Homecoming unhampered by snow

Tim Helmke
Staff Writer

Even the snow couldn't hamper the success of the Homecoming celebrations on the University of Idaho campus over this past weekend.

Alumni, family and friends converged upon Moscow and the UI campus to celebrate "Autumnfest." Reunions, dinners and other get-togethers were offered to everyone who came to campus for Homecoming.

The classes of 1953 and 1968 enjoyed photographs and a social hour at the University Inn Convention Center before dinner Friday night. The old classmates enjoyed reminiscing about the old days here on campus. Comments were made about all of the changes they had noticed or had heard of. According to alumni office staff, turnout and success of the two reunions were achieved.

Living groups all over campus completed their traditional competitions and winners were announced at half-time of the football game. Banners were hung in the Kibbie Dome for the game by these groups. The banners were judged on overall appeal and relating to a central theme.

On the women's side in the banner competition, Alpha Phi came out on top. French Hall and Pi Beta Phi tied for second place followed by Delta Delta Delta in third. Alpha Gamma Delta and Gamma Phi Beta tied for fourth place. These groups all received bonus points for placing and other entries received only participation points.

On the men's side in this competition, Tau Kappa Epsilon finished in first. Sigma Chi came in second ahead of third place Alpha Kappa Lambda. Pi Kappa Alpha completed the New Greek Row domination of this competition by placing fourth.

Saturday was when everything was hectic for alumni and parents as well as living groups. A warm-up breakfast was served in the SUB Ballroom and special guests were present. These guests included: Flip Kleffner, director of alumni relations and one of the parade grand marshals; Grace Wicks, the other grand marshal; Rose Anna Boyle, Miss Idaho 1993; President Elisabeth Zinser; the 1993 Homecoming Royalty court; and alumni.

Entertainment was provided throughout the breakfast by several different groups. Alpha Kappa Lambda and Alpha Phi performed the songs which had won the Songfest competition earlier in the week. Kleffner, Zinser and UI Athletic Director

NAFTA finds overall support in Moscow

Gregory H. Burton
Staff Writer

While tomorrow's NAFTA vote in the House rests perilously on the shoulders of an undecided and bi-partisan voting bloc, support for NAFTA appears to be strong in Moscow.

"We are unambiguously for free trade," said Patricia Conboy Kuzyk, who is with the University of Idaho economics department. "While there may be some conversion problems, in the long run the impact on jobs will be minor. I think NAFTA ought to be passed."

Even the normally dichotomous voices from the mixture of industry and intellectualism on the Palouse seem to be in unison on NAFTA.

But with a growing high-tech niche, an internationally renowned agricultural base and a large contingent of consumed scholars, Moscow is a city full of complex considerations.

Sergio Trejo-Estrada, a masters candidate in bacteriology from Mexico City, said he is generally for NAFTA.

"But we must consider how long it will take for some Mexican industries to compete technologically," said Trejo-Estrada. "The largest industries will compete, but in many cases the smaller companies will disappear."

Trejo-Estrada also said Mexico would probably pass the treaty.

"Three or four years ago there was much more opposition. Recently though there has been economic growth and NAFTA has gained support."

Frank Bennett, of Bennett Lumber Products, said the initiative would open a new market in Mexico for the U.S. timber industry.

"Most of the Southern timber companies will benefit. Our lumber stays in the West and the Midwest United States," said Bennett, "and even though NAFTA will not have much of an impact on us, I fully support it."

Despite the new political direction Canada has taken since the Liberal Party captured the most recent election, Canada also appears ready to pass NAFTA.

Even so, everyone above the U.S. border is not convinced.

"Canada is going to be giving their resources away," said Mary Savage, a journalism major, who maintains dual Canadian-United States citizenship. "There is little doubt jobs will be lost, and Canadian products will be had for a cut rate. I think we need a better explanation of the details."

Ed Board to discuss at-risk student funds

The Idaho Board of Education will hold a public hearing this week on controversial amendments which would tighten the rules governing how many state dollars school districts receive for alternative high school programs set up to help at-risk students.

The Board will meet Thursday and Friday at Syringa Elementary School in Pocatello. The hearing on the alternative school rule proposal will be held Friday morning.

Proposed by the State Department of Education, the amendments would restrict the kinds, size and number of classes for which the state reimburses school districts.

Under Idaho law, districts received more state funding for each alternative high school student than for a regular student because of the special needs of at-risk student and the desire to keep classes for them small.

The department recommends tightening the funding rules, saying some school districts have used its flexible language to secure more funding than is actually needed by alternative programs.

Districts opposing the rule changes say their alternative high schools need the funds and any cutbacks will hurt at-risk students.

The controversial portions of the rule changes would: limit funding to six hours of instruction per day per students, limit funding for students enrolled in classes of 18 students or less, limit funding for students enrolled in work experience, work stud, and other low-cost or no-cost programs.

Thursday, the Board will consider draft guidelines for improving enforcement of the Board's rule governing alcohol consumption on public college and university campuses.

DOE sponsors hygiene fellowship

Helen Harshbarger
News Editor

The Industrial Hygiene Graduate Fellowship Program is accepting applications for the academic year beginning September 1994.

Sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy, Office of Health, Industrial Hygiene Programs Division, the program's application deadline is Jan. 31, 1994.

The need to ensure healthful condition in the workplace for employees has created a demand for industrial hygienists who anticipate, recognize, evaluate and control those environmental factors or stressors arising in or from the workplace. These factors may cause sickness, impaired health, significant discomfort or inefficiency among workers.

The primary goal of the fellowship program is to increase the number of industrial hygienists at the masters degree level to help ensure healthy working conditions for employees of DOE laboratories and facilities throughout the United States.

Other program goals include increasing the visibility of industrial hygiene as a career option, strengthening the industrial hygiene profession and strengthening ties between DOE and the academic community.

Administered by the Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education, appointments in the Industrial Hygiene Graduate Fellowship Program are for 24 months. Fellows are required, however, to submit a renewal application at the end of the first 12 months of the fellowship.

The program pays an annual stipend of $15,600 in 12 monthly payments off $1,300, an academic allowance of $1,500 annually and full tuition and fees.

Participation in a three-month practicum, a practical hands-on experience, at a DOE-designated facility is required. Transportation expenses to and from the practicum site are reimbursed and a dislocation allowance of $400 per month is paid.

The program is open to U.S. citizens who hold the baccalaureate degree and who have not completed more than one academic year of graduated studies by the effective date of the fellowship appointment.

For application materials or additional information on policies, procedures and guidelines under which the program operates, please contact: Industrial Hygiene Graduate Fellowship Program, Science/Engineering Education Division, Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education, 120 Badger Avenue, PO Box 117, Oak Ridge, Tenn., 37831-0117, Attn.: Mary Kinney, (615) 576-9655.

The Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education was established by the U.S. Department of Energy to undertake national and international programs in science and engineering education, training and management systems, energy and environment systems and medical sciences.

The Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education and its programs are operated by Oak Ridge Associated Universities through a management and operating contract with the U.S. Department of Energy.

Established in 1946, Oak Ridge Associated Universities is a multiuniversity consortium.

Pete Liske also spoke during the program. A slide presentation organized by alumni office interns was shown as well as an appearance by the UI Vandal Marching Band and Cheerleaders.

At the conclusion of the breakfast, people made the transition to downtown Moscow for the traditional parade. Snow had been falling since early morning and had piled up enough to cause changes in the parade but it was a success
according to Jan Abramson, Homecoming Co-Advisor.

Entries included: Miss Idaho

1993 Rose Anna Boyle, Grand
Marshals Flip Kleffner and Grace
Wicks, U.S. Senator Dirk Kempthorne, the Shriners and Moscow Mayor Paul Agidius as well as student organization and living group floats. A limousine made the route carrying President
Zinser, President Emeritus Richard
Gibb and Provost for Academic Affairs Thomas Bell.

Winners of the non-living group entries for the parade were: Best
Student Organization — Native
American Student Association; Best Spirit — the Vandal Non-

Marching Band; and Best Community Organization — the Girl Scouts/Brownies.

Living group winners in the float competition were the combined efforts of Beta Theta Pi and Gamma Phi Beta in a large "I" frame filled with leaves. Second place found the Barn Dance entry from Alpha Kappa Lambda and Delta Delta Delta followed by Sigma Chi and Alpha Gamma Delta in third. The top four rounded out with an entry from Delta Chi and Alpha Tau Omega.

Overall winners of the competitions were announced at half-time.

These winners had already received seats on the 50-yard line. On the men's side Alpha Kappa Lambda won the title for the third year in a row. Beta Theta Pi finished in second followed by Sigma Chi. The men of Phi Gamma Delta finished up the week in fourth.

The women of Delta Delta Delta claimed the title on the women's side. Early leader Alpha Phi ended up second narrowly beating Gamma Phi Beta. Alpha Gamma Delta ended up the week of competitions in fourth place.

Financial aid unveils scholarship search

Getting money for school is now a little easier.

Today, the University of Idaho Financial Aid Office will unveil a new scholarship search database system. This computer system will help make scholarship information more available to UI students.

An Open House in honor of the unveiling will be held from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m., in cooperation with the ASUI and the UI Bookstore. For more information, call 885-6312.

Rosapepe discusses endangered species

The Endangered Species Act will be discussed by John Rosapepe of the Endangered Species Coalition, a group of 72 local and national conservation organizations. Learn what the law does and does not do, and how it affects rare plants and animals in Idaho.

The illustrated talk will be presented today in the College of Forestry Building room 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Enrichment Program offers beading class

The University of Idaho Enrichment Program is offering a course titled "Beading With Style." Learn to string your own sparkling and beautiful necklace out of Czechoslovakian and Japanese glass beads. Your creation, chosen from a rainbow of colors, will be unique. The class will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. and costs $21 plus an $8.50 supply fee.

Wilderness Congress topic of presentation

Students, staff and faculty are invited to attend "A Report on the Fifth World Wilderness Congress" Wednesday at 5 p.m. in College of Forestry 25. Students and faculty who attended the Congress in Tromso, Norway, will discuss various aspects of the Congress and there will be a slide show presentation.

There will be a pot luck in the Faculty Lounge following the presentation. If bringing food, contact Nancy Mathews, 885-6442.

Universal Frozen Foods to hold job interviews

Universal Frozen Foods will hold 13 interviews Nov. 13 and Dec. 1 to fill a position for Associate Project Engineer. Requirements include fall graduates with a bachelors in Chemical, Mechanical, Electrical or Agricultural Engineering, a 2.8 GPA or higher, practical experience (i.e. summer, co-op, internship) and leadership roles or extracurricular activities are preferred. Pre-screening by the employer will take place prior to interviews. Sign up at Career Services in Brink Hall by Friday. When you sign up, submit data form and resume.

Dr. Ahmad, an economist, currently directs the Center for South Asian Studies at University of Punjab. An author and editor, he has worked in several capacities for the government of Pakistan, including acting as an economic adviser to President Zia-ul-Haq.

Summer school class schedules available Wed

The Summer Sessions 1994 on-campus preliminary announcement is available as Wednesday.

The brochure shows classes being offered during summer session to assist students in making decisions for Spring registration.

Students can get copies at the Dean's Office, Advisers, Registrar's Office, Education Building, Administration Building, Bookstore, Library, Satellite SUB, SUB Information Desk and Summer Programs Office in the Continuing Ed Building 112.

Spring mini-courses focus on water conflict

The Borah Foundation will sponsor three mini-courses for spring semester 1994: Political Hydrology, Psychology of Conflict Management and Conflict Resolution: Interpersonal and International.

These one-credit courses are open to any major and are designed to tie in with next year's Borah Foundation Program theme "Water and International Conflict." The program, which will be held at the end of March, will include a public symposium and a second track dialogue on water conflicts in the Middle East. Courses are scheduled for late afternoon, evening or lunch hour time slots. For further information, call the Registrar or Sharon Scott, 885-6527.

Lifeguard training sessions scheduled

The University of Idaho Enrichment Program is offering a lifeguard training session class Saturdays, Dec. 4 and 11 from 8 a.m. - 1 p.m., and Sundays, Dec. 5 and 12 from 9 a.m. - 12 p.m.

This class provides the necessary minimum skills training for a person to qualify as a pool lifeguard.

For information, or to register, call the Enrichment Program, 885-6486.

Biodiversity topic of Audubon program

The Palouse Audubon Society is sponsoring an informative program entitled "Old Growth Forests in Eastern Washington and Oregon" Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Senior Lounge at Pullman City Hall.

Judy Johnson will give a slide presentation on the value of biodiversity in old growth forests in Washington and Oregon. The program will include an update for current studies.

NAFTA

The UI Business Incubator, a program designed to foster new ideas, also maintains a select group of targeted industries.

John Overby, a member of the incubator, said he could not imagine why anyone would be against NAFTA.

"Anybody who builds products would be in favor of NAFTA, as long as it creates a level playing field. We should see a net gain in payroll," said Overby.

"All in all I would support NAFTA," said Assistant Professor Stephen Devadoss from the UI Agricultural Economics Department, "but some industries will be hurt."

Devadoss said American markets in direct competition with Mexico may suffer — vegetable farmers, for instance. "But pea and lentil farmers probably will benefit."

Despite his trepidation, Trejo-Estrada tried to recognize the cultural implications of NAFTA.

"Even more than the trade gain, NAFTA will be about acquaintance. There are so many stereotypes it's incredible. The real victory will be learning how we think about each other."

Open a vein, make Idaho bloodiest campus

It hurts. I don't have time. My doctor told me I can't. I think I'm getting a cold. They'll tell me I don't weigh enough. I'll contract AIDS. I'll faint and look stupid. The sign-up sheet was full. They don't really need me anyway.

So what's your excuse?

The University of Idaho won national fame in the 1950s as the "bloodiest campus" in the nation. At the first blood drive in 1950, the Red Cross mobile unit didn't have enough bottles to carry back all the plasma. Other colleges got the blood drive idea from Idaho, but Idaho retained the title against schools like Harvard. The blood drives were even featured in magazines like Life and national radio addresses. On May 1, 1953, campus and community members donated an amazing 1,672 pints of blood.

What happened? Last year, only 300 pints of blood were donated. UI needs to become the Bloodiest Campus in America once again.

Why should I give blood? you may ask. Well, here are some facts to persuade you.

The Snake River Region of the American Red Cross encompasses 47 counties in Idaho, Oregon and Washington, and 49 hospitals within those counties. You might think blood can be kept indefinitely. Not so. Red cells have a life span of 42 days — 5 days for platelets. One single unit of blood can help up to four people. And every 12 seconds, someone, somewhere, needs blood. Someday, that someone could be you.

To give you even a better perspective, let me tell you that cancer patients use 20 to 30 units of blood. Heart bypass patients use four units and premature infants use one. Think about who you could be helping.

The problem is, only four percent of the population donates blood. In America, that would equal approximately 11 million people. And 7,000 people a day need blood.

For those of you who are worried about contracting AIDS from a gross needle, be reassured. The Red Cross began testing for the virus in 1985 and needles are never reused. The Red Cross professionals are friendly and competent and if it's your first time, they'll be extra nice. They greatly appreciate the time you are taking from your day just to get a needle stuck in your arm. You can give blood today and tomorrow from 12-4 p.m. and Thursday from 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

There are lots of perks to giving blood — you get a cool sticker, free cookies and Bugs Bunny cartoons. And, by doing this humanitarian deed, you can feel better about all the sins you commit the rest of the year. You may feel light-headed, so one beer will catch you a quick buzz (although it's not recommended.)

Just so you don't waste your time, here are the donor requirements: you must be at least 17, 110 pounds, be in good health (debatable) and have eaten a protein meal within 4 hours.

Red Cross nurses and volunteers will ask you medical questions and prick your finger to check you for anemia (hurts worse than the giving).

You might get nervous right when they stick the needle in, but you don't have to look at it. You can be out in four minutes. Then you get the cookies, punch and cartoons for your recovery.

It's getting really close to Thanksgiving break and all anybody wants to do is get out of here, but push yourself to do something charitable. It's a good reason to rationalize skipping class, and your parents will think you're cool.

So let's make Idaho the Bloodiest Campus in America once again. In 1953, after the record 1,672 pints, a Time magazine reporter wrote, "They had fulfilled, they decided, what they had come to regard as Moscow's destiny: the perennial challenge to show the world the difference between there and here."

Turning SUB into bar and dance club

The Way It Is
Shari Ireton

Abortion should be legal, screw the environment and let's make the Student Union Building a bar and dance club.

There, that should have caught somebody's attention. I just needed to hook you into this column to talk to you about tomorrow's ASUI elections.

WAIT! Don't go on to the next page! Just take ten minutes out of your life to read this and you will become enlightened.

This past semester, University of Idaho students have been under some intense scrutiny and our rights were threatened by some people in the state and local governments. It's not fair, but little in life is. The fact is, we need student leaders to make sure we don't lose our student rights. It's up to us, the over 10,000 students on this campus, to choose those leaders.

These leaders are those students who chose to step out of their roles as regular UI students and take on a pile of responsibilities. They may be called president, chairman, adviser or representative, but with the title they have been burdened with responsibilities. Sometimes these responsibilities are heavy enough to resemble the Titanic, but while that ill-fated vessel sank, these individuals do not.

Behind these leaders are the followers, of which we all are in one way or another. We look up to this leader for guidance and assurance everything will go smoothly and life is just peachy.

Now, there is nothing wrong with being a follower. There are some students who are here at UI to get a degree in less than four years and move on with life. There are some who even go as far as to say they don't want to get involved, don't have time or don't know how.

Funny thing is, when bad things start happening to the followers, they expect the leader to jump in and save the day. But, without the support and effort of the followers for their leader, the person in charge just might not be so anxious to get his/her hands dirty for a bunch of ungrateful and un-supportive jerks.

A problem such as this has already been faced earlier on this semester. When an accident happened on campus, some non-student UI representatives started pointing fingers at the followers, the students. And it took the support of a few student leaders to save the rights and reputations of these many thankless followers.

So if you're one of those followers, this is your one chance this semester to choose a student leader. I can't tell you who to vote for, that's what our Election Section on page nine is for. Also included in the section is a sample ballot. Look it over and decide who you want your leader to be.

Remember, these are the people entrusted with our money. They decide how to spend it. Stop complaining about how it's spent and vote tomorrow.

If you're having a hard time deciding who to vote for, at least let me help you with the poll on the SUB name change on the ballot. These are the provided choices for the name change: Idaho Union - The Student Center (IU), Idaho Student Union (ISU) or the Vandal Union Building (VUB).

With the Idaho Union title, it sounds

Spastic pets dangerous gifts

This is a dangerous time of year for animal lovers everywhere.

Christmas time. The pet stores are full of fuzzies that would make great presents — kittens, puppies, bunnies — but please, for the animal's sake, think before you buy.

Impulse buying of animals is always a bad idea. Before you buy grandma that kitten, "She's been so lonely since Grandpa died, you know," think a little. Does Grandma really need to be changing a litter box at her age? And what if the little fluffmeister claws up all the doilies she's been crocheting so hard on all year? Does she really need a spastic hairball running up her drapes and chewing on her nylons?

It's always better if the person receiving the pet chooses it himself. If they can be tricked into showing you the one they'd like, that's great, but you'll probably have to spoil the surprise and let them shop around. Even parakeets have personalities, and it's important that the pet and owner are well suited to each other. That way your gift can be a ten or fifteen year reminder of your love.

College students often impulse buy pets for themselves, without giving thought to the consequences. There was probably a reason your parents never bought you a puppy, and while you're in college, it is most likely not the time to fulfill your dream.

Sooner or later the landlord (or Resident Assistant) will find puppy poop on their shoe and wonder where it came from. Then it will come down to a choice between a place to live and a droolmonster, usually terminating in someone going to the pound.

Even if it is legal for a student to keep a pet, all of these cute little guys grow into what is sometimes not so cute. Pets take an awful lot of love and attention, and while most college students are long on love, they're often short on time. Fido won't understand that you have a term paper to do in the next twelve hours, all he knows is he really, really needs to find a fire hydrant.

From personal experience, even buying an aquarium on the spur of the moment can be a bad idea. I love my fish, but they've gone a weekend or two without food, because I decided to go somewhere or stay where I was without planning. They've also grown, which was something I didn't anticipate. But as Wes, from Wes's

SUB name choices limited

Concerning the upcoming Nov. 17 student referendum on the current and possibly different name of Student Union Building (SUB). It appears that the four proposed choices are rather limited and do not fully address the issues of retaining the word "student" in the building name, recognition of "Idaho" in the name, or alliteration difficulties, not to mention supporting ISU in Boise. SUB, "Idaho Union: The Student Center," "Idaho Student Union," and "Vandal Union Building" are limited choices. It is proposed that "Idaho Student Union Building" (ISUB) also be considered as another compromise as it retains the heart of the SUB, recognizes Idaho and the student contribution. This also allows easy renaming of the Satellite SUB as the ISSUB (spoken as the Ice SUB).

Merrick proven dependable

I am writing this letter to encourage students to support Brent Merrick for ASUI Senate. He has many projects that he would like to work on to improve campus, such as his idea to work with UI to develop and implement a plan to improve the deteriorating streets on campus (especially Deakin-the-pothole damaged street in the front of the SUB). He also supports exploring a possible shuttle from campus to downtown Moscow on weekend nights to give students an attractive alternative to driving their cars to drinking establishments. I have known Merrick for several years and I know that he will work hard to make these and other improvements a reality. Please remember to vote in the ASUI Election Wednesday and elect a senator who will work to improve our campus! Vote for Brent Merrick!

—Mike Gotch Former ASUI President

FarmHouse prez backs Sheikh

As a freshman at this university in 1991, I was less than impressed with the senator who was assigned to my living group, FarmHouse.

If we were "lucky" he would enlighten us once a month on the Senate's past actions, asking our opinions only after items had already been passed or not passed. At first this disturbed me, but I then began to think that maybe this is the way things are.

But Amtul Sheikh has changed these perceptions for me. I get the sense that Amtul is genuinely concerned with the ideas that we have. Not only does she listen to our ideas, but we see direct results from her concern.

I remember one particular issue in which FarmHouse was opposed to the proposed action. Amtul worked extremely hard for a compromise that satisfied both the opposing side and ourselves. We can count on seeing her at least two times a month and feel we truly get a sense that we are on top of the events of the Senate.

If you are disappointed that you have not had this kind of dedication, then you should be delighted to know that Amtul Sheikh is running for ASUI President. Please give her the chance to continue her great service.

Baig for GPSA secretary

As you know, the elections for next year's GPSA officers will soon be upon us. In the past year, I have had the pleasure of knowing Mirza Baig. One of the problems the GPSA has had in its past four years of existence has been a lack of involvement from the international students in serving on the executive board. Mirza has had ten years experience in research administration as well as having published over twenty articles in international journals. Also, Mirza has served as secretary and vice president of tutorial groups at the University of Agriculture in Pakistan. I believe Mirza is a first rate choice for GPSA secretary in the upcoming year. His experience as well as his easy going nature will make him a valuable asset in keeping you, the graduate student, well informed throughout the year. Thanks for you time and your vote for Mirza B. Baig!

Marble has ability, desire

I would like to support John Marble for ASUI President. I have worked with John for over a year while serving as the ASUI Vice President, and I have found him to be an excellent advocate for student concerns.

While lobbying the State Legislature, I had the chance to see John's persuasiveness. Though the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee had removed all work study money from the budget, John managed to convince them that this would be a mistake. As a result, the committee restored over a half million dollars to the budget. This money directly translated to jobs for students who needed financial assistance to attend UI. John is the only candidate with such lobbying experience.

Further, John has proven to be extremely good with the ASUI budget. The current budget is approaching one million dollars, and specific budget experience is a must. Though other candidates have viewed this process from the outside, John has worked on the ASUI Finance Committee during the budget process. Since much of the understanding comes from committee meetings and committee discussion, John is the only candidate with practical budget experience.

Finally, John knows how to translate student desires into results. He has worked to start a student bookswap to save student's money. He has established a Student Boosters organization to support not only athletics, but school pride. He has even pledged to ensure publication of teacher evaluations, going so far as to contact the other schools in the state to unite a lobbying effort for this.

I can think of no other candidate who has the ability, desire and openness to be the ASUI President. Make your vote count Wednesday by voting for John Marble.

—Derrick C. Brown ASUI Vice President

Marble seeks student opinion

I would like to take this opportunity to share with you the issues that I am campaigning on.

Student interests must be represented at all levels. I am confident that my experience dealing with governing bodies such as the State Board of Education, the State Legislature and the UI Administration will work for students. As a senator, I have sought student opinions and will continue to do so as president to insure that your views are communicated clearly.

I also want to work with the UI Foundation to develop new scholarship endowments. We lose too many good students simply because they can not afford to attend school.

In addition, I want to pursue publishing teacher evaluations. This is a scary concept for some, but many other schools have shown that it provides the information to students necessary to choose classes more wisely. Even if we allowed the evaluations to be published on a voluntary basis, we have provided students with more information than they previously had.

Space limits my ability to list all the projects I want to work on, but let me promise this: I will commit myself to a leadership that is broadly representative to student concerns.

Tomorrow is your chance to decide the future of the ASUI.

like the fact it's the student's union was an after-thought, just tacked on the end. And let's face it, it would be embarrassing to be the director, with everyone calling you the "IUD." ISU is too much like Idaho State University and VUB is just plain silly.

Help keep the "student" in the SUB by voting.

Now you have no excuses. Go through your desk drawer or your wallet and find that student ID card you haven't used since you went to the gym in September. Then, go vote. There are polling booths all over campus, including at the SUB, Administration Building and library, so you can't avoid it. If you can't make it, absentee ballots are available in the ASUI office located in the SUB.

Just remember, it takes a follower to choose a leader.

Pets out at the mall told me, "We sell puppy fish here." Great, and now I need to get a bigger tank (it would be cool if someone I was married to got it for me for my birthday) before I discover they've gone cannibal.

I want to encourage those students who are thinking of getting rid of pets they already have to, please do it humanely. Don't flush live fish, and don't dump dogs and cats out in the country thinking that someone will take them in.

If you feel you can no longer care for your pet, please run an ad in the classifieds, or in the Argonaut, or take them to the animal shelter or humane society, or have them humanely destroyed. Please don't abandon them; they can't survive on their own.

If you are in a position to care for a pet for the duration of its life, look at the animal shelters or humane society. They have many adoptable dogs and cats who have been abandoned or left when owners can no longer care for them.

Pet stores have no trouble moving dogs and cats, even the $400 ones, so please, take pity on those that may soon be destroyed, and at least go look. Who knows, you may find your new best friend there.

Argonaut fails to cover GPISA

There was a forum Sunday night for the candidates to ASUI and GPISA office.

This was not covered fully by any reporter of the Argonaut.

The first part of it was broadcast live by KUOI, but after an hour the technician left, so the remainder of the ASUI forum, and none of the GPISA forum, was broadcast.

We the undersigned, all holders of or candidates for, are consequently more than a little perturbed that not only was the event not covered by the UI media, but it would require some effort on the part of any member of the public to determine that the event had in fact taken place.

We do not feel you exercised your journalistic duties responsibly in this regard.

Merrick has common sense

I'm writing in support of Brent Merrick for ASUI Senate.

Not only is Brent an outstanding leader, but he also has the common sense and down-to-earth attitude needed to deal with the inevitable problems that will arise in the ASUI.

Brent's ideas for improving the campus are genuine and sincere, and I think that he would be a great asset to the students at this campus.

Weavers Guild holds 20th show at Hartung

The Palouse Hills Weavers Guild will hold its 20th Annual Show and Sale on Friday, Nov. 19, in the lobby of the Hartung Theatre at the UI.

The reception will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Friday. A variety of weavings, with an emphasis on wearable garments, will be on display and for sale. A special feature of the show will be Sarah Swett's nationally award-winning tapestry.

The Show and Sale will continue on Saturday, Nov. 20, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Judybats, from the University of Tennessee, played after Inclined and Big Time Adam on Friday.

'Tour of Life' draws slim crowd

Russ Woolsey
Lifestyles Editor

The "Tour for Life" touring concert came to the SUB Ballroom last Friday with bands Judybats, Inclined and special guest Big Time Adam.

The concert was a partial benefit for several environmental organizations, including Greenpeace.

Big Time Adam got the half full Ballroom started with some of their tunes which have become well known in Moscow including "Move On" and "Bring Me Down." Big Time Adam's debut album is expected to be out with in a month.

Inclined took the stage and played several cuts which had Spin Doctors flare to it. They did show some originality with a 12 string electric bass and a drummer who felt a hammer made better tones on a cymbal than a drum stick, yet they still had a peculiar pocket full of kryptonite twang.

After an extended sound check, Judybats entered with a fog machine turned to over drive and a lead singer, Jeff Heiskell, singing tunes which only could have been inspired by listening exclusively to ex-Smiths member, Morrissey lyrics.

By the third song he was referring to an opinion stated in a letter to the editor, published in the

Nov. 12 issue of the Argonaut by Thaddeus R. Mosey. He started talking about how Moscow has more homophobes than most places they have been. After attacking Mosey's character on stage, Heiskell said, "This songs about my lesbian friend and if anybody has a problem with it they can hit the fucking door."

Immediately they went into a song about homosexuality, jumping around the stage smiling and gawking at the audience. They played a fairly short set and got the crowd into the groove a few times with songs such as "Incredible Bittersweet" and "An Intense Beige."

Jackson's butt not worth $20 for hour show

Shari Ireton
Editor-in-Chief

Alan Jackson fans whooped and hollered it up at his concert last Thursday night.

Jackson is one of the hottest new county stars, who performs such popular songs as "Don't Rock the Jukebox" and "Chattahoochee." It was evident last week, however, he's not just popular for his singles.

When the large screens behind Jackson flashed a bigger-than-life view of his rear end, the female part of the crowd went wild. This yummy 6-foot-2, eyes of blue, county singer won the heart of every woman in Beasley that night. He won few of the hard core concert fans, though.

Jackson's stage presence is more like a video than a performer. It takes some encouraged audience participation to pump up a crowd, and Jackson failed in that area. He hardly moved away from the microphone and lacked the excitement performer's like Garth Brooks carry when on stage.

Jackson only got the audience to really "hoochy-coochy" twice, once when he sang "Midnight in Montgomery" and his encore, "Mercury Blues."

The biggest problem I had with this concert was Jackson only played for a little over an hour. For $20 per person, all he performed for his audience were hit singles. While I realize Mr. Neon Rainbow hasn't been popular for very long, he could have gone away from following the album cuts and done a little improvising.

ASUI / GPSA STUDENT ELECTIONS

ASUI Presidential Elections

Amtul Sheikh

Sheikh argues for open doors

Amtul Sheikh said she believes in open doors and getting students involved.

This ASUI presidential hopeful said she would like more people working with the ASUI.

"I want to make it more open to students and to let them know that there is a student government working for them." If elected president, Sheikh said she would personally seek out students to serve on committees and boards. She would also visit all living groups and make all of the ASUI known to students.

"I don't think enough students see the ASUI president," the 21-year-old accounting major said. "There needs to be a wide variety of student views recognized."

This three-year senate veteran has been busy with the University of Idaho student government and said she has "learned all the parts of ASUI well." Sheikh has worked on the million-dollar ASUI budget in the finance committee, served as GOA chair, worked on the leadership retreat committee and many other committees and long term projects. Those long term projects, many of which are still in the works, include a park n'ride program, cultural diversity and a student health care fund.

"I get things done. I don't believe in doing things halfway," said Shiekh, "I think there are students here who have seen that."

Shiekh, a Moscow native, also pointed out she knows the university and surrounding community well.

John Marble

Marble wants to streamline

Representing University of Idaho students and streamlining operations are important to ASUI presidential candidate John Marble.

"I think we need to eliminate the vagueness from committees and make people more aware of their roles," said Marble.

Another goal the Senator work toward if elected is to save students money by avoiding any increases in student fees for ASUI. "I want to work at keeping costs low. Every dollar helps."

The 21-year-old senior said he has a "positive track record of getting things done." He said he has worked with the finance committee during budget hearings and helped with the book swap. The Princeton, British Columbia native also has worked on lobbying to make work study money totaling over $500,000 readily accessible to students.

Marble, a civil and agricultural engineering major, feels students need to take on stronger leadership roles. Especially with the current alcohol issue, Marble has seen "how important it is to represent student rights." He pointed out he also has experience in the state capitol with the State Board of Education and the UI Foundation.

One thing Marble stressed he would do if elected is to publish teacher evaluations for student access.

Robert Mendenhall

Mendenhall sees communication

Interfacing the students and administration at the University of Idaho by way of the ASUI is Robert Mendenhall's goal.

If elected to the president's seat, the 20 year-old psychology major would like to make "the ASUI become more pro-active. Right now, ASUI exists, it's there, but they need to get more active." That activity would include communicating between higher university officials and the students.

Mendenhall said he has seen model programs work on other campuses with this focus.

"Students from a student body who are non-elected would be paired with an administrator," he said. This allows the two a better insight on what's happening in the student body.

Another way to improve ASUI relations with students and the university, said Mendenhall is have ASUI elected representatives out and talking to students.

A Boise, Idaho native, Mendenhall has been active at the UI, especially within the Psychology Department, where he currently heads a research program.

He was also a lobbyist for the Department of Parks and

Posters cover every bare spot on campus, preparing for elections.

Recreation one summer for an internship. That experience, said Mendenhall, gave him invaluable insight into legislature.

Mendenhall said he wants to accomplish a lot. "I don't like to be a pacifist. I like to get things done, preferably my way."

Christopher LaPaglia

LaPaglia wants students involved

Addressing the quality of education is what presidential hopeful Chris LaPaglia will do if elected.

"I'd like to see a file maintained of teacher evaluations," said

LaPaglia. This would be just one way the 33 year-old chemistry major said he could get students involved in the education process.

Another change LaPaglia would like to make is reducing the administration and get students to fill positions concerning education.

"They would be involved on a day to day, year to year basis," said LaPaglia, "Of course, this would take a lot of negotiating."

Aside from the above ideas, LaPaglia would like students on boards for instructor tenure and promotional review, curriculum councils and have more input for degree programs.

LaPaglia feels the ASUI needs to address the issue of student housing.

"We need a solid base of housing, run by students for students." Some of the problems, with the high cost and lack of housing needs to be addressed by the student government, said the UI senior. "I know a few people who have wood heat who are living in a garage. I've seen some pretty substandard places out there. People should have a choice about where to live."

Working in politics is not new to LaPaglia, who said he has a family history of political activism. He himself has been involved in such issues as education, the environment and anti-nuclear activists.

Lindholm runs unopposed for vice presidential slot

Allison Lindholm

Vice Presidential Elections

The one and only candidate running for the Vice Presidential seat, Allison Lindholm, is rolling up her sleeves for next semester.

Lindholm, who has been on the ASUI Senate for three years, is gearing up for the budgeting process. She'll be watching both the ASUI and university budgets, and keeping an eye out for fee increases for students.

If elected to the position, Lindholm would like to make a few changes concerning the Vice President's position in ASUI.

"I'd really like to establish a chief of staff position," said the 21 year old agricultural engineering major, "The chief of staff would run the meetings instead of the vice president."

Another change Lindholm feels needs to be made is making the vice president a summer position, like the president's. "This past summer, Derrick (current ASUI vice president) and Rick (current ASUI president) were working very hard ... The vice president should be paid for the summer."

Lindholm, a senior from Filer, Idaho, has served on both the Rules and Regulations and Ways and Means committees. During her time in the Senate, she has chaired a meeting in Vice President Derrick Brown's absence. Brown has also spent time showing Lindholm the ropes, she said.

Known for her preciseness and ability to stick to the rules, Lindholm has been ASUI parliamentarian for a year.

ASUI Senate Elections

Ian James

James offers DC leadership

Ian James loves politics. James says he is campaigning for a spot in the ASUI senate because he is "very into politics." A senior in political science, James just finished a congressional internship in Washington, D.C. for Idaho Congressman Larry LaRocco. During his years on campus, James has served as president of the Political Science Student Association, chair of the Attendance Rights Committee, Rush Chairman, and executive positions in the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He feels he has an excellent handle on parliamentary procedure, and believes his experience in the nation's capital will prove beneficial if he is elected to the senate. Of the current senate, James says, "I think they've done a real good job. . . . I'm glad they got over the controversy they had with Richard Rock, the president. "You always hear controversy about (senators). I want to sort of calm that down a bit and change the image the senators have. . . . (I will) work for positive change, not controversy." James plans to graduate in May of 1994 and attend the University of Idaho College of Law. He says he will still pay ASUI fees so he can remain a senator. James hopes the unusual situation could serve to renew links that have been weakened between the law school and the ASUI. "My first year (of law school) I ought to have plenty of time to devote (to the senate) . . . . It will give me experience to help me be a better leader for the students," he says. James feels he offers "student leadership for a student democracy."

Greg Hurn

Freshman offers sincerity

Greg Hurn believes he knows leadership. "Leadership is knowing when to lead and when to follow," he says. "I know when to keep my mouth shut and follow those who are leading." Hurn, a freshman in history, feels he can offer sincerity. "There's a lot of hype . . . in public office and there's not enough sincere people. My father's taught me you're only as good as your word." Hurn got his start in politics by reading John F. Kennedy's works. "[Kennedy] was diametrically opposed to what I believe in, but I believe he's a perfect example of what a candidate should be," Hurn says. He explains that he admires Kennedy for taking full responsibility in matters like the Bay of Pigs invasion. In high school, Hurn served as class president, took part in Debate for three years and went to nationals in Student Congress. On the UI campus, he participates in Young Republicans, but says he has kept away from offices in his fraternity, Alpha Kappa Lambda.

"I didn't want to mix the two (fraternity and senate) up; it would hurt the house and take away from the senate." Of the current senate, Hurn says, "At times they're very professional at what they do and at other times when they have a split in the senate, they break down and take sides." He offers as an example the Nov. 3 meeting when senators debated whether to place a referendum on the ballot concerning the name of the Student Union Building. "They carried (the debate) out over 45 minutes and I really think it was ineffective," Hurn says. If elected to the senate, Hurn would like to see Teacher Evaluations published. "It's a waste of time to fill those out and never see them again. . . . they should be published so students can benefit and see what their peers thought," he says.

Sean Wilson

Incumbent likes seeing results

Sean Wilson loves his job. An incumbent running for reelection to the ASUI Senate, Wilson says he can offer "Enthusiasm! . . . I love my job! I love it. . . . You can see the direct results of how many people you can help; you get to deal with people all the time." "The best job we can do goes beyond writing bills and extends as far as to helping individuals, . . . letting them see by helping them know that their votes were not in vain," Wilson says. In his years on the University of Idaho campus, Wilson has been involved with the ASUI Senate, Vandal Student Boosters, the Teaching Enhancement committee and the newly organized Book Swap, and he recently pledged Kappa Sigma fraternity. Wilson feels he has already displayed his qualifications for senate. "If you want to know why to vote for me, ask (the living groups I represent). . . . That will speak for itself," he says. Identifying the impulse that motivated him to run for senate is "simple. All students need more money. And I think I can help put more money back in the pockets of students."

According to Wilson, "several members of the legislature, as well as the director of Student Financial Aid at Idaho, credit the survival of the work study program to (the) lobbying efforts" of a group of last year's senators, one of whom was Wilson. His campaign slogan reflects the pride he takes in this accomplishment. His posters read, "506,500 reasons . . . working hard to save you money." Wilson explains students received over $500,000 more in work study funds this year because of his group's lobbying efforts in Boise. He adds the ASUI now receives $6,500 of interest from the general reserve fund, which they did not previously collect, due to his own efforts.

Laura West

West represents women's voice

Laura West wants to put a woman's voice in the senate. The only woman running for ASUI senate, West says she wants "to be a female voice in the senate and represent women's issues on campus."

"I'm not out to be a politician," she adds. "I'm a student that loves the university and I'm out to improve it any way I can . . . with suggestions from the students." In her years on campus, the junior has been an active member of the music department and her residence hall, Steel House. She participates in a music fraternity for women and has served as social chair and vice president of her house. With all this, she says she has still managed to stay on the dean's list every semester. "I want to take all my energy that I've been expelling in clubs and activities and put it into the senate, where I can really make a difference," she says. West does not want to be seen as a one-issue candidate, but her primary interest is working with the women's center on rape prevention and safety programs. Statistically speaking, she maintains one of every four women on college campuses have been victims of rape or attempted rape. "If we can prevent even one rape, it will make a big difference to me," she says. "Because it's a big issue on college campuses and a lot of people ignore it. But it does happen, and I would rather shine a light on it and make it go away." She stresses education in safety programs, saying, "I'm not just looking at cutting bushes; I'm looking at (spreading) information." West admires the current senators, who are "really working on having diverse student voices in," she says. She does feel, however, that students are not well informed on the senate's activities. "It really scared me talking to students that they really didn't know what the ASUI was; we need to inform them better," she says.

Mirzab Baig

Baig sees improvement

Mirzab Baig said it's time for GPSA students to get involved, and if he is elected secretary of the GPSA, will work to get people involved. "Graduate students need to realize it's in their own interest to get involved," Baig said. Baig is a graduate student in range resources. Baig said he wants to "make GPSA the major source for solving problems faced by graduate students" and "make the GPSA newsletter more effective and informative." Putting together the newsletter is a major responsibility for the GPSA secretary. In addition, Baig said he will enhance participation of graduate students, simplify the process for GPSA travel grants, recognize outstanding graduate students. "The GPSA has experienced several exciting and positive changes," Baig said. "But I see a lot of room for improvement."

Shaun Maxey

Maxey with large agenda

Shaun Maxey says he is not running on his resume; he is running because he has what it takes to get the job done. "I think the GPSA has made big strides, and I want to keep moving in a positive direction," Maxey said. Maxey is a graduate student in geography.

Maxey said he wants to improve the relationship between GPSA and the graduate student body. Maxey plans to accomplish four main goals if he is elected president. First, he wants to obtain increased compensation and benefits for teaching and research assistants and have improved health insurance options for graduate students. Second, he wants to reform GPSA's travel grant process to insure more grad students can compete for grants. Third, he wants to increase participation through an outreach program. And finally, he wants to support the Teaching Enhancement. "I will work with the administration in a constructive manner to improve salary and benefit situations," Maxey said. Maxey also said he plans to work with the ASUI in a constructive manner. "I want to cooperate for the maximum interest," Maxey said.

"I won't drum up confrontation just to further our interest." Maxey has served on the student finance committee and is the GPSA representative for the geography department.

Bill Owens

Owens believes in realism

The GPSA vice presidential candidate does not see himself as a man to bring his own agenda to the position. Rather, he simply wants to work through the president's agenda.

"My pledge is that I shall be a mover for the GPSA president's agenda," Owens said. Owens is a graduate student in geography. Owens said he supports both presidential candidates' plans to negotiate for teaching and research assistants, but said there must be a shot of realism before asking for too much. "There must be a focus on only one or two issues at most to maximize the effectiveness of the GPSA leadership," Owens said. Owens is not a newcomer to university government. Owens served as an ASUI senator to serve as a link between the ASUI and GPSA, and served as a student senator at two other colleges. He is currently the office manager of the GPSA's north campus office. Owens said he is pleased with the way GPSA has been handled currently, and hopes the next GPSA will be as effective. "The vice president is in the team which is led by the president," Owens said. "I will support the president's agenda." Owens said that he is willing to put forth the time and effort for the job, and will listen to students.

Brent Merrick

Merrick offers experience

Brent Merrick likes to work under pressure.

"The more stuff is piled on me, the better," he declares. A senior in business education, Merrick looks to capture a seat in the ASUI Senate.

Merrick believes "the senators in there now are doing a really good job and (he) wanted to be a part of that group."

Merrick has been interested in the senate for several years, and decided to take this opportunity to run for a position.

He plans to student-teach in the spring of 1995 and graduate that May, so he says this is his only chance to run for the year-long office.

As a senior, Merrick feels he can offer experience to the senate.

"I've been around and know quite a bit about the university," he explains.

Merrick has been active in Business Professionals of America and has held offices in the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, including the presidency.

He says he also represents his chapter at numerous leadership retreats, such as one he attended in San Francisco, Calif., last summer.

Merrick believes most of his "ideas will be coming from living groups" he represents, but he proposes some ideas of his own.

He would like to "get the roads fixed on campus" and initiate a weekend shuttle service between campus and downtown "to cut down on drunk driving."

Merrick stresses that, if elected, he will remember he is representing the student body, especially at times when there are differences between administration and students.

He maintains he will have plenty of time for a senate job because his "business classes are a lot more hands-on and cooperative education classes . . . instead of out-of-class."

Offering a personal glimpse, Merrick said, "I like to get out in the mountains as much as possible — get out of towns."

"I'm really easy-going," he says. "I try not to take things too seriously, try to keep situations as light as possible."

Jeremy Winter

Winter wants more publicity

Jeremy Winter wants to put leadership skills to work in the ASUI senate.

"I've always been in leadership positions; it's been kind of pushed in my family," the sophomore says. "I waited one year (before running) so I could get a better view and perspective of campus . . . I like to get out and help people and keep busy."

Winter, who is double-majoring in criminal justice and sociology, feels the senate needs to keep students better informed about and involved with ASUI activities.

"The ASUI needs to get issues more public. A lot of people are uninformed," Winter states. "There may be students upset about some of the things that have gone on . . . (and) students need to voice their opinions. . . I'd like to get them a little more involved."

Winter says he practiced leadership skills in his high school student government, as well as in freshman offices in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

"I've always had a lot of responsibility; I've always talked in front of people. . . I think (the senate) would be a good experience to learn from others and have others learn from me."

If elected to the senate, Winter says he would like to "see some more safety programs," as well as "a little more recycling going on in fraternities and the residence halls."

Winter says over time he has learned that "when he's not in a leadership position, a true leader will pretty much follow other leaders."

Offering a personal glimpse, Winter calls himself "a pretty aggressive person." He adds he was a national level wrestler and turned down a wrestling scholarship so he could concentrate on academic pursuits.

Winter fears one thing might hurt his campaign This year he took his stepfather's last name, and he worries that people who knew him last year as Jeremy Slaybaugh might not connect his new name with him.

Scott Wimer

Wimer eyes ASUI budget

Scott Wimer would like to keep an eye on the ASUI budget.

"The major reason (I'm running for ASUI Senate) is I'm extremely conservative in the way I spend my money. I wanted to take an active part in deciding the way my money is spent."

Wimer feels he can offer good business sense, as well as the extensive experience from book-keeping for his father's business.

"I know what I'm doing in business. Politics is something I've considered going into on the business end, buying off politicians, using money to influence politicians," Wimer says.

Wimer, a freshman in metallurgical engineering, believes this year's senate is a little too "generous with other people's money." He explains, for example, the ASUI considered covering medical bills for students who can't afford it.

Wimer suggests they could turn their own paychecks to such a purpose, but "doing it with someone else's money just isn't right."

He says, "One of the major things I'm going to do is to see that when the budget is written, the money is being used in a way that's wise and not wasteful. There are a lot of problems out there that can't be solved by throwing money at them."

He feels the current senate has produced many positive results this year, especially "working with the State Board of Education to keep an alcohol policy from being rammed down the throat of this university."

Wimer urges people to vote for him because of his "conservative politics and powers of persuasion."

"I've learned how to ask the right questions and how to word things right when I argue with someone. I always win. When I go out to do something, it happens," he says.

He also says, "I'm trustworthy and I've got a good head on my shoulders. . . I see about three steps ahead of most people."

Chad Moore

Moore runs for fourth time

Chad Moore is taking another crack at the ASUI senate.

He says he has "run three times, but never really put any effort into it." This year, for the first time, he plans to hang campaign posters and attend the candidates' debate.

Moore says, "The main reason I want to run is that I feel the present senate is . . . looking out too much for their futures and not enough for the students . . . I'm not doing it for the future; I'm doing it 'cause I want to make a stand."

The senior adds, "People should vote for me because I care more about the school than how this is going to look on my resume. I tell people what I think."

Moore, who is majoring in history education, feels his most important qualification is his diverse history of living groups.

"I lived two years in the residence halls, a year off campus, and now I live in Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, so I have an experienced voice in all the systems," Moore says.

Moore admits he has not attended senate meetings or kept current on issues confronting the senate, but he maintains, "I have an attitude about everything. I believe strongly in just about every subject, but I'm not . . . closed-minded. I listen to other people and, if the argument is sound, I can be persuaded."

In his years on campus, Moore has been involved with the Productions Board Committee and the Coffeehouse Committee, and worked at the Wallace Cafeteria.

"I helped implement changes in the snack bar," he adds.

Moore describes himself as "strong-willed, outgoing, (and) easy to talk to." He adds he "enjoy(s) reading and watching the comedians at Chasers."

Offering a personal glimpse, Moore says he student-teaches at Deary and enjoys dancing, "especially country swinging."

GPSA Elections

Michael Brennan

Brennan with strong feelings

For Michael Brennan, it's time for the GPSA to get noticed. And stay noticed once and for all.

Brennan, a graduate student in mathematics, is running for president. Brennan said he is ready, willing, and able to tackle the job.

"GPSA needs to be more visible," Brennan said. "We need to be a more vocal organization and voice the concerns graduate students have."

Among the top items on his agenda is better working conditions for teaching assistants, which he says is too often a thankless job. Brennan was elected math department representative last semester.

"There are 256 T.A.s, and a large amount are not happy with their present working conditions." To deal with this, Brennan plans to work with department heads to improve T.A. salaries, housing and working conditions.

Brennan said he also wants to work to achieve more recognition for graduate students, such as teaching excellence awards, develop a policy for an entertainment budget and departments in default, and encourage graduate students to become more involved with GPSA to strengthen it and achieve its objectives.

"There is a lot of apathy among grad students," Brennan said. "We have to get students motivated."

Brennan added that he wants to have a good working relationship with the ASUI, and said he is highly motivated.

"I have strong feelings on what I feel and think graduate students would like to better our lot."

Ted Munsch

Munsch to strengthen GPSA

Ted Munsch thought it was time to get involved with GPSA. So he will be running for GPSA vice-president.

"When I'm a member of an organization, I like to be directly involved," Munsch said. "I want to strengthen GPSA, and make it something members are proud."

Munsch plan to increase the visibility of GPSA on campus and in the community.

"I want to increase attendance at GPSA meetings," Munsch said.

Munsch also wants to bring in more entertainment for graduate students help the situation of teaching assistants.

Munsch said he plans to work with whoever is elected president. Munsch is a graduate student in education, and will be facing off against Bill Owens.

Lourdes Chacon

Chacon to promote GPSA

Maria De Lourdes Chacon doesn't exactly have modest goals. "I want to be education minister for Ecuador," Chacon said.

But for now, Chacon is willing to set her sights on modest goals. So Wednesday, Chacon will square off against Mirza Baig for GPSA Secretary. In fact, Chacon said Idaho is the partner state of Ecuador.

Chacon said she brings with her the dedication and experience necessary to do the job. She has edited three books and speaks fluent Spanish. She hopes to bring her experience into GPSA to make it grow.

"First, I want to identify what is working and strengthen it," Chacon said. "I come in with a healthy attitude."

Chacon said she is willing to put forth the effort and promote the actions of the GPSA.

Blood Drive slated for today through Thursday

Halo DeWitt
Staff Writer

Need some inspiration for a crowd? Get a mascot. That's what ASUI Productions has done for the blood drive this week.

Billy the Blood Drop, alias Jon Smith, a Theta Chi fraternity member, will be the mascot for this year's drive.

Smith does not qualify to give blood, so giving support to those who can is his contribution to the effort. He will be at the Student Union Building for a few hours each day of the drive.

The blood drive will be today and tomorrow from noon to 4 p.m. in the SUB Appaloosa Room and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. On Thursday, it will be set up in the Vandal Lounge on first floor.

Students should expect to spend at least 45 minutes completing the donation process. A basic time limit includes 15 to 20 minutes in the screening process, 10 minutes actually giving blood and 10 minutes resting and replenishing.

The rest is time spent waiting. Wait time may vary depending on the hour and the number of people in attendance. For the time spent waiting, cartoons will be shown or students can study.

There has been a schedule at the SUB information desk where students could sign up for time slots. These students are scheduled to give blood depending on what day they signed up. Walk-ins are welcome but may have to wait longer, since priority is given to those already on the schedule. As of yesterday, many of the slots were still open but members of the committee were driving to get them filled.

Lisa Gravelle, co-chair of the Blood Drive with John Drosch, said the Greek houses have been very supportive and have donated the cookies this year.

There is a competition accompanying this year's drive. For the living group with the most people signing in, there will be a traveling trophy and a pizza party (in connection with Pizza Perfection). This is not just limited to those who actually give blood. If someone signs in but gets turned down in the screening process, they count, too.

According to Gravelle, the American Red Cross receives about 120 pints of blood per day at this blood drive. Those pints go to supply several of the area hospitals. The University of Idaho drive is the longest running (three days) drive in the area.

Gravelle suggested eating a high-protein meal and drinking lots of fluids before donating. The extra fluid intake thins the blood and allows it to drain out more easily, and the extra protein increases energy and aids recovery.

Donors can rest easy, there is no risk of contracting the AIDS virus from donating blood. Sterile needles are used with each person so the risk of getting a disease from donating blood is eliminated.

"People should feel lucky that they are in the position to give blood, instead of receiving it," said Gravelle. "If you can give, you should," said Smith, aka Billy the Blood Drop.

LCSC features art

Native American art on display at Center for Art and History in Lewiston

Tim Schreiner
Staff Writer

In connection with National Native American Month in November, the Center for Arts and History in Lewiston will feature the work of two artists whose contemporary works incorporate traditional Native American themes.

From Nov. 5 - 24, the contemporary masks of HollyAnna Pinkham-Spino (of the Nez Perce tribe) will be shown with the acrylic canvas works of Ellen Taylor (of the Umatilla tribe) in the Center, located at 415 Main.

Pinkham-Spino uses a wide variety of materials to form masks, both life-size and miniature, with traditional designs or themes. The masks are created through the use of shattered glass, antlers, fur, feathers and beads molded on a papier mache or clay-like forms.

Her work was selected for the Sapatq' Ayn exhibit of Twentieth Century Nez Perce artists, curated by the Nez Perce National Historic Park in 1992. Pinkham-Spino, who resides in Warm Springs, Ore. has received wide recognition for her work which is shown in several Northwest galleries.

Taylor, who resides in Pendleton, Ore., was raised on the Umatilla Reservation, Walla Walla and Cayuse tribe. Taylor explores the rich and colorful world of the Native American with bold but faceless images. Because of her belief "it is with tolerance and unity that the Indian people of yesterday lived with great harmony and peace," she does not put a face to her characters on canvas.

Taylor would like the observer to delve deeper into the painting and let the character tell a tale of what is transpiring in that particular painting. She operates the Windsong Gallery in Pendleton, an artists' cooperative which showcases the work of Native American artists.

Also in November, the Idaho Watercolor Society Traveling Exhibit will be displayed in the Center for Arts galleries. The Traveling Exhibit will follow the Society's annual competition and exhibit held in Boise. The award-winning watercolors, along with a cross-section of selected work of varying styles and subjects, are displayed in various locations throughout the state. This is the second year that the Center for Arts and History has been the site of the Traveling Exhibit.

Also, the northern region of the Idaho Watercolor Society will display selected watercolors by society members from the area. The northern region, which encompasses the area from

Thanksgiving outdoor activities

Thanksgiving break is the only the nose to the grindstone students have to make a few casts or dig ol' Death and Destruction out of the closet for a crack at deer. I always felt sorry for these people.

Seems like they've missed half the excitement of attending a university where the surrounding countryside is rich with game and teaming with fish. Even Jack O'Conner, the dean of outdoor writers and world famous sportsman moved to Lewiston when his beloved Southwest was inundated with people.

But I guess someone has to be responsible, graduate and run the hamburger stands of America. So for those budding young capitalists, shysters and medicos, I offer four sure-fire bets for Thanksgiving fun with a rod and gun (or at least an alternative to watching football).

#1. Steelhead on the Clearwater
Actually, the Snake has been better as of late, but November is traditionally the month when the greatest numbers of the outsized B-run steelies for the smoker. If you don't do anything else outdoors in the duration of your college years, at least take a couple of days for a chance at hooking the world class steelies that fin past Moscow. Few rivers produce the average size of steelhead (12+ pounds) the Clearwater does. It's worth a few frozen fingers.

Outdoors with . . . Nick Brown

#2. Late Whitetail Buck hunts
The whitetail hunting around here is the same as the steelheading - world class - but a better kept secret. Units 8 and 8A stay open until Dec. 1 for either sex deer, making them the longest running deer hunts in the state. Some outstanding whitetails are taken during the rut, which will peak around Thanksgiving.

#3. Elk Muzzleloader hunts
Combine a burgeoning elk population, early snow, and a migration and you have a recipe for elk stew.

Center the hunt in a wintering area and you may get the wapiti hunt of your life. On a late control buck hunt last year, I counted over 150 elk the day before an elk muzzleloading season was scheduled to open. Go figure that one..

#4. Pheasant and Huns
It's been a dismal year for upland game. Heavy cover - the result of torrential spring and summer rains - has made it difficult to fly birds. But snow is the great equalizer.

It concentrates birds and makes them easier to spot. Don't be surprised if you jump a couple of large California quail covies in the process. The little birds fared better than the rest because of a later nesting season. Chukar numbers are so low the cost of gas hardly justifies the pursuit.

It would have been nice to hear a few solos from his very talented fiddle player, at the very least. Anything, to make the show a little longer and worth the clams I shelled out for the show.

I was also a victim of the two most common problems at any concert, which may have also clouded this perspective of this review.

The first is, unless you get up at 4 a.m. to wait in line for tickets, you get nose bleed seats. Fans in the upper level were thankful for the large television screens and props behind Jackson, because without them, it would have been impossible to tell just who was singing and what was going on.

The second problem are the jerks you have to sit next to who have the wrong seats but refuse to move. I had to spend part of the concert sitting by myself until one of my friends joined me. There is nothing worse than being separated from all your friends at a concert because some fat cowboy can't remove their redneck butts from your seat.

While I like Jackson's songs and his nice, uh, guitar (pant, pant), I would recommend inviting some friends over to listen to his CD's.

It's cheaper, it'll last longer and you won't have to fight for a seat.

Men's, women's basketball starts

The men's and women's 1993-94 basketball season tips off this week at home.

Vandal head coach Joe Cravens along with Orlando Lightfoot, the 1993 Big Sky Player of the Year, will lead the men's team into the first game of the season. The men jump into the season with an exhibition game against a German Club Team Wednesday at 7:05 p.m. in Memorial Gym. The game is the first of 13 home games this season.

The women open the season taking on Simon Frazier at 4 p.m. Friday in Memorial Gym. This will be the first of 18 home games scheduled this season.

The two teams are then silent until the weekend after Thanksgiving.

Volleyball plays final two at home

The Lady Vandals gear up for the Big Sky Conference championships as they enter the final week of regular season play.

The final two games of the regular season will be played in Memorial Gym Friday and Saturday. The Idaho State Bengals take on the Vandals Friday and will finish the season against the Boise State Broncos Saturday.

Both games begin at 7:30 p.m.

Season closes against Boise State

Vandal football comes to a close with the biggest game of the season.

The Boise State Broncos travel to Moscow to take on the Vandals in Idaho's final game of the regular season Saturday.

"It's a war, throw out the referees and it's a bunch of street fights. Whoever wins the most wins the game," Vandal quarterback Doug Nussmeier said.

Game time is 1:05 p.m. in the Kibbie Dome.

They thought they could. They thought they could. They thought they could.

Lehigh turned out to be the Engineers who couldn't overcome the Vandal attack. The University of Idaho Vandals cruised to a 77-14 homecoming victory over the Lehigh Engineers Saturday.

"Our pride is a lot more banged up than we are physically right now," Lehigh head coach Hank Small said. "Idaho just overwhelmed us on both sides of the ball. When someone else owns the line of scrimmage it's very tough."

"There's always going to be a bad taste in your mouth," Lehigh receiver Dave Cecchini said.

In addition to the victory, the Vandals had another record-setting day. Doug Nussmeier currently has 89 career touchdown passes, which broke the standing Big Sky Conference record set in 1992 by Jamie Martin of Weber State. The Vandals also broke a Kibbie Dome single game scoring record they set earlier this season. During the Vandals' first home game against southwest Texas Idaho scored 66 points.

Idaho held a substantial 28-0 lead when the buzzer rang to end the first quarter.

Mike Hollis lined up to kick off after the Vandals' first touchdown. The onside kick was recovered by Vandal tight end Andy Gilroy at the 32-yard line. Doug Nussmeier connected minutes later with Gilroy for a second Idaho touchdown.

"That took a lot of wind out of their sail, going down 14-zip," Vandal head coach John L. Smith said.

"I was lucky I guess, I finally got a good hop," Gilroy said.

Brian Klingerman rushed for a 29-yard touchdown on the first Engineer possession of the second half.

When the half-time buzzer sounded Idaho retired to the locker room with a comfortable 56-7 lead.

Lehigh seemed to be rejuvenated after the half-time break. On the Vandals' second play Jason Mack intercepted Nussmeier and returned the ball to the three-yard

Perfect record chopped by Lumberjacks

Dan Eckles
Staff Writer

Idaho's dreams of an undefeated Big Sky Conference volleyball record were dashed Saturday in Flagstaff, Ariz. when the Northern Arizona Lumberjacks handed the Vandals a five game 13-15, 15-3, 15-11, 5-15, 11-15 loss.

The loss was only the second for the Vandals (18-6, 11-1 Big Sky) since Sept. 11.

The two clubs traded points throughout game one before NAU pulled out the narrow two-point win.

"I thought both teams played well in the first game. NAU just played unbelievable defense. Then we won the next two games, but NAU made a run at the end of the third game to get some momentum and they killed us in game four," Idaho coach Tom Hilbert said.

"In the rally game I thought we were playing well and then we switched (sides) and got stuck in a rotation and if you do that in a rally game you lose," he said.

By just looking at the stat sheet one would have guessed the Vandals were victorious as they outthrew the Lumberjacks .188 to .174 and outblocked the Jacks as well 32 to 20.

In the pivotal fourth game NAU (12-12, 7-5 Big Sky) clobbered Idaho by smashing the ball at a .480 clip while the Vandals could retaliate with only a .161 average.

"NAU played extremely well. I think we need to prepare better mentally when we play them, because with Montana's injuries

I think they are probably the second best team in the Big Sky," Hilbert said.

"We need to refocus, step it up, and realize we have to work hard to win the Big Sky championship."

Idaho crushed the Lumberjacks in consecutive games in Moscow on Oct. 3, but the Northern Arizona squad the Vandals saw last weekend was not the same club that left Memorial Gym in shambles last month.

"I was impressed with their lack of errors. They just did not give any errors like the first time we played them," Hilbert said.

"I don't think this was a fluke at all. I'm glad they played us tough" Hilbert said.

"When you are in the situation we were in (undefeated in league play) you kind of think those things are going to happen for you. I hope we get something positive out of this," Hilbert said.

Jessica Puckett drilled 19 kills and Mindy Rice added 14, while Dee Porter dished out 49 assists.

The weekend set was not purely negative as the Vandals did pick up their 18th win Thursday night against Weber State (9-18, 6-6 Big Sky), knocking off the Wildcats 18-16, 15-13, and 15-13.

Nancy Wicks had a big night against Weber State, hammering 13 kills in .360 hitting performance.

Jessica Puckett contributed 16 kills on the night.

Homecoming: a time for Idaho spirit and reminiscence

Andrew Longeteig
Staff Writer

A medium-sized agricultural university nestled between the rolling, fertile hills of the Palouse is not merely just an astonishing sight. Additionally, Moscow provides a home away from home to Idaho alumni who revisited old traditions and discovered new ones as well.

For the 12,000 or so loyal fans who watched the Vandals steamroll Lehigh, there existed a different attitude that replenished the Vandal spirit of the old and young at the Kibbie Dome. Smiling faces, animated cheering and overall joviality appeared to be more abundant than the usual Saturday afternoon.

To United States Senator Dirk

Kempthorne, a 1975 UI alumni homecoming "means seeing a lot of great friends and great new friends. The students I run into are very impressive — the team is awesome." Kempthorne lived at the Wallace Complex and also served as ASUI President.

1948 graduate Pat King reminisced, "I remember when we sat out in the snow and got all wet. We came home from one game (homecoming) and our daughter wandered off (from the babysitter) and we had a terrible time finding her." King himself was a member of the Argonaut staff, serving as the business manager. After college, he worked as the publisher of the press for the Coeur d'Alene newspaper.

Former UI attendee Joan Miller

remarked, "I think it's a very exciting time for the graduates to come back to see the campus and the changes. It is an emotional, fun time for the graduates." Miller said, "It's nice to have a winning team."

Beta Theta Pi member and 1955 alumni Flip Kleffner said, "The homecoming is a truly meaningful experience to come back to your alma mater. They're (UI) getting increased quality each year. The opportunity to see old friends and to pull relationships back into focus. The people relate a lot to their living groups as they come back." After graduating, Kleffner played professional baseball on a Phillies affiliate team. He then began a family-run sporting goods store in Boise. Currently, he is the director of alumni relations for UI.

UI sophomore cheerleader Heather Ackerman stated, "I think that everybody was really involved. The snow made it a little less of an Autumn Fest, though."

Even Joe Vandal had rare, yet profound words to say, "Nobody can beat the Vandals — nobody."

Unfortunately, the Lehigh Engineers had to play an Idaho Vandal football team coming off a tough loss, and had to face the team's homecoming confidence. Their loss was inevitable.

Devoted Lehigh alum Bill Bechtold, a 1958 alumni made his first ever visit to the Gem State. The New York City resident said, "Beautiful campus, a wonderful stadium and a really good football team." According to Bechtold, this marks the first time Lehigh has ever played indoors in its 100-plus years of grid-iron history.

Greg Saunders also made his first trip to Idaho. He graduated last year and came mostly because of friends at Washington State. "It's a very pretty school. It's good to come out here and get ourselves known. The dome's (Kibbie) good." Lehigh made only its third trip to the western United States.

Yes, the 77-14 score was a very integral piece of the homecoming happy pie. Nevertheless, it was the rekindling of relationships, school pride and the yearning and satisfaction of returning to one's home that paralleled the significance of the football contest.

Basketball season tips-off

Idaho women's basketball ready for 1992-93 season, take on Simon Fraser Friday

Katé Lyons-Holestine
Sports Editor

Laurie Turner is looking toward her two returning starters for on-the-court experience and leadership and toward her younger players for overwhelming talent this season.

"We're kind of young, but we're going to get better and surprise some people," Vandal women's basketball head coach Turner said.

Kortnie Edwards, 1993 First Team All-Big Sky Conference, and Brenda Kuehlthau who earned All-Big Sky Conference Honorable Mention are missing from last seasons successful Vandal roster. Replacing their contribution is the main key to success this season.

Luckily, Turner has a wealth of talent and a handful of experience to work with. This year's squad has more balance and depth than the Lady Vandal's basketball team has seen in the recent past, Turner said.

"We have more depth than we've ever had before," Turner said. "We have more athletes with more skills."

Overall, the Lady Vandals are a very young team this season. Three seniors, one junior, three sophomores and six freshman make up the 1993-94 roster.

The Lady Vandals competed in the first scrimmage of the season Sunday.

"The Vandals won," Turner jokingly said.

An inner-squad scrimmage gave Turner and the rest of the coaching staff time and opportunity to see the players in action. It also gave them a chance to make preliminary determinations about what positions players would perform best in.

The two squads were equally matched on the court. The final game score was 61-60 with the black squad victorious.

Jennifer Clary, on the black squad, led all scorers in the scrimmage with 35 points hitting 16 of 34 attempted shots.

Point guard is the most questionable position on the Lady Vandal roster this fall.

Women's basketball head coach Laurie Turner discusses the team's inner-squad scrimmage Sunday. The Vandals won 61-60. Turner is looking to returning starter Jennifer Clary to lead the Vandals scoring this season. Clary scored 35 points in the scrimmage. Amy Deterding scored 18 points and Karen Poncina, another returning starter from last season, scored 16 points.

in the position," Turner said. "Ari is probably the front runner right now. She's very quick, very explosive."

Ariana Skorpik is a 5-foot-5 freshman from Kennewick, Wash. Also in contention for the position is Jill Ortner, a 5-5 freshman from Kettle Falls, Wash., and Kara Jenkins, a 5-8 freshman from Puyallup, Wash.

"They are smaller in stature, but they're quick," Turner said. "They're going to be young and they're going to be vulnerable. But, they're practicing well this far into the season."

Clary and Poncina return to the Vandal court with experience.

Poncina was Idaho's leading rebounder last season with a 7.1 average.

Clary was the Lady Vandals' leading scorer last season, she averaged 16.4 points per game last season. Clary also holds the University of Idaho record for 3-pointers in a season and in a career.

"She's going to be our perimeter player that we'll rely on to score for us," Turner said. "We'll be looking to those two individuals to be team leaders."

The Lady Vandals open the 1993-94 season against Simon Fraser Nov. 19. Game time is 4 p.m. in Memorial Gym.

"They don't have the rule limitations we do and have been playing since October," Turner said.

Simon Fraser sports a 4-1 record this far into the season. They are led by Emily Wetzel, 6-5, who averages 13 points and five rebounds a game and Nikola Hanson, a 5-9 forward, who averages 12 points and five rebounds a game.

"Who knows?" Turner said. "We have a lot of young kids. This will be an excellent test for us but some conference foes will underestimate us. This is a competitive bunch of athletes."

line. After three carries Raphael Stillings managed to break the goal line and score for Lehigh.

"From an offensive point of view we have confidence we can move the ball on anyone," Small said.

Idaho's defense kept the Lehigh offense scrambling all afternoon. The Vandals managed to sack Lehigh quarterback Scott Semtimphelter five times. Jake Greenslitt managed to reach Semtimphelter twice.

"Their (Idaho's) ends did a really good job," Small said.

"The whole idea of me going out on the field is to make something happen," freshman defensive end Mitchell said.

The Vandal offense put together a total of 694 yards.

"When you have a quality quarterback and running backs like that you can't take anything away," Small said.

Nussmeier led the Vandal offense combining with each of his five receivers for one touchdown each and totaling 344 yards. Alan Allen and Kyle Gary led the Vandal receiving corps with 127 and 123 yards respectively.

"I felt like we were focused, we kept hammering and hammering," Nussmeier said.

The Vandal ground crew amassed 350 yards and was responsible for six touchdowns. Freshman Joel Thomas led the Vandals' rushing with 165 yards on 21 carries. Sherriden May totaled 123 yards — 112 by half-time.

Semtimphelter connected with Cecchini for 128 yards, but no touchdown. Klingerman led the Lehigh receivers with 40 yards, including the 29-yard touchdown reception.

Idaho improves to 8-2 overall and Lehigh falls to 6-4 in season standings. The Vandal's final game of the season is Saturday. They take on the Boise State Broncos in the Kibbie Dome at 1:05 p.m.
