True West opens Collette

TTrue West, a play by Sam Shepard exploring the relationship of two brothers, will open the Collette Theater season Thursday, with 8 p.m. performances through Saturday and a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday.

"It's very raw and guttural while being poetic, and that's very attractive," director Dale Hitsman said of the script. Hitsman directed last year's Home Free and will be remembered by audiences for his performances in As Is and Orphans.

Shepard centers the play around two brothers, Lee and Austin, their relationship and the conflict imposed by their opposite personalities.

Austin portrays a society-conformed individual currently working on a screenplay. Lee, a raw and instinctual character, re-enters his brother's life after a five-year absence and attempts to manipulate both his brother and his film producer, Saul, by posing as a screenwriter.

"Lee manipulates and talks his way into a situation on the verge of trying to destroy his brother's life," Hitsman said. "It just doesn't quite mesh when both sides cross over to each other."

The cast includes Steve Hartnett as Austin, Mike Behrens as Lee, Brad Watson as Saul and Kristin Pressey as Mom.

"This play is Sam Shepard's most realistic, but it's definitely challenging," stage manager Cecilia Thunes said. "There's a lot of symbolism. Each line written contains so much more he's trying to say."

According to Thunes, the subplot demonstrates that the "true West" is not the romantic place people often fantasize about.

"True West's a great vehicle for actors with its human psyche on the extreme," Behrens said. "Everybody fantasizes about and wants to be free and reckless, and people can relate to that in Lee."

Tickets are $3 at the door or can be purchased in advance at Ticket Express in the SUB. Early ticket purchases are recommended because the Collette Theater only seats 85.

Collette Theater productions are student-produced to give students practical hands-on experience in all areas of theater. The Strangest Kind of Romance and Chocolate Cake will be presented Nov. 16-19.

Food poisoning unconfirmed Test results come back negative

By SHERRY DEAL — News Editor

Tests concerning a suspected outbreak of food poisoning among people who ate at the Wallace Complex cafeteria last week came back negative Monday, according to Dr. Donald Chin, director of the Student Health Center.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, more than 40 students and faculty members reported to the health center complaining of flu-like symptoms, including severe stomach cramps, diarrhea and fever. All had eaten at the Wallace Complex recently, and health officials suspected food poisoning.

University of Idaho President Elisabeth Zinser and Vice President of Academic Affairs Thomas Bell, who ate at the Wallace cafeteria Monday afternoon, were among those who were ill.

Food samples sent to a laboratory for testing came back negative for salmonella and shigella, the two most common causes of food poisoning, according to Chin.

Chin said other causes of food poisoning have not yet been tested for.

Chin said that while something else might have caused the epidemic, he suspected food poisoning because all those who came to the center had eaten in the cafeteria recently.

"There's always a possibility that this may just be a flu epidemic," Chin said. "However, if it was a flu epidemic, it would seem like we would find it elsewhere on campus."

According to Environmental Health Director Paul Gunther of the North Central Health District, no other testing is being done to determine the cause of the illnesses.

Hampton linked to scandal

By JULIE YOUNG
Staff Writer

Jazz musician Lionel Hampton, benefactor of the University of Idaho music program and namesake to the Lionel Hampton School of Music, has been linked to allegations that former Housing Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr. helped political friends secure Housing and Urban Development grants and subsidies for housing projects.

Pierce refused to answer any questions Tuesday when he appeared before the House subcommittee that probed into the allegations.

An article in the Washington Post's Sept. 4-10 National Weekly Edition said that Hampton received direct assistance from Pierce after he reported that he had been discriminated against in a proposed Atlanta project. HUD officials eventually rejected the project because it was located at a Civil War battle site.

According to staff reports, the Post said that Hampton received help from a special assistant assigned to him by Pierce after the jazz musician told Pierce he had been treated unfairly because he was black.

However, Professor Lynn Skinner from the Lionel Hampton School of Music was skeptical that the musician ever said anything like that to Pierce.

"It would be my personal feeling that he didn't have anything to do with it," Skinner said. "I don't think there was ever a doubt."

Skinner also said that someone like Hampton is in a position to know many people.

"That's just his stature that he knows everybody," Skinner said. "There isn't a jazz musician or politician he doesn't know."

A House committee official said that although Hampton's name has come up before the House of Representatives Government Operations subcommittee several times and he might be called in to testify, he is not considered a major part of the circle of fraud and waste attached to Pierce's eight-year term as HUD secretary.

Centennial fund raising effort approaches $43 million goal

By ERIC SCHWARZE
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho's Centennial fundraising campaign has reached nearly $42 million, only $1 million shy of its initial goal.

"While we expect to exceed the original goal sometime this fall, the campaign effort will continue in a wrap-up phase through the end of December," said Bill Belknap, UI Foundation executive director.

The fundraiser, the largest of its kind in state history, began in September 1987, and is expected to close at the end of this year. Equipment and cash donations from the $43 million drive will be used for student and faculty recruitment, scholarships, research, academic programs and construction projects.

George Simmons, chairman of the college gift division, said the campaign is divided into the internal division, which involves students, colleges and alumni, and the external division, which involves volunteers and corporations.

One part of the campaign, the construction of a new sidewalk on the corner of the Administration lawn, is funded by students and alumni, according to Bruce Pitman, UI dean of Student Advisory Services. The sidewalk starts near the Art and Architecture buildings and stops at the Life Sciences building.

Pitman said bricks bought by graduating classes and reunion groups will be engraved with donors' names and placed on the sidewalk's periphery. The $40 bricks can be ordered through the UI Alumni Office or through Student Advisory Services.

Pitman said half of the $40 goes toward the construction of the sidewalk and the brick itself, and the other half will be placed in the Student Leadership Fund.

The fundraising event's external division involves soliciting funds through direct mail and personal contact. Simmons said that while soliciting funds is nothing new, this is the first time the university has set a goal.

"Important individual and corporate solicitations are being made this fall under the leadership of the campaign's general chairman, Dr. J. Kirk Sullivan," Belknap said. "These activities will put the campaign over the top."

Sullivan is Boise Cascade's vice president for governmental and

He said 50 stool samples were sent to the laboratory, and all of them came back negative.

Gunther said this indicates that the illness would have been caused by a virus rather than by bacteria in the food.

An informal health inspection of the cafeteria Wednesday showed that everything met standard regulations. Gunther said even though there were no problems with the inspection, cafeteria employees are doing some checking on their own.

Joe Schneckenburger, resident dining director of University Dining Services, said employees are basically just testing things that have already been inspected to ensure the correct procedures are being followed.

"We have gone through things more carefully with a fine tooth comb to make sure everything is right," Schneckenburger said.

No new cases have been reported since Thursday, and Chin said he believes the epidemic has ended.

WELLNESS KICK-OFF

The Wallace Complex cafeteria begins a new program today designed to help students and faculty learn more about nutritional content and caloric makeup of foods. The program will take place in the cafeteria every Tuesday during lunchtime and will feature video tapes, recipes and pamphlets for diet-conscious students.

The program is sponsored by Marriott and will be put on by UI dietician students. There is no extra charge for the special lunch.

ASUI PRESENTS FEE INFORMATION

Living group presidents and representatives are encouraged to attend a presentation by ASUI officers about the student fee issue Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the SUB Gold Room.

Presidents and representatives are also encouraged to gather questions and comments from living group members to submit at the question and answer session following the meeting.

Belknap said 1,313 corporations have contributed so far. Hewlett-Packard, the largest contributor, donated engineering instruments in June.

Contributions given to the university are either spent immediately or are put into an endowment fund for future investment, according to Simmons.

Belknap said donors usually restrict their contributions.

"The causes are about as diverse as the university is," he said. "Monies have been contributed to just about every academic department on campus."

Contractor chosen to build business incubator facility on UI campus

By SHERRY DEAL
News Editor

University of Idaho recommended Panco Construction Co. of Spokane to build the business incubator at the corner of Sweet Avenue and Highway 95, after reviewing bids from six contractors.

According to Jerry Wallace, budget and planning assistant vice president, Panco met all the bid specification requirements and had the lowest bid at $1,098,411.

Wallace said the only step left before final approval of Panco's bid is approval from the Federal Economic Development Administration in Seattle. Information concerning the bid was already mailed to them.

According to Wallace, the EDA has already conducted preliminary checks on Panco, and he expects no problems with the bid.

Wallace said he dealt with Panco representatives Friday. Panco workers might do preliminary site work this week, but will be doing it at their own risk.

The EDA in Seattle is aware of Panco's request to start their site work, and has no objections.

Avoid bias and ask questions on fee issue

Is the ASUI going to sue the university? What is the difference between tuition and fees? Is there a lot of confusion and misinformation out there that needs to be straightened out?

You bet.

ASUI President Tina Kagi will give a presentation on the fee issue, followed by a question and answer session, Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the SUB Gold Room. Living group presidents and representatives are invited to attend.

"I'm going to present the facts in a very straightforward presentation and keep my opinion out of it," Kagi said. "I want to bring up the possible negative aspects also."

Attorney Ray Givens, who won North Idaho College's student fee battle, will introduce himself and answer questions but will not be presenting, as was earlier rumored. Givens was retained by the ASUI last month to research the fees vs. tuition issue and possibly take court action against the university.

However, there is still some question about the objectivity involved in the presentation.

"Givens be unbiased?" Residence Hall Association President Ray Horton said. "It's going to be a brainwashing session."

RHA passed a resolution Monday night stating its opposition to the ASUI's investigation of the fees vs. tuition issue.

Without getting both sides. Who's biased?

According to Kagi, the senate consensus was not to approach the meeting like a debate, but rather to obtain student feedback.

"I didn't think it was appropriate to ask Zinser to attend," Kagi said. "Zinser wants to talk to the senate alone first."

There should be a forum for debate along with outside sources' opinions on the matter.

"We haven't really discussed it," Kagi said. "If there's a demand for it, we will certainly do it." Plan on the demand.

RHA should have also planned on the demand from their constituents and waited to see what Givens had to offer before taking their position.

One presentation on the issue should eliminate the misconceptions about the ASUI's plans, but since the ASUI is using our money, the students deserve a more in-depth analysis of all the options and possible results.

Any questions?

— M.L. Garland

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Kagi wants input

Dear UI students:

There has been a great deal of discussion and controversy recently over the constitutionality of student fees at the University of Idaho. Some students are privy to accurate information and source documents regarding this issue; however, many seem to be relying on rumor and opinion that may not be the most reliable.

Please take a moment to consider these facts:

- Section 12 of the Territorial Act (or "charter") establishing the University of Idaho states that students shall not be charged "fees for tuition" at the University.

- The framers of Idaho's Constitution, through Section 10, guaranteed all the "rights, immunities, franchises, and endowments" granted under the Territorial Act to the University. Thus, Section 12 of the "charter," prohibiting tuition, was incorporated into Idaho's Constitution.

- A tuition-free education was also implemented into Idaho Code (Section 33-3717).

- In 1986, the statute prohibiting tuition, was amended to include a "definition of tuition" which allowed colleges to charge students fees for a broad range of service and limited tuition to the direct cost of instruction.

- That statute may be in violation of Idaho's Constitution and the charter of the University of Idaho which prohibit the University of Idaho from charging "fees for tuition."

- The definition of tuition has never been completely clarified.

- President Zinser is quoted in the August 28, 1989 issue of the Spokesman-Review as saying: "To the extent that students are paying fees that are used for basic programs, we do have tuition. We don't call it that. Perhaps that's a controversial thing to say, but the fact of the matter is, whatever terminology we use, we do have a general fee, and what is tuition?"

- Every full-time UI student pays $270 per semester in "matriculation fees" — this is the largest single fee we pay.

- Matriculation fees are deposited into the general receipts account which is used to fund many aspects of University operations.

- We have requested, but not received, a specific breakdown of the areas funded by matriculation fees.

- Matriculation fees in 1975 were $10 per semester; today we pay $270.

- The $25 fee increase approved last spring was used to fund, indirectly, faculty salaries, possibly in violation of Idaho's Constitution.

- This $25 fee increase and the entire $270 matriculation fee may violate the Idaho Constitution and the University of Idaho Charter.

- The ASUI does not, at this time, have an official opinion on whether or not to pursue a lawsuit over the constitutionality of our fees, especially the recent $25 fee increase.

- The ASUI budgeted $2,000 for legal counsel last spring. That fund (and no more at this point) is being utilized for legal guidance in the exploration of this issue.

- It is not a definite fact that student fees are state money; why would the State Board of Education request their attorney's opinion on the question if it were already an accepted fact?

- Fees have increased 150 percent over the past 10 years, far exceeding the rate of inflation.

- We want the students to have access to the most accurate information possible; until now we have not been able to openly discuss many of the options for addressing the fee issue.

- A presentation and question-and-answer session will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 4 1989 at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Building Gold Room, as part of the regular ASUI Senate meeting. We will present the issues, the options we have considered (and their possible consequences) as well as answer any questions you might have regarding student fees.

U.S. attorney irresponsible

I am writing to express some personal reflections on the current uproar in Idaho's Hispanic community sparked by U.S. Attorney Maurice Ellsworth's recent misleading report to the U.S. Department of Justice.

I support the coalition of groups who have joined forces with the Idaho Hispanic Commission to demand the resignation of Ellsworth, including The Northwest Coalition Against Malicious Harassment, Image de Idaho, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Idaho Migrant Council and the Alliance of Idaho Tribes.

Not surprisingly, this is not the first time that Ellsworth's conduct has caused Idaho citizens to criticize him for his insensitivity and lack of understanding regarding minority rights issues.

It appears Ellsworth believed by submitting this report labeled "sensitive" and "not for dissemination outside the Department," he could avoid his accountability to the Hispanic community of Idaho. It also seems he believed that by taking unanswered shots at an easy mark, he could submit a report by which the department may have concluded that he is actually knowledgeable on the subject of Idaho's drug problem. His report met neither of these two objectives.

By making rash generalizations and unsupported conclusions about Idaho Hispanics, he attempted to cloud the fact that current Idaho Department of Law Enforcement statistics reflect that 104 out of 1,773 drug-related arrests were attributable to Spanish-surnamed individuals.

DAVID

"Individuals" is a word that Ellsworth chose to ignore throughout his report. Instead, he elected to paint a picture of Idaho Hispanics as "organized crime families" whose close family ties made them hard organizations to infiltrate. Even though he claims he "didn't mean to single Hispanics out," the word appears time after time in the misguided report.

Ellsworth further chose to ignore the fact that disparate representation and other racial and cultural barriers including selective enforcement and prosecution play substantial factors in Idaho Law Enforcement statistics. These factors make it likely his conclusions are all the more unrealistic.

I was extremely offended by Ellsworth's feeble attempt to project objectivity by proclaiming that his great-grandmother was Hispanic (I suppose some of his best friends are Hispanic as well). If Ellsworth thinks his great-grandmother's race gives him the right to use insensitive and stereotypical language in official law enforcement reports, he is sorely mistaken. His proclamation was nothing more than an insult to my intelligence and yet another example of his ineptitude.

I do not dispute that there are Hispanics contributing to America's drug problem. Similarly, Ellsworth cannot dispute that over 70 percent of America's drug abusers are middle and upper-income Anglos. In light of these mutual concessions, could we not reasonably dispense with the erroneous conclusion that the propensity to engage in drug abuse and related activities is not linked to one's race. You and I may be convinced, but Ellsworth has problems with that one.

Ironically, now that the report has "leaked," Ellsworth has been more than anxious to meet with Idaho's Hispanic leaders. I tend to view his new-found interest in seeking the cooperation of the Hispanic community with considerable skepticism. I tend to agree more with writer Maria Salazar's position that "what Idaho needs is a U.S. attorney who takes the initiative to meet with minority leaders on an on-going basis" on issues which affect the community at large. There might even be a few of us who are cooperative, law-abiding citizens.

Ellsworth's irresponsibility and lack of insight warrants at best his resignation, at least censure.

Giselle performance in Pullman

The enduring classic Giselle will be performed Friday at 8 p.m. at the Beasley Coliseum in Pullman.

The American Festival Ballet will present the ballet that was first performed at the Paris Opera in 1841.

Giselle is the story of a love that extends well beyond the grave.

The first act begins with the beautiful Giselle discovering her love for handsome Albrecht. Giselle is driven to madness and death when she discovers that Albrecht is a nobleman engaged to someone in his own class.

The second act takes place among the supernatural world of the wilis, women spirits who force men to dance until they die. Giselle, now one of these spirits, protects her lover from her bloodthirsty sisters until dawn breaks their power.

Artist Director Paul Russell brings this classic closer to home by changing the set from the medieval German village to a small town in the Pacific Northwest, where Giselle is a maid and Albrecht is a lieutenant from a nearby fort. Russell changed the set to help celebrate the Idaho and Washington state centennials.

Ballerina Shirin Keyani stars as Giselle, a difficult role as it requires great acting skills as well as dancing skills.

Tickets are $15, $14 and $10 for adults, $10 and $8 for students, and $6 and $4 for children. Tickets are available at Cavanaugh's.

UI soloist to present graduate recital Thursday

University of Idaho graduate student and voice instructor Rebekah Demaree will present a free graduate recital Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Lionel Hampton School of Music Recital Hall.

Music has to be "just for the love of it," Demaree said. "You have to take the hard knocks that go with it."

"Music is a tenuous pursuit," she said. "You have to be in the right place at the right time."

Demaree has been a soloist for the Washington-Idaho Symphony and the Spokane Symphony and recently placed first at the Idaho Federate Music Clubs Competition.

"The degree requires two recitals, this one and one in the spring," she said. "I spent a lot of last year preparing for this recital."

STUDYBREAK

OPERA AT LCSC

The Western Opera Theater's production of Carmen opens the 1989-90 season of the Lewis-Clark State College Artists Series Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Lewiston High School Auditorium.

Carmen, one of the best-known tragedies in opera, is the tale of a young gypsy woman and her fate after she uses her powers to charm and betray a young army officer.

According to Artists Series Director Darcie Hard Reidner, Carmen, which will be performed in English, is a "well-organized opera."

As part of the Idaho Centennial, two productions of the 1989-90 Artists Series will feature Idaho artists.

Individual performance tickets are $12.50 for adults and $7.50 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are available at Myklebust's in Moscow and Lewiston and at the Artists Series Office in the LCSC Administration Building, Room 101.

Rust proves himself as leader

By DAYNA WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

University of Idaho senior John Rust was named last week's Big Sky Defensive Player of the Week following the the UI-Weber State College game.

"Every year as you get older you get better and better."

— John Rust
Vandal Football Player

"I was really excited to receive the award. It was such an honor," Rust said. "I played all right, and it probably was my best game."

Rust said he thinks the team is coming together well. "Every year as you get older you get better and better," Rust said.

"Defense really came out in the second half of the University of Montana game," Rust said. "We stopped them from winning."

Rust played at Washington State University for three years before transferring to UI in 1988. Last year he red-shirted, and he has started every game this year.

"John was a good player at WSU," Head Coach John L. Smith said. "This year he has taken over the leadership role in defense."

Rust graduated from Sandpoint High School with a 3.4 grade point average and was on the A-1 All-State team as an offensive lineman. He received honorable mention as a defensive lineman. In high school Rust lettered three times, as a tight end, a linebacker and a tackle. He also lettered in track.

Rust is also a member of the Pacific Northwest Ski Team.

He expects to graduate this year and wants to go into sports psychology.

His sister played basketball for Chico State and made the first cut for the 1980 U.S. Olympic Team.

Rust would like to see another Big Sky Championship for the Vandals.

"We can do it if we come out every week and play as hard as we can," Rust said.

LOOKING FOR ACTION. Senior transfer John Rust has taken over the leadership role for the Vandal defense this year. He hopes to lead UI to another conference championship. (JASON MUNROE)

Lady Vandals lose two in Montana

AMY WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho volleyball team ran into tough competition over the weekend and dropped two games to the University of Montana and Montana State University.

The Lady Vandals now stand at 2-4 in the Big Sky Conference and 10-6 for the season.

The Vandals failed to get their offense or blocking to work as Montana beat them 16-14, 15-3 and 15-6.

"Our defense couldn't kick in," Head Coach Tom Hilbert said. "We just kept making the same mistakes."

The Lady Vandals played better Saturday but still lost the match to Montana State University.

"They are a very competitive team," Hilbert said. "They didn't make the mistakes that were crucial."

The Lady Vandals played tough and stayed in the race, which went to four matches, 15-13, 13-15, 15-10 and 15-12. Stephanie Nowicki and Heide Hemmert led the Bobcats with 24 and 13 kills respectively.

"We had a lot of side-outs, but we couldn't get the points to win," Hilbert said.

UI's play was strong with team help from Karen Thompson's 21 kills and Debbie Thayer's 17 kills.

Marianne Moore contributed 41 assists.

With the road trip behind them, the Lady Vandals hope to break out of their slump as they prepare for a match with Weber State College Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Gym.

"We're looking forward to being in front of our crowd and seeing the factors change in our favor," Hilbert said. "The Big Sky Conference is still up for grabs."

"I have a beautiful new picture of myself now that I lost 55 lbs. with Nutri/System."

Our client,
Robin Brooks,
lost 55 lbs.

"I just love the way I look. Better yet, I love the way I feel. It's a big change from the way I used to feel. I was uncomfortable in social situations, so I would just stay home and eat. With Nutri/System counseling I overcame this problem. Now I'm strong, positive and self-confident. It's a brand new me."

Ineligibility woes: Cross Country has bad weekend

By AMY JAMISON
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho men's and women's cross country teams did not enjoy the best of weekends or the best of meets at the Washington State University Invitational in Pullman Saturday.

In fact, the men did not even compete.

According to UI Assistant Sports Information Director Roger McAfee, the ineligibility of Bernardo Barrios and the illnesses that plagued other team members kept the men's team in Moscow.

The women did compete Saturday and ran a sixth place finish out of six teams.

WSU placed first, Central Oregon Community College, finished second, Eastern Washington University notched third, Whitworth Community College was fourth, and Spokane Community College came in fifth.

Diane Knudson's time increased from past meets, but she still placed in the top 10. She crossed the line in eighth place with a 19:48.8 time.

Kappas win TKE Spike-off

Saturday the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity held its annual Volleyball Spike-Off and dance.

Those participating in the volleyball tournament included the Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Phi, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Pi Beta Phi sororities.

Kappa Kappa Gamma was the eventual winner.

According to Teke member Mark Lupher, the event was put together to let people know that yes, the Tekes do exist.

"The event was made up just for fun to let people know that the Tekes are on campus and what we are about," Lupher said. "It's hard to get people up here because we are way up on the hill."

Lupher said the event was a success, despite the weather.

"We are all real happy with the turnout," Lupher said. "It was very successful."

After the volleyball tournament the Tekes held a dance for all the participants.

"Everyone who participated turned out for the dance that night," Lupher said. "It was a good turnout."
