Forum provides insight

By ALISA STOFFEL
Staff Writer

A forum of university officials discussed student concerns Thursday evening. The panel included President Zinser, Provost Thomas Bell, Vice-Provost George Simmons, Vice President for Student Affairs Hal Godwin and Chairman of the English department Gary Williams.

The panel's aim is to listen to student opinions, comments, and questions, and use the information to improve the university's teaching policies. The ultimate goal is to help teachers learn how to teach better.

The discussion focused on freshmen, beginning with a student video called 'Freshmen Speak Out.' The first question asked was what is different about the university than you expected. Answers ranged from a positive praise of new independence to a dubious mention of the tough class loads that came as a bit of a surprise.

After the video, the floor opened to questions from the students. The first concern expressed was about the number of teachers in the science and mathematics departments whose accents can not be readily understood.

The panel answered that diversity is one of the main goals of the university; this includes the staff population as well as the student body. All graduate students are recruited and screened before they enter the teaching population. Often, a foreign student will need time to adjust to the culture and language.

"Remember, diversity will help in the real world," Simmons said.

Another issue a student addressed is what can students do when a teacher stresses that his/her class takes precedence over other "less important" classes.

The answer was simply, "talk to the head of the department."

Onto the next question. What happens when a student in a large class has difficulty with the testing method used by that teacher?

The university is working on changing its policy with regard to testing mechanisms utilized in large classes. Alternating the format of exams during the semester is one possibility. Multiple choice for one exam, essay for another, etc.

Class scheduling was also brought up by one student. The difficulty that a non-traditional student often has difficulty fitting classes in with work and family demands.

The university has recently been experimenting with new class times, offering afternoon classes.

The enrollment levels have been an all-time high in these classes, and plans to offer more classes at afternoon times are being made.

UI may purchase Cavanaugh's

By WENDY DEAL
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho has offered $1.1 million to buy the Value Inns by Cavanaugh's, located at the intersection of State Highway 8 and Line Street. As a result, officials at the university are making plans to solve the school's housing problem. The hotel is to be made into graduate housing.

The approval of the Idaho Board of Education will be sought by UI officials for the purchase of the hotel and is on the agenda of the Nov. 22 meeting in Boise. It has been requested of the education board that it waive its rule requiring an independent appraisal of the property's value before approving the purchase of the motel.

The initial cost of the motel and its remodeling is estimated to cost about $31 per square foot, which is considerably less than the cost of constructing comparable new space.

According to Jerry N. Wallace, the university's financial vice president, the university has adequate information to justify the price of the hotel. The price of the hotel is less than the cost of its construction and its assessed value. Value Inns by Cavanaugh's, is owned by Goodale and Barbieri Companies, which are based in Spokane.

The motel would become the first housing specifically commissioned for graduate students. The motel will provide 81 rooms that will be converted into one and two bedroom studio apartments that would house about 80 graduate students. The motel's conference and banquet rooms will become the new location for the enrichment department and the continuing education office as well as being used for conferences. The enrichment department and the continuing education department should be moved in by July

MADD hits students with hard message

By DORI MALINOFF
Staff Writer

In an effort to get beyond the statistics of drunk driving, various members of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) came to the UI on Wednesday night to share personal stories about how driving under the influence of alcohol has affected their lives. This special presentation given in the Administration Building Auditorium was a part of Alcohol Awareness Week, which lasts from Nov. 11 to Nov. 15.

It was not just mothers of victims that spoke. There was also a former drunk driver and a paramedic from San Francisco. Yet, as different as their stories were, they each had the same message to convey: "Think about how you're going to get home before you take your first drink."

Gertie Porter from Weiser, Idaho spoke first about her 16 year-old daughter, Colleen, who was killed when coming home from a party with two of her friends. A star athlete, Colleen had been out celebrating a victory on the night of her death. As Ms. Porter stated, "The hardest thing for me to admit to myself was that my daughter, whom I had trusted and loved, had succumbed to peer pressure and had been drinking." She said she is no longer naive about teenage drinking. After showing slides of her daughter, she ended on this note: "Kiss your mother goodbye before you leave your house. My daughter never had that chance."

The next speaker was Jeff Gahley. He introduced himself as a "living example of ignorance." When he got into a car accident in April 1988, he did not suffer any penalties from the law for driving while intoxicated. He was punished far worse.

His privilege of walking was taken away. He is now confined to a wheelchair as payment for his mistake. He told about the drastic changes that have occurred in his life as a direct result

UI boosting AIDS awareness

By LANE GRACIANO
Staff Writer

It took Magic to wake us up, though AIDS educators have been trying to get our attention for years.

But now that it's up there on our priorities list, it has become easier for their voice to be heard. Before the end of the year, we may even actually listen to them.

According to Margaret Beals, director of education at Gritman Memorial Hospital, the Moscow community has been apathetic toward the AIDS problem. "But now is the time for AIDS education and prevention," she pointed out, "so that we don't see those huge numbers."

As we have realized over the past week, some of the indifference can be traced to basic ignorance on the subject—the larger the influx of information, the more people tune off from it. This perversity has in turn caused denial of the reality of AIDS in Moscow and the University of Idaho.

"Because Moscow is small, fairly rural and fairly conservative, the community feels it is insulated from AIDS," said associate professor Gary Mather of the UI Home Research Center, where laboratory tests on the new HIV drug DDI are being done. "The general opinion is that AIDS just doesn't occur in that type of environment."

Psychology teacher Tammy Allen provided further insight into this aloof attitude: "Society has a tendency to let people off the hook for a lot of things. If a student misses a lot of classes but does well in the finals, we say, well, let's not flunk him. If there's a problem with safe and responsible driving, we'll make airbags. But with AIDS, people are being confronted with their own responsibility, and they don't really want to have to deal with that."

The third half of the indifference stems from the root problem of helplessness, the feeling most people have when faced with a global crisis.

But since community health educators have revealed that HIV already has hit home, the university cannot afford anymore to remain ignorant about AIDS, stubborn about its existence or negative about combating it.

ASUI Vice-President Bill Hefner, when asked what the student government has done about AIDS education, admitted that the question hit a raw nerve. "We don't seem to have an AIDS problem on campus," said Hefner, "but I guess in reality, it's just not visible."

However, behind the scenes, the UI has actually been active on the AIDS battlefield.

"Idaho is among 32 universities that are participating in a Centers for Disease Control (CDC) study to determine the rate of HIV infection on U.S. college campuses," said Dr. Donald Chin, director of Student Health Services.

Meanwhile, the UI played host to a Palouse AIDS Network booth in its Health and Nutrition Fair last Tuesday. Members of the Network include Beals, Mather, fourth-year psychology student Becky Fadness and Moscow resident Tish Ryan, who lost her son to AIDS some years ago.

Last Wednesday, the Network's members met with Dean Pitman and discussed putting together an AIDS education program. The result: AIDS Awareness Week, to be held after the Thanksgiving break.

The program will feature a panel of four HIV-infected people who come from the Idaho area, who Pitman feels would help focus students' attention on the issue. "It puts faces on the problem," he explained, "so students will not just be looking at brochures."

With education increasingly geared toward heterosexual young adults, the majority of us have no more excuses to ignore the AIDS threat. "The risk is small for AIDS," said Dr. Susan Gelletly of Student Health Services, "but if you get it, it ends your life. So the stakes are high."

"And even with non-terminal STDs," added Beals, "who wants to end up having herpes for the rest of their lives?"

"It's not who you are, it's what you do," say AIDS educators. And on the research front, things are being done—battles are being won while the AIDS war rages.

At the UI Home Research Center, Professor Mather is continuing tests on the new drug DDI, which retards the growth of HIV. Drugs like AZT and DDI work their miracles on the immune system of an infected person for a few months, and then HIV mutates, and the medication becomes ineffective against it. But these treatments do buy time for scientists to come up with a cure or a vaccine.

The Journal of the National Institute of Health recently reported findings that scientists may have found HIV's port of entry to the brain, but since variability is the hallmark of AIDS, more tests have to be done.

Also, two years from now, the World Health Organization will be coordinating tests on new drugs on four countries: Brazil, Rwanda, Thailand and Uganda.

By the end of the decade, says the CDC, everyone out there will know at least one person dying from AIDS.

Gritman Education, the Palouse AIDS Network and the university are taking up our best weapons—education and prevention—and joining in the war against AIDS. Before the end of this year, let's hope the rest of us learn to fight too.

Correction: In the Tuesday, Nov. 12, issue of the Argonaut, the second sentence in the third paragraph of column three should read: "And unless the intercourse is protected, engaging in oral and anal sex—risk behaviors in the AIDS realm—also will not safeguard against AIDS."

Correction

Corrections to the article titled, "Candidates debate the issues," which ran in Tuesday's Argonaut:

Rick Noggles hopes to get the interest of the General Reserve to go to students.

Allison Linholm would not take away the General Reserve's money and put it into funding for student run clubs and organizations.

Those opposed to roving polling booths felt off-campus students would not get equal representation.

UI spending money for justifiable reasons

The University of Idaho pocketbook may be in for some serious damage within the next month if attempts to make two major purchases are successful.

The UI is currently pursuing the rights to purchase Value Inns by Cavanaugh's for $1.1 million and the Prichard Gallery on Main Street for $212,000.

The thoughts of buying new land and buildings that can help in the progress of a university is usually welcomed, but these moves might be questioned by the average student at UI.

Thinking of $1 million dollars is scary to anyone, but for most struggling college students, the number is far more than startling.

Add to that another $212,000 and you have now realized the amount of money the UI plans on spending by next year on these two buildings.

The cries have always been heard to lower student fees, or to at least keep them at the current rate and a financial move of this magnitude might bring even more throngs of complaints.

But before the complaints go rolling in to the UI administration, students might want to think about the implications and benefits that can come from these moves.

The purchase of the Prichard Gallery is fairly easy to swallow, when the thought of continuing to pay $2,640 rent a month crosses students' minds. The prospects of having outside agencies provide funding for the gallery are also a good defense of the purchase.

The benefits outweigh the costs in the gallery scenario, so the room for argument should be reasonably narrow.

But back to that number. $1.1 million. It is hard to swallow, isn't it?

The students who found themselves struggling to get a roof over their heads earlier in the fall might want to take a stand for this suggested purchase.

Of course, we are spending over $12 million on a new library, so why not drop a cool million on hotel to go along with it.

But the truth is that one of the biggest problems this campus faces is overcrowding, and with that dilemma comes a lack of adequate housing.

However, the UI is coming to the rescue. They plan on housing up to 80 graduate students in the building by next fall, which would not only help with the housing problem, but add possible incentive for students to come to graduate school.

If this university wants to continue to progress like it has in the past few years, then aggressive moves like the current proposed purchases must be done.

It may be tough for students to justify at first, but the benefits that will result are far more valuable than just dollars and cents.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sports coverage questioned

Editor,
I have become disgusted with your biased and incomplete sports reporting and I dare you to print this letter. What ever happened to the coverage of sports other than football and basketball? Have cross country, track, and other university sports dropped off the face of the earth? I think not. I realize that Idaho football involves many people on campus and brings in a lot of money and pride, but what about all of the other teams that work hard and compete, only to receive little or no recognition? Football still gets front page coverage and photos, even when they lose. The cross country team takes first at a huge invitational and is sifted to the far back page. Also, on many occasions, upcoming meets or meet results are completely omitted from the paper. Matt Lawson writes editorials, criticizing students for their lack of support and enthusiasm at football games, but he should take a look at himself where other sports are concerned. The Argonaut needs to re-establish its goals towards more widespread sports coverage and help generate enthusiasm for ALL university sports.

Governor's race in Louisiana closely watched

Louisiana is the home of the New Orleans Saints, the French Quarter and some of the finest cuisine in North America. Unfortunately, it is also home to some of the filthiest politics in the United States.

Tomorrow, voters in Louisiana will go to the polls to exercise their democratic duties in one of the most closely-watched gubernatorial races in history.

As they stand in front of the voting machines, Cajun voters will sweat profusely. Then they will scratch their heads in contemplation. Then, they will hold their noses and vote for either Edwin Edwards or David Duke.

Louisianians are between a rock and a hard place, though they have only themselves to blame. Since no candidate garnered a clear majority in the general election earlier this month, a run-off election for the statehouse is required.

The only problem is that neither candidate in the run-off is exactly the ideal person for the position.

As everyone knows by now,

David Duke is the alleged born again Christian, ex-Nazi racist thug who underwent plastic surgery to make his face more attractive to voters.

Duke, who ran for the U.S. Senate a couple years ago, has downplayed his shady past by claiming he has found Jesus. Not surprisingly, many observers question his sincerity, and even Despite their mutually unpleasant pasts, the two men stand in stark contrast to each other. Edwards seems to be a representative of the old boy political network. He is a natural successor to the throne of former Louisiana political kingpins Huey and Earl Long, who managed to elevate dirty politics to an art.

David Duke, on the other hand, is a charismatic, young, articulate populist who portrays himself as a victim of the liberal media. His biggest following is among the white, down-trodden underclass of Louisiana.

Duke would be the ideal political candidate for the 1990s, were it not for his dubious past and his amazing likeness to Damien in The Omen movies.

Recent opinion polls show Edwards with a considerable advantage. However, the margin narrows when adjusted for the presence of voters who aren't ready to come out of the closet and voice their support for Duke.

PETE GOMBEN

COMMENTARY

Duke himself can't name the church he allegedly attends.

Edwards is the former three term governor of Louisiana whose past administrations have been characterized by graft, corruption and more than a handful of indictments. Obviously, Edwards feels things will be different the fourth time around, and voters may agree.

ELECTIONS 1991

CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENT

Amy Anderson

What is a candidate for the students? A candidate for the students is someone who has distinct goals, and the knowledge to accomplish those goals. I have served as an ASUI Senator for two years. During my terms as a senator, I have established projects that are beneficial to the students as a whole. Due to the dissatisfaction of a number of students with their landlords, P. Thomas Adams, ASUI Attorney General, and I have formed a Tenants' Association. There has been a great response to the formation. The goal for this organization is to educate and inform the students of their rights and responsibilities as tenants. Many students brought to my attention the lack of study space on campus during dead week and finals week. In response to this, I worked with various University administrators to create more options that allow student concentrate on their exams, and not have to worry about where they are going to study. This included, keeping the library reserve room open 24 hours a day, and the cafeteria in Wallace Complex available for student use throughout the night. If elected, you can be assured that I will represent the students as a whole. I will continue working on projects such as campus lighting, all campus activities, and alcohol awareness. Every student puts money into the ASUI, and I believe that every student should get something out of it. On November 20, remember to vote for the candidate you think will best represent the students, that is, a candidate for the students.

Charles D'Alessio

My name is Charles D'Alessio and I am a candidate for Student Body President. The President must help defend student causes at the State level and this includes fighting fee increases. Some of you know that I went to the State Board of Education last Spring and gave a speech opposing the proposed Fee Increase. To my knowledge not one of my opponents did. I have been diligent about attending the State Board meetings. I have attended 90 percent of these meetings since the 1989/1990 school year. I believe no other candidate can make the same statement. I believe another function of being ASUI President is representing all the students. That also means attending important functions and ceremonies on behalf of the Student Body as well as being accessible to all students. I would like to promote monthly forums where students can come and voice their opinions. I believe that confronting issues at the source is the best way to resolve problems and come up with real solutions. I have worked hard on programs that benefit all students like the Student Financial Aid Committee which will help students understand the applications better and to hopefully help others receive aid. I have also worked with several groups on and off-campus and put together Emergency Phone Numbers Stickers for all students. I would like the chance to continue to make positive changes within the Associated Students and as president I feel that I can further represent the student voice. Thanks for the support.

Bill Heffner

There are several issues which would take priority if I were elected. First, with the cooperation of the Vice-President for Student Affairs, I would create a full-time Drug and Alcohol rehabilitation counselor for campus. The past few weeks have shown us that there is a definite need for a program such as this at the University of Idaho. This would be just the first step in a long process to address a growing problem on American campuses. Second, I would stress family programming. University students with children often times can't attend university programs because of the cost of babysitters, etc. In conjunction with scheduled programs, I would encourage events like a Disney film so the children of students could enjoy themselves and Mom and Dad could attend university events. The position of ASUI President is one of a spokesperson for the student body. I can best articulate the feelings and desires of the student body to President Zinser, members of the State Board of Education, and the Idaho Legislature. I have a lot of energy and good ideas, and I would appreciate your vote on Wednesday, November 20.

Rick Noggles

Hello to you, as a candidate for the position of ASUI President I have been asked by the Argonaut staff to write a brief statement as to why I am running for President, what my qualifications are and what I would like to see accomplished. I have a couple of reasons for running. The main reason is the lack of credibility that has been prevalent in the office of the ASUI President in the recent past. Second I believe that two of the other three running for the position are doing so for the wrong reasons, and they have some sort of secret agenda behind them, which does not include the students' best interest. I feel that I have several qualifications for this position. I was an ASUI senator for one term, and was the chair of the committee I served on. I have held a supervisory or leadership position on three different wildfire crews in the past 11 years, and I am currently a fireman and EMT on the Moscow Fire Department. I am a senior in the College of Forestry and am two semesters from finishing my two bachelor degrees, one in Forest Resources and the other in Range Resources. One of the things I would like to see is the administration hire an alcohol counselor so that the needless deaths that have occurred might be avoided in the future. I also am eagerly awaiting the start up of the shuttle between WSU and the U of I, which I have helped in a small way get to where it is at. I would also like to increase the diversity of the students involved in the ASUI. Currently there are very few minority or international students involved in any part of the organization and I would like to change that. Thank you for considering me for the next President of the ASUI.

CANDIDATES FOR VICE PRESIDENT

Allison Lindholm

My name is Allison Lindholm and I am running for the position of ASUI Vice-President for the 1991-92 year. I am currently a sophomore majoring in Agricultural Education and Bacteriology. During the fall of my first year at the University of Idaho, I was elected to the position of ASUI Senator, and I am drawing my term as a Senator to a close. Over the past year I have fulfilled my Senate duties to the best of my abilities. My major focus as a Senator has been the active representation of my constituency. I have often voted against my personal beliefs on a bill pending in the ASUI Senate because the constituents that I represent have asked me to vote that way. I have been responsive to my constituency in the past, and I plan to do so again in the future if I am elected to this position. As the ASUI Vice-President, I would hope to continue to work closely with the Senate and the President to provide programs and projects that are desired by the student body as a whole. I would also like to continue to involve more students in the ASUI so that the information and interest base that the boards and committees draw from will represent a diverse group of students. I believe that the more input the ASUI receives from its members, the stronger and more beneficial our organization will become. I also hope to remain in close contact with ASUI members. The role of the Vice-President includes presiding over the Senate, but maintaining constituency contact and helping to express student opinions is very important. These concerns should be not only brought before the Senate, but before the ASUI President, the UI administration, and even so far as the Idaho state legislature if need be. As an elected official, I feel that it would be my responsibility, as it has been in the past, to represent and support the members of the ASUI honestly and consistently in all matters. The executive branch of the ASUI must be willing to take responsibility for the actions taken by the ASUI, and I hope to continue in making responsible decisions and representations as directed by the ASUI members as the student body Vice-President.

Brad Moeller

The position of Vice-President accepts the following major duties according to the ASUI Rules and Regulations: replace the president in case of absence, preside over the Senate, and assign/regulate ASUI boards and committees. First off, replacing the president is easily within my capabilities. I was first assistant to the ASUI President in fall of 1990 and in essence experienced the job. Secondly, Senate has been a part of my life for a year and presiding over the meeting would be an honor that I am capable of and anxious to accept. In addition, assigning people to ASUI Boards and Committees is precisely what I did under ASUI President Pena. Campaigning time brings with it big promises from those candidates seeking positions. Candidates will preach about lowering fees, lobbying at the state level, and working together with other universities. Granted, these are vital areas that must be given a lot of attention, but what is being done directly for the students — something that helps them daily? The answer is nothing. If elected my main focus, outside of the duties of Vice-President, will be to take care of the little things that have been neglected for too long. Sure, I'll help the ASUI President lobby for lower fees and also convince the state legislatures of the needs of our university — but my main focus will be here in Moscow. I will work on improving and expanding campus lighting, creating more bicycle parking, dispersing more drinking fountains, and bettering handicapped accessibility. Student needs are changing and I am prepared to adapt. Vote Brad Moeller, on November 20, and watch your student government work for you in Moscow — where it should be!

CANDIDATES FOR THE SENATE

Derrick Brown

My name is Derrick Brown and I am seeking an ASUI Senate seat in the fall 1991 election. I am majoring in English and minoring in Political Science. I have served, not only as a Senator at the University of Nebraska, but also in Parliamentary positions as well. I am experienced with Parliamentary Procedure and Senate operations. My primary concern is student representation. I feel that the Senators' first job, as stated in the ASUI Rules and Regulations, is to be a representative to all students. This includes spending time, not only with one's assigned living groups and college, but also with students at large. The more input a Senator receives, the better able he or she will be to debate issues before the Senate as a whole. Another function of the Senate is to provide programs for students. This must be done for all student groups. A diversity of programs, including programs for the traditional and non-traditional students as well as on and off campus students, is essential. No single group should receive sole attention where programs are concerned. Oftentimes, good ideas from students remain on the back burner because Senators are too busy with special projects to bring other projects to come directly from student concerns. Someone must champion the ideas that will make the University of Idaho better for all of us. It is my hope that student involvement will increase as student knowledge increases. Proper representation is the best way for students to become more informed and, thereby, more involved. That is my ultimate goal. Thank you for your kind attention.

Marc Hall

I am running for one of the 6 ASUI senate positions this term because I feel that I can effectively represent the student body. There are a number of issues right now that are paramount in each of the candidates campaigns. The proposed half hour shuttle between Moscow and Pullman, the lighting of sidewalks on campus, the university alcohol policy (in light of the recent tragedies), and the roving polling booths, are just some of the most prominent. I do have my own views and opinions concerning these issues, however; if I were elected senator it would be my responsibility to educate the student on these issues and relay their decisions to the student governing body. I would like to stress my strong belief of increasing the representation of the student body. The reason that I would like to see more representation of students is that students do not realize or have knowledge of half the programs offered to them both through the ASUI and through the different colleges and individual activities groups. I also believe that there are many decisions made individually by senators, and not enough understanding by the students of the bills being passed. If I am elected by the students then I will do my best to be a senator for the students. I will represent and help the student to understand and participate in the government of which they are a part.

Amtul-Mannan Sheikh

My name is Amtul-Mannan Sheikh and I am running for the position of ASUI Senator. I am a local person who understands the needs of the university and the community, and where students fit into this. My past accomplishments include leadership positions in high school, and writing for the Argonaut during my first year of college. Last fall I was appointed and elected to the senate, and I gained a sense of maturity in my role as a leader and I wish to continue. This past year as a senator I have accomplished some things that I am proud of: 1) Served as a student representative on the Health Insurance Ad-hoc Committee. I represented the students' view and made sure they received coverage worth their money. 2) One of the main senators to get the International Friendship Association funded by the ASUI. 3) Co-authored a bill for a daycare scholarship program. These are a few of the things I worked on during my year as senator. I have learned a lot and I want to continue working for the student body. I have goals that I would like to see happen in the next year: 1) Campus Bus Shuttle from Moscow to Pullman: I sit on this committee currently and I would like to see this program implemented. It's one that would benefit many students. 2) Continue recruiting minority and international students to keep taking an interest in the ASUI governance and activities. I would like to see a cultural and educational diversity exchange between all students. The ASUI has changed for the better in the past year with new ideas and programs, and I want to continue serving students for a greater and challenging ASUI.

Chad Moore

My name is Chad Moore I am from a residence hall, and I am running for a position in the ASUI Senate. My prior experiences in High School have led me to believe that I have the ability to be a good Senator. These above mentioned credentials include being the Senior class President, and an active member in the Salmon River High School Student Body Council. I also attended Business Week and Boys State, where I learned Parliamentary procedure. My reasons for running for this prestigious position, are as follows: I feel that this is a rare opportunity for me to gain an exceptional learning experience that I can carry with me throughout life. This is also the first step in a line of goals that I have set for myself. Another factor that contributed to my decision is the simple fact that I have attended the University of Idaho for over a year, with an unbiased opinion towards the students; meaning that I know personally what their complaints and ideas are. This ability to closely relate to my fellow students will assist me in serving the students. One of my main goals if elected will be to bring the greek system, and the residence halls into closer contact. A way to do this, is by combining GDI week and Greek week into a campus wide fun-fest with combined teams. Another goal of mine will be to implement a drug and alcohol abuse counseling system into the University. I also feel that it is very important to inform the students about the various happenings of the ASUI and the programs and benefits that are associated with this. An example, is getting the students to better understand the General Reserve Fund. I have the ability to serve the U of I Associated Student Body by making their goals my goals. Please consider me for your ASUI Senator.

Jill Presnell

My name is Jill Presnell, I am from Moscow, Idaho and I am a sophomore majoring in International Politics. If I am elected to the senate, I have some goals that I feel will benefit the students and the university on a whole. After speaking to many students and asking them what they feel are the important issues, I have come up with a few specific goals. One of these goals is to increase the amount of bicycle parking on campus and help decrease the amount of accidents involving bicycles. This could be done by publicizing bicycle safety regulations so the students are aware of them. Another of my goals is to try to implement funds into an escort service so that there is more of an incentive for involvement. I will also work on the already implemented services of lighting, the tenants' union, and the shuttle between WSU and UI. I feel that these are effective services and will benefit the students and the university. One more issue that I feel is important and needs to be more closely examined is disabled student accessibility to campus buildings. I will do everything within my power, such as writing up proposals and talking to the administration, to get more campus buildings handicapped accessible. I am not currently in the ASUI Senate, but I enjoy politics and the legislative process and am very knowledgeable of the system. I have been involved in Youth Legislature in Boise, Idaho for three consecutive years and was involved in my high school's political science club. I would like the chance to do some good things for the students and the university because I think that I have some good things to offer. This would not be just a job for me, but it would be something that I really enjoy.

Bill Owens

My name is Douglas William "Bill" Owens and I am running Senator I have had experience in Student Government at Anchorage Community College (ACC), and the University of Alaska, Anchorage (UAA) (1986-88); and, Eastern Oregon State College (1988-1991). I have served on the following committees at ACC and UAA: Senator, 2 years; Campus Center Advisory Committee, 1 year; College Assembly, 2 years; Registration Audit ACC/UAA, 1987; ACC/UAA Restructuring Subcommittee, 87-88; Subcommittee Registration Planning, 87-88; Admission Tuition Study Committee, 87-88; Chairperson Joint ACC/UAA Student Government Bylaws Committee, 88; Admission Tuition Study Committee, 1988; On the Student Lobby before the Board of Regents and targeted State House and Senate members, 1986-88. EOSC: Senator, 2 years; Instructional Services Standing Committee, 89; Student Behavior Standing Committee, 89; Advisory Committee to the President 89-90; Administrative Committee 89-90; College Assembly 89-91; Educational Policy and Curriculum Committee 89-91. University of Idaho: I am running for Vice President of the GPSA; Geography Club President; and Senator. I am for: referendum changing how Senators are elected; a shuttle between WSU and UI; keeping track of education bills in the State Legislature; WSU has to cut back programs which may have an impact on some colleges here. I suggest contacting WSU student government to see how they are dealing with this emergency, and start making contingency plans to deal with a possible future cuts at UI. Elected members of the Student Government should be held responsible to write in a regular Student Government column in the Argonaut a paragraph letting students know what s/he is doing for the student body.

CANDIDATES FOR THE SENATE

Kelly Rush

I am running for the position fo ASUI senator because I want to take an active role on the UI campus. Many times students remain uninformd about what really happens on campus, and I would like to create a better link between the students and their government. There are a few issues which I feel should be implemented this year. The first is the problem we have on campus with the lighting system. Presently, many of the lights turn off when people walk by. This is extremely dangerous, especially for women walking at night. There also needs to be more lighting between the library and the residence halls as well as between the library and the greek houses. If elected, I would work closely with the Administration and the Physical Plant to get this problem changed. Another problem we face is the high number of deaths recently from alcohol and drug abuse. It would be very beneficial to our campus to hire a drug/alcohol rehabilitation counselor to help alleviate these unnecessary deaths. I would also like to see a student book swap started. Instead of going through the bookstore, students could get together for a big sale and end up paying less and earning more money than at the bookstore. With the amount of students who travel back and forth between WSU and UI for classes, I think a shuttle bus is absolutely necessary. There has been some work done on this project in the past, and I would like to help begin implementing this program.

I'm not going to sit here and blow a lot of smoke. I feel that there have been many good things that have come out of ASUI, but I strongly feel that there can be a large improvement in the image presented by our campus. We look too much at the way other universities and colleges do things, but why? Why don't we set the pace for policies and activities, then let everyone look at us and try to copy our policies. One way to increase the image here at U of I would be to step up to a higher level of communication between the students and the representatives. The majority of the students I have talked to have no clue what's going on at ASUI, and I mean NO CLUE! For example, what's wrong with publishing a newsletter once a month or once every couple of weeks that lets the students know what is happening. The newsletter would show the current issues in debate as well as where the money is going. This definitely would not serve as an excuse to give up student to student communications, but rather it would supplement the process as a whole. Another area that I feel has been neglected is the campus/community relations. Here at the University of Idaho we are very unique. The town of Moscow revolves around our campus. Nine months out of the year we continually take from the residents without ever paying them back. Over at ASUI, we could help get the struggling clubs and foundations get started, which will help future generations of youths to have a chance in this world. I could sit here and talk about policies and goals forever, but we don't want to get sidetracked. The key issue here is to improve the image that is represented by U of I. Through increased alcohol awareness, campus/community relations, and most of all a higher level of communication, we can achieve a status that others will want to copy. I have been around, I've lived in the Residence Halls, and I've lived in a Greek organization, and I've had to work my way through college. I see the disunity that exists. So if you want good representation, no matter where you live, make sure you turn out and vote on November 20. Let's give the University of Idaho an image that will set an example for innovative student politics.

of this single night. In addition to losing his self-reliance, he feels his sense of pride has been broken. Furthermore, he has lost all of his former friends except for one. He cited his 2 1/2-year-old-son as his reason for continuing to believe in the beauty of life.

Another perspective of the harmful effects of drunk driving was given when Sigrid Gauger, a former paramedic for the San Francisco Bay Area, spoke. She described her job as "scraping people off the streets." In order to get her message across, she showed slides, most of them very graphic. She said that she has learned seatbelts do work effectively in preventing death. She also encouraged the idea of using designated drivers. At the end of her presentation, in order to describe how important our lives are, she gave the analogy of someone putting his or her hand in a bucket of water. Although nothing really happens to his or her hand and the water looks the same, she explained that there are ripples made in the water and the chemical structure of the molecules will never be the same. This can easily be applied to those who are left behind. Those who suffer physical harm are not the only ones to bear the consequences of drunk driving. Everyone who knows them is affected as well.

In order to give an example of how intense the ramifications of a drunk driving accident can be, Betty Stadler spoke. As president of the Idaho state chapter of MADD and as a mother who lost her daughter to a drunk driver, she is all too familiar with this topic. When her daughter was killed, her husband began dying of grief and depression. He could not understand why his daughter had to die for such a senseless reason. A little over two years after the death of her daughter, she buried her husband, Ben, as well. She said that all it takes is 15 seconds to take a drink. For some people, that 15 seconds can be one beer that has the power to impair their reflexes and sense of judgement whether they know it or not. She suggested taking time to plan when you party. That forethought can be your key to survival.

In addition to these speakers, there are 22,000 more every year with a horror story to tell about driving while intoxicated. As Ms. Dianne Milhollin from Student Advisory Services commented, "There is as much of a potential for positive ripples to develop as for negative ripples. These tragedies should not have to be in vain. Let them teach us a lesson so we will no longer have to mourn for ignorance."

of 1992, if all goes as planned.

The university's Garden Park Village apartment complex, which is south of Cavanaugh's, will also eventually become graduate housing.

Roger P. Wallins, associate dean of the College of Graduate Studies, reported that the university's fall graduate population is 1,483 students.

Many university officials commented on the sale as a positive move for the university. Students should be aware of the commitment the university has made to housing graduate students.

A $6 million bond issue would be used to finance the purchase and remodeling of the motel, construction of 12 family housing units, a new child day care center and a plant to provide air conditioned air to the library, Renfrew Hall and the UCC. The family housing units will be located on the southeastern edge of campus.

Another 85 family housing units will be put up for the education board's approval in April. The project would be financed with an additional bond issue, and the resident's rent will be used to repay the bond issues.

According to Moscow Chamber of Commerce figures, the closure of Cavanaugh's would decrease the number of hotel rooms in Moscow by 14 percent to 472 rooms.

A local motel owner viewed the closure of Cavanaugh's as a great financial advantage because of the drop in competition.

Most Moscow motels run at about a 65% vacancy rate, except on weekends when UI events like football games and homecoming occur. Moscow motels ran at about 80% full before the University Inn-Best Western, Super 8 Motel, Motel 6 and Value Inns by Cavanaugh's were built. It seems as if the hotel industry in Moscow is overloaded for average everyday business and understocked for peak season and events. Obviously the sale of Cavanaugh's to the university will effect the industry of accommodations. With the loss of this motel, surrounding towns will benefit from the business being driven out of the Moscow-Pullman area.

A sizable portion of voters remain undecided.

Who will win the governorship in Baton Rouge? Probably Edwards, although the intense scrutiny by the media and the interference by out-of-state politicians may cause an electoral backlash. If nobody had paid any attention to David Duke, he would have faded away. The more he stays in the headlines, the bigger his persona becomes.

When tomorrow dawns on the bayou, the choice for any moral, ethical, responsible resident of Louisiana is crystal clear. Move to Texas.

Are heaven and hell just a myth?

Editor;
 "Is Hell Just a Myth?" the sign on the UCC asked. That raises a further question: "If it isn't a myth, then where is it?"
 To date, no one has been able to show us where Hell-or Heaven, is located. In the oldtime religion of the Old Testament there was a Heaven, but only God, his sons and the angels lived there. It was not far above the dome that covers the earth and separates the waters above from the waters below.
 In those days, the world was believed to be flat and to have four corners. If you went to the top of a high mountain you could see all the kingdoms of the earth and if you built a tower high enough, it would reach up to Heaven.

 In the Old Testament only one man went to Heaven: Elijah, in a fiery chariot pulled by fiery horses. Everybody else died the usual way and went to Sheol, where they were consumed by worms until they once more became the dust from which they were made. If they were obedient, God made them prosperous and let them live until the time they died, but he punished their children and their children's children unto the third and fourth generation.

 Centuries later, while exiled in Babylon from 587-538 B.C.E., the Hebrew priests thought this was a much better way to control people than the old belief, so they adopted it into their own religion. Later, the Christians adopted it too; later still, the Muslims.
 This, in a nutshell, is the history of Heaven and Hell. Are they just mythology?
 Put on your thinking cap and decide for yourself.

Women athletics need equality

Editor;
 In Mr. Gatewood's Nov. 5th article "Women struggle for equality," were you honestly trying to persuade readers that women's athletics should be taken more seriously?
 You made some good points throughout the article: women's athletic events have few fans, possibly because even though women athletes are as intense about their sports as men, but that their games move a little slower and they don't slam dunk.
 This might be part of it, but the underlying cause of the lack of support for women's sports is an overall societal attitude that sadly still prevails—that if women are serious about anything, they should be serious about home-making. We've all grown up with a mostly unspoken attitude that women take up sports as a hobby, they're the weaker sex, etc.

 I'm glad to see someone making an effort to dispel this outdated, misinformed attitude, especially a man interested in sports, like yourself. But did you really think that saying, "Sometime during the basketball season when the Vandal men have a night off go check out one of the women's games," was showing support for women's sports? Or is it just a reflection of the attitude

Vandals edge Clansmen, 72-70

By MATT LAWSON
Editor

Last night was Idaho's first basketball game of the season and it showed in more ways than one.

Idaho did defeat Simon Fraser 72-70, but the victory was far from easy.

The Vandals committed 31 turnovers, missed 40 shots (31-71) and were whistled for 22 fouls in the win.

"I didn't like the way we played as a team overall," Orlando Lightfoot said. "The only thing I liked was at the end when we sucked it up and won the game."

Idaho did just that as the Vandals held the Clansmen to two field goals in the final three minutes to pull out the win.

The Vandals fell behind 64-62 on a jump shot by Simon Fraser's Andrew Steinfeld with 9:04 left before making their final push.

Steinfeld stunned the Vandals for 21 first-half points, before Idaho adjusted to hold him to six points after the intermission.

"I said let's play behind him and he scored 10 points in the first minute and a half," Idaho head coach Larry Eustachy said. "We fronted him in the second half and did a lot better job containing him."

"We tried to get the ball to him (Steinfeld) in the second half," Simon Fraser head coach Jay Triano said. "They were keying on him a little bit better."

Steinfeld played a physical game all night frustrating Vandal center Deon Watson while collecting a game-high 15 rebounds. Watson also sported a split lip after the game courtesy of the 6-foot-8 center.

Steinfeld's effort on the boards helped the Clansmen rebound Idaho 41-40 to the disappointment of Eustachy.

"That's very, very frustrating," Eustachy said of the performance and being outrebounded. "I told our players that a team that doesn't practice well doesn't play well and we didn't."

One of Idaho's lone bright spots was junior college transfer Scott Matthews. The junior point guard scored 17 points, including 13 in the first half, and only committed three turnovers in 33 minutes of play.

"If it wasn't for Scott Matthews' feel for the game we wouldn't have won the game," Eustachy said.

Matthews faced steady pressure from the Simon Fraser

Hoop schedule a little thin

Somebody should check my pacemaker. I don't know if the batteries have gone dead or I'm just so excited that I can barely contain myself.

I sincerely hope you were at the Vandals opening game last night against Simon Fraser. The game was real thriller. No, it was, honest, and I mean that. The Vandals beat the surging Clansmen, 72-70 in front of a Memorial Gym crowd. This will surely be one of the most exciting Vandal home games played this year.

Oh, the Vandals do play some exciting games early in the year, when they go to the Alaska Shootout, but you won't see any of them.

When the Vandals travel to the frozen tundra they will face four teams that that played either in the NCAA Tournament or the National Invitational Tournament. The list is impressive. Eastern Michigan made to the round of sweet 16 at the NCAA's, Coastal Carolina lost to Indiana by three and Massachusetts made it to the semi-finals of the NIT. If the Vandals play like the did against Simon Fraser, coach Larry Eustachy might make his players mush a dog sled team home.

Just described is the strength of the Vandal road schedule. Unfortunately with the the likes of Last Chance State College (Lewis-Clark State College) on the home schedule, I don't think you'll be seeing Dick Vitale on the Palouse anytime soon.

The other home games offer such eye-popping matchups as Alcorn State and Sacramento State — a team that has just gone Division I. I'm so excited, I can barely contain myself. I almost forgot, we play Washington State in Pullman. We can pretend that's a home game.

But don't blame Eustachy for the lack of a good home schedule. Believe me, the effort on the part of the whole coaching staff is there. Moscow might as well be Siberia, because nobody will come here. Why? The Vandals are far too good.

"You should see our phone bill," said a cranky and slightly irritated Eustachy. "I'll bet we called almost every school in the country. I'd like to thank the coaching staff before me that built such a fine program."

Eustachy makes the last comment in sort of a sarcastic manner. Sure, Eustachy really does like winning, but that can cause it's own set of problems. Like getting teams with names besides NorthSouthEastern West Tennessee A & T to come to the Dome.

You see the Vandals aren't the "politically correct" team to lose to. It's looks bad for Top 25 teams to lose to teams like Idaho. Remember that the eyes of Big Brother, which belong to the NCAA Tournament committee, are always watching. The Van-

X-country looks to Big Sky title

By DOUG BAUER
Staff Writer

Having two weeks off to condition and heal injuries, the University of Idaho Vandal men's and women's cross country teams are ready to venture to Salt Lake City to participate in the District VII Cross Country Tournament.

"We're going in pretty healthy," women's coach Scott Lorek said. "I've had a couple of people come up sick because of the weather, but I think we're ready to go. I don't think that we'll have any problems going into it."

Three of the nation's top 25 women's cross country schools, including Northern Arizona University, Brigham Young University and Weber State University, will be participating, along with 19 other teams, including the Vandals.

"It'll be tremendous competition," Lorek said. "We'll see what happens, but it's going to be one big showdown."

Among the Vandal runners participating will be Dianne Knudson, Keri Krebsbach and Robyn Slate, who are not only the top three on the team, but a formidable force to be reckoned with.

Dianne Knudson had previously been ailing from a hip injury, but, according to Lorek, she is doing fine now.

"We've been working with her injury since August and she's right on schedule right now," Lorek said. "I think that as a group we're running really well."

As for the men's team, top runner Mark Olden will be participating in Salt Lake, as will newcomers to the team this year Troy Holman, Jason Brenton, Eric Walter and Dustan Smith.

"We're (new runners) all really excited," men's runner Jason Brenton said. "I think that it's pretty impressive that we have one scholarship runner and we're competing with schools that have five guys running with scholarships."

"Everybody has really matured a lot," Brenton said. "We're really running very well now."

With Olden leading the way, the Vandals should fare relatively well at Salt Lake.

"It's going to be tough without Darren (Kotsovos)," Brenton said. "We're not picked to finish well, but we're going down there to try and beat some people."

If things go well, the team may qualify for the NCAA tournament.

"If we get a good race out of Troy, Eric and I, then we should do fairly well," Brenton said.

If the team does not run well, however, there is a possibility that Olden, if not another of the Vandal's runners, can receive an individual berth to the tournament. The individual berths are usually given to runners who excel individually, but who's team is not up to par.

"I think he (Olden) has a chance," Brenton said. "He's running really well right now."

UM comes to town

Although Homecoming was three weeks ago for the Idaho, another homecoming of sorts will occur tomorrow when the Vandals host the Montana Grizzlies at 1 p.m.

This homecoming will occur on the Montana sideline, though, as Lewiston High graduate and Post Falls native Brad Lebo will quarterback for the Grizzlies.

"Yeah, you could say it is kind of a homecoming," Lebo said. "I have a lot of friends from high school who go to school at Idaho and a lot of my family will be at the game."

But the Vandals hope Lebo's homecoming won't be one he wants to remember.

With numerous losses in the defensive backfield this season, Idaho has struggled against the pass and Lebo presents as much of a threat as anyone.

"Lebo is a good player," Vandal head coach John L. Smith said. "He's definitely in the upper-echelon in the quarterbacks of the Big Sky."

Lebo proved how good he was last week against Nevada's tough secondary in a 35-28 double-overtime loss. The junior threw for 489 yards on 36 of 58 passes, along with three touchdowns and no interceptions.

Lebo has now thrown for 2,960 yards and 16 touchdowns on the season, but has thrown 12 interceptions.

"We've finally come together as a team," Lebo said. "We've been throwing the ball a lot and we've started to play a lot better in the last four weeks."

Idaho possesses a threat of its own with sophomore quarterback Doug Nussmeier coming on of late.

Nussmeier threw for 334 yards and three touchdowns in Idaho's 44-28 win at Northern Arizona last week. The Oregon native has now thrown for over 300 yards in four games this season and hasn't thrown an interception in three games.

"Our defensive guys are extremely worried," Lebo said. "Doug Nussmeier is an extremely good quarterback and we're going to have to score a lot of points to beat them."

"Idaho's a great team and

they've had a lot of success in the past," Lebo said. "You've got to score a lot of points against Idaho because their offense is so good. If you don't you'll be out of the game right away."

Vandal defensive end Jeff Robinson is coming off a career day against Northern Arizona. The junior had four sacks to up his season total to 14 and looks for a repeat of his performance

Hilbert hopes for play-offs

By SEV HOINESS
Staff Writer

The Vandal volleyball team will face their last regular season foe this Saturday evening at 7:30 in the Memorial Gym. The Vandals will battle the Wildcats of Weber State University and a possible Big Sky Conference tournament birth is at stake.

The scenario in which Idaho would attend the tournament is far fetched and highly dependent on how the rest of the Big Sky teams perform.

"All we can do is beat Weber," said Dee Porter, "the rest isn't up to us."

The Vandal play-off hopes depend on a win over Weber this Saturday and Eastern Washington University must also beat Weber Friday night. Idaho State University would have to win one of their last two matches to clinch third place in the conference. Boise State University would have to drop both of its remaining matches against the University of Nevada and Northern Arizona University. Nevada would have to win both of its remaining matches against Boise and Northern Arizona. Then and only then would Idaho qualify based on the fact that it swept Nevada and Nevada swept Boise. Thus breaking the fourth place dead lock between Idaho and Boise sending Idaho to the conference championships.

Home court advantage may play a bigger role in Idaho's match this weekend then usual; Weber is 0-ten on the road for the season. That's zero wins and ten losses, by far the worst in the conference.

"I feel pretty good going into this weekend," said head coach Tom Hilbert.

Hilbert has reasons to feel confident. His women have had an entire week to prepare for the Wildcats and Weber has been on the road all week. First at the University of Utah Tuesday, Eastern Washington tonight and Idaho tomorrow evening. Any mortal would be tired.

Idaho's week lay off will give them an edge over Weber in match readiness and preparation. On the other hand, Weber will be scrambling to put a game plan together for the match tomorrow.

The last time the Vandals and Weber met, Idaho spotted Weber two games quick and eventually lost two games to three. Hilbert's main concern is coming out to play from the start.

"We'll start playing hard from the beginning of the match," said Hilbert.

That's only one of the keys to beating Weber.

"We need to be aware of where their hitters are because they do a lot of fancy stuff," said Jessica Puckett. "We need to run a quick offense and pass consistently."

Passing is where Idaho has had problems in the past and it could be pivotal during crucial points of the match. Idaho needs to get the ball to setter Amie Hanks, who is third in the conference for assists per game, and she'll get the ball to the left outside hitters, (Puckett and Heather McEwen) Idaho's bread and butter.

Idaho's offensive and defensive attack will need to generate side outs consistently according to Hilbert. The defense in Hilbert's opinion will block Weber's last season in Missoula. Last year Robinson had four sacks, two interceptions, eight tackles and three pass deflections to earn Sports Illustrated Player of the Week honors.

"Last year he had a huge game against us," Lebo said of Robinson. "He's probably the best defensive player in the conference and we're obviously going to have to control him."

Led by Robinson, the Vandal defense has recorded 34 sacks, but the inability to force turnovers has been Idaho's downfall. After intercepting 27 passes and recovering 13 fumbles last season, the Vandals have only had eight interceptions and three fumble recoveries this season.

Both teams are realistically out of the playoffs with four losses each, so players and coaches have looked to the strong rivalry between the two teams for incentive this week.

"Idaho is probably one of our bigger rivalries because we have such a tough time with them," Lebo said of Montana's three straight losses to the Vandals. "Maybe this game will be fun because it's not for anything but pride."

In addition to defeating the Montana team for three consecutive years, Idaho has won nine out of the last ten meetings against the Grizzlies.

"This is a big rivalry," Smith said. "Other than Boise, this is the biggest one we have."

"You hate to say it, but you're playing for second place, but it's better than playing for the cellar."

The Idaho defense suffered another blow last week against Northern Arizona. Defensive end Jake Sturmer suffered a knee injury that required surgery this week. That makes twelve surgeries that Vandal players have undergone this season.

While a streak of six straight playoff appearances will come to an end this season, Idaho takes a streak of another form into tomorrow's game. The Vandals have won 23 straight regular season games in the month of November dating back to a 43-24 loss to Nevada in 1983.

dals are a borderline team. Not good enough to be in the Top 25, but good enough on any given night to beat you, especially at home. When NCAA bids are handed out and a team is on the edge, a loss to the Vandals could mean the difference between making it or wishing you would have played Moscow High.

"The (University of) Portland won't even come to play us," Eustachy said.

It gets worse than that. Forget about a Pac-10 team coming in here, let alone a Top 25 team.

"We'd have to get real bad in a hurry for that to happen," Eustachy said.

Not even Don Monson's Oregon Ducks will come to the Dome. Monson used to coach at Idaho. A loss to the Vandals might mean his borderline Ducks stay in Eugene. According to Eustachy Monson is dreading a trip he has to Missoula to face the University of Montana.

Even worse, Virginia Commonwealth University, a fair team from the Sunbelt Conference is playing at Eastern Washington, yet, won't come an extra 90 miles to play the Vandals.

"It's frustrating for me," Eustachy said. "We can't even get teams on a neutral court."

Ultimately, teams like Idaho try to get what's termed as "home and homes. Travel to play a game and then have the favor returned later in the year. The closest the Vandals have come to doing this with a Top 25 team was Kansas two years ago. UI was crushed in Lawrence, but the Jayhawks have yet to return to Moscow for a rematch. The only reason the Vandals got one date with KU is because Athletic Director Gary Hunter is a graduate.

Teams such as Indiana and Duke don't travel because they don't have to. Why waste money on travel expenses when you can pay a lesser team to come to town and then make all the money back in gate receipts?

"If I was the coach at a Top 25 school, I'm not sure I'd play us either," Eustachy said. "Why go on the road when you can stay home and make money. Sure we could have the toughest schedule around, but we'd spend the whole season on the road. That's too much for our young, experienced team to go through."

Vandal women getting ready

By SEV HOINESS
Staff Writer

Every year about this time "old man winter" makes his presence known in Moscow, so does the women's hoop team and this season they mean business. They've been chosen fifth in the pre-season poll of Big Sky Coaches, but anticipate a more successful season for themselves.

"I think we'll be a better team than that, it's very early to tell," said head womens basketball coach Laurie Turner. "Last year we were picked second and finished sixth."

Last season when the Vandals finished conference play in sixth they tied with Eastern Washington University. Eastern was picked to finish fourth by the coaches this season, only four points ahead of Idaho in the voting with 41.

The University of Montana has taken the Big Sky Conference championship four years running and was chosen by seven of nine head coaches to repeat again this year.

"Obviously they're (Montana) the team to beat," said Turner.

Turner acknowledges that Montana will be tough to beat this year, but last year Idaho, as well as a few other teams, nearly toppled the Grizzlies and maybe this is the year for someone else to wear the crown.

The Vandals lost some experience at the guard position vacated by Sherry Peterson, last year's conference leader in assists per game. Turner is confident that the guard position will be adequately filled.

"We have three point guards in our program this year and they're all doing positive things in practice," said Turner.

The new group of freshman Turner brought in this year have been a good addition to her squad and are expected to see the court. The frosh come from as far away as Derby, Kansas and as near as Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. Kerri Wykes, P.J. Hall, Kellynn Reed and Rachael Purvis have the talents to make an impact on Turner's squad.

"They have all been able to contribute early," said Turner, "they'll improve and we'll definitely see them playing this year."

Probably the Vandal's most valuable asset is the inside play of senior Kelly Moeller. Turner expects Moeller and senior Krista Smith to run the middle for the Vandals. Their experience will be expected to lead the Vandals throughout the long season.

"We will definitely have to capitalize on the inside game," said Turner.

The inside game will be complimented by juniors Kortnie Edwards and Brenda Kuehlthau. Edwards and Kuehlthau averaged 5.3 and 6.7 points a game respectively and will need to pick up the slack in scoring for the loss of Hettie Delong to graduation.

"All four (Moeller, Smith, Edwards, and Kuehlthau) will give us some depth and experience on the floor and put us where we want to be at the end of the season," said Turner.

The Vandals open their season tonight at 7:30 against NAIA Simon Fraser in Memorial Gym. The game is an exhibition and will not reflect on the Vandal's record. For this reason Idaho isn't focusing on Simon Fraser, but looking forward to their first regular season match-up against Eastern Washington University next Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Gym.

"We are trying to get ready for Eastern Washington," said Turner.

guards through the entire game, but kept his composure while holding the Vandal offense together.

"My offense is irrelevant to me," Matthews said of his team-high scoring effort. "I just want to contribute in any way I can whether it be through offense, defense or rebounding."

Idaho had five players take the court for the first time in almost two years and the rustiness showed in a sluggish Idaho offense and some confusion at times on defense.

"I'm sure it was a new experience for our players because they haven't played in a long time," Matthews said of the performance.

Lightfoot, one of the five players to come off a long lay-off, was the first to admit that he was tired throughout the game.

"I got winded in the first half," Lightfoot said. "In the second half I thought I would get more tired than I did. I just sucked it up and played like a man and helped us win the game."

Lightfoot finished second in scoring to Matthews with 16 points and pulled down 10 rebounds.

"We got a little impatient at times," Lightfoot said of the Vandal offense. "I was rushing a lot of shots that I normally don't in practice."

"It was frustrating because they were fronting us and we had a tough time getting the ball inside," said Watson, who had 11 points and a team-high 11 rebounds. "They played pretty good defense."

Conditioning played a big role in the tightness of the game as Eustachy was constantly rotating in new players to relieve their tired teammates.

"We're not in game shape right now," Watson said. "We played a lot better defense in the second half."

Idaho held Simon Fraser to 29 points in the second half after taking a 45-41 halftime lead on a last-second three-pointer by Matthews.

"I mentioned fatigue an awful lot in the first half and it came out tonight," Eustachy said. "That's a very well coached team that could be in the middle of the pack in the Big Sky."

"This team is just young and immature and only time will help this team," Eustachy said. "I was on the whole team pretty hard at halftime and I liked the way they responded."

■ TENNIS — The University of Idaho Vandal fall tennis season ended on a high note this past weekend as the Vandals did well in the Region VII Tournament at Salt Lake City.

The competition was the best the Vandals will see all year as teams from all over the West were competing.

The men's No. 1 player, Scott Anderson, had an impressive showing as he made it to the round of 16 before losing to Joe McDaughna of San Diego State, 6-4, 6-4. The winner was Michael Tibbet of Northern Arizona, who is the top player in the Big Sky Conference.

"It was an outstanding tournament," UI coach Dave Scott said. "By Tibbet winning it shows the Big Sky is getting to the point where it can be competitive with anybody out West."

Scott also praised the play of freshman Brian Hart.

"He played well, but you could tell he had some jitters," Scott said. "Better things for him will come with experience."

The women compete in District VIII, but didn't attend because of a lack of funding. Still, Scott sees a bright future for his women. The top player should be Merlene Forde, who will be playing at No. 1 after competing at No. 3 a year ago.

"Merlene has the ability to be our No. 1," Scott said. She has great athletic ability. I'm anxious to see how she does in some big matches."

The Vandals spring season begins February 14 and will last twelve weeks. The fall season also lasts for 12 weeks. On the whole, the season is 144 days long.

"People don't realize it, but the fall is very important," Scott said. "It sets the basis for how you will be seeded during the spring. Your going to see a strong conference this year."

No, this isn't just another peek into the toilets of the rich and famous, or a strange cult of bathrooms demonstrators: It's the band Don't Mean Maybe (sans drums) at home in their john.

By STEVE CORDA
Asst. News Editor

On Friday November 15, 1991, ASUI Productions and KUOI-FM will be turning an alternative music hat trick. The two organizations are sponsoring the bands Tree People, Antietam, and Don't Mean Maybe.

The show starts at 8 p.m. in the SUB Ballroom with Tree People. They are touring to promote their second album recorded on Toxic Shock Records titled, Guilt, Regret, and Embarrassment.

The second act is the power rock trio Antietam. Their debut album, also called Antietam, has been called "the most satisfying music of last year," by The Village Voice's Howard Hampton.

Don't Mean Maybe headlines the evening in support of their latest album Real Good Life.

Admission is free with current UI student I.D. and $4 for the general public. Tickets will be available at the door.

ALL MY CHILDREN: Pine Valley's prominent couples turned out for the Anti Landfill Coalition Ball at the country club with Regis Philbin, Kathie Lee Gifford, and Miss America. Erica arrived with Trevor and blasted Natalie for her insensitivity toward him. Jack goaded Brooke into going public with a damaging Tempo story on Erica, but she had the story killed. Dixie nearly caught Craig and Gloria embracing. Steven covered for them, but warned Craig he won't do it again. Craig persuaded Dixie to elope with him. Wait To See: Erica gets some surprising news.

ANOTHER WORLD: Jake confided to Kathleen that he cares for Paulina. Meanwhile, Paulina planned to tell Grant exactly why she married Jake. Cass and Frankie found Taylor at a sanitarium and learned the truth about Sharlene. John was shocked when Taylor didn't recognize him. Ryan and Frankie realized that Carl knew the Harrison family secret and that it could ruin Grant. Lucas decided to find Jenna's real father. While Dennis assured Jake he's got Marley hooked, Marley told Jamie she's glad he's nothing like Dennis. Wait To See: Ryan is confronted with a demanding emotional dilemma.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Julie realized Iva is now Aaron's mother.

Greer warned Kira not to trust Nancy. Later, Kira recalled Lisa warning her that she could go to jail for perjury, and began to wonder if Nancy could be trusted after all. Andy begged Courtney for another chance. Kirk questioned Marcy who came up with all the right answers. Nicole confided her theories about Phillip's murder to Darryl. Margo warned Darryl if he didn't tell Fran-nie the truth, Tom would do it for him. Lisa told Tom she wasn't interested in an article about John Eldridge, her ex husband, but later arranged to get a copy of it. Wait To See: Darryl and Nicole's meeting at the river takes an unexpected turn.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Despite Macy's attempts to keep him away, Clarke insisted on being with Sally when she went into early labor. Bill entered the room as Margo and Blake kissed and called Margo insulting names. Jake assured Felicia she was not to blame for his falling out of love with her, and in love with Macy. Eric begged Brooke to give their marriage another two months before she files for divorce. Thorne got Eric to admit he loved Brooke too much to contest the divorce. Macy continued to believe Clarke was still involved with Julie. Wait To See: Stephanie creates confusion for Eric.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Shane, Roman, John, Bo, and Brian worked together to free Kayla and Kimberly from the demented Cal, who was seriously injured. Though thrilled to be back with Shane, Kayla hesitated to tell him about Jeannie's real father. Roman, Marlana, and John learned the mysterious numbers in the John Black file were related to astronomy, and they suspected Lawrence was involved. As the jury selection began for Carly's trial, no one realized Kiriakis was still alive and well and plotting to find the treasure, as well as keep Bo and Carly separated. Isabella was shocked when John reported flashbacks of being tattooed in the San Cristobal cell where Roman was held prisoner. Wait To See: Isabella is finally forced to deal with her innermost fears about John.

GENERAL HOSPITAL:

Scorpio's tireless search uncovered evidence that the late Nancy Eckert had her share of enemies, and that she had her elegant fingers in many an unsavory pie. As the suspects gathered in the lighthouse at Scorpio's "request," the killer — feeling trapped — suddenly confessed. Tracy threatened to destroy Paul if he hurt anyone. Anna, meanwhile, learned more about Edward Quartermaine's death while Sean and the WSB found a weak spot in Taub's defenses. Charlotte visited from Shadowbrook and updated Mac on Dominique's progress. Wait To See: The fallout begins, and a new target is set up.

GUIDING LIGHT: Vanessa wasn't fooled by Alan-Michael's attentiveness. Elvis kidnapped Bridget. Alexandra was furious to learn about Mindy and Nick's relationship. Harley got a hard lesson about police business. Daniel was jolted at finding Holly and Roger together. Mindy tried to locate Billy before Alexandra did, but she was too late to stop her from telling Billy about Mindy and Roger. Hart and Julie rescued Bridget from Elvis. Vanessa couldn't stop an enraged Billy from going after Roger. Wait To See: Harley is forced to deal with her new knowledge of Mallet.

LOVING: Jeremy comforted a heartbroken Trisha, offering to let her stay overnight on a strictly platonic basis. A jealous Trucker saw them together and suspected the worst. Matt seemed to be ill. Stacey remained suspicious of Jack and Dinah Lee and vowed to find out what the facts were. Meanwhile, Trucker turned to Dinah Lee for comfort and a kiss led them to a session of passionate love. Stacey came to the studio and saw Trucker, not Jack, with Dinah Lee. Later, she told Jack what she saw, and the two happily reconciled. Wait To See: A confused Dinah Lee creates more confusion for Trisha.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Tina and Cord learned Blair would accompany him to Japan to search for the missing Jake. Doug took Megan hostage. Something dropped out of Dorian's bag, raising Bo and Cassie's suspicions that Dorian, not Alex, was the gaslighter. Megan's illness became more serious, and Viki begged Doug to release her. Doug told Clint he'll free Megan and Viki in exchange for Jane. Wait To See: Clint is forced to face a shocking realization.

SANTA BARBARA: Angela tried to pry the name of the "other woman" out of Lionel. C.C. was beaten by two thugs who harassed Katrina over her relationship with Dash, and C.C. credited Dash with saving him. Katrina listened to a phone message (with Craig disguising his voice) telling Warren Cassie and Mason were not married yet. Later, Warren arrived just moments before the wedding, and pulled Cassie away. Cassie berated him, insisting Mason lied to her, but admitted she was glad (maybe!) that he kidnapped her before she became Mason's wife. Wait To See: Sophia comes to a decision about C.C., but she may be too late.

YOUNG & THE RESTLESS: Dina arrived at Traci and Brad's pre-wedding dinner, and Jill instantly recognized Dina's threat to her own plans for getting John back. Traci and Brad were remarried. Wait To See: Jack is forced to make a desperate decision about Nikki.

Lee's latest tackles interracial romance

Review by MEYLA BIANCO
Staff Writer

Okay, there's School Daze, She's Gotta Have It, Do the Right Thing, and Mo' Better Blues. As if this wasn't a long enough list of excellent movies directed by Spike Lee, we now have a new addition to the list, Jungle Fever. It just may be my favorite of them all so far.

This new movie, despite it's Stevie Wonder soundtrack, lives up to Lee's reputation for making timely, cool films. (Please, don't get me wrong about Stevie: I love him just as much as you ... most of the time. Today, however, I find that the main tune for the Fever soundtrack is still lodged in my mind since last week when I heard it at The Micro, and it's driving me insane.) At any rate, this movie is great. It boasts an interesting story line, beautiful actors and actresses, and enough social commentary that it can easily be considered relevant.

Like Boyz 'n the Hood, Jungle Fever is an excellent black film, yet is not limited only to black populations. The film addresses issues including: interracial marriage, prejudice, children of interracial marriages and the crack cocaine problem of America.

The story is told mainly from the point of view the main character, Flipper, a black man who has an affair with an Italian woman while married to his half-black, half-white wife. (The situation really is as complex as it sounds.) Flipper meets Angie at his work, a graphic-art type of office. She is sent in as a temporary secretary, and the attraction is obvious from the beginning. They end up having sex on a drafting table, and the film goes on from there with predictable but colorful results.

Flipper's wife immediately throws him out (as well as most of his clothes) when she learns of the affair from her friend. The informant turned out to be the wife of Flipper's friend Cyrus (Spike Lee).

Meanwhile, Angie is beaten up and thrown out of her house by her father for being a "nigger lover."

So, Flipper and Angie move into an apartment of their own where it soon becomes apparent that the situation will not work. Flipper misses his six-year-old daughter Ming and his wife too much, and Angie misses her neighborhood and friends.

Throughout the film, Flipper's older brother Gator is an example of the crack emergency pressingly evident in so many cities today. He is always borrowing money from his Mahalia Jackson worshipping mother and preacher father, or his brother. One time, he steals his mother's color television and sells it to buy crack.

The sequence where Flipper is recruited by his mother to go and get the television back is an exceptionally engaging segment of the film. It shows an abandoned building called the Taj Mah- al, where crack users meet and live, and where Gator is holed up for the moment. This part is at once appealing and repulsive, because the cinematography and artistic aspects of it are so great, while the subject is extremely distressing.

Another part of this movie that I really liked was the scene where Flipper's wife is discussing her husband's affair with her girlfriends. Their dialogue is frank, often cruel and to me, an unfamiliar atmosphere. The women are talking about white women and black men and white men and black women, and all of the shades of gray in between. The conversation is less than sensitive, and even racist in parts. What I liked about it is that it seemed so real. These women are really pissed and truly alive, and I liked that.

The movie ends in an unresolved and shocking way that led me to receive the message that black and white people's problems are sizeable, but nobody seems willing to admit to them or change, and so things perpetuate themselves.

If one person in the United States should see this movie, it is David Duke. Films like this give me hope that David Duke and people like him will not be elected to any positions of authority.

David Duke is a man who was formerly a Grand Wizard in the KKK, and who is now running for governor of Louisiana. I hope that directors like Lee continue to produce films that encourage equality and discourage racism, the KKK and David Duke.

The Chopping Block

by Philomena Corradeno

Samuel Johnson said it all, and very nicely, when he said, "The feeling of friendship is like that of being comfortably filled with roast beef." A wise man. And that was a couple of centuries ago, before he could savor today's beef which is bred to be leaner, fed to produce less fat on the carcass and more closely trimmed of exterior and seam fat at the marketing level.

Restaurateurs tell us beef is one of the most popular choices on their menus. It satisfies hunger because it's nutrient-dense. This means that besides protein, it provides large amounts of vitamins and minerals in relation to calories. It's an excellent source of essential zinc and heme-iron, a type that is more completely absorbed and used by the body than iron found in non-meats. And meat helps the absorption of the non-heme iron in other foods eaten at the same meal.

Enjoy this herbed eye round roast with a gutsy Italian red wine such as a Barolo which won't be intimidated by the herby meat.

ITALIAN BEEF ROAST

- 2 to 3-pound beef eye round roast
- 1½ teaspoon flour
- ½ teaspoon dried basil leaves, crushed
- ½ teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed

NOTE: Cooking time is based on meat going directly from the refrigerator to cold oven.

Combine flour, basil, oregano and pepper; rub over beef. Place roast, fat side up, on rack in shallow roast pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part. Do not water. Do not cover. Roast in 325F. (slow) oven to desired doneness (20 to 22 minutes per pound for rare).

Remove roast from oven when thermometer registers 135F. for rare, 155F. for medium. Tent roast with foil and let stand 10 minutes. Roast continues to rise about five degrees in temperature to reach 140F. for rare, 160 for medium. An eye round will yield four three-ounce cooked servings per pound.

Speaking of beef, here's good news for those who haven't heard it yet. A new ground beef, like that used in McDonald's McLean Deluxe sandwich and which will gradually be introduced by other fast-food chains, will soon be available in many markets. It may already be in your area. This low-fat ground beef, clearly labeled, has less than half the fat of regular ground beef. Fat has been replaced by carrageenan, a plant-derived, naturally occurring food ingredient, or oat bran and bran fiber, and water. It retains the moisture, taste and texture of regular ground beef and reinforces the beef industry's "war on fat," which is one of your major concerns.

SWEEPS MONTH ENDS ON HIGH POINTS: This may be one of the best weeks for television viewing in a long time. Among the highlights are, "Land of the Eagle," airing on PBS November 24 and 27, with all eight hours repeating on Thanksgiving Day Nov. 28. See it with your children for a remarkable look at this continent from the time of the original settlers (the Native Americans) to the Europeans who came after them.

Carrie Hamilton, Carol Burnett's daughter, and Meredith Baxter star in NBC's "A Mother's Justice," airing Nov. 25. It's the story of a woman determined to track down her daughter's rapist despite all the odds against her.

Happy Birthday Joe! -C.

The 41st season of the distinguished Hallmark Hall of Fame series debuts on December 1 on CBS with "One Against the Wind" with Judy Davis playing Mary Lindell, a brave Englishwoman who opened the most successful escape route for downed Allied airmen in Nazi-occupied France. Sam Neil plays Capt. James Leggett, the first airman she saved. This production marks the first time Davis and Neil have worked together since they costarred in the Australian flick, "My Brilliant Career," in 1979.

Entertainment Extra by Evelyn Ludvigson

Q. Is it true that Sylvester Stallone's father was a priest? Cynthia W.

A. According to Sly's mother, his father at one time was indeed a priest.

Q. When I was a freshman in college, I used to watch "Peyton Place" just to see Barbara Parkins. I've remained a fan, although I don't see her enough on television. Is she going to be doing anything in the near future that I can look forward to? Al M.

A. Parkins is one of the stars of the ensemble series, "Scene of the Crime" produced by Stephen Scannell. Currently, it's running on the CBS late night "crime time" schedule.

Q. What part of Canada was Jean LeClerc born in? Was it Quebec, as I say, or France, as a friend says? Michelline L.

A. LeClerc, whose "All My Children" character, Jeremy, recently moved to "Loving," was born in Montreal to parents who were, themselves, born in France. Although he lives most of the time in New York, he enjoys the time he's able to spend in his home in Quebec (a converted flour mill that still has a stream running through his living room).

Q. Is there a feud between Barbra Streisand and Bette Midler? Sharon W.

A. There's an attempt by some members of the entertainment media to generate a rivalry between the ladies by comparing them as actresses, singers, and overall performers. What some of these media types forget is that comparing Streisand and Midler is like comparing apples and oranges: each woman is her own, unique, original self.

Q. Whatever happened to Grace Jones? Kyle M.

A. Grace has had some tough breaks along the way, but she is back on top. After a drug arrest and losing a lot of her fortune because of an accountant who did not pay all of her taxes, Grace is now spending her time between Paris and her Greenwich Village digs. In the works, are two exciting ventures. First, Ms. Jones is recording an album which she promises her fans will be made in her old style. Secondly, Grace is penning a book for Simon & Schuster about her life, and this should be fascinating reading. The beautiful actress/singer will be revealing her thoughts about the wild life of the 1970s along with her tales of personal life (most likely about her affairs with photographer Jean-Paul Goude and Jason Connery — son of actor Sean Connery). In addition, Jones will reveal her bouts with depression over AIDS and all the many dear friends she has lost over the years.

Q. How come Carol Burnett's NBC show, "Carol & Company," is no longer on that network, and the actress switched back to her old network of CBS? Suzy L.

A. Simple, NBC did not think that a one-hour variety show would work. Burnett's "Carol & Company" was only on the air for a half hour on NBC last season, and the actress wanted to expand back to her old format of a full hour. With this matter settled, Carol turned back to CBS on which her old "Carol Burnett Show" was a successful mainstay from 1967 to 1978. While one-hour variety shows no longer exist, there is no doubt in this scribe's mind that Ms. Burnett can break that chain and once again be a smashing success.

Q. I'm a long-time fan of Deborah Harry, and I'm glad she's still doing things when so many other stars from the '70s aren't working that much. Can you tell me what her latest project is, and why she thinks she was able to survive in this business? Cathy N.

A. "I'm doing quite a few things," Deborah told us. "I've got a new album I'm working on. I also have a movie for Showtime called 'Intimate Strangers.' (The film debuted Nov. 15 and will be shown again Nov. 21.) I play a singer who also works as a phone sex operator under the name of Angel. I get involved in a crime, and it gets very dangerous for me.

"I enjoyed doing this movie. I think the writing is great, and I liked the character I play. She's a strong woman with a strong sense of herself. "I think one of the reasons I've been around for so long is that I started very early and was able to establish myself as a recognizable personality."

Jones is drug-free today and is a devoted mother to her 10-year-old son. We all look forward to the return of this dynamic lady.

you're supposedly trying to dispel?

I know quite a few people that go to Lady Vandal games regardless of whether the men are playing (qualifying Vandal by "lady" also shows this attitude), and as for myself I enjoy the intensity and superb teamwork our women athletes show, with or without huge crowds.
