Spring semester begins with empty Attorney General seat Rock says Talboy's early resignation not wise

By JEFF KAPOSTASY
Staff Writer

As the ASUI government plunges into another term of legislation, the vital office of Attorney General remains vacant.

"I have two applications (for Attorney General)," said ASUI President Richard Rock.

Since the controversial resignation of former Attorney General Thomas Talboy, the office remains open, and applications are still being taken. According to Rock, anybody needing the services of an Attorney General would have to wait "about a month."

"That's one of the reasons I didn't want Talboy to leave until after we had a new one. I didn't think it was wise."

Talboy's resignation was surrounded with controversy. ASUI activities board secretary Meachell LaSalle said Rock wanted Talboy out of the post because of Talboy's "supposed sexual preferences."

Rock, however, says this had nothing to do with his decision. Rock claims he simply wanted the term of Attorney General to run concurrent with the president's.

Rock told the Argonaut that an applicant's sexual orientation would not influence his decision to appoint him or her to that position.

"I would hope that they just wouldn't say," Rock said.

Since one of the jobs of Attorney General is to review all legislation, any bills introduced while the office is vacant could be a risk.

"I don't think legislation will necessarily be stopped," Talboy said. "Legislation can always be passed, but it can be challenged in the future. It's when these challenges arise that the attorney is needed to look at the legitimacy."

Talboy says he does not regret resigning, but reaffirmed the reason for his resignation.

"I thought Rich (Rock) was side stepping the rules."

The "rules" Talboy refers to involve Rock's method of proposing the change, which included an emergency meeting, and a lack of advance notice or discussion.

In other ASUI policy, Rock decided to reverse a decision to do away with live interviews on KUOI-FM, UI's student radio station.

"Advice of several people determined that I was probably wrong on that one," Rock said.

Rock says he stands by his decision to have news broadcasts read on air be read word for word.

"Some of the broadcasts were talking off the cuff. That's the Forum to discuss free speech

The holiday season and the New Year generally prompt people to make resolutions.

Frank Lockwood, News Director for KUOI radio, resolved over the Christmas holidays to organize a free speech forum which he hopes will help UI students understand their rights. The forum is scheduled for Thursday, January 14 at 7:00 pm in the Student Union Building.

Lockwood said he decided to do this because, "A lot of people, even at the university, aren't aware of the expansive freedoms the first ammendment gives every American."

Lockwood has put together a list of well-known locals who have studied the topic. Bill Hall, an editorial writer for the Lewiston Tribune will

Survey for non-traditional students circulates campus

By SHARI IRETON
News Editor

Non-traditional students at the University of Idaho campus often feel left out or uninformed about the campus and Moscow.

Yesterday, the council's Ad Hoc committee addressing the needs of non-traditional students released a campus-wide survey. The purpose of the survey, according to Karyl Davenport, is to find out what services the university is lacking and what non-traditional students need.

Davenport is the chair of the Ad Hoc committee and a member of the faculty council.

Steve Gill, a 35 year-old geological engineering student, said when he decided to come to UI, information about Moscow's services, such as housing, childcare and medical services was difficult to find.

"When I came back (to school), it took me hours to find where things were in town and on campus," said the Ad Hoc committee member. Gill said his wife and two children are still faced with high rent because there was little information to guide them in finding a place to live.

On the other hand, Gill said UI offers many services non-traditional students can use to their advantage. The Tutoring and Academic Assistance Center and Student Support Services were just two of the campus offices that are helping him through school. The university also offers a class aimed specifically at non-traditional students that Gill said also benefited him.

Non-traditional students decide to go for higher education for various reasons. For Gill, he was offered to chance to return to school and would like to eventually work with water quality when he gets his masters degree.

One problem non-traditional students face that the university can do little to solve has to do with financial aid.

"It's hard when you have been working for years and you are not eligible for the financial perks that are available for traditional students," he said. "When you made a full-time salary the year before, they aren't going to give you any financial aid."

Gill suggests the university look into evening classes, especially upper level courses, for non-traditional students who work during the day. A centralized office for these students is also a suggestion from the committee and Gill.

The surveys are available at the UI Admin Annex, Student Support Services, TAAC, Student Financial Aid and Counseling Center.

After waiting half an hour in line, Paul Myerchin finally makes it to the front of the line to pick up his registration packet Monday morning in the Admin Annex. (JEFF CURTIS PHOTO)

New Wheatland Bus schedule favors late riders

By CHRIS YOUNG
Staff Writer

With the new year comes a new schedule for the bus system that serves Moscow and Pullman.

The Wheatland Express Commuter bus system is now going to be running until 9:00 p.m. weekdays.

Bruce Grass, director of the transportation line, said that the community stands to benefit from the new and improved schedule. "Students are going to be able to come over in the evening now, maybe for some different shopping or dinner," he said.

Not only does the bus system make it easier to commute between the two towns, but it is also ecologically beneficial. "The bus holds 50 passengers, which could take the place of forty cars on the road, which is a great reduction in exhaust fumes," Grass said.

One-way fares between Pullman and Moscow are $1.50 on weekdays, and $1.00 on Saturdays. To ride in town only, the fare is $.50. Driver's cannot make change, so riders should be sure to bring along plenty of quarters.

There are voucher booklets available in quantities of 20 or 40 rides, which reduce the cost to $1.00 per ride anytime.

The new schedule is in effect for the entire semester, and will continue as long as needed.

Information regarding tickets and schedules can be obtained at the Ticket Express in the SUB, the Moscow Food Co-op, and at the UI Wallace Complex Vandal Card Office. For additional questions call Wheatland Express at: 334-2200.

Campus & Community Events

■ Cooperative Education orientation will be held from 12:30 p.m. to 1:15 p.m. today in room 106 of the Education Building. Students can learn how to find paid work opportunities that provide practical experience. For information contact Cooperative Education at 885-5822.

■ KUOI will hold DJ meetings at 7 tonight and 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Ee-da-ho Room of the Student Union Building.

■ Postnatal exercise classes will be held from 12 noon to 1:15 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday at the Gritman Classroom Center in the Moscow Mall. The class will teach specific postnatal exercises as well as conditioning, toning and healthy lifestyle habits. For information contact Gritman Education at 883-2232.

■ Palouse Audubon Society will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Moscow Community Center. Trish Heekin, a graduate student at the UI, will present a program detailing her research of mountain quail in the Salmon River drainage.

■ League of Women Voters of Moscow will hold its weekly brown-bag meeting at 12 noon tomorrow in the Ee-da-ho Room of the SUB. Mardi Brown of the Moscow City Council will be the featured speaker.

■ Career Services will hold orientation sessions at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow and 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Brink Hall Faculty Lounge. The orientation sessions will cover Career Services forms, campus interviews and the Career Services library. Pre-registration is not required.

UI biology researcher receives over $1 million grant for Christmas present

By GREG BURTON
Staff Writer

Santa was very good to one University of Idaho biologist this Christmas season.

He dropped a cachet of $1.05 million in research grants down her chimney.

While the Palouse settled into a peaceful whiteout, Holly Wichman, Assistant Professor of Zoology, was awarded grants by the National Institutes of Health, and the National Science Foundation for her genetic study of mammals.

Wichman, who has been at the UI for seven years, has focused her research on genetic parasites that cause mutations, and possibly cancer in humans.

"Simply," Wichman said, "I study genes that can move around on chromosomes."

The NIH awarded Wichman $770,000 over four years, which is the largest single award ever from the NIH for a research project at the UI. Wichman was also named to the Mammalian Genetics Study Section, which determines future NIH funding.

Lawrence McBride, director of special programs in the UI Research Office, said that the scope of the grants is especially surprising in today's climate of downscale budgeting.

Wichman's research involves a wide variety of mammals, from the very small, and North American indigenous, to humans to zebras. Her genetic research on zebras is in cooperation with Dr. Oliver Ryder of the San Diego Zoo, although Wichman said her genetic research does not require the caging of animals.

"All my work is done at the molecular level," said Wichman.

Born in Elk, Washington, Wichman left for study in Montana, at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, and at Wesleyan University in Connecticut.

"I came to the UI because I wanted to be a biologist, not a biochemist, and because I wanted my family to return to the Northwest," said Wichman.

Due for tenure consideration, Wichman said the timing of this grant "couldn't have been better."

UI graduate and dedicated forester died last Friday

A dedicated former Forest Service employee and University of Idaho graduate died last Friday in Fort Collins, Colorado. 66 year-old Frank Hawksworth, who died Jan. 8 at Poudre Valley Hospital, received his BS in forestry from the UI in 1949 and went on to get his MS and Ph.D. from Yale.

Dr. Hawksworth retired from the United States Forest Service's Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station in 1990 with 43 years of federal service. He authored over 200 scientific publications on forest diseases and was the world's authority on dwarf mistletoe, the most damaging parasites in forest of western North America.

Maintaining an office at the Research Station, Dr. Hawksworth volunteered over 1,000 hours of his time each year since retirement. He completed drafts of two books and the 40 year history of the Western Interantional Forest Disease Work Conference, one of the many organizations in which he was active.

"He was a proud and distinguished man and very active throughout his professional career," said Leon Neuenschwander, Associate Dean of the College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences.

Dr. Hawksworth was a member of the Society of American Foresters, International Union of Forest Research Organizations, International Council on Parasitic Seed Plants and Sigma Xi.

Dr. Hawksworth's wife of 36 years, Peggy, has asked that contributions be made to the Department of Plant Pathology and Weed Science Memorial Fund in care of the Colorado State University Foundation, Fort Collins, CO 80523.

speak, along with local attorney Linda Pall, and several former and current student government officials.

"You have journalists and you have attorneys who are experts on the constitution," Lockwood said. "I wanted experts who were also entertaining and I think we've got that."

Another of the speakers is Elizabeth Brandt, an associate professor of the UI college of law and the vice-chair of the Idaho chapter of the ACLU. Brandt will give the details of several First Amendment cases the ACLU is currently involved in.

Brandt said she hopes the specific incident which probably propelled the forum, a new policy by ASUI President Richard Rock to ban live interviews on KUI radio, would be changed by student officials as a result of the forum.

Brandt said she has been generally pleased with the atmosphere of free speech on this campus. "I've always thought this is a campus that has been a pretty open place," Brandt said.

Brandt said there have been just a few free speech issues debated at UI. She mentioned an art display in the SUB a few years ago which offended some people. For the most part these questions have been resolved in a positive manner through discussion, according to Brandt.

Lockwood said this university is fortunate to have an administration which is committed to free expression. Lockwood recently received a letter from UI President Elizabeth Zinser thanking him for organizing the Free Speech forum.

"I didn't realize President Zinser was going to make a statement, but I'm pleased she did," Lockwood said.

area that can get us sued for libel or slander," Rock said. In addition to this new rule, news broadcasts will remain on file for two weeks after the broadcast.

In addition, the emergency senate meeting that approved Rock's Attorney General proposal was finally deemed legal. Originally, it was thought that the meeting was illegal because not enough prior notice was given. Idaho law states a 24 hour notice must be given and the emergency stated in order to hold an emergency meeting. Neither requirement was met. However, it turns out this law does not apply to student government.

Forward Orlando Lightfoot and guard Marvin Ricks both received honors over the break.

Lightfoot, a 6-foot-7 junior, was named Co-Cenex/Land O' Lakes Big Sky Player of the Week for a six game stretch from Dec. 21 to Jan. 3. In the games, Lightfoot averaged 22.8 points and 8.3 rebounds a game in pacing Idaho to a 5-1 record. It was the fourth time the Chattanooga, Tenn. native has received the award, the first this season.

In Hawaii, both Lightfoot and Ricks were named to the all-tournament team of the Big Island Invitational which went from Dec. 28-30.

Lightfoot had 69 points in the three game tournament to lead all scorers from the eight team field. He also had 22 rebounds, second only to Deon Watson's 27.

Ricks, a 6-foot senior, played 122 of a possible 130 minutes in scoring 54 points (18.0 average) and hit 12-of-24 3-point attempts. He finished second in scoring only to Lightfoot for the tournament.

Advice to murderers: Live and let live, kill and be killed

Three-time child killer Westley Allan Dodd did not suffer an "eye for an eye" as many people felt he did. Dodd, who was hanged for his crimes on Jan. 5, raped and stabbed Cole Neer, 11, and stabbed brother William Neer, 10, in a park on Sept. 4, 1989.

A month later, he abducted 4-year-old Lee Iseli from a school playground, then molested and tortured the boy before hanging him. Once rigor mortis set in, Dodd again raped the dead boy.

Is being hanged painlessly an "eye for an eye?" Has justice been served? Several of the media witnesses described the hanging as "clean and quick" and even "antiseptic." To serve true justice the court would have to put Dodd in a child's mind, innocent and naive, and torture him the way he tortured his victims.

The 31-year-old Dodd said he felt no remorse for what he did. He said he liked molesting children. And if the prison let him out, Dodd said, he would molest and kill again. In his diary, Dodd wrote: "I think I got more of a high out of killing than molesting...I must go find another child."

Death penalty opponents, however, say hanging Dodd was cruel and unusual punishment, though Dodd was clearly guilty and eager to die. Dodd even went so far as to write letters to newspapers stating he was competent to decide his own fate.

"That is the only thing idiots (death penalty opponents) are trying to raise as an issue in my case," Dodd wrote to The Morning News Tribune in Tacoma last month. "Talk about beating a dead horse!"

So why are the death penalty protesters so adamant about keeping Dodd alive? The American Civil Liberties Union shouldn't have been wasting its time on a man that deserved to die.

However, some protesters didn't feel this was the case. "Last night we all participated in killing a man and killing a part of ourselves," Nancy Nelson, a Spokane resident, told The Spokesman-Review. "I had to say 'no' last night. I could not cooperate with the killing."

What Nelson doesn't realize is that it was something that needed to be done. Whether we like the idea of capital punishment or not, when someone commits crimes as heinous as Dodd's, justice must be served.

It's like killing a rabid dog. No one wants to do it but it has to be done.

Dodd made no attempt to apologize to the families of his victims, even at his final hour with the families in front of him. He showed no remorse.

Ultimately this execution had to happen or a nation of anarchy would've prevailed. Murderers must be punished for their crimes.

Death row killer Charles Campbell of Seattle is the next person in line to be executed in Washington. And as a supporter stated, "live and let live, kill and be killed."

Affirmative Action: An injustice to the white male

Our country was founded on the idea that all men are created equal and have certain inalienable rights, including the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. In order to secure these rights we must not discriminate against an individual's race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

However, under the Affirmative Action program these rights we try so profoundly to protect are actually alienated against. Affirmative Action flies in the face of America's most cherished and deeply held values of fairness, equality and merit, and according to the Civil Rights Act of 1964 Title VII it is unlawful. The title states it shall be unlawful employment practice for an employer:

Peering into the crystal ball for 1993

A few predictions for 1993:

1. In September, Seattle band Nirvana will release a chart busting album titled "On Second Thought." Due to an anonymous tip and an intense media investigation, the band will later confess that the album is just a 53-minute recording of Kurt Cobain's garbage disposal and will offer refunds to disappointed fans.

Pearl Jam will also be forced to admit their songs are nothing more than digitally-remastered recordings of a Hoover vacuum sucking up eggshells and paper clips. Adolescents with ratty haircuts and pierced eyelids will flock to music stores and a new type of sound — dubbed "appliance rock" — will be born.

2. Bud Light will win Bud Bowl V by 10 points.

3. Following the success of her book "Sex," blonde hormone goddess Madonna will release a sequel titled "SeX-ray" which will show color-enhanced X-ray photographs of the performer engaged in sexual activities with people, animals and Ginsu World Class steak knives. Various non-skeletal yet "romantically essential" body parts will be injected with a harmless radioactive liquid so they will appear in bright colors on the X-ray images.

The book will sell remarkably well and will be suggested reading for college pre-med students and door-to-door cutlery salesmen.

4. In February the NCAA will expand its basketball tournament to 96 teams. Unfortunately the Idaho Vandals will still get snubbed by the NCAA and will be forced to accept a bid to the National Invitational Tournament. The Vandals will lose their first round game at the Kibbie Dome to the St. Mary-of-the-Woods womens team because two UI players will break their legs stepping off the team bus.

The opponent's team bus.

5. The makers of commercials for Coors Light and Guess? jeans will take a hiatus from showing beach party shots of tanned cleavage, tight buns and rippling muscles. Instead of blatant attempts to pander to the sexual desires of consumers, commercials will show tubby men with hairy backs and flat chested women with advanced cases of upper thigh cellulite infections drinking beer and wearing obscenely tight pants.

The slogan "Thin is in" will be replaced by "Fat is where it's at." Sales of Ultra Slimfast will plummet and a 192 lb. former laundromat attendant from Nampa will be named Miss Idaho.

6. Radio commentator Rush Limbaugh will accept an offer to pose for the cover of GQ. Although initially reluctant to become associated with the mainstream media, Limbaugh

Protesters who celebrated Dodd's execution have no class

"An Eye For An Eye."
"Just Do It!"
"Hang 'Em High."

So read placards held by advocates of capital punishment as Westley Allan Dodd, the convicted child molester and murderer, was executed in Walla Walla last week.

Dodd's death was more than an execution. It was a grotesque gala that brought out the dark side of America's media and citizenry.

Everyone seemed to be getting into the act. Newspapers carried graphics detailing the layout of the prison's execution facilities. The Spokesman-Review published a graphic showing exactly how hanging kills a person, from when the rope first catches and snaps the neck to when the heart stops beating.

Reporters led readers down a trail that progressed from the repulsive to the absurd, even mentioning the possible dinners from which Dodd would select his last meal.

The crowd that milled outside the penitentiary walls awaiting news of the execution was no less perverse. One woman, happy that Dodd would soon die, wore a noose around her neck, perhaps trying to start a new and macabre trend in fashion.

"Live and let live," said a man who supported the hanging. "Kill and be killed."

"I'm trying to understand why (anti-death penalty protesters) would want to save this guy's life," said another woman. "If God is really a just God, he'd want it this way."

What a bunch of sick and twisted human beings.

There is no doubt Dodd "deserved" to die, as much as anyone can be said to "deserve" death. He was convicted of murdering three boys. He accepted the fact he was sentenced to die and chose hanging as his one-way ticket to the afterlife.

Dodd admirably faced his fate without tying up his execution in the court system. He could have prolonged his life indefinitely, perhaps even got his death sentence switched to life in prison, by filing countless appeals with the courts.

But he saw death was inevitable.

How far removed from Dodd are the people who took pleasure in his execution? How much more righteous than Dodd is the man who held the "Dodd should dangle" placard?

And the woman with the stylish hempen necktie — how much more saintly is she than Dodd, now that she has found depraved glory in the death of another human being?

Proponents of the death penalty have done themselves a serious disservice. Instead of calmly saying the execution of Dodd was an unfortunate but necessary part of our society, they turned into a spit-spewing mob of idiots who began to resemble murderers themselves. They made a carnival out of a somber occasion that should have been used to remember the victims and their families.

In the end justice was served. While Dodd may not have realized he was wrong to take the lives of the boys he murdered, he understood that society could not tolerate his actions.

Let's hope the people that stood outside the penitentiary chanting their little songs of revenge and hatred will someday realize how wrong they were to find any happiness in the death of another human being.

If God is really a just God, he'd want it that way.

Kempthorne's election promises are short-lived

My, how power can change people.

Two months ago, the people of Idaho were being treated to the usual barrage of political commercials that is inevitable in election time.

These commercials will usually highlight the strengths of one candidate and take a sometimes-not-so-gentle stab at that candidate's opposition.

The back-and-forth sound of mudslinging has long been an accepted norm of the political process, and it was no different this time around as the current batch of political commercials caused nary a ripple at dinner tables across the state of Idaho.

The ads from one Idaho candidate merited special attention, however.

Boise mayor Dirk Kempthorne ran a clever series of ads that depicted his election foe, U.S. Senator Richard Stallings, as being one of the glad-handing pack that roams around Capitol Hill.

In one of the commercials, Kempthorne was in a Washington D.C. elevator with an attendant whose job was to push the elevator buttons to get Congress members to where they needed to go.

Kempthorne quizzed the man on his responsibilities, and the man calmly replied that it was his job to push whatever buttons the occupants wanted him to push.

Standing outside Stallings' office door, Kempthorne wondered aloud whether the tax dollars going to fund this attendant's salary was not one of the luxuries that comes with being elected to Congress.

With a raised eyebrow that would have made Ralph Nader beam, he said he would be in effect a champion of the people by focusing on the needs of his constituents instead of catering to his own whims.

His commercial campaign proved successful as Kempthorne won a narrow election against Stallings.

But as it turned out, making promises is much easier than standing by them.

In a recent scandal that has been splashed across the front page of every newspaper in Idaho, Kempthorne has been linked to a series of unethical payments to two of his closest allies, former Boise city attorney W.H. Fawcett and former Kempthorne administrative assistant Gary Smith.

The two men had been granted "severance" pay from Kempthorne totaling $37,000.

Smith and Fawcett won't exactly be out of work, though, as they have been chosen to serve on Kempthorne's staff when he takes office in Washington.

Since the two will be paid for their work in Washington, it should be asked why Smith and Fawcett received funds from the city budget when they haven't been terminated or resigned on their own power.

Kempthorne has hardly spoken about the issue, and the reality is that he may never have to defend his actions. With a multitude of press aides and assistants in his office, press questions can be conveniently deflected away from the Senator-elect.

The problem is that Kempthorne has done nothing illegal, which will prevent him from being investigated on the matter.

Acting under a provision in the Boise pay plan that allows the mayor to pay two months or more salary for department leaders who quit or are fired (this figure includes full health insurance benefits), Kempthorne granted the money to Smith and Fawcett.

So while Kempthorne did nothing illegal, he did skate on thin ice, ethically.

Although he did nothing that violated city policy, several city council members objected to Kempthorne's slanted reading of the provision's definition.

One city council member said that the policy was adopted to enable the mayor to rid the city's payroll of unwanted department heads or managers, not reward employees who will be taking other jobs.

Another council member was outraged that Kempthorne could do something like this when the city has tried hard to trim the financial fat off the city's budget.

One example of this belt cinching was a denial of $100,000 in funds that would have bought protective gear for Boise police officers. So this councilman was not speaking in jest.

The galling part is that Kempthorne arranged the bonuses with the help of Boise city councilwoman Sara Baker so that she could be blamed if a public outrage against the bonuses came into evidence.

Baker agreed to do it as a personal favor to Kempthorne, not realizing she was setting herself up for a fall.

According to a Dec. 8 article in The Spokesman Review, one Kempthorne spokesman said Baker made the decisions on the bonuses instead of Kempthorne.

Baker, who is the council president, has categorically denied this.

"This was couched as a favor to Dirk because he did not want to have to do it," Baker was quoted as saying in the article. "I'm guilty of doing a favor and being real stupid and naive."

Condolences must go to Baker who acted in good faith of Kempthorne's character and then got the shaft. It's surprising that a situation like this came from a gentleman who promised to end such practices if he were elected to the U.S. Senate.

When a candidate promises to truly represent the ideas of his constituents in an election and then makes a blatant act to the contrary, more than a few skeptical remarks will ensue.

What Mr. Kempthorne must remember is that even if he has committed no crime, the memory of Idaho's citizens can easily stretch for six years when their chains are jerked.

We won't forget, Dirk.

employee because of such individual's race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

The late John Tower, former Republican senator from Texas, argued to Senate in 1975 that, "nothing in this title shall be interpreted to require any employer...to grant preferential treatment to any group because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin of such individual or groups on account of an imbalance which may exist." Tower said there is no requirement in Title VII that any employer maintain a racial balance in his work force, and any deliberate attempt to maintain a racial balance, whatever such balance may be, would involve a violation of Title VII. Because, as Tower pointed out, maintaining such a balance would require an employer to hire or refuse to hire on the basis of race and sex.

Affirmative Action patronizes minorities and gives credence to theories of racial inequality. It divides job applicants along racial lines, isolating minorities and aiding those minorities who need help the least and ignoring the suffering of the underclass. Because groups of past victims rather than individual victims are given preference, Affirmative Action imposes an unjust burden on the innocent students, workers and firms who through no fault of their own must suffer from reverse discrimination.

Affirmative Action has forced employers to meet racial quotas. This results in the hiring of incompetent and less-qualified individuals. It also leads to bankruptcy. It has cost private companies more than $4 billion annually to meet the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's (EEOC) regulations. The EEOC's goals result in strategical parity rather than equal opportunity.

Race shouldn't be a substitute for merit. When hiring for a job merit is the criteria, and individuals should be treated individually. By having hiring quotas you are discriminating against the individual. You are not hiring them for their skill and individual excellence. This is reverse discrimination.

With reverse discrimination the employer may not have been guilty of past discriminatory practices, but as a matter of policy the employer is forced to give preferences to minorities and women, the groups who have experienced discrimination in the past. This results in racism and sexism targeted against white males. The end result is that the white male population bears the brunt of the Affirmative Action programs.

Affirmative Action also results in the stigmatization of minorities and women. It creates and reinforces stereotypes that successful minorities and women have been unfairly aided and that they are, less competent than white males.

Former Supreme Court Justice Bradley insisted that "when a man has emerged from slavery, and by the aid of beneficial legislation has shaken off the inseparable concomitants of that state, there must be some stage in the progress of his evolution when he takes the rank of a mere citizen and ceases to be the special favorite of the laws, when his rights as a citizen, or a man, are to be protected in the ordinary modes by which other men's rights are protected."

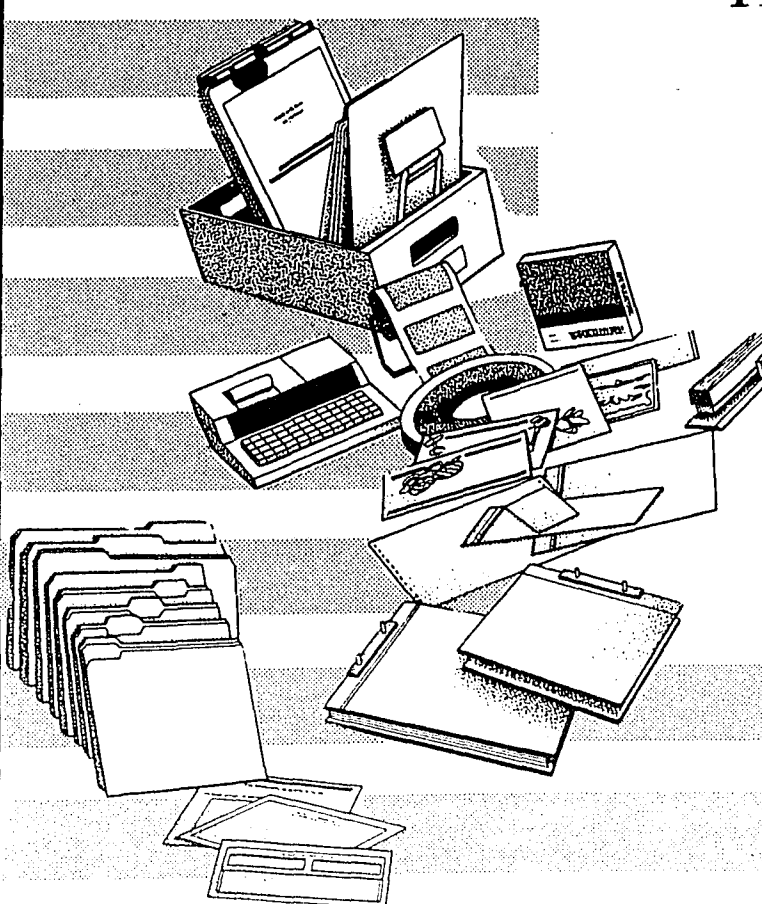

It is wrong to punish all individuals because of others past discriminations. When trying to correct years of exclusion why make slaughtered lambs of individuals, particularly white males, for the mistakes of those before us?

Idaho rolls during break, league play up next

By LOREN ROBERTS
Sports Editor

After spending life on the road for the better part of Christmas break, the Vandals returned to "Home Sweet Dome" to go 3-0 at the mid-way point of a six game homestand.

Idaho (11-4 overall, 0-0 in conference) defeated Division I Sacramento State, NAIA Division I Central Washington, and Whitman College of the NAIA Division II ranks. The Vandals will now take this week to gear up for an important home conference weekend against the University of Montana and Montana State University this Friday and Saturday.

Idaho 80, Whitman 53

In the end, the Missionaries really didn't have a prayer.

Idaho, now winners of four in a row, used its inside advantage to eventually wear down the smaller Division II team this past Saturday night.

"We just can't stay focussed," Whitman head coach Jim Mastin said. "That's been our problem all year. We just couldn't match up with a team like Idaho."

Whitman, whose big three measure a small 6-3, 6-4, and 6-5, fell victim early as Idaho pounded the ball down low to go up 13-0 five minutes into the game. Whitman's Matt Smith hit a 3-pointer at the 14:47 mark to put the Missionaries on the board and put the 2,100 fans in their seats with leg cramps after an extensive period of "standing for defense."

"We couldn't hit the broad side of a barn," Mastin said of his team's troubles early on. "We wouldn't have even been able to hit the side of this building."

But Whitman, behind Jason McDonald's 3-point shooting, mounted a 15-4 run and, for a brief moment, Whitman led 27-25 with just under 3:00 left in the half. A 10-0 run by the Vandals in the final 2:23 gave Idaho the lead at the break, 35-27.

"I think you always fear losing to Whitman at home," Idaho head coach Larry Eustachy said of the Missionaries run. "I think that (if Idaho were to lose) and Elizabeth City State (a 79-72 loss to the Division II Vikings last month) would be on my tomlistone."

There was no need for Eustachy to write up his will, though, as the Vandals, behind Orlando Lightfoot's 21 points, Marvin Ricks' 20, and Deon Watson's 19, rolled in the second half, continually expanding its lead up to the final buzzer.

"I really think we played great tonight," Eustachy said. "I think our talent and athleticism caught up with them."

Whitman was led in double-figures by Jason McDonald. The senior guard had 20 points, but went just 4-of-12 from 3-pointville.

Idaho 89, Central Washington 75

In a game that would shift from a nail in the coffin for the Wildcats, to a nailbiter for the Vandals, Idaho defeated a pesky NAIA squad on Jan. 4.

"We respected that team," Eustachy said. "I don't think we took them lightly. We just broke down, particularly in our post defense."

CWU, which had won its first 13 games of the season before getting crushed by Willamette, came to the Dome with just eight players and slim hopes on beating Idaho, most notably those hopes belonging to head coach Gil Coleman.

"We don't have a shot (against Idaho)," Coleman said before the game. "If we play well we can make the score respectable."

For the first 20 minutes, Coleman's team didn't appear as if it would even do that. Idaho pushed its scoring advantage up early as it led by 10 points just five minutes into play. Lightfoot poured in 14 and Ricks canned 15 in the first half to put Idaho up 47-18 at the break.

The first half stats said it all as Idaho shot 58-percent from the field to CWU's 42-percent.

"It doesn't seem like we can play for long periods of time," Eustachy said. "We had eight very good minutes (in the first half)."

The second half, though, was a whole different story.

In nine quick minutes the Vandals lead slipped to 11 after CWU's Chuck Glovick banked one in off the glass. Idaho couldn't shake the 'Cats as Otto Pijpker hit two free throws with 3:09 left to cut it to 77-70.

"We made a pretty good run at them (Idaho) in the second half," Coleman said. "I was really pleased with the second half."

After the free throws, Jeremy Brandt hit a key 3-pointer with 2:48 remaining which sent Idaho on a 9-0 run and shut the door on any of CWU's comeback hopes.

"We said (to ourselves) we can't lose this game to an NAIA school," Lightfoot said. "It's just hard to get up for a game like this."

Lightfoot eclipsed the 30-point mark for the first time this season as the junior hit 12-of-23 from the field in knocking in 30. Lightfoot, who owned an 0-for-15 streak on 3-pointers, also hit 3-of-4 from behind the arc. Ricks followed Lightfoot with 23 points on 9-for-14 shooting, Watson had 13, and Brandt finished with 12.

CWU was led by Ryan Pepper's 22. Pijpker dumped in 18, while Ryan's brother Jason, had 15.

Idaho 81, Sacramento State 61

The Hornets, most likely still feeling the sting of the first half of the season, dropped to 0-10 with a loss to the Vandals in a Jan. 2 match-up.

It was a Homecoming of sorts for ex-Vandal star and present Sacramento State head coach Donny Newman. Newman, who played at Idaho from 1979-'80, and is in his first year with the Hornets, may have wished he'd postponed the welcome back party for at least another year.

"We came out in the first half, and it looked like we were afraid to play basketball," Newman said.

In the sixth meeting between the two teams, and the Vandals leading the series 5-0, Idaho jumped on the Hornets early. Lightfoot and Watson combined for 17 of the Vandals first 22 points to put Idaho up 22-9. Idaho continually had no trouble pounding the ball inside, while at the other end of the court the Hornets missed lay up after lay up to fall behind by an insurmountable halftime deficit, 38-17.

In spite of the large margin that Idaho had built, Eustachy could still see signs that his team hadn't fully rested up from its previous three games in Hawaii.

"This game, I almost could tell before we started, we've been travelling and it's no excuse, but I think we were a little tired," Eustachy said.

Lightfoot led the Vandals with 16 first half points, and finished with a game-high 25.

"Orlando Lightfoot is making tremendous progress," Eustachy said. "He really tried to defend and put our post defense, which is our probably our biggest weakness, the details that we want from here on out, into the game."

In the second half, Idaho built its lead to as many as 30 at 74-44, and at that juncture it was fine time to clear the bench and give the reserves some minutes. Every Vandal scored, which included 11 from Xanthus Houston and four from Frank Waters.

Lady Vandals ambushed twice in Alamo state

By DOUG TAYLOR

Laurie Turner is looking for some answers.

Turner, the University of Idaho women's basketball coach, has begun to shake her line-up around in hopes of finding a winning combination.

Her decision has come on the heels of a three-game losing streak that included two losses this last weekend in Texas. The losses have dropped Idaho's overall record to 4-7.

On Friday, the Lady Vandals traveled to the Dallas-Forth Worth area to battle Texas Christian University.

Idaho quickly assumed a 29-26 halftime lead, but TCU outscored Idaho 46-25 in the second half to claim a 72-54 victory. Brenda Kuehlthau and Jennifer Clary combined for 42 points, but 23 points from TCU's Donna Krueger's proved to be too much.

Saturday's game against Baylor University was more of the same as the Lady Vandals moved ahead of the Bears by seven points at halftime, 44-37. Idaho couldn't hold its advantage, though, as the Bears roared back for an 81-76 victory.

Clary, the team's leading scorer so far at nearly 17 points a game, led all Vandal scorers with 24 points, including four 3-pointers.

The game against Baylor marked the first start of the season for guard Andi McCarthy, who replaced P.J. Hall in the line-up. McCarthy responded by pouring in a career-high 12 points and adding four assists and three rebounds.

Despite the strong performance of McCarthy and various other starters, Turner said she had some legitimate concerns about her team right now as it heads into weekend road contests with Montana and Montana St.

"Two areas that have been standing out in my mind are rebounding and turnovers," said the seventh-year coach. "We have been getting outthustled to rebounds and giving the ball up way to many times on offense. These will be things we will have to address in this week's practices."

Recent games seem to back up her thoughts.

The Vandals have been outrebounded during all three games in the current three-game skid, but this isn't a season-long trend by any means.

In two recent games against the University of San Francisco (Dec. 29) and Sacramento State (Jan. 1), the Vandals handily outrebounded the opponent. The result was a win in the Sacramento St. contest and a narrow two-point loss to USF in the championship game of the Calistoga Tournament.

Senior forward Brenda Kuehlthau might be an example of what Turner wants in a rebounder. Through 11 games, Kuehlthau has averaged a team-leading 7.2 rebounds per contest to go along with her 14.7 points per game, which is second on the squad.

Another of Kuehlthau's statistics merits some consideration also.

She has turned the ball over 50 times, tops on the team, but it hasn't been just Kuehlthau who has been guilty of miscues with the basketball.

The Lady Vandals have turned the ball over 213 times, an average of 19.3 turnovers per contest. As previously mentioned, this has been a source of ire for Turner. She said that as of now, it might be the biggest problem on this year's team.

"We have to take better care of the basketball," Turner said. "There have been several recent games where we have lost the edge on an opponent by playing sloppy basketball."

There is also an intangible which has bothered Turner the entire season — leadership.

Turner said she has noticed a definitive lack of leadership from her juniors and seniors. She wondered aloud about who was going to start taking control in "crunch time."

"Among our juniors and seniors, there hasn't been anyone who wants the ball in crucial moments when the game is still up for grabs," Turner said. "When it's crunch time in the last four or five minutes of a game, we need to start having players who are willing to step up and take charge."

Still, the outlook is not all grim for the Lady Vandals. The team defense, long a forte of the Turner era, has been strong again this year. The team has forced 203 opponent turnovers, which has been a major reason why UI has stayed competitive in some games so far.

Kuehlthau leads the team in steals with 33, a theft rate of three a game.

The Lady Vandals will next play at home on Jan. 21 as they host Eastern Washington University. The contest marks the start of a four-game homestand that includes games with Weber St., Northern Arizona University and Sacramento St.

Deon Watson knocked down 18 points and racked up 13 boards. The junior did so in committing just one foul.

Pat Wallace led the Hornets with 14 points and was followed by Sean Colter's 12. Sharlow Davis, who ripped off 30 points against Idaho last year in Moscow, had just seven.

IDAHO HOMESTAND INFO— vs. Whitman—

The Vandals out-rebounded the Missionaries 44-22. Idaho has now out-rebounded all 15 opponents this season, holding a 38.3 to 27.6 average per game advantage... "The Machine," according to Eustachy, is point guard Ricky Wilson and who has been running on all cylinders. The senior had eight assists, one steal and only two turnovers in his 26 minutes... vs. CWU: Free throws continued to be a major struggle for Idaho. The Vandals went 17-of-30 from the line for 56-percent, just below its 59-percent season average... Watson had a game-high 12 rebounds and hit double-figures in boards for the fifth time this season.

Rare road success has Idaho saying 'Aloha'

HILO, Hawaii— After the Big Island Invitational, you could almost picture Idaho head coach Larry Eustachy singing in the rain.

The Vandals, who in the last two seasons own a dreary 37-percent winning percentage in games away from the Kibbie Dome, got third place by going 2-1 in this Hawaii tournament that saw more rain flowing to the games than people.

No drowning ones sorrows for Eustachy, though.

"We got some extremely valuable experience in this tournament," Eustachy said. "This was the plan when we put it together. Instead of playing some Division III teams at home or playing some weaker opponents we wanted to come out here and play some quality teams. We came away 2-1 and it was a great experience for our kids."

Idaho 84, Chaminade 80

Guard Marvin Ricks jostled his way to a season-high 26 points in leading the Vandals over the Pacific West Conference "Swordsmen" in an intense opening round duel Dec. 28.

Ricks, who had been averaging 15.4 points an outing going into the tournament, hit 8-of-15 from the field and 4-of-4 from the free throw line. The senior also nailed six 3-pointers, including three in a row at one point in the first half.

"We really couldn't defend Chaminade early and Marvin kept us in the game by making some nice 3-pointers," Eustachy said. "That's what put us up in the first half."

During the first 20 minutes of action, Idaho fell behind early by six as Chaminade's David Baldwin scored seven of his teams first nineteen points.

"We were really surprised with Baldwin," Eustachy said. "We were going to play behind him to start the game and he comes out and just looks like Superman."

At the 4:35 mark in the first half, after Chaminade took a 26-24 advantage on two free throws, Ricks connected on three consecutive 3-pointers to give Idaho a 33-30 lead. Ricks also ended the half by nailing a jumper in the key at the buzzer to give the Vandals a 38-33 halftime lead.

"Marvin's a great player," Eustachy said.

"Things don't bother him. If he's not shooting the ball well he still defends and still rebounds. He's a unique guy to coach. I don't know if I'll have many like him."

After the intermission, Idaho came out looking to take control of the game. Forward Deon Watson powered inside, hit his shot, was fouled, and converted the 3-point play to put the Vandals up by eight just 0:14 in. But Chaminade battled back as the Swords mounted a 7-0 run before Xanthus Houston stopped the bleeding with a hook shot.

"I have a lot of confidence in X," Eustachy said of his 6-9 forward. "X could start for a lot of teams and could start for us at times."

Idaho again built its lead back up to eight on a 3-pointer by (who else) Ricks with under 12:00 remaining. Forward Orlando Lightfoot also contributed four free throws in a row as a result of Chaminade's Jose Jube's foul and technical.

But after Lightfoot put down a reverse dunk and a baseline jumper to give the Vandals a nine point advantage with 4:00 remaining, the game tightened right back up.

With Idaho leading 80-70 with under 4:00 to go, Chaminade's Ryan Wells was fouled on a 3-point attempt. The shot didn't go, but Wells proceeded to make all three free throws. Idaho's Ricky Wilson then missed both of his free throw attempts and the Swords got a 3-pointer from Frank Baum to cut the lead to 80-76 with 0:32 remaining.

But Ricks, an 89-percent free throw shooter, drained 3-of-4 down the stretch to secure the win.

Once again the deciding factor in this and every Idaho game this season was the Vandal's ability to out-rebound its opponent. Idaho dominated on the glass by pulling in 40 boards to Chaminade's 30, a stat that pleased Eustachy.

"We outrebounded them. We've outrebounded every team now (this season). We had 15 offensive rebounds (to the Swords five) and that's what won the game."

Joining Ricks in double-figure scoring was Lightfoot filtering through 19, Chauncey McBride popping in 14, Watson donating 13, and Houston shoveling in 11.

For the Swords, Jerichow led the way with 20 points. He was followed by Wells with 15, Jube with 14, and Baldwin with 12.

University of San Francisco 86, Idaho 85 (OT)

USF guard Orlando Smart hit a 7-footer at the buzzer in overtime to give the Dons a dramatic win over Idaho in the second round Dec. 29.

Towards the end of regulation, Idaho's Chauncey McBride had a chance to give Idaho its fourth win a row.

And he had two shots to do it.

With the score tied at 76-76, McBride went to the free throw line with :03 remaining for two shots and a chance to send Idaho into the championship game. But the senior missed both attempts which sent the game into overtime and eventually led to a heartbreaking defeat for the Vandals.

"I think this is the best basketball game I've ever been involved with since I've coached at Idaho," Eustachy said afterwards.

In overtime, guard Ricky Wilson was fouled with :06 left and stepped up to the line for two shots with Idaho trailing by two, 84-82. The senior sank the first shot, and luckily for Idaho, after he missed the second, Deon Watson slipped into the key and tipped the miss in to give Idaho a one point advantage. But USF, who had upset Missouri 78-71 the day before, inbounded the ball to Smart to set the stage for his heroics.

"This team (USF) that we lost to did beat Missouri yesterday," Eustachy noted. "They're a very, very, very good team. I'm proud of our guys."

In the early going Idaho set an aggressive tone as Wilson tossed an alley-oop pass to McBride who threw the dunk down to begin the scoring. After a brief exchange of baskets, Orlando Lightfoot scored 10 straight Idaho points on 4-for-4 shooting to help Idaho to a 16-11 lead. Seven separate Vandal players scored at least two points in guiding Idaho to a 30-22 lead with under 5:00 remaining in the half.

But the Dons fired right back behind four points from both Alvin Brown and Booker T. Washington in a 19-7 run, and giving USF a 41-37 halftime lead.

UI comes away with two victories during break

By DOUG TAYLOR
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho women's basketball team probably came away with mixed feelings about the Christmas break.

In the period from Dec. 19 to Jan. 3, coach Laurie Turner and her Lady Vandals managed to secure two wins over San Jose St. and Sacramento St.

The team did run into some obstacles, however, as Idaho also came away with four losses. The defeats came at the hands of two Portland schools, Portland University and Portland St. University, as well as San Francisco University and Pacific.

The two week stretch left Idaho's season mark at 4-5 heading into a pair of games in Texas on Jan. 8 and 9.

Portland 72, Idaho 59

This game marked the first of two games that the Idaho women played in the Portland area over the course of Dec. 19-20.

Portland presented the Lady Vandals with several match-up problems both inside and on the perimeter.

Evidence of this could be seen from the scoring results as four Pilots registered double figures in scoring. Amy Claboe, a 6-3 sophomore center, led Portland with 21 points and six rebounds.

Fellow frontcourt partner Rosemary Adams added 16 points, 11 rebounds and three blocks.

Portland's guard play also proved to be a factor as Tina Geis and Kathy Adelman reached double digits in scoring also.

Adelman might have been the biggest thorn in Idaho's side as she scored 10 points and eight rebounds. More importantly, Adelman proved adept at finding open teammates as she finished with eight assists.

This team effort resulted in a 12-point halftime lead and the eventual 13-point win.

Idaho's top scorer to date, Jennifer Clary, helped keep the Lady Vandals within sight of Portland in the second half as she scored 15 points, including three 3-pointers. Teammate Kortnie Edwards added 14 points and seven rebounds.

Portland St. 87, Idaho 65

The Vikings proved even less hospitable hosts than the Pilots as freshman forward Kristi Smith erupted for 25 points and eight rebounds.

Scoring on a variety of short inside moves, the 5-11 Smith made good on 10-of-13 field goal attempts.

Sherri Stemple, the Vikings top returning scorer coming into this season, scored 23 points and added a game-high 11 rebounds.

Foul trouble proved to be a headache for the Lady Vandals as three players finished with four personal fouls. The Vikings took advantage by hitting 22-of-28 free throws.

Idaho kept matters close in the first half as they were down by only eight, 40-32.

Portland St., however, made a big move in the second half as they outscored Idaho by 14 points en route to the 22-point margin of victory.

Brenda Kuehlthau, Idaho's versatile 6-foot guard/forward, topped the Lady Vandals in scoring with 21 points and seven rebounds. Clary added 13 and Edwards had 12 for Idaho.

Calistoga Tournament — Idaho 74, San Jose St. 58; USF 51, Idaho 49

The time frame from Dec. 28-29 might have provided some of the bigger highlights for the Lady Vandals over the break as they came within two points of capturing the Calistoga Tournament, which was held in San Jose, Calif.

Idaho opened the tournament with a game against host San Jose St., and the Lady Vandals played the role of spoiler as they thumped the Spartans by 16 points.

Clary once again had the hot hand for Idaho as she scored 22 points, nailed four 3-pointers in six attempts and had six rebounds. The 5-8 junior's accuracy from the 3-point stripe enabled Idaho to finish with six treys overall.

Kuehlthau pumped in 19 points on 7-of-14 shooting and added seven boards as the Lady Vandals steadily pulled away down the stretch for the victory.

The Lady Vandals also played some inspired team defense as SJU was limited to 34 percent shooting from the floor.

San Jose did manage to find some bright spots as forward Hulett Brooks finished with 17 points. In addition, the Spartans outrebounded the Lady Vandals 50-38 as Brooks snagged 10 and Tricia Montgomery had 12 more.

So it was on to the championship game for the Lady Vandals, who faced the University of San Francisco for the title.

The contest proved to be the closest one over the break for Idaho as it fell just a 3-pointer away from beating the Dons.

San Francisco did open up an 8-point halftime lead, 26-18, but the second half belonged to UI as it outscored the Dons 31-25.

Neither team shot well in the contest as Idaho connected on just 34 percent of its shots while USF made good on only 33 percent of its shots.

Kuehlthau paved the way for Idaho as she had 20 points and eight rebounds. Clary added 11 points and only two turnovers in 34 minutes of play.

Despite Clary's ball control, turnovers were a major distraction for Idaho as the Lady Vandals turned the ball over 21 times compared to just 13 for the Dons.

Even though Idaho came up short in the end, tournament officials must have been impressed with the Lady Vandals as both Kuehlthau and Clary were

HELP US HELP YOU AVOID PARKING CITATIONS!

Here are a few tips to avoid parking hassles.

1. Read the regulations! They're available at the Information Center located at the North Campus Center; our telephone number is 885-6424. We're the only source of accurate information!
2. Please DO NOT PARK IN HANDICAPPED SPACES. Not only will you be towed away, but you're denying someone who may be in need of that space.
3. Park only in designated spaces. Permits will not be required for Red, Blue, Silver or Green spaces until 7:30am Wednesday, January 13. All other parking regulations including gold spaces are fully enforced.
4. Use metered parking only for short trips and if you're unsure about the time, use another lot.
5. Keep permits on the vehicles to which they're registered.
6. Read all signs and regulatory markings.
7. If your car becomes disabled in a lot, notify Parking Services immediately.
8. You may appeal any UI parking citation; the time limit is 15 calendar days.
9. If you forget your pool permit you can get a one day permit on an occasional basis.
10. Motorcycles must park where designated, as shown on the UI Parking Map.

"We didn't play very well in the first half, but in spite of that we were still within two baskets," Eustachy said. "I thought in the second half we played much better."

During the second half USF expanded its lead to as many as seven points at 63-56 with under 9:00 remaining. But Lightfoot dropped in four points and Marvin Ricks added five as Idaho went on a 9-2 run to go up 67-65, its first lead since being up 32-31.

However, Idaho couldn't stop USF guard Thomas Thompson as the senior drained eight of the Dons final 10 points to send the game into OT.

"They (USF) just kept coming at us," Eustachy said. "They're one of the better teams we've played in awhile."

Ricks and Houston joined Lightfoot in double-figure scoring finishing with 15 points, and 11 respectively.

Thompson, who hadn't started a game for USF but led the team in scoring by averaging 15 points a game, led the Dons with 18, all coming in the second half. Brown added 15 and Kent Bennett also dropped in 10.

Idaho 76, Liberty 74 (OT)

In the consolation game, Deon Watson grabbed a clutch rebound with 0:06 left in overtime to give Idaho a dramatic win over the Flames in front of 48 entertained fans on Dec. 30.

The win over the projected favorites to win the Big South Conference gave Idaho the third place trophy and improved the Vandals season road record to 4-4.

"It (the win) was a great all-around effort by all of our players, and I'm proud of them," Eustachy said after watching his team play its seventh game in 13 days. "It's a big win for us. We beat a very, very good team (tonight)."

As the regulation period ended, and the score deadlocked at 67 apiece, Marvin Ricks, Orlando Lightfoot, and Watson all scored in OT to help the Vandals take a 75-73 lead with 0:06 left. On Liberty's next possession, Ricks fouled Matt Hildebrand, and in doing so sent last season's 91-percent free throw shooter to the line for two shots. But Hildebrand hit just 1-of-2 and Watson came down with the game winning rebound. He was immediately fouled and proceeded to tack on 1-of-2 from the line himself to secure the Vandal win.

"It was a very difficult game to play I think for both teams because there was nobody in the stands, (the two teams) playing for third place, and we were extremely down after the disappointing loss to USF," Eustachy said. "Our guys just hung in there and hung in there."

After an early first-half run by the Flames, it appeared as if the only thing the Vandals would be hanging after the game would be their heads and a fourth place ribbon. Liberty star Julius Nwoso, a 6-10 senior from Nigeria, scored eight of the Flames first 16 points as Idaho fell behind early by as many as 10. An 8-0 run by the Vandals in the middle of the first half tied the game, but Liberty, behind Nwoso's 17 first-half points, led at the break 39-32.

"Our biggest weakness is our post defense," Eustachy said. "They (Liberty) really took it at us there. I just said, maybe five minutes into the second half, to our coaches that we were just going to sit in a 2-3 zone. The purpose was to take the inside away and pray that it (Liberty's shots) didn't go in from outside."

The zone paid off for Idaho as Nwoso managed just four points in the second half.

The Vandals, meanwhile, were sparked by the usually silent Andre Whitney. The senior guard, who had just two points in the first two games, came off the bench to score 10 of his 13 points in the second half in bringing Idaho back within striking distance.

"I told Andre in the locker room after the game in front of the team that that was the best he's ever played on the road for me since I've coached him," Eustachy said. "He really can give this team a big lift either starting or coming off the bench."

But while Whitney was hitting, Liberty's Parish Hickman had found his range as well. Hickman, a senior transfer from Michigan State, scored 14 of his game-high 25 points in the second half in keeping the Flames a constant five to seven points ahead of Idaho.

"Hickman and Nwoso are both big-time, all-league players, first-team in our league," Eustachy said.

With about 5:00 left, and Idaho down 63-54, Whitney scored four straight points in sparking a 9-0 Vandal run to tie the game with 3:00 remaining. Idaho then held on at the free throw line to send the game into OT.

Lightfoot led Idaho with 21 points and was followed by Whitney and Ricks with 13 apiece. Houston also recorded double-figures with 10.

Two Northwest teams fall to UI in Dome

By LOREN ROBERTS
Sports Editor

On December 21st and 23rd Idaho chalked up two non-conference wins in the Kibbie Dome.

The Bulldogs of Gonzaga University were the first to fall to Idaho, losing 82-64. Two days later Idaho clobbered the NAIA Seattle University Chieftans, 84-41.

Idaho 82, GU 64

Orlando Lightfoot recorded his third straight 20-plus point performance as he went 13-for-17 from the field for 27 points and 10 rebounds.

In last year's 62-80 crushing at the hands of GU in Spokane, Lightfoot was without his shooting touch as he managed just a 6-for-16 performance, but ended with 20 points.

This year, practice made almost perfect.

"I've been working on my shot for an hour before and after practice," Lightfoot said. "I knew (going into the game) I wasn't going to do bad. My rhythm was down and my shot were going."

Lightfoot, who at the time was under orders from head coach Larry Eustachy not to shoot any 3-pointers, utilized his smooth turn-around jumper to score eight of Idaho's first 10 points. Following his fourth bucket, various Vandals began feeding off Lightfoot's energy. Forward Deon Watson contributed a dunk, guard Marvin Ricks drained a trey-ball, and forward Xanthus Houston slid inside for a lay up.

The run gave Idaho an eight point lead—a lead it would never relinquish.

"When he's (Lightfoot) on we're all excited and ready to play," Ricks said.

However, despite shooting 59-percent from the field in the first half, Idaho held just a 37-30 advantage after 20 minutes. This was due to GU countering the Vandal attack by shooting an impressive 61-percent.

"That's a pretty good basketball team for 20 minutes," GU head coach Dan Fitzgerald said of his team. "But then we come out in the second half and they (Idaho) go bang, bang."

Fitzgerald was referring to a Chauncey McBride lay up and a Lightfoot dunk off a steal in the first 52 seconds of the second half. The four straight points moved Idaho up by 11 and forced a GU time out.

"We went into the locker room and coach said the first two minutes (of the second half) would be the turning point of the game," Lightfoot said.

After the time out, though, Idaho couldn't immediately shake the Bulldogs. GU's Jason Rubright scored six points as the score fluctuated between an 11-13 point Idaho lead for seven straight possessions.

But then Lightfoot again caught fire for the Vandals.

The junior hit two consecutive jumpers followed by a 3-point play sparking an 11-0 Idaho run to give the Vandals a 25 point lead with 9:45 remaining.

In the end, GU would never get closer than the final score.

"I thought it was going to be a tight game," Lightfoot said, surprised at the final gap. "Once we got them down early we got going and that was it."

Joining Lightfoot in double figures was Ricks who knocked in 8-of-11 from the field for 19 points along with five assists. He was followed by Watson who slipped in 12 points and pulled in seven rebounds.

GU got double figure scoring from just one player in Felix McGowan's 13 points.

Idaho 84, Seattle University 41

Junior Jeremy Brandt came off the bench to shoot a scorching 7-of-7 from the field in draining a game-high 18 points in Idaho's defeat of the NAIA squad.

Brandt, a transfer from Walla Walla Community College, shot 3-for-3 from 3-point range in shattering his previous Vandal-high of seven points.

"I think Jeremy has made tremendous progress," Eustachy said. "I think he's got the mental make-up that you can go with on the road and win."

In the early going, it appeared as if it'd again be Lightfoot, not Brandt, who would take the scoring spotlight. Lightfoot scored six of Idaho's first nine points to put the Vandals up 9-3. But Watson, Ricks, Houston, and Frank Waters all got into the scoring

Vandals split in Real Dairy Classic at BSU

By LOREN ROBERTS
Sports Editor

Over the weekend of Dec. 18 and 19 the Idaho men's basketball team traveled to Boise to compete in the Real Dairy Classic.

And to use a dairy-like term, the Vandals went half and half. Idaho opened the tournament Friday, which also featured host Boise State, with a 70-64 win over Georgia State. But Saturday the Vandals forfeited an 11 point lead to fall to Division II Elizabeth City State of North Carolina, 72-79.

Idaho 70, Georgia St. 64

In Friday's action against the Panthers, Idaho battled with GSU through three first half lead changes and could never expand its lead larger than six points. At the break the Vandals held a slim 30-28 lead over a team that is a favorite to win the Trans American Conference.

The slow first half by Idaho may have been attributed to the fact that three players stayed in Moscow that morning to finish up their final exams. Idaho head coach Larry Eustachy waited for the players, and the four arrived shortly before game time.

But Orlando Lightfoot, who dumped in a team-high 20 points, felt that the delay was no reason for the way Idaho played in the first half.

"There's no excuse for the slow start," Lightfoot said, who had 10 of his points in the first 20 minutes. "We still have a long way to go."

In the second half Idaho came out and began playing more upbeat. Guard Marvin Ricks dumped in nine points in the first six minutes to help pack a 10 point lead over GSU. The Panthers never got within five as Idaho's defense held off a late GSU run.

"I really am (happy with the win) considering the circumstances," Eustachy said. "I told them (Idaho) at halftime it (the score) was embarrassing. Parts (of the game) were great, parts were average, parts were poor."

To go along with his 20 points, Lightfoot also grabbed 14 rebounds for his second double-double of the season.

"I thought he (Lightfoot) was very consistent," Eustachy said. "I was pleased with his effort. I was most happy with his 14 rebounds."

Ricks and forward Deon Watson both contributed 16 points while Watson led all rebounders with 16.

GSU, which went on to lose to BSU the following night, was led by center Mike Nall's 16 points and Sam Wilder's 15.

Elizabeth City State 79, Idaho 72

Saturday saw the Vandals crumble to the Vikings of ECS in front of 3,925 ecstatic BSU fans. Idaho watched an 11 point lead disappear in the second half, and in doing so, were upset by a team that had lost to BSU the previous night by 29 points.

"I think the worst part of the game is that it's embarrassing for the coach, it's embarrassing for the players, and it's embarrassing for the fans," Eustachy said. "I send out my apologies for the embarrassment."

ECS was led by Shawn Walker's 26 points, and Nate Higgs contributed 24 points. Of Higgs' 24, 16 were scored in the critical second half.

With the score knotted at 56-56 with 6:50 to go, Higgs took over for the Vikings. The guard scored eight of ECS's next 10 points to cap a 10-2 run, giving the Vikings a 66-58 lead with just over 5:00 to play.

"They played us perfect," Eustachy said. "They zoned us."

Idaho did try to mount a comeback as Ricks' 3-pointer with 0:55 left cut the lead to 73-70. But Walker converted four straight free throw attempts to put the game away.

Lightfoot again led the Vandals in scoring with 24 points on 11-for-14 shooting. Ricks sank 8-of-16 from the field for 20 points, and senior Xanthus Houston added 10.

IDAHO TOURNAMENT INFO— vs. ECS: Idaho was 3-for-10 from the free throw line while the Vikings were 16-for-18... For the tournament, Idaho was 12-for-27 from the line (44 percent)... Under Eustachy, Idaho is now a meer 16-27 in games played on the road or at a neutral site... Idaho committed 39 fouls in the tournament while GSU and ECS combined for 28.

No shows: Two Vandal freshmen, guard Todd Russ and forward Travis Clark, didn't show up for the tournament and haven't joined the team to play (rather sit) in an Idaho game since then. The two roommates saw little playing time due to the fact that Idaho possesses 10 upperclassmen.

column giving Idaho a 27-17 lead with just under six minutes remaining in the half.

Brandt though, who had already scored four points, scored the Vandals next six to spark a 14-6 run ending the first half with Idaho up 41-23.

"He's (Brandt) really tough minded, he likes to compete, he can really concentrate in adverse situations, and whether he makes a shot or not it's nice," Eustachy said. "He's probably our third best perimeter shooter, for sure one of the better perimeter shooters on the team."

Eustachy was again pleased with his teams ability to rebound, something they've been dominating opponents at.

"I thought the aspect of the game that we did best was the offensive rebounding," Eustachy said. "We really went after the boards. That's what we try to pride ourselves on."

Foreign and domestic films to play in SUB

By LANAE EMPEY
Staff Writer

Eleven foreign and 21 American films will be presented in the Borah Theater in the Student Union Building, according to Wade Alonzo, chairman of the ASUI film committee. All films were chosen by the committee.

"We're trying to provide something for people who don't want to go off-campus to see movies," said Jan Abramson, ASUI program director.

"There is a need for foreign films because there is such a wide diversity of students," Alonzo said. "There is no other place in Moscow to see films like this."

"I feel like we have a really good starting series," Abramson said. "For films alone, we spend $4,800." This does not include production costs or publicity, she said.

For the new season of films, the Borah Theater, located on the second floor of the Student Union Building, had eight showcases installed over the Christmas break. The cases were custom built by the campus physical plant, Abramson said, and show upcoming movie advertisements.

Dean Vetrus, who has served as general manager of the SUB will have two showcases dedicated to him.

Abramson said she hopes the Borah Theater, which seats 200, will be sold out for each movie. All seating, with or without semester passes, is non-reserved.

Tickets for "The International Series" are $1 per movie and $1 per evening for "The Weekend Series" for undergraduates with a valid student I.D., and $2 for graduates and the general public.

Semester passes for The International Series cost $5.50 for undergraduates, a 50 percent savings. The Weekend Series cost is $6, also a savings of 50 percent. For both series, a pass costs $10, (70 percent savings).

Semester passes for graduates cost $16.50 for The International Series and $18 for The

The movie Glory.

The movie Rashoman.

Weekend Series, (25 percent savings). A combined pass will cost $30, (35 percent savings).

Films included in The International Series will be shown Wednesdays at 7 p.m. from January to April. The Weekend Series shows a double feature at 7 and 9:15 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, also through April. The first show on Friday will be shown second on Saturday.

The International Series will include films from England,

Ireland, Germany, France, Italy, Spain, Japan and Australia. All films, with the exception of those from Ireland, England and Australia will have English subtitles.

The international films will include films like The Grand Highway, Hear My Song, The Nasty Girl, and Children of Paradise.

The first international film, shown Jan. 13, will be Rashoman, a Japanese film. "It involves an incident that occurs between a famous and ruthless bandit, a beautiful Japanese woman and her well-armed husband," according to Alonzo. "The movie is the retelling of the incident by various people and the wide differences in their stories."

The first Weekend Series films, shown Jan. 15-16, will be Glory and The Monty Python troupe presenting favorite sketches from their long-running TV series. Skits will include "Dead Parrot," "The World's Deadliest Joke," "Upper-Class Twit of the Year," and "Lumberjack Song."

The Weekend Series ranges from Academy Award winning films such as Lawrence of Arabia to cartoons such as Bon Voyage Charlie Borwn (And Don't Come Back!) and Ferngully: The Last Rainforest. Also included are movies: Alien, The Princess Bride, and The Godfather.

Currently, the movies are not part of any course curriculum, but Abramson said they have hopes instructors will consider implementing the films.

"I think they're good resources for people studying foreign languages," Alonzo said.

In the future, Alonzo plans on trying to show documentaries. Also, the committee would like to show cartoons or news reels before movies to "help create a real theater environment," Alonzo said. They are also considering 20 minute abridged films of The Three Stooges.

Schweitzer Skiers Save $ome cash

By RUSS WOOLSEY
Contributing Writer

If one word could be used to usher in the new year, that word could very well be "snow."

Considering all of the snow that has blessed the Northwest, choosing a weekend ski destination has become much more difficult. In past years most powder hounds would migrate to the ski resort with the most snow to offer, or strap on their climbing skins to ski the back-country. But since most mountains have an abundance of snow, ski resorts are trying new ways to entice skiers.

As of November, Schweitzer Mountain Resort, in cooperation with Tidyman's supermarkets, has been offering discounted ski passes to all skiers.

A skier can purchase a lift ticket coupon (with no food purchase necessary) at Tidyman's food stores in Moscow, Lewiston, Coeur d'Alene, Spokane, or Post Falls. The coupons entitle a $4 savings to a $25 regular priced, full-day student pass. Adults receive a $5 discount from their regular priced $32 ski pass and seniors benefit as well with a $4 savings from their $23 full-day pass.

The skier simply takes the coupon/voucher to Schweitzer and trades it for a lift ticket. The lift ticket is completely paid for when the coupon/voucher is purchased at Tidyman's.

There are no limits on the number of ski coupons that can be purchased, and the coupons are valid throughout the 1993 season at Schweitzer.

Tidyman's of 915 White ave, Moscow (located just off the Troy highway) is open 24 hours a day. They have been recently selling a fair amount of coupons to students, especially before and after the holidays

Idaho poetry writer wins award with wildlife

Natural Selections

by
Jeff Worley & Lance Olsen

By CHRIS MILLER
Lifestyles Editor

An idea hatched under a full sunset and over empty glasses of scotch led to the award-winning publication of Natural Selections, a dual-authored poetry book about animals.

UI's creative writing instructor, Lance Olsen and long-time friend Jeff Worley decided to put together some of their "animal" poetry in a single collection. The dual-authored effort won the Still Waters Press Forth Annual Winter Poetry Competition.

The editor of Still Water's Press, Shirley Warren, praised the work as "a unique collection, two voices coming together as one in a fresh and stunning vision of the animal world."

One aspect of the book that is almost annoying yet intriguing is that neither author is credited for any particular poem. The reader cannot tell which poems were written by either author.

"We sorta designed things in such a way that that (who wrote what) wouldn't be a problem," Olsen said. "But it's concerned a lot of people."

Worley and Olsen edited and had a hand in each other's work, so they feel the poems are truly a collaborative effort. Olsen said friends like to try to guess who wrote what.

"It's sorta fun to play that game with people," Olson said.

The two writer's wives also got involved with the book.

Worley's wife, Linda, wrote the introductory note that describes the creation and poetry of the book, and Olsen's wife, Andi, designed the cover art.

"Half the fun was getting a hand in everyone else's business," Olsen said. "It was truly a collaborative experience."

Olsen is the author of the novel Live From Earth, three books of non-fiction and numerous poems, stories, essays and reviews.

Andi Olsen teaches art history at the University of Idaho.

Natural Selections is available for $5.00 plus $1.25 shipping cost directly from the publisher, Still Waters Press, 112 W. Duerer Street, Galloway Township, New Jersey 08201-9402.

Jazz quartet launches '93 coffeehouse

By LANAE EMPEY
Staff Writer

The Dozier-Jarvis-Jensen Quartet will be performing jazz and jazz fusion in the Vandal Cafe in the Student Union Building at 8 p.m., Jan. 15 as part of the ASUI Productions Coffeehouse, according to Jan Proctor, Coffeehouse chair. Admission and a limited supply of coffee are free.

The Quartet was formed in February 1992. Based in the Moscow-Pullman area, the Quartet is best known for performing in club dates, concerts, dances and wedding receptions.

The Quartet will perform "fusion tunes, tunes recorded by other jazz artist and jazz standards," according to Dody Dozier.

"This is more of a contemporary fusion than the 40s and 50s jazz," Dozier said. "But we try to mix it up. It's for jazz lovers of any age."

Brent Jensen, who plays saxophone, is now band director at Pullman High School as well as a member of the woodwind faculty at Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash. The other three, Dody Dozier on keyboard, Dick Dozier on bass and Dave Jarvis on drums, had played steadily together from 1979 to 1981.

In 1987, the trio united with Jensen after discovering he had the same ideas about jazz as they did. "The trio had been feeling restless—wanting to expand our repertoire and our sounds—and all of a sudden there was Brent and he was definitely interested in what we were doing."

The Quartet's repertory includes everything from Cole Porter and John Coltrane to the Yellowjackets, Flim & the BB's and the Steps.

"The Quartet has really taken off," said Dozier. "We've received tremendous support everywhere we've played, and we're extremely grateful."

At the last Coffeehouse Production, the Vandal Cafe was filled past capacity with more people trying to get in. The Vandal Cafe holds approximately 200 people.

named to the all-tournament team for their efforts.

Kuehlthau averaged 20.5 points, 7.5 rebounds and 5.5 assists for the Lady Vandals in their two games. Clary notched nearly 17 points a game in the tournament.

Idaho 64, Sacramento St. 59

Idaho continued its successful California swing with a victory over Sacramento St. on New Year's Day.

But it wasn't easy.

Sacramento held a three-point lead at halftime but Idaho fought back and outscored the Hornets 42-34 in the second half to take the win.

Kuehlthau led the Idaho charge with 20 points and eight rebounds. Clary added 10 points to the cause.

Turnovers continued to plague the Lady Vandals as they committed 24 miscues, including six by Kuehlthau.

The Lady Vandals made amends for their generosity to the Hornets by limiting Sacramento to 30 percent as the Hornet made only 15-of-50 shots. The Hornets were also forced into 22 turnovers of their own.

Kristy Ryan led the Hornets in scoring with 21 points, but it wasn't enough as the Lady Vandals evened their mark at 4-4.

Pacific 68, Idaho 57

Although Idaho came up short in this one, Pacific didn't have an easy time in garnering this 11-point victory.

The Tigers shot only 40 percent as a team and only with free throws at the end of the game did their lead reach double digits.

Tine Freil, the Tigers go-to guard who led them in scoring a year ago with over 14 points a game, topped all scorers with 21 points, 10 rebounds and nine assists. Forward Annette Dirac contributed 15 points and nine rebounds.

Freil did have a downfall, though. She accounted for nearly half of Pacific's turnovers with 10 as the Tigers accumulated 21 turnovers for the game.

Clary and Kuehlthau provided another 1-2 punch for the Lady Vandals as the two combined for 35 points, nine rebounds and four steals. Clary was the leader with 18 points.

With the loss, Idaho went to 4-5 overall, but the play of Clary and Kuehlthau have emerged as two sources of optimism for Turner and her staff.

In the period leading up to Jan. 8, Clary was the top scorer for UI with over 16 points a game. She had also hit 173-pointers and had only 25 turnovers in the nine games.

Kuehlthau was close behind in scoring at 15.2 points a game. She was also averaging seven rebounds a game and over four assists a contest.

Turner said that although the road swing did produce more defeats than victories, tough scheduling will pay dividends for her team down the road.

"We could have scheduled a bunch of meaningless games during the preseason, but that wouldn't have helped once Big Sky games begin," Turner said. "We may take some lumps early, but we will be ready for tough conference games."
