These men really wanted to meet their little sisters. Gault Hall added a new twist to the popular event of little sister selection. The women of French and Campbell Halls each gave up a piece of lingerie which was given randomly to a man on Gault Hall. The men wore the garments to the party showing the outfits off to all participants. When their name was called, they (the guy) went to the front of the room and the woman who owned the garment came up and claimed it.

Senate to have access to budgets

By Megan Guido
Of the Argonaut

The ASUI's deficit was just one of the many issues covered on Wednesday's senate meeting. President Jane Freund gave the results of her meeting with Vice President of Financial Affairs, Dave McKinney, to help alleviate the ASUI's $61,000 deficit and to avoid it happening again and Barry Bonifas, ASUI Productions Coordinator, gave his report on the financial situation of ASUI entertainment.

Freund said McKinney has granted computer access to the ASUI budgets to the ASUI president, vice president, finance chair and finance manager. "We'll have 24 hour day information any time we want it," said Freund. "We'll also be having monthly financial meetings with Glenn Ford, University Assistant Business Manager, and we'll discuss accounts. Now we'll know what to do with the information once we have it."

The Finance Manager will prepare the monthly financial statements from the information ASUI gets as well as income statements of ASUI budgets, according to Freund.

Any contract involved in an ASUI account will now be signed by the ASUI president too.

"Gerry Reynolds (University Controller) told me about a power I didn't know we had," Freund said at the meeting. "We have the power to freeze accounts." According to Freund, the senate does not have the power to stop specific parts of an account, such as operating expenses.

Freund says she is still working on the idea of getting the Social Security retirement contributions refunds in the form of cash with Dave McKinney.

Freund also said she advocates all ASUI accounts be put on a carryover basis. "For instance, when Jim Rennie has a good year, he should profit from it. He should get 100 percent, not 10 percent." Freund said she will put this proposal into bill form and she hopes it will be implemented this fiscal year.

The golf course audit has begun, according to Freund, "and we should see some real interesting results from that."

New business practices of senators will also go into effect this semester. Long distance logs will be kept and now different departments can use the ASUI's copier which is 3.2 cents cheaper than using the copier at the front desk. Freund advised all senators, "I want you to be your own auditors. If you see a basic business policy violated, voice it."

Freund concluded that now with these new powers given to the senate, "If the ASUI is in debt, the blame should go to the ASUI because now we have every tool we can have to prevent it (a deficit)."

Barry Bonifas, campus program coordinator, gave a history of the Entertainment accounts. He said the $2 fee per student, per semester for ASUI entertainment which passed four years ago was not cutting the growing expense of getting acts to the Palouse. The ASUI asked the Board of Regents in April for a $10 fee increase, which passed. Three dollars of the original $10 was intended for entertainment. Freund had vetoed a bill giving the department the money because of the current condition of the ASUI accounts. Bonifas' presentation implied that he still believes that Entertainment should receive monies. Bonifas asked the senate at the meeting, "Where do we go from here?"

Freund, however, stuck to her guns and said the senate needs to survey students as to what they want from entertainment. "We need to reevaluate the fee." Speaking to the senators, Freund said, "You folks are going to have to make some big decisions about entertainment."

The election of the President Pro-Tempore and the ASI Delegate also took place. Senator Larry Seid is the new Pro-Tempore and Gino White was elected ASI delegate.

In other business, the appointment of senators to ASUI Senate Sub-Committees also took place. Kelli Kast, a senior senator who worked on the Finance Committee last year, was removed from the Finance Committee at Wednesday's meeting. Kast expressed her disapproval of Vice President Trail's action of putting her on the GOA committee instead. "Doesn't seniority count for anything?" she asked. "What good is it if I learn something and then I get moved." Senator Dose said, "I don't think we always get the best person for the job with the seniority system."

Trail said, "This is the dirtiest job of being vice president." He explained his action further after the meeting. "If I had used seniority, I would have five senior senators on the finance committee. I wanted two junior senators on the committee because I wanted them to get some experience for next term."

Kast said at the meeting, "He (Trail) told me I was put on there (GOA) because it's good to have two females on the GOA for interviewing and second because I have a good personality."

Finally, the appointments of senators to Living Groups and UI Colleges also took place.

One date sets precedent

The last day for late registration, fee payments and addition of late courses is Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Students who do not register by that date must pay a $5 petition fee, successfully petition the Academic Dean's Council Petitions Committee and pay a $50 late registration fee.

Students who have not finalized their registration payment of fees should be aware that Sept. 11 is the deadline for payment. After this date registrations will be cancelled and names removed from all official class lists. Reregistration will require the above petition process.

This is also the the last date to add courses or change course sections, change to or from pass/fail basis, change to or from audit basis and the last day to reduce the number of credits in a course.

The cost of dropping a course after the deadline will be $5. This fee will be paid at the Registrar's Office and is applicable to each transaction (all drop/adds presented at one time). For example, a student adding or dropping a single course will be charged $5; a student presenting several drop/adds at one time will be charged a total of $5.

St. Maries leaves today for Southern Oregon

By Bryan Clark
Of the Argonaut

Today is the last day on the job for the University of Idaho's assistant alumni director.

Michael St. Marie will leave that position this morning to go to Southern Oregon College, where he will be that school's first alumni director.

St. Marie will also leave behind the job of alumni field manager, a position he was the first to hold at the UI. "I was basically a jack of all trades here at Idaho", St. Marie said, "I did some fundraising, some function organizing, whatever was needed."

As alumni field manager, St. Marie organized the scattered UI alumni around the west into chapters. This "made for much better alumni support and, in addition, got them more involved with the activities of the UI."

This alumni involvement is funneled mainly into organizing functions at away athletic events. As a matter of fact, "The UI is the only school in the Big Sky conference to have alumni support at every away football game, we could do better in basketball also, except for the weather" St. Marie said.

Alumni involvement in UI events has had the added advantage of providing more dollars for the school. St. Marie said "by exposing people to the school and giving them the opportunity to help, they feel better about donating to our program."

So why leave the UI to go to Ashland? St. Marie replied "I have always urged people who come to me seeking advice to try something new whenever you are given the opportunity. I figured I had better follow my own advice." Also he said "I want to see what its like to be boss."

As the first alumni director at Southern Oregon, St. Marie said "I will be moving into a totally new program and that will give me a lot of freedom in how I do things." St. Marie said he will handle all the fundraising and alumni organizing himself, tasks that require several people at UI. "Although that will be a lot of work, the alumni at SOC are much more concentrated so not as much travel time is needed," St. Marie added.

St. Marie will be only the fourth alumni director in the Oregon university system, joining those at Portland State, Oregon State, and the University of Oregon. He sees this as an advantage. "While SOC is small, it is growing, and I see a lot of potential there."

In addition to the challenge of forming his own alumni department from scratch, St. Marie said he likes the Ashland area. "There is a ski resort only 10 miles away, the winters are mild and the summers are hot" he said. "Also, Ashland is centrally located for fun, being equally as close to Reno, San Francisco, and Portland," St. Marie added.

On the subject of his possible replacement, St. Marie said "I hope that the Administration will put a UI alum in the position, but nobody has been chosen yet." He did say, though, that he could only think of two or three people in the state who are qualified.

St. Marie assumes his new job on the 19th of this month but he said "I will miss Idaho a lot and I am definitely going to be back for the Boise State game later this year, there are some things I just can't miss."

A Supreme Court decision forcing employers to pay workers overtime instead of giving compensatory time off has sent many government agencies scrambling for more money, but so far UI hasn't been affected, said Jerry Reynolds, Controller.

Reynolds said that previously UI workers either got time and a half for overtime, or were required to take compensatory time off at a later date.

But according to the new ruling, workers now must take compensatory time off within the pay period; if not, then they must be paid overtime.

"This primarily relates to peak workloads at various times," said Reynolds, adding that people working overtime during busy periods would gather long hours of compensatory time and use it when their jobs were seasonally slow. He cited an example of physical plant workers doing overtime during a heavy snowstorm and then taking the compiled hours off during the summer, when there isn't as much work.

Since the workers are not allowed to do this anymore, this means the University now must pay those workers for their overtime.

"We don't really know what the fiscal impact is going to be," said Reynolds, adding that it is too early in the year to see if there will be problems.

He said that there is no relief fund for paying the overtime, and that payment will have to come out of the particular department responsible for its workers. This could cause a financial burden on departments, forcing other areas in the department to be cut back.

Whether UI will be adversely affected by the Supreme Court's decision will remain only a question unanswered until more time elapses.

Forest issue grows to new heights

By Randy Ballice
of the Argonaut

No consensus was reached by the estimated 120 people attending a presentation on the proposed Clearwater National Forest Wilderness management plan Wednesday night.

The program, sponsored by the Idaho Conservation League, was intended to generate interest in the "public input" phase of the planning process. Representatives of both the ICL and the Clearwater National Forest were present.

Cindy Teipner of the ICL began the proceedings with a slide presentation of the ICL proposal for the Clearwater forest. After defining wilderness, she stressed the congressional mandate for wilderness requires inclusion of five out of six multiple-use categories.

Teipner presented her rebuttal of "the myth that wilderness is for elitists." She also said in 1982 Idaho forest lands were logged at a loss of 64 cents for every dollar in timber sales.

"The ICL proposal would allow two-thirds of existing roadless lands to be made available for logging. This is in addition to roaded areas already open to logging," Teipner said.

The extended question-and-answer period which followed was acrimonious. Repeatedly, members of the audience intimated additional wilderness in Idaho will reduce the state to a "large ghost town".

Teipner said "Not one wilderness area has been responsible for the closure of a mill in Idaho."

Jerry Wegman, UI professor of business law, said "Wilderness has been the scapegoat of a failing timber industry."

In the second half of the program, representatives of the Clearwater National Forest presented their 50-year draft management plan.

Doug Glevanik outlined the planning process which generated the forest plan, along with the preferred alternative.

James Bates, the Clearwater forest supervisor, fielded questions concerning the plan. "Our proposal is the balance between the two extreme issues we heard tonight. Each side uses statistics to justify their side. But, I suggest that you read the text of our plan. Many of your questions will be answered," he said.

However, when asked about "deficit sales," Bates responded, "What do you mean by 'deficit sale.' I can log any area under a variety of deficit schemes, and I can log an area at a profit. But you won't like it."

At stake is the management direction for the Clearwater National Forest for the next 50 years.

Profes to teach star wars class

This semester Continuing Education is offering a course that deals with the effects of nuclear explosions and the political ramifications of the United States' "Star Wars" defense system.

The five-session non-credit course will be held on Wednesdays starting Sept. 11 and going to Oct. 9. The class will meet from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. in Room 111 of Renfrew Hall.

The course will analyze major issues in controlling nuclear weapons, overkill, fallout, nuclear winter, Strategic Arms Limitation

Foundation to consider South African investments

By Roger Jones
Of the Argonaut

The University of Idaho Foundation board of directors is voting on a policy change to determine whether to cease investing in companies which do business in the Republic of South Africa.

If the policy is passed, companies with direct ties to South Africa, specifically Ford Motor Co., General Motors, International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., Mobil Oil and Union Carbide, will lose future financial support in the form of stock holdings from the UI Foundation.

Of the more than $17 million that the UI foundation holds, approximately $1 million is currently invested in these five companies.

The resolution states that no immediate action will be taken affecting the money currently invested.

This illustrates that the politics of South Africa and apartheid are beginning to affect even the students at Moscow. UI Foundation dividends are presently used for university purposes such as scholarships, research, and student loans.

According to Leonard Purdy, foundation board president, the proposed policy poses no serious effect on the income from the foundation.

Purdy contends he is "100 percent sure that the board will accept this. Seven of the board members have already voiced affirmative on the proposal. The other board members will be voting by mail within the next few weeks."

If the resolution is passed, the UI Foundation will halt further investments into companies doing business with South Africa unless the companies "endorse concepts of racial fairness and equality as embodied by the Sullivan Principles."

The Sullivan Principles are guidelines for corporate conduct in South Africa. Authored by Reverend Leon Sullivan, the principles outline proper equal-right measures to be taken by business with connections in South Africa.

Both U.S. Representative Richard Stallings (D-Idaho) and Governor John Evans are speaking strongly for such actions.

"I certainly would encourage business and industry in the United States to withdraw their investments and support to that government in South Africa" Evans said when on campus Monday.

Here on campus other actions may be made. "I'd like to see us take a stand on it" ASUI President Jane Freund said, referring to the investment issue.

Last spring the ASUI Senate voted down a resolution to support disinvestment of companies tied with South Africa.

"I suspect we're going to see something," Freund said, anticipating some senate action.

Elliot Skolnick, the author of the resolution, is now an ASUI senator.

Ken Harris, a member of the UI Faculty Council, said he is considering reintroducing a motion to the council that would take a stand against UI investments in companies dealing with South Africa.

his resolution was defeated.

Seniority system should continue

In politics, for good or ill, seniority is a major determinant of power. This comes about especially in the selection of committee chairs and committee composition: the elected officials who have been around the longest get first choice. This is traditional on all levels of government: federal, state, and even within the ASUI.

Wednesday the ASUI Senate held its semi-annual rite of selecting its president pro tempore, the person who attempts to bring a group with fragile egos to workable and politically acceptable solutions to legislative problems. The senators chose Larry Seid, who is thoughtful, calm and soothing.

All three qualities are important, but the last probably most necessary, especially considering what happened next.

The senate then approved a bill forming the committees which actually do the work of the senate: the interviews, the basic research, the tedious hearings. Two bills were prepared, based on the ASUI vice-president's best guesses who would be chosen for president pro-tem and how the committees should be put together.

However, ASUI Vice-President Mike Trail acted unwisely when he presented a bill that in one fell swoop did away with the senate seniority system, and cast out Senator Kelli Kast of her job as ASUI financial vice-chairwoman.

And the ASUI senators who voted to support the move should reconsider, as it leaves senate committee assignments to be made on a subjective basis by the vice-president.

As one who has seen eleven different senates and served on two, I can sympathize with the criticism which has been leveled against the seniority system. Seniority does sometimes advance people who are not always the best, but this disadvantage is outweighed by the greater disadvantages which have been opened up by this recent move.

Trail has taken the senatorial committee assignment from the arbitrary but objective into his own subjective values. The process has now been politicized. If a senator is not seen through the vice-president's eyes to be "good," the vice-president can move the senator the next time committee assignments are made.

This authority to decide which senators to place on the powerful (with a little "p") finance committee, which coordinates legislation dealing with the $700,000 ASUI budget, is now to be made on the basis of whatever the vice-president thinks is best.

Perhaps a vice-president might not like the way a senator voted on a bill authored by the vice-president. There is even the possibility a vice-president might use this power to remove from the spotlight of the finance committee a possible future rival for political office.

Trail has opened himself up to criticism in this move, mostly because Kast, who is the senior member of the current senate, was removed from her position of vice-chair of the finance committee. Kast gained this seniority by both longevity and vote-count, the former based on her election last fall, the latter by receiving 1,008 votes. This figure is some 300 more than her closest opponent.

In fact, by number of votes, Kast is one of the most popular senators elected in the last six years.

Trail and the senators would serve themselves — and future senates — well by reconsidering both the composition of the new committees, and the selection process. Otherwise they should be prepared to take the questions and the criticism which will come their way.

Sowing the seeds of folly

David Blakely

When it comes to anticipating and supporting popular movements for freedom, democracy and justice, why is our government always a day late and a dollar short? Why do we, time and time again, support repressive right-wing regimes, putting expediency before principle, in the name of preventing the spread of communism?

Consider the case of South Africa, or the Phillipines, or Chile, or any one of a number of countries where we support right-wing tyrants. If there is a civil war in South Africa, for example, what do you think is going to be the attitude of black South Africans towards the U.S. once they gain control of that country? I wonder what sort of logic our government will use trying to explain how a nation founded on democratic and Christian principles could support apartheid for so long. Could we possibly blame South Africans if they chose instead to seek ties with the U.S.S.R.?

The problem with our foreign policy is that we view any communist takeover as stamped in stone and enduring for all time. Hence our government, instead of viewing such a takeover as one step in a process of change, chooses to see it as irrevocable, unchangeable and to be avoided at all costs. Somehow we manage to forget that people will eventually tire of totalitarian rule as they have in China and Poland.

It is our impatience which has led us past and present to supporting some pretty heinous characters. It seems to matter little to us whether men such as Somaza, Marcos, Botha, et al. merely pay lip service to the rights and ethics of our western heritage—just so long as they keep the communists at bay.

In the end it is we, not the Soviets, who create the lingering discontent among the poor people of these nations. As we betray our principles, and deny the people of these nations the rights we so zealously guard for ourselves, we supply the Soviets with ample propaganda to foment revolution. It is we who sow the seeds of discontent; and the communists who reap the benefit.

Our greatest folly in all this mess is that we have convinced the de facto dictators of these nations that they are indispensable to our national security.

South Africa's Botha knows the Reagan administration won't lift a finger against apartheid as long as there is a threat of communist takeover in that country.

Likewise, the Phillipines de facto dictator Marcos knows that Subic Bay Naval Base is his ace in the hole when it comes to dealing with President Reagan and Congress. In this case our government even aids and abets Marcos by insisting that Subic Bay is vital to our security.

This is pure poppycock. With umpteen islands in the Pacific under our control, and friendly countries from Japan to Australia, Subic Bay is nothing more than a nice to have, but hardly critical, installation. Its loss would simply mean packing up and building elsewhere. It's about time Marcos and Botha learned they are not as indispensable as they think — or as we think.

At bottom what is lacking in American foreign policy, aside from patience, is faith: faith that in time our principles of freedom, decency and fairness will win out. Instead we have become cynical, extending an olive branch and military aid to any despot who claims to be anti-communist. In effect, we buy their favor year to year at the expense of their peoples' rights.

What is needed is a foreign policy with a vision well beyond the next election, and the fortitude to stick to principles in the face of adversity. After all, if we can not remain true to our principles what claim have we on other nations to respect those principles?

COMMENTARY

The Hill with parking Victoria Seever

I have never owned a car. In fact, I have as many negative attitudes toward the Great American Automobile as I've ever had toward Journalism. And, we're in the midst of the campus's greatest crises: Car Wars. Student vs. faculty and staff. Who's on a par with whom. King of Cadillac Hill!

It strikes me as a little silly. There are no shortages of causes to be championed, or should I say, chauffeured? But I'm not sure the administration has "targeted students for yet another humiliation" by taking away parking lots. The university is, after all, a business whose primary function is to provide the facilities and services that secure an education. To accomplish that, it must also provide certain facilities and services to its employees.

We could talk about how employees regard parking space as a kind of benefit even though they pay through the nose to get it. How racing through errands on a mad-cap lunch hour is a priority to someone juggling kids, job hours, garden, mother-in-law, MTV and a refrigerator on the fritz. Or how students too will expect a few benefits when they have careers.

We could talk about how students were up all night grinding out test material they've also paid dearly for. How a sidewalk roller coaster is unwelcome to a hangover at 7:30 a.m. And that they too are legally licensed to park.

But what it may come down to is less complicated. Any business must have reasonable access. In cities, there's downtown parking you fight for, and then walk the six blocks to the office elevator. In Moscow, you get a place to park it within 15 minutes walking distance. Let's face it. For most students, that's as close as their doorstep. But for most employees, the suburbs are further out.

Which is not to say there can't be a better solution. Perhaps everyone should have to park on the perimeters and walk in to the core. Joggers unite and show us the way! Or if you really feel discriminated against, Chan Davis's suggestion of unpaid parking fines holding up next semester's registration sounds like a plan.

But if you're going to demand "the principle of the thing," be prepared. You'll forfeit your place in the registration line and pay the late fee. You stand up to the folks as to why you're raising Cain with the Hill. And because it's your principles, you pay yourself whatever fees — parking or fines — it takes to see through your complaint.

You may even make the national news. But if that's just too "inconvenient," then lace up those sneakers and truck. Student rights guarantee orange busses prior to college. After that, parking space is a different ballgame.

Personally, I've preferred walking for years. Chrome isn't the only thing to see, nor fumes the best thing to breathe.

(The writer has two degrees and is now a "full-time blue collar worker" at the UI.)

Get it yourself

Ah, Mr. Kilmer, you are somewhat of a sexist. Your article, "Ladies, a fair warning", in Tuesday's Argonaut seems to be based on stereotypes of women from the 1950's, 60's, and early 70's. Women today feel little inclination to spend their money or their time wearing lingerie simply to parade it in front of men who are so narrow-minded that, five days a week, for four months out of the year, they can only focus their attention on a 13x19 inch box.

You also seem to be misinformed on several other points. College women have better things to focus their attention on than who is hosting Monday Night Football, be it Howard Cosell or Joe Namath. Needless to say, the younger of the two men is pushing 50. As for Playboy magazine, which you cite in your article as not for "girls", there is some doubt as to whether or not it is for boys. According to recent reports, Playboy's circulation is declining.

Women watch football, many enjoy it, and a good many of us are well acquainted with the definitions of a tight end and of a return to render your wearisome explanations unnecessary.

Your article, Mr. Kilmer, neither entertains nor informs, it merely insults....And darling, get your own beer.

Placement center to offer interviews

Sign-ups for placement interviews will take place beginning Sept. 17.

UI undergraduates within grasp of a degree and within two semesters of graduation, UI graduate students in progress toward a degree and with 75 percent or more of their required program completed; UI graduates and those Idaho certified and successfully completing their experiential program under formal UI supervision can sign up.

Those in the experiential program must have active placement files and meet the requirements specified by employers in order to be eligible to sign up for placement interviews.

Sign up takes place at the Placement Center, located in Brink Hall, at 8 a.m.

Signing up for and cancellation of scheduled interview appointments must be done in person to avoid potential identification problems.

Cancellations must be at least 24 hours in advance of the scheduled interview in order to give other interested registrants a chance to fill the vacated spots.

Failure to keep scheduled interview appointments may result in the loss of interviewing privileges. Any changes, additions, or deletions in this academic schedule will be sent directly to the departments involved and posted in the Placement Center.

Sign up numbers will be drawn by lottery starting at 8 a.m. and continuing throughout the day, in the Placement Center on Monday, Sept. 16. Early arrival is discouraged and will not be acknowledged or reflected in the drawing procedure.

For those registrants who are not present on Monday, the staff upon opening the Placement Center at 8 a.m. Tuesday, will continue the drawing for remaining sign up numbers.

These numbers reserve 30 minute time periods between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on the first two days of sign up. During each time period, a maximum of 13 registrants may sign up en masse for interviews by presenting their number at the time indicated on it, or at a later time.

During the entire first two days of sign up registrants will be limited to a maximum of four interview sign ups. Starting at 8 a.m. the third day of sign up, registrants wishing to sign up for additional interviews may do so in accordance with the established requirements and procedures, and on a first come first served basis.

Once an interview schedule is full, usually 13 registrants per day per recruiter, an overflow

Halley's to disappoint skygazers

Those who are expecting to witness a spectacular show when Halley's comet arrives later this year are going to be disappointed, according to one of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's top astronomers.

At best, Halley's will appear to the naked eye as no more than "a bright star with a tail," according to John C. Brandt Jr., director for the Laboratory for Astronomy and Solar Physics at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

Brandt told an audience at Washington State University that out-sized expectations of Halley's result from the fact that the last time it came, in 1910, conditions were perfect for viewing.

list is established.

Signing up on an overflow or pre-screening list during the first two days will be counted as one of the first four interview sign ups.

Employers are notified of overflow lists and encouraged to add schedules.

All employers select and then indicate to the Placement Center their preferences with respect to pre-screening, graduation date, number of interviews available, length of interviews, and separation of their interview schedule by college/major. The Placement Center facilitates these employer decisions.

He explained that the comet's bright appearance and distinctive tail are caused by interaction with the sun. In 1910, the earth was positioned to make it possible to see that interaction. But when Halley's approaches this time, it will skirt the far side of the sun. The sun itself, and the blinding effect of its light, will block our view of Halley's as it flares most brightly.

Nevertheless, Brandt said, the observer who gets away from city lights and watches the sky will have the literally once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see Halley's, which has great historic and scientific significance.

He said Halley's comet will be most visible in the Pacific Northwest in December and early January. By March, the best viewing time of all, it will not be visible from the Northern United States because of the tilt of the earth.

Comets, and particularly Halley's, have long been considered omens because of their sudden and spectacular appearance in the sky. Halley's appearance in 1066 was assumed to have been sent to mark William the Conqueror's invasion of England.

Halley's is historically significant as the first comet to be correctly explained. Early in the 18th Century, Edmund Halley, an associate of Sir Isaac Newton, noticed that historic records showed a spectacular comet appearing every 76 years. Based upon Newton's theories of orbiting planets, Halley predicted the comet would appear again in 1759. It did, although Halley died a few years too early to see his theory validated.

European, Russian and Japanese spacecraft will intercept Halley's and send back photographs and a great deal of information about it, Brandt said. Brandt said the week beginning March 6 will deliver "a thrill a day" as the spacecraft send back their data. NASA has organized a network of 1,000 professional astronomers around the world to coordinate observation of the comet.

The data from the spacecraft will supply first-hand information about the nature of comets. Until now, astronomers have had to use various evidence to deduce that Halley's is an ice-covered ball approximately three miles in diameter.

This relatively tiny object in the universe can be seen because energy from the sun lights up dust and ice particles that surround it. When it is very close to the sun, this fluorescence extends to the famous tail which may be tens of millions of miles long. After it has made its swing around the sun, the comet is flung away in a long elliptical orbit, to return in approximately 76 years.

Women set for opening tourney

By Chris Schulte
Of the Argonaut

The University of Idaho women's volleyball team opens up its 1985 campaign this Friday and Saturday as they host the Cavanaugh's/Idaho Classic in Memorial Gym.

Teams competing in the round-robin style tourney will include the Vandals, Eastern Washington, Washington State, Gonzaga and Cal State Fullerton. Each team will play everyone and the team with the best record will be crowned champ.

The 1985 Vandal women have six returnees from last year's 26-14 squad. Heading this list are Kelley Neely, Robin Jordan and Laura Burns. Second year coach Pam Bradetich added, "These are the ones we'll be looking to for strength and leadership throughout the tourney. Nellie Gant is also returning but is injured. She's been out a week and a half already with achilles tendonitis, she'll be missed."

When asked about how Idaho stacks up against the competition, Bradetich said, "It's so early, it's hard to say. I would have to say we're evenly matched with everyone. Cal St. Fullerton may have the edge because they have been working a little longer and have stiffer competition in California." Looking at the rest of the field, Bradetich feels all are "improved" over last year. WSU and Eastern both have new coaches this season.

Thus far due to injuries to Gant and others, the volleyball team has been trying to get a consistent starting line-up together. Bradetich feels the tournament is a good pre-season type of tourney.

"This kind of tourney gives us a chance to get the opening game jitters and a good look at the freshmen, to see how they'll fit into our program," Bradetich said.

The Vandals first game is at 3:00 pm Friday against Eastern followed by an 8:00 pm contest with WSU. Saturday, Idaho

Vandals ready to hunt Beaver

By Greg Kilmer
Of the Argonaut

Although it's not quite the rainy season in green western Oregon, the air will be full this weekend with footballs.

OSU's "Air Express" vs. Erickson's "Air Express", the Red Baron would be proud of this one.

It's a whole new ballgame for the Oregon State buckteeth as new head coach Dave Kragthorpe begins his first season at the Corvallis school.

"They'll be different this year from last," Vandal head coach Dennis Erickson said. "But we saw him (Kragthorpe) at ISU and during their spring practices."

The pilot of the new Beaver Express will be freshman redshirt Erik Wilhelm. Wilhelm battled fellow rookie redshirt Shaun Shahan for the starting signal caller spot after last year's duo of Ricky Green (injury) and Steve Steenwyck (grades) are not on the OSU roster. Shahan went back to Montana after being tabbed 2, leaving the Beavers with a possible soft spot at quarterback.

On the other end of Wilhelm's aeriels are what Kragthorpe calls the "strength of our ballclub." Leading the receiving corp is two-time All-Pac 10 wide-out Reggie Bynum.

Bynum, who needs 48 receptions to break OSU's all-time mark, had 51 catches last year for the Beavers, ranking him 15th in the nation. Six of those for 103 yards were against the Vandals.

Senior receiver Robert Adams returns at the other receiver spot after only catching three passes in 1984 because of injuries. Adams will also return punts for the Beavers.

The tight end position was not a strength for the Beavers in 1984 but Kragthorpe feels that it should be improved for '85.

Returning senior Ron Heller appears to be the frontrunner, although freshman Phil Ross has been challenging.

The offensive line is an area that Kragthorpe listed as a priority when he arrived in Corvallis.

"With our system, it comes down to pass protection," Kragthorpe said. "We feel our players have made the adjustment."

Starting on the offensive front are tackles, Chris Dahlen and Tom Emmons, guards Dave Giacomelli and Darrick Brilz and returning starter at center Jack Lester.

The running backs have been a question for the Beavers, something that has Kragthorpe apprehensive.

"It's too bad I wasn't hired a month earlier because we lost out on a chance to recruit proven junior college players," Kragthorpe told the Lewiston Tribune. "Next year, we'll go heavily for JC players."

The people who will fill the spots this year for the Beav's are senior fullback Darvin Malone and sophomore tailback Jerry Jordan.

Malone was OSU's sixth leading receiver with seven last year and should be expected to grab more this year with Kragthorpe's throwing system.

Defensively, (OSU was ranked near the bottom in about all categories in the Pac-10) OSU will feature a lot of new faces.

Senior Tom Emmons made the switch from offensive line and will be joined by newcomers Gino Mingo, Bob Cline and Rich Haggerty.

Senior Osia Lewis returns at the middle linebacker spot for OSU. Osia is expected to be a leader defensively and will be flanked by senior Mike Parker and junior Harold Johnson.

The defensive secondary is young with only senior strong safety Mike Lopez returning. Junior Lavance Northington, freshman redshirt Teddy Johnson and sophomore Jamie Norman are expected to round out the starting secondary.

Jim Nielson won the place kicking job for OSU after battling strong legged Marty Breen. Chip Stempeck is back for the punting chores after being nagged by injury last season.

While Idaho has suffered through injuries through the fall, gone are the starting backfield, Fred Lloyd and Steve Jackson, OSU has had little problems. Only back-up defensive lineman Andre Todd will miss the contest.

On Leadership —

There is nothing so likely to produce peace as to be well prepared to meet an enemy.

General George Washington

Do you have leadership potential?

If so, we can develop it! We'll give you training and experience in leadership positions which will pay off in any career. And those who fully qualify can earn a commission as an Army Officer. But there's no obligation during the first two years! If you decide to become an Army Officer, your service options would include:

- * Active Duty — 3 to 4 years full time, full pay, full benefits.
- * Reserve Forces Duty — part time, along with any civilian career

Pam Bradetich, a proven winner

By Tom Liberman
Of the Argonaut

Women's volleyball coach Pam Bradetich begins her second season at the UI with a team that has many more questions than her 26-14 team of last season.

Bradetich began last year as an interim coach while head coach Amanda Gammage took what was to be a one year sabbatical.

Gammage announced that she would not be coming back in November of 1984 and Bradetich was named as the full time coach half way through the volleyball season.

This was not the only surprise in her career with the Vandals as she was offered the assistant coaching job after her senior year at the UI.

Bradetich had led the Vandals to a 31-4-1 mark as captain in her senior year and was looking at a job as the coach of the Moscow High School volleyball team when the position opened.

She said "I really liked the college atmosphere and everything about the college."

She took the job as assistant and three years later she was the head volleyball coach at the UI.

"The administration was very supportive of me and that helped me make the transition," Bradetich said.

In her first season of head coaching she was very successful as the team took second place in the Mountain West Athletic Conference with only two conference losses.

These two losses came to a powerful Portland State team that also defeated the Vandals in the post-season tournament.

She said this year's team, which consists of seven freshmen, is getting to know each other well and should have another fine season.

Among those players lost to graduation were Jenny Frazier and Kelly Gibbons who led the team in blocks and kills.

Frazier will be returning to the Vandals as the student assistant coach and Bradetich said her presence will help the team.

While the Vandals did lose some of their top players others will be returning to the team.

Bradetich said, "The seniors are giving us excellent leadership and setting a very good example in practice."

The three returning seniors are setter, Kelley Neely, outside hitters Laura Burns and Robin Jordan.

Bradetich said this year's team is probably a question to the other coaches in the conference because so many of the faces are new.

She said, "This year's team will be exciting and our success will depend on how well they grow and mature together."

Among this year's incoming freshman is 6'3" Fort Collins, CO native Terri Plum.

Plum is the tallest Vandal this year and Bradetich is hoping to use her mainly as an outside hitter.

Plum is an example of what has been a successful out-of-state recruiting program and relatively unsuccessful in-state program.

This year's team will consist of five Washington women, two each from Colorado and Oregon and only one from Idaho.

Sally Beyer is the only Vandal who comes from Idaho and she played high school ball in Sandpoint, the hometown of Bradetich.

The major problem for the Vandals this year will be beating perennial powerhouse PSU. Portland is listed as a Division II school and having them in the league denies the conference winner of an automatic NCAA berth.

While Portland may officially be a Div. II team their schedule consists solely of Div. I teams and they have the talent to be in the tougher league.

Bradetich would like to schedule some of the top teams in the nation but said the only way to do that would be willing to go down and play in Southern California.

She said that if the team continues to improve maybe they will be able to provide the competition to attract some of the better teams to the UI.

Erickson on KRPL radio

KRPL will air a 30 minute talk show this season featuring Idaho head football coach Dennis Erickson. Hosted by KRPL Sports Director, Tom Morris, the show will air on Tuesday nights at 7:00 pm and feature a summary of the previous week's game, question and answer segment and an outlook of the week ahead. Fans can call or write to KRPL with questions about the football program to be answered on the air.

Fit-Tips

QUESTION: I'm trying to get back into condition after taking time off over the summer. Any suggestions or guidelines towards my goals would help tremendously.

ANSWER: Once you've decided on the exercise that will best suit your needs, keep in mind that getting back into shape won't happen in a matter of days. It may have taken a short time to get out of shape and will take an even longer time to regain the level of fitness you once attained. Here is a list of some basic reminders to help you on your way to fitness.

1- Warming up. See that proper and adequate warm-up procedures precede all activities.

2- Gradualness. Add small daily increments of work. Remember, it takes from six to eight weeks for a person to get into top level condition.

3- Motivation. Motivation is a prime factor, keep going even when you're ready to throw the towel in. Using more than one main activity will help to keep your routine from becoming monotonous.

4- Routine. Consistency becomes a key factor. Don't overdue and overextend yourself but exercise from four to five days per week.

UI women to walk for $

The University of Idaho Athletic Department has announced plans for an ambitious fall fundraising event for the Vandal women's athletic program.

Jo Kleffner and Donna Belknap of Moscow have been named to co-chair the "Lady Vandals Stride for Gold, 1985."

The concept duplicates a successful project at San Jose State, whereby prominent women are invited to participate in a prestigious walk-a-thon.

"Successful women helping the Lady Vandals succeed is the key to the concept," said Assistant Athletic Director Kathy Clark. "We want to make this an annual event and are searching for a 1985 goal of $25,000," Clark said.

A Moscow area planning committee has been formed and a network of area coordinators will be named to help recruit and motivate participants in outlying areas to reach personal fundraising targets.

"We're enthusiastic about the project," said Athletic Director Bill Belknap. "And we hope to generate a new network of support from successful women throughout the area."

This year's "Lady Vandals Stride for Gold" will take place Saturday, Sept. 28 during Vandal Homecoming '85. The one hour fundraising walk will be culminated by a celebration champagne brunch to present awards and announce results.

Anyone wishing to walk should contact Clark at the athletic department at the university. Anyone who wants to help but can't make it to Moscow, can have student women athletes walk as proxies.

For more information, contact the Athletic Office, University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho 83843 or call (208) 885-6291.

Marathon

The Beta Theta Pi and Sigma Nu fraternities are going to the baseball diamond to try and raise money for Stepping Stones, Inc.

The two fraternities are planning a 48 hour marathon starting today at noon and running through noon Sunday at Ghormley Park across from the SUB. University of Idaho President Richard Gibb will help start the 48 hour event.

Stepping Stones is a local organization helping the Moscow area's handicapped get along in every day life.

The two houses are taking pledges on a hourly basis, a nickel the minimum.

The teams will be playing in hour shifts with five minute breaks in between.

The fraternities would like to thank Tri-State for donating softballs for the event and the Pepsi Co. for beverages.

For further information, call Craig Robinette at the Sigma Nu house, 885-6813 or John Newhouse at the Beta house, 885-6251.

UI on tube

The Idaho Athletic Department and KUID have announced plans to televise Vandal football games this season.

KUID, channel 12, will televise all Idaho home games on a delayed basis beginning with Mankato State on September 14.

The games will be aired at 9:00 am on Sunday mornings throughout the season and will include Nevada-Reno, Sept. 28, Montana, Oct. 19, Eastern Washington, Nov. 2 and Boise State, Nov. 23.

And if it isn't enough

The Idaho Athletic Department has announced plans to televise four Vandal football games in the Boise area this season.

KTVB-TV, channel 7, will televise live the Idaho vs. Nevada-Reno game on Sept 28, with Mark Johnson doing the play by play with former Vandal and Green Bay Packer great Jerry Kramer doing color.

KIVI-TV, channel 6, will televise the Idaho vs. Boise State game live on November 23 with Wayne Dzubak doing the play by play and Larry Polowski, former Seattle Seahawk, providing color.

In addition, KIVI will air two other games on a delayed basis.

The Idaho vs. Mankato State game will air Sunday, Sept. 15 at 1:00 pm and the Idaho vs. Montana contest will be shown on Sunday, Nov. 20 at 1 pm.

QB luncheon

The first Quarterback Luncheon of the season is scheduled for Monday, Sept. 9 from noon to 1:00 pm at the University Inn Best Western.

This year the luncheon will move to a different location each month. In addition to Sept. 9, the University Inn will host luncheons on the 16th, 23rd and 30th of September. Cavanaugh's Motor Inn will host the luncheons in October on the 7th, 14th, 21st and 28th.

Soccer Meeting

The University of Idaho soccer club will be practicing Monday, Sept. 9 on the Wallace Complex Fields at 6:00 pm.

All interested should come on out.

Meeting set for Ruggers

For all possible ruggers out there, here is your chance.

According to University of Idaho Rugby Club president Deeder Petersen, there will be an organizational meeting for all interested Monday, Sept. 9 at 7:00 pm in the SUB's Chief Room.

The meeting will go over scheduling and fundraising for the upcoming season.

The UI club opens up their season Sept. 14th in Spokane with a round robin tournament.

Chairs plans still on

By Mike Long

Of the Argonaut
Musical Chairs for Africa will still feed the hungry there and here, but with a modification due to high priced insurance to cover the event's participants.

Organizers for the event, TKO Communications, recently discovered that their present policy was not sufficient to cover the 5,000 potential players and they would need to take out a bond for $100,000.

TKO representative Terri Lynch, called it "too exorbitant of a price" which would not leave much, if any, in ways of funds for Africa, "one of the primary movers behind this thing."

"We want to end up giving money to Africa and not to the insurance company," said Rhonda Osborne, another representative of TKO Communications.

Lynch did not feel that they should put their sponsors into such a compromising position. As an example, one of the sponsors is the University Inn-Best Western, owned by the Hagadone Corporation, which affects most of Northern Idaho.

However, "there is still an opportunity to generate funds," she said, and that is by limiting the number of actual players to approximately 100, depending on the number of organizations that get involved, and turning Musical Chairs into a spectators event.

Still scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 15th at 10 a.m., the registrations will be placed into buckets representing each group present. There will also be two boxes for independents.

Shelly Monahan of KREM-TV will be on hand to act as master of ceremonies of the event and to draw the names of the participants.

And the prizes have not changed either, with the grand prize being a week long cruise for two to the Caribbean, and to a representative of the living group with the largest amount of donations will go on a weekend trip to MTV's studio in New York City.

Nor has the excitement really changed either in the groups who were interested in the event before the change. According to Osborne, the change went over easy.

"People like to spectate. Football is big. Basketball is big. People don't play it, they just watch it. (Musical Chairs) should still be exciting for spectators," Osborne said.

Music will still be provided by several local bands including Black Rose. Lynch hopes the idea will "still generate the excitement."

Those interested in participating, can pay the two dollar chair donation at the University Inn-Best Western. TKO Communications, KMOK in Lewiston and Dooley's Deli in Pullman.

Or, there is also a seven dollar memorial T-shirt, of which two dollars will go to USA for Africa.

Sooner than you expect, Homecoming will be here

Arriving earlier than many would expect this year will be the University of Idaho's Homecoming with the majority of the events being scheduled for the weekend of Sept. 28, so start laying your plans now.

The Homecoming committee would like to stress to living groups to get ready for floats and the living group competition which will include a poster competition in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome and the decorating of the group homes themselves.

As usual, there will be awards for the best floats and living group competition. The committee would also like people to start considering nominations for Homecoming Royalty.

Highlighting the week will be a SARb-Homecoming three mile Fun Run on the 21st to initiate Homecoming week and then the 23rd will be the beginning of GDI Week.

Wednesday, Sept. 25, will be the Bonfire and Pep Rally at 6:30 p.m. in the UI Arboretum. Then on the 28th, the Idaho Vandals will face Nevada-Reno in the Dome at 1:30 p.m.

Rhodes looks for applicants

Potential Rhodes and Marshall Scholarship applicants are being sought, and students of high character and intellect are encouraged to apply before the Oct. 15 deadline, according to Kent Hackmann, advisor of the scholarship programs.

The Rhodes Scholarship provides two years of paid educational costs at Oxford University, a living stipend, travel costs, and is renewable for a third year.

Unmarried men and women between 18 and 24 years of age who are seniors or graduate students in any major are eligible for the award. Rhodes Scholars are allowed to study any subject at any one of Oxford's colleges, according to Hackmann.

Normally, said Hackmann, a minimum GPA of 3.7 after the freshman year and a diverse academic background are required for both the Rhodes and Marshall Scholarships.

Marshall Scholars study at any university in Great Britain. Men and women who will not have reached their 26th birthdays on Oct. 1, 1986 are eligible.

"I am certain that we have some people who are quite capable of winning," said Hackmann, "and they don't have to be supermen or superwomen."

Hackmann encourages interested students or faculty members who know a qualified student to contact him for more information and application forms in Ad. 315 (885-6253).

Something Different

The Argonaut Art and Entertainment Magazine

More than books sold

By Nella Letizia
Of the Argonaut

Tucked between Payless Shoe Source and Lazy K Corral in a remote corner of the Palouse Empire Mall is a bookstore, but don't expect to find any Chemistry 101 textbook there.

The store is called Crossroads, a source for Christian books, bibles, greeting cards, tapes, and records. Crossroads is not a traditional bookstore in the sense that it is in business solely to sell its stock and make a profit.

Crossroads is an active, non-denominational center for Christians in the community, offering counsel and the opportunity to participate with other Christians in bible study and ministries.

"We are domestic missionaries that work here in town," Roy Knecht, staff member at Crossroads, said.

"We want to be a center to them (Christians), provide a common ground," Charles Diede, manager of the bookstore, said.

Crossroads is a satellite of Community Christian Ministries (CCM), formerly Inland Christian Laymen, a non-profit corporation from Pullman Washington, said Diede. CCM started the first Christian bookstore in Pullman called One Way. Crossroads became the second store.

"Now we have five stores and are looking for a sixth one," Diede said. Current locations include Moscow, Pullman, Salt Lake City, Provo, and Logan, Utah, Diede said.

Crossroads and the other stores are run by CCM in small communities with large universities because it is easier to win smaller communities to Jesus Christ rather than larger cities, Knecht said.

"We don't ram the Gospel down people's throats, we just present it," Knecht added.

Diede said university communities are also chosen as sites for Christian bookstores by CCM because the community population changes every four years upon graduation and these graduates move to other locations, taking with them what they have learned from the stores and people.

Crossroads has had three locations since its creation in 1971--Main Street, where Guitar's Friend is located, the corner of 3rd and Washington, and its present location in the Palouse Empire Mall, Diede said. Its spinoffs include Crossroads East, Cair Paravel, and Dawn Treader.

Staff members of CCM bookstores do not receive conventional salaries. Employees are paid by gifts to the ministry from people voluntarily, Knecht said. The money is then divided among workers according to their family circumstances and need. In some cases, free services to the staff are provided, such as haircuts.

"We never solicit," Diede said.

ASUI Productions ready for fall

By Karma Metzler and Mike Long
Of the Argonaut

Though he is not sure when ASUI Productions first started, Director Barry Bonifas says that students have been responsible for bringing acts to the campus for as long as 50 to 60 years.

And students are still doing it today, because ASUI Productions is run by students and the decisions are made by them. Bonifas is the advisor to the group.

He said it is a good opportunity for the students to gain experience and that many have worked internships in the office for various majors such as business for example.

One of the major functions of ASUI Productions is Palouse Performances, in cooperation with the Washington State University Coliseum.

And a part of Palouse Performances, is their Artists series which will kick off Performances' third season when "Abigail and Harvey", the story of the Northwest's leading women's voting rights advocate, opens Tuesday, Sept 24 in the Hartung Theatre.

According to Bonifas, the play documents the rivalry of feminist Abigail Scott Dunway and her brother Harvey Scott, the influential and conservative editor of the Oregonian.

Bonifas said that not only does the play star popular Northwest actors Jane Van Boskirk and Bill Douglas but was written by Portland playwright Charles Deemer.

Season tickets are now available at WSU's Coliseum ticket office marking the beginning of Palouse Performances' third season. This is also the first time events on the UI campus are available on a separate ticket package, Bonifas said.

Jazz pianist Ramsey Lewis, the Philadelphia String Quartet and the Paul Winter Consort are the other featured attractions on the UI campus this season.

The Coliseum Theatre at WSU will present the Western Opera Theatre performing Mozarts "Don Giovanni", Seattle Mime Theatre and the Main Attraction, the Broadway Musical "Ain't Misbehavin'", the Peking Acrobats, the Brass Band and the Phillip Glass Ensemble.

Bonifas explained the decisions on what Palouse Performances will present this season by saying that they look for those groups which not only fit their budget and are popular enough to at least break even, but also who willing to come to the area.

The population and location of the university cities makes it difficult to get the big artists like Tina Turner or Bruce Springsteen, Bonifas said.

"We do not have the ability to get all the people we want. It is not worth their while," he said. Still with their limitations, ASUI Productions "tries to present a varied and excellent series of events for the university community," Bonifas said.

Bonifas and company also ask the question, "What do Nerds, Humanoids, Eddie Murphy and Bikers all have in common?" More then you would first think when you involve ASUI Productions because they are responsible for SUB Films also.

With SUB Films, they bring a combination of recent second-run films, some classics, and special films and "cult" favorites. The first showing is at 7 p.m. with sometimes a second and a third following.

And even more appealing to the student's backpocket is the low price of two dollars for the majority of the films. As an example, the series will present the black comedy "Eating Raoul" this weekend and will follow next week with "Romancing the Stone" and then "Beverly Hills Cop".

ASUI Productions is also responsible for alot of behind the scenes work on the campus such as taking responsibility for the art gallery in the SUB and helping with ticketing, lighting, catering, etc. for the Jazz Festival.

Belafonte tickets still on sale

Many of the best seats in the house are still available for Harry Belafonte's appearance tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Washington State University's Beasley Performing Arts Coliseum.

The tickets for the show are priced at $11 and $14 and can be found at the box office, Budget Tapes and Records and Process, Inc. in WSU's Compton Union Building.

Belafonte helped to establish "folk music" as a popular art form here in the U.S., has taken that interest abroad and is bringing back home various talents in the same field.

With plans laid to put out an album with them next summer, Belafonte is forming a workshop of West Indian and African singers in the field of folk music.

This workshop is currently touring with him and will also join for the WSU concert and the one following the next evening in the Spokane Opera House at 7 p.m.

Belafonte has also taken a more active interest in Africa than just a musical perspective. He recently participated in the album, "We are the World" to raise money for USA for Africa.

He has also protested South Africa's apartheid policy in demonstrations in Washington, D.C. Belafonte has been involved with Africa since the late 1950's.

And the demonstrations were not his first involvement in politics. He was a cultural advisor to the Peace Corps for President Kennedy, and involved with the civil rights movement and Martin Luther King Jr.

He has received recognition from such groups as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), the American Jewish Congress and the City of Hope.

But his interests are not limited only to singing and politics. Belafonte has also taken steps into television and is most remembered for his western with Sidney Poitier, "Buck and the Preacher." In addition, he has produced several motion pictures.

Of particular interest to college students, Crossroads has contemporary Christian music tapes and records in stock.

"We have the best selection of contemporary Christian music in our area," Knecht said, which includes Pullman, Moscow, Lewiston, and Boise.

A special feature of the bookstore's policy is giving away or loaning out books, tapes, and records for those in the community who cannot afford to buy them. Giving away these items puts a strain on the store's finances.

"We give away a little under $100 worth of books a month," Diede said.

"On a business sense, we are up against the wall," Knecht said.

"We are in the black," Diede added, since CCM does not allow any of its businesses to go into debt.

Opposition to the Christian store has been encountered in the past. The biggest confrontation comes from those who don't understand why they limit the selection of merchandise, Knecht said.

"We get regular confrontations, not vicious things," Knecht said. "We get cult members in the store alot."

Despite opposition, Crossroads has gained "a fair amount of success," Diede said.

THERE IS AN ALTERNATIVE!

Dear Professor:

If you have ever placed assigned readings and aids on file in the Library Reserve Room you may be interested to know about KINKO'S "PROFESSORS' PUBLISHING PLAN". We have initiated a service for you and your students, which not only provides an alternative to the Library Reserve Room but one that will prove to be more satisfactory and efficient.

Recognizing that some materials put on file are difficult to obtain, this new plan would offer your notes, pamphlets, and personal study aids available at KINKO'S for your students' benefit. With our convenient location, study materials would be widely and readily accessible to students, and at low prices. Instead of having only two hours in which to study the material, students would be able to retain their own copies of assigned readings, and thus use them in a more effective manner.

With our "Professor's Publishing" service we can maintain at our store a MASTER COPY of any legally* reproducible source material you may wish to assemble for your students.

Before you make a long distance commitment, make sure you know what you're getting into.

If Fletcher Christian and Captain Bligh had known what being stuck in the same boat would mean, chances are neither would have set foot aboard.

And if you're stuck in the same boat with a long distance company that doesn't give you all the services you need, it's easy to harbor mutinous thoughts.

But when you pick AT&T as your long distance company, you know you're in for smooth sailing.

You'll get trouble-free, reliable service. Immediate connections—even during the busiest hours. Guaranteed 60% and 40% discounts off our Day Rate on state-to-state calls. And operators to assist you with immediate credit for wrong numbers and collect calling.

So when you're asked to choose a long distance company, sign aboard with AT&T. With AT&T Long Distance Service, you'll never be left stranded. Reach out and touch someone.®
