesday at the Micro at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

"Six months out of school and I'm working on a circuit that will help heart patients live longer."

American Microsystems is an exciting place to work. If you're an Electronics Engineer, Solid State Physicist, Chemical Engineer or Computer Scientist with a BS/MS/PhD, we have a variety of positions in design, testing, process and product applications, and computer-aided design available right now. Your future is here.

We were the first company to manufacture MOS/LSI, and we're the leader in state-of-the-art custom design. We're also deeply involved in communications, microprocessor and related semi-conductor technology.

But we're not one of those vast and impersonal companies where you can easily get lost in the shuffle. At AMI, your contribution will be recognized and well rewarded.

So why wait for the future when you can help build it at AMI.

TKEs run to Boise

Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity will kick off its third annual football Run for Life Thursday at 4 p.m. from the Kibbie Dome.

The run serves as a fund-raiser for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. as well as a means of transportation for the football to be used in the U of I-Boise State University football game Oct. 11 at Boise.

Founded by entertainer Danny Thomas in 1962, St. Jude's researches and treats children's diseases. It is now the world's largest cancer research institute. Children can be admitted by doctor referral, and once accepted, receive all services free of charge.

Thomas, a former Tau Kappa Epsilon member, enlists the aid of TKE members throughout the country to hold yearly fund-raisers.

Through various sponsors, the U of I TKE chapter collected about $500 last year and have set a goal of $1,000 this year.

Before the ball leaves campus, it will be signed by President Gibb, Sen. Frank Church, Rep. Steve Symms, and possibly Gov. John Evans.

The TKEs will run the ball as far as Riggins, each member running a certain number of miles. Once in Riggins, the BSU TKE members will run the ball the remaining distance to Boise. Total running time is estimated to be 42 hours.

Sponsors are still needed. Anyone interested in sponsoring the run or making a donation can call 885-6729 or send donations to 745 Nez Perce Dr., Moscow, ID 83843.

Seminar slated for Thursday

Issues concerning the state, university and ASUI will be discussed at an on/off campus seminar Thursday afternoon on the Administration Building lawn.

Sponsored by the ASUI Senate, the seminar will last from 1 to 5 p.m. on the corner of the lawn nearest the University Classroom Center.

Station merger focus of KUID program

The pros and cons of a proposed merger of the public broadcasting stations at the University of Idaho and Washington State University will be discussed by the respective managers in an interview to be broadcast on radio Thursday.

Art Hook of KUID and Dennis Haarsager of KSWU will discuss advantages, problems they foresee and solutions to those problems in a taped interview with Anne Majusiak to be broadcast at 7 p.m. Thursday over KUID-FM, 91.7. The merger proposal has been presented to university officials for consideration.

Both managers will explain benefits to the stations, public broadcasting industry and the audience expected from the merger.

AKL meeting tonight at SUB

Alpha Kappa Lambda, a fraternity re-organizing at the University of Idaho, will hold a general information meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the SUB Silver Room.

Bruce Pitman, assistant dean for Student Advisory Services, will speak on the challenges of fraternity living and the unique opportunity of starting new traditions, which AKL is offering. A slide show of AKL history and chapter activities from other campuses plus a general get-acquainted session are also scheduled.

Alpha Kappa Lambda folded at the U of I in 1978 after some problems with chapter housing. However, a spokesman for AKL said the plan to re-establish is not a movement to bring back the old house with its traditions, but to start new, with new blood and new ideas.

AKL member Brent Gaston and another AKL representative are planning various get-acquainted activities including some with the AKL chapter at Washington State University.
