

U.S. universities scurry to avoid sex scandals

Idaho policy draft puts the squeeze on professor-student relationships

America's universities are hustling to adopt policies discouraging consensual sex between professors and their students. But fears of retaliation may allow students to stay in the bedroom and out of the courtroom. "People don't report because of fear of retaliation," said Rhonda Allen, University of Wisconsin-Madison administrative specialist in affirmative action. "We have heard the horror stories, but don't have the numbers to support them."

These low numbers do not reflect the severity of the problem, Allen said. No students have filed formal complaints, but the UWM Sexual Harassment Policy Committee hears complaints from students all the time, she said.

And, Betsy Thomas, director of the University of Idaho Women's Center, said that with older students attending college, more teachers and students are having sex than ever before.

"I don't believe nobody is having problems," Thomas said. "We are having problems at the University of Idaho. Women come into the center complaining about this. I can walk on campus and hear about it."

The UI Affirmative Action Committee is working to implement a consensual relationship policy, although it is still in draft form.

The draft says that a consensual romantic or sexual relationship "between any teacher and a student of that teacher, while not expressly forbidden, is generally deemed unwise, inappropriate and unethical."

Col. Jan Scott, UI affirmative action officer, said no cases have been reported, and the policy is in response to other universities drafting similar policies.

Elsewhere, other schools are adopting policies, although no students have filed complaints.

Washington State University adopted a consensual relationship policy in May 1987, although officials say WSU has not had to enforce it yet. Annette Lopez, WSU assistant to the president and director of affirmative action, said the policy is preventative.

"We try to look at all possible problems and any ways we could get ourselves into trouble," Lopez said.

The consensual relationship policy at UWM, adopted September 1988, is also a preventative one, according to Allen.

UI recruiters 'drop' Explore Idaho weekend

The university's Explore Idaho high school recruitment weekend won't live to celebrate its fifth birthday.

Each year since its 1984 inception, as many as 275 Idaho high school seniors have been bused to the university for the early-February recruitment weekend. This year, the buses won't run.

"We have decided to drop Explore Idaho, and instead take the information out to the parents and students in the communities," said Mirian Horton, director of New Student Services.

In place of Explore Idaho, university recruiters will travel to at least five Idaho cities to present spring information receptions — evening programs designed to promote the UI to both students and their parents.

UI recruiters already visit Idaho high school classrooms as part of a fall promotional program, but do not always meet with parents.

"We have never had a program specifically for parents," Horton said. "Now we will, so that's the big plus."

Last year, UI recruiters were unable to make early spring visits to Idaho high schools. The visits are crucial, Horton said, because recruiters use them to distribute important admissions information and Financial Aid Forms.

Students must complete and mail FAFs by the end of January to be considered for all forms of aid available, said Dan Davenport, director of Student Financial Aid.

FAFs take four to six weeks to process, he said. Processed forms must reach the university by March 10 for a student to receive priority

Marriott waffles out on pay hikes

By PAUL ALLÉE
News Editor

Marriott, the corporation that took control of the university's dining service Jan. 1, won't automatically grant part-time student employees pay raises.

And according to Lynn Morrison, general manager of the UI University Dining Service, students eating at the Wallace Cafeteria shouldn't expect to see waffles added to their breakfast menus soon.

Marriott's original bid proposal suggested that part-time employee wages would be increased to a minimum of $3.85 an hour.

"When we worked on the proposal, we heard that the minimum wage was going up to $3.85," Morrison said.

The Washington State minimum wage, which applies to WSU food service workers, increased to $3.85 Jan. 1.

Last week, after Morrison found out that the University of Idaho was bound only by the $3.35 federal minimum wage, she said automatic pay increases for UI food service workers were "not going to happen."

UI Controller Jerry Reynolds, who reviewed Marriott's bid proposal, said the company is under no obligation to automatically raise wages.

The hourly wage for those people will average $3.85, Reynolds said.

Included in that average are three new Marriott supervisors, who make more than twice the $3.35 hourly minimum, Morrison, Joe Schneckeburger, residents dining director, and Mike Thomsen, retail dining director.

Full-time UI food service employees remain employees of the university until June 30, when they will have the option to become Marriott employees.

Changes Marriott will make during the next 60 days include the introduction of new "Pace Changer" food bars. The food bars will offer a greater variety of fresh and ethnic foods.

The company also plans major renovations at SUB food outlets.

The creation of a new breakfast waffle bar, which the company touted in their bid proposal as an example of their innovative food offerings, is not on this month's menu, Morrison said.

For months, electrical problems kept the UI waffle irons unplugged. Said Morrison, "There's going to be so many choices that in six months, nobody is going to remember waffle bars."

UI presidential search: Committee chooses finalists Thursday

By ANGELA CURTIS
Managing Editor

The University of Idaho may have a new president by mid-February. Or, the search process could begin all over again if the State Board of Education is not satisfied with the finalists.

Rayburn Barton, executive director of the board, said he expects outgoing President Richard Gibb's successor to be named at the Feb. 16-17 board meetings.

"The hope is that the board will be done by that date," Barton said. "It depends on how the interviews go; the board may decide they don't want any of the candidates."

The screening committee has narrowed the list of possible presidents to 18. Since then, one candidate has withdrawn, leaving 17 candidates. Members of the committee include UI Academic Vice President Tom Bell, UI Affirmative Action Officer Carol Hahn and former ASUI President Brad Cuddy. Chairperson is former State Board President Roberta Fields.

Barton said the screening committee will reduce the number of semi-finalists to about five finalists on Thursday, although the committee may choose more finalists if it sees fit. The committee will send its list of finalists to the board, which will narrow the number to four.

Barton said he hopes to announce the final four Jan. 23 at the regular board meeting to be held in Boise. The board expects to have a president chosen by its February meeting.

Two university faculty members have applied for UI president: College of Law Dean Sheldon Vincenti and College of Agriculture Dean Larry Branen.

Terry Armstrong, executive assistant to Gibb, said while both are excellent candidates, insiders are not traditionally hired. Three or four of the 13 UI presidents had previously been on the UI faculty, Armstrong said.

Top administrators want to keep jobs

Top University of Idaho administrators under retiring UI President Richard Gibb say they will remain in their positions if the new university president hires them.

Terry Armstrong, Gibb's assistant for 11 years, says his future in the president's office lies in the hands of the new president.

"You have to assume that all of us in this office serve at the pleasure of the president," Armstrong said. "I would stay on as needed, but a lot depends on the personality of the new president."

In any case, Armstrong said he is welcome at the College of Education where he is a tenured professor.

Armstrong said his position as executive assistant is not found on every university campus and that it has been customary for an incoming president to hire his own people.

However, Financial Vice President Joe Gieger said significant staff turnovers usually do not occur when a new president steps in.

Academic Vice President Thomas Bell said he would also like to keep his job.

Flip Kleffner, acting vice president for university relations and development, said the new president will probably make few changes, although Gibb's successor has that right.

"I think presidents have the right to do whatever they want as far as administrative staffing is concerned," Kleffner said.

PARKING PROBLEMS? HELP US HELP YOU.

HERE ARE A FEW TIPS TO AVOID PARKING HASSLES.

1. Read the regulations! They're available at the Information Center; our telephone number is 885-6424. We're the only source of accurate information!
2. Please DO NOT PARK IN HANDICAPPED SPACES. Not only will you be towed away, but you're putting someone out who may be in need of that space. Park only in designated spaces. Permits will not be required for Red and Blue parking spaces Jan. 9 - 14 to give you time to buy your permit.
3. Save time and money: plan to park and walk a short (3 block) distance.
4. Use metered parking only for short trips and if you're unsure about the time, use another lot.
5. Keep permits on the vehicles to which they're registered.
6. Read all signs and regulatory markings.
7. If your car is disabled in a lot, notify Parking Control immediately.
8. You may appeal any UI parking citation, but do it fast; the time limit is 10 school days.
9. If you forget your pool permit you can get a one day permit on an occasional basis, if you know your permit type. (color).
10. Motorcycles must park where designated, as shown on the UI Parking Map.

Idaho pays for Wash. wage increase

Moscow prices up, but salaries aren't

By MATT HELMICK
Staff Writer

The pocketbooks of Palouse workers and consumers will feel the effects of the minimum wage hike in Washington state as businesses raise their prices in response to the new wage requirement.

The adult minimum wage in Washington has been raised to $3.85 while the adult wage in Idaho remains at $3.35. Area fast food restaurants have responded to the Washington wage hike by raising prices.

According to Jennifer Lang, assistant manager of Taco Time in Pullman, food prices have risen at both the Pullman and Moscow restaurants.

"Food prices have been raised and will be the same for both Moscow and Pullman," Lang said.

Lang said a former employee meal policy that covered the entire cost of an employee's meal has been reduced to paying 50 percent of the meal.

Jill Bullbeau, store manager of McDonald's of Pullman, said their prices have been raised in order to meet increased costs of products, mixes and other inputs.

"Our prices were raised very minimally compared to a lot of McDonald's around Washington," Bullbeau said.

Bullbeau said despite the increased minimum wage, the number of applications is normal for this time of the year. "There hasn't been any mad rush like they projected," she said.

Idaho Sen. Don Mackin, D-Moscow, doesn't foresee any immediate action to raise Idaho's minimum wage.

"I think the federal government more often tends to take the lead and the states tend to follow," Mackin said. "At this point, unless it is announced by the governor in his state of the state address, I'm not sure there would be any move made."

Mackin does not see the situation as necessarily negative for Idaho.

"It cuts two ways," Mackin said. "It creates an exit of potential workers from the panhandle to Washington, or it creates overpricing in Washington. Idaho would become a better buy."

Idaho Rep. James "Doc" Lucas, R-Moscow, said an increased Idaho minimum wage may not be much help.

"In Idaho, we have too many couples where one or both are working for minimum wage," Lucas said. "That's terrible. I don't know how many, but I'm sure it's too many. Unfortunately, the thing that happens more when wages go up, those kind of people get replaced by equipment."

Michael Judah, executive vice president for the Moscow Chamber of Commerce, said that he doesn't expect the increased Washington wage to have an immediate impact on Idaho, but he does think it will provide incentive for potential workers to work in Washington instead of Idaho.

The Washington State adult minimum wage was raised to $3.85 on Jan. 1, 1989, in response to the initiative, passed by Washington voters in November. The wage will increase again to $4.25 an hour on Jan. 1, 1990.

Calvert: New math classes aren't 'easy'

By KARLENE CAMERON
Staff Writer

More than 140 students are expected to register today for two new math courses designed for liberal arts students, said the chairman of the Math Department.

According to Chairman Jim Calvert, students who didn't have a strong math background or interest in the subject were being placed in engineering or business-type math courses to satisfy their core requirement.

"Our intent is to show what mathematicians really do," Calvert said. "We want to de-emphasize computation and concentrate more heavily on interpretation and application."

Math 150, An Introduction to Statistics, will emphasize examples and case studies. According to Calvert, the course is designed primarily for communication majors, and might become a requirement in the future.

Math 101, The Spirit of Mathematics, will include areas such as number theory, geometry, topology, probability, and history of math.

Calvert emphasized that neither course will be "easy."

"They (the courses) might not require an extensive background in math," Calvert said, "but there will still be tests to take and things to learn."

Three sections of the classes will be available and will be taught by Gail Adele, Jim Calvert, and Roger Higdem, a visiting professor from the college of Idaho.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING: WOMEN LEAD UI STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Kagi, Major reach out to diverse student groups

By JON ERICKSON
Editor

For the first time in the history of the University of Idaho, the top two spots in the ASUI are held by women. Although ASUI Vice President Lynn Major is one-half of that record-making duo, she says it will be business as usual for the student government.

Major, a Sandpoint High School graduate, was elected last month. Tina Kagi won the ASUI Presidency.

"Overall, I don't think it will be any different," Major said. "It opens doors for a lot of opportunities for the two of us. Not only have two women achieved the top spots, but it's at the beginning of a new century for the university."

Major, 32, served as a student senator from spring 1987 to fall 1988, when she was elected vice president.

A single parent, Major and her 11-year-old daughter, Jennifer, moved to Moscow from Tulsa, Okla. in 1985 so Major could pursue a law degree at the university.

"I always said if I went to school I'd come here," Major said. "Now we're heading down the home stretch." As an ASUI senator, Major organized a math forum for students to air concerns about the math department. From her work on the forum, Major helped implement two new math courses for liberal arts students. She has also worked to improve housing conditions for married student housing.

Major said she hopes her community involvement will help her daughter someday.

"You can only hope as the years go by that things will get better. I hope she's not faced with the same bureaucratic problems I was," Major said.

Meanwhile, Tina Kagi has her hands full working as a liaison with several campus and off-campus groups.

Kagi, a 20 year-old political science major, has found herself busy working to improve ASUI communication channels.

For example, late this month Kagi will meet with the student body presidents of Idaho State University, Boise State University and Lewis Clark State University to draft a constitution for the Idaho Student Lobby.

Kagi said the ISL would function as a comprehensive base of student influence — influence that would be aimed at university officials, the State Board of Education and the Idaho Legislature.

Once the constitution is finalized, the student body presidents will present it to their respective governments for ratification.

Kagi has also cosponsored a ASUI Senate resolution providing for a state-wide parents' association. Again aimed at the state legislature, the association could be influential in assuring adequate funding for higher education.

"They (the parents) can do a lot by just making phone calls and writing letters," Kagi said.

Within the next week she will meet with representatives of the Residence Hall Association, the Panhellenic Council and the Interfraternity Council to work out details for a new president's council.

Kagi said that communication between the ASUI and the living groups association needs to be improved.

"In the past, senators have sponsored bills concerning the dorms and RHA has felt left out of the decisions," Kagi said.

Three killed in holiday accidents

Turner, son die in trailer-auto pileup

A University of Idaho student and her son were killed north of Colfax in a three-vehicle accident the evening of Dec. 30.

Helen Jean (Holly) Turner, a nutrition student, and her son, Adam T. Turner, were driving to Spokane where she was to complete a hospital nutritionist's internship.

The 31-year old single mother died of head and internal injuries at the scene of the accident. Her 5-year-old son died later at Whitman Community Hospital in Colfax.

The vehicle Turner was driving apparently slid on icy roads while climbing the Buck Grade, about three-quarters of a mile north of Colfax. The car slid into a southbound tractor trailer and then collided with another vehicle. There were no other injuries.

Turner was a junior in the Consortium Coordinated Undergraduate Program of Dietetics, a joint program of the UI and Eastern Washington University.

She had moved to Spokane Tuesday to complete a two-semester internship at Sacred Heart Medical Center.

She earned numerous scholarships, including the Mary Hall Nichols Scholarship, which she received two years.

She had received a national PEO scholarship the morning of the accident.

The former Lewiston resident was described by Shirley Newcomb, UI professor of home economics, as an outstanding, hardworking young woman.

"She was a very skilled and efficient worker, a good student, and a very good mother," Newcomb said. "She worked hard to earn the money for her education."

A memorial scholarship has been set up by Turner's family. The criteria will be specified later.

Memorials and contributions can be sent to Newcomb at the UI School of Home Economics.

Hubbard dies in Nevada blizzard

John Willard Hubbard, 19, a University of Idaho mechanical engineering student, died Dec. 20 of injuries received when his car struck a horse during a snowstorm near Gas-mere, Nevada.

Hubbard, a Moscow native, was born Feb. 4, 1969.

He graduated from Moscow High School in 1987 and completed an auto mechanics course at North Idaho College in July 1988.

Relatives said he enjoyed mechanical work, especially working on cars. He also enjoyed survival trips, camping and wildlife.

Survivors include his father, Willard Hubbard of Viola; his mother, Loretta Hubbard of Pullman; his sister, Linda L. Larson of Rochester, Wash.; his sister, Shelly R. Thompson of Benton City, Wash.; and his grandmother, Donna Nehilla of Clarkston.

Funeral services were held at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Moscow during Christmas break.

UI PARKING RULES EASED THIS WEEK

Regulations requiring the display of appropriate parking stickers in "red" and "blue" lots at the University of Idaho have been suspended through Jan. 14.

Tom LaPointe, parking coordinator, said the relaxation of the rules is to give UI students and employees ample time to purchase parking permits for the second semester of the 1988-89 school year.

But he said gold stickers must be displayed on vehicles using "gold" parking lots, such as those directly behind the Administration Building and the Physical Education Building.

"We're just trying to pull ourselves into the '80s," she said. The greatest problems occur between graduate students and professors while working together on thesis projects, Allen said. But some grad student-major professor relationships have succeeded at the University of Washington, as well as produced productive research teams, said UW Equal Employment Officer Helen Remick.

"It is an individual matter; the difficulty is that some consensual relationships have endured and thrived," Remick said, citing a 15-year marriage between two UW faculty members which began when the woman was a grad student and her husband was her major professor.

The University of Washington does not have a consensual relationship policy, Remick said.

"There are very strong feelings that relationships are private matters," Remick said. "(A policy) would not get approved here."

The problems begin, officials say, when one party wants out of the relationship. Then, the relationship can change from one of consent to one of sexual harassment. While no specific penalties accompany consensual relationships, harassment may lead to dismissal.

"Seniors (supervisors and professors) are laying themselves open to harassment charges if the relationship goes sour," Scott said.

Said Lopez, "If a relationship happens and goes awry, we're sitting on a time bomb that is likely to explode in our faces."

Remick said such relationships are especially hazardous to the senior party.

"I would strongly recommend getting out of one of the two relationships," she said. "It is very hazardous for the person with more power; the person with less power may feel coerced into the relationship."

Despite the possibility of coercion, none of the universities questioned have adopted sanctions against violators.

Although UW does not have an official policy concerning consensual relationships, Remick said her university would severely punish any professors trying to coerce students into relationships.

"Where any form of coercion is present, that professor would be driven out of the academy," Remick said.

The UI policy contains no sanctions against violators because without penalties, it would have a better chance of Faculty Council approval, Scott said.

"We're not trying to tie somebody to the mast," Scott said. "We just want to send warnings that this is unprofessional behavior because of the power differential between professors and students."

UWM imposes no penalties because complaints are handled on a case-by-case basis. Penalties may range from verbal warnings to dismissal. The UWM policy does not include sanctions for violators because all those involved are adults, Allen said.

"We can't control adult behavior," she said.

WSU officials feel the same way, said Lopez.

"We can't control relationships between consenting adults," she said.

Not so, according to Idaho's Thomas.

"I don't think you can give consent with that kind of power differential," Thomas said. "It's like a jailer saying to a prisoner, 'I want to have sex with you.'"

The power differential between students and their instructors may make consent impossible to evaluate, Remick said.

The draft of the UI policy reflects the same beliefs.

It states that the power which teachers exercise over students in providing grades and job recommendations "greatly diminish(es) the student's actual freedom of choice should a demand for sexual favor be added to the professor's requests."

Harassment charges may also be filed by a third party, officials say. An offended third party may be another student in the class who believes he or she has been denied benefits because the student involved in the relationship received preferential treatment.

The fifth working draft of the UI policy will be sent to the Faculty Council for revisions, then to the entire faculty.

The draft for the UI policy, as well as policies at other universities, also discourages relationships between supervisors and subordinates in the university workplace. However, all universities questioned said professor-student and supervisor-subordinate relationships are permissible if the two people concerned are not in the same university department.

Meanwhile, Allen says, romance will continue heedless of rank.

"People fall in love; we can't stop that."

1 BOOKSTORE LOOKS FOR NEW HOME

Groundbreaking for the new University of Idaho Bookstore is scheduled for March, according to Ned Warnick, bookstore project manager.

Scheduled for completion by next fall's term, the bookstore will be located across from the SUB and next to the Lambda Chi fraternity.

However, choosing a site for the new facility hasn't been easy.

Because of the limited space of the current bookstore, UI administrators began searching for a new location late in 1987.

Administrators originally proposed 12 bookstore sites, six of which were on campus. However, the off-campus locations had students and local businesses concerned.

One off-campus proposal, which the students were overwhelmingly opposed to, called for a bookstore move to the old J.C. Penney building downtown.

Other off-campus location proposals included Murdoc's and the former Mirage building.

Once the bookstore moves into its new home, Student Financial Aid officials are hoping to move from their camp quarters into the current bookstore building.

To help with parking, administrators are also planning for the construction of an additional parking lot near the new bookstore site.

2 100 YEARS AND COUNTING

The University of Idaho got so excited about its Centennial, it started celebrating a year and a half before the actual date.

The UI Centennial is Jan. 30, 1989, but that didn't stop the Centennial Committee from kicking off the Centennial Celebration in fall '87 with an unveiling of the official UI Centennial banner at the season's first football game.

The athletic logo was first presented to the public on the football turf of the Kibbie Dome and on athletic team uniforms.

The Centennial Celebration officially began Jan. 25, 1988 with a week of festivities.

To kick off the celebration, classes were dismissed for a breakfast in the Kibbie Dome. Almost 4,000 students and faculty members attended.

Jan. 29, 1988, Dr. Terrel H. Bell received the first Founder's Day Award given in celebration of the UI birthday. Bell was Secretary of Education to President Ronald Reagan. The award will be given to an outstanding individual in state, regional or national education.

The university was officially established on Jan. 30, 1889 with territorial Gov. Stevenson's signing of Bill Number 20. Classes started three years later, Oct 12, 1892 with two professors.

This Crested Hill, a pictorial history of the university, was published in the spring semester of 1988. The 256-page book features more than 330 photos. The book was researched and written by Keith Petersen.

3 WEEK DEVOTED TO 'SAFE SEX'

Former ASUI President Brian Long has been credited with bringing "safe sex" to the UI.

"I started reading things on campus controversies over condom machines and I think they are missing the issues," Long said. "The issue is education and awareness and not just fighting condom machines on campus."

With the assistance from the ASUI, Long led Student Advisory Service's first Sexual Health Weeks last Feb. 2-17.

Instead of having campus debates on condoms, SAS took a more non-controversial role in educating students about choices and risks involved in relationships and sex.

"There are a lot bigger issues at stake than condoms in the residence halls," said Bruce Pitman, dean of student services.

Students were given the opportunity to examine the many different aspects surrounding 'safer sex' through lectures, seminars and discussions.

Programs included a Women's Center film presentation and discussion about sex in advertising. In addition, Will Keim of Oregon State University combined humor and information in his presentation, "Sex, Drugs and Rock-n-Roll."

An AIDS Tele-Conference Satellite Broadcast at the SUB concluded the events.

4 'AS IS' DRAWS PRAISE, PROTEST

At the preview showing of "As Is," it received a standing ovation. But standing outside the UI's Collette Theater on closing night were protesters holding signs saying "As Is isn't art, it's porn," and "Today sodomy on stage, tomorrow...?"

"As Is," a love story about a man dying of AIDS, was presented by the UI Theater Arts Department production in March.

Michael Johnson, director of the play, said it was unfortunate the protestors hadn't seen the production before deciding to picket.

"It's a serious mistake to judge a dramatic work from a reading of the script," Johnson said.

Protestors claimed that much of the language of the play and certain scenes were too explicit to be performed on stage.

One More Time Productions sponsored encore performances of the play later in the semester at the Moscow Community Center.

AS IS. Rich, portrayed by Robert Morgan, is comforted by his brother, played by Dale Maxwell, in "As Is."

VANDALS TAKE BIG SKY

Never in the history of Vandal football has a season paralleled the feats performed by the 1988 grid warriors.

Since the first pigskin contest in 1893 the Vandals have not rallied such an impressive win/loss season record since 1905 when the university boasted a 5-0 stat box.

The Vandals, behind the direction of Head Coach Keith Gilbertson and the trigger finger of quarterback John Friesz, came away with their second straight season as Big Sky Conference Champions which included another berth to the NCAA I-AA playoffs.

Number one ranked Vandals lost only one regular season game this year to Montana. The 26-17 loss was avenged by a 38-19 spanking in the first round of the NCAA playoffs.

Despite a disappointing loss to Furman University in the semifinal round of the playoffs, the Vandals earned a handful of national rankings, Big Sky records, special team recognitions and individual marks that will carry the Vandals far into the 1989 season under new Head Coach John L. Smith.

ASUI RAFTING TRIPS FACE ROUGH WATER

Controversy surfaced last spring about the ASUI's Idaho Educational Adventures program.

IEA, which conducts rafting trips down the Salmon River, was believed to be in major competition with Idaho outfitters.

IEA originally only provided services to UI students, alumni and their families. However, in recent years it had expanded its marketing to other groups. Complaints of unfair competition by local outfitters forced IEA to return to serving only UI affiliated groups.

BOOZE-BUSTING GOLF MARSHALS

The hiring of seven golf course marshals to patrol the University of Idaho golf course raised questions as to where the money for their salaries was coming from.

UI financial administrators were unable to find the amount and source of funding for the marshals, who were charged with keeping golf course etiquette and no-drinking rules.

A minimum estimate was set at $13,000. This estimate was calculated with each marshal working an average of 12 hours a week at $6 an hour through November. In addition a new golf cart, estimated at $3,400, was purchased for use by the marshals.

UI President Richard Gibb later revealed that the money for the marshals would come from an existing budget set aside for facilities maintenance. The funding problem would then fall on the golf course board for the following year.

Approximately one month later, the golf course was down to three marshals and lowered their wages to an average of $4 an hour. In addition, the marshals' patrolling hours were cut and they began working in the course pro shop.

The action was taken after the UI Golf Course Board had determined that the marshals had been effective in their jobs.

UI FACES STATE BOARD THREATS

Refusing a $1.3 million funding request from the University of Idaho was just one of the actions taken by the State Board of Education in 1988.

UI lost the money to Boise State University and Lewis Clark State College in the million-dollar tug-of-war.

Another measure gave BSU the chance to build a College of Technology. UI opposed the measure because university officials charged it threatened the University of Idaho's role as an education and research leader. Despite UI opposition, BSU started construction on the facility last fall.

In addition, students voiced their opposition to Idaho Senate Bill 1313 and Senate Resolution 127. The measures called for consolidation of the building debts of several Idaho colleges and universities. Student fees would have been used to guarantee financing the building improvements. Neither measure passed.

Even with all the board's action, students only faced a $3 fee increase for academic year 1988-89. The increase is intended to cover increased Student Health Insurance premiums.

Why you need a 'scoop' with your pizza

From now on there are going to be more hot and spicy things in the Argonaut than the pizza coupons.

Now advertisers, please don't take offense, but the Argonaut should be more than a twice-weekly shopper for students. It should be informative and entertaining. And it should provoke thoughts other than a choice of one or two toppings, free Cokes and thick crust.

Therefore, it is high time you, the students, got your Readers' Bill of Rights. Thus, the Argonaut editorial staff hereby pledges the following:

Right One: We will actively search out the truth on any issue facing the UI community. We won't be afraid of "stepping on some toes" or asking probing questions of UI leaders. For example, check out Lynn Morrison's response to the question "Will Marriott raise part-time employee pay to $3.85 an hour?"

Right Two: You will also get the news as quickly as possible. We won't wait until our competition downtown prints it first before we send a reporter to "find out what's going on." After all, our job is to "scoop" them, not quote them. For example, our reporters have found out that Taco Time in Moscow will increase prices to cover Washington state's recent minimum wage increase.

Right Three: Accuracy is the name of the newspaper game. Every editor and staff writer for this paper will endeavor to get the facts and get them right. But when we make mistakes, we'll recognize them and set the record straight.

Right Four: Because there are at least two sides to every story, Argonaut reporters, like all journalists, will strive for objectivity. Reporters will present the facts, not their opinions in news stories. However, articles appearing on the editorial pages, or labeled as commentary or analysis may include writers' opinions.

Right Five: Finally, the Argonaut staff refuses to be held unaccountable for our actions and decisions. If you feel we have "majorly messed up," send us a letter or give us a call. In addition, the Argonaut's governing board, ASUI Communications Board, will be happy to address your questions and concerns.

So if you're just picking up the Argonaut for those tantalizing pizza coupons, please let us know that we aren't doing our job.

Censor that pornography

Editor:

Concerning the sale of pornography (i.e. Playboy and Penthouse) in the UI Bookstore, we would like to say that the issue is not censorship.

According to the people we've talked to and whose articles we've read, their definitions of censorship are something like this: Someone else telling me what I can or cannot read or deciding what should or should not be made available to me. We say these individuals live in a fairyland. According to these definitions of censorship, everything on this campus (in and out of the classroom) is censored by someone.

Why doesn't the bookstore sell every book, magazine, and newspaper printed in America? Obviously someone (a person or persons, business manager/owner, governing body, etc.) who has the authority to decide what the bookstore should or should not sell has made some decisions regarding what should be made available.

Are we satisfied with these decisions? This is part of the beauty of the American system — if we don't like something, we can act to try to change it! Is not our country's Constitution... "We the people of the republic for which it stands..." designed for change within the country via grass roots movements? A 1985 Newsweek poll showed that 85 percent of those questioned did not like pornography in our society. Why does it remain? The answer is because people are ignorant of what the term censorship really means or misuse of the term to hide their selfish interests.

All laws legislate morality. Let's remember that all law is the imposition of someone's morality to the exclusion of someone else's morality. The question is whose morality will dominate? In our country we have laws against murder, theft, rape, etc. Certainly some murderer, thief or rapist would complain that someone else was imposing their morals or infringing (censoring) upon their freedom to exercise their rights. But in order to provide protection for the general public, we pass laws against

Gadhafi-Reagan stand-off

Gipper misses his theatrics

Ronald Reagan, a thespian of mediocre talents at best, wishes to prove he still retains some sense of drama by invoking a finale between himself and his nemesis, "Mad Dog" Gadhafi.

You remember Gadhafi. He was the scoundrel who blew up the Berlin discotheque in which an American soldier was killed in 1986.

In a dashing display of retribution, an American bombing raid on Tripoli and Benghazi in April 1986 left 50-100 people dead. This included several women and children. Several other people were maimed and injured.

Hmmph! Terrorism? Reagan, not to be bested by a Soviet-allied upstart, showed Gadhafi what terrorism really was. The Libyans were terrorized by an attack unlike anything they had experience since World War II.

MATT HELMICK

Commentary

But, Gadhafi was still alive. The perfect foe, making mad, anti-American statements. Such a dramatic persona makes it easy to forget certain things like the fact that Libya is a smaller state-sponsor of terrorism than nations like Syria and Iran.

It also makes it easy to make up things like Libyan "hit squads" coming to assassinate Reagan.

Lying? Hypocrisy? Perhaps, but it's all for the sake of drama.

For the sake of drama we can get very excited over the existence of chemical plants in Libya.

We can overlook the fact that other nations have chemical plants as well. We can overlook the fact that Iraq used chemical weapons against Iran in a recent battle.

For the sake of drama we can overlook America's own expanding stockpile of chemical weapons.

And so Dutch has his finale, and a good plot. Engineered on the pretense of eliminating the chemical plant. Say you might strike the chemical plant at any given time. Get the Libyans nervous. Nervous enough to buzz or attack American fighter planes "well off" the Libyan coast. Make them the aggressors.

It all adds up to a justification for another strike against Libya. A grand finale.

One more for the Gipper? I hope not.

UI priorities: Beer, girls, then grades?

POINT

It's been rumored that the University of Idaho is the only real university in Idaho. Now I'm uncertain whether the rumor made me anxious or if I just needed a break from Pocatello, but I was excited about spending the weekend at my brother's fraternity house in Moscow.

At first glance the campus impressed me. As the chimes in the Administration Building sounded the hour, I walked the tree-lined sidewalks past the monolithic, ivy-laden, 100-year-old buildings and felt a sense of tradition.

This is what a college is supposed to be, I thought. Clearly, people in a place like this thrive on the learning experience. The feeling was strange, definitely one never felt while walking across the (ISU) Quad from the SUB to the business building.

Yet the students at the UI didn't see their campus as I did. Talking with them, I found out that for many, the education experience is far from what they really thrive on.

One guy told me, not in these exact words, that his priorities of the past have been girls, beer and then school; but because he didn't do so well last year "grade-wise" his priorities have changed. This year school is no longer third place, but second only to girls.

Priority ranking seemed to be the norm across this campus where students are considered "brains" if they achieve a grade point average higher than 2.0.

I attended some of my brother's classes to see why education had little prominence at this university and the differences were somewhat surprising. The professors distanced themselves from the students and preferred to be addressed as "doctor." Students, most of them 19 (the same age I am), took up desk space in class rather than participating, and a bell rang to signal when classes were beginning and ending.

I don't know what significance any of this holds in the importance of getting an education at the UI, being from Idaho State, where I feel comfortable calling almost all my professors by their first name, where my classmates more often than not have more than enough to say, where the average student's age is 28, where most students can tell time and where bells don't break the silence of my walk to the BA building.

Fraternity life, or living in the same house with sixty other guys, was something not related to anything I have ever experienced. Those who live in a fraternity or sorority are not

JON BARRETT

Commentary

BRIAN LONG

Commentary

COUNTERPOINT

Move over Morton Downey Jr. Now there's somebody more closed-minded. Idaho State University journalist hopeful Jon Barrett was a wee bit quick to take cheap potshots at a sister university and its Greek system.

Judging by Mr. Barrett's scathing expose he apparently thinks a brief visit to our university qualifies him as a premier travel critic.

Perhaps if Mr. Barrett had extended his visit he would have seen behind the beauty of the campus and heard beyond those chimes he found so annoying, to discover the real University of Idaho.

The UI I'm familiar is with one where people in nearly every office on campus really care about students and are willing to take time when you need a helping hand.

It's a UI rich in tradition but looking toward the future and a place where each year, students build on the accomplishments of those who went before them.

And the UI is more than just a place to unpack your sack lunch in between classes, it's a place you can call home.

One of the reasons the UI is home to so many students is because of its strong on-campus living groups, where nearly 50 percent of UI students choose to live. Some of the strongest of those groups are found in the Greek system.

And if Mr. Barrett had only taken a closer look at the Greek system before dipping his journalistic paintbrush into a festering vat of rubbish and generalizations about UI Greeks, he would see that they are for the most part a productive lot who consistently sport higher GPAs than the rest of the campus.

In fact, last semester, students living in fraternities and sororities turned in a 2.64 grade point average, while independents scored a 2.50 average. Academics are important in Greek living groups, and houses take pride in competing for top honors among their peers when it comes to making grades.

Most Greek houses promote study programs and older members often help younger students with academics and scheduling. Granted, there are always a few bad apples in every Greek living group barrel, but this is the same Greek system where Truman scholars are a dime a dozen.

And while Mr. Barrett says the UI lacks intellect, how many other Idaho universities can brag about having one of this year's Rhodes scholars living amongst it's "Beer chugging, girl chasing" ranks?

Perhaps Mr. Barrett should have done his homework.

► LETTER from page 8

such actions. Concerning the pornography issue, you who would say we are advocating censorship, a violation of the first amendment rights, take note that murderers, thieves and rapists are complaining that their rights have been censored by the passing of laws which sentence them to punishment for their actions.

In making decisions beneficial to our communities, people must sometimes set aside personal rights to facilitate order in a society. We would like you to consider these aspects in deciding whether or not to support the removal of pornography from the bookstore. It has been well documented by many sources that there is a direct correlation between rape, child incest, child molestation and murder due to the influence and/or presence of pornography. Pornography is not the cause of all these things, but to say that it causes none at all is to stick your head in the sand and expose how much you have researched or know about the subject — none!

Because of people's interests (revenue, profit, pleasure, habit, etc.) in pornography, they fight for their "rights" closing an ear to the ill effects it has on our society. Even though stopping sales of pornography at the bookstore is not the total answer, it is a start.

As responsible citizens, each one of us will answer for the decisions, and the effects of those decisions, on our communities, towns, cities, and universities. We urge each one of you to do something to help stop the exploitation of women through pornography. In doing so, you will help make this a safer campus and make Moscow a better place to live. Please help stop the sale of pornography at the UI Bookstore.

"If they can make it to the (Kibbie) Dome, we'll be expecting them," Telin said. "A few may be late, but judging from the long lines in the controller's office, most students are back."

Those students who aren't in ditches, say the Idaho State Police.

"Our officers just go from one ditch to another helping people out of ditches," said Jody Hoogland of the ISP. "There is a tremendous amount of cars sliding off the road everywhere."

Moscow public schools remain closed today after a Sunday evening snow storm closed area schools yesterday.

White Bird pass was reopened today after a Sunday night closing. Telin said those students who were delayed by highway closings were able to get on the road again by 1 p.m. Monday.

Students making the trip from Boise to Moscow experienced treacherous roads, often finding themselves off the road.

"I felt so relieved to get back," said Holly Hughes, a freshman in psychology. "I'm glad I'll never have to make a trip like that again; we all have whiplash."

Hughes said police closed the roads after her accident.

All Horizon Air flights since 2 p.m. Sunday have been cancelled, said Brent Caldwell, general agent at Horizon.

Caldwell said flights were closed because of low visibility.

The National Weather Service issued a travel advisory Monday evening, with 2-4 inches of snow expected last night.

Fraternity members are not to socialize with members of other houses unless the two fraternities are "compatible." People in the dorms — "dormies" — are strictly off limits. Not being able to say hello to friends on the way to class, regardless of what letters they have on their sweatshirt would seem alien to me.

A RHODES RECEPTION. Congratulated by Honors Program history Professor Robert Coonrod, Susan Bruns mingles at a December reception, held in her honor.

Bruns credits honors program

Susan Bruns, a University of Idaho business finance student, recently became the first UI Rhodes Scholar in 52 years.

As a Rhodes Scholar, Bruns, who finished her undergraduate work with a 4.0 cumulative grade point average, will study two years at Oxford University in Oxford, England. Her study will begin in October.

Bruns credits the UI Honors Program to much of her success.

"I would have to give tremendous credit to the Honors Program at the University of Idaho for the scholarship," she said. "They were some of my most challenging courses while I was there and played a very large part in where I am now."

Bruns offers the following advice for success:

- Never miss an opportunity to learn, and not just in the classroom.
- Understand that reading will open up your world.
- See as much of the world as you can, and bring your experiences back to enrich your community.
- Figure out what you want to do, and practice it.
- Look for people who share your goals and dreams, and find a mentor to show you the ropes.
- Learn self-discipline.
- Challenge yourself with goals seemingly outside your grasp.
- Never let anyone else determine your opinion of you.

consideration for campus-based financial aid, like scholarships and work-study awards.

"If students apply by the priority deadline, they will receive full consideration for the scholarships," he said. "If they apply afterwards, then their name is not automatically submitted to the (scholarship) committees."

"Because we dropped Explore Idaho, we will be able to visit all of those high schools before the March 10 Financial Aid deadline," Horton said.

Previously, students had been charged $45 to participate in Explore Idaho weekend. But, Horton said, those fees only covered about half of the the estimated $20,000 Explore Idaho weekend budget.

"The main service they (students) were paying for was the bus trip," Horton said.

New Student Services will continue to provide free food and lodging to students participating in their regular campus visitation program. More than 775 students visited the university through that program last year.

On average, 47 percent of the students who make campus visits through either visitation program later enroll at the university, Horton said.

But according to Francis Dobernig, campus Greek adviser, the cancelation of Explore Idaho is not expected to hurt either overall university recruitment efforts. Fraternity or sorority rush efforts will not suffer either, she said.

"I think we can use this (new arrangement) to our benefit," Dobernig said. "Often, there are a lot of myths about Greek life. By speaking to both parents and students before they arrive on campus, we can give them a better idea how things really are before they ever come for a visit."

QUICK OUT-OF-BOUNDS SAVE. Krista Smith (#24) drives out of bounds to save a ball during the Vandal's Friday night battle with BSU. The Lady Vandal's moved to 1-0 in conference play with a 58-55 overtime win. (LOREN ORR)

Lady Vandals take home two

By MIKE LEWIS
Sports Writer

The last time they did it, they went on to win the Women's National Invitational Tournament.

2-0. Okay, perhaps gauging the Lady Vandal basketball team, which is 2-0 in the Big Sky Conference for the first time since 1985 when it eventually won the WNIT, by such lofty standards is foolish, but it sure is fun to think about it.

The Lady Vandals opened their 1988-89 Big Sky Conference season in impressive fashion last Friday in the Kibbie Dome, as Jeanne Doherty nailed two clutch free throws with 17 seconds remaining in overtime to ice a 58-55 Idaho victory over the 8-3 Boise State Lady Broncos.

With their eight victories, the Lady Vandals have already eclipsed the seven wins that they tallied during all of last season.

"I think this just shows our team how close a second place team and a sixth place team can be," said Idaho Head Coach Laurie Turner in reference to the Big Sky preseason poll which ranked Boise State second and Idaho sixth.

Christy Van Pelt, whose 15 weekend steals moved her into second place on Idaho's all-time career steals list, led all scorers with 23 points on 10-of-16 shooting. Van Pelt's 222 career steal record is second only to the mark of 230 set by Robin Behrens from 1982-86.

The Lady Broncos led at the half of Friday's contest 28-26 after a see-saw 20 minutes that saw the score tied six times. After a six point turnaround that gave Idaho a 41-38 lead with 11:12 left in regulation, BSU turned on a 9-2 spurt capped by an Ann Jensvold three-pointer play which put the Lady Broncos up 47-44 with about eight minutes to go.

The two teams battled the rest of the way almost without scoring, as they combined for just one field goal in the final five minutes. Jensvold, who finished with 21 points and eight rebounds, hit two free throws with 1:06 left to tie the game at 51 and send it into overtime.

Jensvold accounted for all four of BSU's overtime points, but Van Pelt hit a lay-up with 2:33 to go to give Idaho the lead for good.

Of course, Idaho didn't stop there. And when Idaho State rolled into town Saturday night, the Lady Vandals were ready for them.

Despite the unconscious shooting of Idaho State forward Nancy Imhoff, who canned the Lady Bengals first 16 points and was the only ISU player to convert a field goal in

Vandals charge on

NAU, UNR to be next victims

By MARK MILAM
Staff Writer

With a long and grueling schedule still ahead of them, the University of Idaho Vandals went into the month of December fired up about their prospects and ability to capture the Big Sky Conference title.

Coming off of two excellent wins at home, one against Washington State (Nov. 29) and the other against Gonzaga (Dec. 3), the Vandals found themselves back in the Kibbie Dome with a new round of stiff competition.

First on the list was the powerful Big Eight Conference team of Nebraska. The Cornhuskers came to town prepared to battle and that was exactly what they did, although it was the Vandals who came out ahead with a 83-68 victory. The Vandals held nothing against the Cornhuskers, shooting 60 percent from the field under the leadership of Raymond Brown, who hit a season high of 22 points.

Other key figures in the win were point guard Lorenzo Nash who held the highly touted Eric Johnson right at six points throughout the game. Also, Mauro Gomes hit a season high 15 points against Nebraska while nabbing four of six shots from the field, including three of four three-pointers.

Gomes took down seven rebounds, three steals, and three assists in the game despite the fact that he was still suffering from an ankle injury which occurred in the match-up against Gonzaga.

With the flames burning brighter in the Vandal camp they patiently waited for the next team to roll on in to the Dome. On Dec. 7 the Vandals graciously played host again to Whitman University.

Unfortunately for Whitman, they got caught in the path of what appeared to be a runaway Vandal vehicle, with outstanding performances like that of Riley Smith, who scored 19 points of the 83 that lifted Idaho past Whitman.

Two strong wins were tucked away as Idaho entered the Palouse Classic (Dec. 9-10) in Pullman. Dec. 9 put the Vandals against the Thunderbirds of Southern Utah State.

Idaho Southern Utah promptly handed a 70-65 loss to Southern Utah. Two factors ultimately lead to the defeat of the Thunderbirds.

One, Raymond Brown played a good game scoring 19 points against the defense while James Fitch added 11 boards against Southern Utah. Second, Southern Utah was missing 6'9" junior Roger McDonald who was ineligible because of transfer rules.

On Dec. 10, Idaho battled Portland. As had been the case in previous games, Idaho showed how strong the club actually was when they pulled their forces together.

Portland was given the talent of Mauro Gomes who pulled 16 down off of the bench, while Raymond Brown recorded 11 rebounds as in the night before. The Vandals recorded season best against Portland in steals

Idaho ends season on good note despite playoff loss

"You have to like what we've done," said former Vandal Head Coach Keith Gilbertson at the Big Sky Conference championship.

Gilbertson commented at the close of last semester about his grid warriors' impressive season trek towards a second straight BSC Championship and another berth to the playoffs.

"We were in a must-win situation for seven-straight weeks and won every game. The other thing that makes this championship so unique is we did it the hard way," Gilbertson said. "We lose our first conference game of the season, then we play every major conference game on the road just about. I just think it says something about about what we've got going here."

Gilbertson, who resigned Dec. 23 to accept an assistant coaching job under Don James at the University of Washington, left new Head Coach John L. Smith big shoes to fill.

In his three seasons as head coach of the Vandals, Gilbertson led the gridmen two consecutive Big Sky Championships with a 28-9 stat box.

Gilbertson has been part of every Vandal appearance in the NCAA I-AA playoffs in one capacity or another. In 1982 and 1985 Gilbertson served the team as offensive coordinator and then in 1986 and 1987 as head coach. The 1988 season was no exception. (As a Vandal coach, Gilbertson ranks 5-for-5 in playoff berths.)

Gilbertson led the team to a 11-2 season best which included a first-time visit to the semifinal rounds of the NCAA I-AA Playoffs.

Despite being ranked number one nationally for I-AA schools, being 1988 Big Sky Conference Champion and leading the nation in offense, the Vandals fell shy of a possible first NCAA I-AA national championship.

The Vandals with its nationally ranked offense met its match in the semis against a team that allowed only 9.7 points per game (the lowest average by any I-AA team this season) and 238.2 yards per game.

The injury-plagued Vandals realized the necessity of the Friesz factor and other key offensive players as they accepted their defeat on the Paladin turf at Furman University.

Both teams entered the season evenly matched but the absence of players like Devon Pearce, Bruce Harris, John Friesz, Jim Routsos and Greg Hale tipped the scales to the South Carolina gridmen.

Gilbertson accepts position, Smith returns to the Vandals

By CLAYTON HAILEY

"This is a dream come true opportunity for me. I've said it before, and I mean that," said New Head Football Coach John L. Smith.

The University of Idaho announced Keith Gilbertson's replacement Jan. 3.

"It's great to come back to the state of Idaho and I'm kind of emotional about it," Smith said. "I'm happy to be here and I will do everything I can do to continue the success at Idaho."

"It's great to come back to the State of Idaho and I'm kind of emotional about it."

— John L. Smith
Head Football Coach

Keith Gilbertson resigned as head coach shortly after the conclusion of his third successful season as Vandal head coach.

As 29th head football coach of the Vandals, Smith is no greenhorn when it comes to football, much less Vandal football.

The native Idahoan was a quarterback for Bonneville High School in his hometown of Idaho Falls before throwing the ball for Weber State College under Wildcat Head Coach Sark Arslanian.

Smith was twice named team captain of WSC's Big Sky Conference Scholar-Athletes in 1971-72 before graduating with a degree in physical education in 1971.

Smith began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Weber State until he was offered a position coaching linebackers and the defensive line for the University of Montana. Before leaving Montana for University of Nevada-Reno in 1976, Smith was promoted to defensive coordinator for a team that ranked number one in the Big Sky Conference for rush defense.

In his five seasons at UNR (1977-1982) as linebacker coach, assistant head coach and defensive coordinator, the Wolf Pack boasted 40-16-1 stat box with two I-AA playoff berths. In 1978, as an independent member of the NCAA Division I-AA, the Wolf Pack under present Head Coach Chris Ault were ranked number one nationally with 11-0 before losing in playoff semifinals.

In 1982 Smith continued employing his keen ability to develop outstanding defensive squads, but this time for Idaho under Head Coach Dennis Erickson.

Coaching a Wolf Pack defense that led the nation in total defense in 1980, Smith was a key ingredient to balance the Erickson Air Express.

Smith served the Vandals for four seasons as a linebacker and kicking coach, assistant head coach and defensive coordinator. The Vandals stacked a 32-15 stat box that included two I-AA playoff berths and a Big Sky Conference championship in 1985.

Furthermore, Smith can take credit for coaching such players as current Seattle Seahawk Sam Merriman, Big Sky Defensive Player of the Year Tom Hennessey and former NCAA record-holding kickers Brian Deccio and Tim McMonigle.

As Erickson's career took him to the University of Wyoming, Smith made a bid for the head coaching job of the Vandal grid. Finishing behind Keith Gilbertson, Smith

Hilbert replaces Bradetich for 1989 Volleyball season

By MIKE LEWIS
Sports Writer

The University of Idaho athletic department named Tom Hilbert as the new head volleyball coach Sunday night, after Hilbert accepted an offer made by the UI earlier in the week, Assistant Athletic Director Kathy Clark said Sunday.

Hilbert was one of three candidates under consideration by the university. The others were Jim Giacomazzi, an assistant volleyball coach at Washington State University, and Jim Huffman, the assistant volleyball coach at Colorado State University.

"I feel fortunate to be a head coach at the University of Idaho," said Hilbert, 29, in a phone interview Sunday night. "It's a class program. Idaho has got some great athletic teams and Gary Hunter (UI Athletic Director) seems to be committed to making all programs excellent."

"I think I can bring Idaho into the NCAA Tournament eventually. I plan to work with the kids we've got and recruit some kids in the Northwest to build a program capable of doing that," Hilbert said.

Hilbert graduated from Oklahoma in 1984 with a bachelor's degree in business administration. He then became assistant coach at OU. Hilbert was also a player and coach at the OU men's volleyball club during his years there.

Last season, the Sooners were ranked number 12 in the nation with a 23-8 record, and advanced to the NCAA Tournament for the second consecutive season, winding up fifth after losing to Illinois.

Hilbert said that he plans to be in Idaho by this weekend, after he leaves his Norman, Okla. home Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

The vacancy in the head coaching position, which athletic department officials said would be filled by early this week, was created Dec. 4, when Bradetich resigned, citing a need for a new direction for the Idaho program.

"I have benefited a great deal personally and professionally from my experiences at Idaho as an athlete and a coach," said Bradetich. "At this time, I see a change in coaching as a positive move. I am leaving the University of Idaho with the confidence that our returning athletes will continue to work hard to be successful in the classroom and on the volleyball court."

An anonymous source near the volleyball team said that Bradetich's resignation may have been partially influenced by pressure from the players themselves. The source said that a number of players said that they would not return to the Idaho program if Bradetich were to continue as head coach.

Bradetich posted a 70-98 record in her five seasons at Idaho and the Lady Vandals finished sixth in the Big Sky with an 11-16 overall record in 1988. Twice she led the team to the Mountain West Conference Championship Tournament, placing second in 1984 and winning the Mountain West Conference Coach of the Year award that same year.

The Vandals entered the 1988 season ranked first in I-AA total offense for the past five seasons with an average of 452 per game while the Paladins ranked first in scoring defense, allowing an average of 14 points per game in the past five years.

Furthermore, the two schools had similar seasons. Furman's only conference loss was to Marshall (23-3) in which they avenged during the playoffs (24-10). Idaho lost its only conference game to Montana (26-17) then turned around and spanked them (38-19) in the first round of the playoffs.

In addition to a national ranking, a conference championship and a berth to the national playoffs individual Vandals made left their marks on the season.

Three players were selected for the Associated Press Division I-AA All-American second team—quarterback John Friesz, tackle Greg Hale and center Steve Unger. Furthermore, Friesz was also named a first-team Kodak Coaches All-American this season.

Other players boasting impressive season-ending statistics include: Richard Carey, who Jim Medved finished his senior year with 170 career tackles, just five shy of a ranking on Idaho's top 20 career tackles list. the first half, Idaho was able to grab a 17-12 lead midway through the first half. The return of Sheri Lehmer, Idaho 6-2 senior center who missed the preseason with a broken hand and played just five minutes against BSU, was a key in the game as she racked up a team-high 13 points, including a 7-of-10 performance from the free-throw line.

Idaho State closed the gap and later tied the game at 42 with 7:40 left on an Imhoff 15-footer. A quick 7-0 run by the Lady Vandals gave them a 49-42 lead, which Idaho never relinquished en route to the 58-45 victory.

Imhoff finished with 31 points, hitting on 14-of-19 field goal attempts, and eight rebounds. Idaho's Sabrina Dial snared a game-high nine rebounds, and freshman guard Julie Balch scored her season-high 12 points to go with three rebounds.

"Our free throw shooting really helped us out," added Turner.

"We shot 37 percent from the floor, and considering that we typically shoot only 41 or 42 percent from the floor, we won the game because of the 73 percent (free throw shooting)."

Idaho hits the road next weekend as the Lady Vandals travel to take on Montana and Montana State in what Turner called the "toughest road trip of the year." In Missoula Friday, Idaho will face the Montana Lady Griz, who are 10-3 overall and own a 2-0 conference mark, before heading to Bozeman for a Saturday contest against the Lady Bobcats of Montana State. MSU sports an 8-5 overall record, along with a 2-0 Big Sky record.

"This will definitely be the toughest road trip of the year," said Turner. "Montana is a really tough team at home and they always get a good crowd, and Montana State, although I don't know much about them quite yet, will probably really be gunning for us."

then accepted another position under Erickson with the Cowboys.

After turning the Cowboys for the better, both Erickson and Smith returned to the Palouse at Washington State University.

Smith comes to the silver and gold with 19 seasons as an assistant coach including 13 seasons as assistant head coach. Smith has coached teams through five NCAA Division I-AA playoff games and one bowl game boasting a record of 99-63-3 for career stat box.

Since the days of the Erickson Air Express, the Vandals have been noted for their overwhelming passing offense. Head Coach Smith says that nothing will change.

"There's one thing we are definitely going to do...we're going to continue to throw the football," Smith said. "We're going to continue to do the things we've done for the last seven years and hopefully we're just going to improve on them."

However, Smith did say he will utilize his extensive background on the defensive side of the ball to the Vandal's advantage while continuing to do exactly what Erickson and Gilbertson have been doing offensively.

The Palouse will have a chance to view Coach Smith and the Vandal grid warriors next fall as they open the season with a scrimmage against the crimson and gray just eight miles away.

"It was kind of ironic, Smith said. "Dennis' first game at Idaho was against Washington State."

"And Dave Arnold, who is on the staff at Washington State, played Washington State in his first game as a head coach at Montana State. It's a game we're looking forward to. It's going to be like a spring scrimmage but only in the fall. It's kind of going to be our offense and defense put together. It will give our kids a chance to show what they can do against the so-called big time."

In the mean time, Smith said he will concentrate on assembling a staff and "hitting the road to pick up a few recruits."

Women split 2-2 over break

For those of you who didn't stick around over the winter break to catch the University of Idaho Lady Vandal basketball team in action, we offer a game-by-game recap of what happened while you were out. IDAHO 53, GONZAGA 51 Dec. 19, 1988

Gonzaga freshman Missy Smith missed two free throws with two seconds remaining to preserve UI's 53-51 victory over the Bulldogs.

Idaho had led 47-35 with five minutes left, but Gonzaga cut the score to 52-51 before Smith missed the two free throws.

Idaho's Christy Van Pelt, who entered the game with an 18.0 scoring average, had 20 points to lead the Lady Vandals. She hit 9-of-15 shots from the floor and added three steals and five assists.

Lori Elkins added 11 points for Idaho, with Sabrina Dial grabbing a game-high nine rebounds. Idaho, which led 25-23 at halftime, shot 47 percent from the field to Gonzaga's 42 percent.

Carla Curfman paced the Bulldogs with 15 points and six rebounds, while Smith added 11 points and Jennifer Mountain had 10. Gonzaga made just 4-of-11 free throws compared to Idaho's 9-of-19. IDAHO 65, TCU 67 Dec. 29, 1988

A furious University of Idaho comeback fell short as Texas Christian University defeated the Lady Vandals 67-65 at Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

Texas Christian took a 67-65 lead with 19 left on a lay-in by Janice Dzuik. Idaho attempted to tie the game, but a pass by Jeanne Doherty was stolen by the Lady Frogs' Michelle Henry with three seconds left.

TCU led 59-47 with 5:25 to play, but Idaho went on a 14-2 run to tie the score at 61 with 2:03 left. Doherty, who finished with a career-high 18 points, had six during the run. The game was tied twice more before Dzuik hit her game-winning shot.

Lori Elkins added 14 points for Idaho, and Kelly Moeller and Sabrina Dial led the Lady Vandals' inside attack with season highs of 12 and 10 points, respectively. Dial also had 13 rebounds as Idaho out-rebounded TCU 55-36, but had 23 turnovers to the Lady Frogs' 14.

IDAHO 54, NMS 56 Dec. 31, 1988

Loosing in the final seconds for the second straight game, the UI women's basketball team fell to New Mexico State University 56-54 in the Pan Am Center.

The Lady Vandals were behind 56-54 when they recovered a Roadrunner turnover with 26 seconds left. But New Mexico State's Vicki Evans capped a brilliant game by stealing an Idaho pass with four seconds to play to seal the win.

Christy Van Pelt led the Lady Vandals with 14 points and nine steals, coming just one from her own school record of 10 set last season against U.S. International. Van Pelt now has 206 steals in her career, just 24 behind the 230 school record of Robin Behrens.

No other Lady Vandal scored in double figures, with Lori Elkins adding eight points and five assists. Evans, a 6-1 senior, dominated the game with 24 points and 12 rebounds.

The Roadrunner took a 50-39 lead with 9:56 remaining in the game, but the Lady Vandals came back, pulling to within 54-53 with 2:03 left to cap a 14-4 run. Two free throws by Traci Reindle with 1:02 left provided the winning points for NMSU, after which Idaho's Sherry Peterson hit one of two free throws with 43 seconds to go to close the scoring.

IDAHO 79, PORTLAND 51 January 2, 1989

Christy Van Pelt scored a season-high 27 points to lead the University of Idaho Lady Vandals to an easy 79-51 victory over Portland in a non-conference women's basketball game Monday night in the Kibbie Dome.

Van Pelt, a senior from Bellevue, Wash., scored 19 of her points in the first half as the Lady Vandals opened a 41-21 lead at intermission. Van Pelt hit 12-of-16 shots from the floor and finished with seven rebounds, six assists and five steals.

The Vandals made 61 percent of their shots in the game to raise their record to 6-5. The Portland game was Idaho's last non-conference game before starting Big Sky Conference play Jan. 6 and 7 at home against Boise State University and Idaho State University, respectively. The Lady Pilots dropped 2-8.

"This was our best offensive production this season both inside and outside combined," Turner said. "We were patient and executed our fine offense tonight."

Jeanne Doherty added 14 points for Idaho, hitting 7-of-10 shots from the floor. Sabrina Deal and Jennifer Ballenger each added 10, with Ballenger hitting 5-of-5 shots from the field and Dial hitting 5-of-8.

Trailing 5-2, Idaho ran off a 17-2 spurt early in the game to open a 19-7 lead with 11:20 left. The Lady Vandals continued to roll and led at half-time by 20.

Idaho outscored Portland 17-6 to open the second half, and took a 58-27 lead with 14:11 to play. The team's biggest lead was 34 points at 67-33 with 10:27 left.

Gymnastics club expands

PEG offers the 'best of both worlds' with no age limit

By M.L. GARLAND
Associate Editor

Moscow's Palouse Empire Gymnastics, founded by University of Idaho students, offers not only "the best of both worlds," but is the only gym in the area with no restrictive age limits. "We had siblings and adults interested in classes so we accommodated them and eliminated our original age barriers," said owner and manager Jennifer Karvinen. "The demand from the public for our services has led to a tripling of enrollment since our opening."

The instructors have more than 40 years of combined experience and are all professional members of the U.S. Gymnastics Federation. Karvinen and Ostboe are attending the University of Idaho majoring in Commercial Recreation and Electrical Engineering, respectively. Martin graduated from the University of South Dakota with a bachelor's in Health, P.E., Recreation and Dance.

demonstrations at Vandal and WSU basketball games, the Homecoming Parade and at Genesee, Moscow and Pullman High School half-times.

"The performances are important and have been real positive for the kids," Martin said.

Information on fees and class schedules are available by contacting the gym. Discounts are offered for children of university students, those organizing car pools and for families with more than one student enrolled.

PEG Owner and Coach

PEG opened in October at 1008 S. Jefferson, transforming the former Les Schwab Tire Center into a gymnasium. Owners and managers Karvinen, Kim Martin and Robbe Ostboe joined together to offer students "the best of both worlds" in competitive and non-competitive programs.

"Our goal is to be seen as the most safety-conscious gymnasium in Moscow," Martin said. "Gymnastics is a high risk sport, but the danger can be avoided while still being challenging."

(22), forced turnovers (26) and fewest points allowed (38). With a nice boost the Vandals took their 65-38 win and headed on.

The Vandals then faced Willamette (Dec. 19) after an eight-day break. By holding Willamette to just 35 percent from the field, Idaho was able to hold on to a 66-52 win. Key performances were given by James Fitch who hit 17 points, followed by Raymond Brown who added 16 points.

"We didn't play as hard as we've been playing," said Head Coach Kermit Davis. "Although we limited them to 52 points, we have to improve our interior defense. We had eight days off and went through final exams, so we lost some of our conditioning. That takes account for a little bit of it."

After sliding by, the next task was to get back the Vandal momentum, as Kermit Davis and his club faced Eastern Oregon State at home.

Not only did the Idaho team rebound but they served up a nice defeat for their opponents. In the 99-53 win the Vandals nabbed a few season records with the most points this season, the most first half points (51), field goals (36), and free throws (25). The Vandals had a season-high 56 rebounds against Eastern Oregon.

Feeling positive about the ground regained and upcoming road trip Head Coach Kermit Davis said, "Going on the road comes at a good time. It will be interesting to see how our team adapts on the road and how hard we play in a difficult situation."

So off went the Vandal team to Cedar City, Utah to face the Thunderbirds of Southern Utah State for their second go around.

This time the Thunderbirds were ready for the Vandals and waiting in the wings was junior Roger McDonald who became eligible Dec. 15. The Thunderbirds ran step-for-step with the Vandals, eventually lurching ahead in the final seconds and giving Utah a 82-81 win over Idaho.

Utah was able to capitalize on a Raymond Brown foul as both Brown and Roger McDonald scrambled to rebound a missed eight-footer shot by Ricardo Boyd. McDonald hit a free throw with three seconds left to hand Idaho a surprise upset.

"Ricardo didn't have a great shot, and it didn't go down for him. The official made a good call, Raymond was over (McDonald's) back," Davis said. "The worst you should do in that situation is go into overtime. But Raymond made a foolish foul and they hit the free throw in the end."

With a pre-conference record of 10-2, the Vandals headed in to Big Sky Conference play, but not as fast and furious as had been expected but still ready to go against the University of Montana.

It was a tough game for both clubs, more so for the Vandals who had noticeably grown accustomed to a home-court advantage. In the end though it proved to be Montana's court and win, especially Wayne Tinkle's. Tinkle scored seven straight points in overtime to lift the Grizzlies to a 62-54 conference opening victory.

"I thought Montana played well," Davis said. "They did the things down the stretch that a good team has to do. I want to give all the credit to Montana. They're tough to beat over here."

The Vandals played Montana State Jan. 7 and are set to host Northern Arizona. Northern Arizona finds itself in the same coaching situation as Idaho, Arizona coach Pat Rafferty is in his first year at NAU.

Idaho will have one significant advantage over Northern Arizona while the Lumberjacks find themselves with four returning lettermen, the Vandals have a strong set of eight. That should, if playing up to par, keep the Lumberjacks quite busy in the Dome.

JUST SNEAKING BY. Forward Riley Smith (#30) drives for the basket against an Eastern Oregon defender. Idaho beat Eastern Oregon 99-53 Dec. 21. The Vandals succeeded in breaking a few season records. (LOREN ORR PHOTO)

Clubs offers students a new alternative

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
Entertainment Editor

Where do you go when you're not old enough to get into a bar, but you want to get out and dance?

The picture isn't as hopeless as some might think. Recently area clubs have been making an effort to include students who haven't turned 21 in on the fun.

"In the past the older crowd could dance, but they (students under the age of 21) couldn't because you can only dance in a bar," said Janice Ostraat, owner of Rumors.

Rumors is one of two no-alcohol dance clubs to open in Pullman recently. Panic City is the other.

For the most part, both clubs are open to anyone 18 or older. During college breaks, however, they usually open up for high school students.

"Response has been overwhelming," said Todd Robbins, co-owner of Panic City. "People love what we're doing."

Both clubs serve soft-drinks and other non-alcoholic beverages. The intent isn't necessarily to stop minors from drinking, rather to give them an alternative.

"We're hoping that it will cut down on some of the loitering, and that in itself should help cut drinking (by those who are underage)," Ostraat said.

"We're giving them something to do on a weekend," Robbins said. "It might slow (underage drinking) down, but it won't stop it."

Perhaps the greatest advantage to this new trend in clubs on the Palouse is that university students of all ages can mingle.

"Response has been overwhelming. People love what we're doing."

— Todd Robbins
co-owner, Panic City

"It promotes a better interaction between different age groups," said James Frazier, 19.

Ratz, in Moscow, provides the same type of opportunity for the underaged student. Upon entering the bar, everyone is asked for identification. Those who are under the legal drinking age have their hands stamped. Those old enough to drink are given a bracelet which shows the bartenders and bouncers that they are allowed to drink.

Earlier last semester former ASUI president Brad Cuddy began looking into the possibility of starting a no-alcohol club in Moscow to help provide a place for students who are underage to socialize.

ASUI President Tina Kagi said she will probably form an ad hoc committee to look into the possibility.

"It's a big expense," Kagi said. She added that if the community were to provide such a service, that the ASUI wouldn't have to.

'Wheel' Pat find fortune in late-night arena?

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
Entertainment Editor

And heeeeeeeeeere's C-O-M-P-E-T-I-T-I-O-N!

Look out Johnny, here comes Pat!

Once again, someone is trying to upset the King of late night entertainment. Monday night on CBS Pat Sajak, of Wheel of Fortune fame, began his attempt to upset NBC's late night monopolizer The Tonight Show.

The Pat Sajak Show isn't afraid of the competition. "We don't think about it," says Bob Gurton, a spokesman at The Pat Sajak Show office in Los Angeles. "The challenge is there," he said. "We'll let the audience decide. I think there's room for more than one talk show."

Jeff Sayre, in charge of promotions for Lewiston's NBC's affiliate, KLEW, seems a little more skeptical.

"Nobody else has ever made it," he said, referring to the many tries by every one from Merv Griffin to Alan Thicke to share in the late-night market.

"He's up against tough competition," Sayre said.

Not only does Sajak's 90-minute show run up against The Tonight Show, it also bites into the first 30 minutes of Late Night with David Letterman.

The Pat Sajak Show is fairly traditional in its setup.

"The form has been around for 30 years. It works," Sajak said in an interview with USA Today. "Yes, I will sit behind a desk. That's because I'm not going to do interviews standing up."

The Pat Sajak Show is the first talk show CBS has put up against Carson since Merv Griffin's show was cancelled in 1972.

Gurton seems to think that Sajak's personality will be a key element in pulling people away from The Tonight Show.

"His personality is low key," he said. "That tends to ride well with people."

In case you missed last night's premiere, you may want to try and catch tonight's show. Guests booked for tonight include Leslie Nielson, Indianapolis Colt's football player Eric Dickerson, Stephanie Kramer, from Hunter and, last but most certainly not least, the world champion duck caller, Johnny Mahfouz! Yes! That's the champion duck caller in all of the world.

And what about Vanna? Pat Sajak without Vanna is like the The Wheel of Fortune without a Bankrupt space. Well, rest assured, Vanna White has been booked onto the show for Jan. 23.

"He's going to kiss Vanna some time. He's been waiting years to do that." That according to Sayre. Maybe it's just a vicious rumor, but it may be worth tuning in to find out.

Mardi Gras pushes for MTV participation

More than 10,000 signatures, Mardi Gras video forwarded to MTV's New York offices

BLACK AND WHITE AFFAIR. Pat Silver of Pullman designed this year's Mardi Gras poster. The design will be used in Mardi Gras promotions as well as on exclusive Mardi Gras t-shirts, which will entitle the wearer to discounts at participating merchants.

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
Entertainment Editor

Big plans are in the making for this year's Mardi Gras celebration.

This year's celebration has been expanded to include Pullman and will last two nights, Feb. 17-18 and if things work out, MTV will be on hand to record the event.

More than 10,000 signatures, collected last semester, were sent to MTV in Los Angeles along with a Mardi Gras video.

According to Charlotte Buchanan, one of the main coordinators of Mardi Gras, MTV officials in Los Angeles liked what they saw enough to forward the request on to their New York office.

"We're happy to make it through the first cut," Buchanan said. "We did more than just say 'Gosh! We'd really like you to come!'"

Buchanan, along with Ken Fate, Matt Kitterman and Mike Stueve, put together a 3:20 video for MTV.

"We put together a pretty fun video," Buchanan said.

Mardi Gras officials should receive an answer from MTV sometime in the next two weeks.

In addition to the hopeful MTV participation, Buchanan is expecting 25 bands to play Mardi Gras. Headlining the Feb. 18 ball at the SUB in Moscow will be The Untouchables.

The Untouchables, out of Los Angeles, will be releasing a new album this week, Buchanan said.

Opening for The Untouchables will be The Posies, from Seattle. The Posies played last November at Washington State University. A third band, to be announced later, will play in the Silver and Gold room of the SUB.

Three bands will be playing at the CUB in Pullman Feb. 17, including Je Ka Jo from Seattle; Bochiniche, a mainly salsa band; and Major Handy.

Other bands will play during both nights of Mardi Gras in participating bars.

As with in the past, shuttle buses will run from the ball to the participating bars. This year Buchanan expects that 8,000 dollars will be spent on the buses connecting Pullman and Moscow on both nights. Students Against Drunk Driving will provide security on the buses.

Also planned for this year is a Mardi Gras package which includes a round-trip bus trip from Seattle, two nights lodging and a Mardi Gras ticket for $99. Similar deals for Boise, Spokane and Lewiston may also be set up, according to Buchanan. More information can be obtained from One More Time, downtown Moscow.

"It's a good time to encourage parents to come up," Buchanan said.

The official poster for this year's Mardi Gras celebration has recently been completed. The poster was designed by Pat Siler of Pullman.

"It's the absolute best poster we've ever had," Buchanan said.

According to Buchanan, the design from the poster will be printed on t-shirts. By wearing the t-shirt, one can receive discounts at participating businesses.

Officials have yet to announce the grand marshal for the parade, but according to Buchanan, Phyllis Diller has officially declined. Larry Bud Melman and Rich Hall have been asked and officials are trying to tracking down John Candy.

"John Candy went to Washington State University," Buchanan said.

Soviet duo scheduled to play jazz festival

By DONNA PRISBREY
Staff Writer

Jazz for Two, one of the Soviet Union's top jazz duos, will be featured in the 22nd annual Lionel Hampton/Chevron Jazz Festival Feb. 23-25.

In their North American debut, Jazz for Two will play at all three concert nights with their contemporary, western style of mainstream jazz. The duo features the jazz piano of Leonid Vintskevich and the tenor sax of Lembit Saarsalu.

"They sent a tape to us by way of the president of the Soviet Musical Society and it just knocked everybody down," said festival Director Lynn Skinner. "They've really done their homework. When they play a piece you know they've listened to all the great musicians."

In a letter to Skinner from Russian musicologist Alexey Batashev the two are described as being "top Soviet Jazz Performers."

In the 1988 Soviet Jazz Critics' Poll, Saarsalu was rated number one tenor sax and Vintskevitch took silver as jazz piano.

"They successfully performed at numerous national and international jazz festivals including the biggest, 'North Sea,' in the Hague, Holland, the summit of the world's greatest," Batashev wrote.

The duo's exclusive appearance in the United States is the result of several years' behind-the-scenes work at the University of Idaho's Lionel Hampton School of Music.

"We've known for two years that someone would come," Skinner said.

After making contacts with Soviet officials during the 1987 Borah Symposium, correspondence and telegrams went back and forth between the countries for the next two years. A jazz fan and former member of the Moscow (USSR) Jazz Society, Soviet journalist Vladimir Zvyagin, covered the 1987 Borah Symposium. He hand-delivered the invitations to Moscow, USSR.

Zvyagin covers the United Nations for Soviet Radio and Television and was introduced to the Hampton Jazz festival officials during his visit to the UI campus.

"We also had quite a bit of help from the Russian Soviet Relations office," Skinner said.

"While they're here, I hope they can spend some time out on our campus," Skinner said. "Let them see what university life is like."

Skinner said he wants to bring the duo into music classes and allow students to question the two about their music careers and life in the Soviet Union.

"This is a great opportunity," Skinner said.

Saarsalu, from Tallinn, Estonia, is well known for his experiments with the Estonian Folklore, according to Batashev.

Vintskevitch, from Kursk, Russia, reveals his Russian roots in music. The two play Russian-Estonian Dialogues, along with their jazz standards, ballads and originals.

"One may ask how they rehearse while living in different cities 500 miles apart," wrote Batashev.

"They do not rehearse.

"They play.

"They play for you."

Founded in 1984, MOD has developed a diverse array of cover and original songs. Justice features Thomas J. Keithly II on guitar and vocals, Todd Dunnigan on keyboards and vocals, Pete Weaver on drums and Stoutenburg on bass.

The band's plans include a vinyl recording in Los Angeles "for high production quality to sell and as a promo," Stoutenburg said. Despite recording on their own, the band provided a polished and professional finishing of Justice.

Comedian Dean Oleson, a 1988 Seattle Laugh-off finalist, will be the "master of ceremonies" for the registration dance.

ASUI Productions will host "The Second City Comedy Troupe" on Feb. 4 at the Administration Auditorium at 8 p.m. Comedy greats such as John Belushi started their careers in this troupe.

The movie series collaboration between the productions committee and Howard Hughes Appliance & TV returns this semester. For $1 the audience can view as many as three movies in the Borah Theater. Movies start at 5 p.m. and follow a theme.

"Hero Night" premieres Thursday with Top Gun at 5 p.m., The Right Stuff at 7 p.m. and Stripes at 9 p.m. Other themes for the season include:

- "Futurism and Science Fiction Night," Jan. 19
- "Mystery and Comedy Night," Jan. 26
- "Sex and Romance Night," Feb. 2
- "Zany Comedy Night," Feb. 16
- "Future War and Technology Night," March 2

Starting off the lecture season in April will be a speaker from "Earth First," a radical environmental group. The group stages protests and conducts "environmental guerilla warfare," said James Rennie, ASUI Program coordinator.

Cabaret, Orphans highlight season

Preparation begins for upcoming Hartung, Collette Theater productions

By M.L. GARLAND
Associate Editor

Both the Hartung and Collette Theaters have begun preparation for the end of the 1988-89 theatrical season with thought-provoking pieces.

To conclude the season, the Hartung Theater will present "Cabaret," a blockbuster musical by Joe Masteroff depicting the 1930s Nazis invasion of party-town Berlin, April 25-30. Auditions will be held tonight 7 p.m.—10 p.m. and tomorrow at 3 p.m.—5 p.m. and 7 p.m.—10 p.m. at the Hartung stage.

Director Forrest Sears stresses that parts are available for actors, singers and dancers in the community and campus. Interested individuals need to prepare one song for auditions. Scripts are available for check-out at the U-Hut office.

"Cabaret" is a "wonderful entertainment show with an underlying serious message," Sears said. "We are taking a contemporary look at racism and deal with it on several levels."

A possible collaboration between the theater and communication departments may result in using media slides and film projections to illustrate the theme.

"We are using theater to make a comment on our world," said Fred Chapman, acting Theater Arts chairman. "It is very Brechtian (surrealistic and detached)."

Theater-goers have three productions to choose from for the student-produced Collette Theater.

"Orphans," by Lyle Kessler, begins the spring semester March 2-5. The play, directed by graduate student Thomas Armitage, is a contemporary thriller.

"It is excitingly theatrical, but terrifying," Chapman said. "It will set people on their ears."

Auditions will be held tonight at 6:30 p.m. and tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Hartung lobby. Auditioners should prepare monologues for tonight, as tomorrow will be devoted to callbacks.

A double bill of "Doctor Auntie" by Alice Brown and "The Stonewater Rapture" by Doug Wright close the season April 13-16.

"Rapture" explores the truths of religion as a force to conform and control the pleasures and pains of adolescence in Bible-Belt America. Its counterpart, "Doctor Auntie" is filled with romance, intrigue and betrayal.

Tickets for the Hartung and Collette productions are available in advance at Ticket Express in the SUB or may be purchased at the door. Single ticket prices for general admission at the Hartung are $6 and $7, and $3 for the Collette.

Convocation to highlight dept

A weekly convocation to unite the Theater Arts department and explore the world of theater will premier this semester.

"The convocation is designed as a format for special events and an opportunity for communication between students and faculty," said Dr. Fred Chapman, acting Theater Arts chairman.

Scheduled events/topics for the weekly meetings include: audition pieces, "Centering and Healing for the Actor," a design presentation of "Cabaret," puppetry and "Current Theater in England."

Although attendance is required for majors, anyone who is interested in the programs is welcome to attend, Chapman said. The Collette Theater will host the convocations every Friday at 12:30 p.m.

Young Guns, Kansas among newest videos

What? No homework, yet? Free time to watch television, except there's nothing good on? Try out these new video releases.

Young Guns

Starring Emilio Estevez, Charlie Sheen, Kiefer Sutherland, Lou Diamond Phillips and Jack Palance.

The story of Billy the Kid (played by Estevez) and his gang of desperados, as told with fresh historical research into the famous gun slinger's life.

The Great Outdoors

Starring John Candy and Dan Aykroyd.

Candy and Aykroyd play brothers-in-law who get together and rent a summer cabin on blissful lake Potowotominimac. Trouble is inevitable between the two mismatched families.

Freeway maniac

Theater auditions scheduled

Auditions for "Cabaret," "Orphans" and the University Dance Theater will be held this week.

"Cabaret"'s auditions will be held on the Hartung Theater stage, Jan. 9-10, at 7 p.m. and Jan. 11 at 3 p.m. "Cabaret" will run from April 25-30. "Orphans" auditions in the Hartung lobby Jan. 10 at 6:30 p.m. with call backs at 7 p.m. Jan. 11. "Orphans" is set for production March 2-5 in the Collette Theater.

Those wishing to audition for University Dance Theater, Jan. 12 at 12:30 p.m., in PEB 110, must enroll in Dance 105, section 13 for one credit P/F. The University Dance Theater will produce its show March 3-5.

WSU exhibits sculptures

Compton Union Gallery at Washington State University announces its spring exhibition schedule. The gallery opened Monday with an exhibit of sculpture by C. Rod Bacon. The exhibit, "Concept — Construction," may be viewed 10 a.m.—3 p.m., Monday through Friday until Jan. 20.

Bacon, who is stage manager at the Performing Arts Coliseum at WSU, says that, like other artists, his personality and experiences are reflected in his work. He said he hopes that the exhibit will evoke in the viewer a memory of a moment in time, an emotion or place, and that the viewer will see his art as symbolic of common experiences.

Hornsby to play Opera House

Bruce Hornsby and the Range will be featured live and concert at the Spokane Opera House at 8 p.m. Jan. 25.

Tickets for the concert are available at Cavanaugh's Landing in Moscow and at all G&B Select-a-Seat for $18.50.
