Conflict causes law firm to withdraw offer

A Boise law firm that recently offered the Associated Students of Idaho a free preliminary study on a lawsuit against the proposed $50 fee increase, has stated a conflict of interest and withdrawn the offer.

The ASI student leaders consulted with the law firm on Friday and also talked with State Board of Education/Board of Regent president Janet Hay, board member Milt Small, and deputy attorney general Steven Berenter.

Although attorney John Kurtz of the firm Holley, Troxel, Enis and Holley talked with the ASI leaders for several hours, he was not allowed to conduct the preliminary study for the ASI, said Scott Fehrenbacher, ASUI president.

According to Fehrenbacher, three other members of the firm were stated as having a conflict of interest. Member Jack Holley was associated with the U of I Foundation, Jess Holley was associated with the Boise State University Foundation and attorney Craig Storti was a member of the U of I Alumni Board. Fehrenbacher also said that he was unable to discuss details of the conversation he and the other ASI leaders had with the attorney. He said because the ASI had not paid Kurtz and the firm would not allow him to conduct the study, the discussion had to remain confidential.

But, on recommendation from Kurtz, Fehrenbacher said the ASI would try to make a commitment with another Boise firm for a "second opinion" before the ASI's Dec.

3-4 meeting.

"Basically, they wanted to know where each school was politically in dealing with the legislature," Fehrenbacher said of the meeting with Board of Regent President Hay.

"It was obviously a strategy meet before the next board meeting and the next legislative session," Fehrenbacher said. But the meeting was constructive "because it helped us as much as them," he added. It was a chance to find out where everyone was and where everyone's thoughts were, he said.

According to Fehrenbacher, the group talked about how higher education would be viewed by the new legislature.

Another meeting between ASI leaders and board members is scheduled for Nov. 25 in Boise.

President forced to land plane

University of Idaho President Richard Gibb had to make a forced landing at Moscow-Pullman Airport Monday morning when the engine in his small private plane quit shortly after take-off.

Gibb, accompanied by his executive assistant Terry Armstrong, had planned to fly to Boise to meet with a member of the Legislature at the legislator's request. The meeting was rescheduled for later in the day. Neither man was hurt in the incident, and the plane sustained as yet undetermined damage when it landed without landing gear on the runway at the airport. An airport official said a routine investigation would be made into the cause of the mishap.

Gibb said the pre-flight checkup and run-through indicated everything was normal for take-off, but shortly after the gear was retracted the plane's engine began to sputter and then caught for 10 to 15 seconds. Gibb had started to turn left to go back to the airport when the engine failed altogether.

"At worst I could have landed in a plowed wheatfield," Gibb said, adding that the landing on the runway was smooth and straight. There was some smoke when the plane landed but no fire. He estimated his altitude at the time the engine failed was 300 to 400 feet.

The plane is a Bonanza 35 V-Tail. Gibb, who has flown for several years, frequently uses his private plane to save time and money on state travel.

Toxic shock

Are more women playing "Russian roulette?"

Reported cases increase but apathy still exists

by Helen Meyer
Staff Reporter

The percentage of cases of Toxic Shock Syndrome among menstrual-age women is rising, according to Barbara Kirschner, registered nurse at the Lewiston Public Health Department.

Kirschner said the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta cited two main reasons for the rise in cases since the recent outbreak of the disease: 1) more cases are now being reported, due to the urgings of public health officials; and 2) slight cases as well as extreme cases are now being reported.

The CDC said the past estimate of the disease affecting three out of every 100,000 menstrual-age women is understating the real problem.

Toxic Shock Syndrome, a disease recognized in 1975, was linked to the use of tampons in menstruating women in June of this year. Since then, there has been much government action and public reaction leading to the voluntary recall of Rely tampons, the most prominent link to TSS.

Almost all women who contract the disease are menstruating or have just finished their period. Symptoms of the disease include vomiting, diarrhea, high fever, a severe drop in blood pressure, muscle pain, and a blistering rash. Many victims suffer damage to internal organs.

The disease is not caused by tampons, but from a common and benign organism called staphylococcus aureus. Doctors are not sure how the staph gets into the bloodstream, but have several theories connecting it to the use of tampons, according to the CDC.

One theory is that the staph aureus mutates to a more toxic form because of something in tampons or in the way they are used. Some believe that the superabsorbent tampons provide a better breeding place for the staph bacterium.

Another theory is that recent changes in the contents and fit of tampons could be encouraging vaginal infections. Several experts wonder whether the insertion tube of some tampons cause abrasions in a victim's vagina, permitting the bacterium to enter the bloodstream.

Although TSS mainly affects menstruating women, cases of men contracting the disease have also been reported. The bacterium is also found on the skin and in the mouth, and can enter the bloodstream through sores or cuts there.

Even with the recent warnings, many women seem to question the possible danger of TSS. Several women have stated that they would rather take the risk of contracting the disease, which is quite rare, rather than give up the convenience of tampons altogether.

One University of Idaho student said, "The warnings on the use of tampons is just like warning people about smoking cigarettes. No matter what the facts are, there is still going to be a lot of people using tampons."

Many women stated they have quit using the superabsorbent tampons, but will continue using regular ones, unless more solid facts about the dangers of tampons are found.

Kirschner said after all the warnings and precautions are given, the final decision is still up to the user. "Many women will not heed the warnings, and in my opinion, are just playing Russian roulette."

Even as rare as it is, Kirschner said, the disease does exist, and should not be thought lightly of. In the North Central district of Idaho (including Latah County) there have been 2 reported cases of Toxic Shock Syndrome since the recent warnings, she said.

Most doctors recommend not using Rely tampons at all and that other tampons be used intermittently, alternating with sanitary napkins or pads. They stress that tampons should not be used at night when sleeping, and that tampons should be changed often.

The use of natural sea sponges as an alternative to tampons was discouraged after researchers said they contain sand, bacteria and other potentially harmful substances.

The federal Food and Drug Administration is trying to get all tampon manufacturers to put warning labels on packages advising women that they may want "to consider not using tampons or alternating tampons with napkins."

Students could obtain "ash funds"

University of Idaho students whose homes are in the areas which received Mount St. Helens ash fallout will be considered for part of $300,000 in financial aid.

The money came from unused funds which the federal government re-allocated to schools whose students were affected by natural disasters.

About 1,700 U of I students are eligible because their home addresses are in the ash fall area, according to Harry Davey, director of Student Financial Aids.

The Financial Aid Office is in the process of making awards, and has already distributed nearly two-thirds of the money.

If the financial needs of the students affected by Mount St. Helens are filled, the remaining money will be returned to the government and distributed on a different basis later, Davey said.

The funds are in the form of College Work Study, National Direct Student Loans, and Supplementary Grants for renewal loans.

ASUI SENATE

ASUI fee increase on ballots for Wednesday

Students will have the opportunity to vote for a new ASUI President, vice president, six senators and a fee increase that is aimed at maintaining current ASUI operations in Wednesday's ASUI elections.

The proposed $3.50 fee increase would raise the present amount of full-time student fees that go to the ASUI from $15.75 to $19.25 per semester.

The last permanent fee increase for the ASUI was in 1968, however there was a temporary increase for the spring of 1978.

The senate originally asked the State Board of Education Board of Regents for a $6 increase in the fall of 1977 after students had approved it, but the regents only approved a $3 increase and asked the senate to tighten its financial belt.

The current proposed fee increase must pass by a simple majority of the students voting.

Senator Eric Stoddard said he hopes the fee increase is approved by the regents in April 1981, at the same time the ASUI budgeting is done, so it would go into effect in fall 1981.

Running for office in the election are Neil Rice and Eric Stoddard for ASUI president.

Rice, a senior psychology major, is against in-state tuition, and would support a lawsuit by the Associated Students of Idaho questioning the constitutionality of a fee increase.

Rice wants to improve communication between faculty and students to reach mutual goals. He also wants to make the ASUI more efficient and has proposed services such as a night escort service for women to combat the crime wave on campus.

Stoddard, a senior in finance, is president pro tem of the senate and member of the senate finance sub-committee. He is a charter member of the ASI Bylaws and State Board Liaison Committees.

Stoddard would support in-state tuition only as a last resort providing the legislature and students would be bound to an agreement providing for proportionate levels of equitable and affordable funding and the agreement be statutory law.

Clark Collins and Jeff Thomson are running for ASUI vice president. Collins, a senior in political science, is a senator and a member of the senate finance sub-committee.

Collins wants to develop a good working relationship between the senate and vice president, improve communication with the legislature and off-campus students, is against in-state tuition.

Thomson, also a senior in political science, is the senate finance committee chairman.

Thomson is opposed to in-state tuition, wants to create a student advisory board to look into campus crime. He has interned at the state capital and believes in strong communication with the legislators.

He wants to allow alcohol on campus and would like to work on an on-campus banking service for students.

There are 11 candidates for senator, six will be elected.

Those running for election are:

Voting booths will be located in the SUB, Physical Science Building, Administration Building, Life Sciences Building, Education Building, Agricultural Science Building, Law Building, Jansen Engineering Building, Forestry Building, Library, Wallace Complex, and Theophilus Tower. The polls will be open from 8:45 a.m. to 5:15 p.m.

Members disagree on resolutions

Committee asks for tenure study

Faculty Affairs Committee Monday called for the appointment of an ad hoc committee to study the five-year competency review system used on campus.

A resolution passed by the committee was drawn up after members called one proposed resolution "too strong," and another resolution "too weak."

The resolution, urging Faculty Council to appoint a committee to study the review process and its impact on tenure and faculty morale, will not give the committee the appearance of waving a red flag, said Joe Kelly, associate professor of education.

A resolution proposed last week by Nick Gier, associate professor of philosophy, was criticized by committee members who considered it too strong.

"I'm troubled by the air of confidence here," said Don Coombs, director of the School of Communication. "I don't see any point in flying a red flag or mounting a white horse at this point."

Gier's resolution said the reviews undermine the principle of academic tenure; unnecessarily call into question the competence of a majority of clearly competent faculty members; shift the burden of proof to the tenured professor, when it should be with the administration; and are likely to prevent the university from retaining high quality teaching and research staff.

Gier called the reviews "superfluous, unnecessary, and probably unconstitutional."

Coombs proposed an alternative resolution, which said that periodic consideration should be given the tenure procedures, and which called for an ad hoc committee to conduct a study. Some committee members said it was too weak in requesting a study.

The committee's study would allow faculty members to "take a stand," but a well-informed stand," Coombs said. He questioned whether the statements made in Gier's resolution were universally agreed to by faculty members.

"I don't see where you can dispute the truth of these statements," Gier said. "I read the faculty differently. We are well-informed. We've all seen these things."

"I think an ad hoc committee will find these things, but use softer language," Kelly said.

The resolution the committee hammered out after both Gier's and Coombs' resolutions were withdrawn, was given unanimous support.

The resolution reads: "The Faculty Affairs Committee recognized that tenure is vital to protect free inquiry and the advancement of knowledge. FAC believes that anything which weakens tenure must be viewed with deep concern. FAC assumes that all faculty, university administrators, and Board of Regents members would welcome a fair assessment of the present system of competency reviews."

If Faculty Council fails to appoint an ad hoc committee during its meeting Nov. 25, Gier said he will submit a petition for his resolution to be considered at the general faculty meeting Dec. 9.

Costs rise, fee increase needed

In addition to electing ASUI officials Wednesday, students will vote on a small fee increase that is essential to maintain current operations of ASUI departments.

If approved by a majority of students voting in the election and the Board of Regents, the increase would become effective next fall.

The $3.50 per semester fee proposal is a modest request. It has been 11 years since the ASUI has had a fee increase. There aren't many things one can buy that cost the same as they did 11 years ago. Student services are no exception.

Each full-time student currently pays $15.75 per semester for services provided by the ASUI. That appropriation supports student activities and pays salaries for students employed in nearly 20 ASUI departments and programs, including Outdoor Programs, the Argonaut, KUOI, the Photography Bureau, the golf course and entertainment programs.

The ASUI has been able to keep offering the services it does for such a long time only because the ASUI departments make an additional dollar of outside income for each dollar they receive in student fees.

Unless the fee hike is approved, the ASUI will be forced to cut many services and possibly eliminate some departments. Even if the fee increase passes, the departments will barely be able to maintain their current operating level.

If you benefit from the many services offered by the ASUI, you owe it to yourself to vote for the $3.50 ASUI fee increase in Wednesday's election.

You'll be glad

Editor,

Last year, while a U of I administrator, I was pleased to learn that Clark Collins planned to run for the ASUI Senate. Clark worked in the Alumni Office and his co-workers weren't surprised that he received more votes than any other candidate.

Clark has both the leadership abilities and the capacity to work with people to qualify him to be ASUI vice president. Be assured that Clark is a man who does far more than a job description requires. He will make you glad you voted for him.

Dick Johnson

He's qualified

Editor,

Over the last year, a tremendous number of problems have risen for higher education. Of course, this means there were as many problems for students in higher education as well.

Each one of these problems involved large amounts of time and study to deal with. With every issue, students were expected to have as much background information as university and state officials. Obviously, the time commitment for student officials multiplied as the number of issues increased.

The next twelve months promise to involve as many or more major problems. The next five months through the legislative session will be a critical time in the history of Idaho higher education. Many turning point decisions may be made.

Students need someone willing to sacrifice time and someone prepared on all the necessary background to work with these problems next year. Students now play a larger role in education in Idaho than they have in years. To protect that position, and to really contribute to our education system, we must elect qualified student officials.

I believe it is very important that everyone join me in supporting Eric Stoddard for ASUI president. Eric has proven his sacrifices during the last year as pro tem of the senate. He has traveled with me to several important meetings in Boise and has already worked with the state officials. He has proven himself to be effective as a senator through his work on insurance and the budget.

Eric Stoddard would be an official that would never stop working for you. Please support him for the presidency Wednesday.

Scott Fehrenbacher
ASUI President

Hall mailman

Editor,

We, the tribe known as Gault Hall, strongly endorse the cut-rate candidacy of GDI independent Kevin "DEXTER" Grundy, as an alternative to a Greek dominated ASUI government.

The incompetence of the current government and its inability to act in the students' interests is reason enough for a change. If we can jettison the current crop of spineless administrative lackeys, then such boondoggles as the East End Addition and the proposed fee hikes might well be avoided.

Not only is it your right as a student to vote in these elections, but it is also your civic duty. Where would our country be today without leaders like Kevin?

His qualifications for this position are endless: One semester as hall mailman, two jobs, and a van. Why, he's even been to California, so, you can see for yourself why Dexter is the obvious choice.

The main thing to remember is to vote. Then Elect the Dext.

The Men of Gault Hall

Day-to-day

Editor,

I am writing to support Jeff Thomson for ASUI vice president. In a year of working together on the ASUI Senate, Jeff has shown me that he definitely possesses the qualities needed for the position of vice president.

Jeff's voting record shows that his concern has always been with the students he represents. When many students requested refunds on their Gem of the Mountains yearbook last year, he was one of very few senators who voted to honor that request. In a year that will be very tight financially for the ASUI, Jeff brings with him experience as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Being a former living group president, he understands the concerns and needs that arise for students on a day-to-day basis.

One important duty of the vice president is the role of senate president. Jeff has shown fairness and level-headedness in dealing with other senators, and would contribute greatly to a smoothly-running, efficient senate.

Jeff Thomson has my vote for ASUI vice president — I urge your support and your vote.

Sincerely,
Teresa Tesnohlidek

Non-attendance

Editor,

On Monday night (Nov. 10), ASUI Sen. Kevin Holt failed to appear at a meeting he scheduled with McConnell Hall. His non-attendance was doubly aggravating due to the fact that he insisted on coming at a time which was inconvenient for the majority of the hall. To date we have failed to hear from Kevin in regards to his absence.

Previous to his contacting us for the meeting we were not even aware that McConnell Hall had senatorial representation. Obviously, we have been represented well by a responsible individual who is interested in our input for campus government.

In the upcoming ASUI elections, it is quite understandable that McConnell Hall will be looking for more responsive representation.

Respect earned

Editor,
Although the results of the national and statewide elections are only two weeks old, U of I students will again go to the polls Wednesday to vote in another election.

Many students believe the ASUI elections are unimportant, but the effects of the elections two weeks ago make this one especially important. In the crucial upcoming legislative session, in-state tuition and budget cut-backs for higher education will be high on the agenda.

At no time has it been more important for U of I students to elect a responsible and capable student government to see that our interests are best served. One of the most important jobs in the ASUI is the office of vice president. As the chief coordinator of the ASUI Senate, the vice president is in the best position to ensure that the senate is working smoothly and well.

The man to do that job is Clark Collins. During his term in the ASUI Senate, he has been one of its most hard-working, intelligent and effective members. He has earned the respect and support of dorm residents, Greeks and off-campus students. Those same strengths will make Clark Collins an outstanding ASUI vice president.

Please give him your support Wednesday.

Time for Biggs

Editor,
It is time again for ASUI fall elections, and this year more than ever it is vital that we elect students that can best represent our needs and interests. I can think of no person better qualified to be elected an ASUI Senator than incumbent Scott Biggs.

After working with him this past year on the ASUI Senate, I firmly believe that he exemplifies the traits necessary to be an effective representative of the students. Scott is a hard worker with the intelligence to question existing programs, the imagination to introduce new ideas, the dedication and sense of responsibility to listen to the students' concern, and the capability to reply with positive action to those concerns.

I encourage every student to cast his ballot this Wednesday for Scott Biggs to ensure quality student representation in the ASUI Senate.

Sincerely
Nancy Atkinson
ASUI Senator

Take aim, Mike

Editor,
Are you happier than you were last year? Are student fees constantly rising? Does the prospect of not being able to complete college because of imposition of in-state tuition excite you? Then this election is important to you.

We believe Mike Smith has the creativity and brains to help be part of the solution: Victor Noble (former ASUI Senator), Bart Cook, Don Garrison, Patti Hilgart, Deb Scheldorf, Elizabeth Gibney, Jeff Schmillen, Sherri Iverson, Billie Robbins, Connie Borowitz, Sheri Shoemaker, Ellen Byrd, Charlotte Garrison, and Joe Fascilla.

Mike Smith has had experience on Faculty Council and Academics Board as well as a living group officer.

Mike Smith is a senior who has lived on all sides of campus—two years in Whitman Hall, a Teke, and off-campus. He knows the problems of all three.

Finally, Mike Smith believes that student senators must be service oriented. To help people know where one may go to get a problem resolved—like how to petition for the waiving of an academic regulation. Sometimes a problem may not be an issue affecting lots of people—but just ONE important person: YOU.

The senate needs a trouble shooter and a "service oriented" person. That's Mike Smith.

Steven Cory
ASUI Senator

Crucial need

Editor,
All students who do not want increased fees or the instituting of tuition at the U of I should give serious thought to choosing ASUI senators this Wednesday. We need people that have the experience and dedication to fight our interests. Dave Cooper is one candidate who can supply both of these needs. His experiences as an intern with the Idaho Legislators. He is enthusiastic and concerned about getting students more involved in the decision-making processes of the university.

In a year of crucial decisions that will affect each of us financially and academically, we need someone like Dave Cooper to serve us.

Victor Noble

Blood supply

Editor,
I would like to thank the students and faculty for the tremendous support of the Red Cross Blood Drive held here last week. The Red Cross nurses and staff are continually amazed at how easily the appointments are filled with more people wanting to donate than they can possibly take. This is very gratifying for everyone involved in the blood program as it is a non-profit organization relying on volunteer donors to supply the more than 32,000 pints of blood required for the 53 hospitals in the region. The region is made up of Eastern Washington, Eastern Oregon and most of Idaho.

The traveling trophies, donated by Alpha Phi Omega, which are awarded to the men's and women's living groups with the highest percentage of donors, were given to Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

Appreciation also should be given to the volunteer nurses, faculty wives, SPURS, Intervolligate Knights, Volkyries, and members of Circle K who helped staff the drive itself. Most fraternities and sororities along with Rosauers (Pullman Highway), Moscow Bakery, Safeway, Modernway, Warehouse Foods, Rosauers (Main), and the Great American Cookie Company donated cookies for the drive.

All the people involved with the blood drive; donars, service organization, Imogene Rush (Programs coordinator) and the ASUI Blood Drive Committee can be proud to know that the headquarters in Boise considers the U of I to have the best organized and supported blood drive of any university in the region.

Thanks again to all of you.

Ralph May
Blood Committee Chairman

Stow it!

Editor,
Flash! Nov. 4 is over! And our newly-elected officials, including Steve Symms and Ronald Reagan, have replaced some very prominent Democrats. But that's behind us now; the results are final. However, it seems that you just can't kill a good election campaign. This is evident through the Argonaut's letters to the editor—every issue contains a few that criticize and belittle either the winners or the losers, usually the winners. Some letters have even resorted to name-calling; a bit childish for college students, wouldn't you say? My response to these belated, die-hard, antagonists is to simply stow it for about four years and give the winners a chance to prove themselves. After all, the losers had their chances.

Michael Hanigan

Letters Policy

The Argonaut will accept letters to the editor until noon on days prior to publication. They must be typed, double spaced, signed, in ink and include the name and address of the author. Letters will be edited for spelling and clarity. Letters should be limited to 250 words. The Argonaut reserves the right not to run any letter that is libelous or in bad taste.

Former U of I student claims harassment, discrimination

Ann Nugent, a former University of Idaho teaching assistant, claims she was subjected to sex discrimination and harassment here in a claim filed with the state of Idaho, the Lewiston Morning Tribune reported today.

Nugent, who received a doctorate from the political science department last spring, claims that over the course of the past three years, she has endured numerous acts of discrimination, harassment, invasion of privacy and defamation of character at the hands of political science department faculty, according to the Tribune.

Nugent has filed a claim with the state seeking $237,000 in damages. The claim signifies that she intends to file suit if a compromise with the university is not reached.

Nugent has also complained to the Human Rights Commission, which notified U of I officials Friday that it intends to investigate the matter.

Without specifying the precise instances of alleged discrimination, Nugent claims that while at U of I her mail was opened, she received obscene phone calls and threats on her life, she was assaulted, had her office broken into, was evaluated on the basis of standards different than those for male doctoral candidates and was given different degree requirements.

She does not identify any specific member of the department as responsible for the alleged harassment, the Tribune reported.

Nugent is seeking damages for alleged mental stress, pain and suffering, and for loss of income.

Both Bob Blank, political science department head, and the Human Rights commission declined comment.

Kibbie provides student loans

Interest-free loans will be available to a few university of Idaho students through funds provided by William H. Kibbie.

Kibbie, a former U of I student, is known for his large contributions to the ASUI/Kibbie Dome. The dome was named after him in recognition of his support, which was instrumental in making its construction possible.

The new loans will come from the William Patrick Kibbie Memorial Loan Fund which honors the memory of Kibbie's son, who was killed in an accident several years ago.

Originally, the loans were made available to students at the University of Wyoming, where Kibbie's son attended school.

This year, Kibbie added to the fund and extended it to U of I students.

Harry Davey, director of Student Financial Aids, said approximately $10,000 will be available here, and will go to students at the top of the verified need list. There are no special requirements for loan recipients.

The loans will be for a maximum of $1,000 for an academic year.

Repayment need not begin until one year after the recipient completes his schooling, at which time 10 percent is due. After two years, an additional 20 percent is due; after three years, 30 percent more; and after four years, the final 40 percent is due. No interest is charged.

The money goes in a revolving account, so as it is repayed, it will be given out in loans to other needy students.

Davey said it's possible that only part of the money will be given out this year in order to leave some money for people who will need it next year.

"Building up the fund again will be a slow process. If a loan is given to a freshman, it could be five years before even 10 percent of it is paid back—nine years before the whole thing is back in the account," Davey said.

According to Davey, the Kibbie Loan fund could be very important because it doesn't have many of the restrictions that federal loans have. For example, students who have borrowed the maximum amount from the National Direct Student Loan program and still need more money to complete their education may be able to get a loan from the Kibbie fund.

Alumni honor super seniors

The University of Idaho Alumni Association will present awards to outstanding U of I seniors Wednesday. The seniors to be honored were chosen on the basis of their academic records and their participation in campus and community affairs.

Thirty-three students were selected for honors and they will be recognized at a dinner at Cavanaugh's in Moscow, according to Nancy Riordan, assistant director of Alumni Relations.

The students were nominated by their colleges. A committee chose the final honorees. Students to be honored were required to have 93 credits or more with a 3.5 grade point average.

The address will be given by Dennis Harwick, vice president of the Alumni Association. Also attending will be Ron McMurray, Alumni Association President, and U of I President Richard Gibb and his wife Betty.

Riordan said plans are to have the dinner become an annual event. Tickets are available at the Alumni Office through today.

police blotter

...Ed Anderson of Whitman Hall reported that he discovered his wallet missing from his desk about 10 p.m. Nov. 11. The brown, nylon, single-fold wallet contained several pieces of identification, a credit card, receipts, pictures, lab key, a room key, and three dollars cash. Anderson's room was unlocked at the time the wallet was taken.

...Ezim Taheri, 314 South Polk Street, reported that his 1980 Mazda RX7 was struck Nov. 12 by a hit-and-run driver in parking lot 29, just east of the SUB. About $200 worth of damage was done to Taheri's car.

...Duane R. Olive, Kamiah, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of battery in second district court in Moscow Monday. Olive battered Jeffrey C. Winkler of Pi Kappa Alpha in the ASUI Kibbie Dome Saturday night. Olive paid $50 fine and court costs, and was ordered to make restitution if needed.

...Cindy Jones of Steel House reported Thursday that her car was struck by a hit-and-run driver between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Oct. 20. About $300 worth of damage was done to Jones's car, which was legally parked in lot 46 at the time of the accident.

...Cory J. Firzloff of Phi Delta Theta was arrested Friday and charged with reckless driving, failing to obey a traffic direction, and obstructing and resisting a police officer.

Firzloff allegedly drove his 1974 Mazda eastbound in a westbound lane on Sixth Street between Rayburn and Asbury on Nov. 8. When stopped by police and asked to show his driver's license, Firzloff allegedly drove off without complying.

Firzloff posted $500 bond and is scheduled to appear in court on Nov. 24.

...Jeffrey L. Jurevic of Whitman Hall was arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs about 2 a.m. Saturday. He was released on $300 bond. He is scheduled to appear in court Nov. 20.

...U of I student Michael F. Murin, 207 West First Street, number 8, pleaded innocent Monday to charges of trespassing and disturbing the peace. Murin allegedly committed these offenses shortly before 5 p.m. Sunday at the Alpha Phi sorority, and he was arrested about 5 p.m. at the SUB. A pre-trial hearing is scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 30, and bond was set at $100. Murin had not posted bond as of press time Monday.

Catch a wayward

wind, look to the sky

... and fly high

To laugh at the clouds, to flirt with the sun; to float gently through the air and see all things in a new way. Somehow—I always dreamed of flying in a hot-air balloon.

One nippy morning, as I floated over Wallace Complex, drifted near the top floor of the library and hovered around the clock tower, my dream came true in a balloon called "Calypso."

"Calypso," a promotional effort by Little Big Men Pizza, started its journey on the playing fields west of Wallace Complex.

I was sort of disappointed when I first saw the small brown wicker basket set up on the grass. Barely three feet wide and five feet long, it looked like a sturdy laundry basket. But when the crew tipped it over and started pulling out yards and yards of filmy nylon, my excitement grew.

The balloon material was really limp in the beginning but soon started billowing as a large fan aimed cold air into the interior. Rippling and spreading in puffy segments over the ground, the balloon resembled half of a giant yellow pear; ripe with checks of blue, white, red, green, and purple.

When the propane-fired heater replaced the fan and heated the air, the balloon grew into the globular shape of a fat lightbulb and started to rise. Higher and higher floated the balloon over the wicker gondola, until the connecting ropes stretched to stop it. Now—fat and sassy and with an "ooga horn" strapped over the side, the "Calypso" was ready to be launched.

Except for "whooshes" of hot air into the balloon and a "honk" from the horn, the liftoff from the field was noiseless. There was only a slight wobble of the basket beneath my feet as the balloon rose slowly into a grey sky.

Tugged by a wayward wind, "Calypso" drifted to the south, and my tour of campus began.

Rooftops, tree tops, and the squares of empty tennis courts. As I leaned out of the gondola and looked down, I saw symmetry in miniature. Everything in the world below me was so small and appeared perfectly rounded, squared or curved. Except, that is, for the "little" jogger and his "little" dog who were running around a block.

"Good Morning!" I hollered. "Hellooo" was his teeny, tiny reply. "Honk, honk" went the ooga horn.

I kept waving and the horn kept honking as the "Calypso" floated by the occasional people on the ground. "Honk," went the horn when some people in a camper stuck their heads out their windows. "Honk" went the horn when a student walked out of the Art and Architecture Building.

Why does the "Calypso" carry the battered old ooga horn? "It's for the people who are left behind," said the balloon pilot.

Floating over well-known sidewalks, stretches of parking lots, and the fountain by the UCC, my mind drifted along with the course of the balloon.

Sun and earth and time all came together. The "Calypso" seemed almost suspended in mid-air but yet in motion above native earth.

"Dream away," laughed the clouds. "Hello," whispered the tree tops.

There were more people on the ground now; stirred out of their homes by the sight of a brightly-colored flying object against a winter sky. Barefoot and in houserobes, some scrambled for their cameras. With eyes opened wide and mittens to their mouths, little kids stood in amazement.

My air time was becoming limited, however. And since my journey had a beginning, it also had to have an ending. The field by Targhee Hall looked as promising a landing sight as any and the balloon pilot targeted the touchdown.

Down, down, down...and boomp. The clouds let go and gravity claimed me. My journey was over.

Once on the ground, the spectators arrived. Little tykes in parkas, big men in parkas, even two setters in fur coats. "Wow!" they exclaimed...and barked.

As champagne trickled over my hair in a 197-year-old tradition for all balloonists, I had only one thought of my own.

"Thank you, Calypso."

Vandals record first winning mark since 1976

by Bert Sahlberg
Sports Editor

Jerry Davitch and his Idaho Vandal football team accomplished their season goal Saturday night, knocking off Northern Arizona, 14-7, assuring the Vandals their first winning season since 1976.

The Vandals, now 4-2 in the Big Sky Conference and 6-4 on the year, close out the season on the road Saturday against Nevada-Reno.

"We were going for No. 6 win, and we wanted to be a winner in front of everybody at home," said a happy Jay Hawks who had a lot to do with the victory as did the rest of the defense. "I'm glad Idaho is now a winner."

The game had its ups and downs for the Vandals, mainly on the offensive side. Three times the Vandals found themselves inside the Lumberjack 20-yard line. Three times the Vandals fumbled.

But when the offense sputtered, the defense was there. Twice the Vandal defense shut-down the Lumberjacks inside the Vandal 30.

"It wasn't the kind of game that you could relax on," said Davitch. "But I thought it was a hard-hitting, well played game."

Chris Brockman, the Vandal punter, nailed a 62-yard punt after the Vandals first drive stopped.

But Northern Arizona, playing its last game of the season and shooting for a winning record also, drove the ball from its own 20 to the Vandal 11 in 14 plays. It looked like Idaho would have to wait until next week to clinch its winning record.

The Vandal defense quickly put a stop to that thought. Four times the Lumberjacks put the ball on the ground but only managed to gain six yards, and the defense held.

Again the Vandal offense found no running room and were forced to punt.

"They're one of the hardest hitting teams next to Boise State," said Vandal guard Dave Monico. "Their defensive line was huge."

But when Lumberjack quarterback Scott Lindquist stepped back to pass, the Vandals were waiting. Senior Carlton McBride picked off his fourth pass of the year to set up the Vandals' first scoring drive.

The Vandals used 16 plays and chewed up six and a half minutes on the clock for the score. The running of Ken Hobart, Terry Idler, and Tim Payne set up a one-yard run by Hobart.

Vandal place-kicker Pete O'Brien saw his streak of 16 straight extra points stopped when his extra-point try went wide to the right.

The Vandals got a big break when linebacker Sam Merriman jumped on a Lumberjack fumble to give the Vandals the ball on NAU's 30-yard line. Merriman had another big week leading the defense in tackles with 15 including five solo tackles.

Idaho marched 17 yards down to the 13, but a Hobart pitch to Idler was fumbled and the Vandal scoring drive was stopped.

"I just don't know about the turnovers," said Davitch after watching his team lose to Idaho

State 28-21 last week committing seven turnovers and committing three more this game. "We thought we should have had 28 points in this game."

Idaho again managed to march down to the NAU five-yard line, but another fumble ended the threat and the Vandals went into the lockerroom with a 6-0 lead.

The Vandals came out fired up in the second half and got things rolling on their second possession of the half.

Hobart, who was the Vandals' leading rusher with 116 yards on 27 carries, hit on only three of ten passes, but one was good to wide receiver Curtis Johnson, who made a diving catch for a 48-yard completion.

From the NAU 26, the Vandals only needed to run the same play twice. Idler on the option pitch got the touchdown from 22 yards out to give Idaho a 12-0 lead. Idler broke the 100-yard mark by picking up 101 yards on 17 carries. Idaho rolled up 259 yards on the ground in the game.

Hobart picked up the two-point conversion by rolling to his left after faking right on the run.

Both teams exchanged the ball twice and with 13 minutes left in the game, it looked like Idaho could post its second shutout of the year.

But Lumberjack star running back Williard Reaves had something to say about that. With a third-and-one situation on their own 29-yard line, NAU ran a student body right, and Reaves went 71 yards on the end sweep to cut the lead to 14-7.

Things looked grim when the Vandals coughed up their third fumble on their own 19 with seven minutes left to play.

Northern Arizona had a third-and-five situation after cornerback Greg Jennings broke up a Lindquist pass and Reaves gained five yards up the middle.

Lindquist then tried to dump the ball off to his tight end over the middle of the Vandal defense, but Vandal noseguard Steve Nelson knocked the ball down, setting up the biggest play of the game.

With a fourth-and-five situation, Lindquist dropped back to pass again but found an uninvited guest in Vandal strong safety Boyce Bailey. The freshman grabbed Lindquist but couldn't bring him down in time as Lindquist let go of a desperation pass. The pass, however, fell short of its receiver, and the Vandals took over.

"It was a real test for our defense," said Merriman. "We just had some break downs early but came out the second half and played well."

NAU had one last chance in the game, but three incompletions and a sack recorded by Vandal defensive end Monty Elder ended the Lumberjack hopes.

NAU got the better end of the statistics, picking up 382 yards in total offense compared to 325 for Idaho. The Lumberjacks also picked up 21 first downs.

Volleyball squad scores twice

It was a win, a win over a good team, but not necessarily a performance to brag about.

The Idaho volleyball team, champions of the Interstate League and seeded first in the upcoming regional tournament, defeated Eastern Washington University in its final home match of the year Saturday evening, but received a real test in the process.

The Vandal women defeated Eastern 15-11, 7-15, 15-12, 12-15, 15-4, but Amanda Burk spoke as if her team had lost.

"Eastern played eight games in a row which is very tiring. They could use that as an excuse—I certainly would," Burk said. "They were also playing on the road."

Idaho's coach went on to say the match brought her players back to reality, knowing they can be beat. "They needed to be scared...and they will be beat if they don't push hard. I imagine we'll have some pretty intense practice sessions this week," she said.

Prior to the victory over Eastern, Idaho defeated Whitworth College in three straight games, 15-13, 15-6, 15-11.

"I feel really good about the three-game win," Burk said. "They were missing one of their

$3.50 FEE INCREASE

Why we need it

DOES ASUI NEED A FEE INCREASE?

In the spring 1980 budget process, two ASUI departments were eliminated in the Presidential Budget Proposal.

Concerned with the possible eliminations of these two ASUI departments, the ASUI raised the price of the Gem of the Mountains to obtain financial self sufficiency and further reduced all departmental requests to squeeze out an operational budget to maintain its departments.

This year ASUI departments are as lean as operationally possible. Traditionally fee increases for ASUI have been unnecessary because of our departmental efficiency and the tremendous strides in revenue generation that have been obtained. For example, in 1974 the Argonaut projected $18,000 sales revenue. Today the Argonaut is projecting $67,700 of sales revenue. The Argonaut is but one of the ASUI revenue generating departments that has reduced student fees by generating its own income.

The student monies that are freed are channeled into service departments that do not generate an income such as Programs, Academics, Promotions, General S.U.B. Administration, Outdoor Department, KUOI-FM and the Student Bar Association. Therefore our revenue generating departments indirectly fund our student service departments.

Inflation has increased our operating expenses to the point where our potential to raise revenue internally to fund our service departments has been threatened. We must look to external sources of funding to maintain ASUI operations. This source is the proposed $3.50 ASUI student fee increase.

The fee was calculated by the ASUI Ways and Means Senate Sub-Committee in April 1980 based on zero-based budgeting procedures for all existing departmental requests:

DEPARTMENTAL REQUESTS	$264,252.00
LESS: Allowable budgetable funds.....	216,961.00
TOTAL ADDITIONAL FUNDS NEEDED TO MAINTAIN OPERATIONS	$ 47,291.00
FEE INCREASE NEEDED TO MAINTAIN CURRENT OPERATIONS PER STUDENT/ SEMESTER at 6,871 STUDENTS PER SEMESTER*	$3.44

Without the ASUI fee increase budgetary pressure will be placed on the non-income generating departments. For example, programs such as Parents Weekend, Homecoming, Coffee House, and Issues and Forums could be severely threatened for lack of funds. Equipment replacement at the Golf Course, and all departments would be unaffordable.

Tomorrow you will have the opportunity to accept or reject the proposed $3.50 ASUI fee.

It's your association of students, it's your decision.

$$\frac{$47,291.00}{13,742} = $3.44$$

Tonnemaker nabs spot in NCAA national meet

It was a disappointing day for the Idaho men's cross country team in the District Seven NCAA qualifying meet Saturday at the Eagle Hills Golf Course in Boise, but for Kole Tonnemaker, it was a big day.

The meet, which combines all eight Big Sky Conference schools with the nine Western Athletic Conference schools, saw the Vandals finish tenth overall and sixth in the conference.

Tonnemaker, however, finished 11th out of 109 runners and qualified to run in the NCAA national meet Nov. 24, in Wichita, Kan.

Tonnemaker, who finished fifth among Big Sky runners, qualified the hard way as he lost his shoe with more than a mile and a half left on the 10,000 meter course. Tonnemaker ran the rest of the race with just his right shoe and was timed at 29:59.

Gary Gonser was the next Vandal finisher in 26th place in 30:32 while the third senior, Ray Prentice ran 50th in 31:08.

NCAA defending champion UTEP won the meet while Nevada-Reno and Montana finished second and third respectively. All three teams qualified for the national competition.

Behind Montana in the Big Sky was Northern Arizona with 147 points, Weber State 154, Idaho State 160, Idaho 278, Boise State 284, and Montana State 304.

The Idaho running game, led by Ken Hobart (9) and Terry Idler (33), proved to be too much for Northern Arizona Saturday night. The Vandals stopped the Lumberjacks 14-7, clinching their first winning record since 1976.

Volleyball

better players, but they're still a very good team." Whitworth is the defending Division III Regional champion. "Our team's ability to block impressed me in that match," Burk added.

In the Whitworth match, Pam Ford, Jenny Rothstrom and Yvonne Smith had 11, 10 and 9 kills respectively.

Rothstrom also recorded eight stuff-blocks while Karen Dolan and Beth Johns had five apiece. Linda Kelling was credited with 24 assists in the Whitworth contest with Ford close behind at 20.

Against Eastern, Rothstrom made 16 kills, which was quite an accomplishment, according to Burk. "Jenny plays middle-blocker so she's not set that much. Hitting 16 is quite an accomplishment because it means most balls she handled she put on the floor." Rothstrom also had four solo stuffs, which especially pleased Burk.

Rose Hoffert performed well for the Vandals both offensively and defensively. "She served a bunch of aces tonight," Burk said.

Sharples wins national title

Winning a race with 259 others behind you is one thing, but winning a race when the other 259 represent the finest in the nation is something else.

So was the script Saturday in Seattle where Patsy Sharples became the premier Division II competitor in women's cross country, winning the 5,000-meter event in 17:44.

The freshman from South Africa outdistanced second place finisher Nancy Giseka of South Dakota State by eight seconds.

Sharples' performance was the first title of such magnitude to ever come to Idaho.

The AIAW Championships were held on the Tyhee Valley Golf Course, one of the toughest courses the Vandals have ever encountered.

"We couldn't be happier for Patsy and for all our runners," said Idaho Coach Roger Norris. "They did a terrific job."

South Dakota State won the team title, and the injury-hampered Vandals came in seventh.

Sophomore Sonia Blackstock, who has been running at her teammate Sharples' heels all season finished ninth in the race to earn All American honors also. Her time was 18:26.6.

Other Vandal competitors included Penny Messenger who placed 62nd in 19:26, Lee Ann Roloff was 73rd with a 19:31 clocking, while Robin McMicken finished 124th with a time of 20:17.

Vandals win exhibition opener

by Kevin Warnock
Sports Writer

Ron Maben will again jump center to start Idaho basketball games this year and the reason was never more evident than Friday night in Memorial Gym.

Coach Don Monson's Vandals were locked in a pre-season contest with all the intensity of the conference playoffs against Athletes in Action-Canada when Maben, a 6-5 senior from Milwaukee, Wis., put an end to a late AIA rally with a dramatic block of a Harry Sheehy jumper.

Although the game was far from over at that last minute point, it seemed to give Idaho the momentum to carry them to a 65-63 exhibition game victory before 2,500 fans.

Being an exhibition game, the match won't count on the Vandals season record. Monson was hoping to let more players see action, but things didn't work out that way.

"No matter what kind of a game it is you always end up trying to win," Monson said. "A crucial situation is not the time to put someone in to test them." The whole second half was crucial.

With 4:12 left in the game and the score knotted at 61-61, AIA went into a slow-down game and let the clock run down below two minutes. Idaho, somewhat familiar with what a four-corner offense is designed to do, forced a turnover but couldn't capitalize as Kenny Owens lost the ball out of bounds below AIA's basket seconds later.

A very fortunate AIA team then went back to the stall until the 59-second mark when Paul Renfro, a 6-10 graduate of Texas-Arlington and AIA's leading scorer on the night, was caught pushing underneath and assessed an offensive foul.

After Maben hit his third and fourth free throws in as many attempts, Idaho had a 63-61 lead.

AIA had a chance to tie the game, but Maben rejected an AIA shot. In the chase after the loose ball, Melvin Williams was called for a foul when he ran over Owens.

Still, Idaho gave AIA another chance when Dan Forge couldn't get the ball in play in the five seconds allotted, and the ball changed hands.

This time it was Phil Hopson providing the defensive heroics. AIA had worked the ball inside to Williams whose layup was promptly rejected by the 6-6 sophomore from Portland.

Brian Kellerman was fouled by Sheehy on the play and sank both free throws to give the Vandals the lead 65-61.

Sheehy brought his team back to within two on a long jumper but missed at the buzzer with the same shot.

The Vandals lost to this same AIA team last year 80-76 but played with experience and more polish this year, according to Sheehy.

"I have to give these guys a lot of credit — they're playing better together this year," Sheehy said after the game. "They're doing the things they need to more than last year."

Monson, who had much praise for Sheehy's shooting abilities, agreed experience helped and pointed to rebounding as one of Idaho's strong points in the game. "I thought we rebounded very well. I don't remember a game last year that was as good." Maben and Hopson had nine and eight boards, respectively.

The game did provide Idaho fans with a chance to see Kenny Owens, a 6-0 transfer from Treasure Valley Community College in Ontario, Ore.

"Owens has the quickness we need. If we're going to have a fastbreak, he'll have to manhandle the ball most of the time," Monson said.

Defensively, Monson was pleased with what he saw. "I thought we adjusted well for the first game," he said. AIA was successful in getting the ball under the Vandals match-up zone defense at times, but overall they were held in check.

"They really limited our number of shots. It's not unusual for us to get 80-85 shots per game," said Sheehy, a 6-5 guard from Williams College. "Their guards got back quick — they didn't even go in the key for rebounds."

Jeff Brudie, a 6-11 senior from Idaho Falls, agreed. "We got back on defense really well. We lost a few offensive rebounds maybe, but we did all right," Brudie said.

Kellerman led a balanced Idaho scoring attack with 14 points. Owens followed with 13. Brudie chipped in 11 and Maben had 10.

Phil Hopson scored eight points, all in the first half playing for the injured Gordie Herbert. "I was satisfied with Phil's performance," Monson said, "he sure had a big blocked shot at the end."

The Vandals will open their season in Lincoln, Neb. against the Cornhuskers Nov. 29.

Civil suit brought against student, Sigma Nus

Moscow resident Donald Alan Greene filed a civil suit Friday in Idaho District Court in Moscow against University of Idaho student Ben Rae and the Sigma Nu fraternity in connection with an incident at a Sigma Nu party in September.

Greene accuses Rae of battering and assaulting him at the Sept. 27 party. The suit also charges that Rae was acting on behalf of the Sigma Nu at the time.

According to the civil complaint filed in Second District Court, Greene and some friends were "led into" the party by someone who claimed to be a Sigma Nu member.

Once inside, the complaint says, Greene was approached by a group of Sigma Nu members, including Rae, and asked to leave the house.

Greene said he would leave as soon as he got two of his companions who were on the dance floor, the complaint says.

According to the complaint, "Defendant Ben Rae then intentionally struck Plaintiff (Greene) in the face with his fist, splitting open (Greene's) lip and causing (Greene) to bleed profusely from the mouth."

Greene left the Sigma Nu house with his friends as soon as they returned from the dance floor, according to the complaint.

The suit charges that Greene was not given a reasonable amount of time to leave, and that Rae used an unreasonable amount of force in getting Greene to leave.

Greene is asking for $200 damages for physical pain and suffering, $200 damages for mental distress and anguish, and $500 punitive damages, plus attorney's fees and court costs.

Jerry Wicks, Sigma Nu president, declined to comment about the case until he talked with the Sigma Nu's attorney.

Greene is being represented by Moscow attorney William W. Thompson Jr., and the Sigma Nus are being represented by attorney W.C. MacGregor Jr. of Grangeville.

Pikes offer escort service

"Take a Hike With a Pike!" That is the slogan used on Pi Kappa Alpha signs posted around the U of I campus. Because of recent fears voiced by U of I women, the fraternity has decided to offer an escort service.

The escort service is not a gimmick, but according to Roger Rowe, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, a genuine courtesy. Escorts are chosen by "whoever-is-free" techniques. It is strictly voluntary.

All escorts are free of charge. Notice beforehand is helpful. Pi Kappa Alpha asks that women call the fraternity at 885-7926.

Opera Workshop: music, dance, drama

Charles Walton, professor of music and director of Opera Workshop says he tries to select operas that are entertaining and suitable to the various voice ranges of his students.

The University of Idaho Opera Workshop will present two comical modern operas by Menotti, "Emilia Goes To The Ball" and "The Old Maid And The Thief," Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. in the School of Music recital hall. The Opera Workshop is a dimension of art that has stimulated the cultural climate on campus for many years.

Music, dance and drama fused together and performed by college students are expressed through Opera Workshop.

The expressive musical form, opera, is frequently associated with images of crazy Italians singing ear-shattering dramatic verses in a foreign language and dancing to and fro on stage.

The performance of opera in English and the recognition that opera is "theater" as well as music are two factors that have diminished these images and contributed to a growing popularity of the art.

The college Opera Workshop emerged in the early twenties as the interest in opera increased in the United States and educational institutions became aware of opera's cultural possibilities.

Walton says the majority of students attending the Opera Workshop performance go to be entertained. The music, the costumes, the stage sets and the dramatic action provide an emotional and intellectual appeal for the audience.

Walton encourages students to attend performances such as the opera to develop an appreciation for the arts. He added that college is a time "for the opening of doors to experiences you have and may never have again."

Radio: the merger and your dial

by Parker Van Hecke

I was running up and down the ol' radio dial the other day checking out the different sounds of the multitude of radio stations blowing smoke into Moscow. Having done this periodically for several years, I see an evolutionary trend which, to remain consistent with the entertainment industry, I will express lyrically. This is sung to the tune of "Nothing Could Be Finer."

Nothing could be bleaker than a listen to your speaker playing radio. All the stations sharing in a mass of blase blaring on the radio.....

Radio stations, in all their diversity, are sounding more and more alike. In an effort to fine tune formats, it seems the subtle differences escape even the target demographic and, consequently, all sound the same. The bottom line, of course, being dollars. "Hit" music and "Beautiful" music make money.

But there's always public radio, unobtrusively chugging away with excellent, albeit sometimes dull, information and fine arts. Now, public radio has its problems, too, and they're mainly financial, but the non-commercial basis of support allows for alternative programming. Which brings me to the whole point of this article.

There is something exciting in the works for our area concerning public radio. You may have heard that KUID-FM/TV and KWSU-AM/TV will soon merge into one telecommunication center with new call letters. There will be one TV license, one AM license and one FM license. Now, neat things will happen to TV and AM, too, but for now, let's limit this to the FM station. In light of the fact that nothing is carved in stone, perhaps this is a good time to make some forecasts on how the character of KUID-FM will change.

First of all, it will not be KUID-FM any more. It (also the TV and AM stations) will be assigned new call letters, such as KARG-AM/FM/TV. The most significant difference will be the FM's access to National Public Radio programs. Right now KUID-FM has none. After the merger, the FM station will have full use of all those terrific programs like All Things Considered, Morning Edition, NPR Recital Hall, Options in Education, Earplay, and so on. This will be coupled with KUID-FM's already strong and thriving fine arts programming plus the tradition of jazz and album music at night. The FM station will be staffed with broadcast journalism professionals to offer meaningful and authoritative news/public affairs. It's also important to point out that there will be positions in the operations for competent students to gain practical experience, mainly journalistic in nature.

It's obvious how important the merger is for the growth of KUID-FM. But, most important of all, is the potential here to develop a professional, versatile, substantive radio service that really "serves" the area: Public Affairs, Fine Arts, General Education, Information, National Public Radio, FM Stereo with simulcasting capability. It's all designed to give more bang for the buck.

When will this come to pass? I would suspect that 1981 will be the year for the major changes with refinements reaching into 1982. Also, remember that this is just one-third of the merger and big things will be happening in TV and AM, too.

What is the future for the KUID stations if we don't merge? Well, don't tell anyone, but yesterday an insurance man came into my office and took his calendar back!

High school seniors spend week here competing for Idaho Junior Miss title

Twenty-eight high school senior girls arrived in Moscow Saturday to begin their week of competition for the title of Idaho's 1981 Junior Miss.

Senior girls from all across the state compete in local pageants and receive scholarships to continue their educations. These local winners come to Moscow each year, representing their county, community or school to vie for more scholarships and perhaps the opportunity to represent Idaho at the national Junior Miss Pageant in Mobile, Ala.

During their stay in Moscow, the girls will stay with volunteer host families and will be guests at several events sponsored by the City of Moscow. Rehearsals will be held each day leading up to the preliminary performances on Nov. 20 and 21, and the final performance on Saturday, Nov. 22.

Contestants are judged on scholastic achievement, poise and personal appearance, creative and performing arts, youth fitness and a personal interview. Approximately $6,000 in scholarships will be awarded to contestants this year.

Once again, the pageant will be held in the University of Idaho's Administration Building Auditorium, and tickets are available at the door.

Guitar music featured tonight

A variety of music for guitar will be presented by the University of Idaho Guitar Ensemble at 8 tonight in the Music Building Recital Hall.

Included in the program are Six Dances by G.F. Handel, Micropiezas by Leo Brouwer, Duo Opus 34 by Fernando Carulli and Four Dances by Teilman Susato.

James Reid, assistant professor of music, directs the ensemble which was formed in 1979. All are U of I students.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Do not enter signs to be posted at Sixth Street entrance to Rayburn

Beginning at noon today, access to Rayburn Street from Sixth Street will be blocked, according to Sgt. Dan Weaver of the University of Idaho campus police.

"Do Not Enter" signs will be posted at the Sixth Street entrance to Rayburn, between the Wallace Complex and Theophilus Tower Residence Halls. Formerly, there was limited access to that portion of the street from Sixth, Weaver said.

Persons who park in the lot by the Theophilus Tower can still enter it from the Pullman Highway or from Paradise Creek Street, but there will be no through traffic going north. The change is an attempt to make the street safer for pedestrians crossing between the two residence halls.

The change was decided on after a meeting among the Campus Planning Committee, Physical Plant representatives, the city engineer and the campus police, Weaver said.
