Scud missile attack results in 27 deaths

The deadliest Scud missile attack of the war took place yesterday in Dhahran, an eastern province of Saudi Arabia, in which 27 American soldiers were killed and 98 were injured.

The missile's target was a two-story barracks that housed more than 100 U.S. soldiers. The missile, which was missed by a U.S. Patriot missile, was the first Iraqi Scud attack to hit an American target.

While Soviet officials stated that Saddam Hussein himself has declared to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev that he had begun a withdrawal from Kuwait, American officials stated there was no sign that a withdrawal had begun.

One of the allies' biggest problems yesterday was dealing with the 21,500 Iraqi troops that were captured or surrendered. The enemy prisoners of war have been treated comfortably and allowed to surrender with dignity.

The following is a summary of the latest numbers on the Persian Gulf War, since the start of the war:

- Allies killed in combat: 51.
- Americans killed in combat: 28.
- American non-combat deaths: 50.
- Allied MIA's: 51 (30 Americans).
- Allied POW's: 13 (9 Americans).

Roe v. Wade defense attorney to speak

The successful defense attorney in the Roe v. Wade case, Sarah Weddington, will be speaking on the "Changing Roles of Man and Woman in the 1990s" Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the University Auditorium.

Weddington is currently a history and government lecturer at both the University of Texas and Texas Women's University. At age 21, she was one of the first women to graduate from the University of Texas Law School. By age 26, her successful defense of "Jane Roe" in the Roe v. Wade case granted women the right to continue or terminate an unwanted pregnancy.

Weddington also served as assistant for women's affairs under President Jimmy Carter, and was top lobbyist for the state of Texas and director of the Office of State and Federal Relations in Washington, D.C.

In addition to her legal and federal work, Weddington was president of the Botwinick-Wolfensohn Foundation, directed public affairs of a New York investment firm, served three years as a legislator in the Texas House of Representatives, and was the first person to hold an endowed chair at the University of New Mexico.

Weddington has also written the monthly "Washington Report" for Glamour magazine and a number of topical articles and interviews on Constitutional, legal and women's issues.

Today, she teaches, practices law and brings inspirational, informed and dynamic presentations to colleges throughout the United States. She was the reci-

Greeks, administration form task force to improve relations

By ANDREA VOGT
News Editor

For more than 90 years, the self-governed Greek system and the University of Idaho have maintained an informal relationship.

The two institutions have recently decided to formalize this relationship to benefit both the university and the Greek system via a special task force set up to study the relationship between the two organizations.

In recent occurrences the Greek system experienced numerous problems, forcing the Interfraternity and Panhellenic councils to face various questions about constituting and implementing reforms within the system.

The task force being set up by the university will serve as a consulting and advising option for the governing bodies of the Greek system.

Hal Godwin, vice president for student affairs, stressed the positive support offered by the university and praised the strong leadership apparent in the IPC and Panhellenic councils.

"The institution has historically supported the Greek system, and will continue to do that while following an activist approach," Godwin said. By an activist approach, Godwin referred to the liberties and missions of the new task force.

The primary responsibility of the force will be to develop a written statement reviewing and evaluating the responsibilities and rights which exist between the university and the Greek system, both locally and nationally, and the general community.

The task force will provide positive input to help improve the system while also retaining the power to "pack a punch of support" if needed to back sanctions delivered by the IPC and Panhellenic councils.

"This task force represents a major step toward ensuring that fraternities and sororities will continue to offer the opportunities for leadership and support they have had throughout the history of the University of Idaho," said David Burns, president of the Interfraternity Council.

Godwin stressed the necessity of such a group, which has been needed for some time to establish a relationship between the UI administration and the Greek system, and emphasized that this was not a public relations move by the university.

However, Godwin acknowledged that press concerning the UI Greek system is almost always directly associated with the university itself, though up until now the two have had no formal connections.

Godwin said he does not expect this force to solve all the problems of the Greek system, but does see this development as a proactive one which will be beneficial to both the university and the Greek system in the long run.

"It is another piece in the picture which will only come together over time," Godwin said.

The task force consists of 11 members appointed by Godwin, including student leaders, faculty, alumni and community members. Members of the task force include: Burns; Bruce Pitman, dean for student advisory services; Shelly Cesakos, president of the Panhellenic Council; James Westburg, a Moscow lawyer and national officer for Delta Tau Delta fraternity; David G. Cameron, Moscow chief of police and part of Alpha Kappa Lambda; Marcen Bartlett, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma; Duane LeTourneau, a UI faculty member and a member of the Farm-House fraternity local governing board; Barbara Bull, district officer for the Delta Delta Delta chapter at Moscow; Linda Wilson, campus adviser for the Panhellenic and Interfraternity councils; Steve McLaughlin, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon; and Dene Thomas, associate dean in the UI college of Letters and Science.

UI Library offers info on new computer programs

BY ANISSA FADDIS
Contributing Writer

A program for students who are unfamiliar with computerized library research and who may not have used a library since the extinction of card files will be held on Wednesday.

The program entitled "Everything Has Changed Since I Was Last in School," is part of the Women's Center series of lunch-time programs and will be held at 12:30 in the library instruction room, adjacent to the snack area in the library basement.

Reference Librarian Diane Prorak and Humanities Librarian Gail Eckwright will lead the discussion, which will include instruction on the use of the Lasercat system and other computers in the library that can aid in the search for information.

Prorak said the program will also provide information on procedures and services the library offers and an opportunity for students to ask questions.

Betsy Thomas, director of the Women's Center, said the program is geared toward non-traditional students who may have returned to school to find everything changed in the library.

"Although the program is geared to this type of student, anyone wishing to know more about the library is welcome," Thomas said.

"Many of these students are transfer students who missed orientation most students receive through their English classes," Prorak said.

The program is expected to provide an opportunity to allow students who might not otherwise ask questions a chance to do so.

"It's real hard for people to just go over and ask for help alone. This gives people the opportunity to go in a group to overcome shyness or lack of self-confidence," Thomas said.

The program is scheduled to last about 40 minutes.

Enrollment hits high

Spring semester enrollment at the University of Idaho is a record 10,214. The figure is not only a spring term record, it represents the second highest enrollment in university history. Fall semester enrollment for the term which began in August, 1990, was the all-time record of 10,544 students.

The difference between fall and spring term figures is a drop of 330 students, a between-terms enrollment decline that university officials describe as far less than what the school has experienced in recent years.

"By just about any standard, any college or department or geographic area one wants to examine, enrollment figures for the current spring term exceed last year's numbers," UI Registrar Matt Telin said.

The enrollment figures represent students both on and off campus.

ASUI Senate proposes election changes

By DAVID JOHANSON
Staff Writer

During Wednesday's ASUI Senate meeting, a tentative summary of bills to restructure the senate was presented. The bills propose election of senators by individual colleges and living group organizations, rather than general election of all senators as is currently done.

Under the bills, introduced by Sens. Brian Oswald and Elwood Rennison, all students would vote for two senate seats: one through their academic college and one through their living group.

The proposal would separate voting areas into the following colleges: engineering, forestry, education, agriculture/plant science, business/economics, mines/earth sciences, art/architecture, graduate and letters and sciences. The living groups would be: the Residence Hall Association, Interfraternity/Panhellenic councils, family housing and off-campus.

Anyone would be able to run for any seat, but would be elected only by those within that college or living group.

The senate restructuring bills do not have the support of ASUI President Mike Gotch, who says that similar bills have failed in past years.

"Under that system there would be no equity in representation," Gotch said.

According to Gotch, the College of Mines and Earth Sciences, which has 200-300 students enrolled, would be represented by one senator, while people living off-campus, who make up about 60 percent of the student population, would also be represented by a single senator.

Oswald said that representation should not be based on the number of students in groups and colleges because they would be represented equally under the new system.

"I don't think it takes three senators to represent one group, said Oswald. "In the U.S. each state is represented by two senators and all are equally represented, despite unequal populations."

Under the new proposal, automatic appointment of senators to living groups would be dropped, although living groups may request a senator to visit. Oswald said the bills will be presented to the senate in a couple of weeks and implemented in the fall if passed.

Gotch said an additional problem with the proposal is that the most qualified people wouldn't get elected.

"I'd sure hate to see four or five interested and qualified people running for only one spot while other spots go unfilled," Gotch said.

Five bucks says gambling is legal in Washington

"Ten bucks says the Cubs will win the pennant," I said to my friend Gate. "You're on," he answered confidently. "Five bucks says I can shoot this paper wad over the light and into the trash can," I said. "You got it," he said. "A burrito with sour cream says that Ebert's the fat one," I said. "Siskel's the fat one," he retaliated. "Put your money where your mouth is," I said.

Stupid bets. Stupid, unaccomplishing, trivial, miniscule, unavoidable bets. I say unavoidable as part of my personal experience. My friends and I are constantly betting. Perhaps the obsession started when I was a little kid, pitching pennies in an effort to come closest to the sidewalk crack. If you got a "liner" you were considered a genius of sorts. Little did I know that my penny pitching days would lead to betting on a much larger scale.

Since those "wonder years," I have lost money betting in Las Vegas, Jackpot, Reno and, most recently, in... Pullman? That's right, there is legal gambling in the state of Washington. I found that out the hard way. Tired of playing poker for small amounts of cash, a friend of mine found out about a Casino night at a Pullman restaurant. Saturday night, wallets stuffed, we headed to Washington.

When I walked into the mock casino, I half-expected there to be plastic chips, coffee cake, punch and dozens of bingo cards. Instead, it was much more like being in Vegas — plenty of alcohol, good looking waitresses, black-jack tables and real money. I felt like a kid in a candy store. Even though my several casino experiences had all put me in the poor house, I still had that feeling, a feeling that all compulsive gamblers get, that this was my big night. I was going to win big.

Of course I lost — BIG. The same restaurant/casino that I skipped into rubbing my hands and praising God for this fine gift called gambling, I walked out of cursing and pulling my hair out. Then I looked for a scapegoat for my frustrations. "Wait a second," I said. "This is Pullman, Washington. This isn't Nevada. You can't gamble here. It's illegal."

After a little research, I found out that it is legal to gamble in Washington, as long as the proceeds go to a non-profit organization. The casino we lost our money at was a benefit for the mentally ill. The same mentally ill that are eating caviar this week while I pop the Stouffer's in the microwave.

Every time I've opened my wallet these past two days, the emptiness reminds me further of that wicked night. It gets me thinking — I don't live in Nevada and will never live in Nevada for a good reason. Some people just can't be faced with that kind of temptation and expect to survive. I can live with the millions of stupid bets I make every year, but I can't live next door to a casino.

Gambling, even for a non-profit organization is still gambling. Gambling is not outlawed in most states because it makes more money for the mafia kingpins. It's outlawed because of the millions of people like me who would be on welfare if faced with a "Vegas" neighborhood.

The issue of gambling needs to be black and white. There should be no stipulations (non-profit) of any kind. Something has got to be done in Washington.

As for Vegas, I'm going there for spring break. We've all got to indulge once in a while. Just once in a while.

Kuwaiti Emir not worth American involvement

Editor:
Why did Saddam Hussein think he could get away with invading Kuwait?

We knew that Iraq was having a border dispute with Kuwait and on July 25, 1990, according to the Jan. 16 Seattle Times, Ambassador April Glaspie received the following written instructions from the secretary of state, approved by the president, to deliver the following message to Saddam Hussein: "We will not become involved in your border dispute with Kuwait and we take no position on this dispute." According to Ohio Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, Ambassador Glaspie is now incommunicado. Why did President Bush give the green light to Hussein in July and then a few weeks later start calling him "a Hitler?" Was Hussein set up by Bush?

Now President Bush wants the Emir of Kuwait restored to power (status quo ante.) The Emir is not the American way of life — 70 wives, seven personal 747s, sole owner of Kuwait Oil Company with half of the oil money going into his personal pocket. Are America's sons and daughters to be sacrificed for a guy like this?

stuffed Saddam Hussein into a burlap bag and dropkicked him into the afterlife.

The 33rd annual Grammy Awards might have been interesting, if only someone with an ounce of originality would have won. I could watch only half an hour of the ceremony before the urge to stick my head in the oven became almost unbearable, so I popped a Seger tape in my stereo and went to bed.

A few honorees were truly talented, creative and deserving of the awards. Unfortunately, they were also dead. Stevie Ray Vaughan, Roy Orbison, John Lennon, Leonard Bernstein and Vladimir Horowitz all received posthumous accolades. Sinead O'Connor boycotted the ceremony due to unsightly razor burns on her forehead, but she was given an award anyway.

For all you aspiring singers and songwriters, the lesson here seems to be: If you are dead, or a bald woman, you have a good shot at scoring a Grammy.

The Kentucky Headhunters, who are arguably NOT dead (although judging from their outfits, they probably smelled that way), won a Grammy for their song "Pickin' on Nashville."

Rapmaster M.C. Hammer took home a fistful of Grammys, mostly for the song "U Can't Touch This." I have nothing against Mr. Hammer, aside from the fact he can't spell, but his album is the most overrated accumulation of drivel since that record by Don Johnson a few years back. I do like the way M.C. dresses, however. Maybe he could give a few pointers to those guys from Kentucky.

Some reports indicate that garnering a Grammy Award can boost record sales by upwards of a million copies. Maybe so, but I don't foresee anyone except chronic insomniacs rushing out to buy "When It's Polka Time at Your House," by Jimmy Sturr and His Orchestra, or "The Legendary Oscar Peterson Trio Live at the Blue Note," by the legendary Oscar Peterson and Two Other Guys.

A new Miss USA was crowned Friday night in, of all places, Wichita, Kansas. Were those contestants for real? Do they all intend to become actresses, or lawyers, or singers? I couldn't tell — all I could see on the television screen were 51 two-dimensional women parading around in skimpy outfits. Not that I'm complaining.

Physical looks go only so far; it would be nice to see a little realism as well. Even though most Americans worship beauty, they also love honesty. How refreshing it would have been to hear Miss Illinois say: "I love warm, rosy sunsets, yellow flowers and pulling the wings off houseflies." Or, better yet, to hear Miss New Jersey whisper in a seductive, breathy voice: "My goal is to become a welder, and I enjoy stealing blankets from the homeless." How can any man not fall for a woman like that?

Madonna (the one with the X-rated video, not the one from the Bible) is rumored to be undergoing yet another lifestyle change. She has allegedly given up her steel-reinforced underwear for — get this! — a more casual, "normal" look, complete with soft hair and no makeup. Five bucks says it won't last a month.

But the biggest news of an otherwise slow week came from ABC, which announced that the Yuppie-icon series "thirtysomething" will be taken off the air for six weeks. Network officials promise the show will return in late April with brand new episodes, but if we all hold hands, pray and think happy thoughts, maybe the show will be axed for good.

Now, wouldn't that prove the existence of a Supreme Being?

Vandals knock off league-leading Grizzlies

BSU next

By CHRISTOPHER CATWELL
Staff Writer

It was a game that had more runs than an old pair of pants hose, but it was the Idaho Vandals that made the most timely runs to beat the first place Montana Grizzlies 78-68 at the ASU-Kibbie Dome Monday night.

With the win the Vandals are again tied with the University of Nevada with a 10-4 record in second place. The Grizzlies are still on top of the Big Sky with a 12-3 conference record.

"These are definitely the two best teams in the conference," leading scorer for the Grizzlies Kevin Kearny said. "I can't wait to get another shot at them."

The Grizzlies most likely will get another shot in the Big Sky tournament in two weeks. If the Grizzlies can beat Montana State Saturday they will host the tournament.

But tonight it was the Vandals who played like conference champions as they rallied to beat the Grizzlies. Down 32-31 at halftime, the Vandals did something they haven't done all year: they went to a 2-3 zone in an effort to neutralize the quicker Kearny and the quicker Grizzlies. Although Kearny scored 20 points, he only had three buckets in the game's final 14 minutes.

"The reason we went to the zone is because I thought the game was getting out of hand," Vandal Coach Larry Bustachy said. "We haven't really practiced it all year and from the looks of tonight we probably should be."

With the game tied at 45-45 with 13:46 the Vandals used a 15-0 run to take their biggest lead at 60-45 before Montana finally scored again with a little more than eight minutes left in the game. The Grizzlies would get no closer than seven points the rest of the way as the Vandals notched their 16th win of the season.

In the game's opening minutes it looked like the Vandals might run away with it. In the first two minutes the Vandals jumped out to a quick 9-2 lead behind a thundering Otis Mixon slam. Mixon would finish with 12 points and nine rebounds.

Then with the Vandals up 14-9, the Grizzlies would go on a 19-5 run and take a 23-19 lead. During that period the Vandals didn't score for more than six minutes and got behind 32-21 before their second explosion. With 1:30 remaining in the half the Vandals would go on a 10-0 run, punctuated by a Dean Watson slam at the buzzer. During that run guard Calvin Ward hit two of his four three-pointers. Ward led the Vandals with a career-high 20 points.

"That run really took the wind out of our sails," Grizzly Coach Steve Merrill said. "That changed the complexion of the whole game."

"After we had the run we knew for sure we could play with them," Ward said.

"That was the key to the game," Bustachy said. "We went in to the locker room with a lot of confidence."

In the second half Kearny came out firing and scored eight of Montana's first 10 points until the zone came and put him under a blanket.

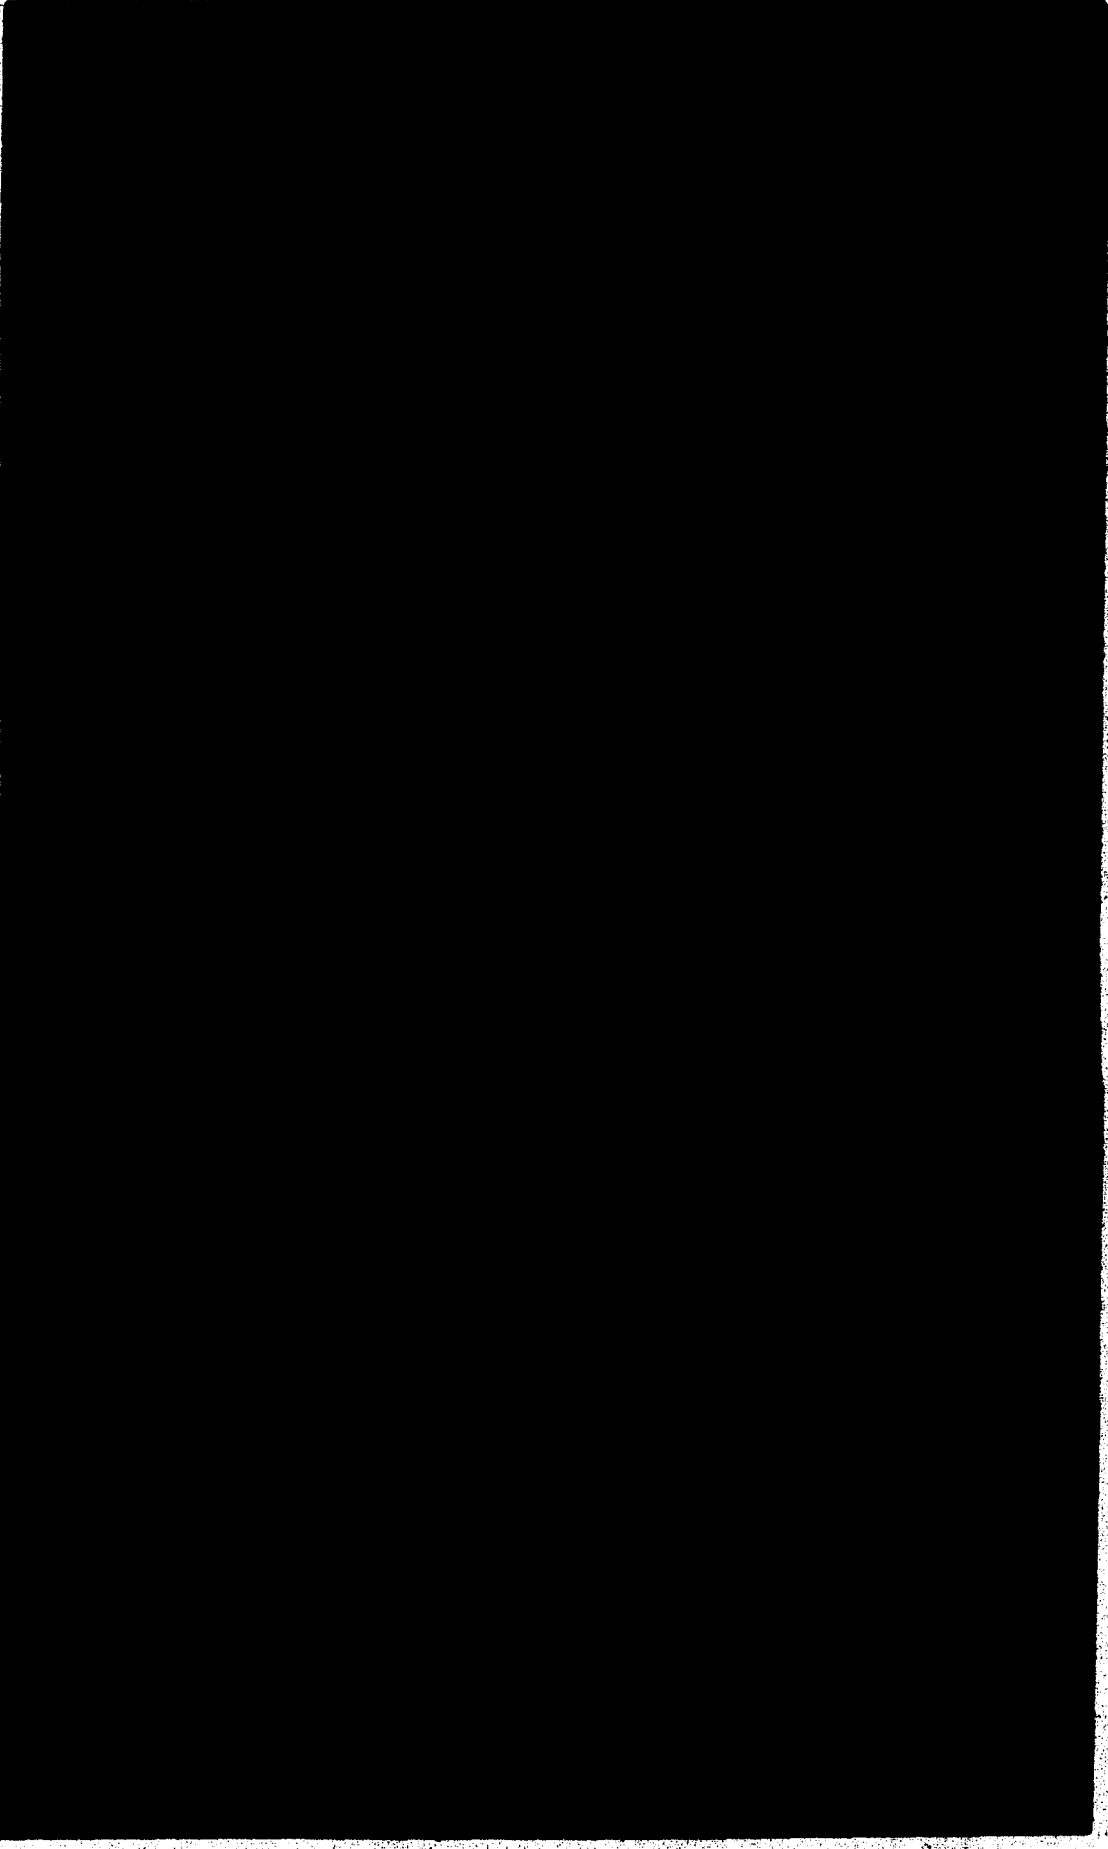

"They came out man to man in the second half and my eyes got big," Kearny said. "When they put the zone on it was tough for me. Freeman did a good job of bumping me and making it tough for me to shoot."

Freeman was tough on the boards as well, as he had 15 rebounds. Freeman led the parade of Vandals who had 50 rebounds for the second consecutive game. Mixon had nine and freshman Dean Watson also had nine including six offensive.

"We don't shoot the ball well and for us to win we have to rebound well," Bustachy said. "I told the guys at halftime if we stop giving them second shots I guarantee we'll win this game."

"I thought we were a little tentative in the first half," Freeman said. "We talked at halftime and knew if we could just control the boards we would win."

The Vandals, after disastrous shooting in the first half, came out and had one of their best halves of the season shooting 57 percent after intermission. The Vandals only average 43 percent for the season.

Idaho will be tough to beat in Big Sky tourney

It is time for the Big Sky Conference to take note. Why? Because the University of Idaho basketball team is for real and they are ready to challenge in the Big Sky Tournament.

With an impressive 78-68 win over league-leading Montana last night, the Vandals proved they can play with any team in the conference and are getting hot at just the right time.

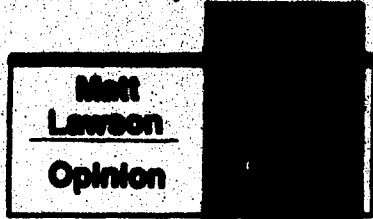

Idaho has been hot for nine games and they hope to continue their streak for five more games. The Vandals have won eight of their last nine games with a 71-51 loss at Nevada on Feb. 17, the sole stain on Idaho's streaking slate.

Idaho now stands at 10-4 in the conference and 16-9 overall after having only a 5-6 record after their first 11 games.

But the Vandals have two more games before the tournament and one of them may be their toughest test of the season. Idaho travels to Boise to play the Boise State Broncos Thursday night. The Broncos are on a streak of their own. Boise State has won their last four conference games after falling to 4-6 in the conference earlier in the season. The Broncos have won five in a row overall and always play tough at home.

However, Idaho has been the

is 7-3 in their last 10 games at the Pavilion, including four victories while winning the last two conference tournaments.

One of Idaho's losses was to UNLV in the 1989 NCAA Tournament along with two defeats at the hands of the Broncos.

The Vandals then host Eastern Washington on Saturday for their fourth game in seven days. UI Coach Larry Bustachy should send a thank you card to Lionel Hampton for the great schedule Idaho has had this week. Does Larry even like jazz? If he did before this week he probably won't by the end of the week.

The Vandals should have no problem beating Eastern considering they looked impressive against the Eagles in Cheney during a 72-55 win on Jan. 26.

Idaho will take a 18-9 record into the tournament after winning 10 of their last 11 games and 13 of their last 18. Unfortunately for Idaho, 13 of those wins have come at home and the tournament won't be in the friendly confines of the Dome.

The Vandals will most likely face Idaho State in the first round and Nevada in the second round if they get by the Bengals. Good-bye Idaho State. Revenge hurts, doesn't it Nevada? Idaho will win their first two games in the tournament and face Montana for the conference championship. I guess it is time for the prediction now isn't it. Idaho 72, Montana 68. That's three in-a-row, but who's counting?

Idaho outguns Bobcats 85-75

By CHRISTOPHER GATEWOOD
Staff Writer

When the University of Idaho traveled to Montana earlier this year for two games against Montana State and Montana, the Vandals came home with their tails between their legs.

So when Montana State came to Moscow Sunday, the Vandals were looking for a little revenge and got it as they survived 29 points by Bobcat guard Willard Dean to beat Montana State 85-75 at the Kibbie Dome. The win avenged a 65-64 loss at Bozeman played on January 19th.

Dean who is averaging only 10 points a game has been averaging 19 since being inserted into the starting lineup five games ago. He had 22 points in the first half on seven of eleven shooting.

"They have great athletes at guard," Vandal Coach Larry Eustachy said. "They are very quick and were taking us one on one in the first half. We just couldn't stop him."

In the second half Eustachy inserted Leonard Perry who held Dean to just seven points in that half.

"That's about as fine a defensive effort I've seen since I've been coaching," Eustachy said. "I probably should have had Leonard in the whole game, that shows you how smart I am."

"Perry really played me tough in the second half," Dean said.

Once again, devastating rebounding efforts carried the Vandals to the win. The Vandals lead the Big Sky Conference in rebounding at over 40 a game and on Sunday they hauled down 50 including 30 on the offensive end.

"When you get 30 offensive rebounds that gives you a great chance to win," Vandal head coach Larry Eustachy said. "We are not a good shooting team. We had 30 offensive rebounds and still only won by 10 points.

Deon Watson led the Vandals with 18 points and had seven rebounds, Keith Stewart had 13 points and eight rebounds, Ricardo Boyd had 10 points and seven rebounds and Otis Mixon had nine points and eight rebounds. Leonard Perry also added 11 points.

"I've said it all year that Deon is a very special player," Eustachy said. "He plays only 21 minutes and gets 18 points, that's outstanding production for a freshman."

The Vandals trailed 42-41 at halftime but gradually pulled way in the second half to get the win. The loss was the Bobcat's eighth in the last nine games. At the midway point of the season, Montana State was in thick of the Big Sky race but has fallen apart. They are currently only playing with seven players.

"You can't really point fingers at anybody," Dean said. "I don't think there is one solution for what has happened to us."

Women suffer tough loss

Lady Vandals find themselves playing for pride

By TOM BITHELL
Staff Writer

Another tough road loss.

It seems to exemplify the Lady Vandals' 1990-91 season which had its fate sealed Saturday night with an overtime loss to Eastern Washington University, 77-76 in Cheney, Wash.

The University of Idaho team finished their 1990-91 road schedule with two wins and 10 losses.

Five of those losses were by six points or less, and four of the five were Big Sky games. Had lady luck been with the Lady Vandals even a little, their hopes for a Big Sky Tournament appearance would still be alive.

Eastern Washington is a case in point. Idaho went into the game having beat the Eagles by more than 20 points on two separate occasions, one on a neutral floor and one at home.

However, this time they played at EWU and their road dilemma resurfaced. The first half went well as Idaho built an expected 35-27 half-time lead. But the second half brought trouble.

Idaho fell behind and was forced to play catch-up. With seconds left to play Idaho forward Hettie DeJong hit an off-balance jumper to tie the game at 70-70 and send it into overtime.

The Vandals then jumped out to a 76-71 lead with 2:50 remaining, but they couldn't score again to keep the lead. With just over one minute to play, EWU's Jordy Roses hit a free-throw and gave the Eagles a 77-76 lead, good enough to win.

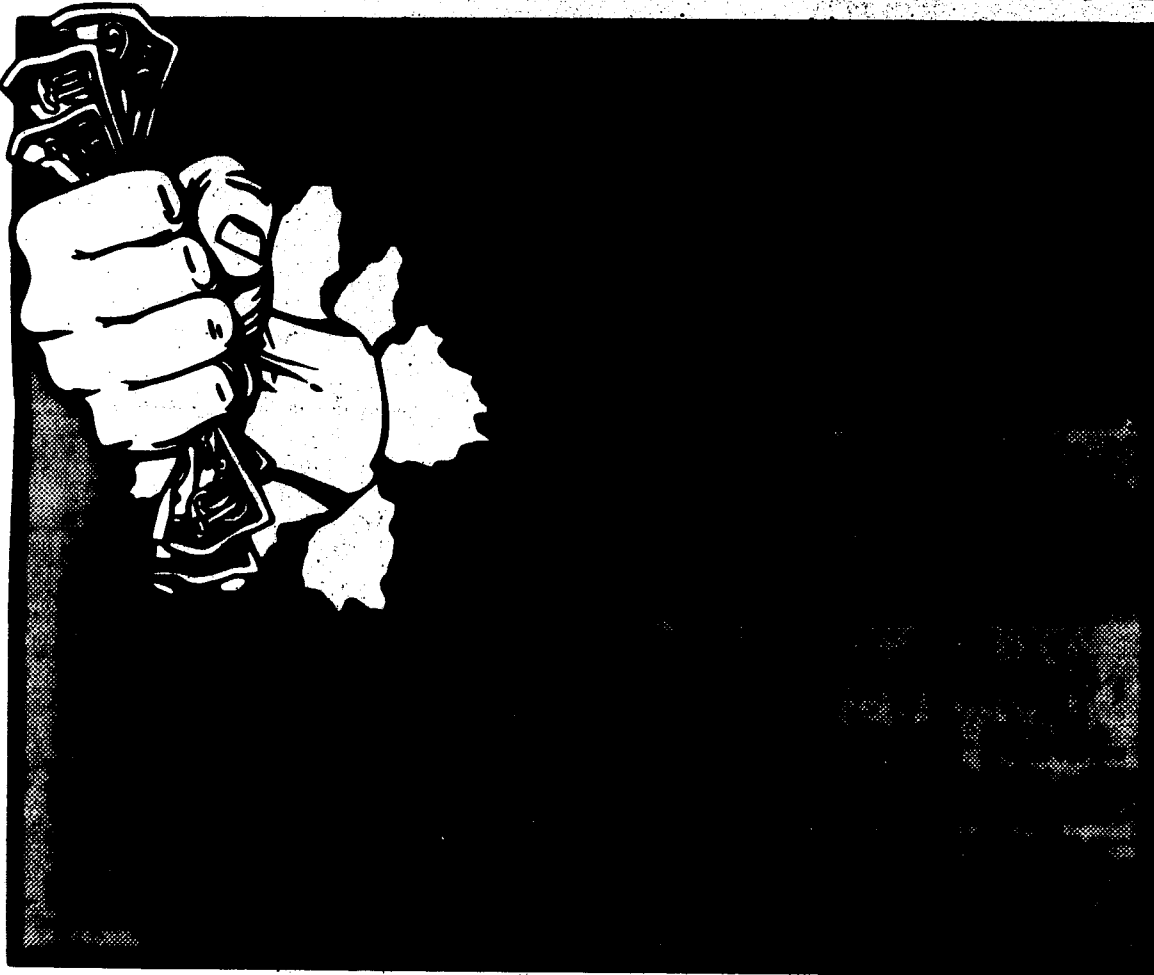

Idaho had a chance to win with under a minute to play, but guard Sherry Peterson had the ball stolen away before a shot could be taken. Then with nine seconds remaining, Peterson stole the ball back for another chance and managed to get off a last-second, long-distance shot. It fell short, like the Vandal's season.

Center Kelly Moeller had a career-high 22 points while getting 10 rebounds. She was joined in double-figures by Krista Smith and DeJong, who each scored 12 points, and Brenda Kuelthau, who added 10.

EWU center Missy Chubbs also had a big day with 18 points and 10 rebounds, while guard Nancy Taucher had 17 points for the Eagles.

The Idaho women return home to close out their season this Friday and Saturday when Idaho State and Boise State Universities visit the ASUI-Kibbie Dome.

The games will be the last for Vandal seniors DeJong and Peterson. DeJong, a forward, is the team's leading scorer, averaging 13.2 points a game. Peterson, the point guard, is the team's leading rebounder and among the league leaders in assists and steals.

GETTING DIZZY. Dizzy Gillespie was the main highlight of this year's Jazz Festival which ended with a bang on Saturday night. (Anne Drobieh PHOTO)

Jazz Festival 1991 had highs and lows

Opinion by LARRY OLSEN
Staff Writer

Even though the excitement and energy of the Lionel Hampton/Chevron Jazz Festival is much appreciated in Moscow, I'm glad it's over. Still, last week's events leave a lot of memories.

The highs and the lows of the festival started with a bang Wednesday when Doctor Blues played '60s-style blues which appealed greatly to the younger crowd.

Thursday was twice as enjoyable with the Ray Brown Trio hammering it up. The highlight of the evening was the "dueling basses," a jam session between Milt Hinton and Ray Brown, accompanied by drummer Jeff Hamilton beating on an instrument case.

By far the most spectacular event of Friday was Dizzy Gillespie's appearance, which is one never to be forgotten by those who attended, but on Saturday, things didn't go quite as smoothly.

Lionel and his New York Big Band came out sizzling, whooping and hollering, and even dancing a little jig. But after intermission, the electricity diminished. Lionel and his band, along with Paquito D'Rivera decided to 'wing' a piece D'Rivera put together the night before. It started out great but halfway through Lionel became lost and was on his own. The Munder was quite obvious and every single person was quite aware of the mistake and was quite shocked. This really dimmed all the electricity generated by the first half of

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS!

Famous U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team members used the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right — 20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep "full" — no starvation — because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home.

This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today. Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $10.00 ($10.50 for Rush Service) - to: StimQuilt, P.O. Box 103, Dept. 2R, Hayden, ID 83835. Don't order unless you want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks! Because that's what the Ski Team Diet will do. © 1990

The 'gong' gets gonged from 1991 Mardi Gras talent show

It's that time again. Mardi Gras is coming. This year there's the usual crowd pleasers such as the Beaux Arts Ball and the parade.

But this year, there's something new brewing for Mardi Gras: The Gong Show. No, not the television version. This year, the gong show has been gonged, and it's time for something a lot better and a lot classier.

It's the Scandalous Vandalous Talent Show, sponsored by the Moscow Downtown Association. This year, there are prizes galore. Every audience member is getting a prize, and there are no losers. It will still have the same type of talent show format, but this year every act is walking away with something cool.

Like what, you ask?

How about 100 drinks from Mingles? Or two dress shirts from Mykelbusts? How about 10 movies from T.R. Video? Or five games of bowling? Or a haircut? Or ... well, you get the picture.

The thing is, anything goes. There are no rules. An act can do whatever they want, as long as it's clean family fun. The first place act gets more than $100, and second and third will be close in the cash category.

There's going to be a Z-FUN disc jockey there, and prizes from record companies such as PolyGram and Capitol will be on hand as well.

Now all the show needs are acts. There are two so far, and there's always room for more. The show will be held March 9 at the Kenworthy Theater.

According to DeAnna Bodeto, the coordinator for the Moscow Downtown Association, "The show will be more relaxed and fun than last year's bloodfest. Last year, there were about 12 acts and about nine of them got gonged. It wasn't even fun."

This year there's a touch of class added to the production because losing isn't part of the ballgame. All ages are welcome, and hopefully there'll be a good turnout.

Again, it's up to you. If you can do anything original, like sing, or be funny, or anything like that, then enter this contest. For information on how to enter, call 885-8281 and ask for Jay.

the concert right out the door.

Figuring that the press has a duty to print as close to the truth as possible, I was very disappointed with the Lewiston Tribune and especially the Idahonian/Daily News. The review in the Tribune by John McCarthy mentioned the blunder but stated "... a few glitches came up, but nothing to diffuse the electricity."

McCarthy is entitled to his view, but when approximately half the house leaves soon after, the bright smiles are gone from the performers' faces and replaced by red blushes — the electricity is gone.

What really burns me up is Tony Semerad's article about the performance in Monday's Idahonian. Semerad did not mention one single word describing the incident and had the nerve to print a quote from Lynn Skinner stating, "Nobody wanted it to end."

During the last three years of attending more than 90 percent of the festival, I have never seen so many people leave early as I did last Saturday night.

By this article you probably think that I do not appreciate what Lionel is doing for Moscow and the University of Idaho, but I do. This is one event I look forward to every year and this mistake will not stop me from attending the festival next year.

What my gripe is about (in case I haven't explained it already) is that certain people in my view are not printing the truth, but sucking up to important university individuals.

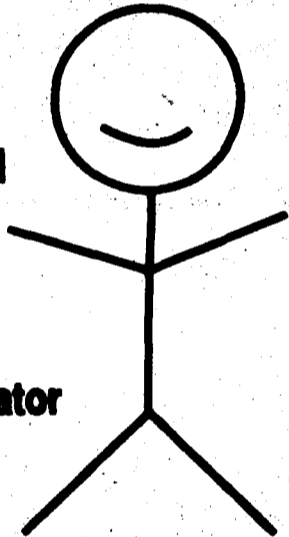

Maybe that is why I was surprised to see a certain press individual (or just a look-alike) back stage Thursday night when I was told that the press was not able to attain backstage passes.

Are some individuals selling their true opinions for benefits? This question I will leave for you and myself to decide.
