

MFD housewarming

The Moscow Fire Department is always on the look out for old condemned buildings which they can use for their training exercises. This was the case Sunday on Palouse River Drive, near highway 95. An old apartment building had been condemned and was ready to be torn down when the MFD stepped in and offered their services free of charge. The MFD wanted this site because it satisfied many of the criteria for a practice burn. One, it was far enough away from other buildings. Two, there were no power lines near the site. And three, there were fire hydrants nearby to provide the water for the training and safety that a job like this demands. Photo Bureau/Tom Turner.

Jobs still available for nannies in East

By Michon Harb

An alternative to the traditional child care of a mother or of a child care center is a nanny. Various agencies in the Boston area place women and men into families who want their children to receive more personal care than a day care center could give them.

So says Rex Moon, manager of One on One, a nanny placement agency. This agency is in its first year of operation and has placed 40 women and men. Moon said he expects by next year to place 100 people into families in the Boston area. This is a comfortable number of people to place and families to work with, he said. One on One has placed five men out of the 40 people and 16 more men plan to come in the spring.

Most of the families who receive nannies live in the north of Boston and in 21 towns around that area, starting with Lexington and Concord all the way to the Atlantic ocean, said Moon. He said he doesn't like to place people in New York because it's not as safe as Boston.

A nanny job is usually a minimum of one year, yet some people stay longer and there are limited placements for summer employment. Sometimes a family needs a nanny only for the summertime. Most of the nannies are 19 to 22 years old but this agency does place older people as well.

To become a nanny a person is required to have at least a high school diploma, some college experience and to have some fairly significant experience with babysitting or child care. Moon said this experience is necessary to make sure the student enjoys working with children and knows what is involved when taking care of a child.

If a person is interested in becoming a nanny, the person must first contact an agency which will in turn send a packet. The packet will include an application, a brochure about the program and a questionnaire to help the person decide if this job is right for him or not. The person must then send back the application, a picture and three references along with a letter saying why he wants to be a nanny.

The agency talks with interested families and gives them names of people who sound like they match well with what the family is asking for. The family then calls the applicants and both sides conduct an interview. Moon said it's a two sided coin: the family can pick a applicant they like and the applicant can pick a family he can get along with.

In the screening process, it's important to weed out the people who are applying just to run away from something else. This doesn't make a good applicant, said Moon. Also, a person must think seriously about becoming a nanny. One major problem for the applicants is homesickness. Often times it is the first time the person is away from home. To combat these feelings, One On One publishes a newsletter to tell of the activities in the area and includes a list of the nannies in the area. This way they can contact each other and get together in their free time.

A person is often placed in a family situation where both the parents work. They are usually

Where to vote

The following are polling booths on campus where students can vote Wednesday in the ASUI election:

Library, Physical Science Bldg., Ag Science Bldg., Forestry Bldg., Administration Bldg., Jensen Engineering Bldg., Law Bldg., The Tower, The Wallace Complex, Education Bldg., SUB.

The polling booths will open at 8:30 a. m. and close at 5:00 p. m. except for the Wallace Complex and SUB booths which will stay open until 6:30 p. m.

All students voting must have their student ID cards with them.

professionals, either doctors, college professors or in the high technology industry. The family has one to three children usually ranging from two to four years old. Of course this varies from family to family. The family usually lives in affluent areas and they want their children to live and play in their own neighborhoods rather than have their children in day care centers.

Applicants may decide to become nannies for various reasons. Most of them want a change from their college courses and need a break to decide what they really want to do. Others are majoring in a field that involves children, like child care education, general education and nursing and are looking for some practical experience in child care.

Parents Weekend to be exciting for all

By Patricia Hatheway
Staff writer

With spring finally here, it's time for university traditions to come alive. Parents weekend is just one of those many traditions.

Parents weekend originated from a conglomeration of several activities that had been scattered throughout the spring. These activities were the Blue Key talent show, the Phi Delta Theta Turtle Derby and other various student activities. Then the weekend shifted to an awards assembly, which was a weekend rather independent of any other activities. These activities then came together to form Parents weekend.

The Parent's association was formed from Parents weekend. According to Mary Kay McFadden, associate director of Alumni Relations, "We have had the Parent's association since 1971." This organization sponsors a breakfast for parents and students on this weekend.

"This is a time for parents to come up and visit students in the spring," said McFadden. "I think it is important to offer this opportunity because a lot of student activities take place that highlight all different areas of student life," she said.

The activities taking place this year are traditional as well as new. The Honors Convocation, to take place in the Memorial Gym, is a celebration of students named to the Dean's Honor Lists, those elected to scholastic honor societies and recipients of alumni awards for excellence during the 1985-1986 academic year. This will take place Friday afternoon at 3 p.m. and is a new activity this year. Also ASUI Programs is presenting Larry Linville of MASH fame in the SUB Ballroom at 7:30 p.m. Friday evening. There will be a $2 charge. This day is also "Invite a Parent to Class" day.

Saturday, the Parents Association Breakfast will be taking place in the SUB Ballroom at 8 a.m. Reservations are requested and tickets are available at the SUB info desk and the Alumni office. SARB is also doing campus tours for people who want to see the campus. Tours are being given at 9:30, 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. and depart from the SUB lobby. Also there will be living group and academic open houses, and for the 29th year the Phi Delta Theta Turtle Derby will be taking place. This traditional event will begin at 10 a.m.

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the Student Awards assembly will be held in the SUB ballroom. "It's a yearly student awards assembly for student recognition," said McFadden. "We like parents to share in the accomplishments of their students," she said.

Also in the evening, the JINKARI Basque Dancers will be performing at the Elks Club from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Advance tickets are $4 and $5 at the door, including all the beverage you want.

"It's an excellent time for students and parents to get together before graduation, and it is also a good opportunity for students to get out and enjoy spring," said Vettrus.

"Complete schedules are available at the SUB information desk and other various key locations around campus for people to pick up," said McFadden.

Honors Convocation: An academic occasion for exceptional academics

By Susan Bruns
Staff Writer

The first annual UI Honors Convocation, established to recognize student academic achievement at the University of Idaho, will take place April 11, at 3 p.m. in the Memorial Gymnasium.

UI President Richard Gibb will preside at the convocation. California Professor of the Year, Dr. Donald McIntyre of Pomona College in California, will be the distinguished speaker.

"The purpose of the convocation is to bring the whole university together for an academic occasion," said Marvin Henberg, director of the UI Honors Program.

Henberg said the convocation is now the only event during the school year to bring the entire university together to celebrate academic excellence, excluding commencement which honors only seniors.

"We hope that the convocation will become a yearly event," he said.

Students who made the dean's list for the fall semester, recipients of the Alumni Award for Excellence and new initiates into UI scholastic honoraries will be specifically honored at the convocation, according to Henberg. Their names will be presented in a special convocation brochure. He said about 1,100 student names are in the brochure.

Henberg said the convocation is an important step by the university in recognizing academic achievement. He stressed, however, that it is not only the students to be honored at the convocation who deserve recognition.

"Every student at the university is important to the university," he said.

"When the community attends a Vandals basketball game, they get pleasure out of watching good basketball players. They are not the only people who play basketball, but we still recognize their high achievement," he said.

In the same way, Henberg said, the convocation will recognize the academic achievements of students who do remarkably well. He said there are still many more students with academic achievements.

"That is why the convocation is a celebration of academic excellence for the whole university, even though it recognizes particular students," Henberg concluded.

The convocation, according to Henberg, will begin with an academic procession of college deans and vice-presidents followed by remarks from President Gibb.

Vice-President of Academic Affairs Thomas Bell will then present the Burlington-Northern Distinguished Faculty Awards. The UI Vandaleers will also perform.

Dr. McIntyre's address, entitled "The Magnitude of Time," will focus on the intellectual revolution caused by the geological discovery of the earth's much older age.

Women's Center discusses weapons and child support

"Weapon's Bazaar, the Greatest Bomb Show on Earth," will be presented today at 12:30 p.m. in the Women's Center lounge. Bill Kuhre, visiting associate professor of English, will present an audio slide show depicting how weapons are sold to the Pentagon, and how the "Soviet threat" is an effective sales approach in gaining lucrative Pentagon contracts. "Child Support and Enforcement" will be presented tomorrow at 11:30 a.m. in the Women's Center lounge. Moscow attorney Frances Thompson, the child support enforcement officer for the area, will discuss federal legislation passed last year to help states collect unpaid child support for the custodial parent.

Thompson will reveal where Idaho stands in respect to implementation of the legislation, and cover recent changes in divorce laws.

Barry named Phi Kappa Phi nominee

Bobbi Jean (McKean) Barry is this year's Phi Kappa Phi Fellowship Nominee. Barry, a UI math education major from Jerome, Idaho, was chosen from many applicants.

Annually, Phi Kappa Phi National Honorary Society awards 50 fellowships nationwide for graduate study.

Each chapter forwards one nominee for the competition. The selection is based on scholastic achievement, promise of success in graduate or professional study, leadership, participation in university and community activities, evaluation by instructors and expression of study plans and career goals.

KUID volunteer Hagenlock honored

A UI senior communications major was honored by KUID Television with the J.S. Schlaefle Memorial Stipend. Dianne Rudy-Hagenlock was given the recognition for her work as a student employee and as a volunteer. The award is given annually to one full-time student who is an employee or volunteer at one of Idaho's public television stations. Nominees must exhibit superior performance in their assigned duties and be recognized and respected by their peer group.

"EVERYONE ELSE COMES UP SHORT"

FOR SENATE

Meet the ASUI candidates; election is Wednesday

Sean Wall

Why should you be elected? The question regarding why I should be elected to the Senate is easily answered. I have the needed experience to be a contributing member of the Senate. I also have the ability to get done what my constituents want done. I believe the qualities of experience and legislative ability are the two most important qualities of a senator.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees? I believe KUOI is an important part of our campus and it's ASUI funding should continue. My only suggestions are cut back actual broadcasting hours to 18 and create a scheduled format.

Should the Golf course continue to receive student fees? As far as the ASUI golf course is concerned, I feel it is a jewel to our student body. Thus I feel we should do everything in our power to make it a profitable department of the ASUI.

What do you feel about off-campus students' input into student government? In answering the final question, concerning off-campus input, I am torn. On one hand I feel if off-campus students are really interested in being heard, they can become involved in student government. On the other hand, I realize not everyone can be involved. I would suggest a mandatory minimum of two off-campus senators.

Brian Long

Mini-biography An incumbent senator and journalism/political science major. I've been interested in politics for longer than I can remember. I was a page in the state senate and an intern in the Governors's office. I've put countless hours into the Senate this semester and worked hard to do a good job; I hope you will let me continue for another year.

Why should you be elected? Because my experience as a senator will be an asset to the ASUI and I am committed to doing a good job representing UI students. We need senators with the knowledge and desire to fight for student interests and bring new ideas to the ASUI. I cooperate well with others and hope to continue working for you in the Senate.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees? Yes. KUOI provides a unique brand of radio to many UI students. A recent Argonaut poll showed that 5 percent of those polled supported KUOI's student fee subsidy. I'd like to see KUOI provide more broadcast news experience by attracting student internships with the School of Communication and increase their underwriting revenue. This may be able to save the ASUI money.

Should the Golf course continue to receive student fees? Yes. The ASUI must continue to support the Golf Course. If we don't, we may lose any control of it like happened with the Kibbie Dome. I believe alcohol sales would help increase revenues and perhaps help attract more tournaments etc. The course is improving yearly and someday may even make some money for the ASUI.

What other issues are important to you? I think we need to look at firming up ASUI administrative policies, like job descriptions, etc. This would improve ASUI accountability, and help insure that those being paid by the ASUI (including senators) are really earning their paychecks. I'd also like to see the ASUI pay more attention to married and older students and keep pushing for more campus lighting.

What do you feel about off-campus students' input into student government? I recently drafted a bill that gave part-time students the opportunity to vote in ASUI elections and since most part timers are off-campus this is a good first step. I also

The Idaho Argonaut is published, while the university is in session, on Tuesdays and Fridays August through May, and on Thursdays during June and July. Mail subscriptions are $6 per semester, or $11 for the calendar year. Editorial and advertising offices are located on the third floor of the Student Union Building, 620 S. Dean St., Moscow Idaho 83844. Phone numbers: Editor (885-8993); Advertising (885-8371); Secretary (885-7825). The publisher is the Communications Board of the Associated Students University of Idaho. Opinions expressed herein are those of the writer. The Idaho Argonaut is distributed to 87 locations on campus. It is funded by advertising sales and a portion of the ASUI activity fee. Second class postage is paid at Moscow, Idaho 83843 (UPS 265-680). POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Idaho Argonaut, University of Idaho, Moscow Idaho 83843.

Let's protect our future

If you think education is expensive, try ignorance. Many of Idaho's present leaders and a slim majority of the legislature seem to think (if that's possible) that Idaho can do just fine without a quality education for its children.

The legislature passed a public school appropriation of $314 million for public school support. That amount, once again, is $6 million below what educators say is needed just to maintain the present level of services.

The lawmakers also set higher education's budget at $90.7 million. This was also millions of dollars below what the State Board of Education said was needed to keep the colleges and universities at the present level.

This is only made worse by the fact that $2.8 million is one time money, to only be used for the purchase of equipment and library expenses. That means the base budget for 1987 is $87.9 million.

The advantage of this approach is of course that these old gentlemen will not have to pay higher than the lowest tax base in the nation. Most of the conservative legislators are fairly old and do not want to pay any more taxes than is absolutely necessary.

But while this approach is inexpensive in the short run it is the most costly in the long haul.

The education may be cheap now but the cost of ignorance is starting to hit.

Many businesses, looking for places to move to, are already overlooking Idaho since our educational system leaves them doubtful about finding properly educated people to work for these budding industries. New people are hesitant to move in to the state because of rational fears about the quality of education their children will receive.

The Idaho brain drain is on. People who can afford it are sending their children out of state for their secondary education, and they're staying there.

Education is the weapon which the children of today and tomorrow will defend themselves with from a rapidly changing and increasingly complex world. The pace of change is accelerating and the reason for this is an increase in educated people.

Public education is, also, the underlying premise that supports a democratic society. Without an informed, educated populace we will elect fools (more dangerous ones).

What these legislators want is to hold back the progress of the last two decades. Similar to an aging couple that only remembers the "good old days", Idaho's ultra-conservatives want to go back to the 1950s, and bring everyone else along with them.

They are not worried about the future, because they don't plan to live in it.

Since we will be living in the future, we should do something about it now, in the present.

We all have the power of the vote and if we all use it this May, in the primaries, and in November, in the main elections, we can determine how good or bad our future will be.

We can use it to put people who know that Idaho can not be healthy in the long run without a healthy education system.

People who are willing to bite the bullet in the short term in order to make Idaho strong in the long run.

People who have visions for Idaho in the 21st century.

As always, it is the youth that holds the responsibility for the future.

Nuclear test ban: another wasted opportunity

Michael Haberman
Columnist

An opportunity is about to be buried in a radioactive tomb under the Nevada desert, and it may be a long wait before it comes around again.

April 16 is the scheduled date of the next atomic bomb test conducted by our government. We continue, unblinking, with our tests, ignoring a policy change in the Soviet Union that might offer a ray of hope.

The Soviets haven't tested a nuclear device since last summer. Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev decided last August that the Soviets would unilaterally end all nuclear tests until the end of the year.

The ban has continued, even though we refuse to reciprocate. Our last tests were March 22. The Soviets have since given us one more chance; they won't test until after we do.

The unilateral test ban is not an olive branch. It's doubtful the Soviets have suddenly learned the error of their totalitarian, militaristic ways. Changes come slowly.

The war in Afghanistan continues. Human rights violations are common in the USSR. Thousands of nuclear bombs are poised, ready to leave Soviet hands and destroy us within minutes.

No, we can't trust the Soviets, but that doesn't mean we should immediately reject the test ban.

Maybe we could make it work. Maybe we could agree in this one area, and establish the first tenuous elements of trust that must be forged before we dare hope for more changes, and for a future of peace.

The idea of a test ban is not radical.

After all, as syndicated columnist Ellen Goodman points out, the idea to ban nuclear tests was our idea first. Previous administrations tried to sell it to the Soviets without much luck.

Now we're the ones saying no.

President Reagan's refusal to consider the test ban is a mistake. If the ban is a bluff, why not call it? What could we possibly lose by agreeing to a test ban that would help limit both sides from developing even more deadly weapons?

It doesn't seem to stand in the way of the nuclear-free future Reagan is so fond of talking about.

The only thing we'd really lose is the ability to test the very weapons Reagan says he wants eliminated.

But talk and reality are, in this case, far, far apart.

The official line since '80 has been that the only way to get rid of weapons is to build more weapons. First the MX missile, and then Star Wars, had its killing edge dulled in soothing rhetoric about its value as a "bargaining chip" to bring about arms reductions.

But as Reagan talks in comforting tones about arms reductions, he is busy building up peacetime weapon stockpiles faster than in any other period in history.

It is time for a stunning reversal of policy. It is time for Reagan to reduce weapons by more traditional means, such as building fewer or agreeing to stop testing new systems.

The Soviet challenge has given him another opportunity to make this change, to show if he is really interested in reductions or in nuclear superiority.

If Reagan were serious about arms reduction he would see the test ban proposed by the Soviets as a promising first step. Yes, it would have to be verified. And with those thousands of weapons still staring at us only minutes away across the polar icecap, a test ban would have to be looked at as a small step toward easing the nuclear stand-off.

But it would be a real step, a tangible accomplishment instead of the hollow rhetoric and empty speeches we hear about how arms reduction is only possible with another weapon system.

The world is running out of hope while the man in the White House plows ahead.

For over 40 years nuclear weapons have threatened our existence. The time for building a non-nuclear future cannot be endless, and every opportunity squandered brings us closer to its end.

Psych pot-luck

Dear Editor,

The annual Psychology Club "pot-luck" party will be held on Wednesday, April 9, at 6:30. Maps are available in the Psychology Building.

I would like to invite all interested persons to attend, as this is a time for us to meet with our professors, graduate students, and fellow undergrad's, in an informal and highly festive atmosphere.

The Psychology Club's activities have included meetings, guest speakers, panel discussions of what to do with different level degrees, how best to prepare for psychology related jobs and graduate programs, and, well, parties!

Kim and Brian

Dear Editor,

We are writing to make our support known for two candidates-Brian Long and Kim Ackerman.

Brian is currently an appointed ASUI Senator and has done nothing but push for the students. He has put in numerous resolutions including the drinking age resolution and redefining the tuition bill resolution. With the drinking age resolution he surveyed students by phone to have a better understanding of what you, the students, wanted. He lobbied in redefining the tuition bill which went through the State Legislature.

Brian in trying to represent the students has thoroughly researched each resolution he has put before the ASUI Senate. He has worked for you. Brian is a fantastic senator and he will continue his participation in trying to benefit students.

Kim Ackerman is a transfer student from Boise State University, and within the year she has taken an active interest in the University. She is currently a member of SARB and the Political Concerns Committee. She is also in the honors program. She has an attitude of involvement and promoting higher education. In knowing Kim, we feel she would be a tremendous asset to the ASUI, and would work for you and your concerns.

In closing, we'd like to stress the ability of these candidates. Both would work for you-Brian has proved this and in knowing Kim-she would do the same. We urge you to vote for Brian Long and Kim Ackerman for ASUI Senate.

Vote Brad Cuddy,I

Dear Editor,

There is a new, young face running for ASUI Senate this semester. His name is Brad Cuddy, and I feel that he is as qualified as any of his opponents.

I went to high school with Brad, and, as an upperclassman, I was very impressed with his ability to formulate new ideas and events that would benefit both the school and the students alike.

Brad has always impressed me as a very hard worker. He has good common sense, an overwhelming knowledge of politics and leadership, and has always been effective in meeting the needs of people who are counting on him. In a word, Brad Cuddy is an achiever, and I think he would be an asset to any schools' administrative body. I'm glad that he has chosen our school, and I plan to vote for Brad Cuddy for ASUI Senate. I hope others will, too.

Christine Larson

Apology to SBA

Dear Editor,

I would like to apologize to members of the Student Bar Association if they were misled by an Arg article on the Senate a few issues back. The story didn't get the whole context of Senate debate in (understandable, considering our verbalism). Some members of Student Bar read the article as saying that SBA had broken a written contract with the ASUI. Anyone at the meeting would know that the Senate was discussing whether SBA's support of a candidate in last semester's elections broke the oral understanding ASUI has with all its departments forbidding anyone budgeted with ASUI monies from supporting a particular candidate in ASUI elections. There were no illegallities performed by any parties-the agreement was only oral.

My thanks to Tim Malarchick for his understanding and help in this issue. The ASUI will be taking steps in the future to define this grey area on paper and see if we can't avoid hurt feelings in the future.

David Dose

Good candidates

Dear Editor,

Each year, the students of the UI get the pleasure of electing some of their fellow students to ASUI office. This spring, some truly outstanding candidates are running for the ASUI Senate.

BRIAN LONG has been a model ASUI Senator. Not only does he do what is required, he goes the extra mile! Brian recently authored legislation giving part-time students the right to vote. To Brian, representation is not an idea, it's an ideal!

JEFF FRIEL is not afraid to ask questions if he does not understand an issue. He knows that it is better to "know your stuff" rather than "pretending to know your stuff."

JOHN RAUCH proves that "There is no substitute for experience! John opposed the ASUI Senate salary increases. In light of the fact that the senate voted to cut some other ASUI employees' pay, John's actions are very admirable.

DAVE DOSE is the model of consistency. During our work together in the ASUI government, Dave and I had our disagreements, but I always respected his opinion. Dave bases his opinions on facts and well-thought logic.

BRAD CUDDY has a great background in business operations and financial matters. His genuine concern for students' opinions is necessary for serving the students effectively. Brad's talents would be a crucial addition to the ASUI Senate.

KIM ACKERMAN combines an effective speaking style with knowledge and ASUI experience to produce an excellent ASUI Senate candidate. She has always impressed me with her "need to know"! Kim does not spout out information without first checking its validity.

Long, Friel, Rauch, Dose, Cuddy, and Ackerman! What more can I say except please remember to vote tomorrow! Thank you!

Jane L. Freund

Vote Brad Cuddy,II

Dear Editor,

BRAD CUDDY established, financed, and operated a Teen Entertainment business as a senior in high school.

BRAD CUDDY designs homes, churches, and building additions in his spare time.

BRAD CUDDY served as president of the Idaho Association of Student Councils.

BRAD CUDDY works with children at the UI Early Childhood Learning Center.

BRAD CUDDY served as Public Relations chairman of his fraternity, is an Interfraternity Council officer, and has aided Student Advisory Services in high student recruiting efforts.

BRAD CUDDY is seeking a senate position in the ASUI elections April 9.

The list of his achievements could fill several pages. But more importantly, by the time he graduates, he will have created a list twice as long, twice as impressive.

Undoubtedly, Brad Cuddy has the skills and qualifications necessary to be an outstanding senator. He possesses not only the ambition and creativity needed to establish new programs, but also the dedication and enthusiasm to improve and maintain those already in existence. His concern for others is obvious by the projects he has undertaken. He is attentive to those around him, and receptive to their opinions and ideas. Most importantly, however, Brad has the uncanny ability to communicate effectively with individuals, groups, and audiences.

Vote for a real leader on April 9 — Vote Brad Cuddy!

Kristi Hanson

Vote Brad Cuddy,III

Dear Editor,

In and amongst this soon-to-be flurry of senatorial candidates prior to the ASUI general elections, who are running for reasons ranging from resume filler to fame and power, one candidate stands out as above and beyond all the rest. His name is Brad Cuddy.

Now, before you write this letter off as another candidate cajoling his friends to write nice, praising letters, read on. At the age of fifteen, Brad was designing malls, churches, and private homes for his father's business. At nineteen he owned his own business, a teen entertainment center/night club. He has held various offices in high school, and is currently pledge class president of his fraternity, Sigma Chi, as well as being involved in many activities on and off campus.

His stand on the issues includes increased study space on campus during midterms and finals, increased SUB hours, keeping the golf course student owned/operated, resolving the parking situation, rejecting housing cost increases, and continued support of KUOI.

I have the utmost confidence in Brad Cuddy. I'm sure that if you give him your support on April 9, you will be more than satisfied with your choice.

Mike Gotch

Mini-biography Mike Gotch is a junior in Chemical Engineering and is currently serving as Vice-Chairman of Academics Board. His hometown is Shelley, Idaho.

Why should you be elected Mike is running because of his strong beliefs about these issues: 1. He supports the Idaho State Constitution which prohibits the charging of in-state tuition. This provision has been threatened for the last four legislative sessions. The legislature meets next year. 2. Mike is against any major fee increase without a referendum. 3. Mike supports moving withdrawal deadline to three weeks before end of semester.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees?

Gotch believes that a student-run radio station gives vital experience to students in the communications field. This is important due to the drastic cuts in the Regents-owned TV and radio stations, which has jeopardized hands on experience at these facilities for students.

John Rauch

Mini-biography

I am a sophomore in general studies and currently a senator in the ASUI. I am a former lobbyist to the legislature and I have served on committees in the ASUI including the constitutional revision committee and currently sit on GOA.

Why should you be elected?

I was appointed to the senate position by president Gino White for my experience in the ASUI, and after being a senator I feel that keeping experience in the senate is important. It is really difficult especially during budget time when you are new and do not have a good knowledge of the process.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees?

KUOI is obviously a privilege and we should appreciate it. I think that if it is to continue to operate it should be under student discretion and certainly under student control. In no way do I feel that we as students should let the responsibility of KUOI drift to any one else.

Should the golf course continue to receive student fees?

The golf course is one of our best assets but it continually seems to lose money. With the golf course being at the mercy

DeBord is deOne

Dear Editor,

In the twice annual hoopla of ASUI elections, faces, names, and ideas seem to blurr, confusing voters. Every once in a while, a face stands out from the crowd and finds an audience, only because he or she carries a little more energy and a few more ideas. Eric DeBord is just such a person.

Anyone who has met Eric will attest to his off-beat campaigning, originality of thought, and refreshing enthusiasm. In addition to being an excellent student, Eric involves himself widely in campus and community service, while maintaining a knowledge and concern for student issues. What sets Eric apart, however, is his approach — his style. The explanation for his unique manner lies in Eric's inclination to think through problems creatively, rather than accept sedate opinions.

I firmly believe Eric DeBord will bring a spark of life to the often mundane issues of student government. I encourage every UI student to cast his or her ballot for Eric DeBord for ASUI Senate.

Gregory Eiselein

Vote Mike Gotch

Dear Editor,

I urge the students of the UI to vote for Mike Gotch on April 9, as your ASUI Senator.

Mike is dedicated to serving the students, and has strong convictions by which he will stand. Gotch is aware of the escalating fees here at Idaho, and the danger facing our tuition-free education. As a senator, this would be a priority for Mike. He also is concerned with methods of making the golf course more profitable, and maintaining student control of the course.

I have known Mike for over three years and I have always found him to be a man of dedication, integrity, and accomplishment. A vote for Mike would be a positive step for the ASUI and the students.

Sprinters run wild in All-Idaho track meet

By Chris Schulte
Staff writer

Both the men and women's track teams enjoyed a successful weekend at the All-Idaho championships in Boise. The men finished runner-up to winner BSU while the women were fourth.

Leading the way for the men was the sprint crew of Patrick Williams, Everton Wanliss, Chris Stokes and Dayo Onanubosi. This group swept first through fourth in the 100-meter dash and then turned around to sweep the top three positions and garner a fifth in the 200-meter dash. Williams stole the show as he collected the double win.

The 400-meter relay team, which included Jeff Collins in place of Williams, was also victorious.

In the weights the Idaho men enjoyed good success. Leading the way was the one-two finish of Tom Erickson and Stefan Wikstrom in the javelin. Other top places were turned in by Kurt Schneider (second, discus), Dan Martin (third, shot put), and John Mittman (fifth, discus; sixth, shot put).

The Vandals also collected points in the jumping events. Leading the charge in this area was Steve Krakenberg with a second in the high jump. Jeff Collins picked up a third in the long jump while Dwain Fagerberg placed fourth in the high jump and fifth in the triple jump.

Rounding out the other top placers for the men were Shane Brand (second, steeplechase), Rob Simpson (third, 400-meter), John Fahey (sixth, 400-meter hurdles), and Jim Mckean (sixth, 5,000-meter).

Men's Coach Mike Keller was pleased with his teams performance: "The guys really did well. I'm especially pleased with the sprinters and the way they came through for us. It really was a good opening meet for us."

Keller was quick to point out that the meet went as he expected with BSU. "They did what I figured they would at the meet, but last year they beat us by even more and we still got them at the conference meet, so we shall see come May," he said.

For the women, because of lack of numbers, they were never really in the thick of things by a team score point of view. Individually it was on of the most productive meets as 10 of 12 girls entered came home with a place.

The top places of the day were collected by Sherry Schoenborn and Cathy Wall. Schoenborn placed first in the javelin while Wall was the winner of the 3,000-meter.

Kirsten Jensen enjoyed a good meet also as she set a school record in the triple jump placing fourth with a jump of 35-11 1/2. Jensen came back for a fourth place finish in the long jump.

Other double placers for the ladies were Bobbi Purdi with a third in the 100-meter hurdles and fifth in the 200-meter and Julie Helbling with second in the discus and third in the shot put.

Rounding out the scoring for the ladies were Paula Parsell (third, 1500-meter), Laurie Askew (fourth, 400-meter hurdles), Louise Mainvil (fourth, 3,000-meter), and Maureen McGinnis (fifth, 1,500 meter).

Women's Coach Scott Lorek was very pleased with his troops' weekend. "I'm very satisfied with the girls. They all competed well and handled a little added pressure real good."

Lorek was pleased with the number of personal records that were set by the ladies. "We came away a school record and five or six other P.R.'s, so I'm really happy. It's a little sad that we don't have the numbers to compete as a team but everyone that we do have is having a great year."

The men will be taking part of the team to Corvallis, Ore., this weekend while the women are off till April 18-19 when they travel to Boise for the Bob Gibb Invitational.

Tennis teams storm Seattle

By Kellie Gravelle
Staff writer

The Vandal tennis squads showed their might last weekend in Spokane as they soundly defeated both Seattle University and Gonzaga University.

Seattle University was no problem for UI as the Vandal men rolled by their opponents 9-0. "The team played well," said Head Coach Patrick Swafford. "I can't single any one out. Everyone played well."

The women played equally well against Seattle University, winning 8-1. Outstanding efforts were shown by Holly Benson, Pam Waller and Kathy Benson, Swafford said.

The next opponent, Gonzaga University, proved to be no threat to the UI men as the Vandals destroyed their competition 9-0.

Swafford praised Perry Eng's performance: "Perry is starting to come on. He's playing better and better with every match." Eng defeated his Gonzaga opponent 6-1, 6-0.

Because of a forfeited match, the women beat Gonzaga University 9-0.

Magic number 2 for ruggers

The UI rugby club, with a win Sunday over Western Washington University, continues to enjoy success this spring. But with two more regular season matches in the Pacific Northwest college rugby league remaining, Idaho can not afford to rest on its laurels.

This weekend Idaho will host the Oregon State University Beavers and the University of Oregon Ducks at the UI intramural fields. By winning both matches, the UI ruggers will advance to the Pacific Coast Collegiate Rugby Championships in Tucson, Ariz., April 24-26.

The UI's convincing 43-3 win over WWU puts the squad at 8-3, and should help set the tone for the upcoming matches.

"The team is starting to peak at the right time in the year," said UI captain Matt Hansen.

Against WWU, seven players scored tries, and the entire team played good fundamental rugby. "We were able to work on things that had given us trouble earlier this season," said UI veteran Lance Levy. "It was much more of a team game." Idaho opened up the scoring in the early minutes when prop Rod Wolf threw a long line out to flanker Buddy Levy, who turned upfield and quickly passed to flyhalf L. Levy, who beat one defender and sped in for the try. B. Levy converted and the UI was rolling.

WWU countered with a penalty goal, but that would be their only score, as the UI gained the majority of possession and played aggressive defense when WWU had the ball.

"We showed improvement everywhere," said coach Wally Tribbley. "We hit as a team and won more possession."

Following WWU's goal, Idaho moved back into the opponent's end and began a spree of scoring. Forwards Chad Nestor and Hansen touched down for tries along with backs Paul Salchert, Mike Burke, Mark Jones and Steve Wohlschlegel. B. Levy and Kevin McGlaughlin kicked conversions and L. Levy added

Mr. Linville is a surprisingly versatile and thoroughly schooled actor. His early credentials include a degree from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London. Prior to his casting as Major Frank Burns in the television series M*A*S*H*, Larry was regarded as a heavy, dramatic actor. Nevertheless, his portrayal of Frank Burns is a modern comedic classic. As a speaker, Larry knows very well what the audience comes to hear and delivers a show guaranteed to satisfy the most avid M*A*S*H* fan. His candid thoughts and observations of the entertainment business are a welcome added dimension to this program.

Just when you thought it was safe to go back to the hoop check out that roster.

Leading the way, of course, is freshman Pervis Ellison. Final Four MVP "Never Nervous" is going to be something once he gets old enough to go to the bars in Kentucky. This "kid" from Savannah, Ga. is something, as evidenced by the NCAA final.

First half, Duke is up by eight and trying to pull away. Ellison nalls six straight to keep the Cards close; he finishes the half with 12. Second half, Duke up by six and trying to ice it. Ellison hits eight of his team's next 17 points, including THE tip-in and the two "never nervous" free throws to bring the crown back to Louisville.

And it wasn't just that final that Pervis shined. Although blending with the three seniors, Ellison averaged 12.8 points and 7.9 rebounds and had a team high 89 blocked shots for the Birds this year. And who will forget Ellison swatting away LSU's Gerald White's shot to Hall to get Louisville into the Dallas finale.

The guy is good enough to throw four guys on his back and piggy back them to a trip to the championship, but there is more than Pervis.

What do Linda Evans, John Wooden, Bart Starr, FDR and Julius Caesar have in common?

What similarity these people share is something that might be brewing down in Louisville nowadays.

Four more years, four more years. Sounds like ghosts of Dickie Nixon.

Actually it could be a chant down in All's old stomping grounds. One of those "things" sport's writers love to put labels on every year or so.

What these "things" are is a dynasty.

Yep, you might see the Cardinal red on top of the college hoop pile for a few more years. There's a mess of talent in Louisville.

I know Louisville is losing Milt Wagner, Billy Thompson and Jeff Hall to graduation, but were going to win it but we got Kentucky's own Louisville Cardinals. Beat the East, best the West, all-right.

Just to go back a little it might be added that the University of Michigan finished second in college footballs final poll.

So as it stands now the middle of the country has dominated baseball, football, college football and college basketball. Not only first in all of these but two second place finishes to show those evil coastal towns where they can go.

Now is where the old neck is getting a little itchy. Pro-hoops. Anybody that would go against Boston and L.A. is pretty uninformed on the way of basketball, but tell your friends you heard it here first. The Milwaukee Bucks are going to win it all.

Oh yeah, the Chicago Blackhawks are going to take the Stanley Cup out of Edmonton's hands to complete the sweep.

Schrom wins opener

Former UI baseball/football star Ken Schrom pitched and won 6-4 for the Cleveland Indians in their opening day match-up against the Baltimore Orioles.

Schrom went up against Oriole ace Mike Flanagan and led the Indians to their second straight opening day victory.

Schrom was traded during the off season from the Minnesota Twins to the Indians as has a major league career record of 31-31.

A few years ago all anybody could talk about in the sporting world was how the Coast teams were winning everything in sight.

Why it was the Dolphins, Redskins and Raider in football, the Dodgers and Yankees in baseball and the only conferences in college hoop were the Big East and the ACC.

Well sports fans things have turned around. Teams from the middle of the country have swept the boards this past season. Don't believe me, huh? Well, let's find out.

We start our tour in the baseball stadium. The Kansas City Royals defeat the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series. Two teams from Missouri, if you can believe that.

At this point I was pretty skeptical about the midwest coming through the rest of the way, but then I got Chicago Bear fever and it was Midwest two, Coast zip.

Now I started bragging to my friends that this was going to be the year for the farmers but nobody would listen twice. So I watched the Oklahoma Sooners stomp on the dreaded Pennsylvania Nittany Lions and it was three to nothing.

Okay so I am stretching the middle of the country a little bit but at least it was no team that has an ocean near it.

Here, I thought, my streak ends. There is no way in the world anybody but an Eastern club in going to win the NCAA basketball Tournament.

Lets just look at the last few winners. Villinova from the Big East. Georgetown from that same dreaded conference. North Carolina State from the ACC and before that it was North Carolina from that same Atlantic Coast Conference.

I started out rooting for the Bradley Braves but they lost early so I switched to Kansas. They got trounced too and I thought the Demons from Duke a drop-goal. Tribley stressed Idaho's line-out play, with Wolff, Hansen, and B. Levy as standouts, and the overall play of the backline as the main factors in win. "The line-outs were dominated by our pack, as were all phases of backline play," Tribley said.

In regard to the upcoming matches, Tribley showed concern that his team maintain good attitude towards the game. "I hope the intensity level stays high."

Club president L. Levy would also like to thank the fans who have been coming out to the matches, as well as the ladies of the Kappa Kappa Gamma, Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Phi and Delta Delta Delta sororities for their help in the club's recent fundraiser.

Throw in sophs Herb Crook (a guy I was most impressed by) and Wil Olliges, junior Mark McSwain, frosh Kevin Walls, Kenny Payne, Tony Kimbro, David Robinson and, of course, Denny Crum and you've got trouble for college basketball programs.

Like a lot of people in Louisville, Crum has an eye for good young thoroughbreds. He can pick the 17 and 18 year old street-wise kids that can get the job done.

I know you heard it all year, but here it is one more time. Denny plays the tough early season schedule on purpose and that purpose was shown in last week's finale.

Those young kids weren't freshmen any more. They had seen it before, nothing to it.

In setting up their own "Run for the Roses," the Cardinals faced off with Kansas twice, St. Johns, Indiana, Kentucky, Syracuse, Memphis State three times, UCLA, DePaul, Houston and Virginia Tech. Not exactly what I'd call can-a-corns.

These kids didn't think twice about coming in off the bench, posting up, and hitting a turnaround during the trip to Dallas. Remember when you were 18? I don't think I could have got my warm-ups off; my hands would have been so wet with sweat.

Well, I know all of you are putting Louisville in the finals of your NCAA brackets for next year, but one more thing. I don't throw out the word dynasty at the drop of a hat. Catch this.

Pervis Ellison will be the Cards power forward next season! Yep, he'll be their back up center. Denny signed 7-foot plus high school phenom, Felton Spencer, for the next four seasons. The kid is ambidextrous — doesn't matter what hand he shoots, grabs, or blocks with.

Well, all you other coaches in the nation have a season to prepare. Maybe try and get Louisville on your schedule; it sure worked for Denny.

The National Past-time at Idaho

By Roger Gaboury
Staff writer

The University of Idaho Baseball Club played a 100-inning marathon baseball game this weekend to raise money for team expenses. Player/Coach Luke Aldrich said that the money will go mainly for umpires.

Aldrich said the club just played for fun Saturday morning, and no score was kept. "It was mainly batting practice," he said. The team members are now collecting their pledge money.

The team will play next in Missoula, Mont. April 12-13 in a three-team tournament against the University of Montana and Montana State University.

Aldrich said he told his team that he wants to win all their club games. "We go over there and have a lot of fun, but we want to win, too," he said.

The club won't be back at home at Guy Wicks Field until the end of April.

The UI club started their season with a 2-6 record, but Aldrich said the team is improving. "We started slow, and we had some tough games," he said; "but we're coming around."

The Vandal baseball club collected their first win this season in a 12-9 victory at home against Columbia Basin Junior College March 22. Columbia Basin won the triple bill, however, with 17-0 and 13-8 scores as they went on to thump Idaho.

The Vandals got their second win in a 10-inning, 14-13 home victory over Eastern Oregon State College's Junior Varsity. Steve Nash hit a 3-run homer in the seventh inning to tie the game at 13.

Idaho lost the opener of the series earlier in the day 13-6.

Baseball as a collegiate sport was dropped by Idaho in '80. The sport was reformed into a club sport in '84 as the team recorded a 10-10 record in that inaugural season.

They dropped from that mark last season as they stumbled to a 5-10 record. While they were able to play 15 games last season, 13 others were rained out. After many problems and an 0-7 start to begin their second season, the club put together a 5-3 record to close the season out at 5-10.

Outdoor

April 19-20 the University of Idaho Outdoor Program will host the second annual North Idaho Whitewater Festival on the Potlatch river near Kendrick, Idaho. Two day's of events for both whitewater enthusiasts and spectators are scheduled. Events include a slalom kayak race on Saturday and a down river race for kayaks, canoes, and rafts on Sunday morning with a freestyle "hotdog" kayak competition Sunday afternoon. For more information call the UI Outdoor Program at 885-6810.

Fashion show brings art alive

By Sarah Kerruish

Arts & Entertainment Editor

Art came alive in the Prichard Gallery last Friday. The reception for the new exhibition Adornments was not the usual pompous 'artsy' affair; rather it was a celebration of art, music, dance and fashion.

Adornments as the name suggests, is a diverse collection of art and architecture-designed fashion accessories. There is everything from macabre masks to diamante earphones on display. Some of the pieces would be fun to wear, but others such as the huge iron collar for Amazons are a trifle impractical. I particularly liked the steel head band covered with aspirin called the "Headache Band."

Some of the works are bizarre, like the button on a gold thread to hang round your waist, called "Belly Button," and some beautiful, like Ellen Lanyon's porcelain orchid brooch.

On the second floor of the Prichard is a collection of antique clothing featuring dresses, lace, hats, gloves and jewelry. Of special interest is an exquisite white silk graduation dress from the turn of the century, a beaded cape from the '20's and a wide-brimmed hat covered in pheasant feathers from Japan.

People sauntered through the exhibition for the first hour of the reception, but then the clothing store One More Time stole the show with an upbeat fashion display that drew a large, enthusiastic crowd.

Models wearing the latest spring fashions danced down the stairs and the aisle. The show was well choreographed, the clothes enviable and the models, male and female, even more enviable, but the music was too quiet and perhaps, dare I say it, the show went on too long. But all in all it was a very ingenious and enjoyable way of promoting art and fashion.

If fashion doesn't interest you, then take a look at some outstanding black and white photography by Floyd Peterson on the second floor. His photographs of the American landscape are as desolate and magnificent as Ansel Adams'.

World trip produces good photographs

By Christine Pakkala
Staff writer

Seven Tanzanian children stare haughtily at Neil Franklin's camera. The tallest child, a boy, has the dignity and disdain of a prince, even in his tattered clothing.

That scene is one of the photographic glimpses Franklin, a UI law professor, captured during his year-long taste of the world. A small collection of his photographs during the journey will be displayed in the Purple Mall through Saturday.

"The children are usually joyous and happy-looking when they know their pictures are going to be taken because I guess they think that is the way you should look in pictures," Franklin said. "I got this picture before they realized what was happening, then they scattered."

The photographs are of an exotic handful of cultures around the world and they are unique in that they capture the essence of the land and people through untypical angles and subjects, so unlike typical "tourist" shots.

Franklin applied for a Fulbright scholarship at the University of Khartoum in Sudan in Africa because he is interested in Third World countries and their legal systems. He was turned down because Sudan, Africa's largest country, is politically and economically "a country on the verge of collapse," Franklin said.

"I had already arranged for a one-year absence and I wanted to go around the world, so I did," Franklin said.

The first picture seen by viewers as they come through the front of the Purple Mall is of the classic Acropolis in Athens, and taken from the Agora, an ancient marketplace. Closer is a headless and armless statue of a voluptuous woman sensuously draped in clothing. Separating the statue are a grove of trees and cliffs. The picture is arresting: the beauty of these ancient man-made structures rival nature's undentable majesty.

He said it was more interesting to photograph Greek art rather than Egyptian because of the similarities between Greek and Western culture. Those similarities exist despite the passage of time, he said. For example is the picture of "The Jockey," a statue from a museum in Athens. The picture is a close-up of a boy, arm raised and face tense, on the back of a horse.

"It expresses an idea of origins of cultures," Franklin said. "The connection between life and art is here," he said.

An extreme close-up shot of the Acropolis is a study of contrasts. Four strong columns dominate the picture: two are of the rough, earth-toned walls and the other two are the vivid blue sky and a smooth black line next to it. Once again, there is a contrast between man and nature and also a contrast between bland and vivid, rough and smooth.

Sri Lanka, on the tip of India, had many temples with "huge Buddhas all over the place," Franklin said. His picture of a Buddhist monk bowed before the huge Buddha and a tourist monk from Thailand standing behind him with a camera portray an exotic religion. These temples are "peaceful and benign," he said.

Jaunty, relaxed and almost leering, a yellow-faced god from Bali represents the relaxed attitude of religion, contrasting sharply with the more solemn Western approach to religion.

"Their religion is not removed from their life," Franklin said. "It's very much a part of their daily lives."

A dirt path leads to blue water. At the edge of the water a man washes his cow and two calves. The composition of this picture, set in Bali, is well-balanced: the path, framed by brush, draws the eye directly to the man and his cows. The gorgeous background, blue water and misty mountains, complements rather than distracts the focus.

Madame Butterfly at the UI this weekend

By Sara Donart
Staff writer

Puccini's Madame Butterfly, opening Thursday at the UI, is an opera that appeals to a broad audience, both because of its exotic setting and its familiar theme of tragic young love.

That view was expressed by the opera's director, music professor Charles Walton, and echoed by the male lead, senior music major John Ransom. Ransom also credited the opera's mass appeal to Puccini's lush music, which he said typifies opera's romantic period.

Barbara Dreier, a UI graduate student in voice, will portray Madame Butterfly, a young Japanese Geisha who falls in love with and marries a U.S. navy man only to have him later betray their love.

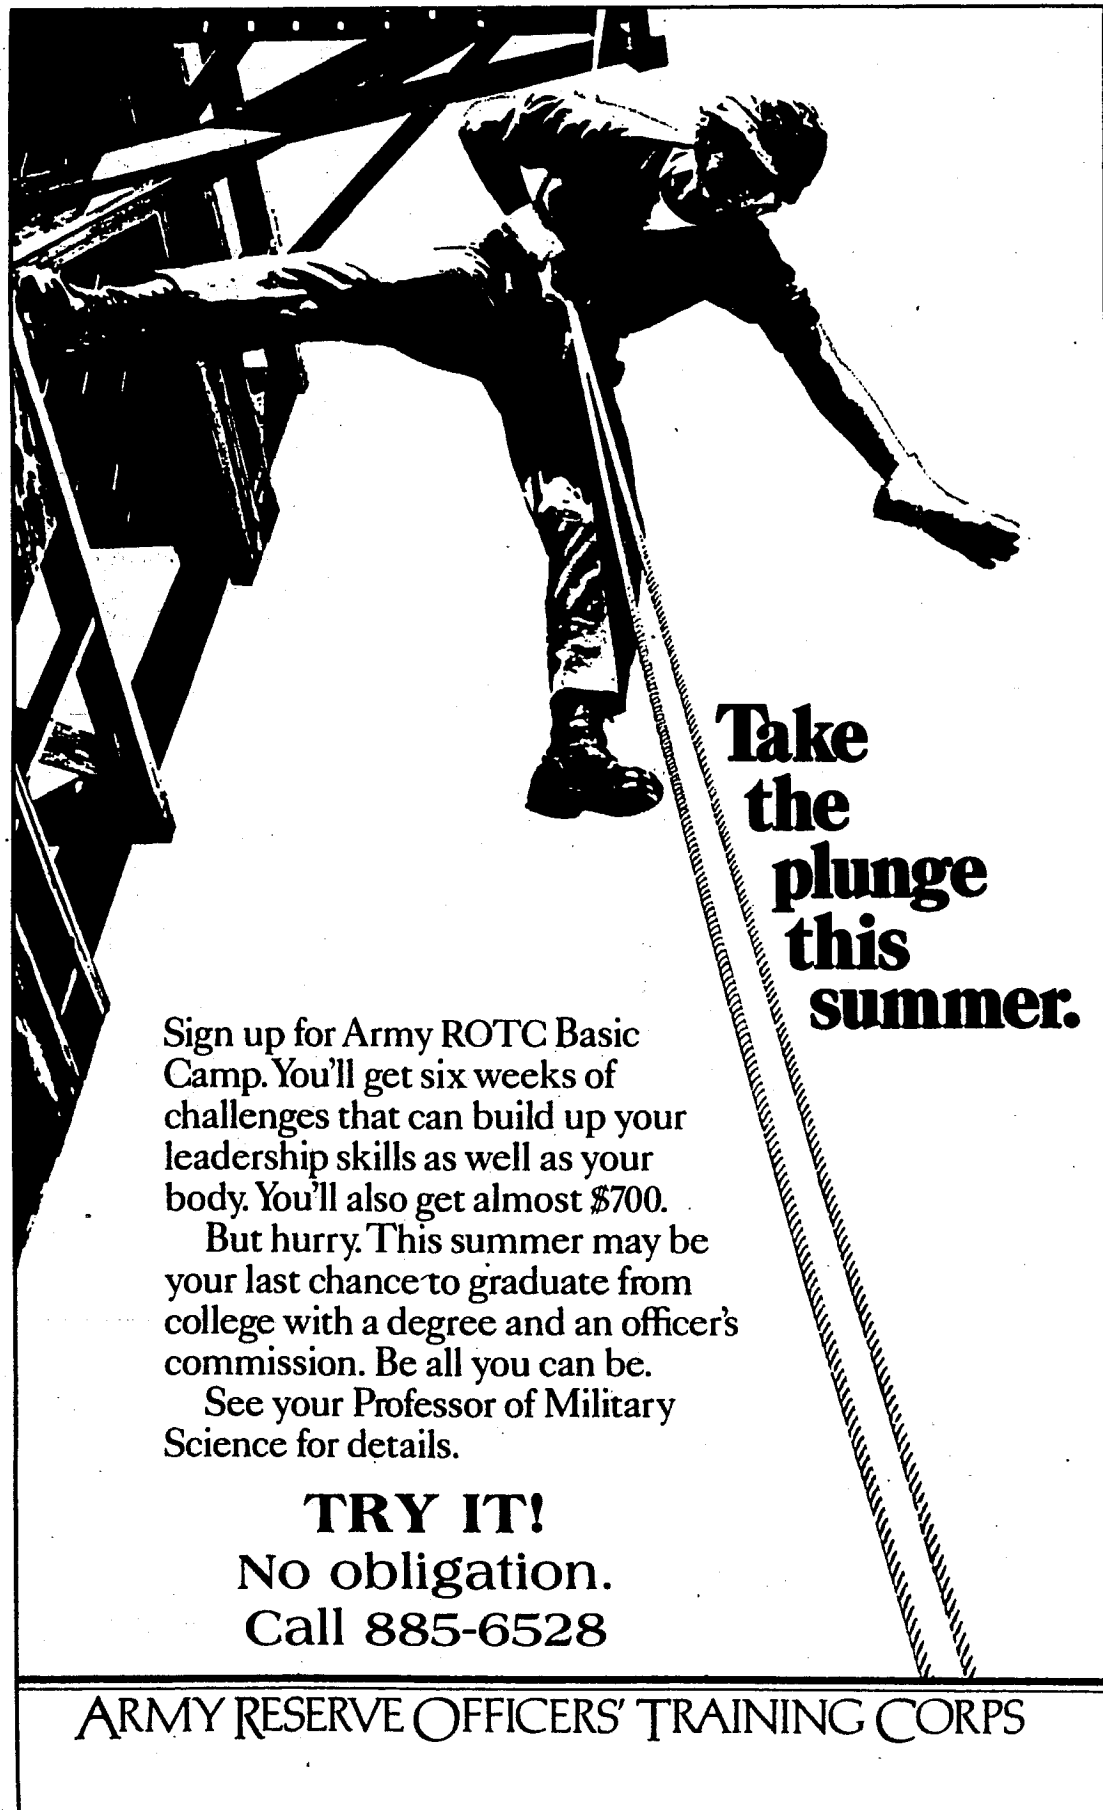

"It's just a nice romantic opera about a girl who falls in love with a sailor," said Walton, adding that both Dreier and Ransom performed in last year's production of Die Fledermaus and sang at the UI student soloist concert earlier this year. Dreier, who Ransom graciously called, "the real star of the show," is a Moscow native and has been praised not only for her exceptional voice but for her acting and stage presence as well. If every opera needs a diva, she is certainly capable of filling that role.

Madame Butterfly is scheduled to coincide with Parents' Weekend, and Walton pointed out that the School of Music has scheduled similar musical productions for Parents' Weekend since 1965.

This year's show, however, will benefit from the new remodeling of the Administration Building Auditorium and will be the first event performed there since the auditorium's facelift. Singers, staff and orchestra members have all applauded the new construction, which they say has not only improved acoustics but has also given the once cavernous hall a "smaller, warmer, more personal feeling."

The opera's three performances, April 10-12, will start at 8 p.m. Tickets, $5 for general admission and $3.50 for students, may be purchased at the SUB or at the door.

Crimes of the Heart to be committed at the UI

Crimes of the Heart will be committed on the Collette Theatre stage this weekend. The play about outrageous women will be directed by Laura Marie Thompson.

The essence of Beth Henley's play, Crimes of the Heart, is the coming together, through tragedy and raw honesty, of three sisters in the small town of Hazlehurst, Miss.

Thompson said "Crimes of the Heart is the first drama ever to receive the Pulitzer Prize before reaching Broadway, yet it is not the awards that perpetuate the play's appeal; rather it is the superb craftsmanship of Miss Henley. She captures the dark side of life in one 'bad day' and exalts humanity with her humor. The Magrath sisters live, as must we all, with and because of a sense of humor."

Crimes of the Heart is a play of "great passion and warmth." The three sisters are very different but they have a unique bonding and are resilient in the face of adversity.

Thompson chose the play not only because of the "remarkable script" but because the UI has several very promising actresses at the moment. Veterans of the UI stages, Kimberly Lenz and Christine Drobish, are playing Lenny and Meg, two of the sisters. Lenny is as shrunken as her shrivelled ovary and Meg is a woman who has control over everybody except herself. Andrea Kay Westen, a sophomore, is playing Babe, the youngest sister who "exudes naivety" and yet shoots her husband.

Crimes of the Heart will open at the Collette Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $2 at the door.

plan to attend the newly organized ASUI off-campus student meetings to get these students' input. As an off-campus student myself, this is especially important to me.

Eric DeBord

Mini-biography I'm a freshman studying foreign languages with a business option and agribusiness. I keep busy on campus working for the Honors Program Student Advisory Board, the Student Centennial Committee, and 1986 Homecoming Committee. I work with different service organizations in the community and am a volunteer at Good Samaritan nursing facility. I am a responsible person with dedication and determination.

Why should you be elected? To be a senator, it takes time, ability, and desire. I have the time. I don't take heavy credit loads and will be able to dedicate myself to the job. I have the ability. It takes someone who can work with people, someone with patience who will represent the students. That's something I can do. It's something I want to do.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees? Definitely KUOI-FM should continue to receive support from student fees. It is an important service to the students. If students want to support the station (as indicated by the Argonaut poll) then part of each student's $63 (which is what full-time students pay to the ASUI) should go to the station.

Should the Golf course continue to receive student fees?

The Golf course has the potentiality of becoming a money-maker for the ASUI. We should continue to support it until we can evoke that potentiality. This might be by leasing the course to a private organization with an alcohol license, such as the University Inn, and receiving a commission.

What other issues are important to you? I feel that the purchase of a vehicle by the ASUI is another important issue. Many of the senators made their decision without first asking students for their input. Although I feel that the vehicle is needed, I think that the senators should have shown more responsibility to the students and asked them first.

What do you think about off-campus students' input into student government? Several steps have already been taken to assure off-campus students' input into student government. Those are the meetings that are held by Senators Burke and ALee, bi-weekly at Morts and the Chameleon. But, those steps will not be effective unless off-campus students attend them, and that is their responsibility.

Cherri Sabala

Mini-biography

I am Cherri Sabala and I am running for re-election. I am a junior majoring in Business Management. This past year I served on the Finance Committee as both a member and as chairperson. I have also been on the Communications Board, Parents' Weekend Planning Committee, Student Alumni Relations Board, and traveled with the High School Relations Department.

Why should you be elected? I believe that I should be re-elected to this position because I have been dedicated to the job. I have kept my office hours, visited my living groups, and attended my committee and board meetings.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees? I do feel that KUOI-FM should continue receiving student fees but I think a market survey should be done to determine the amount of subsidy the students want in the station. This could be reflective of the service felt they were getting from KUOI.

Should the golf course continue to receive student fees? I also think the golf course should continue to be subsidized by the students. The Golf Course Committee has worked hard in increasing the quality of our course this year which in turn increases the service to the students.

What other issues are important to you? I feel that continuing an active role in the legislature is important. This year we were able to minimize fee increases by writing letters and a resolution to the legislators to let them know student concerns. We should continue to remember the strength we have as students and use that to our advantage.

What do you feel about off-campus students input into student government? This semester Off-Campus seminars have been started to gather student input. Although these seminars are new, I can see a lot of potential for them becoming the off-campus link to the ASUI.

Mini-biography I'm 20 years old. I am a sophomore, majoring in Political Science. Last semester, Jane Freund appointed me Chairman of the Political Concerns Committee. At the start of the semester, President Gino White gave me the position of his Administrative Assistant.

Why should you be elected? Experience. Over the last year, I have learned the workings of the ASUI inside out. I have dealt with the Senate many times, and I have some ideas on improving the service that the students receive from the ASUI.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees? Yes. KUOI provides a service to the students. I do think that improvements can be made. We need to get local businesses to donate money to sponsor programs. All cost cutting measures must be taken, and the station must play the music that the students want to hear.

Should the golf course continue to receive student fees? Yes. We have one of the finest golf courses in the area, and if we maintain it well, it could be very profitable. I do feel that there are other ways to bring in money up there, and they should be explored further.

law school. I graduated from Post Falls High School and now live in Boise. I am currently a member of the Political Concerns Committee and a past member of SARB.

Why should you be elected?

If elected to the senate my number one priority will always be the students. I am a strong believer in student participation in the ASUI and I will always be receptive to suggestions you might have. I feel that I have leadership qualities that are needed in the senate.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees?

On issues, I do support the ASUI subsidization of KUOI. A student owned radio station is an asset to the university. KUOI is improving and with support will continue to do so. However, the decision lies with the students. With suggestions such as cutting the 24 hour programming format to 20 hours; I feel that a student survey is necessary.

Should the golf course continue to receive student fees?

The ASUI Golf Course is also an important part of the university. I am in favor of the allocation of student fees toward its support. I would like to see more capital outlay given to the golf course and also the selling of alcohol on its premises. By improving the golf course it will attract more business and increase revenue.

What other issues are important to you?

I feel that any issue involving students and the functions of the university is important.

The budget is always a priority. I feel that eliminating excess bulkage in the budget and concentrating of funds, student needs will be met. Student communications and participation are also vital in the ASUI. Make yourself heard.

What do you feel about off-campus students input into student government?

Off campus students need to be reached. We all pay the same student fees, we all deserve a voice in the decision making process. Student surveys need to be incorporated into the ASUI schedule. Surveys can reach off-campus students. April 9 is also a chance for all students to have input — vote Kim Ackerman, ASUI Senate. Thank you.

"THE ALL-NEW" ASUI OFF-CAMPUS STUDENT MEETING

WEDNESDAY APRIL 16
4 PM

the garden lounge

hotel moscow

Brad Cuddy

Mini-biography

As a business-owner and student, I feel it's important to understand both the structure of student government and sound financial management. I'm a former owner of the Cartel, a youth center in Orofino, and currently own a small drafting business there. On campus, I'm studying Civil Engineering/Pre Law and have been active in IK, PCC and Activities Board.

Why should you be elected?

While campaigning, I've heard students raise concerns about everything from the ASUI van purchase to the senate travel budget. My biggest concern about not only budgeting, but student representation in general, is that students are consulted before major decisions are made. As a senator who would rank student's opinions above my own, I would make sure their voices were heard.

Should KUOI continue to receive student fees?

A recent Argonaut poll showed that 59.5 percent of UI students support funding KUOI.

As a result of equipment purchases and staff dedication, KUOI manager, Greg Meyer, has tremendously improved the station. It would be a mistake to cut KUOI's operating hours without first considering that the loss in services could be much greater than the monetary savings.

Should the golf course continue to receive student fees?

When considering the golf course, it's important to realize that students pay for it whether the ASUI owns it or whether the administration takes it over. As a strong believer in student rights, I feel that if we pay for the golf course, we might as well operate it to best serve student needs and keep costs down.

What other issues are important to you?

Currently, my major concern is the financial accessibility of college for students. With recent cuts in financial aid and our legislators lack of concern for higher education, it's getting more difficult to obtain a college education. I do not support any increases in fees and housing costs that will force students to bear more of the cost of their education.

What do you feel about off-campus student's input into student government?

Several steps have been taken to increase the participation of off-campus students in the ASUI. Further changes I'd advocate for better representation would include holding weekly off-campus student meetings and designating more senators to directly represent them. Currently only two of the 13 senators are designated off-campus representatives, although 54 percent of those paying ASUI fees live off-campus.

Should the golf course continue to receive student fees?

The University of Idaho is one of the few schools that has a student-run golf course. Gotch believes that we shouldn't throw 15 years of financial commitment away. He feels the Senate should research more ways to make the golf course more self-supporting; perhaps contracting a restaurant to serve the course's patrons.

What do you feel about off-campus student's input into student government?

In order to involve more off-campus students in student government, Gotch believes that the Senate should hold periodic hearings on current issues. These meetings should be held in areas of Moscow that are easily accessible to off-campus students and the purpose of such a meeting would be to provide an opportunity for students to tell the senators what they think on controversial issues, instead of the other way around.

of the weather you must expect it to have bad years but it is not a lost cause. Students should remain supporting the course and try to draw business from other areas. We have a good course and it should be promoted as such.

What do you feel about off-campus student's input into student government?

As far as off campus students go I feel that their lack of input is a mutual lack of effort. I am one of the few off campus students running for the senate. I feel having off campus senators in the senate help represent the off campus opinion but it isn't enough. Generally speaking most off campus students do not care about the ASUI until we spend a lot of money without asking them about it.

such as putting in a snack bar, and getting alcohol up there.

What other issues are important to you? Budgeting. We need to remind every department that they are here to serve the students first. The budget process should be handled very well, and might need to be improved. The process needs more student input, especially when large sums of money are used for purchases.

What do you feel about off-campus students input into student government?

The off-campus students voice must be heard. To do this, I would like to see telephone surveys taken twice a semester of all off-campus students, to see what they think of the issues, and these results should be given to the Senate. I think this route is better than having seminars that aren't being taken advantage of. I think that the Senate needs to hold off-campus sessions, also.

washing his cows) represents the way these people feel about cows; it's the way we do about horses," Franklin said. "One man said to me (about a particular herd of cows): 'Aren't they beautiful?'" Franklin said. A child's world of play is basically the same throughout the world, despite extreme poverty. Evidence of that is Franklin's picture of an almost emaciated-looking young black boy amusing himself by pushing a bicycle tire with a straightened hanger.

Franklin took the picture near a coffee plantation at Mt. Elgon, near the Ugandan border. He was reading Out of Africa at the time.

A golden sunset warmly silhouettes an Egyptian sailor perched on the mast of the filuca, a native sailboat and furling the sails. Franklin captured the post-card perfect scene during a five day trip down the Nile River, where he saw "virtually all of Egypt."

Young girls surrounded by trees that look like giant ferns stood on the shore watching the boat go by. You could tell they were young because only young girls wear light clothing, Franklin said. With a proud, rigid stance reminiscent of the Tanzinian children, two of the girls balance big baskets on their heads. Even at a distance, the picture uniquely looks at this primitive culture.

Franklin looked out of his hotel room in Cairo and saw a picture-worthy sight. Criss-crossed by telephone wires, the photograph is of a black-robed and turbaned man surrounded by baskets of lemons. A white-robed and turbaned passer-by turns to look at the wares. Despite modern conveniences such as bazaars on the streets continue.

"All of this is really only about $1,000 away," Franklin said. "I'm going back to Europe in May."

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO FACULTY

CALLED BY THE FACULTY COUNCIL

ON THURSDAY, APRIL 10, at 3:30 p.m.

IN THE AGRICULTURAL SCIENCE AUDITORIUM

TO CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION

CONCERNING PROPOSED CHANGES IN THE FINANCIAL EXIGENCY POLICY:

"The faculty of the University of Idaho believes strongly that the proposed amendments would effectively repress academic freedom by abrogating tenure and accelerate erosion of the quality of Idaho's system of higher education. They also would hasten the continued departure of able and respected faculty members and further demoralize those who remain.

"Therefore, the faculty of the University of Idaho vigorously opposes the board's proposed amendments to the 'Financial Exigency Policy and Staff Reduction Procedures' (IDAPA08.00.B.20; 21,4; 23; 26; and 28,c).

"The faculty urges the board to weigh with utmost care the debilitating consequences of approving the proposed amendments and to postpone acting upon them until a statewide committee, consisting of board members, institutional administrators, and faculty representatives, can fully deliberate the issue.

"Furthermore, the faculty asks the board to consider carefully the document on financial exigency policy and staff-reduction procedures that was endorsed in 1985 by the representative faculty bodies at all of the senior institutions under the board's jurisdiction."

The meeting will also be open to the consideration of other appropriate responses.
