Vandals hit road

Texas A&M considers Davis for head coaching position

By J.C. CARTER
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho Vandals can clinch at least a tie for the Big Sky Conference regular season championship with a win over Northern Arizona University Thursday.

The Vandals, coming off an impressive 74-55 victory over Boise State University last week, lead Eastern Washington University in the BSC race by two games, with just three contests remaining in the regular season. A victory would assure UI of at least a tie for first place with EWU at the end of the season.

The Vandals, 11-2 in the conference and 21-4 overall, travel to Flagstaff, Ariz., to play the 3-9 NAU Lumberjacks, whom they demolished 84-59 earlier this season.

NAU is led by guard Steve Williams, who averages 13 points per game, and senior center Shawn Herman, who has been on fire in recent weeks. Herman, nominated for Big Sky Player of the Week last week, is NAU's second all-time leading shot blocker (78) and leads the team in rebounds with seven per game.

Williams, the team's leading scorer, contributed 25 points in an overtime loss to Montana State University last week.

UI senior Riley Smith leads the conference in rebounds and field goal percentage and ranks second in the BSC in scoring at nearly 22 points per game. UI guard Otis Livingston leads the conference in assists at 8.5 per game and is second in the league in steals at 2.3 per game.

The Vandals are peaking at the right time of the season. UI is just the eighth team out of 292 college hoop teams to reach the 20-victory plateau. Former Vandal Head Coach Don Monson and current Head Coach Kermit Davis are the only UI coaches to record back-to-back 20-win seasons.

Davis was mentioned earlier this week as a prime candidate for the vacant coaching job at Texas A & M University. The state of Texas is known as a hot spot for recruiting and has huge potential for any new coach.

Davis says he is very happy in Moscow, however, and would like to get a new contract. UI Athletic Director Gary Hunter and President Elisabeth Zinser are currently working with Davis on a multi-year UI contract.

"I told my players they would probably have to put up with me again next year," Davis said.

Davis said he was convinced the Texas opening would not hamper the players' attitudes.

"We are playing excellent basketball right now, and this situation will not affect our team's play for the rest of the year," he said.

The Vandals will travel directly from Arizona to Nevada to play the University of Nevada-Reno Wolfpack Friday.

UI's final game of the regular season will be March 1 against Eastern Washington University in Cheney, Wash. It will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Graduate students discuss issues with ASUI reps

By VIVIANE GILBERT
News Editor

Members of the ASUI and the Graduate and Professional Students Association met Friday, but have differing opinions about how the meeting went.

GPSA representatives had very positive impressions of the meeting, but ASUI representatives were less positive.

Two ASUI senators met with about seven graduate students to discuss their respective concerns about the GPSA's proposed referendum for an amendment to the ASUI Constitution.

The referendum would redefine membership, differentiating between graduate and undergraduate students, and request that 75 percent of the graduate student-paid fees be returned to the group. The approximately $45,000 would be used to fund graduate student activities.

Beth Kersey, a UI graduate student and an unofficial spokesman/leader of the GPSA, said she thought the meeting was very positive and covered issues that both sides needed to consider.

Kirby Nelson, a UI law student, said he thought the meeting was "really healthy" because the two groups were able to talk about their different concerns.

"It was the kind of dialogue that I hope there'd be more of," Nelson said. "It was free and full of discussion."

ASUI Sen. Lisa Krepel said she was disappointed and frustrated by the meeting because the graduate students were unwilling to compromise.

"I was hoping that there was something we could work out," Krepel said, "but it doesn't seem they've left anything for us to do. I left there feeling hopeless."

ASUI Sen. Bill Broadhead, who was assigned to represent the graduate students, said he too had hoped the graduate students would be more willing to negotiate.

"I felt they were not even willing to talk about the proposals," Broadhead said.

Broadhead has written up a seven-point proposal of programs addressing the GPSA's concerns.

"There are ways that the ASUI can make the quality of life better for graduate students," states the conclusion of the proposal.

Krepel said her impression of the meeting was that the graduate students were not interested in any kind of compromise because they wanted autonomy.

"They didn't want us (the ASUI) to meet their needs. They wanted to be separate," Krepel said.

Broadhead agreed, saying, "It seems their (the graduate students') main concern is not having anything to do with the ASUI."

Kersey said the GPSA did not want to stay within the ASUI because they did not want to have to deal with the possibility of different ASUI administrations reaching different interpretations of the GPSA's position.

A big concern of the GPSA, according to Kersey, was that due to high administrative turnover, the ASUI could not guarantee there would not be any constraints placed on the money the GPSA was asking for in future years.

"The ASUI was willing to work with us if we were willing to stay within the ranks of the ASUI," Kersey said.

However, that is not what the graduate students wanted to do, Kersey said.

The seven-point plan outlines ways Broadhead thought the ASUI would be able to help meet graduate student needs. The points are: 1) create an Academic Activities Board. This board would be funded proportionally to the current Activities Board, which distributes money to organizations, but would fund only academic organizations; 2) mod-

PRICHARD EXHIBIT

The Prichard Art Gallery will open an exhibit this week containing the works of David D. Spitzer and Susan Beck Conaway. The opening reception will be held Thursday from 5 p.m. - 9 p.m. Both artists will be at the reception to discuss their work and experiences.

Spitzer is a professor of art/philosophy at North Miami Dade Community College. His exhibit, Jazzshots: A Photographic Essay, consists of 55 black and white photographs of jazz artists.

Featured in the show are photographs of jazz legends Woody Herman, Miles Davis, Count Basie, Dizzy Gillespie and Ornette Coleman. Some of the musicians featured in the exhibition will play at this week's Lionel Hampton/Chevron Jazz Festival.

Conaway's exhibit, NEW MYTHS: Oil Paintings and

NASA HONORS PROFESSOR

A University of Idaho engineer in the NASA Space Engineering Research Center has been honored by the space agency with an outstanding performance award.

Sterling Whitaker, assistant professor of electrical engineering and senior VLSI (very large scale integrated circuit) engineer in the UI program, received the award at a recent NASA Symposium conducted on the UI campus.

Whitaker received the award for writing or being co-author on 14 technical papers in the past three months, teaching two classes (one a graduate-level course never before taught at the university), serving as adviser to three electrical engineering master of science candidates completing their degrees last fall, and serving as adviser to more than 10 master of science and doctor of philosophy degree candidates, all while working more than 40 hours per week on an advanced computer chip design.

Before joining the UI program, Whitaker worked with a computer chip manufacturing firm in the Pocatello area.

UI's Space Engineering Research Center is one of only nine programs in the United States designated a NASA research center. The program is the only one dedicated to high-speed electronics and computers.

According to Broadhead, the total cost for the programs would be $15,000-$20,000. He said he believed there would be room in the ASUI budget to implement the programs in fiscal year 1991.

Broadhead said he will present the proposal to the graduate students when the two groups meet Thursday.

Acclaimed entertainers perform at Jazz Festival

By JOE MCMICHAEL
Staff Writer

The 23rd annual Lionel Hampton/Chevron Jazz Festival, which begins Wednesday, features some of the most prominent jazz musicians in the world. How each came to be known as great is an interesting story. Many had ties to Benny Goodman and Louis Armstrong, while later-generation musicians used albums of these greats to practice their own instruments.

Lionel Hampton

Born in Louisville, Ky., and raised in Birmingham, Ala., Lionel Hampton moved to Los Angeles, where he started playing with Les Hite's band.

On a sweltering August night, while playing at the Paradise Club, Benny Goodman came to see the man everyone was talking about. It turned out to be the beginning of the Benny Goodman Quartet.

After the breakup of the legendary Goodman Quartet, Hampton began playing backup for Louis Armstrong. During a recording break, Hampton walked over to a vibraharp and played a tune. It soon became a hit, and Hampton has been known as the "King of the Vibes" ever since.

Hampton has spent 60 years in the big band business, has recorded hundreds of albums, and has amassed a real estate empire that includes everything from office buildings to oil wells, but if you ask him what the most thrilling moment in his career is, he'll tell you the naming of the University of Idaho School of Music after him just three years ago.

Hampton has made his concern for education evident. He has not only set up scholarship funds at this university but also at Duke University and the University of California-Los Angeles. He also speaks of his goal to build a university in Harlem, "where black kids can learn to be doctors, lawyers, even musicians."

Jeff Watts

Jeff Watts began playing the trumpet in the fourth grade, but when he was told he did not have the proper mouth and teeth structure, he moved to the snare drum. By the time he graduated from high school in suburban Pittsburgh, he had developed the skills needed to become the youngest tympanist (kettle drummer) in the Pittsburgh Youth Symphony.

Watts soon left Pittsburgh to continue his education at the prestigious Berklee School of Music in Boston. While there he gained valuable experience and learned to play all the percussion instruments. Disenchanted with his lack of drumming recognition, he joined Wynton Marsalis in 1982.

Today Watts plays in a band fronted by saxophonist Branford Marsalis. International tours, extensive concert dates and recording sessions keep him busy.

Branford Marsalis

Born August 26, 1960, into one of New Orleans' most formidable musical families, Branford Marsalis has come to be known as a versatile multi-reed player.

Marsalis attended the Berklee School of Music, where his playing ability ballooned. After leaving Boston, Marsalis landed in New York, where he started playing with Art Blakey's big band. This gave him the chance to work with his brother Wynton. Marsalis is also the central figure in Sting's world-class touring and recording band.

Hank Jones

Born in Vicksburg, Miss., the eight-month-old Hank Jones moved to Pontiac, Mich., where he began playing professional gigs at the age of 13. After graduating from high school in 1943, Jones moved to New York, where he began playing with Hot Lips Page at the Onyx Club on 52nd Street. He also played with Norman Granz, Billy Eckstine and Ella Fitzgerald.

Jones' ability to play anything from traditional to modern to mainstream and pop sets him apart.

Freddie Hubbard

Voted best trumpet player in the world in a recent Downbeat readers' poll, Freddie Hubbard has been dazzling audiences for years.

Born and raised in Indianapolis, Hubbard started his music lessons in junior high. When he was not making money setting up pins at the neighborhood bowling alley, he and his friends were trying to reproduce music off the most popular albums.

Hubbard later attended Jordan College, where he was asked to leave for playing too much jazz. He now feels fortunate this happened because it gave him more time to play and hone his talents with other jazz greats.

Hubbard left for New York and hooked up with Miles Davis, who arranged a contract with Blue Note Records. Through the years he gathered quite a following, but it was not until his "Red Clay" recording in the early '70s that he became a superstar.

Al Grey

Born in Aldie, Va., Al Grey's family moved to Pottstown, Pa., when he was two years old. While still in high school, Grey participated in district and state competitions and was selected to play trombone with the national winners in a 500-piece big band directed by the great Leopold Stokowski.

Since then Grey has performed with other leading big bands, including those of Benny Carter, Lucky Millinder, Dizzy Gillespie and Lionel Hampton.

The Hi-Lo's!

Formed in 1953, the Hi-Lo's! are comprised of Clark Burroughs, lead singer; Don Shelton, tenor; Bob Morse, baritone; and Gene Puerling, bass. The group disbanded between 1963 and 1977 but has since been a regular on the campus circuit.

The group received a Grammy nomination in 1981, and Puerling has accumulated 14 Grammy nominations for his work with the Hi-Lo's! and The Singers Unlimited.

Women lose to NAU; top UNR Remain second in Big Sky Conference

By MATT LAWSON
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho Lady Vandals avoided a sweep on the road by defeating the University of Nevada-Reno 67-58 Sunday night.

UI lost in a close struggle to Northern Arizona University 56-54 Thursday in Flagstaff.

The Lady Vandals tied the game 30-30 early in the second half before NAU went on a 14-7 run to take a 44-37 lead.

UI pulled within two points several times, including 54-52 on a three-pointer by Hettie DeJong with 40 seconds remaining.

DeJong led all scorers with 21 points, while Sabrina Dial continued her steady play with 12 points. Sherry Peterson was also a bright spot in the loss with eight points and nine rebounds.

The Lady Vandals struggled shooting the ball and finished with 43 percent (23-53) from the field and 41 percent (7-17) from the foul line.

The third time was the charm for the Lady Vandals in their victory over UNR.

The game was delayed twice because of heavy snowfall in Nevada before the teams finally played in a third attempt Sunday night.

The delay could not slow down DeJong, as she continued her excellent road trip with a career-high 26 points and 10 rebounds.

Dial scored 21 points, which marked the first time two UI players scored more than 20 points in one game.

The Lady Vandals played an inspired second half to capture the victory after trailing 27-26 at halftime.

DeJong and Dial contributed by shooting a combined 66 percent (20-30).

The Lady Vandals, 16-7 overall and 8-4 in conference play, are within a half-game of second-place Boise State University.

UI hosts Montana State University Friday and the University of Montana Saturday. Due to the Jazz Festival, both games will be held in the Memorial Gym. The games begin at 7:30 p.m.

Three UI indoor track records broken

By TOM BITHELL
Staff Writer

Two local athletes qualified for the NCAA Championships, and three new University of Idaho records were set during a busy two-meet weekend in the ASUI-Kibbie Dome.

Friday night the Vandal men's and women's track teams hosted the 15th Annual Esselburn Toyota Vandal Indoor Invitational Track Meet, and Saturday they hosted the Ramada Inn-Lewiston Developmental Indoor Track and Field Meet.

UI's Patrick Williams and Washington State University's George Ogbeide qualified for the NCAA Championships in the 55-meter run. Ogbeide, a former Vandal who transferred after his sophomore year, set a new meet and WSU record with a time of 6.16 seconds. Williams set a new UI record with a time of 6.19 seconds, breaking his previous record of 6.23 set earlier this year. Ogbeide and Williams' times rank them third and fifth in the nation, as of last weekend.

Men's Head Coach Mike Keller said he is optimistic about Williams' chances at the NCAA Championships.

"The thing about Patrick I think is encouraging is his consistency at 6.19 and 6.20 seconds. If he runs 6.19 (at the NAAs), he'll make the finals," Keller said.

Keller also said he thinks he has potential NCAA qualifiers in Eversley Linley and Rob Demick for the half-mile and in Bernardo Barrios for the 5,000.

"The two half-milers I think have a chance to qualify, but they just have to be running a little better tactic races," Keller said. "I'm going to take Barrios down to Pocatello probably next weekend and try to qualify him at 5,000 meters rather than 3,000. We'll run at elevation so we get an elevation differential added. I think he can qualify in the 5,000, especially in Pocatello."

New UI records were also set in the men's 200-meter race and in the women's 55-meter high hurdles.

Eric Haynes set a 200-meter record with a time of 21.48 seconds, and Karen McCloskey had a time of 8.29 seconds to set the high hurdles record.

ardcore Co-op

The timeless question, "How do you get a good job without experience, and how do you get that experience without a good job?"

The answer could be Microsoft's Co-op Program. At Microsoft, anything can happen. As a Technical Associate Co-op, you'll provide technical phone support to a variety of users of Microsoft software all across the U.S. On an average day, you may talk to a Midwestern housewife or an East Coast executive one minute, and Julia Child or an owner of a small software development company the next. If you are comfortable with word processors, spreadsheets, windows, BASIC, C, Pascal or MASM, this is a great opportunity for you to get real-world experience before graduation.

We're looking for students who want to prove something to themselves — that they've got the enthusiasm and motivation needed to make it with the world's leader in microcomputer software. Excellent command of the English language and great problem-solving skills are a must. Experience as a computer tutor or programmer is a definite plus.

Our paid co-op positions are full-time and last for a duration of nine months. Relocation assistance is available for non-local participants. Additional benefits include a competitive salary, membership in our local health club and software discounts. In fact, after you complete the nine month program, you'll get the ultimate discount on an IBM compatible or Macintosh computer (depending on group assignment) — it will be yours to keep!

Act now —
We're hiring for Summer and Fall.

We have a limited number of co-op positions. Come to our information session on February 21st, 3:00 pm, Kiva, Education Bldg., or contact the Cooperative Education Office for more information about the program, including eligibility and the upcoming visit to your campus. Microsoft is an equal opportunity employer.
