

Students picket fee hikes, throw protest pennies today

A newly formed student activist group will stage a rally today against a proposed $50-per-year resident student fee hike.

Students Concerned About Money — SCAM — hopes to draw at least 100 students in its protest march from the SUB to the Administration Building, said SCAM President Lisa Krepel.

The group's main complaint against the university administration is its representation of student views, Krepel said.

"(UI President Dick Gibb is portraying himself as our representative, but if he were our representative, we'd impeach him," Krepel said.

Demonstrators will carry picket signs and throw their "last pennies" on Hello Walk, dubbed "Hell No Walk" by Krepel.

SCAM plans to present the administration with a 6-foot insufficient funds check, and may present a similar check to the Idaho Board of Education in June when it considers the fee increase, Krepel said.

In an April 20 meeting, the Idaho Board of Education passed a notice of intent to raise in-state fees $25 a semester and non-resident tuition an additional $100 per semester.

In early April, UI vice presidents spoke to student leaders in an attempt to garner student support for a $50-per-semester fee hike. About 1,200 UI students voted 2-1 against the proposal in a student referendum.

Gibb and former ASUI Sen. Craig McCurry pitched the plan to the state board, saying the referendum against the fee hike was not representative of student opinion.

But Krepel said UI administrators are contradicting principles upon which this country was founded when they claim that low voter turnout made the vote invalid.

"The U.S. government is run by the vocal majority," Krepel said. "The ASUI certainly ascribes to the same principles as the U.S. does."

The 11:15 a.m. protest precedes a fee hearing with the administration today at 1:15 p.m. in the SUB.

But the student/administration hearing comes too late in the semester, says ASUI Vice President Lynn Major. Major said that students would be too busy studying for finals to participate in the hearing.

Plan 3: Increase dorm food rates $36 a semester

By KARA GARTEN
Staff Writer

After meeting with Marriott and university officials twice in the past week, residence hall presidents proposed a new dining plan Monday night that raises rates $36 a semester but keeps Snack Bar services intact.

The plan, announced at last night's RHA Awards Banquet, is the third proposal out to change Marriott's residence hall food service offerings. Student leaders helped create the plan after two Marriott proposals were met with skepticism last week.

Hall presidents met with university officials including Terry Armstrong, executive assistant to the president; Jim Bauer, assistant dean of student services for residence living; Lynn Morrison, director of Marriott's University Dining Services; and Bruce Pitman, dean of student services. After Friday and Monday morning meetings, the group came up with the new proposal that hall presidents will discuss with their constituents and vote on by Thursday evening.

Proposal Three includes a 5.5 percent food rate increase, or about $36 each semester for a typical 14-meal plan.

As with the first two proposals, Proposal Three calls for the elimination of Snack Bar service Sunday evenings. Also under Proposal Three, students will be limited to three punches each night and punches will be valid only the day of purchase and the next day. Each Snack Bar punch will have a value of $1.80 rather than the present $2.85.

Since students were especially upset about changes in Snack Bar service under the first two proposals, Proposal Three is an attempt to keep Snack Bar services about the same.

"The product line that you know downstairs (in Snack Bar) will still be there," Morrison said Monday.

She said the reduced value of Snack Bar punches is closer to their true value.

"The $1.80 value is still an average, but a better average than $2.85," she said.

Prices of most Snack Bar products will also be reduced so they are more in line with retail prices. The price of a slice of pizza will go from $2.75 to $1.80. However, the prices of some products like soft drinks, juice and fruit will go up simply because those products are more expensive for Marriott.

Morrison said she hopes to go ahead with the plan to open a convenience store in the basement of the Wallace Complex.

Sen. Smart to file charges against law student

By JON ERICKSON
Editor

Less than a month after the Student Bar Association dropped impeachment charges against him, ASUI Sen. Steve Smart says he has come to "blows" with a member of the group.

Today Sen. Smart is expected to file a battery complaint against SBA member Richard Baughman, a UI law student. The charges stem from an early Friday morning incident at Murdoc's.

According to Smart, he was tapped on the shoulder Friday by a stranger. After he argued with the man about SBA funding, the man poked him in the chest. Smart "pushed" the man back. Then Baughman, also sitting at the table, allegedly punched Smart. "I was arguing with one, but hit by another," Smart said Monday.

Smart said Baughman threw at least two punches. Smart said he didn't hit back.

Monday Baughman had no comment on the alleged incident or the possible complaint.

Smart said he was not intoxicated at the time of the alleged incident. "I'd been there long enough to have a few drinks, but I wasn't drunk," he said.

Moscow Police Department Officer Robert Marr took witnesses' statements. Smart said upon Marr's recommendation he waited to file charges until talking with an attorney.

In March, SBA members filed impeachment papers against Smart contending that he failed to adequately represent them. SBA members also threatened to file a lawsuit against the ASUI for alleged violations of the Idaho open meeting law.

SBA dropped all charges April 5 after the ASUI Senate agreed to reconsider their operating budget in a well-publicized meeting. In that meeting, SBA's funding was frozen at current levels, and a rider forbidding future funding of the group was passed. Funding for SBA's sister organization, the Idaho Law Review, was also cut from the final ASUI budget.

SCAM PROTEST MARCH TODAY. Students Concerned About Money are sponsoring a march today to protest student fee increases. Group organizers ask that students meet in front of the SUB at 11 a.m. to receive protest signs. After a short demonstration at the SUB, students will march to the Administration Building at 11:30 a.m. and throw protest pennies on Hello Walk.

FEE HEARINGS TODAY. Students are invited to attend a public hearing on proposed UI fee increases today. The hearing will be held from 1:15 p.m. - 3:15 p.m. in the SUB Ballroom. In June the Idaho Board of Education will consider raising resident student fees $25 a semester and out-of-state tuition an additional $100 a semester.

ENGLISH FOLDERS RETURNED. Students who took English 103 or English 104 last fall can pick up their folders in Brink Hall Room 200 today through May 12.

PLANTS ARE PEOPLE TOO? An organizational meeting of the Idaho Native Plant Society will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the Forestry Building. Professor Fred Johnson will present a program on "Idaho's Record Trees."

Grants available for glacier expedition

As many as five University of Idaho undergraduate students could each receive $2,200 grants this summer to conduct field research in Alaskan and other arctic icefields.

Conducted by the UI and the University of Alaska-Juneau, the program runs July 1 - August 24 in the Juneau Icefield and in the Atlin, British Columbia area.

According to Maynard Miller, former dean of the UI College of Mines and Earth Resources and director of the UI's Geological and Arctic Sciences Institute, 20 grants have been provided by the National Science Foundation to cover food and field logistics costs. Half of the grants are for this summer's expedition and the other half for the 1990 project.

"Only five of this year's 10 grants can be awarded to UI students, and I'd like to be sure we use the allocated five for that purpose," Miller said.

He said high school juniors and seniors are also eligible for another set of 10 similar grants as part of the NSF's Young Scholars Project. Applications should be returned to Miller by May 30.

Candidates should provide a resume that includes:

- Academic transcripts
- A description of their previous outdoor experience
- Three letters of recommendation
- A short essay expressing their reasons for applying and how they believe the program meshes with their professional goals
- Evidence of their interest and capabilities in field research.

Said Miller, "This is a prime example of reversing the usual research experience. Instead of bringing nature into the classroom, we take the classroom to nature."

More than 1,000 students have gone through the Juneau program since Miller inaugurated it in 1946. He called the training an "invaluable experience," noting he regularly gets calls from employers in the geosciences who specifically want to hire students who have gained the unique training and experience provided by the program.

>FOOD from page 1

Two Gault Hall residents asked RHA members to re-examine Proposal Two at last night's meeting. Gault Hall President Stan Lubinus said Proposal Two — the Flexi Point proposal — will give students a better deal than Proposal Three even if students do not use all their meals.

Under the Flexi Point system, students with 14- and 20-meal plans would get $100 on account to spend at Marriott campus food service outlets. But they would lose the ability to stockpile Snack Bar punches that now accumulate every time a meal is not punched off. Under Proposal Three, students will be able to punch off uneaten meals at Snack Bar just as they can now.

"Proposal Two is the best deal for the average student," Lubinus said. "Just take out your calculator and figure it up for yourself. Losing meals is not as bad as you think."

Borah Hall President Ray Horton said he felt it was too late to pass Proposal Two.

"By passing Proposal Two, people are probably going to howl that RHA sold them out again. I think we should keep the status quo for another year because that's what people want," Horton said.

Morrison said she thought it might be best to keep the food service basically the same for next fall by adopting Proposal Three and work on making a change to the Flexi Plan next spring.

"Maybe it will be next January when everyone's really hot on hearing about a Flexi Plan," Morrison said. "We're skeptical about it too. We don't know what will happen. The reason for Proposal Two was to keep rates from going up."

Under Proposal One, which has all but been eliminated, food costs for students with the 14-meal plan would have increased $47 per semester.

It took Galileo 16 years to master the universe. You have one night.

It seems unfair. The genius had all that time. While you have a few short hours to learn your sun spots from your satellites before the dreaded astronomy exam.

On the other hand, Vivarin gives you the definite advantage. It helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. Safely and conveniently. So even when the subject matter's dull, your mind will stay razor sharp.

If Galileo had used Vivarin, maybe he could have mastered the solar system faster, too.

ALPHA ZETA HONORS GRAVES

The local chapter of the Alpha Zeta honorary has named James L. Graves as the recipient of its Hall of Fame Award. Graves, former director of the UI Cooperative Extension Service, retired in 1981 after completing 31 years of service with the university.

In honoring Graves, student leaders of Alpha Zeta noted the educator's successes in improving Extension Service programs and in providing assistance to farm families and agriculture-related groups throughout Idaho.

SCHOLARS' DORM NEEDS RESIDENTS

The UI Honors Program director is looking for students interested in living in the scholars' dorm next year.

"We have mailing lists for honors students but it's hard to solicit good students outside the Honors Program," Director Marvin Henberg said.

Since getting the go-ahead from the university on a plan to turn the vacated Alpha Chi Omega sorority into a scholars' dorm, Henberg has been looking for students interested in living there.

"I would like to get the word out that any student who is a serious student who would like to live there should come by the Honors Center and check it out," Henberg said.

Henberg said the university is negotiating with Alpha Chi to settle on the house's lease terms.

"We are pretty sure we will go ahead but it's still not certain," he said.

Henberg said students who are planning to live in the scholars' dorm should not sign other housing contracts.

SUMMER SCHOOL REGISTRATION ON NOW

Students planning to attend summer school can begin advance registration procedures this week through May 19 for courses taken during the five-week, mid- and late summer sessions.

Registration forms for the university's two other sessions, the early session May 15 - June 9 and the early six-week session May 15 - June 23 should be completed by May 12.

Students can pick up pre-printed forms at their college dean's offices. After arranging their course schedules, students complete forms and have them processed by the Registrar's Office.

Summer fees are $54 per credit for undergraduate students and $71 per credit for graduate and law students. The university does not charge out-of-state tuition during the summer session.

The summer session offers 28 core curriculum classes including requirements in the fields of communication, mathematics, computer science, humanities and natural, applied and social sciences.

Fundamentals of Public Speaking, Essay Writing, Technical Writing and Summer Intensive Spanish are core courses offered in the communication field, while introductory courses in biology, geography and geology are offered under the natural and applied sciences.

Along with core curriculum courses, UI has scheduled more than 300 other classes, including several highlighted courses.

In Archaeology of the Nez Perce Country students will visit several archaeological sites and localities in North Central Idaho, including locations along the Snake, Salmon and Clearwater Rivers.

Other highlighted courses include Summer Intensive Spanish, a new course allowing students to complete an entire year of language in six weeks.

RIESENBERG WINS ASUI FACULTY AWARD

Louis E. Riesenberg, head of the Department of Agricultural and Extension Education, is the recipient of the 1989 Outstanding Faculty Award sponsored by the Associated Students of the University of Idaho.

A member of the UI faculty since 1979, Riesenberg has taught a broad spectrum of courses in agricultural education and agricultural mechanization. He is the author of many publications and scholarly papers.

The student association's award citation emphasized Riesenberg's readiness to give students assistance and advice. He consistently earns high ratings in student evaluations.

In recognition of his work with FFA and high school vocational agriculture programs throughout the state, Riesenberg was awarded an honorary American Farmer degree by the National Future Farmers of America last fall. He has been actively involved with the Idaho FFA Association's state leadership conferences and judging contests.

Ask Jon: Why is this university so screwed up?

Ask Lois, I'm not. But just like everyone else, I have questions about this university. Unfortunately, I haven't been able to get many answers.

So here are a few things to daydream about during dead week and finals.

■ Just when is the university's official closing time? Some departments close at 4:30 p.m., others at 5 p.m. And why is it that whenever you are in a rush, the office you are desperately trying to reach at 4:45 p.m. closed 15 minutes earlier.

■ Then there's the University Dining Service (translation: Marriott). What type of profit-seeking organization would dare to suggest a Washington State University gray and maroon color scheme for Joe's? Even a first-year marketing student would have gauged his target audience better than Lynn Morrison's Dream Team. This idea should never have gotten off the drawing board.

■ On the lighting issues, how does it happen that lights are randomly off and randomly on? Half the time the Administration Building lawn fixtures can't figure out if it is day or night. And then there are the annoying light poles that turn themselves off just as you walk by. Just like administrators do when a student with an opinion walks by.

■ Then there is the "perceived" UI parking problem. Either there are not enough spaces or just too many cars. Whatever the case, why not build a parking garage? If our "peer institution"

WSU can do it, why can't we? Sure it would be expensive, but so are those macho Broncos that UI parking wardens drive around in. After all, some non-college-educated entrepreneurs even build parking structures to make a profit.

■ Then there is President Richard Gibb — "the president with forethought." Or so he claimed at the recent Greek Week banquet. He said people don't realize he has to make decisions not for today, but for down the road. Is the new UI Bookstore one of those prophetic decisions? My soothsayer says different. A two-or-more-story building with adequate parking certainly would have been looking forward, not following past mistakes.

■ Why does Gibb drive to work? Sure he has a nice, university paid-for auto, but he only lives yards from his office. And maybe the parking problem would be less if Gibb wasn't tying up that one space. Perhaps he's afraid if he walked to work he would actually see a student, or worse yet, run into one with an opinion. With that fancy car, there's only one way he can run into students.

■ Speaking of "bigwigs," how come the Idaho Board of Education hasn't met in Moscow this year? Perhaps they're afraid of the UI staff, faculty and students. Either that or they're afraid the local press might hide secret microphones in the SUB again.

■ And what about Idaho's "party school" image? While Gibb hires golf rangers to keep that nasty alcohol off the green, he allows 30-foot inflatable Rainier beer cans in the Dome during football games. It would appear that the "only beer found 'round here" comes in the form of financial underwriting for the athletic department.

■ Why is it that when administrators, staff or faculty are mad at students they incessantly refer to us as "kids?" This is one four-letter word that should be eliminated at the UI. That and "fees."

■ Who are those people who consistently write religious letters to the editor? Do they really think they're going to convert people through newsprint? Why can't they all just get together once a year and verbally battle it out in front of the UCC? Hallelujah and praise the Lord.

■ Now for the question of the week. How come the UI's highly acclaimed and much heralded engineering program is in such accreditation hell? Isn't this the same program that UI brochures can't brag enough about? I thought our engineering college was one of the best in the nation. How has it fallen out of grace so quickly?

Maybe some of these questions are trivial or even ridiculous, but they sure are more easily tackled than "The meaning of life," or "What came first, the chicken or the egg?"

Happy daydreaming.

Greeks help make wishes come true

Editor:

On behalf of the Wishing Star Foundation, I would like to thank the fraternities and sororities of the UI who during Greek Week raised more than $1,100 through the Bowl-a-Thon and a bake sale. Special thanks goes to Bowl-a-Thon Committee Chairman Shane Sumpter and Bake Sales Committee Chairwoman Tina Baldus.

Wishing Star Foundation is an Idaho-based organization which grants the special dreams or wishes of children with life-threatening illnesses. There are currently 14 wishes and referrals. Some of these include a race car ride with Paul Newman, a trip to Disneyland, a chance to play with the Chicago Bears, a playhouse, a deep-sea fishing trip and a train ride.

It is through donations that these wishes are made possible for children whose tomorrows are very uncertain.

Thank you Greeks for your outstanding contribution.

UI parking influenced by Charles Bronson

Editor:

I think most people would agree that the parking problem here at the UI is pretty ridiculous, but everybody except those people who run this university knows that, so I won't comment on that issue. I had an interesting incident with one of the fine upstanding meter persons who enforces this madness.

It was Thursday morning and I went to pick up a friend at Theophilus Tower to go to breakfast. When I arrived I was sorry to see she had a broken knee, but she decided to go to breakfast anyway. It was raining when we returned to the Tower, so I decided I would pull up as close to the doors as I could and put on my hazard lights so she wouldn't have to walk in the rain with a bum knee. So I put on my hazards and walked her to the building. I was gone for four minutes and was not blocking anyone's way.

As I walked back to the car I noticed a meter person writing me a ticket. I told him I was moving it and then proceeded to do so. At this point he blocked my way with his Bronco. (Why do meter persons get $10,000, four-wheel drive vehicles to write tickets and we students get a fee increase?) So I asked him what the problem was and this meter person, who has obviously seen too many Charles Bronson films, gets out of his car and says in the best billy bad-ass voice, "What did you say?" I replied, "The girl had a bummed up knee so I parked for four minutes in a loading zone." His masterful reply to this statement was, "You should have got a permit. Do you want a $10 ticket?"

I am really sorry I didn't think to get a permit before I dropped her off, but gee whiz, I guess I am just another irresponsible student. The time is now for the people who run this place to remember why it's here — for the students.

Scientists, Jesus both correct when it comes to seeds

Editor:

In the April 11 issue of the Argonaut, Mr. Nielsen wrote a letter titled, "Who's right, plant scientists or Jesus?" In that letter Mr. Nielsen correctly identified the orchid seed as being the smallest seed known to man. His point, without further research, appears to be valid, thereby nullifying Jesus' claim that the mustard seed is the smallest seed.

The error, however, is in Mr.

Protest Gibb's fee increase scam

By LISA KREPEL
Commentary

Ah spring. One season of blooming flowers, winter-white legs and love. And Spring Scams.

No, these aren't the scams that get you invited to the Russian Ball, Tin Canner or Fantasy Friday.

These scams are the UI Administration's version of spring fever — but instead of love, policy changes are in the air. Past victims of the Spring Scam have included the students' loss of the golf course, everyone's loss of beer privileges on the golf course and a parking designation change in a heavily used lot.

And now Spring Scam '89: the fee increase.

In March the State Board of Education turned down a UI Administration request to consider a fee increase. But the system set up to allow students adequate time to voice their opinions apparently is not very important.

In April the board reversed itself and approved a notice of intent to raise fees $25 per semester for in-state students, $100 per semester for out-of-state students. What changed the board's mind?

We did.

We, the students of UI, got so excited about the idea of paying more for our constitutionally-guaranteed free education that we convinced the administration to ask the board to reconsider. Spring has traditionally made people a little crazy, but this surpassed any seasonal fevers.

In April ASUI elections, students voted nearly 2-1 to oppose the increase. The ASUI Senate voted 11-1 to uphold constituents' wishes in a resolution condemning the increase. President Tina Kagi and Vice President Lynn Major traveled to the Pocatello board meeting to express majority student opinion.

But President Gibb maintained that he was representing the students, and the board bought it. In April.

Not only do students have spring fever to manage, but they also have finals. Finals really start this week, in what is commonly known as "dead week," when students are supposed to concentrate on school.

How can students' opinions be heard if they're consumed by impending finals? They usually can't, and that's what the administration is counting on.

But this year you have the chance to make a statement against Spring Scams.

Protest.

It's a '60s kind of word, but it works just as well in 1989. And it's the only avenue we have left open to us when the administration shuts us off.

SCAM (Students Concerned About Money) is holding a protest today at 11 a.m. Come down to the SUB and carry a sign up to the Administration Building to let President Gibb know you won't be ignored anymore. Let the state board know you have a right to be heard.

Indulge in the spring fever yourself!

Nielsen's references. Jesus claimed that the mustard seed is the smallest seed to be planted in the ground. The orchid seed on the other hand is a nonparasitic seed that grows on other plants while gaining its nutrients from the dust, rain and air.

With this insight we can conclude in the final analysis that both the plant scientists and Jesus are correct.

Science does not support evolutionism

Editor:

Some people are so blinded by their evolution faith that they assume belief in a creator is based solely on religious dogma. The incorrect statements in Ralph Nielsen's April 11 Argonaut letter exemplify how prejudice-induced blindness produces such inaccuracies.

His comments indicate that I believe and have publicly affirmed "that the Bible is an infallible science textbook."

I have never stated that the Bible is a science book, nor do I believe such. I have never used quotes from the Bible to support arguments for the existence of a creator. I do not use Bible statements to criticize evolution dogma. I have never claimed creationism is a science because I don't believe it can be validated by scientific investigations.

The goal of scientific inquiry is to understand the principles regulating natural processes in the physical (material) world. Science meets this goal with two investigative means: observation and experimentation.

The existence of the creator is beyond the ability of science to prove or disprove. It is impossible to observe the creator. No experiment can be devised to duplicate creation, nor can the effects of creation be experimentally tested. No experiment to confirm or repudiate the creator can be achieved by scientific endeavors.

Another idea science cannot confirm is that modern horses evolved from cat-sized, four-toed ancestors. No one saw or recorded the alleged changes as they occurred. Scientists cannot watch the process in progress today, nor can they take on the supposed ancestors, apply the force of natural selection and observe it evolving into a horse. So it is impossible for objective observations to confirm the hypothetical ancestry of today's horses.

Experimental evidence is the other means by which scientists could validate the assumed horse ancestry. Breeding modern types to the suggested progenitors would establish where the different types attained reproductive isolation.

But the suggested horse progenitors are extinct. So it is impossible to experimentally verify the genetic relationship between horses and animals known only from fossils.

Mr. Nielsen's statement that I believe "that scientists can know only that which they can directly observe in the laboratory" is inaccurate. Repeatable field observations or reproducible field experiments also produce scientific knowledge. Nielsen's misrepresentation of my past discussions indicate either ignorance, bad memory, poor reasoning ability or deliberate deceit. In his case the answer is likely a combination of at least two of the above.

Engineering student says raise those fees

Editor:

This is to all the students who are interested in hearing the other side of the fee increase controversy. Yes, it is true that I flew to Pocatello with President Gibb, the same flight Tina Kagi was invited to use. I was asked to represent the College of Engineering's viewpoint to the Board of Education on the proposed fee increase. This trip was to show the board that there are opposing views to that of President Kagi and her private senatorial group, not some hideous plot to overthrow the ASUI.

As many of you know, the College of Engineering will be visited by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology to review our engineering curriculum and faculty to decide whether to keep our accreditation. I don't want to paint a grim picture, but the truth is that some of our engineering programs are in trouble and need financial assistance to meet the ABET standard. I feel that we should not just strive to meet this standard, but it is something that should come naturally. I cannot stress how important this accreditation is to the College of Engineering, without it we are just another technical school.

Back to President Kagi and Club Senate.

I know that each of the colleges are represented by a senator, yet I have never seen or met my senator during this whole controversy. I tried to reach President Kagi by phone but my messages were never returned. The College of Engineering did vote in favor of a fee increase. I realize that it did not pass as a university, yet as an entire college I feel that we need our views expressed as well. Apparently these feelings were not mutual with our senator. Now let's talk about student misrepresentation.

Although I represent only a portion of this university, these needs are campus-wide. This fee increase will not only benefit my college, but will help other colleges in need of financial assistance.

I am a graduating senior in May and will not directly benefit from the fee increase. I am, however, representing my constituents with the absence of our senator. This fee hike will not drain the student pocketbook but keep quality education at the University of Idaho. To make this decision the student must be educated on all valid aspects, not just asked the question, "Do you want to pay more next year?" and feel like you are cutting your own throat. So instead of making this blind decision, find out the facts by attending the hearing in the SUB Ballroom.

As for you, Ms. Major, this villain promises to send $25 worth of canned food each semester so you can feed your starving child.

UI baseball closes with wins over MSU

By GREG NUNES
Sports Writer

Despite struggling for most of the year, the UI Baseball Club was able to close out the 1989 season on a high note by winning three of its final four games.

The Vandals end the season with a 5-16 mark after taking two games against Montana State University over the weekend and gaining a victory over Lewis Clark State College junior varsity on Friday.

"I think everybody had a lot of fun this year," UI player/coach Wade Wilson said. "We lost a lot of one-run games. We played good competition."

"The program is on the upswing," Wilson said.

The 5-3 win on Friday was the first for the Vandals over LCSC this season. The Warriors had won the first seven decisions over UI.

Dave Glover (1-4) went the distance for UI, picking up seven strikeouts while walking three.

UI opened an early 2-0 lead in the first inning when Gary Logosz walked and Dave Schwartz singled, setting up Jim Davis' ground ball to score Logosz. Schwartz came across with the second run of the frame when Dan Wordell's grounder was booted for an error.

With the score 2-1 in the third, UI added to its lead by scoring two more. Schwartz started the inning with a double and Wilson singled to push Schwartz to third. After Davis walked to load the bases, Skeet Collins and Tom Shields each drew walks to push across runs.

The Vandals continued winning Saturday and Sunday, taking two of three from Montana State.

After dropping the opening game of Saturday's doubleheader 16-6, UI bounced back to win 4-2 in the nightcap and then crushed the Bobcats 12-2 in the final game of the series.

In the 12-2 trouncing, John Konrad (1-0) picked up the victory on the mound in his only start of the season.

The Vandals put together an eight-hit attack and also stole six bases.

With UI leading 3-1, the Vandals put the game out of reach with a seven-run sixth inning. UI had five hits during the rally with Martin Maxwell picking up a big two-run single.

Davis led the Vandals with three hits, while Maxwell and Wordell each had two.

Rugby finishes with three wins

The University of Montana fell victim to the UI Rugby Club Saturday as the Vandals pounded the Grizzlies 24-4.

UI finishes the spring season with a 7-5-1 record.

"We finished better than .500, but we wish we could have done better," said team member Paul Reisenburg. "It would have been fun to go to the western regional competition in Calif., but we didn't have much cooperation with the weather this year."

It was a day for personal records Saturday when the Vandal track teams participated in the Oregon Invitational at Eugene, Ore.

For the women, Caryn Choate-Deeds set a personal and school record in the 100 meters with a time of 11:98. This accomplishment made her the first woman in UI history to run the 100 meters in less than 12 seconds.

"Caryn was just being Caryn," said UI Women's Track Coach Scott Lorek. "She usually comes on strong this time of the year, and I expect her to repeat as Big Sky Champion."

Choate-Deeds also placed third with her teammates Kim Gillas and Monica Langfelt in the 4-by-100 meter relay and second in the 200 meter.

Anne Scott had a good day as well, placing second in the 400-meter hurdles and first in the 100-meter hurdles in the developmental bracket.

Lorek said he was pleased with the results, hoping the momentum will continue for the Big Sky Championships May 17-20 in Boise.

"The Oregon Invitational is probably the biggest meet in the Northwest," Lorek said. "We had a good showing."

In the men's division, UI's Dan O'Brien placed first in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 13:81, qualifying him for the NCAA Championships. O'Brien also set personal records in the 100 meters (10:44) and the long-jump (25'6"). O'Brien's jump placed him second on the UI all-time

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Kappa Gamma UI intramural champs

By SCOTT TROTTER
Sports Editor

Delta Chi Fraternity won the Intramural Men's Frisbee Golf over Sigma Alpha Epsilon Saturday but the men of SAE became the 1989 Spring Intramural Champions following the weekend's final intramural event.

SAE finished the spring season with 1,965.5 total points, nudging out second and third place finishers Delta Chi (1,926 points) and Alpha Tau Omega (1,655).

"We've won the championship a lot in the past and we're glad to have kept the tradition going," said SAE member Mark Harless.

The overall women's champion is Kappa Kappa Gamma with 866 points, followed by Campbell Hall with 668 points and Houston Hall with 654.

"It's exciting that we pulled together as a house and won the championship," said Kappa member Amber Van Ocker.

Several men's residence halls also finished strong in season scoring, with Borah Hall's 1,179 points leading the way. Snow Hall finished with 1,177.25 and Lindley Hall tallied 919.

The intramural spring season's individual and team winners are:

■ SKIING. For the men's individual competition Pat Revallier picked up the victory, while Jennifer Jeffries of Kappa Kappa Gamma won the skiing event for the women.

■ TABLE TENNIS (S). Toan Hua of Chrisman Hall picked up the win for the men's division in singles table tennis.

■ TABLE TENNIS (D). Wade Brown and Stewart Markow won the men's division.

■ RACQUETBALL (D). Beta Theta Pi members Jeff Steffens and Jamie Hjort teamed up for a first place win in this competition.

■ POWERLIFTING. In the featherweight division, Mark Prince of Delta Tau Delta won for the third consecutive time, while Grant Woodhead of Delta Chi won the light middleweight division. Mark Harless won the middleweight division and John Gomes won the light heavy-weight division.

In the middle heavyweight division Chris Sabala of Whitman Hall got a victory and the heavyweight division was won by Kevin Grosse, marking another powerlifting win for the Deltas.

The women didn't have a strong turnout, but Tammi Lesh won her division.

■ BADMINTON (S). Lesh picked up another intramural victory by winning the women's division.

Congrain Lia won the badminton singles competition for the men's division.

■ BADMINTON (D). Javed and Zamir Munir took the victory in the men's division, while Bridget Donnelly and Becky Wohlschlegel won the women's competition.

■ HORSESHOE (D). Tim Lynch and Grant Fagg won the men's intramural horseshoes competition.

■ PADDLEBALL (D). Beta Theta Pi members Jeff Steffens and Chris Mader clubbed their way to victory in the men's division.

■ CO-REC TENNIS. Jason Lingg and Jodey Farwell teamed up for a first place win.

■ BASKETBALL (C). The Service Dept. won competitive basketball for the men and the Has Beens won for the women.

■ BASKETBALL (R). For recreational basketball the Flen Fatales won for the men.

■ CO-REC VOLLEYBALL (C). Top Gun won in the competitive division.

■ CO-REC VOLLEYBALL (R). The Whalers came out on top in the recreational league.

■ SOFTBALL (C). The Frozen Ropes easily won this for the competitive division for the men, the Sluggers won for the women.

■ SOFTBALL (R). The competitive men's division was won by the Sigma Nu Oldies.

■ 2-ON-2 VOLLEYBALL. VBC won for the men and Alpha 3 for the women.

■ CO-REC SOCCER. Kappa Kappa Gamma and Phi Gamma Delta teamed up for a win.

■ FRISBEE GOLF. The final intramural competition of the year was won by Delta Chi Fraternity.

Vandal football ends spring season play

By SCOTT TROTTER
Sports Editor

The UI football team ended spring season scrimmages Friday evening in the Kibbie Dome as the Gold squad held the Silver team to 12 yards of offense in the second half en route to a 17-14 victory.

The Gold squad was led offensively by quarterback Pat West, who passed for 275 yards. All-American quarterback John Friesz played just two series for the Silver team and finished with four of eight for 77 yards passing performance, which included a seven-play, 70-yard touchdown march to open the game.

West led the Gold to two first-half touchdowns and a field goal. After the scrimmage he was named as the Vandals' No. 2 quarterback behind Friesz by Head Coach John L. Smith.

"Pat West, particularly in the first half, was on the money," Smith said. "He had a great first half. Both offenses played real well."

West, who was 18-of-29 in passing, ended scoring with his 5-yard touchdown pass to David

Jackson with 44 seconds left in the first half. The 17-14 first half score carried through the second half, which saw tough defensive play.

"After the first half, I thought they (the defensive units) buckled down and played quite well," Smith said. "I was pleased with the defense. There was some good hitting going on."

Charlie Oliver led the defenses of both the Silver and Gold teams with an interception, a pass deflection and six tackles, while Oliver's Silver teammates Tom Bell and Mark Matthews both had seven tackles. Noah Ramsey led the Gold with four tackles.

Offensively David Jackson had three catches for 91 yards for the Silver and teammate Damon Daniels was the game's leading rusher with 43 yards and a touchdown.

"I was pleased from the standpoint that it was not very sloppy until the last quarter, Smith" said. "It surprised me that it was as good a game as it was. A lot of time kids that are not getting a lot of snaps during the spring and then all the sudden get a lot, sometimes play a sloppy game."

Tennis ties with BSU

By LYNNETTE PIXLEY
Sports Writer

The UI women's tennis team had a difficult time over the weekend as the Lady Vandals ended up in a fifth place tie with Boise State University at the Big Sky Championships in Cheney, Wash.

In a close match against Northern Arizona University in round one, NAU defeated Idaho 5-4. Both Patty and Cathy Shanander defeated their opponents in singles and doubles action.

Idaho faced its toughest competitors in round two, losing to Weber State 9-0. In doubles action, the Shanander sisters lost for the first time this year.

Cathy Shanander was able to beat out Dawn Bulgin of Montana State in the third round 6-3, 6-2, as well as defeating Michelle Cutler and Gretchen Meikle in doubles with her sister Patty. The final score was Montana State 6, Idaho 3.

In round four against the University of Nevada-Reno the team had problems once again, as the only win for the team came from Lynda Leroux and Dena Thomas as they defeated Laura McCarthy and Sheri Gerecht in doubles 6-3, 6-2. The final score was UNR 8, Idaho 1.

In the fifth round Idaho was able to beat out BSU 5-4. In singles Patty Shanander defeated Teri Croson, 6-4, 6-3. Cathy Shanander was equally successful defeating Ronna Rhodes 6-3, 6-3. The Shananders went on to doubles action defeating Rhodes and Deirder Dunphy, 3-6, 6-2, 7-6.

Final team standings were Weber State at 5-2 for a total of 42 points, Montana State 4-1, 23 points, Nevada-Reno 3-2, 28 points, NAU 1-4, 15 points, Idaho 1-4, 13 points and BSU ended 1-4, 13 points.

Third-year architecture students design city center

By DENA BANDAIZAN
Staff Writer

Designing an urban space is the challenge that UI third year architecture students have been given as the final project in Design Studio 354. The students are designing 20 elements of a city center including a church, apartment building and plaza. "The tendency is to design individual buildings and not to consider the urban environment. Through this project we hope to have the students think in a more social way about architecture," said Nels Reese, assistant professor of architecture.

The city should be a stage set or a prop for living, Reese said. "We are challenging them to attend to the urban issues and create an exciting urban space," Reese said.

"It is urban space for the sake of people, instead of architecture," said Sam Nishex, a student working on the project.

The students were divided into pairs or groups of three to work on their randomly selected segment of the imaginary city. The students spent a week analyzing the aspects of their particular assignment — for example, what makes a good plaza.

"We had to think about how people would move through the space and what goes on in the plaza," said Mike Levendofski.

The next step was designing the building or space. There were no restrictions on the designs or style, only that the urban elements form a whole.

"It is interesting to see everyone's types of architecture," Reese said.

Being sensitive to the surrounding designs proved to be one of the most challenging parts of the project.

"Working with four people is unbearable," said Tamara McEever, third year student.

The designers had to consider not only their partners' opinions and style, but the design of adjacent buildings and the codes of the city.

Some groups had to be more flexible in their designs than others. The plazas, for example, had to adjust to the buildings surrounding them.

"We are designing (our plaza) as we go to make things work," Levendofski said.

Reese said the plazas are the glue that holds all the parts together.

"The colors of the plaza are somewhat matched to what everyone else is doing, our design ties everything together," Levendofski said. "Obviously we are working closely with the other groups."

Designers of the apartment buildings had different concerns.

"We had to consider people's private homes," Brian Beckler said. "Our design has a cafe, a bistro and a drugstore on the street with apartments behind. We are dealing with a division between public and private space. My group wanted to tone the design down so it didn't look like a typical apartment building."

The third part of the assignment is to build a model. The scale of the models is 1/4 inch = 1 foot. All of the elements will be fit together to form the city center. The model will be displayed on the second floor of the Art and Architecture building after May 3. The finished size of the model will be from 2 to 4 feet high and 12 feet square.

The models are tedious and expensive, some groups are spending up to $80 on the project.

Reese, who is team teaching the design studio with Professor Bob Baron and Assistant Professor Joseph Numbers, said that they are pleased with this project.

"This project brings all the elements of architecture we've studied through the year together and stresses social interaction," Reese said.

The urban space project is the most complex assignment of the year. Reese said the third year, the beginning of the professional architecture program, is the most difficult of the program. The students have had a project due almost every week.

"Architecture is a lot of work and you must be committed, but I don't want anyone to stay in the program if they are not enjoying it," Reese said.

BFA candidates exhibit work

Senior thesis show features seven artists

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
Entertainment Editor

Seven senior Bachelor of Fine Arts candidates opened an exhibit of their thesis work Monday at Ridenbaugh Gallery.

David Waterman, Tami Dutton, Michael Kerner, Michael T. Semick, Shelley Bobeck, Julia Vance Probst and Andy Sewell are exhibiting their works which range from graphic designs to sculptures and watercolor.

The senior thesis show is the final step for the students who will receive their Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees this month.

Combining the work of seven artists into one show allows for much diversity in both style and media. Five out of the seven artists are graduating with a graphic design emphasis.

The work displayed ranges from designs for the Moscow Renaissance Fair and the Palouse Journal to Kerner's environmentally motivated sculpture, "Scorched Earth, Hairspray, and Cushion."

"I believe art is a very valuable method of expression."

— Andy Sewell
BFA candidate

Kerner's sculpture involves a paper mache globe, several cans of Aqua Net hairspray, a large black cushion and a plastic hair net. The piece incorporates headlines about current environmental issues facing the world to create a rather bleak picture of today's earth.

"My art involves placing simple images, most with me since childhood, in meaningful contexts to express new emotions and opinions," Kerner said.

Sewell's Christian beliefs are prevalent in many of his displayed works, one of which depicts God at the drawing board creating man.

"I believe art is a very valuable method of expression. It is a means by which one can make a statement, express an opinion or represent a truth," Sewell writes to describe his work.

Bobeck's work emphasizes brilliant flowers using macro views of petals and leaves. Much of her work is on a very large scale, the largest of which is on a 6-by-6-foot canvas.

Dutton's prints deal with wildlife subject matter. Wildlife such as whales and lizards are quite prevalent in her work.

The senior BFA thesis show will be on display at Ridenbaugh Gallery until May 10.

Now all you have to worry about are midterms and finals.

We don't believe academic pressure should be complicated by financial pressure. That's why BofA has been offering student loans for more than 25 years. To find out if you qualify for one, just make an appointment with your school's Financial Aid Administrator. Then call 1-818-578-7626, collect, and we'll mail you an application. Or send in a card from one of our posters on campus. Go ahead—it could be the easiest answer to the toughest question you'll face all year.
