The downtown parade was a success, despite the traditionally overcast skies. The UI band combined with student and community groups to produce a splendid event.

Council to consider academic minors

Faculty Council will act on the proposed additional regulations relating to academic minors at today's meeting in Brink Hall faculty lounge at 3:30 p.m. The added regulations apply to transfer students and students holding bachelor's degrees who enroll to pursue a minor.

The council will also consider a proposal for a master's of science program in recreation.

UI prof receives language award

UI Associate Professor John H. "Jack" Sullivan was recently awarded the 1984 Distinguished Teacher Award by the Idaho Association of Teachers of Languages and Cultures.

Sullivan, who teaches German in the foreign language department, received the award for college division teachers at the organization's recent Lewiston meeting.

Gender gap topic of Moscow meeting

The Moscow chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) will sponsor a showing of the film, Gender Gap at a program of the same name on Friday, Oct. 19 at 8 p.m., in the Moscow Community Center.

The film, by Nicole Hollander, the creator of the "Sylvia" comic strip, is described as "entertaining and provocative," and will be accompanied by a program exploring the issue of the gender gap.

Linda Pall, community activist and former city council member, will speak. Stuart Scott will be pouring selections from the Camas Winery. Refreshments and music will be included in the program.

For more information, call 882-4175 or 882-5229.

Miller resigns board position

Eugene Miller, a member of the State Board of Education/UI Board of Regents for the last six years, has resigned effective yesterday. Governor John Evans said that he would try to name a replacement within the next 30 days.

In a letter to the governor last week, Miller cited "insurmountable conflicts in allowable time for participation." Miller is a Coeur d'Alene attorney.

The resignation was announced one week before the board is to meet in Moscow, and Miller will not be attending the meeting. (See related story.)

Miller was serving as vice president of the regents, and was chairman of the board's Administrative Committee. He served as president in 1982-83.

Traditionally, Idaho governors have maintained a geographic balance on the board, and replaced members with persons from the same region. Miller filled the opening created by the retirement of Dr. J.P. Munson of Sandpoint.

According to a spokesperson, the governor said that he will be looking for a replacement who will be "able to fill the large commitment of time and energy necessary" to serve.

Board members receive no remuneration, but are paid per diem expenses.

Continuing ed. classes begin soon

There is time yet to learn to make a fancy pine needle basket for a gift or how to prepare special holiday foods.

UI Continuing Education has several classes beginning later this month, including; pine needle basketry, youth and kiddie gymnastics, holiday cake creations, intermediate sign language and computer orientation. For registration and other information, call 885-8486.

Alumni phonathon hopes to net cash

This year's UI Alumni Fund phonathon began last night, with phones throughout the state ringing for the UI and its programs.

It is hoped that the "$64,000 Challenge," as the event is named, will raise that amount. Last year's phonathon netted $56,921.

Students from 42 living groups will participate in the 14-day program. According to Linda Williams, annual fund manager, eventually 425 students will make calls from the phone banks in the Alumni Lounge. Local businesses will provide snacks for the participants, Williams said.

Board set to meet in Moscow

The State Board of Education/UI Board of Regents will meet this Thursday and Friday in the SUB. It is the second time this year the board has met in Moscow.

Primary items of interest will be a report on admission and retention standards for higher education institutions, and the consideration of the public school FY '86 budget request.

This will be the first time the board has met in Moscow under its recently restructured format. There are now three primary standing committees, and they will meet simultaneously. The full board will later meet to consider the committees' recommendations. Previously, all business was conducted serially.

The committees are personnel/administrative; finance; and academic affairs and programs. They are scheduled to meet Thursday at 8 a.m. and continue until noon.

The committees will then break for lunch, and will meet with faculty and students while dining. The members will convene as the full board at 1:30 p.m., and at that time will hear the report from the Statewide Committee on Admission/Retention Standards.

The board is scheduled to go into executive session to select a new chief fiscal officer at 3:30, and afterwards will take up board work.

In a last-minute scheduling change, the board will meet for an hour to discuss higher education budget requests above maintenance of current operations (MCO). The board heard MCO budget requests last month in Pocatello.

The Friday meeting begins at 8 a.m. with reports from each committee. The presentation of the FY '86 public schools request will be heard at that time. Other board business will follow.

The board was originally scheduled to meet Wednesday at Lewis-Clark State College, but that has been cancelled. A discussion of an external program review of the UI has been postponed until the November meeting in Boise.

Candidates to speak

First District Congressman Larry Craig (R-Idaho) will speak to students and answer questions at the SUB Borah Theater tonight. He will speak between 5 and 6 p.m. Craig is running for reelection against Democratic challenger Bill Hellar. Several local candidates will be present. The meeting is open and all are urged to come and participate.

Insurance tops senate agenda

By Holly Rickett

Resolutions concerning the proposed mandatory health insurance and the planned commencement date will be up for vote before the ASUI Senate at their Wednesday night session.

Sen. pro-tempore Boyd Wiley said that both resolutions should come out of the ways and means committee early this week so they will be up before the full senate by Wednesday night.

The UI is considering changing from its optional health insurance plan to a mandatory insurance plan that was proposed by the Board of Regents for Idaho's three universities and state college.

The resolution on the proposed mandatory health insurance states that the ASUI senate would support an optional health insurance plan as the UI is now under, but it would oppose any statewide mandatory or voluntary health insurance plan.

Under optional plans like those of the UI and Lewis-Clark State College (LCSC), students can either sign up or refuse to sign up for insurance. Under voluntary plans, such as those at Boise State University (BSU) and Idaho State University (ISU), the fee for health insurance is included with the other fees that are paid at registration. Students who do not want insurance can have the insurance fee refunded if they sign a waiver stating that they are covered by an insurance plan.

The resolution regarding the commencement date asks that the University Commencement Committee consider changing the planned graduation date of May 10. On that date, many senior accounting majors must take the national Certified Public Accountant exam, and they would not be able to participate in graduation ceremonies.

In other business, Barb Foster, ASUI Lecture Notes Administrator, will speak to the senate about the Lecture Notes Department.

Sen. Jane Freund, Chairman of the Finance Committee, said that the committee will inform the senate of current fiscal situations of all ASUI departments.

The Wednesday night session is in the Chief's Room at 7 p.m. Tuesday night's pre-session has been cancelled. Senate meetings are open to the public.

Workshop set for publicity groups

A public relations workshop for students and campus organizations will be given tonight, Oct. 16 at 7 p.m. in the Dipper Room of the SUB. The program is being sponsored by the UI Office of Information Services, and all students are welcome.

"The program is for students who work with publicity and promotion for their individual organizations," said Marythea Grebner, director of O.I.S..

"This will help them use media, promote programs, and build images for their groups."

Participating are:

— Margaret Scott, UI News Bureau manager. She will outline techniques for developing and distributing news releases, on- and off-campus.

— Jack Loughton, UI vice-president for development and university relations.

For further information, contact the O.I.S. at 885-6291.

Higbie/Trull

Duo delivers quality program

By Lewis Day

Residents of the Palouse are unused to the kind of concert performed by Teresa Trull and Barbara Higbie. Trull and Higbie, who performed in a SUB homecoming concert on Friday, put on a spectacular, warm, funny, professional, intimate production. Their concert was everything the audience could reasonably expect — and more.

The concert, a More Music for Moscow production, was one of the best to be seen on the Palouse in recent memories: despite the smallish crowd in attendance, the concert was, on all terms, a success.

At first, the two performers appeared to be as different as can be imagined — Higbie was quiet and restrained at the keyboards, Trull leaps around the stage in a near Delphic frenzy.

However, surface differences which might have seemed disharmonious soon proved to be complimentary rather than disruptive. The two musicians blended together well — the enthusiasm of Trull tempered at times by the more sedate Higbie, and vice versa. The result was a concert with high energy performances from both the musicians and basic, down-to-earth technique. All in all, a marvellous evening, both for the connoisseur and the rocker.

The evening began with a rambunctuous rendition of "You in my Life". After Trull attempted — with little success — to get the audience to sing along, she finally asked, "Don't y'all have any Baptist churches here in Moscow?"

The duo continued through the show with blues and gospel-flavored songs; "Muddy Water Blues", "Everybody Wants to Go to Heaven but Nobody Wants to Die" and "Love is the Only Thing that Matters, After all, Y'all".

Alternating with the blues tunes, Trull and Higbie performed pieces fitting into several musical categories; "Precious", "Lullaby of Birdland", "The Ways a Woman Can Be" and "How Lucky".

Higbie performed solo on a number from a new Windham

Hill release, "Movie" and left the piano halfway through the concert to do two numbers on the fiddle — with Trull on guitar — "Rubber Dolly" and "The Falls of Richmond".

Trull and Higbie demonstrated their peerless abilities as performers Friday night: the performance was sharp, professional, personable and — most important of all — human. The audience, small as it was, was treated to a rare exhibition of consummate talent — and responded in a way which undoubtedly left Higbie and Trull glad they had come to Moscow.

Great — but there is more yet to do

Homecoming went off like a charm. With the exception of the weather and the heartbreaking loss to Weber State, the 1984 version of homecoming was a stunning success for the UI. Parents, alumni and visitors were treated to the splendors of Moscow's autumn, the UI was spruced up and looking its best, and the spirit in town was running high.

Let's hope our visitors were able to drink in all that they saw and experienced. Let's hope they all return to their homes with a renewed appreciation for the UI and the special place it has in their lives.

We can't let down yet, however. This week the State Board of Education/UI Board of Regents will be in town, as will an accreditation team from the Northwest Association of Colleges and Schools. The same effort we made for last weekend's visitors should be made for those coming this week. They, no less than alumni, parents and friends, have a voice in the future of the university. They need to know what our strengths and weaknesses are, for only if they do can we hope to improve what needs to be changed and preserve that which is good and makes the UI a special place.

Get into a discussion with a board member this week: sure they're the State Board of Education, but they're also your University of Idaho Board of Regents — a role constitutionally mandated (and predating their other functions) and shared with no other state institution. The UI is their special interest group, make sure they know what you want them to about your — and their — university.

Now, as never before, it is imperative that the UI let its friends know they're appreciated and let them know how they can repay the years of dedicated service the university has given the people of Idaho.

Boy, do we get letters

From time to time, the Argonaut is accused of untoward editorial policies. Usually, the disgruntled party writes in to "prove" how truly wicked and perverse one or more of our columns/editorials/stories is. Invariably, we become the "tool" of the writer who has gored the sacred cow. We have no minds of our own; how dare...; et al, ad nauseum.

And it is that kind of response which has to amuse the university community these days. The Argh has been used in years past to being the lackey/dupe/pawn of international communism — 1981's Cubans in the streets of Houston letter — and now we find ourselves not only castigated as fools for Lenin, but now we appear to be the unwitting victims of that most cruel taskmaster, Jerry Falwell.

While extreme distaste must fill our editorial mouths at the thought of the Rev. Mr. Falwell lurking about the Argh office, we must find the criticism a bit unfair and not a little unnerving. It is, in journalistic circles, a hazard of the trade to be labelled leftists by all manner of fanatic; it is, however, quite another thing to be painted in such unflattering and hysterical terms as apologists for the new right. It seems a little hypocritical of our more "liberal" friends to draw and quarter us for allowing the radical right the opportunity to say its piece — no matter how personally distasteful and repugnant it may be to the editors of the Argonaut.

We might caution our friends with vitriolic pens to consider their comments — without the specifics, the tones of the letters all seem to sound the same.

Had a hit ... once

Bruce Skaug

If it is possible to categorize people into two classes of athletic ability, I am in the third and lowest class.

My childhood memories of athletics are haunted by pictures of Dad on the sidelines shaking his head and looking down at the ground. Dad was the star athlete in his day, and it must have hurt him to see his oldest son bumble around on the football field and basketball court.

After I graduated from high school, Dad told me about when, as a first grader, I came in third place at a "Pee Wee Olympics" in Boise. He said that the guy who came in first went on to set a state track record, and the second-place kid became a star running back. Then he looked at me and said, "You made some money in the stock market once."

It's not that I didn't try, I just wasn't any good. I played baseball one year, (hardball). Had a hit once. However, most of my baseball memories consist of getting run-over at third base and teammates yelling at me when I dropped the ball on an important play.

Two years on the school basketball team were my best efforts. Third string wasn't so bad except I didn't get to play much. But when I did play, it was quality. I made three points in my basketball career, and it was a three-point play.

You know how before the basketball game starts, the team gets into formations for lay-ups and practice shots? Well, when I did my lay-ups the crowd would laugh.

Since my game time was minimum, the warm-up was a chance for me to show off for my girlfriend the cheerleader. I remember how impressed she was when I shot the ball over the top of the backboard. It bounced down the sideline and interrupted one of her cheers. She never went out with me after that game.

Football was even worse. I wasn't a wimp, just not too bright or enthusiastic. I never understood why the coach yelled at me all the time. It must have been because I got to play more than in basketball.

Perhaps the biggest blow to my ego was unsanctioned fighting at school. It seemed like there was always a fist in my face for something I said or wrote. Some people still accuse me of being "punch drunk." My favorite knockout was when an older kid ran up from behind and hit me when I wasn't looking. It was my favorite because the other kids felt sorry for me. Talking tough, I went looking for the bully and found him. With friends watching, I confronted him about his unfair punch. "You hit me when I wasn't lookin'." So he hit me when I was looking. Laying on the floor, I noticed my friends shaking their heads with embarrassment.

Things are picking up for me and my physical achievements lately. I learned how to swim this summer and beat a friend in racketball. I think it was his first time playing. The worst part of this short story is that it is true.

Letters

A liberated woman

Editor:

It may come as quite a shock to Mr. Skaug, but there is at least one "liberated" woman on this campus who agrees with his Oct. 9 column with only a few reservations.

Yes, as everyone is already screaming, you could have been a little more cautious about taking quotes out of context. It also bothered me a bit to see Sonia Johnson included, and I'm sure that it would irk her a lot. To tell you the truth, Bruce, I'm surprised that you find her less than admirable.

On the other hand, many of the statements made by NOW members have served no purpose but to alert people to the far left fanatical views held by that group. I am for equality of the sexes but disagree strongly with the radical methods some of these women wish to employ in their attempts to achieve it.

First of all, we should keep in mind the giant strides we have already made. Nowhere in recorded history have women ever had the opportunities for success or the choice in lifestyle that we have in today's industrialized countries. We are just going to have to accept our accomplishments to date and appreciate their value. As for future goals, we should moderate our fervor a little. It's impossible and illogical to try to swing every last red-blooded American redneck over to our side.

Instead, women do have the option to cultivate their intelligence to the maximum potential without regard to whether men find this an attractive quality in a female. Whatever laws NOW members hope to pass will have no effect on this type of self-motivated woman. She is already liberated to the core. And as for violators of women's rights, if Affirmative Action hasn't put the crunch on them, it will just be a matter of waiting for attitudes to change on their own. Everyone knows by now that attitudes and opinions cannot be legislated. They can only be encouraged in the right direction. We're just going to have to be patient.

Things are improving for women in due course. We have to keep one thing in mind — our demands must be realistic.

Julie Justad

More Argh saga

Editor:

The recent flap at the ol' Arg has raised some questions that have needed to be dealt with and that hopefully will be tackled in the near future.

For instance, why do we have people sitting on the Communication Board who apparently have no knowledge of the media they are supposed to be working with?

Take, for example, the phone call I received from Communication Board Chairman Michelle Brown on Sept. 26. She called to ask if I would serve as interim editor after Frank Hill's suspension.

Not only did she not tell me what the suspension was all about, but after I mentioned that I had certain time constraints, she said, "But it's only a figurehead position." She repeated this sentiment several times.

Either Ms. Brown was in a state of desperation which temporarily impaired her sense of reality, was telling a fib of gargantuan proportions in hopes of catching someone unaware or was truly not aware of the absurdity of her statement.

I sincerely hope it is not the latter. I would hate to think that someone with such delusions seeks to aid in setting policies and picking the editor for the paper.

Someone also expressed the fear that Arg employees would be able to tap into the university computer system through their Commodore word processors.

Anyone taking a mere glance around the office would know that our Commodores don't reach past the next room (not to mention the fact that they have enough trouble controlling their urges to eat stories without going for the eradication of the entire campus computer system).

The ASUI Senate should seek people with more media knowledge to work with the communications agencies or ensure that these people become acquainted enough with them to know that the job of editor is more than a resume filler.

Being educated enough to make informed decisions will make their lives easier and will improve the credibility of the ASUI.

Laura E. Hubbard

Editor's note: The writer is currently serving as a copy editor for the paper.

Responding to B.S.

Editor:

Finally a B.S. column I can respond to. His previous works were too illogical for their arguments to be understood. But in last Tuesday's "Now N.O.W. Girls" (girls? Oh, boy), B.S. actually followed some sort of format. One constructional problem though: he had five quotes and attributed them (loosely) to only four women. So, who said what and in what context?

I'm sure you'll be hearing from NOW. So I won't talk about the organization, except to say I will be joining NOW. Yes, B.S. has spurred this adamant non-joiner into standing up for her beliefs. But there are other points in B.S.'s column to address.

First, B.S. said, "NOW is . . . immoral . . . by traditional American values." B.S., what are traditional American values? I thought this country always hosted many viewpoints and that there is usually coexistence between differing views.

Second is the abortion issue. People, like me, who believe that women should have control over their own bodies think abortion should be legal. Women should have that freedom of choice. That does not mean that every pregnant woman must have an abortion. Yet from what I can tell about B.S. and other anti-abortionist, they're saying that every woman must never have one (except perhaps in cases of rape or incest). That's rather final, isn't it?

The prayer in school issue is the third point. There is a separation of church and state in this country. Public schools, funded with government money, should not require prayer.

Now to address Phyllis Schlafly and the Concerned Women for America. How ironic that these women, who believe that women belong in the home, barefoot and pregnant, etc., are organizing. They are speaking out in public. They are lobbying for their views. How utterly "unfeminine" of them (by their standards)! They should, by their own beliefs, be at home, taking care of their hubby and kids. They should be baking apple pies for them, not for members of Congress. Simply because these women are leaving their homes and kitchens to fight for their prerogative and "birthright" to be at home means that feminism is working. They are using the same means as feminists to be heard. (Also, I have always wondered if Phyllis Schlafly, who has tasted some fame and power, could ever be happy as a housewife again.)

B.S., you asked which group best represents my views. I'll answer you NOW.

ADVICE:

for Datsun & Toyota owners

A Major tune-up is performed once a year or every 12,000 to 15,000 miles to maintain a well running car. Often there are no specific performance problems at that time.

However, sometimes the car has started to act up under certain conditions. If this is the case with your car, be sure to review those symptoms with me. If possible, describe the exact condition under which the problem occurs. This will help us to diagnose and repair the problem most efficiently and to your satisfaction.

NOTE: Poor cold engine operation may be caused by improper choke adjustment or malfunctioning choke, and may not be apparent if the car is warmed up. We cannot properly set the choke on a warm engine.

After reviewing the car's symptoms with me, we may have to arrange to have the car left overnight or all day to duplicate a cold start condition to properly adjust the choke.

Woman knows her football, wins contest

Julie Duff, 405 S. Cleveland, is the winner in the fifth week of the Tri-State Argonaut's Pick the Winners Contest.

The year's first female winner correctly picked 12 out of 15 games, only missing Iowa stomping Purdue, Air Force shocking Notre Dame and Montana State's upset of Reno.

Three of this week's games were tossed out because of ending in a tie.

Five entries tied for the runner-up spot with four misses but everyone, including Duff, picked Idaho to win in the first tie-breaker.

Arg Sports Co-Editor Greg Kilmer fell flat on his face this week, correctly picking only 7 out of 15. "Colorado, Montana St., Oregon St., and Maryland, all winners? Come on," he said.

Kilmer selected this week's games emphasizing the BYU-Air Force showdown. "No-No, Mo-Mo."

JV tryouts set

Pat Hoke, UI men's junior varsity basketball coach, announced that he is looking for players to try out for the 1984 JV team.

It will be the second year that the UI team has sponsored a JV team.

Anyone who wishes to try out should visit Hoke in his ASUI-Kibbie Dome East End Addition office. The UI Athletic Department must fill out papers before a player can become eligible to participate, so potential players are asked to sign up immediately.

Hoke said that practice will start around Nov. 1, but players must be signed up in advance to participate.

Wildcats surprise Vandal fans

By Greg Kilmer

Saturday was a day of hits and misses, and the Vandal football team came up with the most of the latter.

The Weber State Wildcats, down 24-7 at halftime, came roaring back to steal a 40-37 victory before a stunned Homecoming crowd of 13,700, the highest number of spectators at a football game this year.

The comeback was led by Wildcat quarterback Dave Stireman's arm and Wildcat placekicker Craig Winberg's leg. Stireman finished the day throwing 20-39 pass attempts for 305 yards with no interceptions in his first start this year. He threw for two touchdowns and ran for one to help his club move to 2-2 in the Big Sky and 3-4 overall.

The biggest hero for Weber had to be 6'4" side-winder Winberg. After missing a chip shot in the first half, Winberg settled down with four second-half field goals, including the clincher that gave the Wildcats

Spikers fall to Portland

By Mike Long

After winning their first five conference games, the Vandal women's volleyball team suffered their first conference loss of the season to Portland State University on Saturday.

The women lost the match in a series of four games 11-15, 15-8, 12-15 and 9-15. Although they lost, the Vandals put up a hard fight.

"It was a very close, hard-fought match with lots of rallies and lots of offense action," said Pam Bradetich, volleyball head coach. "We averaged 27 percent hitting while they did 32 percent which is excellent for them."

This loss leaves the Vandal spikers at 5-1 in the Mountain West Athletic Conference and 16-11 in overall standings.

Idaho is now placed in second in conference standings with Portland, unbeaten at 7-0, leading the pack and Montana State in third with a conference record of 4-2.

This does not mean that the Vandals are down and out by any means. Bradetich said the team is trying to improve their defense. She said that Portland

Harriers have good finish

The women harriers finished a very good third in this past weekend's meet at Eastern Washington University. "Weber State is a little better than I thought they were," said Head Coach Roger Norris.

With five schools present and one of the runners out, Washington and Weber State were able to place overall in front in overall rating even though Pam Paudler and Janet Beaudry finished in a dead heat for the first, right together.

"They ran very well. To have a good cross country team there should be about a 45 second difference between runners, although anything under a minute is good," Norris said.

"Weber State had an astounding 27 seconds between runners and Idaho had 2:22 even with the great finish of the two," he said.

Norris said he is sure that the team will run better at the conference meet Oct. 27 in Ogden, Utah.

"One of the nice things about cross country is that there is no dependency on official's calls and bad bounces," Norris said. "If one team wins then that was the better team."

"We're still a representative team and we'll improve," he said.

The team seems to be excited about NCAA District VII where there is strong possibility of sending some of the team to the NCAA Championships at University Park, Pa.

Weber

But the kick that will probably be best remembered was a little earlier in the ballgame.

After waking up and finding themselves down by six, the Vandals showed they had enough poise to drive the length of the field and knot up the score at 37-37 on Mike Shill's two yard plunge.

Tim McMonigle entered attempting to put the Vandals on top again and add number 106 to his PAT string. Neither came, as McMonigle hooked the ball to the right of the crossbars.

"Maybe I thought too much about the conversion, and maybe I didn't think about it enough," a disappointed McMonigle said later. "Basically, the problem was my technique although I didn't miss it by much. I even put my arms up to try and influence the referee."

"Nobody was more surprised than I was," Vandal Head Coach Dennis Erickson said. "But I don't think that lost the game for us. We had just tied the score and had the momentum with us."

Any momentum the Vandals had blew out the doors of the Dome as Stireman, facing a crucial third and seven call, came through once again for the visitors from Ogden. Stireman spotted Wildcat Gilbert Vasquez over the middle and the 182-pounder rambled 52 yards before being hauled down by Vandal Steve Simpson on the Idaho two-yard line.

"It was a screen pass, and an assignment was missed and their guy was wide open," Erickson said quietly.

Weber ran the ball twice before Winberg came in to finish the Vandals off. On the day, Winberg hit from 26, 55, 52 and the clincher from 17.

Weber Coach Mike Price smiled when asked what he had said at halftime to fire up his Wildcats. "If I told you what I said, you wouldn't be able to print it," Price said. "I said that word more times than I ever have before."

Erickson also talked of his halftime lecture. "I told the kids at halftime not to let them come down and score," he said.

The advice evidently fell on deaf ears because the Wilcats exploded for two quick six-pointers with 10 minutes still left in the third quarter, the second of the touchdowns coming on a 49-yard scramble by Stireman. The Vandals tried to bounce back, but when Wilcat Todd Boyer intercepted the ball from Idaho quarterback Scott Linehan and returned it to the Vandal 15, Weber was right back in it. Three plays later, Winberg hit his first field goal to tie the game at 24-24.

It kept going bad for the Vandals as their next two drives were cut short on two fumbles. Weber turned the two miscues into two field goals of 55 and 52 both would have been good from 60, to go up by six setting up the McMonigle miss.

The only excitement the Vandals could come up with in the second half was the return of wide receiver, Eric Yarber. The JC transfer entered the game to try to pick up the sluggish Idaho "O" and did just that by grabbing four passes in the drive that tied the score.

"This was the worst loss I've ever been involved in," said Erickson, who has to try and get his troops back on track against Eastern Washington University next week.

Eastern is coming off a 14-14 tie against Montana this past weekend.

is "an excellent team, but beatable."

In the stats, Idaho's Jenny Frazier came up with 22 kills and an hitting percentage of 44 with nine blocks and four digs.

Teammate Kelly Gibbons had 12 kills of her own and passed Frazier with a total of 10 digs while Julie Holsinger had eight kills, seven blocks and fourteen digs.

But the star of the Idaho team was Kelley Neely, who not only came up with nine digs but also made 51 sitting assists to give her team a fighting chance.

The Vandals are also beginning to make their mark on the national level. The team ranked first for number of digs accomplished per game with a mark of 19.71.

They are fifth in the nation, behind University of Southern California, University of California/Los Angeles, University of Hawaii and Brigham Young University in the number of kills per game with a score of 15.17.

Bradetch said that the kill average has gone up since the last from 15.17 to 16.8 as has the hitting average.

They are also listed as ninth with a 12.34 for the number of assists per game average mark.

Not only the team is making national standings, though. Two of the players have worked their way up into them.

Neely is currently listed as 14th for assists given per game with an average of 9.978, but she will probably move up to sixth after this last matchup with Portland State according to Bradetch.

And Idaho spiker Jenny Frazier is ranked as 20th in the average of digs per game with an average of 3.15.

The Vandals are preparing for their next conference foe, Eastern Washington University, whom they'll meet at the Memorial Gym Oct. 18.

The Eagles have yet to win a conference match and are listed at the bottom of the MWAC conference with a standing of 0-6. However, this doesn't mean that the Vandals won't have to be on their toes.

According to Bradetch, "EWU may be at the bottom, but if we don't play well, anybody can beat anybody."

Blue Mountain rugby ties one, loses one

By Mike Long

The Blue Mountain Rugby Side returned from Seattle with one tie and another loss on their record and also two players who made the Washington Union Rep Side.

The tie went to Oregon State University with a score of 4-4 on Saturday, then on Sunday, Blue Mountain lost to Simon-Frasier 3-0 on Sunday.

The teammates who earned the honor to play the Oregon Rep Side with the Washington Rep Side in the game in Seattle next Saturday are Deeder Petersen and Lance Levy.

The game will decide who will play on the Pacific Northwest Junior Rep Side who will face the team from the California Union.

Teammember Levy (not Lance West as was published in the Argonaut's last issue) said that the real honor is not the making of the Washington side, but will be the Pacific Northwest side.

He also said that OSU was last year's Pacific Northwest conference championship and that as a "pretty new team" they showed they were "competitive as far as other colleges go."

"We made a goal line stand for 10 minutes even though they were a much bigger and more experienced team than we were," Levy said. He added that it was the speed of the Blue Mountain players that evened the competition.

The only goal made by the Blue Mountain team was a joint work between both Petersen and Levy.

In the second with Simon-Frasier, from Vancouver, British Columbia, the side from Canada made the winning points with a penalty goal.

Levy said that the goal was a bad call from the referee and that they might have tied it if it wasn't for the goal.

Looking towards next spring, Levy believes that they will be quite good and very competitive.

Dusty Lentils unsuccessful at Portland

By Mike Long

The Dusty Lentils didn't have much luck this weekend in the Martha Cleveland Tournament at Portland, Ore. The women lost three of their four games.

The Lentils' first loss came Saturday when they tied the team from Eugene, Ore., 0-0, and then lost the kickoff. In rugby, a kickoff is when each team picks five players to make kicks, and the best five win for their team.

Teammember Stephannie Walker said, "Eugene is one of the best teams around, and we were happy to be able to come close and only lose it on the kick."

The Lentils then lost to teams from Tacoma, Wash., and Corvallis, Ore.

"We played really well though we still dropped the game to them," Walker said. "We only played three games on Saturday." The women had expected to play four games that day.

On Sunday, a change of luck helped the women pull off a win against the Drifters of Seattle, 11-4.

The Dusty Lentils were not terribly disappointed by the weekend, though. Walker said that while the women lost three games, the tournament was still a good experience for the team.

"We're a fairly new team, and it though it doesn't look swell in the stats for us with the loss of three games, we still moved far in experience with the new players."

The women will have a chance to test out the new experience they have gained when they go into competition again Oct. 27 when they host Portland and here in Moscow.

The Dusty Lentils will play the visiting sides on the Intramural Fields west of the Wallace Complex at about 10 or 11 a.m.

Ballet gains audience appreciation, awe

By Dewayne King

All was not lost on the Palouse Saturday night. Although the UI and Washington State University football teams lost their games, a winning performance was given by the American Festival Ballet in WSU's Bryan Hall.

Marius Zirra, the new artistic director, has effectively used his international experience to achieve the goals of the American Festival Ballet. Based in Boise, the company strives to bring live professional ballet to small and large communities.

A combination of five mini-performances left the Palouse audience with a fine appreciation for the art of ballet. Starting with Girl With The Flaxen Hair, Russel Aubrey and Alfred Hansen showed the humorous side of ballet, keeping the house chuckling with their tribute to theater.

Monica Mudgett and Duncan Schute, a husband and wife team, combined in almost perfect precision in Sleeping Beauty Pas De Deux to create a graceful, romantic movement that entranced the audience. Their work as guest artists in metropolitan ballet companies has evidently taught them to complement each other's intricate movements.

Picking up the tempo, seven young women created Irish Air. A fast-paced and contagious Highland Fling, it tempted the young and old to join the dancers on stage.

After a brief intermission, the company returned with Affaire De Coeur, which translates to "An Affair Of The Heart." Because of technical difficulty, the audience and the dancers had to wait for this brilliant drama. But the performance by Mudgett and Schute was worth waiting for. The dancers combined their talents as the principle artists in a tragedy that could be appreciated by all.

The Harlequin costuming enhanced their portrayal of two innocent lovers being seduced by the evils of life. First one and then reluctantly the other succumbs to temptation, only to become engulfed by the evils around them. Wonderful choreography and costuming by Jeannette Allyn and David Heuvel contributed to a moving experience in Affaire De Coeur.

Last but not least is Symphony In C, which Zirra choreographed. With no apparent story to tell, the entire cast combined for the final movement. Even though it was well-choreographed and well-performed, Symphony In C left a little to be desired, probably because Affaire De Coeur was so excellent. If Symphony In C had been placed elsewhere and Affaire De Coeur had been the finale, the evening's performance could have been more balanced and would have left the audience begging for more.

Overall, the American Festival Ballet has achieved its goal. They created an exciting educational experience. Zirra said, "I wish to leave everyone in the theatre changed by our experience. Ballet must have beauty, but also much impact — something for the audience to remember and talk about." That, he accomplished.

Mardi Gras' Kid Comes to Moscow

Ghost, Ghouls, and oddly dressed humans will soon inhabit the Hotel Moscow.

The occasion is the son of Mardi Gras. Every bit of a relation to the Mardi Gras held every February.

"The tickets sold for the Son of Mardi Gras will go towards the larger celebration in February," said Charlotte Buchanan, coordinator, "so this is kind of like a fund raiser."

There will be a costume contest as well. Grand prize for the best costume will be $50 and second place will be awarded a $25 gift certificate from One More Time.

"We'll be taking over all of Hotel Moscow," she said. "David Giese's class will be doing the decorations. There will be horror flicks, video monitors for others to see what costumes walk through the door and the Fabulous Kingpins will be playing all dancing songs all night long," she said.

GDI week: Gone but not forgotten

Last week was GDI week, and many Independents competed against one another. Shown above is part of the third place winners of the Skit night Brad Wixsom and Carrie Dowdy from Gault and Forney Halls. Second place went to Borah Hall with a skit entitled "Beer Busters" and the first place winners were Snow Hall with their rendition of the "Wizard of Oz". At the Bonfire, Vandal Coach Erickson (upper left) had the students rooting and cheering for the team. Although not many showed up, students got a change to compete in dancing the jitterbug Tuesday. Winners of the Jitterbug contest were Scot Bledsle and Stacey Stauber (right). Finally Rail (above) performed at the SUB at the end of the week to mark the end of GDI week as well as Homecoming Weekend.

PARKING

Do You Have Something to Say?

In order to make suggestions on improving campus parking problems, the Parking Committee is gathering comments from the university community. Everyone is encouraged to contribute to the meetings with gripes, suggestions or comments.

To make sure everyone gets a chance, please be prepared to speak no more than five minutes. A written copy of your comments will be helpful in keeping accurate records of parking concerns. At the entrance a roster will be available; those signed up will be called upon to speak

If you are unable to attend, written comments (keep it short, please) may be sent to Beth Grubb, Information Services, by Oct. 30.

We want to hear your opinion!
