Water and wire cutters disable JEB computer

by Dan Eakin
Managing Editor

Vandals snipped wires, poured water in terminals and mini-computer circuitry, and stole floppy storage discs from the Janssen Engineering Building computer room Sunday morning.

"We've been racking our brains the last day or two trying to figure it out," said Robert Rinker, general engineering instructor.

Rinker said the theft and vandalism appears to be somewhat calculated in that only equipment related directly to the operation of the computer system in the building was damaged.

A Tektronix graphics terminal, the most expensive piece of equipment in the room, and a printer recently moved to the room were not damaged.

Rinker said only someone who knew something about the equipment could have done the kind of damage that was done—snipping vital wires and knowing which instruments to damage.

"Someone could have come in with a hammer and done much more damage," he said.

Rinker said he wasn't sure how the person or persons entered the building—there were no signs of forced entry—but he said entrance to the computer room was gained by using a key stolen from his own key chain. He guessed that the building was also entered with use of a key.

"Very premeditated" is how Rinker described the vandalism which left computer terminal components literally floating in their chasis and corroded vital circuitry. The computer was on at the time, Rinker said, which caused more damage to the equipment than if the computer had been off.

Rinker said water damage and floppy disc thefts will affect work done by 25-30 students, but that the disc thefts will not necessarily affect faculty or graduate student research projects because they usually carry their discs around with them.

"This doesn't hurt anyone but the students," Rinker said.

He was hopeful that the system, located in JEB 226, would be back to full capacity by the end of the semester with at least partial service back by the end of the week. The disc thefts will set student projects back, but, Rinker said, the information on those discs is of little value to anyone except the people who were using them.

He said the estimated damage would probably be less than $5,000 because the mini-computer appears to be working and the stolen discs only cost about $5 apiece.

Wires were cut and water poured into the machines. As of yesterday afternoon there had been no accurate damage estimate, but was guessed by Rinker to be somewhat less than $5,000.

Sergeant Dan Weaver, campus police chief, said a crime prevention officer will be examining the building in the near future for security problems. The officer will then prepare a report and present it to Engineering Dean J. Richard Williams, Weaver said.

Regents, ASI to meet

The State Board of Education/Board of Regents and the Associated Students of Idaho will meet in Moscow Thursday and Friday for regular meetings.

The Board will meet in the Galena Room of the SUB. On Thursday's agenda will be final notice hearings for Idaho State University's student fees and charges, and proposed amendments to the Board policy manual.

The agendas of the four university's will also be considered on Thursday.

Friday's business will include sessions on vocational rehabilitation, vocational education and general boardwork.

Sessions both days begin at 8:30 a.m.

The Associated Students of Idaho will meet at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Chief's Room of the SUB.

According to ASUI Vice President Greg Cook, chairman of the ASI, the meeting will basically be a reorganizational and goal-setting meeting.

Cook said a new committee will also be formed to consider things as all window and door locks, alarms, and building lighting. Weaver said the officer will probably just look at a particular area of the building rather than the whole building because of a lack of manpower to do such an extensive security check. A security check has never been done on the Janssen Building.

the ASI's stance on tuition. This is needed because both Idaho State University and Boise State University have stated that they favor some sort of tuition, while the University of Idaho has opposed it, Cook said.

Order your caps and gowns NOW

Students expecting to participate in spring 1982 University of Idaho commencement exercises can order their caps and gowns at the UI Alumni Office today.

Faculty members needing caps, gowns and hoods should order them at the same time. All graduates must know which degree they will receive and which college they will march with so the correct regalia can be ordered.

Orders will be taken during regular office hours, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For more information, contact the Alumni Office, 885-6154.

Street work begins May, maybe

Street closure construction on Campus Drive near the Administration and Education Buildings could begin by May if detailed plans are approved by the city engineer, according to Nels Reese, director of facility planning.

Reese said the completed plans are being sent to the city for review, and approval must be obtained before construction begins.

It was thought earlier that construction might start by April, but Reese said a large amount of department work has caused the street closure project to lag behind. He said the department is also waiting to see how much money is budgeted for the closures.

The decision on who will do the work, the Physical Plant or a contracting firm, is still uncertain, Reese said.

The university is planning to close seven campus streets, designating new one-way streets and creating additional parking spaces. Initial modifications will cost $95,000. Final changes will take five years at a total estimated cost of $400,000. Money to pay for the modifications will come from the Physical Plant budget and donations.

Plans for the closed streets include rolled curbs with raised sidewalks, benches, trees and grass. Handicapped, service and emergency vehicles will be allowed limited access to the pedestrian zones (closed streets).

The Moscow City Council unanimously adopted a resolution in November approving the proposed modifications for campus streets.

Reese said the Facility Planning Department is working on new signs indicating the restricted use of the closed streets. The signs will be installed upon completion of construction.

Political

Council to consider new bookstore proposal

by Debbie Brisboy
Political Editor

The Faculty Council will consider supporting a proposal for a new bookstore building at its meeting today.

Other agenda items include a proposed change in the structure of the Faculty Affairs Committee and a committee recommendation establishing sabbatical leaves for physicians from the Student Health Service.

Under special orders of business, the council will pick up discussion on the policy of tenure review, which was tabled in October after a proposal had been presented to the council by an ad hoc committee on competence review.

A memo sent to the council from the Bookstore Committee asks for the council's approval of the early construction of a new building.

According to the committee report the building would have 20,000 square feet of floor space and benefit the student body by allowing for a larger inventory of merchandise and making shopping easier, especially for handicapped students.

The report adds that bookstore earnings would increase based on increased sales, and financing for the building would be by bond or commercial loan, the same way all permanent university buildings are financed. The cost, based on current estimates, would be approximately $2.1 million.

The proposed change for the structure of the Faculty Affairs Committee would not change the number of members, but would limit the number of departmental administrators on the committee to two. The change would also require the chairman to be appointed from those members who are not administrative members.

The Student Health Services Advisory Committee is proposing to the council that physicians take a sabbatical leave every 6-8 years to allow them to learn new techniques, treatments and diagnostic procedures.

However, Faculty Secretary Bruce Bray responded on the memo that another type of leave is permitted under the Faculty-Staff handbook.

According to the handbook, "At the discretion of the dean or equivalent officer, an employee may be granted administrative leave with pay when the state or the university will benefit as a result of such leave."

Bray said in the proposal that it appears a physician could be granted the "equivalent of a sabbatical leave without a change in policy, if the leave can be funded from resources allocated to the Student Health Service or from funds that can be allocated in the future."

Better offer lures KUID employees away

Two more employees have resigned from KUID-TV as a result of legislative budget cuts affecting the station.

Chief Engineer John Gray resigned to take a job as chief engineer at KIMO, an ABC affiliate in Anchorage, Alaska.

Senior Producer Larry Gilstad also resigned to take a better job elsewhere. Gilstad and his wife, Antonea, a Pullman travel agent, will open a branch office of a Coeur d'Alene travel agency in Post Falls.

According to a UI press release, Gilstad said he left because he didn't perceive any opportunity to continue the kind of work that drew him to this station originally—production of quality documentaries.

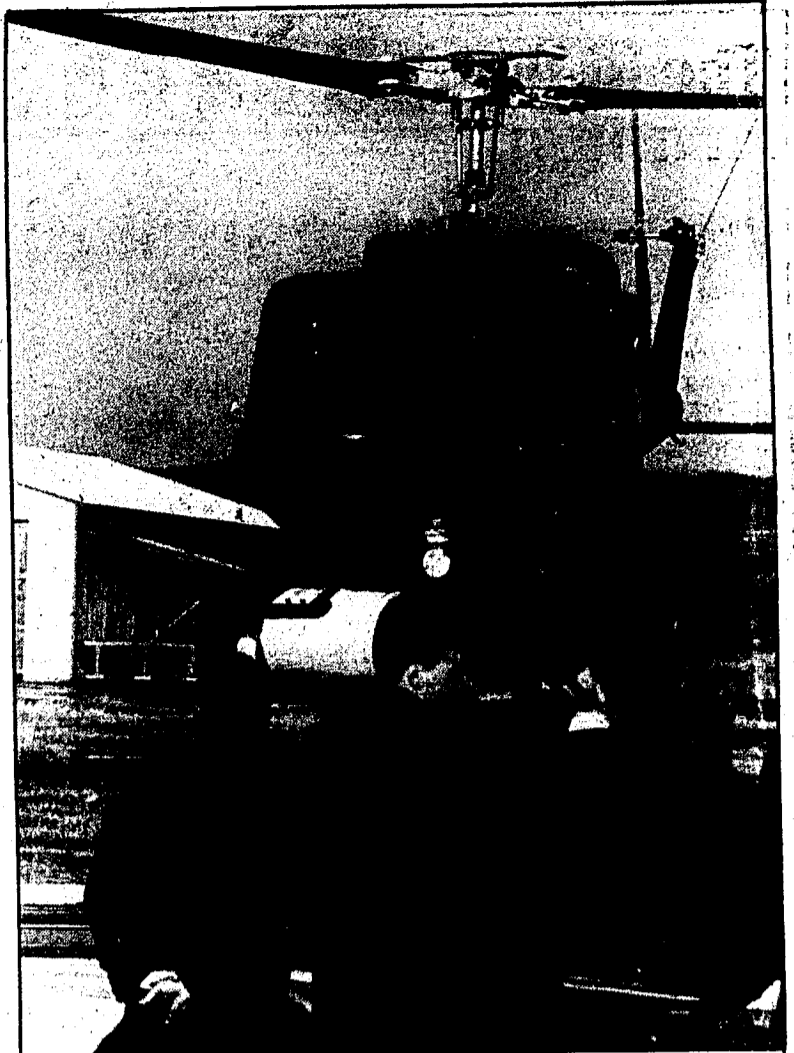

Art Hook, general manager of KUID-TV said it would be "tough to get along without them (Gray and Gilstad) if we continue to do the kinds of things we're doing (production of local and documentary programming), but we're winding down for the summer."

KUID Festival earns $28,000

KUID raised $28,274 during their "Festival" pledge drive.

The money raised will stay in North Idaho.

"We received less money this year than last year because the previous year an announcement had been made that public television would lose money," said Art Hook, general manager for KUID.

Big shots

Some very important people are going to be in town this week. The State Board of Education/Board of Regents meeting is being held this Thursday and Friday in the SUB Galena Room.

Higher Education is the main attraction. All students who are interested in the welfare of the University of Idaho and how big their checks will have to be at registration next fall MUST attend.

On Thursday, the Board will convene at 8:30 a.m. to begin discussion. The sessions which pertain most to students in Moscow will begin with the joint session at 9 a.m. The University of Idaho is on the agenda for 11 a.m.

The other universities will also be discussed during the day. Final joint session will be from 1:45 p.m. to 3 p.m.

There is a definite smell of fee increase in the air, (and you thought it was the volcano!) Please go to this meeting and show the Regents just how much we CAN afford.

Celebrate

The University of Idaho Alumni Association is giving us a new tradition. The Second Annual Silver and Gold Day, is a chance to celebrate the founding of our university.

Tomorrow marks a "worldwide salute to the University of Idaho. On this day we recognize what we are together... We are a family—students, parents, professors, alumni and friends. Showing our colors—silver and gold—(Not black and yellow). Acknowledging that we are a part of this great university, its heritage and tradition."

Thanks to hard work of UI Alumni Director, Flip Kleffner (also a former ASUI President in 1954-55), and Assistant Alumni Director Nancy Riordan, a day has been planned to include everyone on campus.

Events include an Open House from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Alumni Office. A reception will be held for Jerry Kramer, 1958 UI graduate and former Green Bay Packer and Vandal football player, at 10 a.m. President Gibb and several deans will attend.

There will be a free ASUI sponsored junk food bash on the Administration lawn at 1 p.m. The goodies are free, and KUID will provide the music. Bring a frisbee or hackey or whatever.

At 3 p.m. there will be a tree planting at the golf course. Everyone is invited to come and plant their own tree. Please bring a shovel if you can. And, whoever participates gets treated to a free barbeque afterward, sponsored by the Golf Course Board.

The day will be finished off at 9 p.m. on the Administration Building steps. The jazz band will do the pre-show, followed by a reading of Governor Evans' proclamation of Silver and Gold Day.

The UI Vandaleers will give a special in-town concert of Idaho songs, and everyone will join in singing the alma mater at 10 p.m. along with the bells.

Area businesses have donated tokens which will be distributed, offering a wide variety of discounts.

Tomorrow promises to be tradition-setting at its best, not to mention a lot of fun. Show your colors and participate in Silver and Gold Day.

On imperialism and sheep

Lewis Day

Picture poor Argentina: deprived of her southernmost province, the Islas Malvinas, the South American republic has swiftly and forcefully moved to retake her territory with its 1,500 people and 450,000 sheep. Now comes the United Nations Security Council, those abettors of colonialism, with the nerve to rebuke the peace-loving Argentine government because it has exercised its territorial prerogative. Shame, shame.

The crisis in the Falkland Islands has a good deal of potential for the comedians of the world, and the sad thing about that is it also has great potential for becoming a major catastrophe.

Since the last Peron regime, Argentina has been sinking ever faster into the morass of social chaos. Inflation seems to use the Plate River Republic as a training ground for the havoc it wreaks on the rest of us, the military has been consistent in its wholesale rejection of even the most basic of human rights, and fullscale revolution has simmered just below the boiling point. Perhaps the leaders, if we can truly refer to them as such (and that's granting them more than they deserve), saw the approaching end. Maybe the cauldron of dissent was coming precipitously close to overflowing. A knowledge of impending revolt could spark a marvelous diversionary tactic such as the invasion and reclamation of the Islas Malvinas from the wicked imperialist, John Bull.

It can't be said that the Argentine government is inconsistent in its claim to the islands (these islands are some of the bleakest inhabited parcels of real estate on the globe). They aren't. They are a little surprising in their final resolve to put some muscle behind all their bluster. But, impending social upheaval is usually a good motivator.

What substance does the Argentinian claim have? Not much. The British claim of sovereignty over the Falklands dates to 1592, when an English navigator is said to have discovered the bleak, windswept islands. Good, the score at that time was: Britain-1, Argentina-0. Well, then the British traded off with the Spanish and French, eventually abandoning their settlement in 1774. Argentina, newly independent in 1820, claimed the islands and sent settlers. The British, dissatisfied with such perfidy in a crown colony, roared back and evicted the Argentinians in 1833. New settlers were brought in, and the islands became the sleepy backwater they are today.

What is ridiculously funny is the idea the Argentine claim is based on—the Treaty of Tor-desillas. Remember that one? That's where Portugal and Spain, with a little help from their friends at the Vatican, divided up the world between them. Well, ain't that swell! Since Argentina considers itself a successor state to the Spanish side of the deal, tah-dah, it has the right of sovereignty over the Falklands...uh,...Islas Malvinas.

Not much has been said of the islanders themselves. They seem to have been left out of the deal altogether. Argentina says they must be Argentinians, whether they like it or not. In the Falklands, virtually all the inhabitants—those, that is, who aren't sheep—are of British heritage. They speak English, at least I guess they do, and their customs, reportedly, are English. So why can't they be what, and who, they want to be? I don't know, and any rational person out there probably doesn't either. I always thought sovereignty came from a mandate and from the consent of those affected. It seems the people of the Falklands have some sort of set-up with the British (call it a social contract, and read John Locke) which is to their liking. There hasn't been any significant liberation movement afoot among the mutton chops, has there?

If Argentina really wants to help those who are the victims of an oppressive regime, let them liberate their own people. If colonialism is such a big concern, why don't the yahoos in the Pink House (Casa Rosa) stop behaving like some nineteenth century gunboat diplomats, and free their own people from the tyranny they've endured for most of the 150 years Argentina has been independent?

After the Islas Malvinas have been freed from the wicked imperialists, the social ills which threaten Argentina will still be there. What will be next, the liberation of the British Isles themselves?

Success and service

Editor,

On behalf of the men and women of Alpha Phi Omega, I would like to thank all the people who came down and interviewed for admittance to the organization. The quality of applicants was high and the selections difficult. APO is a national service fraternity and very active on campus and in the community. It's continued success and service to the community depends upon those folks who turn out each year and we are grateful. I would also like to congratulate our 31 new pledges, and wish them good luck with the coming year of hard work.

Unacceptable

Editor,

Little has been heard about the shuffle of hundreds of students between the Theophilus Tower and the Wallace Complex in order to remove all men from the Tower. Some students are even unaware that the university intends to have an all-female Tower next year.

Why is the student body silent on this issue? Because the housing officers and their student lackeys have convinced students that our feelings and opinions are irrelevant in shaping university policy regardless of how directly it affects us. These are the same people who assert with absolute certainty that the male eviction from the Tower is irreversible and all resistance is in vain. Not only is this assertion wrong, but it also demonstrates an apathy which is not, or at least should not, be characteristic of college students. We do have a voice in affairs which concern us. If that voice is not heard and heeded, then it is simply not loud enough.

This issue concerns not only Tower and Complex residents but all students—off-campus and on-campus, Greek and independent—who want to influence decisions which affect them. If the living environment of hundreds of students is unfavorably changed despite, or worse yet, without numerous and vehement objections, all students are in danger of being subjected to arbitrary actions of the university.

Today it is the Tower and Complex residents who are being treated unfairly. Who will it be tomorrow if a student uproar is not heard? SPEAK OUT! Student silence demonstrates student acceptance. This flagrant disregard of student wishes is clearly unacceptable.

Do 'em a favor

Editor,

Attention all rock and rollers! Time to get warmed up for the Arbor Day sock-hop coming up on Saturday night at the SUB Ballroom. The dance is a benefit for the Citizens for Environmental Quality, who are currently trying to raise money for a lawsuit that would prevent the Forest Service from spraying herbicides in our forests this spring. Peter Basoa will be spinning your favorite discs and the new jazz-rock band, Eclipse, will be there to provide us with live music as well. Tickets can be purchased in advance at the SUB or the Moscow Food Co-op, or at the door on Saturday night.

So dust off your dancing shoes, people. Here's a chance to do our forests a favor and have fun while we're doing it.

Gratitude

Editor,

The UI ski team would like to thank Carl Killsgaard and June Reynolds for their continuous efforts in making this year a successful season. They twice provided us with transportation at times when we otherwise would have been unable to attend important races. For one of these races, regionals, they also obtained short-notice housing for us with some very generous alums.

We also wish to extend our gratitude to Terry Armstrong who provided funding, enabling the team to attend nationals; the ASUI, who throughout the year generously provided funding for lift tickets; and the registrars office for handling our eligibility and entry forms.

Police say "License your bike!"

Bicycle owners who fail to license their bikes may have the vehicles impounded, according to Moscow Police Chief Gail Peterson.

Peterson said no bikes have been impounded since an ordinance allowing police to seize unlicensed bikes was passed three weeks ago. The new ordinance gives teeth to an old law which required bikes to be licensed. Peterson said he hopes voluntary compliance with the law will make enforcement unnecessary.

"The license law is to enable the police to identify stolen bikes and get them back to their owners," Peterson said.

Bike theft is a major problem in Moscow: Bikes worth $14,000 were reported stolen last year, Peterson said.

Most people do not keep the serial numbers of their bikes, so when police do recover a stolen bike, there is no way to return it. The police can't arbitrarily give the bike away to a person who claims, but can't prove, he owns a bike police have recovered, according to Peterson.

Licenses cost $1 and can be purchased at the downtown police office. If a bike is seized, the owner must pay a $10 fine, plus the $1 license fee to get the bike back.

Besides the city's licensing law, cyclists are required to follow state vehicle codes for bicycle operation, Peterson said. Among other things, the vehicle code says cyclists must obey traffic laws, and a light is required for night riding.

"We'll cite a person who runs a stop sign on a bike, the same way we'll cite someone who runs a sign in their car," Peterson said.

UI literary magazine Snapdragon cover contest

A cover design contest for Snapdragon magazine will result in a $50 prize for the winning contestant. A black and white photograph or other artwork suitable for a 7 x 8½ inch cover should be submitted to the Humanities office in the University of Idaho Library by May 13.

Snapdragon is a Palouse region literary and art magazine supported by the UI Library, School of Communication and Department of English. It is published twice a year.

The winning cover design will appear on the fall issue of the magazine, which will be available in late November or early December.

Anybody is eligible for this contest. Entrants are asked to accompany their artwork with their names, addresses and phone numbers, and to include forwarding addresses if they are not going to be in the area during the summer.

Karen Buxton, managing editor of Snapdragon and library assistant, said judges will look for a work with snapdragon flowers in it, although other features can be emphasized.

Buxton said they will also consider an entry's artistic design, cost of reproduction and general reproducibility. "It has to be something that will reproduce nicely but inexpensively," she said.

The winning design becomes the property of Snapdragon. All others will be returned to the artists.

For more information, call the Humanities Library, 885-6584.

Campus Post Office has more boxes

The newly remodeled campus post office has an additional 372 post office boxes available for students to rent, according to Postmaster Daniel Bosse.

"We had a waiting list so long for post office boxes, we finally quit taking applications," Bosse said.

Now, after replacing the uneconomical self-service center in the office with the new boxes, the campus post office can better serve customer needs, according to Bosse. Most of the additional boxes still are available for renting.

The remodeling, financed by the U.S. Postal Service, also increased floor space inside the building, which helps postal workers. Also, the stamp machine was moved to a more visible location.

Laverna Brunton, a clerk at the post office, said, "We encourage students to use the stamp machine more. It would help us and the students during busy periods by cutting down the size of the waiting lines."

Park for the Yellowstone Institute this summer.

The course is available for college credit to students of Idaho and Montana universities.

...Minnie Batt is 78 years old and she has given 45 years to the 4-H program of the UI Cooperative Extension Service.

The UI Alumni Board of Directors named her among four individuals to become an Honorary Alumna because of her loyalty and service to the institution.

Minnie has helped more than 800 youngsters complete more than 2,000 4-H projects and has taught everything from gun safety to swine management. She has served as judge, teacher and coordinator of programs.

Minnie will be honored at a special banquet during commencement weekend in Moscow. She says she has no plans to slow down. "People ask if I plan to slow down now. I can't—I don't have time to be a senior citizen," she laughs.

About the only people who were willing to venture outside in the snow and mud over the weekend were the Dusty Lentils ruggers. Poor weather forced cancellation of the Moscow USA Games for the track team and an intrasquad scrimmage for the football team going through spring drills. Lentils won 32-0 over a team with combined players from the Seattle Seabirds and Missoula's better side.

Trott finishes 2nd at Stanford

Idaho track standout John Trott used a strong kick in the final 100 meters at last Saturday's Martin Luther King Games to place second in the 800 meter race with a time of 1:48.80.

Trott, who has run as fast as 1:48.67 in the event this season, finished behind Farleigh Dickenson's Jama Aden who won the event held at Stanford Stadium in Palo Alto, Calif. in 1:48.40.

Trott was one second behind the leaders at the split with a 53.5 mark, and stood in eighth place. But down the stretch run he passed three runners in the last 100 meters to take second place.

16-1 men netters take to the road

The Idaho men's tennis team raised its season record to 16-1 with dual match victories over Boise State and Montana last weekend.

Both the Broncos and the Grizzlies fell by 8-1 scores. Idaho's sole loss to BSU was in number one doubles.

Originally, the match with BSU, one of the teams expected to battle for the Big Sky crown along with the Vandals, was to be played outdoors but poor weather conditions moved it inside the ASUI-Kibbie Dome.

"You have to put it in the perspective of the Dome courts, but the scores were one-sided—I don't care where you play, it had to be a good win for us. I expect they will give us a tougher match down there (in Boise) when we play them Wednesday," said Idaho coach Jim Sevall.

Mike Daily

The highlight for Idaho against BSU was Mike Daily's win over Steve Appleton at the number one singles slot. Appleton, a leading singles performer in the conference, was defeated handily by Daily.

The Vandals travel south this morning for a trip with stops at Boise State on Wednesday, Utah on Thursday and Brigham Young on Friday. Saturday Idaho will face both Utah State and Weber State. Utah is rated among the top five teams in the country.

8-1 women travel too

The Idaho women's tennis team travels to Ogden, Utah for the Weber State Invitational April 8-10. According to Vandal coach Jim Sevall it will be the first time the team has faced so many matches in only three days.

"We've only played two matches in one day once," he said. Seven teams will be there and only one we have seen previously—Nevada-Reno." Idaho beat UNR in their only meeting.

In addition to UNR, Idaho enters the tournament along with Northern Arizona, Air Force Academy, Montana State, Idaho State and Weber State.

It will be Idaho's first action since March 27 when they raised their record to 8-1 with a win over Washington State.

Vandals to play in wheelchairs

Vandal fans will have another chance to see the Big Sky champs play basketball when the men's basketball team plays the Spokane Cyclones wheelchair team Thursday at 8 p.m. in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome.

Both teams will be in wheelchairs for the game, which will be played in conjunction with Handicapped

Awareness Week.

The game, sponsored by UI Handicapped Services, the Arnold Air Society and Stepping Stones, Inc., will benefit handicapped student programs on the UI campus.

Handicapped students wishing to attend the game will be able to drive into the Dome through the doors on the lower floor, according to Dianne Milhollin, UI coordinator of handicapped services.

Tickets for the game will be $1 for students, $2 for nonstudents and $5 for families. They can be purchased at the Student Union Information Desk or at the door.

Cheerleader tryouts set

Cheerleader tryouts for the 1982-83 athletic season will be held April 22 at 6 p.m. in the large gym of the P.E. Building.

Practice sessions prior to the tryouts will be conducted from 6-8 p.m., April 12, 14, 19 and 21. On the 12th and 19th, the sessions will be in the downstairs gym, while the sessions on the 14th and 21st will be upstairs.

All people, including current UI cheerleaders, must try out to be selected. Cheerleaders duties involve keeping Vandal Spirit up during all home games and selected road games (football and basketball), leading pep rallies, making signs and posters, and conducting on-campus spirit activities.

Cheerleaders receive one P.E. credit for five hours of practice each week.

Those attending the tryout sessions, which will be supervised by Sondra Powell, should Tarald Lindvigemoen leads Kevin Wolf over a steeplechase hurdle in a track meet hosted by Idaho two weekends ago. Both Lindvigemoen and Wolf were top finishers in Saturday's April Fools Day Run.

Lindvigemoen runs to April Fool's win

Tarald Lindvigemoen and Patsy Sharples posted the best men's and women's times in last Saturday's 12-mile portion of the Moscow Roadrunners Fifth Annual April Fools Day Run.

Lindvigemoen's 65.01 time over the course was the best in the 26-39 age group, while second place finisher Gary Gonser's 67.23 led the runners in the 16-25 age category.

Sharples' UI teammate Sherrie Crang was second among the women with a time of 77.02.

The remaining top ten finishers among the men were Jack Winterowd in 69.45, Paul Kaftanski in 70.30, Kevin Wolf in 72.08, Barrie Grant in 72.30, Des O'Rourke in 72.34, Shaun Gomez in 72.56, Mark Rogers in 73.36 and Bob Smathers in 74.14.

O'Rourke's time led the field in the 40 and over age group.

In the three-mile race, Jim Steinhauser won first-place honors, breaking the 16-minute barrier with a time of 15:59, with the rest of the field well behind.

Keith Brownlee was second at 17.09, Jeff Reed third at 17.19, Ron Lovell fourth at 17.36, and Ray Miller fifth at 17.49.

Tri Delta hosts Special Olympics

The regional Special Olympics, sponsored by the University of Idaho chapter of Delta Delta Delta sorority will be held in Moscow Saturday.

The Olympics will begin at 1 p.m. at the track west of the ASU-Kibbie Dome.

Running events, field events and senior sports, including a softball throw, bicycling, frisbee and wheelchair and crutch races will be held.

Competitors are from the Moscow, Lewiston, Grangeville and Colfax, Wash. areas.

The public is welcome to watch the events.

Moscow is great for summer retirement

A different generation of people are going to migrate to Moscow from the Sun-Belt states when the students leave this summer as a part of the "Cool It This Summer" program.

The Moscow Chamber of Commerce is offering a summer package to retired people in southwestern states to beat the summer heat with accommodations in Idaho. The package includes a list of available summer housing, eating establishments and a two-week "mini courses" at this university.

Chuck Simmons, manager of Moscow Chamber of Commerce, said "Cool It This Summer" was modeled after a successful program in Logan, Utah. He said it is hoped the program will boost the local economy during Moscow's slow season.

Simmons goals for this summer is about one hundred couples, but presently only 10 couples have made arrangements to make the pilgrimage. The overall response in Sun City, Ariz. to a video presentation on Moscow was favorable, said Simmons, who hopes the program will grow to incorporate Pullman.

The university would offer the senior citizens a choice of two-week "mini courses" or enrolling in the regular summer session beginning June 14.

Local store owners involved in the program will display a "Cool It" sign telling participants they are eligible for special discounts.

"Moscow is offering retired folks an alternative to sweltering away in the desert heat," said Simmons.

The small response to the "Cool It This Summer" program is because the program was late in getting underway, according to Simmons. Next year the program should gain momentum, when it has more publicity, he said.
