

GDI-Greek snowball fight escalates, proves costly

By Tracy Peel
News Editor

The traditional GDI-Greek snowball fight occurred Monday night, with untraditional results. Approximately 75 windows were broken in the residence halls resulting in $3,500-$4,000 damage.

"There were incidents reported all over campus," Greek Advisor Frances Dobernig said. The majority of fighting occurred near the resident halls. One hall resident esti-ated there were 300 students involved in the snowball fight near Upham Hall.

The snowball fight continued past 3 a.m. Tuesday morning, and there were many noise complaints from people trying to sleep.

Windows were broken in Upham, Gault, Willis Sweet and Shoup halls. Apparently, rocks and fruit were thrown along with snowballs. Assistant Dean of Student Services Jim Bauer said the windows were being replaced with cardboard until new glass windows could be installed.

"I'm wondering if students have a clear understanding of how much this costs," Bauer said. He was unhappy with the attitude prevalent in this year's snowball fight. "It's gone from being a rival snowball fight to something that's very destructive," he said.

Dobernig also expressed concerns. "It's gotten out of hand," she said. "It was even going on this afternoon."

She talked to students in order to prevent another retaliatory fight Tuesday night.

"There's a great possibility that there will be a retaliation tonight (Tuesday)," said Bauer. He spread the word through the resident advisors and the Resident Hall Association to talk to hall members to prevent another fight tonight.

"The students have to make decisions and have some responsibility," said Bauer.

Dobernig said that it was practically impossible to control that many students but "If we find out who did it, they will have to pay. She hoped students would behave responsibly.

"It doesn't look good for the entire university when this happens," said Dobernig.

The GDI-Greek snowball fight traditionally occurs after the first snowfall and takes place on the Administration Building Lawn or in the Arboretum.

ASUI gives student parents a break

By Beth Pettibon
Staff Writer

Prompted by child care requests from non-traditional students, the ASUI is implementing two programs to better help parents attending the University of Idaho, according to ASUI President Brad Cuddy.

The first program is a child care listing which is similar to the housing list available at the Student Union Building. There will be a section for people who need a babysitter, where they can specify the days and times needed. The other section will allow students to list their services, how much they intend to charge, and their availability. Cuddy said this will be run similar to the housing list where students can call in through the ASUI office. Lists will be available at the SUB, with other probable locations such as the Womens Center and the Student Advisory Services office.

Cuddy also is putting together a Family Programming service for non-traditional students. Parents will be able to bring their children to a child care facility so that they can attend ASUI events. At a minimal charge of $1 to $2 per hour, Cuddy said the service will provide infant care on a one-to-one ratio, toddler care, and children's movies for preschoolers.

"The idea is to make programs and events easily available to everyone on campus," Cuddy said. "If we don't get a good response, we'll invest our money elsewhere."

To subsidize the Family Programming service, Cuddy said a portion of ASUI funds will be used. To keep costs lowered, parents will be required to call in advance to limit the number of sitters, and a small admission price to the children's movies will be asked. Cuddy said they still have to solve the problem of finding cribs and toys.

"It's worked at other campuses such as Boise State."

Resident halls host debate

By Tracy Peel

ASUI candidates discussed many issues, including campaign spending and an attorney on retainer for the ASUI at a candidate forum held Sunday night in the Morin Room of the Wallace Complex. Candidates were also quizzed on their knowledge of the parking committee.

ASUI senatorial candidates Craig McCurry, Mike Mick and John Buffa attended the forum, as well as vice presidential candidates Mike Gotch, Lynn Major and Brian Workman and presidential candidates Jeff Friel, Tina Kagi and Steve Smart.

Major was opposed to high campaign spending. "It discriminates against candidates who don't have very much money," she said, adding that she had spent only $100 on her campaign.

"The amount of money should be completely up to the candidate," Kagi said. She said it would be hard to regulate campaign spending.

Gotch said "You don't have to spend a thousand dollars to win a campaign at the University of Idaho." He has spent only $33 on posters for his campaign. He did not advocate a spending cap, but suggested that candidates be required to publish a financial statement in the Argonaut.

Smart favored a spending cap. "The candidate who spends a lot of money and doesn't go out and shake hands won't go out to meet students after the campaign,"

Candidates express views

By Christy Kretschmer
Staff Writer

A question and answer period for all eight of the senate candidates was held in the Appaloosa Room at the SUB last Thursday night.

Six of the senators were present: Mark Boyer, John Buffa, Charlene Johnson, Todd Foxall, Craig McCurry, and Mike Mick. Questions were posed by Suzanne Evers, the political concerns board vice chairperson.

The presentation was aired live on KUOI. The listening audience was invited to call in questions to the candidates. However, none were called in.

All of the senators were first asked to give a brief overview of their previous accomplishments and their reasons for running.

Mark Boyer wants to institute a new student orientation program and plans to use more student representation.

John Buffa noted that he was the president and co-founder of the college SADD program. He intends to fight fee increases and plan a college Career Day. Todd Foxall emphasized his motivation and his leadership activities in high school.

Charlene Johnson

planned to make a list of scholarships available to the students.

Craig McCurry noted that he was the only senator up for re-election and spoke of creating a coalition of Idaho colleges.

Mike Mick cited his services on the ASUI Activities Board, as an ASUI Presidential Assistant, and as a senate member.

Other questions posed concerned off-campus student involvement. Buffa thought the off-campus sector was already well enough represented.

However, McCurry thought the senators who have been the off-campus representatives in the past years have not given that sector proper attention. All the senators stressed the need for open lines of communication.

Candidates also discussed the prospect of working with a new president after President Richard Gibb has left office.

All of the senators planned to avoid student fee increases by lobbying the legislature. Johnson proposed a letter writing lobby. Foxall wanted to bring "busloads of students" to the legislature in Boise.

In closing, the candidates were asked what their major fault was. Most cited lack of time or inexperience.

When asked about their strengths, though, the candidates had much to say.

The answers ranged from Johnson's, "The more I get involved, the more I want to get involved," to McCurry's, "Some of us were just put here to help out."

University," Cuddy said. "And hopefully it will increase the attendance for UI events, too."

Concerning the cost of the child care listing, Cuddy said it is very minimal and it's a service that is asked for by a lot of students who have a difficult time finding babysitters, especially during the evening.

ASUI elections will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 16. Be sure to vote.

The final Blue Key meeting of the semester will be held tonight at 6:30 in the Russet Room at the SUB.

The Washington High School football playoffs will be held Friday, Nov. 18 in the Kibble Dome. As a result, all dome locker rooms will close at 1 p.m. and the Dome floor area will close at 1:30 p.m.

"Going with Marriott Corp. would be the great treachery of 1988," said Borah Hall president Ray Horton as he announced his write-in bid for the ASUI senate. A junior in political science, Horton decided to run after becoming increasingly unhappy with the events of this semester. Horton also plans to address other student issues, such as the number of history classes offered at the university. He estimates that 25 out of the 47 history classes listed in the catalog have not been offered in the last three years. "I think the main problem is funding. If we made it a public issue, the administration would correct the problem," Horton said.

Thursday, Nov. 17, is the American Cancer Association's twelfth Annual Great American Smokeout. Smokers are asked to set aside their tobacco for 24 hours. Last year, 19.1 million smokers participated in the Smokeout by quitting or cutting down for the day, according to a Gallup survey.

The University Language and Culture Association has planned a lecture on Don Juan, a famous Spaniard of the early 17th century. The lecture will be held on Thursday, Nov. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 306 of the Administration Building. There will be no charge and the event is open to the public.

The international "Lunch and Learn" series will give a presentation on how Chinese students are educated in their country before coming to the University of Idaho. The presentation will be held on Nov. 17 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. in the Kiva Annex to the College of Education. It is free and open to the public.

The Women's Center will hold its Traditional Thanksgiving potluck on Nov. 16 at noon. Participants are to bring the trimmings and the Center will provide the turkey. The event is open to the public.

he said. Workman said that a candidate who spent lots of money without going out to meet the students would not win because candidates would not be able to associate the name with the face.

Friel said he had not spent very much money on the campaign. "Every dollar I spend on the campaign means one more meal of Top Ramen," said Friel. "I'm going to be outspent but I'm not going to be outworked."

Candidates also discussed the possibility of having an attorney on retainer to the ASUI.

Senatorial candidate Craig McCurry thought it was a good idea, but Mike Mick and John Buffa felt the ASUI attorney general (normally a third year law student) would be able to handle any legal problems which came up.

Friel supported the idea. "I think we need one," he said.

Kagi said that giving the attorney general a limited license to practice law might be cheaper.

The candidates also discussed the shortage of student parking on campus and were quizzed on their knowledge of the parking committee. Major was the only candidate that knew there are three student members of the parking committee.

Gotch suggested adding more metered parking in the UI Administration Building parking lot. Kagi wanted the student positions on the parking committee to be a summer commitment to insure that no parking lots would change classification over the summer when students weren't here to protest.

ASUI General Elections are tomorrow — ASUI General Elections are tomorrow

Presidential Race

1) What is your position on the threat of a student fee increase in the next year?

Jeff Friel: I oppose all student fee increases. The fee increases we have seen in the past have not benefited the students, nor have they improved the quality of the education we receive at the University of Idaho. As your lobbyist to the Idaho Legislature last year, I dealt with Senate Bill 1313, a possible $148 increase per year per student increase. I felt that this type of increase only benefits students thirty years from now, not those of us who attend the university currently. In the next year I see the threat of increases from both the Idaho Legislature and the Board of Regents. I will use all of the experience that I have gained to defeat these increases. We must insure that every student can afford to attend the University.

Tina Kagi: I have fought student fee increases in the past and I will continue to do so if elected ASUI President. Reasonable student fees are a tremendous asset to the UI; a quality education at an affordable cost is an excellent recruiting tool and encourages more people (especially those residing in-state) to seek a college education. Any increase in our fees may be prohibitive to students. If elected, I will utilize every resource available to fight legislation proposing an increase in student fees, I will unite students, their parents and UI alumni if necessary to fight for higher appropriations to the UI and to defeat any legislation proposing student fee increases.

Steve Smart: I believe the higher education students of Idaho need to unite this spring in order to fight off a free increase. As I've stated before I would like to see the students of Idaho's colleges and universities re-form the Idaho Student Lobby Association. This will give our lobbyists more influence in the legislature.

2) What do you see as the UI administration's role in contrast to the role of the ASUI in regard to student issues such as the UI Bookstore, Food Service, and so on?

Jeff Friel: The ASUI President is an advocate for, and a representative of the students of the university. He must always work for the betterment of the students, and make sure that their voice is heard. In my four years of involvement with the ASUI, that has always been my goal. I want to further that goal in one way: I want to work towards a relationship with university officials in which they stop telling us what they are going to do, and start asking us what they should do. I want the students to be a part of the decision-making process. We achieved this with the defeat of Senate Bill 1313. We are now a very important factor with the Board of Regents and the Legislature. We need to achieve this with our own administration.

Tina Kagi: When the UI administration is dealing with issues requiring major decisions to be made, it is not their prerogative, but their obligation to consider and involve students. In certain past situations the administration has not fulfilled their obligation to the greatest extent possible: It is the ASUI President's duty to demand and ensure student involvement and to keep students informed on the issues at hand. The ASUI President should gather student opinion and fight for the best interest of students.

Steve Smart: The administration's role is to inform the ASUI President as well as they can on issues that are being discussed that involve student interests. They are there to ask for student input. It is the ASUI President's job to solicit that input.

3) As ASUI President it is often necessary to lobby in the State Legislature. What do you feel qualifies you to represent the UI student body in this capacity?

Jeff Friel: A track record. As your lobbyist last year, I learned a lot. I learned that you can trust the other higher education institutions in this state only so far. We must always remember that they are looking out for their own selves first. The experience that I gained as a lobbyist last year gives me a great advantage over my opponents. I have a good working relationship with many state legislators, and I know which legislators are sympathetic to student concerns. I know how to approach those people in Boise and convince them to help us out. If we want to rely on postcards and petitions, we'll never win the legislature again.

Tina Kagi: In fighting Senate Bill #1313, I led a letter writing campaign to legislators in Boise in which hundreds of students participated. Utilizing the concerted voice of students was effective, although students would have had more of an impact had they been perceived by the legislature as voting constituents. (Gaining more student influence with the legislature was one of the motives behind the voter registration drives I organized recently.) I believe a multi-level lobbying effort to be the most effective; I plan to unite the voices of UI students, their parents, and the 20,000 alumni who live in state to push for increased appropriations to higher education and fight unnecessary student fee increases.

Steve Smart: I have been working to establish a rapport with our area representatives and senators. I think the fact that I am an Independent in my political views will be of value to the students also. I feel this because of the adversarial roles the two main parties tend to play. I can safely say that as an Independent I can stand between the two parties. Secondly, my honest efforts to spend time with the student leaders of the Greeks, dorms, and the UI Law School will enable me to more truly espouse the views of the students, rather than my own.

Vice-Presidential Race

1) What is your position on the threat of a student fee increase in the next year?

Mike Gotch: Since 1980, student fees have doubled. In 1980 student fees were less than $250 a semester and now fees are at $524. For the last two years, through student lobbying efforts, there has been no significant increase in student fees. I think the vice-president should play a key role in organizing and carrying out an effective lobbying effort in the Idaho legislature and before the State Board of Education. This would include postcard writing, letter writing and hauling van loads of students to the legislature and State Board meetings.

Lynn Major: If the last three years have taught us anything it is that it is inevitable that some sort of fee hike will be proposed at the State Board of Education and during the 1989 session of the Idaho Legislature. I see no indication that this year will be any different. It is going to be extremely important to have the best ASUI Executive office possible to combat any fee hike proposals presented. I have been an intern in the governor's office, tracked all budgetary legislation for the Division of Financial Management and have made valuable friendships and contacts that can help pave the way to yet another successful lobbying effort by University of Idaho students against any unnecessary fee hikes.

Brian Workman: I think that while it is not impossible, in reality, our chances of going four years without any increase is limited. That's why I think that it is important for the ASUI to be prepared to stop, or if appropriate, limit any fee increase proposal that may arise. To do this our Lobbyist and our president need to work closely together to present a consolidated, professional effort. I think that letter writing campaigns and van loads of students can really help our cause by showing that students care about the decisions that are made and are affected by them. However, timing and targeting is crucial. With input from our lobbyist we can target the right people at the right times.

2) In lieu of UI President Richard Gibb's retirement in June, what steps might you take to improve/establish relations with a "new" UI administration?

Mike Gotch: Communication is the key to better relations with the new administration. The vice-president should meet with the new university president and administrators regularly to keep them informed on what the students are thinking about issues such as fee increases, parking and the proposed student activities center.

Lynn Major: I am excited at the prospect of both a new ASUI and new UI Administration beginning at relatively the same time. I believe that the fundamental first step will be to open up the lines of communication between the two groups right from the very start. Dialogue is so important when communicating ideas and concepts. I think we need to begin with open, honest dialogue and keep it going at all times.

Brian Workman: With President Gibb's retirement it is really important, and a great opportunity, to establish formal communications with the "new" UI administration. Scheduled, regular meetings with the new president and other administrators would help to solve problems before they became an issue. The communications wouldn't begin only after a problem had arisen and we had dealt with it, as it often happens now. If we knew the changes that the administration was considering, and they knew the projects that we were considering, we could avoid a lot of problems and spend more time helping students.

3) What do you see as the UI administration's role in contrast to the role of the ASUI in regard to student issues such as the UI Bookstore, Food Service, and so on?

Mike Gotch: We need to work with the administration on issues like the bookstore and campus lighting to make sure that student input is considered and a student-friendly decision is made. The administration tends to operate like a business. Sometimes they need to be reminded that, in effect, the students are their customers. I know of no other business that makes it's customers park in the outlying parking spaces and reserves the prime parking places for the employees.

Lynn Major: The administration needs to establish a more up front, honest approach to serious situations such as the UI Bookstore, Food Service and parking for example. Most often the students are the last to know when changes regarding these vital student services are being considered. I would like the new administration to solicit student ideas and concerns during the inception of any proposed changes, not at the end of negotiations.

Brian Workman: With student issues like the bookstore, Food Services, and so on, the administration owns and controls the facilities and needs to make decisions that are in the best interest of the students. The ASUI needs to make sure that the administration can clearly see what the student needs and opinions are. Changes need to be directly beneficial for the student, not better or easier for the administration which they may say will better the students. The more the administration makes changes FOR students, WITH student input, the better a place the UI will be to go to school.

Beware of candidates bearing false promises

By Brad Cuddy
Commentary

Watch out for ASUI candidates promising the impossible because there are a few out there who will. Those ASUI candidates who have pledged to fight student fee increases and, at the same time, spend most or all of the ASUI's general reserve each year, may be in for a big surprise if they get elected. Why? Because, if they keep their promise to spend the general reserve down to zero, they will, more than likely, have to break their promise to fight student fee increases. In fact, they may very well end up asking the State Board of Education to approve their own request for a fee increase — an ASUI fee increase! That would be an embarrassment and could spell disaster as well. By spending the ASUI's general reserve down to zero each year, it will move student government immediately into a deficit-threatening situation and would soon place it in need of a fee increase.

It isn't by accident that the ASUI has been generating surpluses each year and saving those surpluses to build a large general reserve balance. It is through hard work and sound fiscal policy that this is being achieved. For the first time ever, the ASUI had the foresight to develop a fiscal policy that addresses not only our financial ambitions, but our political ambitions as well. Our policy goals, in short, are as follows:

1) To efficiently spend student dollars on necessary ASUI services and programs. We have cut $100,000 in fat from ASUI budgets and are still providing the same amount of service to students. Our goal is to stretch student dollars as far as possible. There is no place for waste when spending student money.

2) To avoid running a general ASUI deficit through sound and realistic budget projections. One reason we currently have $40,000 budgeted for our general reserve is to offset any potential deficits in various other budgets. Budgets are like educated guesses when projecting income and expenses. It is important to set aside some reserve money to cover any revenue shortfalls or unanticipated expense overages. Forty thousand dollars may seem like a lot of money to set aside for potential budget errors, but in reality, it is only 6 percent of the total ASUI budget.

3) To build a large enough balance in the ASUI General Reserve to avoid having to request a fee increase in the near future. There is a definite reason why we have such a large balance in our general reserve. Every year inflation eats up more and more of our budget. Expenses, in general, increase with inflation while student fee income remains relatively constant (unless we request an ASUI fee increase). Eventually by 1992, according to our projections, expenses will exceed operational and student fee revenue. This is where the annual surpluses we have set aside to create a large general reserve balance come in to play. At this point, rather than having to tax the students more through a fee increase, we can draw off our general reserve to fund our programs. According to projections, if we continue with current policy, we should be able to operate until 1994 without an ASUI fee increase. That will probably make us one of the few departments on campus to go nine years without a fee increase. That's not bad!

As you can see, from a financial standpoint, our current fiscal policy achieves many things. It discourages deficits and unnecessary spending, and it also avoids an ASUI fee increase for as long as reasonably possible. Politically, it serves three purposes: 1. It better enables us to lobby the State Board of Education against fee increases. 2. It creates more credibility for the ASUI when lobbying the Legislature for more higher education monies. Let's face it, it would be difficult to tell the Legislature how to spend its money while we're up in Moscow running huge deficits with our own ASUI budgets. 3. It sends a message to the public, the University of Idaho administration, the State Board of Education and to the Legislature that the University shouldn't need a substantial fee increase every three years. If the ASUI can go nine years without a fee increase, the university should be able to at least do half as well.

Our current fiscal policy is working well for the ASUI and you! Take a minute and look back to three years ago when the ASUI was running huge deficits — $60,000 deficits! It was also only three short years ago that the ASUI received a 47% fee increase. We don't need another one soon. We

Kagi accomplished

Editor:

Tina Kagi has served the students well as an ASUI Senator; her experience, hard work and accomplishments have made her the clear choice for ASUI President. She has organized more programs, sponsored more legislation and done more work to represent and keep students informed than the other candidates. Tina Kagi is also the only candidate to have worked on preparing the ASUI budget last year. If elected, how will the other candidates develop a budget without having prior experience? Tina Kagi has also served as Rules and Regulations Committee Chairman — the others have not been given such authority in the Senate.

There is only one qualified candidate for ASUI President. Take some time to evaluate the candidates' experience and service to you and you will vote for Tina Kagi.

shouldn't need a fee increase for at least another six years. But, if the ASUI starts spending every penny it receives each year, you can count on a fee increase very soon, perhaps even next year (and possibly the next year). Please don't let us go back to the days of incredible deficits and fee increases. Let's continue to spend student dollars wisely and avoid taxing students more and more each year for ASUI services. Please look at the candidates position in regards to spending away the general reserve. Ask yourself this question, "After these candidates are through merrily spending away your general reserve, are they prepared to skip down to Boise to ask the State Board for an ASUI FEE INCREASE? Well, they better be or you'll have a deficit-ridden bankrupt student government to manage. Oh, and by the way, whatever happened to fighting those nasty matriculation and facility fee increases? Forget it. How can we effectively fight university fee increases while requesting our own?

Hoopsters open with win

The Simon Fraser Clansmen met their match Saturday as the University of Idaho men's basketball team opened their season with a 76-50 victory in Memorial Gym.

Simon Fraser University, of Burnaby, B.C., won the opening tip-off and scored the first basket of the game with a 15-footer from point-guard Darren Thomas. But after managing a 6-2 lead two minutes into the game it was all Vandals the rest of the way.

UI went on a 12-minute, 23-7 scoring spurt, and with 6:11 minutes left in the first half led 25-13 on a layup from Vandal center Raymond Brown

Brown also capped off the first half scoring with a 15-foot jump shot at the buzzer, sending the Vandals into the locker room with a 36-27 halftime lead.

Brown accounted for 11 of the Vandals first half points and senior Mauro Gomes scored 7. Forward Dale Dergousoff led SFU with 9 points.

The Vandals played solidly in the second half, committing only one turnover and holding SFU to 10 points in the first 15 minutes of the 20-minute half.

Brown led the Vandals with 17 points and 11 rebounds. Riley Smith and James Fitch both scored 12 points and forward Ricardo Boyd had 11. SFU scoring leaders were Dergousoff with 11 points and Tom Higgins with 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Vandal head coach Kermit Davis was satisfied with the Vandals first outing.

"The guys played hard and competed well," said Davis. "I think offensively we executed well."

"SFU was one of the better Canadian teams we've played since I've been coaching at Idaho," said Davis. "But we can't play the way we played against them in our league."

"We'll need to improve if we plan on being successful," he said.

Vandals clinch back-to-back titles

By Joe Hughes
Sports Editor

For the first time since 1975, the Big Sky Conference will have a repeat champion, and the Idaho Vandals guaranteed it with a 41-7 victory over the hapless Idaho State University Bengals Saturday night.

Although the Vandals are the first team since the 1973-74-75 Boise State Broncos to repeat as champions, their performance was rather lukewarm. The Vandals out-gained the Bengals 274-63 in total yardage in the first half alone, but could only manage to score one touchdown and two field goals to lead 13-0 at halftime.

Idaho clinched at least a tie for the title, regardless of next week's outcome against Boise State, because both Boise State and Montana already have two conference losses while Idaho has only one heading into next week's action. A new rule in the Big Sky Conference allows for co-champions if teams have identical conference records at the end of the season.

However, if the Vandals wish to win the title outright and gain the conference's automatic berth to the NCAA Division I-AA Playoffs, they must win in Boise this Saturday.

Idaho improved their record to 6-1 in the conference and 8-1 overall in front of the 9,200 fans in attendance, while the Bengals fell to 0-10 overall and 0-7 in the Big Sky.

"The thing I'm happy about is we assured ourselves of a co-championship with a game to go," said head coach Keith Gilbertson.

The Idaho defense held the ISU squad scoreless in the first half while the offense sputtered, but the offense came alive in the second half, scoring 21 points in the third quarter.

The defense held ISU to only 27 yards rushing on 27 carries for the game and 236 total yards for the contest.

"We came out in the second half and took care of business," said Gilbertson. And that business was bringing the second straight conference title to Moscow.

Soccer Club places second in tourney

The Soccer Club's co-rec team, captained by Martha Maggi, placed second in the eight team Coca-Cola Classic held in Lewiston last weekend.

The squad started with a 3-2 win over the Spokane Rainbows on Saturday morning when Shelley Gildenhouse scored on a penalty kick and assisted with Allal Samih on a shot by John Bruce. Sammi Manai scored the winning goal in the second half off an assist from Said Hajib.

In the second game Saturday, the Idaho team scored a

3-0 victory over Greenburo

Spokane on shots by Hajib (with an assist to Gildenhouse), an unassisted goal from Bruce and a penalty shot by Gildenhouse. Eric Smith scored the shutout in the nets.

Sunday morning, the UI club defeated the host team, "Coke is it!" 3-0. After a scoreless first half, Harry Kurtz slipped a shot into the corner (the assist going to Samih) and Manai scored on an assist from Bruce. Gildenhouse rounded out the scoring on a cross from Manai and a tip from Kurtz.

In the second game Sunday, Hajib headed in the lone goal for a 1-0 win against the Spokane Stingers on a corner kick from Manai.

The game put the UI club in the championship match against the Spokane Netters Sunday afternoon. The team played to a 1-1 tie on a penalty shot by Gildenhouse, setting up a penalty kick tie-breaker, which the Idaho side lost 2-1, with Val Burgess recording the single score.

Graff keeps UI racquetball hopes alive

By Roger Lee
Staff Writer

With the help of Micheal Graff, the University of Idaho finally has a racquetball league. The league, which started about six weeks ago and will end in December, is open to the public. Graff, a senior graduating this year with a business information systems degree, has used his past experience and college education to organize the 65 players who now participate in the league.

Graff began knocking around a ball at the YMCA his father managed when he was about 13-years old. At only seventeen years of age, Graff was ranked 23rd in the world, but since then he has concentrated on his studies. As a freshman at Idaho, he was the intramural champion for singles and doubles, as well as taking first in WSU's open racquetball competition. Last month, Graff won the first place consolation in the open singles and doubles at a meet in Boise. Currently, he is negotiating for sponsorship from Head sportswear and sportsgear.

For Graff, talent runs in the family. His father is the defending champion of the 45-and-over age division for the state of Oregon, and his younger brother Steve, a junior also at the UI, will be taking over the organizational responsibilities of the league when Micheal graduates in December. Graff said he has long awaited the formation of the league. "As more people get interested and get to know other players, the sport gains recognition," he said.

According to Graff, the league may grow to over 100 people next semester. "I put up a sheet at the glass court in the dome and found that I had to keep adding sheets. I couldn't believe that 65 people signed up in the short time that they were posted. I'm sure that with some publicity, the numbers would be even higher," he said.

He mentioned that for those individuals who have an interest in competing and/or getting to know players in the league, the glass court is open

Lady Vandals finish in sixth

By Mike Lewis
Staff Writer

The Lady Vandals had three players with 10 or more kills as they defeated the Eastern Washington Eagles in the last volleyball match of the season. The victory gives the Lady Vandals a sixth-place finish in the Big Sky Conference, with their 11-17 overall record and 5-11 mark in the Big Sky, while the Eagles and the season with 7-18 and 4-12 marks.

Dawn Colston had 13 kills, Susan Deskinies 11, and Debbie Thayer 10 in what Idaho head coach Pam Bradetich called a "positive way to end the season." Kellie Morgan added 37 assists, 11 digs, five kills and three blocks for the Lady Vandals.

"We had a strong offensive performance from all of our hitters," said Bradetich. "It was a match that we dominated from the beginning, and to finish sixth (in the BSC), which is ahead of where the conference coaches picked us to finish, is a good thing."

Debbie Sperling led the Eagles with 11 kills and seven digs.

Idaho's record puts the Lady Vandals three places above their 1987 finish, as they finished ninth with a 1-15 record last season.

"Every player improved as an individual over the course of the season," added Bradetich. "But we're not satisfied with our season. We let a lot of matches slip through our hands."

Bradetich, however, is already planning for the future. "We need to continue to work on pushing through (at the end of games) to get some wins. We also need to strengthen our back row play, replace some players and find some middle blockers, so our recruiting class is going to be very important as far as next season's team is concerned."

for challenge matches Monday through Friday from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

"Racquetball is unique because it is a lifetime sport. It is never too late to learn," Graff said.

A new league will be open next semester for those who failed to get on this semester's list. Levels of competition are broken into five divisions: Open, A, B, C and D (open being the highest and D the lowest). "There is a level for any player from beginning to very good," he said.

Graff notes that if the league grows and the caliber of play increases, the UI may possibly have a collegiate racquetball team or club in the future.

Can you believe it? The time is at hand! The Vandal football team is ranked second in the nation in Division I-AA and have guaranteed the first back-to-back conference championship in 12 years. This could be the season that the Vandals win it all.

I think with a scenario such as this, the Kibbie Dome would be packed with wild, screaming fans, pushing their team to victory and proud to be a part of the winning tradition and celebration. Indeed, Vandals fans used to be as wild and supportive of their team as any fans in the nation. Unfortunately, those days have passed.

This year has been one of the finest in Vandal football history, yet fans didn't seem to care enough to show their support at the games.

Sure, there were 16,000 fans here for the homecoming game, but that's to be expected with it being the Homecoming of the Century in conjunction with the University of Idaho Centennial. Even the governor showed up for that one.

But what about the next week when the Vandals played Montana State, a team that was tied with the Vandals for first place in the conference? A little over half as many fans showed up for a game which was significantly more important than the homecoming game.

In the next home game, the Vandals kicked a field goal in the final minute of the game to barely win 27-24 over Weber State. The few fans in attendance were sitting down making practically no noise at all. Are these the same Vandal fans that used to be known throughout the country for being loud and boisterous?

In 1983, when Dennis Erickson was the head football coach, Sports Illustrated ranked the Kibbie Dome the second worst place in the country for opposing teams to play. Now, the fans seem to welcome the opposition with open arms and big cheezy smiles on their faces.

The Idaho Vandals are in sole possession of the top spot in the Big Sky Conference standings. They just clinched at least a tie for the conference title. If the Vandals can't bring in the fans when they're the best team in the conference, can you imagine how few fans would be at the games if they were having a losing season?

Maybe the Vandal fans have been lulled into complacency by the winning ways of the Vandal teams which have won three conference titles in the last four years.

The Vandals have rarely let their fans down this season (a perfect example is the 32-31 come-from-behind victory over Nevada-Reno) and deserve the support of their fellow students. Maybe next year they'll get it.

Students should be proud of their Vandals. They don't have to pay at the gate so cost isn't a problem. However, motivation is.

If this is a case where tradition meets the future, I'd rather see tradition unaffected by the future.

Biafra goes on the move

Dynamic lecturer sells out Borah Theater, venue changed

By Julie Clark
Entertainment Editor

Jello Biafra sold out. Not a sellout in the same sense as Robert Plant to Coca-Cola or Eric Clapton to Michelob. He sold out the Borah Theater, the original venue for his lecture tonight, so Biafra will speak at the 400-seat University Auditorium instead.

Not a bad showing, considering Biafra was nearly caught in the same type of bureaucracy he harshly criticizes. ASUI Productions Director Jim Rennie originally turned down the opportunity two weeks ago to have Biafra speak, claiming there wasn't enough time to adequately promote the event.

A group of students, however, disagreed, and convinced Assistant ASUI Program Coordinator Sandy Burr that Biafra would attract significant student interest. Biafra's lecture, finalized last Tuesday, has been completely student-promoted and organized and advance ticket sales were high enough to sell out the Borah Theater.

This lecture, Biafra's first following the presidential election, is the start of a nationwide speaking tour of college campuses. Censorship, the Parents Musical Resource Center, prominent political figures, involuntary drug tests and America's corporate mentality are popular Biafra targets, and President-elect George Bush will probably not be left out of this tour.

This speaking tour is for *No More Cocoon*s, the spoken word album Biafra released in 1987. The album is filled with sharp criticism, like the "Talk on Censorship/Letter to Tipper Gore," "Stars and Stripes of Corruption" and "Vietnam Never Happened." He tears into the injustice of mandatory drug tests in "Urinalysis is Freedom." "Names for Bands" is a hilarious jab at young

Dive into SUB fun this week

By Dena Bandazian
Staff Writer

ASUI and Student Union departments are sponsoring a 'Night on the SUB' Nov. 17. Jim Rennie and Sandy Burr of ASUI Productions have organized an exciting range of prizes, food, films, speakers and music to turn the Student Union Building into a mecca of entertainment Thursday night.

The potential payoff beyond having a good time at the SUB is winning one of three prizes through a crossword puzzle contest. The puzzles are completed by teams of four, who will vie for the top prize, a VCR, in a final treasure hunt Thursday night. The other prizes are a SUB Underground party and a $100 credit from the Outdoor Rental Center.

The evening begins with a spaghetti feed at Joe's Restaurant and from there the choices are yours. St. Elmo's Fire, Children of a Lesser God and The Color Purple are showing in the Borah Theatre at 5, 7 and 9 p.m. respectively.

"The 'Night on the SUB' is another way to provide entertainment and let people know what is available at the SUB,"

Burr said.

A band called One Guess will be performing "a variety of music, mostly pop-rock," according to Burr, in the Vandal lounge from 8 to 10 p.m.

The game room will be having token specials all night in the Underground and ski films will be shown.

"The SUB is offering a nice combination of events to get people more involved in student programming," Burr said.

The goal is to offer enter-

A Finnish band, the Baysix, will kick off Wednesday's Hate BSU Week activities with a concert in the University Auditorium.

The band, on its initial United States tour, has been playing in the Seattle area throughout November to support its new album, Stories. The Idaho performance was originally arranged through ASUI Productions, canceled, then arranged again by a student who became an avid fan of the Baysix. Delta Sigma Phi fraternity is now sponsoring the concert, which begins at 7:30 p.m.

The Baysix' album is filled with original songs recorded in English, and they have recorded two singles, "Love Zone" and "Gone tainment and make people aware of all the activities the SUB has to offer.

The SUB used to do this sort of promotional/entertainment activity years ago, according to Burr, but the last one was in 1979.

"As student programming, we are anxious to start lectures in the Vandal lounge again. We want to bring in a local person to start with then move to a regional group then a national group as the idea catches on," Burr continued. "We encourage open-mindedness about music, entertainment and speakers so we hope to offer a variety of activities."

bands who pester Biafra for creative help. And of course he's included one cut that can never be aired, "Fuck Facts!"

The album, recorded at speaking engagements in cities around the country, conveys Biafra's fears about the direction American capitalism is taking and the idea that many people just don't care.

Basically, you don't have to concur with Biafra to get something out of his lecture. As a speaker he has an incredible presence that will inevitably make you think, whether it's that he's astute or completely off base.

Before Dawn," in an effort to broaden their U.S. exposure. KUOI-FM will be broadcasting Baysix' music and interviews with the seven band members Nov. 16 at noon.

The album is basically pop rock, very slickly produced and ready to plunge the Baysix right into the Top 40 countdown. The band's efforts so far have been aimed at maximum exposure to an American audience. They shot a video for one of Stories' singles, sing in English, and tour with an array of promotional T-shirts, posters and albums.

The concert, which lasts until 9 p.m., precedes the Hate BSU beer-drinking contest at Murdoc's. The band is planning to attend the chug-off after its show.

Admission to the performance is $3 at the door.

The Shakers
Living in the Shadow of a Spirit
Carlyle Records

Although only a four-song EP, this album is one of the most impressive I've heard this year. Part of its popularity and appeal has to do with its concept - the Shakers conceived, wrote and performed the album to relate, in an objective way, bizarre events that occurred in connection with the Bell Witch incident in the 1800s.

The back cover of the album tells the story of a spirit who appeared to the John Bell family in Adams, Tenn. between 1817 and 1820. Affectionately known as "Kate," the spirit could sing, read thoughts, interpret the Bible, and proved both harmful and helpful throughout its "haunting."

The Shakers, a trio of Rebecca Stout on vocals, Oscar Rice on guitar, and Robert Logue on mandolin, have created a beautiful album that accomplishes their intended goal. The acoustic simplicity of their music is strikingly emotional, yet calming. Rebecca Stout, a very young but talented performer, possesses the most melodic, haunting voice I have ever heard on a rock album. I hope this band continues to release such beautiful and professional recordings.

Living in the Shadow of a Spirit may not be available in your local record store, but writing to Carlyle Records (address available at KUOI-FM) is a sure way to get your hands on a copy. It's well worth the effort.
