Vandals end drought; Romp ISU 95-69

By Greg Kilmer
Sports Editor

All bad things must come to an end, or something like that.

It might have been the near zero temperature or some old fashioned good defense that the Idaho State basketball team couldn't shake Sunday afternoon, as they fell 95-69 to the Vandals of the University of Idaho.

According to Idaho head coach Bill Trumbo, it was the Vandal "D" that enabled his squad to pick up their initial Big Sky Conference win of the year.

"Defense was definitely the key for us tonight," the second year Vandal coach said. "We put good restraints on both (Nelson) Peterson and (Donn) Holston.

"I really have to give Kenny Luckett credit," said Trumbo, whose squad moves to 7-13 overall and 1-6 in BSC play. "He did a great job on Holston — all his points were hard earned and Peterson had to take a lot of shots to get his points."

Peterson finished the night with game honors, hitting for 24 points on 11-24 from the floor, including two three-point prayers. Halston followed with 17, hitting 7 of 16 shots and perfect in three trips to the foul line.

As a team, ISU shot a freezing .347 from the field on 26 of 75 attempts, including a sub-artic 12 of 39 in a first half that saw the Bengals trail by 19 at the intermission.

For the night, the Vandals hit on 34 of 68 field goal tries for an even 50, including a respectable 17 of 31 first half.

Bengal head coach Wayne Ballard, who was the recipient of two second-half technicals, exemplified the Bengal frustration as he was long gone out of the Kibbie Dome before reporters could get his views.

It was also the defense that allowed the Vandals to break out of their four game drought and light up the Dome scoreboard for a season high 95 points.

"The defense created that for us," Trumbo said of his team's 48 and 47 point halves. "They're (ISU) good enough athletes that we knew if we came down five on five, we wouldn't have the advantage. The defense gave us those opportunities."

"I thought we had more breaks go our way tonight than we've had all year," Trumbo added.

The Vandal offense was well balanced with five Vandals finishing in double digits. Senior forward Frank Garza led the way with 20, including a momentum building break-away jam to close the first half. Garza was followed by Teddy Noel's 15, Ulf Spear's 14, Luckett's 12 and Tom Stallick's 10.

Stallick, who grabbed a game high 15 boards in 16 minutes playing time, drew praise from his head coach. "I was really encouraged by Tom's play tonight," Trumbo said. "If we are to improve, Tom is important. He offers us another sizeable athlete that can go in and battle with some of the bigger people in this league.

Stallick, who has been hampered by an early season illness, had his best outing so far this year with his 10 point, 15 rebound afternoon.

Even with the suspension of 6-foot-10 center Steve Ledesma, the smaller Vandals out-rebounded the Bengals 60-37.

Leading the way in the battle of the boards was Stallick's 15, followed by Garza's 13 and Steve Adam's 8. Adams also tallied 8 points in his third start of the season.

While Trumbo admitted that most people would think the game was an upset, he didn't quite see it that way.

"I guess I would like to feel more exuberant, but I felt like 'Whew, it's about time'," Trumbo said. "I always think we can win every time out."

Idaho will need to keep the same feeling as they travel to Montana to take on the Big Sky's state's two conference foes next weekend.

With the Big Sky wars at the half-way point and all of last weekend's upsets of the top-ranked teams, the conference race looks like this:

Montana — 5-2
Nothern Arizona — 5-2
Weber State — 5-2
Nevada-Reno — 5-2
Montana State — 3-4
Boise State — 2-5
Idaho State — 2-5
IDAHO — 1-6

Staff Writer

The Vandal track team hosted a pair of track meets this weekend — the prestigious Vandal Indoor Saturday and a developmental meet Sunday.

In the Vandal Indoor, 125 of the top track athletes in the Northwest competed. Although only two meet records were broken, it was a fine meet for all those that came.

Vandal Coach Mike Keller said "Many of the athletes told me that it was a great meet." Although the attendance was a notable low point, Keller has come to expect this over the years.

The top performers of the meet were Kris Durr of Washington State University, who broke the meet record in the 400m race. His time of 46.99 was good for a narrow victory over Idaho's Dave Smith.

One of the best events of the meet was the 1600m relay race in which Sam Koduah of Idaho and the old 400m record holder Gabriel Tiacoh went head to head in the anchor leg.

While WSU won that race, coach Keller said, "They have much more experience than we do at that distance...we started a freshman (Rob Simpson) who went out too slow last week and too fast this week."

The high jump provided a lot of excitement for the crowd as Brent Harken of WSU tried to jump a meet record of 7'-5 and 14". He barely missed on his final jump, but held on to win the event.

In the women's high jump, Mary Moore of WSU also barely missed her attempt at a meet record of 6'2".

The female athlete of the meet was Leann Warren, who was coming of a bad injury which forced her out of last season.

In her first event of the new year she won the 1500m handily, defeating her nearest competitor by 12 seconds. She said she felt a little tight at the end of the race and hoped to improve as the year went on.

The top athlete at the meet was Julius Korir, an Olympic gold medalist and the top-ranked 3000m steeplechaser in the world. Korir took second behind teammate Jon Knight of WSU in the 3000m race — there is no steeplechase event in the Vandal Indoor.

Korir said he did not expect to win and Keller said, "The top athletes are not really in shape until April and May when the big European meets take place."

Doing well for the Vandals were Dave Smith in the 400m and Everton Wanliss in the 55m dash. Wanliss tied his own school record in that event with a clocking of 6.34, but finished just behind Lee Gordon of WSU.

Keller said, "Gordon got the best start I have ever seen and Everton got off a little slow. If it had been 100m it would have been a different story."

Women jump to 19-1

By Brad Williams
Staff Writer

The UI women's basketball team took another step towards the Mountain West Conference Championship by disposing of both Weber State and Idaho State over the weekend.

The pair of wins moves the Lady Vandals to 19-1 on the season as they hope to improve their UPI ranking of 19th in the nation.

Friday night's match up against Weber State saw the Vandal women crush the Lady Wildcats 87-62. The UI women never trailed in the contest and held double figure leads most of the night.

Although the Lady Wildcats had the height to defend against the UI women, the Vandals out rebounded Weber by 11 and shot a blistering 62 percent from the field. The Vandal women also used numerous Weber State turnovers which were turned into easy UI baskets to lead 45-26 at the intermission.

Six-foot-1 senior Kris Edmonds lead the Vandal attack with 20 points on eight for 11 shooting from the field and a perfect four for four from the foul line. She was followed by 6-foot-4 center Mary Raese who tallied 18 points and snared a team leading 12 rebounds.

The Vandal women also contained the Lady Wildcats lead. scorer, Tammy Thomason to just three points, well below her team leading average of 14.2 points per contest.

The Lady Wildcats came back Saturday night to beat the Eastern Washington University Eagles, which gives the UI women a shot at first place in the MWC if they can defeat the Eagles on Feb. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome to decide first place.

On Saturday the UI women throttled the Idaho State University Lady Bengals by a score of 102-61. The Vandal women trailed early but at the 15 minute and 21 and 21 second mark, they took the lead for good and proceeded to blow away the Lady Bengals.

The UI women had a balanced scoring attack as five Vandals were in double figures. The Vandal women were lead by Mary Raese who pumped in 22 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and swatted 5 of the Bengal field goal attempts.

Paula Getty, a sophomore from Simi Valley, California, backed Raese with 16 points. Getty shot seven of eight from the field and two of two at the line. The 5-foot-9 guard also grabbed five rebounds and played a fine all-around floor game.

Kris Edmonds tossed in 15 points, followed by Mary Westerwelle and Robin Behrens who scored 14 and 12 points, respectively.

The Lady Bengals were lead by Shelly Hand who scored 14 points, followed by Lynn Henderson who managed 12 points. The Lady Bengals shot a meager 36 percent from the field and committed 23 turnovers against the aggressive defense of the Vandals.

The UI women also saw the return of freshmen guard Lynn Nicholas, who just recovered from an emergency appendectomy. Lynn gave the Vandal women some good playing time at the guard position.

True Confession

Greg Kilmer

Friday's basketball game against Weber State really stirred up some old memories for me — some that I've tried to suppress since joining the ranks of non-partisan journalism and others for reasons of my own safety.

I really miss being a college B-ball fan, you know the real hard-core kind: front row every game, boda bag and an arsenal of one liners. The type that are hoarse from getting on everybody in the enemy uniform and the guys in the stripes.

There was no better way to start spring break than to sit through a Big Sky Tourney hosted here in Moscow. Added to this was the fact it always fell on or around my birthday. How many people do you know that have 10,000 show up for their birthday party?

Even with all these fond memories, there's still one that leaves a small black mark on my Vandal fan career.

It was Neil McCarthy (or as I affectionately call him the "Silver Fox") that got me in my current nostalgic frame of mind and heavy case of the guilts.

Way back on a cold January night (sound familiar) in 1980, McCarthy brought his 17th ranked Wildcats into the Kibbie Dome, riding high and pretty on a 18 game win streak.

I use "pretty" whenever I speak of the Fox because this is one pretty dude.

When white shoes were in, Neil's feet shown like neon. When turtle-necks were chic, the Fox's neck was never cold. And when plaid sport coats were the in thing, Bobby Knight would have been green with envy if he could have seen McCarthy's closet.

But the thing that really stood out as pretty, and the thing that always got to me, was Neil McCarthy's hair.

No matter what, his distinguished locks were never out of place. It didn't matter if it was the opening tip or overtime, it always looked like he just stepped out of Jon Pierres of Hollywood.

I don't know what it was that possessed me, but I knew that there was going to be something special in the Dome that night. It was just set up so pretty.

Here was a nationally ranked ball-club, complete with three future NBA draftees, including Big Sky career scorer Bruce Collins and a coach that had never lost to those hicks from Idaho; either in Ogden, nor way up north in the Kibbie Dome, "where all the spuds and the lentils roam."

All that was in the way of victory number 19 was some new guy called Monson, a raw talented cajun named Newman, and a couple green rookies named Kellerman and Hopson. And they played in a huge barn that leaked.

It was there. Coppola couldn't have produced a better script — a modern day David versus Goliath. A set complete with a deprived cast of 10,000 actors. This was the first taste of Monson Mania for the hungry Vandal faithful.

As you can all probably tell, this one "ends happily ever after." But my story goes one step farther — it's time for my confession.

I don't know if it was the excitement of the ball game or the pre-game liquid energy that got my adrenalin pumping, but through all the mayhem of the Vandal victory celebration, I spotted that silver mane slyly slipping through the party.

I guess my emotions took over. Forgive me, but I just had to do it.

Playing super sleuth, I snuck up on the retreating fox and got the ultimate "got'cha."

Yep, I messed up his hair. I shake my head now, but I did it. He really looked like Rod Stewart.

Sooner or later, preferably later, I'd like to apologize to the coach and tell him he's not such a bad guy since we've beaten him a few times. Besides, I'd tell him not to worry about coming to Moscow anymore: Sonny Allen from Reno has been seen wearing a pretty aviator jacket to games this season.

How to go native

By Michael Grasseschi
Staff Writer

Did you know, dear readers, that Idaho became part of the United States by virtue of a treaty conjured up with Great Britain in 1846? Or that Idaho was the first state to elect a Jewish governor, in 1915 (Moses Alexander)? And a few of you probably knew that the sculptor of famous Mount Rushmore, Gutzon Borglum, was from Idaho.

Well, perhaps you did know these things. But for those of you who are not up on Idaho trivia and would like to learn more, go down to the Idaho First National Bank on Main Street and pick up The Idaho Conversion Kit, for $6.95 ($5.15 to bank customers). In fact, Richard Barton, Moscow Branch Manager, says "this booklet was put together by members of this very bank," and that it is basically "a way for newcomers to get to know the state." Since its publication in December of 1984 the booklet has sold nearly 4,000 copies throughout the state.

Why was it written and how did it begin? "The impetus to get it going was that people will move to Idaho and are interested in opening a bank account here. So we came up with the idea of writing a book to inform people about the state in a rather 'tongue in cheek' manner," said Barton.

And the tongue in cheek approach is evident on any page you turn to. The colorful drawings by Idaho artists and the fantastic photography in a rather informal layout lead one to believe that the authors were serious enough about the project to include much useful information, yet they wanted to add a fun element as well.

Example: standard on Idaho drivers is that they rarely honk at anything and "honking will give you away as a newcomer more quickly than anything." There is also 'Shutter Bug Fever,' caused by the spectacular natural beauty of the

Poet visits

California native Robert Hass will be a guest on the UI campus during this week to hold a poetry writing workshop. Hass will also give a public reading of his poems on Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 in the Law School Courtroom.

Hass received a Ph.D. from Stanford and is presently teaching in San Francisco at St. Mary's College of California.

Hass's first book, Field Guide (1972), a collection of poems, won the Yale Series of Younger Poets Prize. His second book of poems, Praise (1979), won the William Carlos Williams Award. A collection of essays on modern poetry titled Twentieth Century Pleasures (1984) is Hass's latest book.

UI English professor Ron McFarland describes Hass's poetry as a combination of "natural imagery with a solid academic perspective."

The writing workshop is open to all members of the community. Further information is available by calling the English department at 885-6156.

Talk to stress image

Jayne Lybrand will present the lecture "Body Language Plus" on Thursday, Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the SUB Ballroom.

Lybrand teaches non-verbal persuasion through animated demonstrations. She has been compared to Erma Bombeck and Dr. Joyce Brothers, and has been in the image-making business for 12 years coaching salesmen, career women and entertainers. White House administrators have hired Lybrand to teach them how to project a positive, open image that the public will admire and trust.

Lybrand says she has tried to remove the sensational approach to body language that has been branded as "hip-swinging, eye-winking politics." Instead she has attempted to turn the study of nonverbal communication into a dimension that is personal, sensible and infinitely useful.

Lybrand says that there are 28 signals you can spot to tell if someone is lying.

Lybrand has also developed 18 gestures that can make you look sincere, kind and honest, and 13 gestures that will make you appear devious. In addition, she has ten tricks to overcome nervousness.

Her lecture is part of the University of Idaho's Issues and Forums Lecture Series sponsored by ASUI Productions. This event is free and open to the public.

Mag gives news a new look

By Stephen Lyons
Features Editor

The only publication I currently subscribe to is the Utne Reader. The reason is simple: information glut.

With the increasing barrage of copy spat out by the various forms of media it has become impossible to find the time to wade through magazines, newspapers and press releases to find the information I am most interested in. Utne Reader, published bi-monthly in Minneapolis, offers order to this chaotic information glut and does it surprisingly well.

Although Utne Reader is in magazine form, the publication is really a clipping service with articles taken from a cross-section of mainly alternative publications. In a typical issue, one can expect to find articles ranging from smaller magazines such as Spring, Mother Jones, The Progressive, The Vajradhatu Sun, to a sprinkling of articles from the heavyweights in the industry like Playboy, Esquire and The Nation.

Utne Reader departments list U.N.C.L.E. (Utne Network for Communications, Letters & Epistles). In Brief and Recommended Reading, Articles and Interviews are also a regular feature. The magazine usually has one or more themes for each issue. For the Oct./Nov. 1984 issue the themes were Politics/Religion and Vietnam.

The regular themes of the publication are its strongest feature because they offer a focus to the clippings which could otherwise be just another form of jumbled information.

The Vietnam section in the Oct./Nov. '84 issue was an excellent look at today's consequences of the war. The focus was well rounded and insightful, going beyond the usual pabulum post-Vietnam stories. The articles included a look at Vietnam nurses (the other veterans.) a transcript from a Robert Bly speech on the erosion of male confidence since Vietnam and a short essay on veterans and psychiatry complete with an informational section for veterans.

These are articles that one might never read given the mainstream public's usual reading fare. Imagine finding an article on the nurses who served in Vietnam in Time or Newsweek.

Utne Reader is for a serious reader who wishes to move past the party line of American mainstreamism and see what some of this country's "other" periodicals are thinking. Utne Reader serves another important function by highlighting many obscure publications that rarely turn out at America's newsstands. In fact, one rarely sees Utne Reader itself at the newsstands.

Utne Reader started out as a small, 16-page newsletter with a definite left focus. But now it has done what all magazines must do to survive by staying flexible and staying one step ahead of its readership. Utne Reader has expanded to over 100 pages including a wider political range of articles. It sells for $4 an issue at newsstands and $18 for a yearly subscription (six issues).

state. Early symptoms include a burning desire to take pictures for friends 'back East,' with 'back East' being any place east of Idaho. Although the book is naturally a bit tourist oriented, it would make a "good gift for people who live in the state and friends who may come out on vacation and that type of thing," according to Barton.

The section on Native Attire is particularly interesting. "Any hat will do, but the baseball hat is the most popular, especially decorated with pins, feathers, or your favorite statement," and "Vuarnets, of course." On skiing, a favorite Idaho sport, the book says, "Choose alpine, nordic, or water. You must choose one." So maybe you, lost in the world of Idaho fashion, will finally be set straight by this booklet.

Finally, the tome covers other aspects of Idaho, too, from the largests fish caught (can you believe 632 lbs!), to notable figures such as Philo T. Farnsworth, the guy who secured the patent for a working television. And it even covers the recent Challis earthquake, the largest registered on the North American Continent in 25 years (7.3 on the Richter Scale).

of player personnel do deserve some attention.

I do not know whether Steve Ledesma has caused dissent on the team, or whether this dissent involves other players or just the coaches

I recall watching Steve play in the Washington State University game. He came off the bench amongst jeers from hecklers in the crowd, but quickly established himself as the motivating force behind the Vandal's amazingly impressive win. The jeers turned to cheers and the crowd pulled for this guy who was playing his heart out. But I wonder if the coach, who's game plan apparently does not call for enthusiasm, was pulling for him as well.

Apparently not, for Ledesma is gone again at the coach's invitation. Granted watching Steve dribble up the court can make any coach a nervous wreck, but the fact of the matter is that he somehow gets the ball up court when he (apparently against the coach's wishes) decides to take control of the game. He certainly doesn't throw the ball away any more than any other player does. And while his basketball style is not poetic, he scores lots of points and gets lots of rebounds; more so than anyone on the team. Steve may be a bit overzealous, but the last time I checked the best way to tame a wild horse was not to throw it back to the wild.

UI soon to monitor 'quakes

By Carolyn Beasley
Staff Writer

The construction of a UI seismograph system to be used to monitor both local and world-wide seismic activity is almost completed.

The system, designed mostly for local disturbances, will be stationed on the top of Moscow Mountain. It will be part of a triangulation network needed to pinpoint the location of any future aftershocks of the Oct. 28 earthquake Richter scale, according to Kenneth Sprenke, a UI geophysics professor.

"Right now we are waiting on a part, a radio," said Sprenke. "It's just a matter of days or weeks before the project is completed."

"Montana and Washington both have an array (a three station triangle)," said Bob Hammond, a grad student working on the project. "We're filling in the gap between the two states."

Idaho's array will include three stations: one on Moscow Mountain, one in Grangeville and one about 50-100 miles east of Moscow, explained Hammond.

It would be beneficial to form a cooperative information gathering system with Montana, University of Washington and INEL to record within the state of Idaho, said Hammond. "We're in the midst of setting this up," he added.

"About $50,000 in equipment has been donated from neighboring states interested in the research so far," said Sprenke. "We hope to get some federally funded research grants for the future operation of the station."

"Eventually we would like to set up relaying stations in other areas," Sprenke said. This would allow monitoring of seismic activity all over the world, he added.

Sprenke added that there is a need for this type of research and monitoring.

"The project doesn't have any funding except for the geology department," Hammond said.

No other students are working on the project right now, said Hammond. "There is no money for salaries or for part time help." Time put in on the project would be strictly on a voluntary basis, he said.

Basement to hold surprises

By Brad Fallon
Intern

Work now being completed in the SUB basement will leave students with a lot more to do than just play pool.

According to Dean Vettrus, SUB general manger, the area which previously housed rows of pool tables is being replaced by a student computer center, a T.V. lounge and stereo lounge.

The $100,000 facelift for the SUB, financed through Student Union reserves, also includes a copy center, a concessions operation and a study area where six typewriters will be available for student use. Several conference rooms will be created, including a permanent audio-visual conference room in the area left by the move of the University of Idaho Communications department. In addition to more office space for faculty, office space is being allotted for various student groups.

The new computer center will offer students 20 computer terminals and 10 personal computers. Also, a letter quality printer will be available for free student use. Having computers available in the SUB for students has been a goal for several years and now it appears to have been reached. If all goes according to plan, the restoration should be completed February 22, reports Vettrus.

For those artistic students looking for an outlet for their work, a rental space is being provided for them to exhibit creations for sale.

Vettrus concluded, "I think the space will be more valuable for student use and activities. We're looking into the hours students want the space." Computers need security, help must be hired, etc.

Senate

Agenda set

Approving committee appointments will be the main order of business for the ASUI Senate this week, according to ASUI Vice President Mike Trail.

Other new items will also be on the agenda, but they will not be acted on, Trail said. Those include a bill to allow the senate to amend the vice president's committee appointments for senators, funding for Nightline and rebudgeting Outdoor Programs so the department can buy skis.

The senate meets for pre-session Tuesday at 7 p.m. The regular session is Wednesday at 7 p.m. Both meetings are held in the SUB Chief's Room and are open to the public.

Shared Strength

When the right talents and the right resources come together, the result can be a legend in the making. Now, two landmark companies, Chevron and Gulf, are joining forces to become one of the world's strongest and most efficient energy producers.

When complete, the merger will be the largest in the history of American business. It will create the kind of team most managers can only dream about... and a whole new lineup of opportunities for Computer Professionals.

In the applications area, we support the functional aspects of the company including finance, logistics, marketing and refining. In the operations area, we support several large data centers, state-of-the-art systems software and a vast data communications network. Our computer professionals come from many fields of expertise including computer science, business administration and engineering. Each contributes special insight or talent for organization, communication and problem solving.

Join us as we join forces. Chevron Corporation, Professional Employment Office, P.O. Box 7137, San Francisco, California 94120-7137.
