MSU defeats Vandals

The Montana State University Bobcats defeated the Vandals Saturday in the Dome 27-24. Next week the Vandals travel to take on Southwest Texas State University.

I.D. cards cut down on checks

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
Editor

University of Idaho identification cards can soon be used to buy food as early as next week, according to Jerry Curtis, director of University Dining Services by Marriott.

The concept, called the Vandal Card, allows holders of UI student, staff or faculty identification cards to pre-purchase food from any of the UDS outlets.

Card holders may prepay in increments $25, $50, $100 or $200 and later present the card at the time they purchase food from UDS facilities on campus. A card reader deducts the amount of purchase from the original amount.

In addition to benefits of not having to carry cash or checks for food, money placed on the Vandal Card account receives a percentage of bonus buying power. For example, $50 placed on account would actually buy $51.50 worth of food—an extra three percent.

The highest amount allowed to be placed on a Vandal Card account would be $200, which receives a seven percent bonus.

The Vandal Card may be used at the Vandal Cafe, the Vandal Corner, the Blue Bucket Inn, the Golf Course, the Satellite SUB, the ASUI/Kibbie Dome concession stands and the Wallace Cafeteria. Purchases made at the Wallace Cafeteria receive an additional 10 percent discount, Curtis said.

Money can be placed on account at any food service location.

The Vandal Card is intended in part to cut down on the number of bad checks received by UDS each year. With the introduction of the Vandal Card system, UDS is implementing a new check policy making the minimum amount of purchase by check $3. Check writers are required to show picture identification, and each check must show a student identification number, Social Security number, phone number and a current address.

UI engineering students score top in nation

By AMTUL-MANNAN SHEIKH
Staff Writer

University of Idaho senior engineering students earned the highest pass rate, 98.55 percent, in the nation on the spring Engineer-in-Training (EIT) test.

This year 68 out of 69 UI engineering students passed the exam, a beginning step toward becoming a licensed professional engineer. The students represent agricultural, electrical, chemical, civil, computer, geological, mechanical, metallurgical and mining engineering, all offered by the college of engineering and the college of mines and earth resources.

"In my experience, University of Idaho students have always had an average EIT score higher than the state average," said Weldon Tovey, associate dean of the college of engineering and professor of engineering science.

"I've never seen the Idaho average lower than about sixth in the nation. This year's record was an outstanding effort by our students."

Tovey noted that the mean score received by all Idaho examinees was also the highest in the nation. He said a total of 97 Idaho examinees passed the test and 19 of those were not UI students. Of those "a handful are Idaho State University students and the others are engineers who moved into the state from somewhere else," Tovey said.

"Although this really doesn't really qualify the University of Idaho as being the top engineering school in the nation, it certainly indicates that we have a solid program," he said.

David L. Curtis, professional engineer and executive secretary of the board of professional engineers and professional land surveyors, said, "Considering that most of the Idaho examinees were Idaho educated, it speaks well for the engineering education being provided in our state."

Along with scoring high on the spring exam, the engineering department had another accomplishment. Bassem Khafagi, a doctorate student in civil engineering was awarded a prize of $1000 for his paper entitled, "International Students Contribution to Engineering and Technology." Along with the prize Khafagi was invited to speak at the National Convention. Khafagi is a student from Cairo, Egypt.

New VP for University Relations enjoys challenging position

By STEPHANIE BAILEY
News Editor

New vice president for university relations and development Harry Peterson has a fantasy where he would bus everyone at the University around the country and visit other campuses. "University of Idaho would come off very well with regards to being student oriented, attention from faculty and physical attractiveness of the campus," Peterson said.

Peterson was the former executive assistant to the chancellor at the University of Wisconsin in Madison and his background includes the position of dean of student life for six years at University of Wisconsin in Green Bay. Peterson was chosen from nearly 100 candidates for his position at the UI.

After being at Idaho for only a little less than two months Peterson said so far he "loves the place."

"It's terrific. It's large enough to be comprehensive yet small enough that one person can make a great difference," Peterson said.

"To be able to focus is a welcome change and to see projects through to the end," Peterson said.

Duties for the vice president's position include alumni relations, working with the communications office, development and fundraising and legislative relations. Peterson's salary is $80,000.

Peterson's goals include working closely with the legislature to improve pay for faculty and helping plan the budget for the regents.

"That's very important for a state University," Peterson said.

Peterson works closely with the academic vice president and the vice president for financial affairs, but President Zinser has the final say in all decisions. The directors of development, alumni relations, and university communications report to Peterson.

Although his job duties don't directly deal with student relations, Peterson said he was looking forward to meeting and interacting more with Idaho's student population.

"Alumni and others used to be students here and the current members are important," Peter-

Delts dry off for awhile

By LARRY OLSEN
Staff Writer

What started as an impromptu party the day before rush turned into trouble for the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

On Tuesday, Aug. 21, Delta Tau Delta had what university officials called a spontaneous function. But, because rushees were present, the party was also considered a rush function. Kegs and other fraternity members were also present. An unknown student reported the function to Bruce Pitman the next day.

A pre-rush function is an annual affair at the Delt's and in the past has not caused a problem. Due to the large number of rushees and people at the party this year, however, the function soon grew to greater proportions.

"As the party became bigger we realized the mistake that was made," said Cody Hall, vice president of Delta Tau Delta.

According to university sources, this incident should not be overlooked by the greek community.

"This (Delt violation) will not hurt the greek image on campus but is something everyone can learn from," said University of Idaho Greek Advisor Linda Wilson.

Wilson feels that actions taken in response to this incident should be looked at as sanctions rather than probation. Delta Tau Delta national rules were not broken so the incident is strictly a university problem.

Several disciplinary measures will be taken in response to the incident. Any social functions held from now until Oct. 15 must be dry. Also, Delts will have five to six weekends of community and campus service. This will consist of helping with improvements at Robinson park and various projects in Moscow.

The incident is primarily between Delta Tau Delta and the university.

"IFC and Tribunal have nothing to do with the Delt infraction," said Tribunal chairman Mike Smoles.

Senate office moves this weekend

By ANDREA VOGT
Staff Writer

The remodeling of the ASUI Senate office is projected to be completed by this weekend, nearly two weeks later than expected.

The renovation is part of a plan expanding New Student Services into the old senate office and moving the senate into the former ASUI Productions office.

The senators, whose office furnishings have been crammed into a corner of the Vandal Lounge several weeks now, have expressed concern about the tardy completion of the renovation.

Sen. Bill Heffner wrote a letter of concern to the SUB General Manager Dean Vettrus on July 24, urging the university to speed up the project. According to Heffner, Vettrus responded with a letter promising completion by Aug. 24. But unexpected complications made that goal impossible.

Vettrus said one of the reasons the construction was unfinished was because of last minute requests by some of the people in the offices.

"The construction had already started and they had to tear a lot down and start from scratch again.

But according to Heffner, no new changes were requested for the senate's portion of the remodel.

"He (Vettrus) still continues to give me deadlines that I know cannot be met," Heffner said. Heffner does not believe the remodel will be completed by this weekend.

The decision to move the senate in the first place occurred after an initial vote last spring against the move. Funding for the construction was to come out of the SUB budget which comes out of student fees.

The senate felt the remodeling would be too expensive and voted the project down.

Over the summer Vettrus conducted a phone vote, which included six new senators, to vote on the renovation, and a majority approved.

ASUI Vice President Mike Gotch claims that according to the ASUI Rules and Regulations, this vote was not binding to the senate in any way. An official phone vote must be conducted by the vice-president.

However, since the money for the project is not coming from the ASUI budget their approval is not necessary.

"Dean Vettrus conducted a phone vote," Gotch said, "but the senate never officially voted on the move. I think if Dean Vettrus would like to be a student senator he should take some classes and run," Gotch said.

Sen. Amy Anderson was in support of the renovation.

"It really could go either way for us (the senate). I was for the move mostly because New Student Services really needed the space," Anderson said.

The other complication holding up construction is the discovery of asbestos. According to Vettrus asbestos removal is responsible for a portion of the delay in completion.

Removal of the asbestos required calling in a special university asbestos removal team.

■ ODIAGA HEARING POSTPONED

The prosecution against Mitchel John Odiaga, charged with two counts of first-degree murder, was granted an extension by 5th District Judge May Tuesday.

Thirty-five year old Odiaga, from Boise, faces several charges in connection with the random Ketchum drive-by-shooting deaths of Bruce Tate Schafer, 23, of Burley and Gerald Wright, 46, of Ketchum.

Blaine County Prosecutor Ned Williamson has until Sept. 4 to contest Odiaga's mental competency to proceed in court or to stipulate that the psychologists' reports, alleging Odiaga unfit to proceed, are valid.

son said. "University of Idaho has been successful in the past because it is student oriented and it will continue to be successful if it stays that way."

Peterson is originally from Minnesota but had fished in the area several times before. He said he was attracted to UI's campus, the size of the community and school and his position here. He particularly likes the "small city setting" here and this part of the country. "The Northwest is the most beautiful part of the entire nation," he said.

UI EVALUATES FISH MANURE AS FERTILIZER

Throughout the 1980s, fish farmers along the Snake River from Bliss to Twin Falls have vacuumed fish manure from the bottoms of raceways and hauled the settled and dried material up the canyon to neighboring crop farmers.

This year, the Idaho Aquaculture Association entered a joint cooperative research effort with the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, the University of Idaho College of Agriculture and the College of Southern Idaho to determine the value of fish manure on croplands.

On a 2-acre plot owned by Buhl-area farmer Tim Moore, UI extension soil scientist Terry Tindall and INEL environmental scientist Gail Olson are comparing the effects of fish manure with those of commercial fertilizer on a field of sweetcorn. The equivalents of 100 and 200 pounds of nitrogen are being evaluated. "Compared with other organic nitrogen sources, this is quite a significant amount of nitrogen, and we are very encouraged to work with a material like this," Tindall said.

According to Tindall, should fish manure prove economically viable as a fertilizer, one outcome of the project would be development of University of Idaho fact sheets and educational programs for farmers interested in the product.

VIDEO FOCUSES ON ASIANS IN IDAHO

Although the population of Idaho was once one-fourth Chinese, the story of Asians in Idaho is an often neglected part of the state's history. To bring this story to life, an organization of Asian Americans has traveled the state to produce a one-hour video, entitled "Other Faces, Other Lives: Asian Americans in Idaho," was produced by Alan Lifton, a Communications professor at the University of Idaho. The video project was sponsored by the Palouse Asian-American Association (PAAA) of Moscow and Pullman with assistance from the Idaho Centennial Commission's Ethnic Heritage Committee.

"We feel this program is excellent supplementary teaching and viewing material for schools as well as the general public," Wei said.

Individuals may order copies from Lili Wei at the UI library.

Asbestos excuse stems from poor planning

Once again university officials are blaming asbestos for their tardy completion of a room remodel.

The ASUI Senate and New Student Services were due to move into their new offices at the beginning of this semester. But the remodeling is still not finished because of the unexpected need to remove asbestos.

Nice excuse. But we're not buying it any more.

The SUB is obviously full of asbestos, as are many other university buildings. Didn't anyone remember last Christmas' remodel of the Vandal Cafe when they were planning this latest remodel to the SUB? That reopening was delayed by two weeks while workers hurriedly removed asbestos.

And what about the controversy when asbestos was found in a third floor bathroom of the SUB last spring.

Wouldn't it save everyone a lot of inconvenience if the assumption were made that asbestos will have to be removed instead of hoping that there won't be any problems with it?

The fact is that university workers had all summer to start on the remodel, but they didn't begin until just before school started.

They left it to the last minute and cried ASBESTOS when they didn't get it finished.

Next time spare us the excuses and think ahead. We would all be really impressed if a project were finished ahead of schedule and under budget because there was no need to remove asbestos instead of the other way around.

— Jill Christine Beck

GOOD FOR U.

In response to the housing shortage facing returning students, several people put forth an extra effort to help students coming back to Moscow this summer find apartments and rooms.

Vice President for Student Affairs Hal Godwin took the first step early this summer and called upon the community to open up their homes for those unable to find housing through the "make room" program. Rooms made available were published in the ASUI Housing List each week.

ASUI Vice President Mike Gotch and ASUI secretary Patsy Edgar worked diligently for more than a week at the beginning of school to make sure daily updates were available to the ASUI Housing List, normally published on a weekly basis. Lending them a helping hand were Sen. Julie McCoy, John Goettsche, ASUI Operations Manager Stephanie Curry.

For their concern and extra efforts to help those in search of housing in the Moscow area—good for U.

Video yearbook costly for ASUI

Editor:

In Friday's Argonaut, editor Jill Beck ended her editorial with the statement that the ASUI could produce its own UI video yearbook and "the ASUI should respond by funding the project."

Wait a minute, are you for this or opposed? Before you decide that the ASUI should fund this kind of project and try this on your own, consider for a moment what we must do to make Prime Time, The Video Yearbook top quality and something every student will want.

Making a quality video is complex and extremely EXPENSIVE. It requires hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of network quality editing equipment, not cheap home VCR's. It requires very expensive cameras, numerous employees, and thousands of dollars of expensive video tape to record the entire '90-'91 academic year's activities.

It also requires camera operators that must cover every event, living group, and special activities, all year long. All of this footage must be carefully edited, picking and choosing the most important highlights of the year (UI students will make these choices). And then it must be duplicated on thousands of high quality duplication machines.

You may see that to create a high quality Video Yearbook will require a large sum of money. Including overhead and equipment, perhaps several hundred thousand dollars!

Is this an amount of money you expect the ASUI to fund? Remember, those funds you suggest to use so freely would have to come from student fees. On the other hand working together could accomplish many positive benefits for everyone. The students can have a video yearbook without the ASUI spending more student fees. We may also be able to assist the Gem from losing money again this year as it did last year.

The easiest way to accomplish this is to consider the offer we have made. 1) The students can have as much editorial control as they like as long as we can guarantee that the final video is high quality. 2) The Gem can piggy-back on the advertising and marketing for Prime Time, The Video Yearbook. 3) Together we can offer a "special" to the students so they can purchase both yearbooks for one low price! 4) Accept our offer to donate a percentage of the proceeds from sales to the university.

And what if the ASUI accepted these offers.

1) A new business would be started in Moscow (not in Hollywood). 2) Jobs for students and others would be created. 3) Students would have an additional product to purchase, but ONLY should they desire. 4) Students would gain hands-on experience and knowledge. 5) No investment nor risk would be required from the ASUI.

Let's keep things in perspective. I am an alumnus and did hope this would be a positive program for my alma mater.

Making money and encouraging business is why the university, the state and the Federal government spent $1.8 million to establish the Economic Development Council on Sweet Street. They are encouraging business ventures in the area.

If we are lucky, we might make a profit! Isn't that what business is all about? That's what they teach in the College of Business!

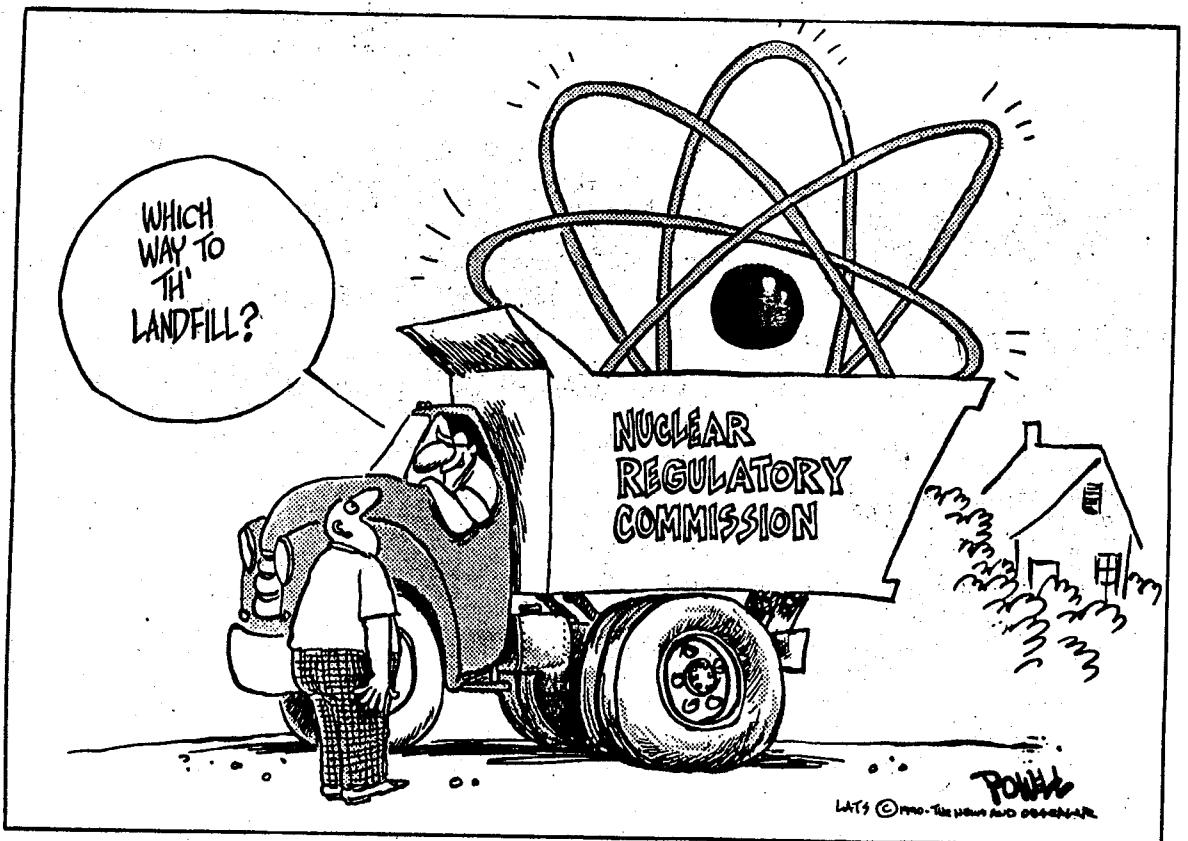

Let's face it, the only reason that anyone is balking at Prime Time, The Video Yearbook is because the yearbook people were not consulted early on ... and for this we apologize! In fact, let me extend my apologies to anyone we may have offended. Having said that, can we now be constructive and work together and let all of the student body be the judge of this exciting new concept.

Boycott longbox CD packaging

Editor:

This is not an advertisement. It is however, a plea for help regarding a subject affecting every one of us. I speak of the continuing and senseless waste of Compact Disc longbox packaging by the six major record companies in the United States.

It has been stated that "25 million trees are being destroyed each year to provide material for longboxes, which are usually just thrown away by consumers...resulting in 23 tons of garbage a year." On April 1, 1990 Canadian record labels stopped shipping Compact Discs in longboxes, which leaves the United States as the only country on this planet to continue to use the longbox format.

Here are two important reasons why the longbox should go. First, $1 to $1.50 of what you pay for a Compact Disc is for longbox packaging. When you throw your longbox in the garbage it's equivalent to throwing that cost directly in the garbage instead of a cost reduction by the record companies. Secondly, longboxes are made from paper products created from the destruction of trees. Trees create the oxygen we all need for survival. No trees. No oxygen. No fun for anybody. It's as simple as that.

Therefore, effective Sept. 5, 1990, I have made the decision to no longer display or sell any Compact Disc packaged in a longbox or plastic blister pack. I have additionally provided a recycling box for anyone who wishes to donate their longboxes for recycling--regardless of where you bought them. If you love music and love the world you live in let's JUST SAY NO to this stupid and wasteful policy. Thank you.

Video idea pushed on students

Editor:

I have had just about enough. With all that has been going on with this video yearbook, I'm sure everyone is getting tired of hearing about it. Myself included. But I just have to say that I think the perspective on this issue is getting blown way out of proportion.

What the whole thing really boils down to is not the so-called greed of the student leaders. Nor is it ultimately the fact that we will not have the total student editorial control that University of Idaho students have come to value with the highest regard.

What the bottom line really is, is do UI students want some outside company coming in and making a video yearbook of us for their own profit? (Minus the $1 donation that Scott Biggs' company Envision has offered us from the sale of each $29.95 video, of course.)

When I initially heard about this yearbook, I had walked outside my home in early August to find one of the film crew from Envision taping for the yearbook. Apparently, this was even before the administration was aware that the project had begun.

My first instinct was to defend the Gem of the Mountains. As its editor, I value the publication and have respect for the numerous awards and national recognition it has received in recent years. However, now that I know more about the situation, I think that it is not simply the integrity of the yearbook that is at stake here, but that of the entire university.

Mr. Biggs has made every effort to snowball his way in here and I don't appreciate it in the slightest. Alumnus or not.

He has tried to con student leaders and administrators into going for his project by launching massive advertising campaigns. There was nothing we could have said about those since we had them thrown at us before we even knew what was happening, not to mention the fact that the legally questionable newspaper advertisements gave the impression that the UI was somehow backing the venture.

And by meeting with everyone who might have had some say in the success of any video yearbook separately instead of collectively, Biggs has made me question his motives: Isn't there some old war adage that says something about divide and conquer?

Ultimately, the Gem will never cooperate with Mr. Biggs' company in any way shape or form. We represent the students because we are part of them, and we will continue to produce yearbooks that are a reflection of the UI in a way that Mr. Biggs could never do, no matter how much money he puts into a video yearbook.

Mr. Biggs, does this video yearbook issue remind you of your days at the UI? No? Well maybe the words "jogging path" or "recall vote" ring a few bells.

For those who don't know Mr. Biggs, he is a former ASUI vice president who fell into the position because the vice president before him resigned, and he just happened to be senate pro tempore. He was ousted in a recall election in the fall of 1981 because UI students didn't like his ethics, nor did they like the way he tried to shove ideas down their throats.

The UI didn't like your tactics then, Mr. Biggs, why should things have changed that much in nine years?

Mr. Biggs and his video yearbook should write off its losses and leave us alone.

Theta sorority new option for women

Q: I have heard all sorts of stories concerning the new sorority that is coming on campus. I might be interested in finding out more about this, but don't really know how or where.

A: Well, you could start by attending the Kappa Alpha Theta informational meeting that is going to be held this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Building ballroom.

This meeting will basically be a question and answer session concerning what the future holds for the Thetas at the University of Idaho and how women here can get involved.

But if you can't attend this meeting, there are other ways that you can find out about Theta Rush, which will be held Jan. 27-30, 1991.

Kathy Linenberger and Julie Bennett, Kappa Alpha Theta chapter consultants, are going to be on campus throughout the 1990-91 academic year to answer any questions you may have and they can be reached through Greek Adviser Linda Wilson, 885-6757, at Student Advisory Services. Or you could just stop by the Theta booth that has been set up outside the SAS office.

jump right into greek life as it is now, consider the Theta's. The consultants suggest that women who are interested in starting a chapter with its own traditions, shaping and developing a chapter's personality, should look into the Theta Rush.

Finally, for those who may be new to this campus, Kappa Alpha Theta is not really a new sorority to the UI campus. The building now operated by the UI called the Sweet Avenue House, is owned by the Theta's and it will be going through some large scale renovations this year to get it ready for rush in August in 1991.

Please address any questions or problems to Julie Young, c/o Argonaut, Suite 301 Student Union Building, Moscow, ID, 83843. The receptionist will also accept any hand delivered questions at the third floor desk.

Bobcats blitz Idaho in Big Sky opener

By MATT LAWSON
Sports Editor

The Idaho Vandals and coach John L. Smith experienced something new to Vandal football Saturday in the Kibbie Dome. They lost a Big Sky Conference game. Not only did Idaho have a 15-game conference winning-streak snapped, but Smith suffered his first conference loss as the Vandal's coach.

Montana State took advantage of two costly Idaho fumbles to take an early 14-0 lead and held off a second-half charge led by Doug Nussmeier and Kasey Dunn to beat the Vandals for the first time since 1984, 27-24.

The fumbles played a major factor in the loss, but a 99-yard kickoff return in the second half by Bobcat freshman Reggie Carthon inevitably cost Idaho the game.

Idaho's first fumble came with 9:25 left in the first quarter as Bruce Harris and Nussmeier had problems on a hand-off and Montana State recovered the fumble on Idaho's one-yard-line. The Vandal defense stopped fullback Bob Wilkinson twice for no-gain before Bobcat quarterback John Tetrault scored on a bootleg from one yard out.

After a Thayne Doyle field goal cut the gap to 7-3, Idaho again fumbled on their own 28-yard-line. Montana State took only three plays to score and the Vandals trailed 14-3.

The Bobcats put together their only lengthy drive of the game in the second quarter to take a 20-3

SACKED. The Idaho Vandal defense played inspired football against the Montana State Bobcats in a heartbreaking defeat. Defensive lineman John Sirmon, 59 celebrates a great play after teammate Jeff Robinson tackled a Bobcat ballcarrier in the backfield. Idaho held Montana State to 77 yards rushing on 37 attempts during the game.

The Vandals only allowed one lengthy scoring drive by the Bobcats and held Montana State to only a 99-yard kickoff return in the second half before holding the Bobcats scoreless in the fourth quarter. Idaho takes on Southwest Texas State on Saturday in San Marcos, Texas. (JIM VOLBRECHT PHOTO)

Netters gain experience

By JOE MALLET
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho women's volleyball team competed in their first tournament of the year at the season opener Gonzaga Tournament in Spokane's Martin Center. Although they failed to bring home a win, they came home with some much needed experience.

The Vandals opened their season with a 15-4, 15-11, 15-5 loss to Gonzaga Friday night, and continued Saturday by dropping matches against the University of Washington and Portland State in a total of seven games.

The Vandals had an opportunity to play against some of the best teams in the nation which provided valuable experience to their very young and talented team. Three question marks, Kris Little, Nancy Wicks, and Dee Porter all played exceptionally well; a fact that which head coach Tom Hilbert optimistic about his team's chances in the Big Sky this year.

The highlight of the weekend was the performance of star UI veteran Karen Thompson. Thompson scored over half of the teams kills plus six digs against Gonzaga.

Stacey Asplund, the other returning standout, had a rather lackluster performance. Hilbert attributed Asplund's lack of usually inspired play to the team's inability to get her the ball. The Vandals never quite seemed able to gain control of their passing game. Hilbert said that although this was a problem, he expected his team to improve in this area.

The absence of the injured Jessica Puckett affected the power of the Vandal's offensive attack; but she is expected to return to action by this weekend. Puckett, a true freshman from Gresham, Oregon, was expected to start against Gonzaga, but will have to wait for her chance when the Vandals travel to play Sept. 8 against the University of Texas in Arlington.

The Vandals will remain on the road in an eight game test by fire, until Sept. 18, when they return to Memorial Gym to play their first home match against Lewis Clark State College. Opening the season this way should give the Vandals enough adversity to bring their team together. The inconsistency and youthful mistakes that plagued the Vandals should disappear as they gain more experience.

Pugmire leads Idaho into '90s

By CHRIS GATEWOOD
Staff Writer

There is a new man in the Sports Information Director's seat at the University of Idaho. Well not really a new man, he's actually an old one.

Rance Pugmire, who has worked for the last three years at St. John's University in New York City as assistant sports information director, has returned to his alma mater to become the Vandals new SID.

Pugmire inherited the job when former director Dave Cook left suddenly to take over as the SID at Eastern Washington University. With Cook's sudden absence it offered the perfect opportunity for Pugmire to return to Idaho where he went to school and to maintain a head position.

"Going to school here was an advantage for me," Pugmire said. "I already knew the coaches and knew what it took to become a head SID."

Pugmire was actually Cook's assistant in 1985 and 1986 before graduating from Idaho in 1987.

"Cook wanted a chance to return to the Spokane area," Pugmire said. "He was newly married and wanted to be in the Spokane area for his and his wife's career."

While working with Cook,

Pugmire spent most of his time working with Lady Vandal basketball and volleyball. He also tended bar part-time at The Garden Lounge to help cover expenses.

"With helping Dave Cook and tending bar it didn't leave me much spare time, but I still managed to have some fun," Pugmire said.

Pugmire greatly credits Cook for advancing his career and feels he owes him a great deal.

"Cook is an extremely intelligent man," Pugmire said. "Everything I learned, I learned from him."

Even though Pugmire has spent time in the big city lights of New York City, his roots are definitely small town. Pugmire is from the southern Idaho town of Castleford where he graduated from Castleford High School in 1982. He originally enrolled at the university as a computer science major, but felt he was going nowhere.

"I wasn't enjoying myself and could never see an end to anything I was doing," Pugmire said.

In light of this Pugmire switched to communication, something he thought suited his personality better.

"Communication was more me," Pugmire said. "I felt I would be a natural at it."

After switching to communication life became more interesting for Pugmire. A friend named Chris Dupay suggested he apply for an opening at KLER radio in Orofino doing high school football games. At twenty dollars a game it was hardly worth it, but Pugmire gained valuable experience.

"In my first game I was supposed to read the starting line-up of both teams but couldn't read my partner's handwriting. We had 10 seconds of dead air time," Pugmire said. "After this I relaxed and everything was OK."

His experience on the radio helped him land a job at Moscow's KUID doing Lady Vandal basketball in 1984.

"My first experience with television was live," Pugmire said. "I was very nervous. My knees were knocking and I was sweating like crazy, but I learned to really enjoy television."

Since taking over as the SID, Pugmire has found his job fun and is getting along well with his boss, Athletic Director Gary Hunter.

"I don't see Gary all that much so I guess I'm doing a pretty good job," Pugmire said.

At 26, Pugmire is young and should see many offers from big colleges before his career is through. The big question is how on a one-yard-run by Wilkinson. Idaho quickly responded as Scott Dalquist caught a 10-yard-pass from Nussmeier with 3:19 to play in the second quarter.

Please see PUGMIRE page 8>

Idaho came out in the second half like a new team after trailing 20-10 at halftime.

After an 18-yard punt the Vandals took no time in putting the ball in the end-zone. Nussmeier found Dunn on a streak pattern down the middle for a 48-yard touchdown strike on the third play of the drive to cut Montana State's lead to 20-17.

Carthon took the insuing kick-off through the middle of the Vandal coverage and ran untouched into the end-zone.

"I think it was a little more under-pursuit than anything," Smith said. "They ran right into the meat of the coverage."

Nussmeier shook off early game jitters that come in first college games and played and impressive game. The freshman quarterback from Lake Oswego, Oregon was constantly under pressure from a quick Bobcat defensive line led by junior Corey Widmer. Widmer had two sacks, but was impressed with Nussmeier.

"He had really good feet," Widmer said. "He could really sense pressure coming on the outside."

Nussmeier finished with 313 yards on 20-for-32 passing including three touchdowns.

"Doug played a great game and he is going to have a lot of great games," Smith said. "(He was) a little nervous maybe at first, but he got his feet on the ground and he threw some outstanding balls today."

I felt real shaky at first," Nussmeier said. "but I thought I settled in pretty well after the first couple of drives."

Dunn played a major factor in Nussmeier's success as he constantly became open and caught every pass thrown within reach. The third-team-all-american from last season caught a personal high of 12 passes for an Vandal-record 241 yards along with two touchdowns.

If Dunn wasn't injured with 1:34 left in the third quarter, there is no telling what type of numbers he would have put on the board.

As expected, the defense played consistant football, especially in the second-half, while showing a great deal of improvement from last season.

The Vandals only gave up one lengthy scoring drive by the Bobcats while allowing only 302 yards of total offense.

Idaho cornerbacks Charlie Oliver and Jeff Jordan continually shut down the outside passing attack, but Montana State tight-end Bryan Krumwiede hurt the Vandals over-the-middle all day.

Krumwiede took advantage of his size advantage over the Idaho to catch eight passes for 108 yards.

"It is something we use to take the teams out of the blitz (the pass over the middle)," Tetrault said. "Whenever they came with the blitz we had that easy five-yard dump pass."

The Vandals had difficulty putting pressure on Tetrault with the exception of Billy Sims, who had two sacks, which resulted in Idaho being forced to blitz a lot of the time.

The Bobcat pass rush was a different story. They sacked Nussmeier eight times and constantly harassed him throughout the game. Nussmeier could be accused of holding onto the ball too long some of the times, but if it were not for his speed and athletic ability, he would have spent a lot more time on the new Kibbie Dome turf.

"The offensive line play was not what I expected it to be,"

Smith said. "I think that is a communication factor more than anything."

Idaho tried early in the game to run the ball, which they found little success at as the Montana State defense steadily played in tight and close to the line-of-scrimmage.

"We did not run the ball at all," Smith said. "We've got to be able to come off the ball and get those young guys down and snorting a little blood and coming off the ball and blowing some people off (the line-of-scrimmage)."

Idaho pulled within the final margin with 3:18 left in the third quarter as Nussmeier hit Dunn on an amazing sideline catch in the end-zone from 15 yards out.

"The one (pass) in the end-zone is a big-time throw," Smith said. "It's as big-time as there is."

Idaho's defense played exceptional throughout the second-half limiting Montana State to only 130 yards and no touchdowns.

"The defense came up with some big plays," Smith said. "They played a great game."

Jimmy Lee Jacobs and Will Saffo led the team with 10 tackles each while safety Kris McCall had eight.

The Vandals had one last chance to win the game as the defense forced the Bobcats to punt and the offense took over on the 20-yard-line with 3:27 to go. After a big catch by Everett Wilson on fourth down, Idaho had the ball on their own 36-yard-line with 55 seconds to play.

Nussmeier again dropped back to pass and fumbled after he was hit in the backfield. Montana State easily fell on the ball and Idaho's first loss in 15 Big Sky Conference games quickly became reality.

long will he stay at the University of Idaho.

"I can't really say for sure, but right now it's indefinite," Pugmire said.

Pugmire said his job entails making sure the Vandals are well publicized.

"If you see plenty of things in the paper about Vandal athletics that means I'm doing my job," Pugmire said.

Pugmire said he feels no identity crisis after taking over for Cook so suddenly.

"People will know there is a change soon enough," Pugmire said.

Vandal tennis teams look to improve

By TOM BITHELL
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho men's and women's tennis teams will be looking to improve on last year's performance as they prepare for the opening of their fall schedule.

The Vandal teams play a fall and spring schedule every year. The spring season is when the conference matches and tournament are held, while the fall slate consists mostly of non-conference match-ups and tournaments.

The outlook for the men's team is one of optimism after losing only one senior from last year's team that finished 6th in the Big Sky Conference.

"The whole attitude of the team is real good. They have really worked hard all summer," Dave Scott, coach of both squads, said.

Last year the men beat eventual champion Idaho State University in the conference tournament, so they know they are capable of playing with the better teams, Scott said.

"The team knows that they can beat those teams," Scott said. "Right now I feel real confident."

But Scott is also cautious. "It's a matter of how hard they're gonna want to work and how the other teams recruited," Scott said.

One boost the men were looking for this fall was the return of Dan Streeby. Streeby, who plans on attending medical school, red-shirted last season to concentrate on academics. He returned to the team this fall to play out his senior season as team co-captain, but will have to wait until spring because of torn lateral-ligaments in his right ankle, suffered while playing volleyball.

"I just hope I get out there pretty quick so I can help out," Streeby said. "We believe we can win it (the conference), and I think we will."

Swedish transfer-student Magnus Orrod also will add more depth to the mens team.

"He will be a big factor," Scott said. "He's strong mentally and has played a lot of tennis at the Division-III level."

Junior Scott Anderson, Big Sky Honorable Mention last year, who Scott said is "playing real well" will also be a big factor for the men. Sophomore Larry Gresham, senior co-captain Chris Kramer, junior Jose Palacios, senior John Moskowitz, and freshman newcomer Kurt Snedeker, will all be counted on to contribute.

The men open their fall schedule on Oct. 19 at the Huskey Invitational in Seattle, Washington.

"The guys, I have seniors and juniors. I'm just where you want to be. The girls need more depth," Scott said.

The Vandal women lost two players, including Cathy Shanander, who was the MVP at last year's conference tournament where the women, ranked sixth, finished a surprising third.

"They are all really motivated," Scott said, "but I'd feel better if I'd brought in some big recruits."

Scott had some recruits he was hoping to land go to other schools.

Among the women Scott has expectations for are freshman

Lea Smith, sophomore Merlene Forde, and senior Patricia Shanander.

Smith, in addition to tennis, is also a member of the UI women's volleyball team.

"I'm really looking for big things out of her because she's probably going to walk right in and play for me," Scott said.

Forde came to Idaho last year from the island of St. Vincent, where she competed in and won the Caribbean Games. Scott feels that after a year of getting used to the U.S. and the local climate, she should be improved.

Shanander was a first-team, all-conference selection last year. She also won the team-doubles at the conference tournament with her sister Cathy. If the women are going to be successful this year, Shanander will have to have another strong season.

Undressing for success

By TRENT YOUNG
Staff Writer

Following the latest trend of less being more, one Moscow business—Shari's Secret Service Strippers—seems to have found a mainstay in this lively college atmosphere.

Unlike the classical examples of stripping where boozed men sit meekly around liquor laden tables and hoot at some blonde waving a boa constrictor or wearing a candy stripper uniform while dancing to yazz music, this operation is much different: it's the men who do the exotic dancing while the ladies watch.

According to the business owner, Shari (last name unknown), who also owns the Tannery and the Cuttin' Loose beauty salon, business is booming. The all male review began two years ago after a WSU and UI Male Calendar brought great success, proving that a market for male dancers existed on the Palouse. Since then the dancers have managed two to five shows per week in either private parties or nightclubs.

The male dancers range from college students to slightly older men who work the routines as a way to earn extra cash. They dance for about twenty minutes and earn from $45 to $100 per night. What is interesting, however, is that only about ten percent of the dancers come from Moscow, with the majority bussing-in from WSU.

"All I ask is that they come up with their own costume ideas and dance routine...something original," remarked Shari. "The music has to go with the costume, like Cowboy Bob dances to 'Wild, Wild West'."

How does the audience react to the exotic dancers? Most of the women I talked to enjoyed the chance to watch the men strip and had a great time.

"The guys were great looking and everybody was screaming. It was really a kick," said Denise Monroe, junior at the University of Idaho.

Another audience member had different sentiments.

"Most of the guys couldn't dance and kept tripping on their clothes because they were too drunk...I don't think that watching a skinny guy lick his lips and

Mardi Gras dates set

The 1991 Moscow Mardi Gras continues a twelve year tradition to chase away the winter blues and to benefit the University of Idaho Prichard Art Gallery.

Scheduled for March 8 and 9, the weekend's events start with an art auction Friday at the Prichard Gallery. Saturday's highlights include a breakfast, a parade, a carnival, and other events throughout the day.

With a new Board of Directors, Johanna Hays, board president and gallery director, hopes to breathe fresh air into the weekend celebration and to involve the community as much as possible.

In addition to Hays, the new board members are: Steve Keller from ZFUN; Shane O'Donnell of Tri-State Outfitters; Carla Kappler; John Pulliam, assistant professor of architecture at the university; Deanna Robbins of the Moscow Downtown Association; Debbie Zacha, West One Bank; Sam Crapps, owner of Psycho Sam's Records and Tapes, and Ron Landeck of Siebe, Landeck, Westberg and Jedge law firm.

Anyone wishing to participate in the 1991 Moscow Mardi Gras should call Lynn Piraino at 882-6000. Any volunteers or suggestions will be greatly appreciated.

George Michael day coming soon

By JAY FORMAN
Staff Writer

This is not going to be your regular column. This is about entertainment and what's happening. You like rock and roll? Read this column. Do you read Rolling Stone? Read this column. You can amaze your friends. Movies? Read this column. I'll bet you probably didn't know that Billy Idol and Arnold Schwarzenegger are starring in the sequel to the Terminator. Read this column. Hard rockers, Judas Priest's new album is out Sept. 18, and AC/DC's comes out Sept. 25. Read this column.

LOUD & CLEAR

I'm not your regular guy. I got a big chin and an attitude to match. But if you want to know about the entertainment biz, read this column. Once every two weeks, you'll know all about what there is to know about. Here's the news as I see it: Dark Man is the movie to see and Exorcist 3 is very strange. The new Ratt and Living Colour albums will delight the senses. Even Prince came through with a good album, Graffiti Bridge. Night Ranger fans should note that a live album is coming out really soon; and those few who ever saw them live can tell you they were a band to catch.

The new Poison and Winger albums came out in a space of a few weeks this summer and amazingly they sounded the same. There's a shocker. There were some good shows to catch last summer; and Whitesnake, Heart, and Kiss were frenzied. Still reading? Here's some news: Sept. 25 is George Michael day, for those people who love him—you know who you are. His new album is supposed to be the record of the year; though this man has his doubts. I don't want his sex all that badly.

Well, this is Jay, signing off with the news for now. Later.

shake his butt is sexy," Cecile Moore said.

Whatever the reaction to the dancers, their popularity has remained fairly constant over the past two years and so has their diversity in places to perform. The troupe has shimmied out of their duds in places that ranged from rest homes to sororities, birthday parties, bachelorette bashes and, of course, local bars, and has waltzed away with loads of cash.

But do the strippers enjoy their service to humanity? Evidently so, since no complaints have arisen, and only those with accepting mates are allowed on the troupe to keep the atmosphere light.

As one stripper, the produce manager by day at a local supermarket, exalted, "(the feeling is) Indescribable. I've never felt anything at all like it before—being irresistible to all those women. It's ego boosting."
