Marriott answers Wallace snack bar complaints

New fast food outlet considered

By VIVIANE GILBERT
Staff Writer

Confusion and delays caused by changes made in Wallace Cafeteria snack bar operations will only be temporary, says

Lynn Morrison, the general manager of Marriott's University Dining Service.

"We're still in the process of making changes," she said. "And I cannot make any changes until I get some data."

Morrison said she is researching the products sold at snack bar. Once gathered, this information will help the corporation decide what other products may be offered.

"I feel it is my job to come up with alternatives," she said.

Possible alternatives may include a convenience store and fast food outlet in the Wallace Complex. However, Morrison said plans are still tentative, and that it is too soon to anticipate when the changes will take place.

Meanwhile, students say they are frustrated with the confusion and inconvenience the changes have caused. The "Napkin Notes" bulletin board in the cafeteria is jammed with student complaints.

Morrison said she was trying to be responsive to concerns and that she needs students to be patient and receptive to changes.

"We're all here for the same reason," she said. "We all want the best possible University Dining Service — me because it is my job, and the students because they're putting the money into it."

Music school wants the ASUI to pay $7,320 Boise travel tab

By BETH PETTIBON
Staff Writer

School of Music officials want more than $7,000 of student government funds to send six UI music groups to Boise.

Robert Miller, Director of the Lionel Hampton School of Music, asked ASUI senators Wednesday to approve $7,320 to pay for the room, board, and transportation of 95 music students. The students would perform during the Northwestern Conference of Music Educators at Boise State University, he said.

"It's an opportunity for our groups to perform for the most critical audience there is," Miller said.

Sen. Mike Gotch later said he felt it was inappropriate for Miller to come to the meeting asking for money.

"Once the senate starts buying things for the university, everyone starts coming to us for money," Gotch said.

Sen. Craig McCurry said that if the senate decides to pay the full amount, it would use up nearly one-fifth of the student government's emergency funds.

"It puts us in a rough spot when Dr. Miller says we'll have to fund him or else they can't go," McCurry said. "We don't think it's bad, but it's an activities program, not an academic program."

In other senate news, plans for the new UI Bookstore were presented.

The new building, which will be located on Deakin Street near its present location, is scheduled to begin construction Feb. 27 and open in August 1989.

The program will cost more than $1 million. The project will cover 15,000 square feet, up from 10,000 in the present building.

"It's an opportunity for our groups to perform for the most critical audience there is."

— Robert Miller
School of Music

There will only be one floor, which will make the building more efficient.

Metered parking is proposed for the lot directly north of the new site, which will be run by the city of Moscow.

ASUI President Tina Kagi said her plans concerning the off-campus student registry are underway and that this will be a good way for students not living on campus to receive senate meeting minutes, announcements and other events.

"Who knows if this will be successful or not," Kagi said. "But it's a new angle, something different."

Senators said they will discuss these issues, including the music provision, with their living groups for student input.

UI women learn self defense

By CHRISTY KRETSCHMER
Staff Writer

Any overly aggressive male may be a potential date rapist, a black belt in karate told a women's residence hall Wednesday night.

Jeff Soltez, a UI graduate with a second degree black belt in Kokondo karate lectured at Houston Hall to demonstrate self-defense techniques and tell residents about date rape.

Out of 7,000 women interviewed about rape, 35 out of 48 had been sexually assaulted. Ninety percent of these women knew the assailant, constituting a "date rape" situation.

About 30 of 78 residents of Houston Hall attended the two-hour lecture. Houston Hall covered the $2-per-person expense for its members.

Hall members were taught basic maneuvers to avoid date rape situations.

Tutoring overspends fall budget, wants more money for spring

By JULIE YOUNG
Staff Writer

For the third year in a row, the university's tutoring program has exhausted more than half its budget halfway through the academic year.

Each semester, about $1 of the $524 fulltime student fee goes to help fund the Tutoring and Academic Assistance Center.

Formerly the Learning Resource Center, the TAAC offers students one hour a week of tutoring in subjects such as math, English, chemistry, physics and other subjects. The service is open to all students and operates on a drop-in basis.

However, TAAC is expected to deplete its current budget by March.

TAAC Director Judy Wallins approached the ASUI Senate this fall, asking for help if the funding should fall short again this year. It has, and the Senate is deliberating on the $2,500 request.

If the TAAC gets the money from the ASUI, the administration will match that figure. The ASUI and administration share all TAAC expenses equally.

The number of students utilizing the TAAC used to resemble a bell-shaped curve, with the numbers increasing at midterms and decreasing at the end of the semester. Wallins said this made it possible for the TAAC to operate within its budget.

However, this is no longer the case. Wallins said that after the TAAC moved to the more centralized location five years ago, students stopped dropping out of the program at semester's end.

"We're just trying to see that that shortfall doesn't happen again," Wallins said.

Wallins said that if the ASUI doesn't grant the request, the TAAC may have to limit the number of students it serves.

"I wish it didn't have to work this way," said Senate Finance Chairperson Mike Gotch. "It's not

INEL loans UI $130,000 microscope

Scanner magnifies up to 20,000 times

The College of Mines and Earth Resources has been given the use of a $130,000 scanning electron microscope that can magnify images as much as 20,000 times.

The Idaho National Engineering Laboratory has loaned the SEM to the college on a permanent basis. The microscope will provide a broad range of benefits to the university community.

The INEL and the College of Mines and Earth Resources work closely on research, said Charles Knowles, a geochemist and supervisory geologist at the Idaho Geologic Survey. The partnership made it possible for INEL to loan the SEM to the school this past fall.

The SEM will also benefit other colleges within the university because students and faculty are able to use it.

Knowles recently gave a short course on its use.

He said that a scanning electron microscope is vastly different from a standard microscope. When using a standard microscope, a scientist prepares a slide with a thin specimen.

Light shines through the specimen, and magnifying lenses enable the scientist to see details clearly. It is a two-dimensional view, and samples under scrutiny aren't seen as spherical or cubical, but flat. Magnification is usually limited to 500 times, and even the best light microscopes can only magnify about 1,000 times.

The SEM, on the other hand,

can magnify up to 20,000 times, and provides amazing depth of focus. Spherical features actually appear as such, and if two photos from a SEM are combined, the effect would be three-dimensional.

An SEM doesn't look like the microscope many students have used in biology lab, with two eye pieces and a stage for the slide.

The College's immediate plans for the instrument involve research and support services for other colleges. Knowles said that within the College of Mines and Earth Resources and in association with INEL, there are different ongoing research projects with the SEM.

"Being assertive and having the right attitude is sometimes all you need to avoid a potentially violent situation," Soltez said.

Soltez also explained techniques that women can use to ward off an aggressor, such as "spinning out" and "the poke." These moves focused on the weak spots of the human body such as joints and other pain-sensitive areas. Residents practiced techniques on partners.

Soltez described the common aggressor to the audience, saying that any overly aggressive male can be a suspect.

Houston Hall resident advisers, Becky Arte and Tracy Morgan, organized the event.

Arte said she wants every woman on campus to know defense techniques.

Morgan said she knew of several people who had been assaulted.

Houston Hall resident Melissa Gallagher said she attended the lecture as a preventive measure. She said that she saw no reason why she should have to be afraid of walking home at night.

An off-campus senior, Joan Pike, said she paid to attend because Moscow is "not as safe as people would like to believe."

Intercollegiate legislature hosts lawmakers' luncheon

Andrus acknowledges student group's efforts

By ANGELA CURTIS
Managing Editor

The student group which took 35 legislators to lunch Monday will hold a recruiting drive next week.

The group, the Idaho State Intercollegiate Legislature, is a non-partisan mock legislature comprised of college students from the University of Idaho, Lewis Clark State College, Northwest Nazarene College, Boise State University and the College of Idaho.

At the luncheon, ISIL presented its Journal of Acts and Resolutions to the state legislators for their consideration. Speaker of the House Tom Boyd, R-Genesee, accepted the journal on behalf of the State of Idaho, said ISIL Governor Michael Kerner.

ISIL debated the acts and resolutions included in the journal in the ISIL fall session at the Statehouse.

Twenty-four ISIL delegates attended the first-of-its-kind luncheon.

Kerner said that ISIL had expected about five legislators to accept invitations to luncheon and that the turnout was overwhelming. Lawmakers' reactions to the group were positive, he said.

"You never get a second chance to make a first impression," Kerner said. "If we didn't do well, we'd have a big hole to dig ourselves out of."

Gov. Cecil Andrus' representative Karma Metzler read a statement from Andrus lauding ISIL for its efforts.

"I am happy to see the young people of our state participating so actively in the legislative process," Andrus wrote. "I have confidence that you and your organization will take Idaho into a great second century."

Response from Boyd was also positive, Kerner said.

"Boyd told the other legislators, 'I have a feeling you'll be hearing a lot more from these people,'" Kerner said.

ISIL's spring session will be April 20 at the College of Idaho in Caldwell. Members will be trained in leadership and bill writing.

ISIL will recruit new members next week with a meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Pend Oreille Room.

Costs are up as Financial Aid Form priority deadline arrives

By DAVID KELLY
Staff Writer

Students will pay more this year to file federal Financial Aid Forms, and deadlines for mailing the applications are fast approaching.

Those seeking financial aid need to complete the FAF form and the 1989-90 Scholarship and Financial Aid Application and turn it in as soon as possible, said Dan Davenport, university director of Financial Aid.

Although the deadline for applications isn't until March 10, it takes four to six weeks for the FAF form to be processed and sent back to the university, he said.

The results of the FAF must be back by that March 10 deadline and returned to the Financial Aid Office to receive full consideration for grants and scholarships, Davenport said.

"It is very important for students to fill out the forms and get them sent off this week or early next week so they can be returned on time," Davenport said. "If they are returned to us after March 10, students may not have their checks at registration next year."

The cost of filing a FAF form for next year has risen from $7.50 to $8.25 and must be included with the FAF application.

Once the results are returned to the Financial Aid office, more information may be requested of the student. All such information should be compiled and returned to Financial Aid officials as soon as possible so that there is sufficient time to process funds before fall registration.

The Financial Aid Office offers such services to students as searching for possible scholarships, tax aid and short term loans.

With new tax laws, some scholarships are considered taxable income for students. The Financial Aid office has compiled a list of taxable scholarships and tables to compute the amount taxable.

"If the student has any questions about the tax change, we are glad to assist them however we can," Davenport said.

Davenport said that students should seek professional advice from a tax consultant or the IRS concerning specific tax regulations.

Short term loans at a 7 percent interest rate are available to students and they can usually be processed within 48 hours. These loans must be repaid within 90 days.

With only one application, the Financial Aid office will search all funds for which students may be eligible.

Not all scholarships are based on GPA or financial income. Some may be based on former high school, activities, race and religion.

"We suggest that everyone file for financial aid," Davenport said. "There may be funds available to students that they never would have thought to look for."

Coach should have taught morals, too

It was definitely the year of the Vandals. If the impressive field performances didn't keep us in the headlines then the off-field performances did.

Never in the history of Vandal football has a season paralleled the feats performed by the 1988 grid warriors.

Like an omnivorous machine, the Idaho offense marched the length of the field game after game to kidnap yet another Big Sky Conference Championship and an automatic NCAA I-AA playoff berth.

Ranked number one offensively, the Vandals moved into the national playoffs representing the University of Idaho — a small, yet proud state institution known nationally for its thriving engineering school, Lionel Hampton/Chevron Jazz Festival, and varsity football team to name a few.

So, why reminisce about the victories of yesterday that put the University of Idaho in the limelight once again? The football season is over!

In all the meritorious headlines of the successful field performance, there was still a grim side to Gilbertson's gridmen. It was the off-field performances.

Coach Gilbertson was given credit for the Big Sky's best-record ever—the highest winning percentage of any coach in the history of BSC.

What about the off-field performance? Should Gilbertson be given credit for that too?

On Feb. 5, 1988 the headlines read: "Gilbertson violates NCAA rules." One of Gilbertson's new recruits was booked on $300 bail after assaulting a Moscow nightclub bouncer.

It was Gilbertson who paid the bail fee, and in the course, violated the NCAA rule which prohibits coaches from giving prospective athletic recruits money or gifts which might entice them to register at their school.

Said former Athletic Director Bill Belknap, "Coach Gilbertson knew what he was doing and he made a choice."

On Sept. 2, 1988 the headlines read: "Two Vandals arrested." It was bad enough for Vandal players to be arrested and tossed in the Whitman County penn without their head coach attempting to pass off the incident as a college prank.

"It's an unfortunate incident that guys that old would continue to pull college pranks. As usually the case, one or two people can make a group of 100 or more good ones look bad, which is the case here," Gilbertson said.

The headlines read Dec. 8, "Two players fail drug test" and Dec. 15, "Suspended players' fate rides with NCAA."

You have got to be kidding me!

We finally make it to the second round of the NCAA I-AA playoffs and two out of 12 players were flagged for 'roids?

How is it that our Palouse counterparts can have 36 players tested all negative while at the Aloha Bowl but the UI can't make 12?

Are we such a big-time school now that we can expect headlines commending our field performance alongside those chastising players' off-field actions which at the same time hold Head Coach Gilbertson accountable?

I'm sure the University of Oklahoma, Southern Methodist University and University of Houston (to name a few) would like some company.

Well, why am I bringing this up now? The season has been over for nearly a month and Coach Gilbertson has departed.

The season may be over, but the glamour and gloom will continue to linger.

If head coaches should be held accountable for their players actions on and off the field we can only hope that the new era of coaching under Head Coach John L. Smith will not jeopardize the good name of the university when the Vandals take another playoff berth.

After all, we are the university that meets the future with tradition. We should fear for our future if the blunders of 1988 become a part of our tradition.

— Clayton Hailey

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Readers' rights are ignored

Editor:

Concerning our Readers' Bill of Rights as mentioned in the Argonaut, Jan. 10...

Right One — We will actively search out issues concerning the UI community without being afraid to ask "probing questions."

Although an Argonaut photographer and reporter were supposedly present at the Whitman/Forney Hall Polar Bear Swim/Run (an unprecedented campus event which tied with Delta Tau Delta for the largest living group contribution this year to the Found Money Fund), no "probing questions" were asked. As a matter of fact, no questions were asked at all.

Right Two — We won't wait until our competition downtown prints it first before we find out what is going on. Our job is to "scoop" them, not quote them.

An article about UI students on the UI campus should have been an easy "scoop" for the UI newspaper. The professional competition, the Idahonian, had an article and picture. The Argonaut deemed neither necessary.

Right Three — Accuracy is the name of the game. Everyone on this staff will endeavor to get the facts right.

During the event, a member of the Argonaut staff was overheard to have said, "Don't worry about their names just get the picture." Apparently no one worried about the picture either.

Right Four — Reporters will present the facts, not their opinions.

In this case, even a reporter's opinion would have been appreciated.

Right Five — The Argonaut staff refuses to be held accountable for our actions and decisions. Let us know if we

Bush, spare us another four years

Dear George:

Now that you've made it into the Oval Office, I've got a few questions to ask. You've said that you'd follow Ronald Reagan with your eyes closed, meaning you'd follow him blindly. Does this mean that you will continue the insane and idiotic policies of the Reagan administration?

The administration of your predecessor instituted a tax reform that was supposed to make the taxation process easier and more fair.

One of the results of that "reform" was that student financial aid was turned into taxable income. How is it that things like grants and scholarships can be considered income? Obviously, if a student had enough real income, they wouldn't need aid to go to school, would they? I guess Uncle Ron just couldn't wait until we graduated and starting earning real income before picking our pockets. And instead of getting easier, the tax process has become more complicated.

Another result of this "reform" is that people like me are paying 26 percent more taxes than before the reform and those in higher tax brackets (corporations and the wealthy) are paying less.

So much for an "easier and fairer taxation process." But I'm sure it doesn't bother you that the people who can least afford to be squeezed are being squeezed harder than ever. After all, according to you, we can't help the poor by hurting the rich.

All through your dirty little campaign, you kept blathering about how you represented the "mainstream values" of America. You certainly don't represent this "mainstream" American's values.

I wouldn't have made a deal with Noriega, why didn't you stop him when you had the chance?

And I definitely don't support illegal wars in Central and South America. And, since your pal Ron has seen fit to gouge me and people like me for taxes, I think we have a say in what you'll do with our money.

Will you continue to waste billions of our Sinkhole for Defense Industries (SDI) program? You've already said that you support the failed drug policies of Ronald Reagan's insane war on drugs and that you would continue to waste our money by escalating this war.

Is there a way to avoid God?

Q. The current Arg editor was editor of the Gem four years ago when I arrived. Now I'm getting ready to leave. Aren't they ever going to let him graduate?

A. As many people are, the editor (we'll call him "Jon") might be a little sensitive about a question which casts aspersions on his academic progress. What about you? Is "getting ready to leave" the same as "graduating"?

Q. In his response to the ISU invective/anti-UI propaganda, Brian Long mentioned the truly incredible Greek GPA. I'm quite sure it is famous in several states, but I'm wondering about the average GPA for off-campus students. Does anyone know what it is?

A. According to Student Advisory Services, only Matt Telin, Registrar, has that kind of information. Telin referred the question back to SAS. According to Telin, compilations to arrive at that figure have not been completed by the Registrar's office. So much for showing up the Greeks Record Breaking average GPA. But then again, no one forces off-campus students to study, even if they are freshmen.

Q. Is Dweezil funny?
A. Sometimes more than other times. Dweezil's basic humor ratio far surpasses that of a cartoon which ran several years ago, Captain Campus. The Captain received hate mail at the Argonaut, one of which read simply "Nuke the Captain." Pretty sardonic, huh. Unfortunately the very humorous "Macklin" met his demise in a heat tunnel four years ago. Mike Mundt, the author of Macklin, now lives and works in the Eastern U.S.

Q. Who is Custodian #9 and what is its function?

A. Custodian #9 is sort of a phantom conscience for people who borrow the Physical Plant walkie-talkies. He can hear you, but you can't see him. So no foul language on the airwaves. And remember, it violates FCC regulations to interrupt an international distress call.

Q. Do the drivers who don't stop for pedestrians waiting to cross campus sidewalks know that I can report their license number, vehicle make, and description to the omnipotent Moscow Police Department and get them in big trouble?

A. They do now.

Q. If I can avoid the Christian booths at registration can I ultimately avoid God?

A. The appropriate question here might be, can God avoid you?

Q. Does anyone besides that guy with the petition really care what magazines the Bookstore sells?

A. No, and even if the bookstore yanks the controversial magazines, it's only a short walk to Sunset Mart.

"majorly mess up."

We feel that the Argonaut "majorly messed up" all of last semester with the shoddy job of reporting on campus student events, both in the Residence Halls and Greek system. There are many interesting, innovative things happening on-campus, and hopefully as the new editor you will see to it that some of these events are "scooped."

However, although we do feel that our "Rights" have been violated, we still plan to pick up the Argonaut twice weekly for its variety of "hot and spicy" coupons.

Since you seem inclined to follow the Reagan Administration's lead, how can you expect to help the needy with your "thousand points of light" when you keep taking funds away from the organizations that has traditionally been those points of light?

You talk a lot about traditional values and morals.

So did Ron, and nearly 200 of his appointed cabinet members were investigated for illegal or unethical acts. Of that number, more than half resigned under a cloud of controversy.

Will the same fate befall your cabinet? And what about your involvement in the Iran-Contra scandal? Do you support the pardoning of criminals like Oliver North and Ed Meese?

It's truly amazing. America is one of the few countries on Earth where convicted criminals like John Mitchell (of Watergate fame) can be buried with military honors and crooks like North can be considered for a pardon. That is, if they have enough power, money or claim they did it for God and country.

Guess what, George, many of us don't buy that flag-waving, Bible-thumping, conservative crap anymore. We know that ethics based on reason make far more sense than those based on the fairy tales of religion and the drunken passions of misguided patriotism.

Will you allow prayer in schools, even though the Constitution you swore to uphold forbids it? Will you allow conservative religious organizations to gain more political power while they enjoy their tax-exempt status?

Will you appoint judges who will help overpopulate this country and give yet another boost to organized crime by overturning Roe vs. Wade? You've said that you oppose the "tax and spend" activities of the Democrats — does that mean you will continue the borrow-and-spend traditions of the Republicans?

REGISTRATION, GRADUATION DEADLINES NEAR

Deadline dates for filing for baccalaureate degrees and for registering for classes are Monday and Tuesday respectively.

Student having not yet filed applications for degrees to be awarded this semester should contact their college's main office today or Monday for the appropriate forms.

According to UI Registrar Matt Telin, Tuesday is the last day to register late for the this semester.

Telin warns that students failing to register by the Jan. 24 deadline must pay a $5 petition fee, successfully petition the Academic Petitions Committee, and pay a $50 late registration fee in order to register for classes.

In addition, students who have not paid their registration fees in full must do so by Tuesday. After this date, registrations will be canceled and names removed from all official class lists. Reregistration would require going through the petition process Telin said.

Tuesday is also the last day to add courses or change course sections and to change from pass/fail to a regular grade basis.

Students will be assessed a $5 fee for dropping or adding classes. These fees are payable at the Registrar's Office and are applicable to each transaction.

For example a student adding or dropping a single course will be charged $5. Also, students presenting several drops or adds at one time will only be charged a total of $5.

The Registrar's Office is located in the Administration Building Annex.

Mostly Moscow offers first-hand experience

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
Entertainment Editor

Telecommunication students now have the opportunity to receive practical experience in their field. Students taking Communications 378 and Special Topics 404 are producing, shooting, editing and directing their own show, Mostly Moscow.

"This will give everyone in telecommunications a chance to see what it's like out there (in the workplace)," said Greg Ulrich, producer of Mostly Moscow.

Mostly Moscow is entirely student-produced. Alan Lifton, assistant professor of communications, serves as executive producer, but most of the shooting, editing and directing is left up to his students.

Mostly Moscow debuts Jan. 25 and will air every other Wednesday thereafter. The half-hour show features segments about local people and news events.

"Our main goal is to get as many people from Moscow on camera so they can see themselves," Ulrich said.

Ulrich said this would help to create a local interest in the show.

Straight Talk, which will be featured on each show, will work most towards this goal. It will serve as a "man-on-the-street" type interview, in which community members will be asked to respond to a question or issue.

The first segment of the show will feature stories on the Moscow Parks and Recreation Department and on Moscow High Principal K.C. Albright, Idaho's principal of the year.

Mostly Moscow originally aired more than two years ago, according to Ulrich. At that time it was aired every week.

"Students really got burned out," Ulrich said.

"Our main goal is to get as many people from Moscow on camera so they can see themselves."

— Greg Ulrich
Mostly Moscow producer

The show has been off the air for two years now. Ulrich said they decided to go with the same name because community members may remember the original show.

Ulrich said that the first show may have some problems, but he hopes that as the semester progresses the quality will improve.

"It's really frustrating right now because we're just getting into using the equipment and working with new people," said Leslie Bischoff, a telecommunication major. "But after the rough spots are worked out I think things will go a lot smoother."

A total of eight shows will be produced during the semester.

The show will be aired every other Wednesday on ITV channel 8 at 7:30 p.m.

KUID will then air the production on tape delay Jan. 29. Ulrich said that KLEW, the CBS affiliate in Lewiston, is looking into the possibility of showing Mostly Moscow.

"They're really interested in airing it," Ulrich said.

Ulrich said KLEW wants to see the finished project first.

Students fund $6,500 sculpture

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
and CHRISTY KRETSCHMER

SUB General Manager Dean Vetrus reluctantly released the cost of a student-funded sculpture, after initially refusing to disclose the information.

Commissioned by Vetrus for the second floor of the SUB, the $6,500 sculpture will be installed in about two weeks, Vetrus said.

Vetrus originally asked that the price of the sculpture be kept off the record.

"I think it keeps it (the sculpture) a little more special without (people knowing) the price," he said.

"Art is not something that is easily definable by price," he said. "It is something that educates people."

The sculpture will be paid for out of a SUB reserve fund. Each semester a portion of student fees goes to this fund.

Chairperson Brent Mullins of the newly formed SUB Board said the money could have been better spent.

"There are other things we could use the money for," Mullins said.

Mullins said that keeping the SUB underground open 24 hours a day would be a better alternative.

The SUB Board took over the reins for SUB decisions after the fact, Mullins said.

"That purchase had already gone through when I was appointed," he said.

"This is for you, the students. Who knows how much this carving might be worth a while from now."

— Dean Vetrus
SUB General Manager

ASUI President Tina Kagi refused to comment on either the use of SUB money or the sculpture itself.

Vetrus says he spoke with ASUI leaders before commissioning the sculpture.

"This is for you, the students," Vetrus said. "Who knows how much this carving might be worth a while from now."

Vetrus says he feels the SUB should be a center for cultural and artistic values.

The sculpture will be of a nine-foot 200-pound cedarwood Vandal. It should be completed within the next two weeks.

The Vandal is holding a book inscribed with the words: "As light illuminates the darkness, knowledge brightens the world today."

The idea for the carving stemmed from an ASUI Productions-sponsored presentation given by sculptor Dudley C. Carter last fall.

Vetrus said this demonstration sparked considerable interest from both students and faculty.

Carter, 97, uses only an ax when carving his works.

Carter is a distinguished artist with 12 awards to his name, including the "Heroes" award from the U.S. Congress and the "Honorary Life President" award from the British Columbia Sculpture Society.

Carter is originally from Canada, but now makes his home in Seattle. It is expected that he will be present for the dedication of the sculpture.

English department sponsors visiting writers' workshops

By DAVID KELLY
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho's English department is sponsoring three visiting writers for classes in fiction writing and poetry composition this semester.

"It is a longtime policy of the English department to have workshops for the students so they can perfect their skills with professional writers from the field," said Gary Williams, department chairman. "We've been doing this for 10 years now."

Mary Blew, Tess Gallagher and Jane Barnes are the professionals who have been chosen for this semester's workshops.

Classes have been limited to 18 students per class and a prerequisite of one of the following classes: English 291, 292, 491 or 492.

This allows the guest writers to devote more time to the actual needs of the students and to help them on a more individual basis.

Blew's class began Jan. 12 and will run until Feb. 10.

Blew, an instructor teaching fiction writing at Lewis Clark State College has published an anthology of fiction called

"Lambing Out and Other stories" as well as several manuscripts and will be teaching a class in fiction writing here.

Blew will also hold an open reading for the public from her own works Feb. 2.

Gallagher, an English instructor at Syracuse University in New York, has written a screenplay as well as four separate collections of poems, essays and short fiction.

Gallagher's one-credit class, scheduled for one week, will start Feb. 20.

Besides teaching the poetry class, Gallagher will give a reading of her poetry Feb. 22.

Barnes has taught poetry and writing at the University of Virginia. She is the author of two novels, "I'Krupskaya" and "Double Lives."

Barnes' four week class on fiction writing will run from March 27 to April 21. The course can be taken for either one or two credits.

Barnes has tentatively scheduled a reading of her works for April 19.

All of the readings will be held at the Law School Courtroom at 7:30 p.m. They are open to the public and there is no charge.

Working Girl tracks scramble to the top

By ANGELA CURTIS
Managing Editor

Working Girl Tess has everything a she needs to succeed — talent, ambition and guts. All she lacks is one big break. That and a little taste.

Tess (Melanie Griffith) wears miniskirts to the office, cakes on more makeup than all of New York's red light district combined and styles her bleached hair into a bi-level frizz.

In Review

What: Working Girl

Where: Audian Theater

When: 7:05 p.m. and 9:15 p.m.

Rated: R

To top it all off, her sleazy live-in boyfriend (Alex Baldwin) shares their bed with another woman while Tess is at work.

And she keeps getting fired. Somehow her boss just can't understand when she broadcasts on the office reader board that a supervisor is "sleazoid pimp with a tiny dick."

But with Olympia Dukakis as her benevolent employment agent, Tess gets a last chance as a secretary for business barracuda Katharine (Sigourney Weaver).

When Katharine beaks her leg on a ski trip, Tess gets her chance to play hardball with the big boys. She moves into Katharine's office and apartment, conceals her status as a secretary and tries to snag a major business deal.

And falls in love with Katharine's boyfriend (Harrison Ford).

In the spirit of Secret of My Success, Working Girl portrays the scramble to the top of the corporate ladder. Right down to the benevolent old man giving a last chance to the young up-and-coming, Working Girl mimics Secret to the letter. The only difference is the age and sex of the main character.

Both are semi-realistic, whirlwind views of big business with incredible antics and feel-good endings. Both are a lot of fun.

The only problem with Working Girl is its portrayal of secretaries. This working girl looks like a "working girl."

So do her counterparts, with their tacky revealing clothes, overdone makeup and sky-high hairstyles. Looking at the secretarial pool at Tess' office, one would be hard-pressed to distinguish it from a bordello.

And while good work may be hard to find, it's a little hard to believe that someone with a college degree is still working as a secretary.

But these are minor complaints for a thoroughly entertaining film. These days, it's hard to find a movie which keeps a steady pace without dragging.

Working Girl does that. And more.

TABLE OF CONTENTS. Frances Butler's The Table of Contents is one of many pieces that the artist will speak on. Butler will visit the University of Idaho as part of the visiting artists series.

Environmental designer to speak

By DAVID KELLY
Staff Writer

An environmental designer from the University of California-Davis will visit the University of Idaho next week as part of a visiting artists series.

Francis Butler will make two appearances in the Palouse Area as part of the collaborative National Endowment for the Arts Visiting Artist Series.

She will speak Jan. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in UCC room 112.

Butler's work "explores the interaction of language and image to define new visual frontiers and connect ideas not previously connected."

Butler applies this process to the design of books, posters, fabrics, post cards and gardens. She also likes to create art for wearing and reading as well as art that can be walked through.

She recently completed a commission for an exterior site titled Shadow Garden at the University Hospital in Seattle.

Butler said she "has been particularly interested in exploring graphic possibilities so as to construct a dual, visual and verbal, signification."

Butler started a publishing company, Poltroon Press, in 1975 with Alastair Johnston. She also owns Goodstuffs Fabric Company, where she produces many of her own designs.

In addition to Butler's appearance at the UI, she will speak at Washington State University's Fine Arts Auditorium in the Department of Fine Arts Jan. 23 at 7:30 p.m.

Two more showings of Butler's art will be in Spokane January 25, one at 11 a.m. at the Spokane Falls Community College and the other at 7:30 p.m. at the Cheney Cowles Museum.

Parade planning underway

By MICHAEL KERNER
Staff Writer

With more than 80 entries expected for the 1989 Mardi Gras Parade, members worked on registration deadlines, solving space problems and crowd control issues during the committee's first meeting Thursday night.

To avoid long breaks in the parade lineup, members invoked a 90-second time limit on groups performing in the parade route.

The addition of barricades and more crowd control officials lining the sidewalks should eliminate spectators from choking off the parade.

"We've already ordered the good weather," said Judi Thompson, committee co-chairperson.

Thompson is working with Steve Elgar, a Washington State electrical engineering professor, reflecting the involvement of both the Moscow and Pullman communities in this year's event.

The parade makeup will encourage more color and music, capitalizing on the New Orleans style of the celebration, in contrast to the black and white theme of the Moscow Beaux Art's Ball.

The committee has been broken up into subcommittees to handle everything from float moving to judging. The committee will meet Thursdays at 7 p.m. at the Garden Lounge until the parade Feb. 18.

Anyone wishing to lend a helping hand is encouraged to attend next week's meeting.

Seattle friends are welcome

Do you have friends in Seattle who would like to join you in a weekend of Mardi Gras frolic? Then the Mardi Gras Package is for you.

□ Round-trip bus trip from Seattle, leaving Feb. 17, 1989

□ Two nights lodging at the Royal Motor Inn

□ One Mardi Gras Ball ticket

The package is available for $99. If you know of someone who would be interested in purchasing the Mardi Gras Package, leave their name and address at One More Time, downtown Moscow. Program coordinators will contact them.

Sword swallower scheduled for prime time

Brad Byers, sword swallower and University of Idaho janitor, will be featured on ABC's Incredible Sunday Jan. 29.

The ABC variety show flew Byers to Las Vegas to x-ray him swallowing a sword. The x-ray segment will be added to the studio appearance on the show.

The rest of the show was taped on Dec. 23 in front of a live studio audience. Byers was flown down to ABC studios in Hollywood, and performed his act.

According to Byers, he included Incredible Sunday host John Davidson in his act.

"It's about time (I made it on national television), it was my goal from the very beginning,"

"It's about time (I made it on national television), it was my goal from the very beginning. It's been 13 years."

— Brad Byers
Sword swallower

Byer said. "It's been 13 years." He has swallowed swords for casinos, fairs, colleges and shopping malls.

"College audiences are my best," he said, "but they can also be the worst. They are the hecklers."

Byers also juggles and balances barbells on his face and has a nail and drill act.

"I try to keep it unusual," he said.

He worked for circuses for a few years, but soon left them.

"I don't like circuses, I'll never go back."

Byers now works full-time for the university and performs on weekends.

Second City stages ASUI performance

The Second City Touring Company, originators and leaders of ensemble comedy, will appear Feb. 4 at 8 p.m. in the UI Administration Building Auditorium.

Second City stages have been the home for some of the greatest comic genius to grace film, TV and stage. During the 27 years since its inception, a sister troupe has opened in Toronto, SCTV (Second City Television) was created and in 1973 the National Touring Companies were formed.

The humor is familiar: social and political satire and poking fun at human foibles are a tradition of Second City, SCTV and Saturday Night Live (whose casts have boasted a high percentage of Second Citizens).

Competition for spots in the Touring Companies — "farm teams" for the freshest Second City talent is fierce: energy, agility and the ability to be tastefully funny are demanded as the casts travel city-to-city with the sparest of theatrical trappings, producing a series of fast-paced sketches and the famous improvisational sequence (based on audience suggestions).

A list of Second City graduates reads like a Who's Who of Comedy:

Alan Alda, Ed Asner, Shelly Berman, John Belushi, Valerie Harper, Mike Nichols, Tim Kasurinsky, Robert Klein, Linda Lavin, Shelly Long, Elaine May, Bill Murray, Avery Schreiber, David Steinberg, Betty Thomas and George Wendt.

Tickets for the performance are $5 for students and $6 general admission in advance or $7 and $8 at the door.

Soccer kicks into action

By RUSS BIAGNE
Sports Writer

Coming off a successful 8-1-1 fall semester season, the UI Soccer Club returns to action anticipating another strong performance in 1989.

The club began practice this week and will hold practice every Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday under the direction of Coach Stephen Coppens.

Until the snow melts, the club will work around the basketball games and hold practices in the Kibbie Dome.

According to club president Robb Kirschenmann, the Soccer Club will have two teams like it did last year. One team, the competitive, or A, team represents the university. The B team is for members who don't have as much time to put into workouts as the A club.

"They (B team) don't travel. They pick up games when they can," Kirschenmann said.

He said although the B team does not schedule road games, it is still competitive.

The first team is full, but anyone interested in participating on the second team is encouraged to join.

Because the club is not a sanctioned team, it is difficult for the players to find opponents.

"We are just a club," Coppens said. "Being just a club makes it difficult to find opponents because we are not part of a league."

Coppens said that it is unfortunate that the Vandals are not part of a league because they have put a great team this season.

Although finding opponents may be tough for the Soccer Club, it does have a tournament in Boise scheduled, as well as a game against Montana State.

For any questions concerning the Soccer Club, contact Rob Kirschenmann at 882-6784 or Stephen Coppens at 885-8845.

Lehmer battles back, again

By DERON KOSOFF
Staff Writer

CONTRIBUTING TO LADY VANDALS AGAIN...Senior center Sheri Lehmer puts up a shot. (LOREN ORR PHOTO)

A broken hand and knee operation would make most people want to give up. But not Sheri Lehmer.

A four-year letter winner for the Lady Vandals basketball team, senior Sheri Lehmer has stared adversity in the face.

After knee surgery in the spring of 1987, Lehmer came back to play in all 27 games last season.

Not enough adversity? Try a broken hand in pre-season practice, forcing her out of the first 11 regular season games and costing her a starting spot to Sabrina Dial, a sophomore post player.

However, injuries have changed Lehmer's goals little, if any.

"I wanted to be one of the top post players in the conference," Lehmer said. "I'm still working toward that."

"My knee has been a factor somewhat. Now I have to compensate for my knee brace and do the best I can. You just have to work with what you're given."

And what Lehmer has is character, according to Laurie Turner, Lady Vandals Head Coach.

"It shows what kind of character she has," Turner said. "She could have just quit. We're definitely a better ballclub since she's back, and she's going to continue to improve."

Lehmer said the Lady Vandals are gunning for the Big Sky title.

"We still have a chance, even though we're 2-2 (in BSC). I know we can do it, because we really have a good team," Lehmer said.

Lehmer's first involvement in sports was not basketball, but swimming and water polo. She started swimming at the age of six and holds five swim records at Marist High School in Eugene, Ore. In her junior year, she decided to play basketball. She was named most improved player her first year and team and league MVP her senior year.

Deciding which sport is her favorite is difficult for Lehmer.

"I would have to say water polo is my 'favorite' sport, but right now basketball is number one," Lehmer said. "I like the concept of the team sport most of all."

Basketball has not interfered with Lehmer's academic life.

"When I'm on the court, it's basketball. When I'm off, it's school," said Lehmer. "I've learned from playing sports so long that you just need to budget your time."

"Sponge," as teammates nicknamed her for her voracious appetite after games, graduates in December with a major in commercial recreation.

"My main goal is to someday manage and/or run my own resort," Lehmer said. "I'm an outdoors person and I just like being active."

Lehmer said her parents are supportive of her.

"They have never pushed me in a negative way," Lehmer said. "They see me when we play in Oregon and this year they'll be up here for the University of Montana and Montana State games."

Well, one thing is for sure. Injured, healthy, on the court or off — Sheri Lehmer is one determined individual.

Dear UI Students:

In the past, ASUI representation for Off-Campus students has been less than adequate. In an attempt to provide you with better representation, a means for input and easy access to ASUI Senate meeting minutes, periodic ASUI updates, access to your assigned senators and monthly invitations to attend a meeting with your ASUI representatives.

Approximately one third of UI students live off-campus; It is high time that you receive adequate representation within the ASUI and the opportunity to voice your concerns to your student government. # Hoopsters look to dunk weekend rivals

By SCOTT TROTTER
Sports Editor

The UI men's basketball team hits the road for back-to-back games against Idaho State and Weber State this weekend, while the Lady Vandals return home to the Kibbie Dome for match-ups against Nevada-Reno tonight and Northern Arizona on Saturday.

The men's team is now 3-1 in Big Sky Conference play and 13-3 overall after ripping NAU 91-51 and NRU 100-69 last weekend.

The Vandies, who won their last two match-ups by an average of 35.5 points, will play ISU in Pocatello tonight at 6:30 p.m. and then travel to Ogden, Utah to take on Weber State College, also at 6:30 p.m.

ISU is only 4-10 and 0-4 in BSC play, but UI Head Coach Kermit Davis isn't looking past either the Bengals or Weber State.

"We have a little slogan we're talking about, 'don't look back.' You can't look back on the laurels of what you did yesterday," he said. "If you do that in this league you'll get beat."

"It's going to be extremely difficult for us to win down there (Weber State and Idaho State)," he said. "We had good wins there last year, but it was tough. We'll have to play with a lot of composure."

ISU is led by 6'3" senior guard Jim Rhode, who averages 10.9 points, 3.4 rebounds and a conference-high 3.0 steals per game, and Steven Garrity, a 6'6" sophomore forward, who leads ISU with a 14.4 scoring average and a conference-high 6.3 rebounds per game.

Weber State is 10-3 overall and 3-1 in conference. Potential threats include the whole offense, which is tied for the conference lead in field goal offense with a 50.1 shooting percentage per game.

"We still have some flaws that we have to get a lot better at," he said. "But I do know our guys like each other, they like playing with each other and they play hard. When you do that, then the other things take care of themselves as long as you keep working."

The UI women are coming off a tough road trip, losing to Montana, 71-54 on Friday and falling short 65-51 to Montana State on Saturday.

The Lady Vandies host the University of Nevada-Reno tonight and Northern Arizona on Saturday in the Kibbie Dome.

NRU sports a 2-13 overall record and an 0-4 conference mark, while NAU sits at 5-6 overall and 1-3 in Big Sky.

Head coach Laurie Turner said that this will be an important weekend for the Lady Vandals.

"These teams (UNR and NAU) are supposedly some of the weaker teams," Turner said. "But we've seen them on tape and we feel that every game we have to be ready to play because some people are going to upset (other teams) if you're not ready to play."

With the help of the Big Sky's second-leading scorer, Christy Van Pelt, who averages 17.3 points, UI has a great opportunity to improve on its 8-7 overall and 2-2 conference records.

FASTBREAK

WOMEN'S WEEKEND BASKETBALL: Friday, Jan. 20, UI vs. Nevada-Reno. Saturday, Jan. 21, UI vs. Northern Arizona. Both games 7:30 p.m., Kibbie Dome. (The Nevada-Reno game will be aired on ITV8, Jan. 23 at 7 p.m. and Jan. 24 at 9 a.m., and Northern Arizona will be shown Jan. 24 at 7 p.m. and Jan. 25 at 9 a.m.)

VAN PELT NEW STEALS LEADER: Senior guard/forward Christy Van Pelt had 11 steals last weekend against Montana and MSU, and became the new Idaho all-time steals leader with 237. Robin Behrens set the previous record of 230.

SMITH NAMED "PLAYER OF THE WEEK.": UI junior center Riley Smith was named the Big Sky Conference "Player of the Week" after helping the Vandals to impressive wins over Northern Arizona, 91-51 and Nevada-Reno, 100-69 last weekend. In the two games he had 47 points, 12 rebounds and seven steals.

18-year-olds can play lottery

By DAVID KELLY
 Staff Writer

Although the state's drinking age has risen to 21, university students and other adults 18 or older will be eligible to participate in the Idaho state lottery.

Anyone 18 and older can play, said Idaho Deputy Attorney General Patrick Kole.

As of the 12th day of the current legislative session, no legislation concerning the lottery has been brought before the House of Representatives.

All new legislature must be presented to the House within the first 35 days of the session, said Lottery Commission Director Wally Hedrick. Hedrick said and he does not foresee any difficulties with people trying to alter the lottery.

In 1987, Idaho citizens approved Initiative One concerning the lottery by a 60 percent majority. The measure passed 226,816 to 151,132.

Even though Initiative One was only an advisory to elected officials, it launched the legislation necessary to get HJR Three on the ballot in November.

Idaho citizens approved HJR Three by 52 to 48 percent with a difference of 14,815 votes.

Initiative One became law and a state amendment was added. The lottery became a part of the state constitution Nov. 23 when the State Board of Canvassers met to count and officiate votes.

The board is comprised of the secretary of state, state treasurer and state auditor.

The lottery is initially being funded by a $1 million line of credit.

Every ticket sold across the state will be entered into a computer at the time of purchase and this information will be sent to a main computer.

The winners will be randomly picked, but will first be cross-referenced with the main computer to verify that the ticket number was actually sold.

The lottery winnings will consist of many different tiers from the scratch-off winners of $5-$20 all the way up to tens of thousands of dollars.

"Everything should be completed and tickets for sale sometime between June and October this year," Hedrick said.
