Graduate student winners from the research exhibition were also honored at the GSA banquet Friday night. These exhibitions had been set up in the Student Union Building Vandal Lounge Friday. They were judged by UI faculty members and community residents who are considered to be experts in the fields of competition.

Tom Hennigan, chairperson of the research competition organization committee, said he was pleased with the turnout in this year's exhibition.

"I feel this is a true representation of the pride we graduate students put into our work," said Hennigan.

In the areas of Art, Music, Humanities, Education and Social Sciences, David B. Schlater won first place with his exhibit entitled "Investigation of the Personal Meanings of Photographs." Janet Dose was awarded second place for her work on "Perceived Survival Needs of Beginning Home Economics Teachers From Four Educational Perspectives." Third place went to Kelly Williams Lewis for "Dreamscape II: Shopping with Scarlet." Petra Theresia Maurer won fourth place for "Effects of Attention and Target of Control on Pain Tolerance and Distress."

In the fields of Engineering, Physical Science and Computer Science, first place was given to Enhong Zhou for "Low Density Titanium Magnesium Alloys by Mechanical Alloying." K. Ravichandran won second for "Reaction Dynamics of Vibrationally Excited Greenhouse Gases Using Stimulated Raman Excitation." Third place went to Abdul Frefer for "Analytical Characterization of the Corrosion Behavior of an Advanced Aluminum Alloy Exposed to Aggressive Environment." Naren Karattup won fourth place for "Efficient Implementation of Global Communication Routines."

In the areas of Natural and Agricultural Science — Soils and Water, Timberley M. Roane was awarded first place for "A Study of Microbial Communities in Lead-Contaminated Soils." Second place went to Christi Johnson for "Petiole NO<sub>3</sub>-N Sufficiency Levels in Newly Developed Potato Cultivators." J.J. Hutchings won third place for "Field Investigation of Landfill Disposal of Cull Onions." Fourth place was given to Walter M. Yuan for "Biological Control of Fungal Root Rot by Using Streptomyces WYEC 108."

In the fields of Natural and Agricultural Sciences — Plants and Animals, first place was awarded to Timothy H. Tear for "The Development of a Natural Grazing System in Reintroduced Arabian Oryx in Oman." Vinayak Kapatral won second place for "Genetic and Biochemical Analysis of Yersinia enterocolitica Thermoregulated motility gene expression." Third place went to Craig H. Doan for "Effect of Incubation Temperature on Resistance of Listeria Monocytogenes to Sodium Chloride." M. Naderi won fourth place with "Phenotypic Characterization of a Tobacco Meristemic Mutant."

There were about 50 entries in this year's exhibition. Over 200 people stopped in to see the exhibitions set up in the SUB.

Excellence

17 teaching assistants honored for efforts

Tim Helmke
News Editor

The best reward for any project is recognition from peers and supervisors.

The UI Graduate Student Association honored their top teaching assistants Friday night. At a banquet held at the University Inn-Best Western, graduate students were recognized for their excellence and outstanding performances.

There were 17 graduate student teaching assistants honored who have exhibited a commitment to teaching excellence at the UI. They represent the top seven percent of all teaching assistants. They were nominated by their respective college and then evaluated against a rigorous set of criteria. This criteria included an assessment of the amount and variety of teaching experience, academic creativity, enthusiasm, clarity of communication, creativity, innovation and academic quality and fairness.

A certificate and a $100 award were presented to the following people for their achievements in their field of teaching assistance: Mark Rogers, Chemistry; Nathan Chaffin, Chemistry; Karen Hallgren, English; Carlton Floyd, English; Bob Watson, Biology; Connor Flynn, Physics; Nick Conant, Mechanical Engineering; Fred Kurpiel, Forest Products; Yee Cheng Tan, Economics; Ted Munsch, Teacher Education; Anne Lichtenwainer, Animal and Veterinary Science; Glynn Wolar, History; Petra Maurer, Psychology; Elena Watson, Art; Marilyn Stein, Mathematics and Statistics; Kate Wharton, Mathematics and Statistics; and Bob Hickey, Geography.

Dimmer identified in Xenon shooting

The Moscow Police Department has identified a shooting suspect involved in the incident in front of Xenon on March 27.

An arrest warrant has been issued for Pedro Ronell Dimmer, also known as Pedro Woods, Leon Jonson and "Sneak," charging him with assault, with intent to commit a serious felony and aggravated battery. Dimmer, 17, is a black/Hispanic male, 5-foot-10, roughly 140 pounds with black curly hair and brown eyes. He is from Yakima, Wash.

"By interviewing witnesses at the scene we were able to develop a suspect," Moscow Police Investigator David Lehmitz said.

Joseph Oliver, a Washington State University student, was shot in the back of the thigh in front of the nightclub.

"Mr. Oliver was just an innocent bystander," Lehmitz said.

Several other people were shot at and two vehicles were hit by gunfire. Investigators determined the shooting followed a dispute between two groups that began inside the nightclub. They have reason to believe the crime was gang-related. "The dispute inside the bar led us to believe it was gang related," Lehmitz said.

Dimmer has been charged as an adult, according to a Moscow Police Department News Release Monday. "Because of the type of crime committed he is automatically waved into an adult court," Lehmitz said.

He remains at large and is not believed to be in the Moscow area. Investigators believe Dimmer may be in the Spokane or Seattle areas.

"We have been in contact with the Yakima Police Department and they have yet to contact him. We know he has friends in the Spokane and Seattle areas," Lehmitz said.

If you know the whereabouts of this person or have any other information about him, contact the Moscow Police Department at (208)882-5551 or your local law enforcement agency immediately. Do not approach Dimmer, he is considered to be armed and dangerous.

News Briefs

Biology presentation to be on genetics

"Molecular Genetics of Speciation" will be the topic of the UI Department of Biological Sciences Seminar today from 12:30 to 1:20 p.m. in Life Sciences Room 277. The speaker will be Dr. Francisco Ayala of the Department of Ecology and Evolution at the University of California at Irvine. He is currently president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Career Services gives more workshops

The UI Career Services Center is offering the following workshops this week:

Resumes and Cover Letters Wednesday at 3:30 p.m., Transition from College to the Workplace Thursday at 4 p.m. and Interview Preparation Friday at 11:30 a.m.

All workshops are free but pre-registration is recommended. For more information visit the Career Services Center in Brink Hall or call the center at 885-6121.

Speaker presents ideas on advertising

UI students, faculty and the community will have the opportunity to learn about the role played by advertising in today's society when Debora Rogers Scott, vice president and account supervisor at McCann-Erickson of Seattle, visits campus Thursday and Friday.

On Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m., Rogers Scott will present "Global Advertising in the 90s" in Forestry 10. The presentation is open to the public and will be presented free of charge.

In addition, Rogers Scott will visit classrooms to discuss advertising as it applies to particular disciplines and will conduct informal sessions with students and faculty to answer questions about the advertising industry.

Rogers Scott's visit also is sponsored by UI's Graue Scholars, a select group of business honor students, and UI's chapter of Mu Kappa Tau, a national marketing honor society.

Dedication of remodeled library to be Thursday

The UI Library Dedication will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Library Instruction Room on the second floor. This will be followed by a ribbon cutting ceremony in the first floor lobby.

Cooperative Education held today in Ed 106

Cooperative Education Orientation will be held today from 12:30 to 1:15 p.m. in Education 106. Students can discover how they can find paid work opportunities which provide practical experience related to their major.

For more information on this session or the program contact Cooperative Education in Education 204 or call 885-5822.

Women's Center offers stress relief session

The UI Women's Center is sponsoring "De-Stress Naturally" tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. at the center. The end of semester pressures often bring on an extraordinary amount of stress in peoples lives. Linda Kingsbury, local herbalist, will share practical ways to relieve tension, increase energy and cope with all the demands. People interested in a facial steam should bring a towel. The program is free and open to the public.

Women's Center brings in composting speaker

The UI Women's Center will hold "Getting Into That Springtime Gardening Spirit: The Joys of Composting" today at 12:30 p.m. at the center.

Theresa Beaver, composting coordinator at Washington State University, will talk about practical backyard composting and the wonders of worm composting for the small and large vegetable and flower gardener. The program is free and open to the public.

Support the Girl Scouts, buy some cookies now

Girl Scout Cookies are on sale now. When a person buys a box of Girl Scout Cookies they help provide training for volunteers, prevention programs for girls and special assistance for those in need. In Girl Scouting, no girl is left out. For more information call the Girl Scouts Inland Empire Council at 1-800-827-9478.

Manager applications due April 15 at 5 p.m.

Applications for Resident Manager positions for University Housing apartment complexes are now available. Applications can be picked up at the University Residence Office on the second floor of Wallace Complex. Applications are due April 15. Call Nancy Sue Chase at 885-6571 for more information.

Lecture series starts tonight in Forestry 10

Dr. Maurice G. Hornocker will present the initial lecture in an endowed series entitled "Lectures in Wildlife Resources" tonight at 7 p.m. in Forestry Room 10. Hornocker will address the conservation and management of the world's native cats.

Hornocker has research experience with these species on all continents and is currently working on the Siberian tiger and the mountain lion. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Research colloquium to host Stanford speaker

The UI Electrical Engineering Research Colloquium presents "Hunting for Lost Spacecraft Using the Stanford 150-foot Antenna" Thursday at 3:30 p.m. in Janssen Engineering Building Room 26. Dr. Ivan Foot, of the Stanford University Center for Radar Astronomy, will make the presentation. It is free and open to the public.

Roundtable discussion tomorrow in SUB

A University Roundtable Presentation will be held Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. in the SUB Gold and Silver Room. "Re-designing Technology to Fit People" is the topic of this presentation. It is open to the public.

Copy centers offer special hours in April

The UI Media Center Annex Copy Center will be open the weekends of April 23 and 30 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The SUB Copy Center will have regular weekend hours from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

1994 Particle Board Symposium starts up

The UI Department of Forest Products presents the 1994 Particle Board Symposium today through Thursday at the University Inn-Best Western. For more information on this event, call 885-6600.

Thomas to teach rape awareness

Abby Bandurraga
Staff Writer

Rape is a violence that touches everyone.

With statistics as high as one woman in three being victims and an indeterminate amount of male victims, everyone knows someone who has been raped. To deny the latter is to perpetuate the astonishing ignorance that surrounds issues and actions of sexual violence.

Betsy Thomas, director of the UI Women's Center, would like to end this ignorance. With the help of federal funding and the students of her "Acquaintance Sexual Assault and Stranger Rape" course, she has reached well over 1,471 affiliates of UI this year.

Born from a need of extensive education about rape for both sexes, ASASR has existed in one form or another since 1985. These past nine years have seen it grow from a small group of volunteers, who traversed to living groups on campus to present facts on rape, into a recognized course at this university where students can earn up to three credits for learning and disseminating the facts surrounding female and male sexual assault.

Obscurely listed in the UI Time Schedule, ASASR can be found under, Health and Safety 311, section 01. Students registering for the course can take it for two or three credits, pending the amount of presentations they are willing to give.

Students enrolled in the class are made aware of the difficulty of studying such a subject. Thomas stated that the course is "really a class to look at the topic from a scholarly point of view." However, to balance the possible resurfacing of difficult memories, those who have experienced or perpetrated some form of assault are urged to visit the counseling center on the first day of class and remain in counseling throughout the semester.

"Sometimes, women realize mid-way through the semester that they have been victims without even knowing it, or men realize that they may have raped," Thomas said. For this reason students keep a weekly process journal in which they keep a record of their intellectual and emotional responses to the course readings and topics.

After students have been educated they begin giving presentations. Under the guidance of Thomas, students disperse information in the form of verbal presentations, pamphlets and hand outs.

The presentations are given at various living groups and classes on campus. The topics range from assault prevention to assault avoidance. "We figure we contact 20-25 percent of the student body directly every year," says Thomas. These outreaches serve to clear up commonly held myths about rape. According to a UI Women's Center handout, some of these myths are:

- All rapists rape for sex.
- When a woman says "no," she might mean "yes."
- Acquaintance sexual assault only happens to a few women.
- Most sexual assaults involve strangers attacking women.
- Sexual assaults happen on dark streets and walkways.

Students who would like to be a part of clearing up the above myths or would like to learn more about sexual assault should register for ASASR.

For more information and a course syllabus, contact Betsy Thomas at the Women's Center at 885-6616.

Argonaut, Quast receive honors

The Argonaut advertising staff is celebrating the seven awards received at the College Newspaper Business and Advertising Managers, Inc. convention in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Advertising Manager Travis Quast walked away with the CNBAM Advertising Manager of the Year award.

Fifty-two schools represented 85 CNBAM members. Universities from Washington to Florida and Main to Hawaii traveled to the convention.

Out of the other nine other entries in this year's competition, the Argonaut won the following awards:

- First place— Best Display Ad Campaign— Larger than 1/4 page— KUOI-FM ad campaign
- First place— Best Special Section— 1994 Jazz Festival Section
- Second place— ROP Group Promotion— Student Directory in first issue of fall 1993 semester
- Second place— Best Display Ad with Color— Student Union ad campaign
- Third place— Best Newspaper Promotions Campaign— Larger than 1/4 page— Argonaut recruiting ad campaign
- Third place— Best Classified Group Promotion— Valentine's Day wishes

The Argonaut won the most awards of any college or university represented at the 22nd Annual CNBAM convention. These awards were judged by 13 advertising professionals from Minneapolis area newspapers and representatives of national advertising agencies.

Student Media Manager David Gebhardt said, "Schools like Penn State and Purdue were not called as often as the University of Idaho Argonaut."

Quast led a roundtable discussion at the convention on staff recruiting. Gebhardt led a similar roundtable discussion on selling to advertising agencies.

Gebhardt also presented a hour-and-a-half session entitled "Management Skills Workshop." This presentation was before CNBAM members.

The Argonaut competed in category A, which includes those schools who publish 40,000 copies or less each week, in all categories except the Advertising Manager of the Year award. This award was chosen from all the newspapers and was not dependent on the circulation.

"It is an honor to be recognized by my peers as well as professionals at a national convention," Quast said.

Convention attendees were scheduled to tour the Minneapolis-Star but were bumped by President Bill Clinton. Clinton was in town for a town hall meeting.

Lewis, Clark trail revisited this summer

The UI Summer Programs is offering a course titled "On the Trail of Lewis and Clark" during the UI Summer Session.

The course gives students a unique opportunity to earn history or forest resources credits in one week. This course is an exciting interdisciplinary field study of the natural history of the Lewis and Clark Expedition of 1804-06.

A major part of the course includes an intensive field experience which retraces the route across Idaho from Lolo Pass to the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater rivers and observes discoveries made by expedition.

The deadline for the summer session course is July 8 and is limited to 25 participants.

The class will be held July 31 through August 7. A special trip fee of $199 includes transportation, food, river guide and special equipment needed for the trip.

For more information about "On the Trail of Lewis and Clark," call Summer Programs at 885-6237.

ASUI seeks safety input

The UI Safety Task Force has returned with their survey on what people at the UI believe need to be fixed in the area of safety. This survey is not exclusive to students but can be completed by staff and faculty as well.

ASUI Senator Laura West heads up the task force and has worked hard to see her work through. ASUI Senator Scott Wimer has been assisting West with her efforts. Wimer has established several drop-off sites for these surveys.

These survey drop boxes are located today and tomorrow at the following sites: the library, the lobby of Theopolis Tower, the North entrance of the Administration Building and the ASUI Office in the Student Union Building.

These drop boxes have been established so more surveys will be received.

Wimer feels this is vital so the work completed from the results will be the most beneficial to those people who the safety issue most closely involves.

West heads the task force which meets each Thursday afternoon in the SUB. These meetings are held so the work can be focused to those areas of campus which are in the most need of work, said West.

CAMPUS SAFETY TASK FORCE
• SURVEY QUESTIONS •

1. Are you Male ____ or Female ____ ?
2. Do you reside in the residence halls ____, Greek residence ____ or off-campus ____ ?

The bottom half shines through

Rarely do people at the bottom receive more recognition than people at the top. And rarely do people at the top step back and let people at the bottom soak in all the praise.

But, at the Argonaut, we are turning things upside down. The people who are responsible for the bottom of the page — the advertising staff — received six awards for excellence in advertising over the weekend. And, to top it off, Argonaut Advertising Manager Travis Quast was named Advertising Manager of the Year at the College Newspaper Business and Advertising Managers, Inc. Convention in Minneapolis, Minn.

The Argonaut was the only Idaho college newspaper in attendance at CNBAM and swept the competition.

A small school reaped the rewards of hard work over schools like Florida State, Indiana State, Penn State and Texas Tech. The UI, its administration, staff and students should all be proud of the Argonaut advertising staff.

Innovation, imagination, cooperation, devotion and determination led to these awards.

At the opening of the semester the Argonaut met with Dr. Lynn Skinner and devised a plan for a special section to promote the UI Jazz Festival. This special section took a first place award and was truly a team effort at the Argonaut. Staff writers and advertising staff members combined to create the finest special section ever produced by the Argonaut.

Brian Johnson, who has been with ASUI Student Media for four years, was also an integral part of the showing. His series design ad depicting the growth of KUOI — you all remember it, with the growing antennae — also brought home a first place trophy.

At the start of his second semester as Advertising Manager, Travis rethought and redesigned his selling strategies. His staff is excited to work here and isn't set back when someone says, "No." They just return a week later and ask again — and sometimes again. The advertising production staff is determined and focused on producing a quality product which will attract interested parties and keep advertisers happy.

These are not the only people to credit with the success of the Argonaut at the convention. Everyone on the Argonaut advertising staff contributes to the quality bottom page product. If something goes wrong, all share in the blame; if things go right, they all share in the glory.

The entire advertising staff deserves a round of applause for a job well done. With pride and quality, they represented a school most people couldn't locate on a map.

King gets too much money

Frankly, I don't think Rodney King deserves a dime.

Believe what you will about his violated civil rights, his martyr status and his climb from crook and trouble maker into a symbol of revolution and heroism.

After being beaten by four overfeisty Los Angeles Police Department members who were acquitted and then convicted for violating King's civil rights, King has come to symbolize the continuing struggle for the black man to achieve equality.

It seems to me there has to be a better role model.

King is now suing the city of L.A. for $9.2 million in punitive damages for the entire incident. He claims since the beatings took place, he has suffered nightmares, flashbacks and other horrible psychological consequences. The city, ready to wash its hands of the entire situation, offered King $1 million right off the bat.

This seems a tad insane. Consider this: Rodney King is no angel. Before the beating, King had a rap sheet as long as the Billy clubs the officers used to "subdue" him. He was a criminal and a drug addict, someone the LAPD knew on a first name basis. Since he was beaten and issued his much-quoted, "Can't we all just get along" statement, he has continued to have other brushes with the law, including several drunk driving arrests and evidence he is still abusing drugs.

Now, this man will be incredibly wealthy. Even if he gets only the mere million L.A. has offered him, he can live off the interest for the rest of his life. It is more likely he will get even more.

After this column, the American Civil Liberties Union will probably reject my application for membership. And I can already hear pens grinding away on paper from people claiming I'm condoning what the cops did to King.

I'm not. Like most Americans I was appalled at what I saw on that home movie. But I also know for a fact almost no news coverage showed the rest of the tape, where King, his mind spinning on PCP, managed to keep fighting.

Even so, I'm not condoning the beating. The cops shouldn't have sunk to such low levels. But Rodney King is not a good person and deserves nothing except maybe his hospital bills paid for.

Consider the case of Reginald Denny, the trucker who was caught in the riots and almost killed. Denny was a good person. A hard-working family man who had the pleasure of getting kicked severely and had a brick dropped on his head. Denny didn't have any criminal record, but, like King, fell into the hands of the wrong people at the wrong time. Denny was beaten every bit as hard as King was, but there are no pending lawsuits from him in the L.A. courts in hopes of earning a profit from his suffering.

I usually avoid Rush Limbaugh at all costs. But the other day during lunch, I hit upon his show. On it, a group of black leaders were severely criticizing King for his lawsuit. "We forget sometimes," one of them said, "that King is a hardened criminal." It seems to me that King's suit would not be a blow of

Use colossal funnels to recycle highway garbage

I've thrown trash out of my car window. Usually it's something I can justify as biodegradable like an apple core or a Hostess Twinkie. I used to throw out gum too, but I hit a little girl's cat once, so now I just swallow it. Most people toss their trash out of their windows, maybe thinking it all just disappears after countless tires have run back and forth over it like little pieces of amphibious matter that don't make it past the second white line.

As Genesee resident, Todd Trigsted, says, lack of conscious thought is the problem with our trashy roads. To combat mindless littering, Trigsted erected a 4-foot by 4-foot "bull's eye" sign with a box under it labeled "recycled" on one side of a road near Genesee.

The idea is to "convert actions that are unconscious to actions that are conscious" by forcing people to think about what they throw out the window.

The sign invites drivers to toss their aluminum cans out as they drive by — who can resist a target? The cans that hit the eye neatly fall into the box. The sign has been up about 12 days now, and has collected 43 cans so far, with heavier usage coming in on Friday and Saturday nights.

Trigsted plans to dump the "trash" in a conspicuous place in Genesee to show everybody all the garbage hiding out in the grass along roads. He doesn't encourage further littering, but is attempting to deal with a serious lack of awareness — converting unconscious actions to conscious.

But I'm more pessimistic about the nature of humanity. I think people are going to continue to toss trash and we need to think bigger when combating this problem. That's why we need more bull's eyes.

Gilbert promises open mind

My name is Bill Gilbert and I am writing to formally announce my candidacy for the ASUI Senate. I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself and my ideas.

I am a junior majoring in Finance. Last spring I served as an ASUI Senator. I sat on the finance committee and chaired the Legislative Action Committee. Prior to my time on the senate, I served as the ASUI Elections Board chair.

Last fall I worked with the ASUI Programs Board as the Speakers and Performing Arts Coordinator. I took this semester to work as a congressional intern for academic credit. I will be returning to UI shortly.

While I have been away, friends and colleagues have asked if I plan to become involved again when I return. Happily, I can say I would like to.

My time as an intern has not quelled my desire to be involved, rather it has made me more aware of what Idaho means to me, and what I can contribute to its future.

I wish I could be on campus to personally share my ideas with you. The positions I have held have acquainted me with many facets of student government. I've seen what works, what doesn't work and I know what can work.

The Senate's primary goal must be service through action. I do not intend to make campaign promises of better parking, lighting and safety. There are many good people already working on these issues. Besides, they are an obvious part of a much larger role the Senate must fill.

I want to be certain that student money is being used for programs that students have asked for. The ASUI has conducted surveys that cost thousands of dollars to find out what students want, but were the results used?

Funding programs and services that we use and enjoy should be our top priority. Other things need to be re-evaluated. I believe that as we make the efforts of the ASUI more relevant to what students want, more students will become involved.

Additionally, we must have a prominent voice in the state legislature and the university administration. It was a strong campus voice, combined with strong leadership, that convinced the state legislature to restore work study funding to previous levels.

But we cannot let up. It must be understood that the ASUI is a voice for a strong and active student body. I will work to strengthen our position in the eyes of those who make decisions that affect us.

My record of service as a student is strong. I would like to put it to work for you as a Senator. I offer you my energy, enthusiasm and experience.

All I promise is that I will keep an open mind, a determined heart and a fresh perspective. I ask for your support both during the election and, if I am elected, after.

Remember to vote for Bill Gilbert for the ASUI Senate next Wednesday.

—Bill Gilbert

Politics, sports don't mix

This letter is being written in response to Andrew Longeteig's article April 5, "Arkansas claims first national title."

I'm no expert on the media or writing articles, but I was under the impression that the Argonaut staff writers would attempt to be a little impartial and just report the facts.

I guess I was wrong. And I quote, "Thurman launched a 3-pointer over the outstretched arms of Antonio Lang. The ball seemed to be in the air for about as long as President Clinton's term as it softly fell through the hoop with 50.7 seconds remaining in the game."

Andrew, Andrew, Andrew! Do I detect a hint of bitterness? If you're really feeling that distraught, I have the number to the Crisis Line. But there are some harsh realities you and the other closet Duke fans are going to have to come to grips with. First of all for you, Andrew. Politics and sports go together about as much as Marty Clark and Halle Berry. History shows that.

Here's another one of yours, Andrew. "After an Arkansas free throw, Duke couldn't get organized on offense and ultimately turned the ball over, and ultimately GAVE Arkansas its first ever NCAA tournament title."

Were we watching the same game, Andrew? Excuse me, the championship wasn't Duke's to give. After North Carolina lost, the championship was up for grabs for the best team. Consequently, the best team won it. They outplayed Duke all but six minutes of the game.

Why don't we give credit where credit is due. Last year Webber called a fatal time out when there were none left, but was that the only reason North Carolina won the championship?

I think not. And last, but not least, Andrew, before you go and call Grant Hill the most complete basketball player, we might want to take a vote on this one. You know and I know (along with everybody else) that if Big Dog had opted to go in the NBA draft, he would've been the first pick, before Grant Hill. Glenn Robinson and Hill do have one thing in common this year. When it came down to the clutch, neither of them got it done.

In conclusion, Andrew, the fact is statistics do not lie. Clinton is the president whether you like it or not. Nolan Richardson outcoached Coach K, whether you like it or not. Arkansas BEAT Duke for the NCAA championship whether you like it or not. If you're a Duke fan, don't hide your oh-so-groovy Christian Laettner headband in shame, just admit it.

And if I could offer you an consolation, Andrew, if you feel that in the state of North Carolina is the only place your heart will dwell, I suggest you rise up to Chapel Hill before you sink down toward Cameron.

Oh, and Andrew, statistics do not lie.

—Keith Porter

Senate needs to apologize

Last week an ASUI Senator wrote a letter to the editor asking that ASUI President John Marble apologize to the Senate for criticizing their performance. The real apology needs to come from those Senators who did not bother to represent students at the fee increase meeting.

As an out of state student who is facing an increase in tuition to over $7,000, I am shocked only two Senators thought fees were important enough to represent students on. Isn't that why we elected these people? What other issues have gone unaddressed by this Senate?

Maybe if the Senate spent more time thinking about student representation and a little less time jockeying for reelection, students would have a voice in the important decisions made on campus.

Singapore laws good for safety

Last week I read an article about an American teenager who pleaded guilty to spray-painting cars in Singapore last September. The 18-year-old Ohio kid, Michael Fay, was sentenced to six strokes of the cane (flogging), a fine and four months in prison. President Clinton wanted the Singapore authorities to reconsider the punishment; he considered it too extreme and severe. Finally, Fay's appeal was rejected.

Some argue Singapore has too many regulations that are embarrassing to the Singaporeans, such as banning the manufacture, sale and import of chewing gum in 1992; fines up to $6,330 for importing gum and $316 for chewing it. In addition to that, flogging penalty for both rapists and murderers, death penalty for both drug-traffickers and illegal firearms owners.

However, I think a high level of strictness is essential for a country that is smaller than Latah county and has three times as many people as Idaho. I frequently visited Singapore before furthering my college education in the United States. Despite its dense population, Singapore is one of the safest places in the world. Criminals are most often caught and the violators are often punished severely.

I recall my experiences in Atlanta, St. Louis, Miami, Los Angeles and New Orleans. These cities were extremely dirty with garbage everywhere. Occasionally, I heard gun shots. Not very long ago, a WSU student was shot in front of Xenon in Moscow.

As a foreign student, I believe the crime record in America can be improved by imposing more severe punishment of criminal offenders; severe punishment has already shown its effectiveness in my home country.

Although America is already a great nation in the world, why not make it greater by increasing the safety of all?

Doubt God, get into Bible study

In response to a Feb. 1 letter: I too, at one time, felt there were contradictions in the Bible. Getting into some good Bible studies has enabled me to see what is being said.

Without the help of the Lord and other learned students, it can be difficult to comprehend certain areas. Through different generations, people have tried to point out and prove errors in the Bible.

But in fervent study to prove their point, they come face to face with the awesome truth of God's word. A high percent of those turn to become preachers and proclaimers of the Bible. That it is truly God's inerrant word. A case in point is many years ago I was listening to Billy Graham tell about a man who was determined to prove at that time mankind didn't have a written language. This man thought he would at least be the one who would prove the Bible had an error, and wrote two volumes to prove his point. Archeologists eventually dug up the king's tomb and discovered his body wrapped with scrolls.

The writer of the letter to the editor, Zeke Abdul, is having trouble believing what God's word to all mankind, the Bible, says in regard to Jesus being the only begotten Son of God. Jesus being born into this world of a virgin truly separates his miraculous birth from the rest of us, enabling him to be untouched by the initial sin everyone since Adam come in with.

Christ fulfilled over 300 Old Testament prophecies when he was born. He became our sinbearer and Savior; yes, for the whosoever will ask for forgiveness and surrender and seek his divine will. And in doing so, he tells us we too can become Son of God. Yes, sons and daughters, God has many sons, but only one begotten of the Father.

God tells us that even by nature, we have no excuse and God gives us a brand new picture of the Godhead — the three in one every day. As we look up with our natural and spiritual eyes, we see the sun in the skies as a type of God.

And so we know the world without the energy of the sun would be lifeless and barren.

We've long known the moon has no light of its own, but gives us a reflected light from the sun. A true type of Jesus who said in John 5:19, the son can do nothing of himself but what he seeth the Father do.

The stars innumerable are a type of the Holy Spirit in the lives of believers around the world and in every generation, as they are lights in a sin-darkened world. The fact man has gone to the moon only underscores the fact that for mankind to gain entrance to heaven, he must go through the door Christ Jesus, as he is called in John 10:9, and so for mankind to enter space or the heavenlies, he must go through the door or the moon, which is a true type of Christ when viewed in this way.

I would strongly urge anyone with questions or doubts about what God's word is saying, to get into a good Bible study. They are out there and available to you.

As lazy people, we either throw our trash out our windows or let it build up on long road trips until it cascades out when we open our doors like a spillway on a hydroelectric dam after a thunderstorm. It no longer becomes our problem.

I envision a highway system that has huge funnel-like targets every 20 miles. These funnels would be labeled aluminum, plastic, glass, paper, used engine oil — anything that people toss. The funnels would lead to heavy duty plastic bags that could be installed and removed as easily as a vacuum cleaner bag.

Individual states could erect and maintain their own funnels or sell the rights to commercial contractors who could make economic gains recycling. It would boost the economy and add thousands of jobs. Workers, though, would have to gather the materials in the small hours of the night or wear body armor to avoid 55 mph projectiles.

If it could be done to encourage proper recycling, we could install smaller depressors similar to dunk tanks that flash a score for you at the end of the recycle stretch. High scores would be flashed according to license plate numbers read by a high-speed scanner.

Detroit could fashion multiple projectile throwers that would handle the needs of those who are challenged in the realm of coordination or are chain-drinkers who couldn't possibly toss six cans out as they drove by.

But the economic and entertainment benefits aren't the only thing to consider here. The environment would benefit too. Trash wouldn't line our highways like little malignant warts. Instead we'd live in a clean world where more resources are recycled.

Think about it.

civil rights but instead a travesty of justice.

Maybe I don't understand the situation. After all, I wasn't beaten to a bloody pulp by a few police officers. But then again, I'm not enough of a trouble-maker to find myself in King's situation in the first place. But it seems to me we are giving the money to the wrong person. Now, if King promised to donate his gains to some charitable organization, perhaps I'd feel differently.

Don't misunderstand. I know I'll now be branded by some as a closet racist who doesn't understand the struggle for equality blacks face. But I do think a couple things: I think blacks are still widely discriminated against. White people who claim that they have it harder than blacks are ignorant to many facts. Blacks still have a lower standard of living, don't get as many jobs and don't make as much money as their white counterparts.

But King's case isn't about furthering the cause of the black man. It's about him getting personal financial gain from an admittedly regrettable situation. Already he has been seen as a hero by many. If you ask me, he's a lousy hero. For $9.2 million, I know a lot of people who would be willing to be beaten like King was.

I don't buy the argument the entire LAPD and the city of Los Angeles should pay for the actions of a few stupid cops.

If I were a taxpayer in Los Angeles County, I'd be mighty upset about $9.2 million going to some convicted criminal.

Henderson brings home awards

What can 4-5 hours of daily piano practicing earn you?

Just ask Peter Henderson, a senior majoring in music with an emphasis in instrumental performance at the Lionel Hampton School of Music.

On March 21, Henderson earned first runner-up in the Music Teachers National Association-Wurlitzer Collegiate Artists Competition held in Washington D.C. Henderson represented the Northwest division and joined six other representatives in competition for the title.

Henderson started out at the state level in Boise in November, competing against four other people. His performance included one complete concerto and a half hour solo including a variety of stylistic periods.

Placing first, the senior then traveled to Casper, Wyo., in January to compete against three others for the Northwest division. Having earned the top berth in Wyoming, Henderson advanced to the nation's capital in March. Pianist Dianna Kline accompanied Henderson in his concerto and traveled with him all along the way.

Honoring Students

Convocation speaker enlightens audience

Melissa Welsh
Staff Writer

Family weekend started off on the right foot Friday, as President Elisabeth Zinser honored the academic excellence of students at the UI.

Alan Gemberling lead the talented UI Wind Ensemble in the processional march at annual the Honors Convocation in Memorial Gymnasium.

President Zinser's opening greeted the audience with soft gracefulness. The audience would have understood her speech more, however, if acoustics were taken into higher consideration.

Memorial Gym is great for volleyball and basketball games, but as a public speaking place, it just didn't work. Those sitting in the balcony heard nothing but the echoes of the speakers.

Those who were close enough and strained hard enough could hear President Zinser honor and congratulate those students on the Dean's List and the family members who came to support them.

President Zinser then introduced Peter Parisot, chairperson of the Advisory Board for Honor Students. Parisot introduced the convocation representative for each Scholastic Honor Society. He honored all those who are accomplishing their goals in school and life.

Parisot made sure that all members in each group were highly recognized for their talents. The acoustics were so bad, however, that their names could hardly be understood. The room seemed to accentuate the music and hinder the speeches.

The University of Idaho Wind Ensemble again honored the audience with their beautiful, melodious music by playing Ron Nelson's Rocky Point Holiday.

Thomas Bell introduced the keynote speaker, Paul Shepard, with great respect and admiration. He made the audience feel honored to be in the presence of such an esteemed citizen and professor.

Shepard is a professor of Human Ecology and Natural Philosophy at Pitzer College and Claremont Graduate School. His main field of study is how the wilderness and environment affect individual behavior. Shepard has written several books on the subjects of nature, animals, and human behavior.

Shepard was a powerful, dynamic speaker. He centered his speech around education, the environment and how both affect the world.

The role we play on Earth can ultimately change the direction our world is heading in, said Shepard. Shepard's ending remarks were, "Buy some roots (land) because it will be the best investment, next to your education."

Who has the right to kill

International perspectives on death and imprisonment

Melissa Welsh
Staff Writer

Amendment three of the United States Constitution says that "No one should be subject to torture or cruel and inhumane punishment." This statement set the mood Thursday in the Borah Theater as two women spoke out in the fight against capital punishment.

Hilary Naylor, Peace Net Coordinator for Amnesty International and Joan Fisher, an Attorney in Genesee, each shared stories, personal feelings and facts regarding capital punishment across the globe.

Both women stood firm in their belief that the death penalty should be abolished. Fourteen states in the U.S. and 90 countries worldwide currently do not practice the death penalty.

Naylor began her speech with a story of a man who was wrongly charged for a murder and sentenced to death by hanging in 1949. Timothy John Evens was charged for the murder of his wife and child. He was mentally challenged and had little hope against the judicial system.

In 1966, seventeen years after his death, he was pardoned of this horrible crime. Evens' landlord was found guilty of murder when they discovered three women buried in his basement. Naylor's story brought silence over the audience and put many on the edge of their seats as she continued to express her personal views on the death penalty.

Naylor stressed Amnesty International's fight to abolish the death penalty and to stop the abuse of all citizens. She believes capital punishment is the unconditional abuse of humans. She said, killing is not the way to teach society not to kill.

There have been over four thousand executions in the world and there are approximately 2,800 inmates on death row in the United States alone. Naylor believes the day will come when the death penalty is abolished.

Of the "three strikes, you're out" bill Naylor said, "That in itself will stop the death penalty because the end result is life in prison." The "three strikes, you're out" bill simply states, if you are convicted of three felonies you are sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole.

Joan Fisher was once an attorney in Texas, which has the third highest number of executions in this country. She served as a prosecuting attorney, which she stated was a difficult job. Her job was to seek legal punishment for criminals to serve.

Fisher began telling her views with a story about a young boy named Michael Goodman who was mentally handicapped and in her mind wrongly charged with murder and rape. Goodman and two other men were charged with abducting a young couple, murdering the man and raping his wife.

The two men were acquitted of the murder and given prison sentences while, Goodman was charged with the murder and sentenced to receive the death penalty.

The jury decided in less than 17 minutes that Goodman was guilty and that he alone must pay for the crime. Fisher was in shock with the decision and asked a fellow employee what they thought, he simply said "Someone had to die." Soon after that, Fisher moved to Genesee and took a new side of the law — defending the accused.

When asked what her prediction for the future would be, Fisher replied, "We will have an increase in executions, a regular blood bath. I hope to see a dramatic change in government. Education needs to precede, this country is becoming numb to the pain." Fisher also believes the alternative to the death penalty should be life in prison without parole.

Naylor and Fisher then opened the floor to discussion and questions. This is when the Borah theater really began to heat up.

One audience member asked, "What about the victims? They don't get a second chance." Naylor said, society needs to stop the attitude of "an eye for an eye." She started to talk about the rights of every citizen when members from the audience retaliated with, "Don't the accused lose all rights?" Naylor stood firm with belief that offenders should be educated instead of cruelly punished.

A student in the audience commented that there are over 2,800 homeless people and she stated that instead of feeding those 2,800 prisoners on death row, they could be feeding the homeless.

Fisher said in return that the meals are poor at the penitentiary and feeding and finances are a problem in prisons. She suggested to the girl to actually go and eat a meal at a prison. The student did not look satisfied with Fisher's answer. The majority of questions were centered around the concerns for the victims and their families.

Naylor focused her responses based on forgiveness of the offenders. When asked if she could forgive someone for murdering a loved one of hers, she responded by saying "I've tried many times to put myself in that predicament, and find it not so difficult to answer." Naylor went on to say she would forgive the person and try to understand. Many students appeared skeptical.

Naylor concluded that education is the only way of achieving her goal in Amnesty International to free the world from the death penalty.

Music Review

Rage of Spain hits U.S. plain

Jennifer McFarland
 Copy Editor

Monks. Chants. Yippee. That's exactly what I thought when I first saw the Chant disc on the Lifestyles desk.

In my usual smart-alec tone, I picked up the CD with Chant in big letters and "The Benedictine Monks of Santo Domingo de Silos" in smaller letters on the cover and said, "What's this, Monty Python? These guys can't be serious ..."

And then I took it home. There is a sticker on the disk which states "The international PHENOMENON from SPAIN!" I doubted my own enjoyment at this point — maybe because it was in a foreign language and maybe because it made me wish I had paid more attention in Spanish class.

I was pleasantly surprised. I'm not saying these guys rock, but the music is relaxing and thought-provoking.

In a press release, a Benedictine monk said "You have to understand ... we are monks, not rock stars." They might not be rock stars, but they have proven with Chant that you don't have to be a rock star to successfully entertain people of all ages.

Gregorian chants, although religiously based, provide a serene 60 minutes of sound. Chant is ideal as study music.

All of the titles are in Spanish — I wish I could remember what they mean — but one song carries into another beautifully. Their voices are clear and mellow. I had wondered what they were going to sound like — it's obvious none of these men have taken a prolonged vow of silence.

The interesting thing about Chant is it is a compilation of several previous albums. Some of the tracks were recorded as far back as 1973. The group has probably changed in the 21 years since its first recording, but you can't tell from the sound. Chant puts music back on the even keel it belongs.

According to Advertising Age, in Spain the album has sold over 270,000 copies and has topped the classical and overall pop charts in Spain. I can understand why.

This music appeals to more than just avid classical music audiences and Music 100 students. The sound is unlike anything I have ever heard. It's like MTV Unplugged (and acappella) times 10.

It's slow and solemn tempo combined with beautiful melodious voices, places the listener in another time. For me, the time was a distant place and a relaxed state.

Some people, however, the unimaginative and closed-minded, may fall asleep. In the end, it's all in the numbers. 270,000 Spaniards can't be wrong.

Tobacco myths endanger users

Smokeless tobacco use is being promoted as a safe alternative to cigarette smoking and is advertised as a macho, attractive and socially acceptable practice. Actually, smokeless tobacco can cause severe dental problems, deadly mouth cancers and dangerous heart conditions.

During the last two decades cigarette smoking has decreased; however, there has been a resurgence in the use of all forms of smokeless tobacco — plug, leaf and snuff. The greatest cause for concern is the sharply increased use of "dipping" snuff.

Who is using it? There are reports that smokeless tobacco is being used regularly by children as early as the fourth grade, but mainly college aged and adolescent males.

Why is it unsafe? Unburned tobacco contains the carcinogenic nitrosamines NNN and NNK, which have tumor-initiating properties in animals. Snuff contains up to 135 milligrams per kilogram of NNN and up to 14 milligrams per kilogram of NNK.

What is interesting is that food sold in the United States may not have more than 0.01 milligram per kilogram of NNN. That means smokeless tobacco can have more than 10,000 times the amount of cancer-causing nitrosamines allowed in food.

Along with polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons and a radioactive substance called polonium-210, smokeless tobacco can cause cancer.

Tobacco and alcohol are both highly suspected causes of oral cancer. The Third National Cancer Survey found that men who used smokeless tobacco incurred a 3.9-fold increased risk of oral cancer. Another study showed that the use of smokeless tobacco by southern women resulted in a roughly 4-fold increase in oral cancer. Women who reported long-term use (50 years) had an approximately 50-fold increased risk of cancer of the gum and buccal mucosa.

Studies show that elevated blood levels of nicotine from smokeless tobacco are similar to those produced by cigarettes. The cardiovascular consequences of smokeless tobacco include faster heart rate, higher blood pressure, narrowing of the blood vessels, more blood-clotting factors and reduced circulation of blood all resulting in heart damage.

The Advisory committee to the Surgeon General has concluded that the oral use of smokeless tobacco represents a significant health risk — one that can cause cancer. It is not a safe substitute for smoking cigarettes. Essentially, the user is poisoning himself.

Hungarian people not like Europeans

*Oh Magyars, stand beside your land
Unshaken, loyal, true!
Here is your crib, your future grave
Which tends and covers you
On earth, beneath the sky,
May fortune bless or break you down
You must live here and die.
(Mihály Vörösmarty: Summons)*

Area: 35,800 sq. miles. Population: 10 million. Capital: Budapest, pop. 2 million. Official Language: Hungarian. Government: Parliamentary democracy. These meaningless statistics can be found in an encyclopedia. Little more can be learned from such dry sources. They say nothing about the people, how they live, what their dreams are, how they love, and why they cry.

We, Hungarians, live like other Europeans, but we cry more — it's not an optimistic nation. The reason for this is the bitter realization that the switch from a socialist economy to a capitalist economy is not as easy as it seemed five years ago. Love? When we love, we love with all our hearts. We want everything from our loved one and we give everything to him/her.

When you talk with Hungarians, the first thing which may strike you is that we call the country Magyarország and the people the Magyars. None of the names resemble English.

Hungarians like to eat. We are very proud of our national cuisine, which is really tasty and, consequently, not healthy at all. Although meat and bread are still dominant parts of the daily diet, this is presently changing. People eat more vegetables and less meat and carbohydrates. Besides delicious dishes, Hungarians like good wines. The most famous wine of the region, The Tokay, is called Vinum Regum, Rex Vinorum (which means Wine of Kings, King of Wines).

The higher education system is completely different from the American system. There are 3-year colleges, which award a bachelor's degree after the third year, and there are universities where you can graduate with a master's degree after 5 years of study.

Most of the colleges and universities specialize in certain areas. Thus we have Medical Universities, Technical University, University of Agricultural Sciences, etc. The tuition is minimal, but, you have to take entrance exams to get admission to a college or a university. Places are limited, so it is not enough to just pass these entrance examinations, you have to be among the selected ones.

Once you are accepted and you are in the system, you can concentrate only on your major. No need to take courses outside your interest area. Providing a general knowledge about the world and everything is the job of the school system.

Until recently, there were no graduate schools in Hungary. Doctorate degrees were awarded after passing certain exams and completing a research project.

There were no special programs.

Now, some universities have started graduate schools and graduate programs. Another requirement is added for getting a doctorate degree. By the end of the doctorate studies the candidate has to be able to speak two widely used foreign languages. This could be a way to make a Ph.D. more valuable or it could be just a way to limit the number of Ph.D.'s given. No one really knows which.

Hungarians like sports. Obviously, the most popular sport is soccer. Some other sports also receive much attention in Hungary, but most are completely unnoticed in the United States. Among these are fencing, swimming, wrestling and pentathlon. Hungarian chess players are also among the world's best. On the other hand, the real American sports, like football and baseball are almost unknown in Hungary.

According to one anecdote it is easy to recognize a Hungarian: a Hungarian enters the revolving door after you, and exits before you on the other side. It is said that there are 15 million Hungarians in the world — only 10 million live in Hungary. Of course the other 5 million who live abroad are ethnic Hungarians and mostly not Hungarian citizens. Strange situation. But as Aron Tamási, a Hungarian novelist wrote:

People die from chewing/dipping tobacco.

Recently, the Kansas City Royals made smokeless tobacco an illegal drug for their team members — because of its deadly consequences.

Chewing tobacco looks unappealing because of tobacco juice running out of the corners of the mouth when a person tries to talk and the "spitting" every few minutes and spattering of juices.

The Ten Myths About Smokeless Tobacco

1. Smokeless tobacco is a harmless alternative to smoking. Not so! It is a deadly killer in its own right.
2. Smokeless tobacco is not addictive. Not so! Chewers and dippers get as high on nicotine as smokers.
3. Smokeless tobacco does not lead to smoking. Not so! After becoming addicted to nicotine, users frequently begin smoking because of fewer social restrictions.
4. Smokeless tobacco is a natural food — no chemicals. Not so! It contains hundreds of poisons and many carcinogens.
5. It is legal for youths to buy smokeless tobacco. Not so! This is prohibited in most states.
6. Smokeless tobacco has no addictive ingredients. Not so! Restriction on advertising is applied to smoking, but not to smokeless tobacco.
7. Smokeless tobacco does not harm your teeth. Not so! It is still brown and teenage boys are the number one market.
8. Smokeless tobacco calms a person down. Not so! It is actually a stimulant and causes depression upon withdrawal.
9. Smokeless tobacco has no effect on the blood pressure. Not so! It increases pulse rate and blood pressure.
10. Oral cancer is not a serious cancer. Not so! When it spreads to the lymph nodes in the neck it often makes these cancers fatal.

WSU hosts Dog Day run April 16

On Saturday, April 16, both dogs and humans will flock to the fourth annual Dog Days Run held at the College of Veterinary Medicine, Washington State University.

The race consists of three categories. The first race is a five kilometer run without pets. The second race is a one mile run/walk with dogs. The third race is a half-mile run/walk with any pet other than a dog.

The cost is $10 to run in one race and $12 to participate in three races.

Registration begins at 9:00 a.m. and the first race starts one hour later. Call 332-2632 for more information.

Volleyball sponsors grass tournaments

The University of Idaho volleyball team is sponsoring a series of four grass volleyball tournaments to begin this weekend.

Saturday is the men's and women's doubles and Sunday will feature the reverse co-ed doubles. May 7 and 8 will feature the same tournaments.

Each of the tournaments will have three divisions, Open, A and Novice. The Novice division is open to beginners only.

The tournaments will be held at the east end of Guy Wicks field, in the case of poor weather they will relocate to the Physical Education Building indoor facility.

Entry fees are $25 per team. Each participant is guaranteed a minimum of five matches, a custom designed t-shirt and a tournament coupon package.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three teams in each division.

There will be an after-tournament party for all participants at Treaty Grounds at the Palouse Empire Mall.

The registration deadline is the Wednesday preceding the given tournament.

Phone entries will be accepted. For more information contact Melissa Stokes at (208)885-0246.

Tennis meets WSU last time

Amy White
Staff Writer

Yesterday, the Washington State University men's tennis team came over to play on the UI courts for the last time.

In fact it will probably be the last time these two teams will meet anywhere. The WSU men's team has been cut. However, the UI men's team had no sympathy for their rivals.

Playing in the No. 1 doubles spot was the old and new combination of junior Mark Hadley and freshman Keith Bradbury. Beginning the match evenly, the score was held 4-4. WSU then broke serve making 5-4. With deuces everywhere Idaho brought the score up 5-5 breaking WSU's serve. UI got the next point 7-6. WSU evened the score at 7, but Idaho was quick to regain their lead 8-7. The last game was close, but Idaho broke the last service game winning the match 9-7.

The No. 1 doubles spot was not the only win in doubles for UI. The No. 2 position, filled by Rusty Tontz and Chris Daniel, won 8-5. No. 3 doubles combination, Niren Lall and Ryan Slaton, won 8-4.

The singles competition was challenging for all the UI players. This was especially true for No. 1 seed Mark Hadley. Hadley carried the No. 1 spot well for UI, however his competition was very tough. WSU's Brian Brost is a strong player and has never lost to Idaho's Hadley. This just made the match more competitive.

Hadley did not give in easily to Brost. The first game Hadley opened strong winning the first point. However, he was unable to hold the upper hand. In the fourth game Hadley took all the points and tied the score 2-2. Brost then came back strong to win the set 6-2.

Hadley used the first set loss to enhance his game, where he came out with great physical strength winning the second set 6-4. The tie breaker was a test of the two player's skills. Unfortunately, Hadley lost the tie breaker by a close three points.

Hadley's loss was not pertinent to the team's overall score—he was the only player to lose in the sin-

Track continues strong season

Lance Graveley

The men's and women's track teams continued their strong performances at last weekend's two-day Bob Gibb Classic at Boise State University.

Friday's Events

Jessica Puckett, while finishing in fourth place, joined a large number of other Vandal track team members in qualifying for the Big Sky Conference Championship Meet.

In the javelin throw, Puckett threw for a distance of 130 feet, six inches, beating the BSC qualifying mark of 130 feet. She out-threw NCAA provisional qualifier, Jill Wimer, who finished fifth with 127-10, and Lorri Thompson, sixth with 124-7.

Tanya Tesar continued to shine this season as she placed third in the long jump and third overall in the 200-meter heats.

In the long jump, she went for a distance of 18-10 while in the 200 meters, her time was 14.99.

Traci Hanegan had her strongest performance of the day in the 100-meter heats, where she came in with a third-best overall time of 11.80. The senior also competed in the 200-meter heats, finishing with 25.6.

Heidi Bodwell and Tara Gehrke both finished sixth in their events. Bodwell went for a time of 12.3 in the 100-meter heats while Gehrke came in for 15.34 in the 100-meter hurdle heats.

On the men's side, Travis Allen qualified for the BSC Championships. In a fifth-place overall finish in the 110-meter hurdle heats, he came in at 14.97, beating the qualifying time by .03 of a second.

All-Universe Dan O'Brien finished first overall in the 110-meter hurdles with a time of 14.19. In the 1,500-meter developmental event, Ty Koellmann placed first overall to lead all

Beta's host golf scramble for charity

Poor golfing weather shortens scramble from 18 to nine holes

Bridget Lux
Staff Writer

The weather Saturday may not have been perfect golfing weather but 11 of the 20 teams that signed up turned out for Beta Theta Pi's 4 man scramble.

Nine holes, rather than the scheduled 18, were shot because of the rain. "It made it hard to hold the clubs but it was still playable," said Hart Gilchrist, one of the participants. "At about the 8th or 9th hole it started to really take affect."

"It was pretty chilly out there," added Chris Waddell, one of the event's organizers.

Each participant paid $14 to play of which $1 went towards playing each hole and $5 went toward the Children's Burn Awareness. Overall, the Betas raised $400 for the program.

The teams consisted of four men and/or women and prizes were given to the top two teams. Beta Theta Pi members made up a majority of the teams, said Waddell. "That was just a coincidence," he said, "everyone else cancelled."

The scramble is constructed so each team member tees off at each hole and then the best drive for each team is used. Then, again each person gets a chance to hit the ball and again the best shot is used and so on.

Bryan Flock, Steve Smith, Craig Smith and Lance Homan took home the first place title and received gift certificates from the golf pro shop. Their team managed to hit six under par for a score of 31 on the first nine holes.

Mark Martin, Brad Cleveland, Russ Kent and Susie Lynch went three under par for a 34 to capture second place and some gift certificates.

Third place went to Rocky Baker, David

Delta Sig's bike for philanthropy

Bridget Lux
Staff Writer

The Delta Sigma Phi bike race to Boise may not have been an actual race since the Boise State University team backed out but the money they raised made it all worthwhile.

"BSU backed out at the last minute," said Gary Salzman, "but we decided to ride down to Boise anyway."

The Children's Birth Defects Foundation of the March of Dimes was the recipient of over $2,000 raised by the cyclists on their 250 mile journey to Boise.

Each member of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity donated $40 which was a majority of the total, said Ryan Lippert, one of the participants. Some local businesses and other individuals donated money and supplies such as Gatorade for the trip, Lippert said.

Lippert rode 24 miles which was the farthest he had ever ridden at one time. "It was tiring," he said, "and that seat isn't too soft."

Lippert said everyone rode around 20 miles except for one ambitious member, Shawn Hayner, who rode 50 miles in two shifts on Friday.

Due to bad weather and a few complications, the crew traveled by automobile for a few miles but the majority of the trip was made on bicycles. "We had to stop a few times for flat tires and complications," said Salzman, who was one of about 20 cyclists.

Delta Sigma Phi members left Friday morning at 9:00 a.m., stayed near Riggins Friday night and then continued to Boise Saturday night. They arrived at the BSU Student Union Building at 4:00 p.m. Saturday.

Barb Faucet, who helped organize the event, greeted the cyclists and received the donation for the March of Dimes.

Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity reestablished this bike race in 1993. It was originally started in the 1950s but it died out in the 1970s, Salzman said.

gles competition.

The No. 2 spot was played by Niren Lall. Lall's opponent was Alex Lynch. Lynch and Lall had played each other several times before today and had developed quite a rivalry.

Monday was their fourth and final meeting. Lall was ahead in overall matches 2-1. Earlier this season Lynch took Lall by surprise with a win. Today, Lall was determined and played extremely well beating Lynch in two easy sets 6-3, 6-0. Lall added about playing WSU for the last time, "it felt good to destroy WSU in out last meeting, especially for the Palouse bragging rights!"

Keith Bradbury played the No. 3 seed. His competition was demanding, but he managed to pull ahead in the third set 7-4. Bradbury said, "(It was a) good team effort today, everybody played their best, and it was especially nice to get the doubles point because we haven't gotten any in the previous six matches."

Ryan Slaton, Chris Daniels, Rusty Tontz also won their singles, which left WSU with only one point. Leaving a tough performance for the Cougars to depart with.

Nussmeier leaves quarterback vacancy

Andrew Longeteig
Staff Writer

The Idaho Vandal football team has a problem.

A problem for the best team in the Big Sky Conference?

Spring football practice is in full swing for head coach John L. Smith and his Vandals as he and his staff will try to decide on a replacement for the best quarterback in UI history, Doug Nussmeier.

"They are all very capable kids," said Smith, in a prepared release, of his four candidates. "We are going to make our decision as quickly as possible. Any of them that don't figure into this position are athletic enough to move to another spot and help this team."

None of the candidates — Eric Hisaw, Brian Brennan, Greg Johnson or Tommy Knecht — seem to be content in becoming a back-up quarterback.

In their spring practice Saturday afternoon, Hisaw, a junior, completed 4-10 passes for 68 yards. He is currently No. 1 on the depth chart.

Johnson, a redshirt freshman from Boise, may have had the best performance of anyone as he connected on 5-7 passes for 71 yards. The other redshirt freshman, Brennan, threw for 38 yards on 5-8 passing.

Knecht is a transfer from Stanford and hasn't played quarterback since he was considered one of the top-rated passers to come out of high school. Last year at Stanford, he played on the defensive side of the ball. At the scrimmage, he was 3-7 for 30 yards.

The defense, showed why they will dominate the Big Sky this coming season. They amassed seven sacks and three interceptions. Senior linebacker Duke Garrett recorded eight tackles and two sacks. The defense returns nine starters and only four of those are seniors. Perhaps Idaho's best defensive player, sophomore Jason Shelt, forced a fumble and had nine tackles in the scrimmage.

"We expect to be strong up front," said Smith. "If we continue to mature, this (defensive) line could dominate some games for us."

The big question mark last season was the secondary, and it continues to cause headaches for the Vandal coaching staff. Starting cornerbacks Tim Trahan and Eddie Beavers left the team, but the Vandals will see five new faces to help revitalize the defensive backfield.

"We have got to get better in this spot," said Smith.

Payton Award candidate Sherriden May gained 53 yards on 8 carries. His counterpart, sophomore Joel Thomas, had 9 rushes for 20 yards.

Idaho is also rich at the tight end position with four promising players. Last year's backup, Andy Gilroy, and Todd Jorgenson, Avery Griggs and Craig Thompson are all battling for playing time.

Idaho's spring football session ends April 29 when they have their annual Silver-Gold game. The Vandals will be working out on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays and will have full-contact scrimmages Saturdays before the Silver-Gold game.

Adams, Brian Rasmussen and Matt Stott.

Adams earned the honor of having the longest drive while Gilchrist, a member of Beta Theta Pi, landed his drive closest to the pin. Gilchrist drove his ball to about 21/2 feet from the pin on hole 5 which is a par 3 hole.

"It was fun to play, but it could have been better on a better day,"

Gilchrist said.

This is the first year he has participated in the event, Gilchrist said, but he helped organize it when it first began.

This is the fourth year the Betas have held the scramble. Waddell said the event was a definite go for 1995.

"We have gotten a lot of positive feedback from it," he said.

present UI track members. With a time of 4:03.18 — barely beating out fellow team members Jason Uhlman, second overall with 4:04.83 and Kienan Slate, third overall with 4:05.62.

In second place, Richard Gere and Niels Kruller both joined Uhlman in their respective events. Gere went for a distance of 152-5 in the hammer throw while Kruller leaped for 23-7 1/2 in the long jump. Kruller also competed in the heats of the 100 meters, finishing with a time of 11.22.

Joining Slate in the third place standings was Scott McCarty, who placed behind Gere in the hammer throw with a distance of 149-1.

In the discus, McCarty threw for a distance of 155-1 to finished fifth while Jerry Trujillo received a fifth place standing with a leap of 22-1 3/4 in the long jump.

1:05.15. In the event, she outraced both Tara Gehrke, third with 1:06.8, and Althea Belgrave, fourth with 1:08.09. Another second place finisher was Angie Mathison in the 3000 meters by coming in for a time of 10:11.73.

The 400 meters had Angie Smith finishing third with a time of 58.27 and in the high jump, Laura Vervaeke and Cindy Smith ended up in a tie for that mark in the high jump, both finishing with 5-2.

In the 4x100-meter relay, the UI team finished with a time of 49.27 to round out the number of third place finishers.

Amy Frank finished directly behind Smith to place fifth in the 400 meters, competing for a fourth-best time of 58.57.

For sixth place, there was a large number of finishers. Laura Moore had a time of 4:46.9 in the 1,500 meters while Gehrke finished for a time of 15.39 in the 100-meter hurdles.

Saturday's Events

Emily Wise joined along with Puckett and Allen by qualifying for the BSC Meet also. In the 100-meter hurdles, Wise finished for a time of 15.29, just a second off the qualifying mark of 15.30.

Tesar and Wimer both continued their strong performances by finishing first in their respective events of the triple jump and the shot put.

Tesar went for a distance of 39-10 to repeat her standing in the event for the second straight week. The senior also finished third in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 14.98 beating out both Wise and Tara Gehrke, 15.39.

Meanwhile, the shot put featured Wimer throwing for a distance of 42-0 1/2 to match Tesar's standing. In the discus, the sophomore threw for a season-best 137-8 to come in second.

The 400-meter hurdles featured Kelly Hunt joining with Wimer by placing second with a time of Tara Hamilton completed the 800 meters with a 2:22.76 time and Jessica Wells threw the shot put for 37-8. Robin Betz finished the 3,000 meters for a time of 10:29.11.

On the men's side, Paul Thompson qualified was another track member who qualified for the BSC meet by tying the BSC mark of 15 feet. His teammate, Corey Johnson, finished third in the 400-meter hurdles as both lead all men in Saturday's events.

In the 1,500 meters, Frank Bruder, who provisionally qualified for NCAA Championships in the 3,000 meter steeplechase March 19, placed fourth with a time of 3:57.92.

Bruder's standing was tied by Travis Allen in the 110-meter hurdles, where he finished for a time of 15.17.
