

Telin retires after 25 years at registrar post

Janet Birdsall Staff

fter serving under Presidents Hartung, Gibb, Zinser and Bell, Registrar Matt Telin is retiring Dec. 29.

"Over 72,000 degrees have been granted from this institution. As registrar, I will have certified over 40,000 of those," Telin said. "I've been around long enough that sons and daughters of former students are now registering."

Telin has seen the University of Idaho reach two major registration milestones. Enrollment has exceeded the 10,000 mark and graduation has topped 2,000 per year.

Telin came here as the assistant registrar in 1968 and became registrar in 1970. At that time, registration was a two-day event that took place in Memorial Gym right before classes began for the semester.

"Students would go around to the department tables and pick up class permits cards for each class," Telin said.

The class permit cards and the student's permit card were IBM punch cards with holes punched out for each number. To formulate class lists, the cards were "game punched" into the computer.

The first one-day arena registration was held in the ASUI Kibbie Dome upon its completion in 1975, Telin said.

The punch cards were replaced with optical scan sheets. Three years later, they used course selection sheets which were then keypunched into the computer.

The next big change was to get registration out of the arena-style process where students had to go around to department tables.

Student user-friendly computer registration began in 1989. Using existing campus computers, the program was up and running in six weeks with no capital investment, Telin said.

UI, University of Iowa and Georgia Tech were the first schools in the country to allow students to go to terminals to register, he said. The schools did not know that the others were doing the same thing at the time.

"We were the first school in the country to have both computer and touch-tone registration," Telin said. "We've had a lot of schools model their registration after us." Telephone registration began in 1991.

The UI system can concurrently handle 90 students registering on computer and 16 registering on the phone, Telin said. Students registering by phone take an average of just over three minutes.

"If I have any claim to fame, it's bringing registration into the electronic age," he said.

Telin has seen a lot of changes, not only in registration, but also in students. He remembers the 1970s as a decade of activism inspired by the Vietnam War and Kent State.

Someone firebombed the Navy building here and burned the National Guard Armory in Lewiston. Hundreds of other students rallied behind the university and serenaded President Hartung at his home.

apathy in the 1980s, Telin said. "Students wouldn't react to anything."

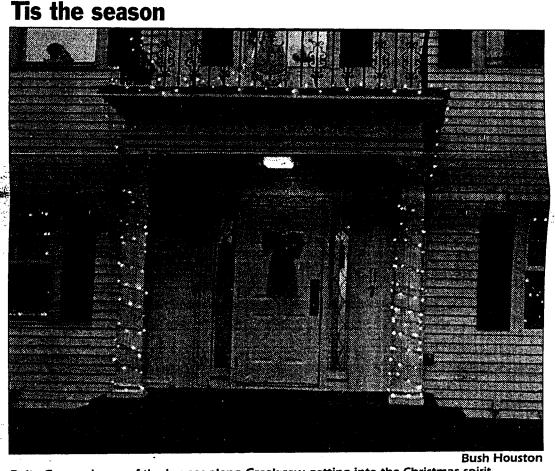

"I think they're questioning more, challenging more. They're asking 'Why?' more. It's quite positive.

This was followed by an era of Apathy isn't good for anybody," he said.

> "The best part of the university is the students-that's why we're here. Sometimes we lose sight of that. We get caught up in the bureaucratic process," Telin said.

Asked about his plans after December, Telin said, "I'm not looking for work. I'm going to smell the roses."

He plans to tour the Mexican Baja in February with his wife, Karen.

Carpenter said, "We're pretty pleased. It's a good indicator of our success in the community's eyes, we were pleased to bring them back."

One award the local Delta Sigs brought back was a third place award from the March of Dimes, the Delta Sigs national philanthropy, for their work in behalf of the March of Dimes.

'It was a pretty prestigious award." said Carpenter.

Carpenter said they won the award because of how much money they have raised over the last two years and for the format they use for raising the money."

They just like the way our philanthropy works and it's also because we've been doing it for so long," he said.

The Delta Sigs have held the Bike to Boise event every spring since the early 1980s. It has raised between $5,000 to $10,000 for the March of Dimes.

The Delta Sigs also won an academic award called the Pyramid for

The convention presents this award to chapters with a GPA three tenths above the men's average on their respective campuses. Out of the 150 Delta Sigma Phi chapters, approximately 10 won this award.

The chapter was also recognized for membership recruitment for last year. The fraternity has 31 new pledges this year and will probably earn an award for this year at the 1997 convention.

The chapter also was recognized twice more at convention for academics over the last two years.

One undergraduate member and one alumni also won awards at the national convention. John Drake won an award for his achievements in IFC and Charles Hudson, the chapter's Alumni Control Board treasurer, won an award from the Grand Council for his long time service to the chapter.

The local chapters advisor, Charles G. Bartell has an award named after him for outstanding "It's fun to see Charles Bartell give his award out," said Carpenter. Carpenter also said, "I think we were eligible for, and had a good shot at winning, the Pyramid of Excellence. More than likely we'll get it at the next convention." The Pyramid of Excellence is the highest award given to chapters from nationals.

"I felt coming from a fraternity centralized in the east coast we represented the west very well. We brought a lot of good ideas with us, I know our presence was felt." Carpenter said about the national convention.

Brett Jones said, "I thought it was a good thing to attend, especially for us. We're a strong chapter and we can provide a lot of help for small chapters that are struggling."

The Delta Sigs are looking forward to next spring and their Bike for Boise philanthropic event which will be held in March or April and will benefit the March of Dimes.

Batt faces protesters. supporters in Burley

BURLEY, Idaho-Gov. Phil Batt found some detractors and some supporters of his nuclear waste deal as he met with Burley residents.

A half-dozen signtoting protesters were on hand Wednesday at the Burley Inn when the Republican governor addressed local civic leaders.

"If you find it necessary to shoot the messenger, I can't say I'll be happy. But I'll hold my head high because I'm proud of what I've done," Batt said, maintaining he forced the issue of finding a permanent national storage site for radioactive waste.

The governor said he protected Idaho by negotiating what he called a legally binding document that limits spent fuel shipments into the state and creates a scheme for removing most waste from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory during the next 40 years.

One of the protesters, Twin Falls podiatrist Dr. Peter Rickards, has aunched a drive to recall Batt. Rickards also is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Idaho's 2nd Congressional District.

Rickards asked Batt why the agreement did not address the issue of plutonium-contaminated waste buried at INEL prior to 1970.

Over 2 million cubic feet of that waste was buried in barrels and boxes at the site, and plutonium particles have been found 240 feet underground, Rickards said.

Batt said that the buried waste was not part of his negotiations with the Energy Department, covered instead by a 1991 agreement signed by former Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"I'm here to discuss my agree-ment. It's a separate matter," Batt said, and aside from Rickards comments, there were no other questions from the group of about 60.

Former Gov. John Evans on Wednesday said Batt was in a nowin situation and made the best decision he could with the information he had from federal officials. But, Evans said, "I just doubt very much they'll be able to ful-fill their agreements." The former governor claimed federal officials were not honest to him when they brought in the remains of the melted reactor core from the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant which went through a partial meltdown. It was during the Evans administration that hundreds of loads of commercial radioactive waste from a Colorado power plant were also dumped at INEL.

Idaho Republican to observe elections

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho-Former Idaho Republican Party chairman Blake Hall is heading to a section of Siberia known for high unemployment, high crime and December low temperatures of 60 degrees below zero.

Rather than an Idaho Democrat's pipe dream, Hall is on a fact-finding mission.

Hall will join two dozen other Americans in Russia this week, to observe that nation's parliamentary elections on Sunday. The American delegation will then make recommendations to the new Russian republic, to help run elections more smoothly in the future.

"They recognize that it's important, that they're so new at this process of free and open elec-tions," Hall said. "It gives them an independent view of the proceedings.

The elections could be a lot more complicated than a typical American vote.

First of all, Hall expects the turnout for Russia's elections to be extremely high: a carryover from the days when citizens were required to vote in the Communist Soviet Union's one-party elections.

Second, the elections to fill 450 parliament spots are a free-for-all. Forty-three political parties are qualified for the ballot.

"No one knows what they are, kind of like here," said Hall, an Idaho Falls attorney.

Suspect in shooting arrested in New York

NAMPA, Idaho-New York police have arrested a man Nampa authorities believe was involved in the Aug. 6 shooting death of 16year-old Augustine Hernandez.

New York officers stopped Antonio Flores, 24, on Sunday night and arrested him on a outstanding warrant from Idaho. Nampa Detective Chris Klein said he does not know how soon Flores will be returned.

Klein added he hopes question-ing Flores will lead police to the second suspect, Jose Antonio Arevaldo, 22, of Nampa, also known as Arturo Magana.

Police believe Flores and Arevaldo entered the Hernandez home in Nampa late Aug. 6 and opened fire, killing Augustine Hernandez and wounding his brother and a friend.

The shooting was likely the result of a fight that started in Caldwell the night before, police said.

FDA orders casino laser lights shut down in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS—The laser lights that beckon and dazzle visitors to Las Vegas flashed once too often when they temporarily blinded a Southwest Airlines pilot taking off from the airport.

So the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, fearing a plane crash, has banned the nightly laser light shows put on by the city's world-famous casinos.

The concentrated light beams have been blamed for 51 incidents in the last two years involving flights in and out of three Las Vegas-area airports.

The temporary blinding of Southwest Airlines pilot Shelby LaCroix on Oct. 30 was the most serious incident yet. It forced the co-pilot of the Boeing 737 to take control while LaCroix struggled to regain his sight. At the time, the plane was climbing out of McCarran International Airport.

"Had it hit me and the other pilot simultaneously, I shudder to think what would have happened," LaCroix said.

On Monday, the FDA, which regulates laser beams, sent a letter to a half dozen Las Vegas casinos telling them to shut off their colorful displays until further notice.

Hotels complied immediately while holding out some hope that the laser lights could be used in a modified way.

"Yes, probably," Olds replied. Olds for the first time in open court on Monday told estate lawyers that he now believes his former lover, Helmut Carsten

Elephants raid village in search of liquor

NEW DELHI, India-Attracted by the smell of freshly brewed liquor, five thirsty elephants raided a remote tribal village in northeastern India, smashing huts and crushing one man to death.

The incident occurred Sunday night at Simbulbari, 430 miles north of Calcutta.

The elephants tried to get to the vats of the warm brew, but villagers beat drums and ran after the animals with flaming torches, said Keshav Pradhan, a reporter in Siliguri.

"The elephants got angry and smashed eight wooden shacks," he said. One villager was crushed before the elephants returned to nearby forests.

Elephants frequently raid villages in search of liquor and food. India's 20,000 wild elephants are protected by law and cannot be killed until declared a rogue. -Associated Press

Leaky reactor could be shut down for up to two years

TOKYO-An experimental nuclear reactor that leaked highly corrosive coolant could be shut down for up to two years if its operators find more leaks and have to change its design, officials said Tuesday.

Engineers shut down the $5.9 billion "Monju" breeder reactor in Tsuruga, 210 miles west of Tokyo, after two to three tons of radioactive liquid sodium leaked Friday night and began to burn.

We don't think that we can get a go-ahead from local governments any time in the near future," said Ken Maruoka, spokesman of the Power Reactor and Nuclear Fuel Development Corp., the government corporation that owns the troubled reactor. The Asahi Shimbun newspaper quoted an unidentified official of the corporation who said that if the reactor's operators decide they need to change its design, that could take up to two years. Local officials in Tsuruga have demanded that the Science and Technology Agency examine that possibility. Protesters at a weekend rally in Tokyo called for the government to scrap the reactor alto gether. It was running at 40 percent capacity when the sodium leaked Friday from a secondary cooling system, far from the core. The gov ernment's Nuclear Safet Commission has called the inci dent "very serious." Japan, which relies heavily of imported oil, is the only country i the world pursuing the technology to build fast-breeder reactors which produce more plutonium than they consume.

Argonaut Interview

Simmons takes over Provost office during interim period r. George M. Simmons recently took over the office of University of Idaho provost on an interim basis. The provost of the university is the chief academic officer reporting directly to the president.

Andrew White

The provost chairs the Academic Deans' Counsel and is involved with the overall management of the university. Simmons attended UI in 1965 and 1966 acquiring a Bachelors and Masters degree in Chemical Engineering. He also receiving his Ph.D. in Chemical Engineering from Stanford University.

Simmons has been involved in numerous research projects. He has studied the establishment and evaluation of new retention strategies, concentrating on the freshman year experience. The development of prediction strategy for academic success based on student admission standards and several projects dealing with chemical engineering.

Simmons has been no stranger to public service. Recently he has served as chair of the Executive Education Committee for the Association of Western Universities. He has also served on the Advisory Board for the North Idaho Business Technology Center in Moscow, Idaho and been a vice chair and member of the Board of Directors of Arts for Idaho. Simmons also is a member of the Idaho Chapter of Kiwanis International. The UI Circle K, which is a college division of Kiwanis, has greatly appreciated Dr. Simmons help in getting the program off to a good start.

Simmons was also a recipient of the Kellogg National Fellowship Program. He was selected as one of 45 people from a field of approximately 1,000 to participate in a three year program with a focus on leadership and professional development with international input. Topics covered by the fellowship program ranged from conflict resolution, higher education structure and student retention strategies. The Argonaut interviewed Dr. Simmons and this is what he had to say:

Argonaut: What accomplishments do you hope to achieve during your time as Provost?

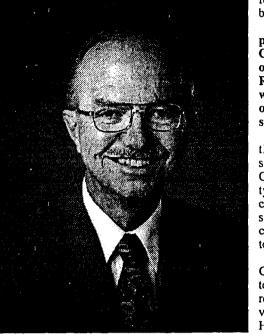

Simmons: Three main things. I want to create a better environment for multi-cultural students. The UI needs to be more attractive to students who come from minority backgrounds. I want to do a better job for them, create programs that would benefit them as well as provide an environment where all of our students can learn from one another.

Secondly, I would like to see more students graduate in a more timely manner. Right now our graduation rate is 50 percent. I would like to see our graduation rate around 65 percent.

Third, the university must continue to expand its services throughout the state, using all methods of delivery. We must participate in the regional and national delivery of academic programs and degrees.

Argonaut: What did you think about the recent state Board of Education's move with respect to Engineering?

Simmons: I didn't agree with the decision, however, we must move contributed photo Dr. George Simmons, interim provost forward and do what's best for out students.

THE

Argonaut: The proposed new University Center in the center of campus and the UI Recreation Center, what is your position on those two new structures?

Simmons: I believe they are both necessary. The University Center is an opportunity for us to develop a central place for the students, faculty and community to come together.

The University Center would pull us together. The proposed recreation center is also very important. Healthy lifestyles and physical well being are extremely important. In order to be academically prepared, one also needs to be healthy. I am quite confident that both of these facilities will be developed.

Argonaut: What about the move to the Big West Athletic Conference?

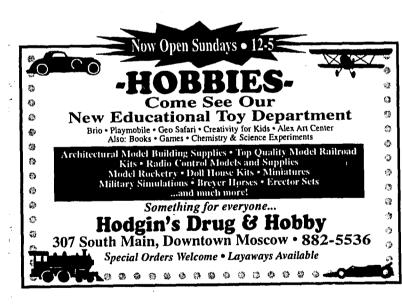

Simmons: It was a tough decision for the UI to make. I believe we made the right call. We will have better competition and a different set of schools. I'm looking forward to it.

Argonaut: Where do you see this university in 10 years?

Simmons: Still a very strong residential campus. Students coming from high school to the university are entering a residential system, whether Greek, off-campus or in the residence halls they are picking up their stakes and coming to study—that requires a big commitment.

I would also see the UI making progress in delivering its programs state wide.

Class attendance and grades correlated

Christopher Clancy

News

A recent study concluding that a direct relationship exists between student attendance and grades was the focus of a recent UI Roundtable meeting for faculty in the Student Union Building. The survey used information collected from four universities including: UI, WSU, Ohio State University and Perdue and was based on 1993 enrollment statistics of 400 students.

Statistical findings, the basis of the 1993 study by UI Professors, Stephen Devadoss and John Foltz, point to a number of factors that can lead students to receive poor grades. Among them were the motivation of the student, the skills of the teacher and course work and absenteeism. The upside, said Foltz, is that students that attend all of their classes can expect a gain of 0.6 percent which can translate to a higher grades those for students trying to close the gap between a C+ and a B, or a B+ and an A.

Students missing class, said Devadoss, is especially a problem during special events, such as Homecoming and near holidays or vacations.

"When students don't come to classes it puts additional demands" on the teacher," said Devadoss. "Teachers have to repeat the same questions over and over."

Another problem caused by excessive absences, said Devadoss, is the damage it causes to the overall learning environment.

"Attendance effects the dynamic nature of the classroom and makes students and instructors feel uncomfortable," said Devadoss. Some other findings of the study were more surprising than others. One example was relationship between the amount of time students study and the grades that they receive. According to the study, grades do not increase as students study longer. While the numbers of actual hours studied were selfreported and could be biased, said Foltz, there doesn't more studying doesn't necessarily equal better grades. Foltz related his own experience in a chemistry class to the experiences of many students.

Christmas is a time for family, gift-giving and of course, eating.

If you are looking for a lastminute gift, look no more. Now that special someone can receive your gift and eat it too.

Members of the University of Idaho Collegiate 4-H Club are offering two-pound boxes of unique cheese.

The cheese comes in four varieties: Americana, Italian, French and Mexican.

UI 4-H club members are selling the cheese under their new fundraising program, "Cheeses of The World." Club-members plan to use the proceeds for travel to the National Collegiate 4-H Conference in Montana next April.

"Collegiate and other 4-H groups from around the nation meet to discuss what they have done," said Jim Craig, vice president of UI's Collegiate 4-H Club. "There are leadership seminars, and discussions of community service ideas. It's a good way to meet other 4-H members from across the nation."

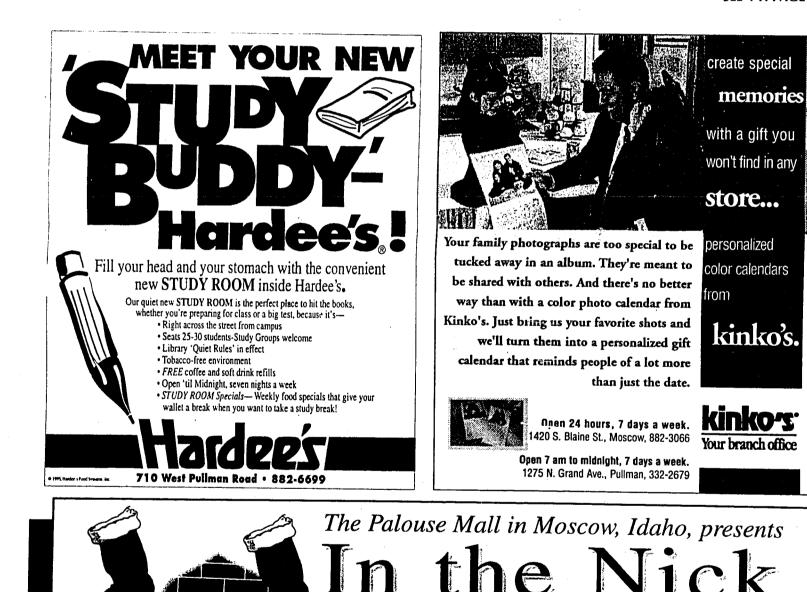

Craig says collegiate 4-H club members focus on developing community service and readership skills.

Ul's Cooperative Extension System recognizes outstanding Idaho 4-H club members and supporters each year.

The Idaho chapter of Epsilon Sigma Phi, an honorary society of Extension educators, named Howard Johnston of the Bingham County 4-H Council, recipient of the 1995 Friend of Extension Award.

The award notes Johnston's outstanding support of 4-H programs sponsored by the UI CES.

Buy your textbooks early to get best prices

Andrea Lucero Staff

The best time to get books from the University Bookstore is right after the first of the year said Larry Martin, assistant manager of books at the University of Idaho Bookstore.

In January, the bookstore expects a larger percentage of used textbooks to be available to students.

Used textbook availability has gone up approximately 16 percent since 1993-1994 school year. In 1993-1994, 25 percent of the total textbooks were used. Forty-one percent of the textbooks sold in the Fall were used.

The average textbook costs from $50 to $75," explained Martin, "But if the textbook is purchased used it could only cost from $35-$50."

Engineering and science courses have some of the highest priced books at the bookstore and English and history courses are some of the lowest priced textbooks.

Lower division courses have more used textbooks available because there are more students enrolled in the courses said Martin. When students sell back their books, the bookstore has a supply of used textbooks to sell students the following semester.

Upper division courses do not have as many used books available because more students are keeping their books for on the job reference.

"Used books will be re-purchased at 75 percent of the price the students bought them for," said Martin. "Although some books won't be taken back, Nebraska (the textbook wholesaler) may give students some money for those books.'

Nebraska is the biggest used textbook wholesaler the UI Bookstore buys from. Over 10,000 used books are purchased from Nebraska every year said Carolyn Moore clerical textbook specialist at the University Bookstore.

Friday, December 15, 1995

The Bookstore is buying back textbooks, Dec.16 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Dec.18 through Dec. 23 from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. To get the best buy back price from the bookstore students need to sell back early.

Kappa Sigma nominated to national historic register

Justin Oliver Ruen Staff

The University of Idaho Kappa Sigma house may be included in a national list of historic buildings, said Pam Peterson, liaison for the Latah County Historic Preservation Commission.

Official notification will be issued next June regarding the inclusion of the Kappa Sigma house in the National Register of Historic Places.

The National Register of Historic Places is part of a 1966 federal act which authorized the National Parks Service to record a list of historic places around the country. In order to gain admission to the list, a site must be over 50 years old and have significance to either the community or a famous individual, Peterson said.

Kappa Sigma holds the first charter granted to an Idaho fraternity from a national organization, which occurred in 1905. The neoclassical house at 918 Blake Street is the oldest standing fraternity house on the UI campus, built in 1916. Kappa Sigma celebrated its 90th anniversary this year.

Ul student Michael Sommese first out in front that it was a historical building, and it was only 50 years old. I realized our house would be 80 years old in 1996," he said.

Sommese approached the Latah County Historical Society about the listing of Kappa Sigma and received money to hire Washington State University graduate students Liza Rognas and Erika Kuhlman to write and research the application. The application is now being reviewed by the Idaho Historical Society and notification will not occur for several months. Peterson expects the application to be successful because of the "close association of the fraternity structure with Idaho history.'

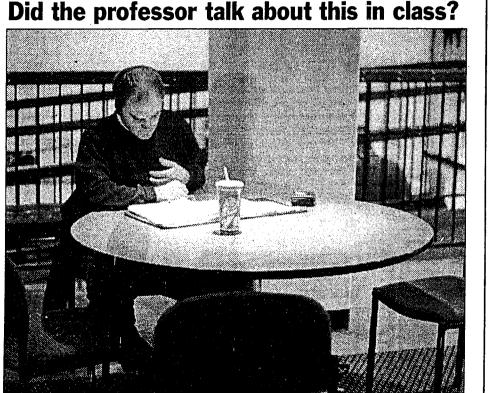

"It is quite a thing to have your fraternity mentioned in the archives in Washington DC., as contributing to the historic character of our country," Peterson said.

After difficult year, U.S. apple growers again in Japan

TOKYO-After getting only a small slice of the Japanese market in their first season, U.S. apple growers are trying again.

But they have a major problem to overcome: Many Japanese consumers don't seem to think Washington state Delicious apples live up to their name

"They look beautiful but they taste bad," Tokyo grocery store owner Shoji Iwasaki said Tuesday as Washington apples officially went on sale in Japan for their second season.

Last January was the first time American apples went on sale in Japan since Tokyo lifted a decades-old ban on the fruit. Encouraged by heavy media coverage, Japanese flocked to their supermarkets and bought around 7,000 tons of apples in just a month.

But then the U.S. fortunes turned sour. Customers complained that Washington apples didn't have the sweet, juicy taste of their Japanese competitors.

U.S. growers also failed to seize a price advantage, as Japanese growers fought back by selling at a discount less-than-perfect apples that previously would have been turned into apple juice.

The result was a plunge in sales during February. and March. By the time the season ended March 31, only 9,000 tons were sold, well below original projections of 12,000-15,000 tons.

This time U.S. apple officials are scaling down expectations by not giving a target figure, and they're tailoring the fruit closer to what Japanese seem to want.

"The Japanese consumer definitely has a sweet tooth," said Brent Evans, Asia marketing director for the Washington Apple Commission.

He said it's easy to make apples sweeter by leaving them on the tree a few weeks longer, and that's what Washington growers have done this year.

Another factor that may have turned Japanese buyers off was the waxing that Washington growers add to give apples a bright red sheen.

To Japanese eyes, Evans said, the waxed U.S. apples may have looked unnaturally shiny, almost like candy. This time, many of the apples being imported aren't waxed.

"It's fair to think of the Red Delicious apples this year as a completely different product from the ones you ate last year," said Jimmy Uehara, a Washington apple official in Tokyo.

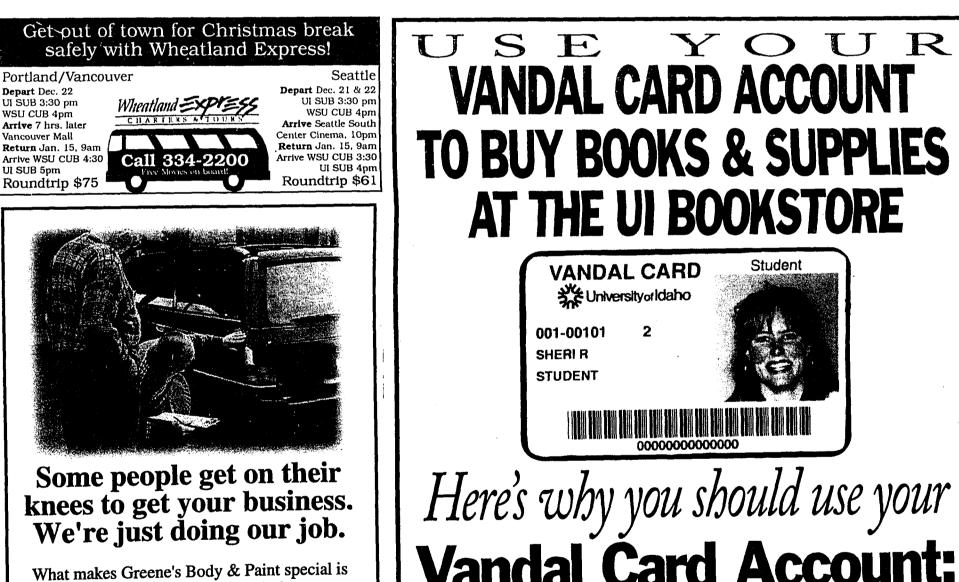

But the lingering bad taste is having an impact. Daiei, Japan's biggest supermarket chain, sold 1,400 tons of U.S. apples last season after setting a target of 1,900 tons. This time, said spokeswoman Haruko Toyama, it only plans to sell 490 tons.

"We sold them last year, but we're not going to do so this year," said Seiki Sasaki, the owner of a • SEE APPLES PAGE 9

Money tips to help you survive the crunch of school, holidays

Essential News for Women, and the Men Who Care About Them

Ninety percent of American women will sooner or later manage their money solo. In an era when job security, salary hikes, marriage longevitivy, health care and other benefits are uncertain, it is necessary for women to be financially adept.

Currently, women live longer, save less, and invest more conservatively than their male counterparts. Women save about half the amount men save and prefer the safe but low paying investments, such as certificates of deposit. For many women, careers are interrupted by child rearing, thus pension benefits and earnings are reduced. Though more women are becoming financially savvy, women generally do not earn as much as their male counterparts and many are in lower paying jobs. Where to begin? Work hard to earn money, spend less than you earn, save regularly (even a dollar is better than nothing), become knowledgeable about investing (read Money, Smart Money, Working Woman; talk to those who invest, join an investment club, look for classes on money management such as spring's FCS 346 Personal and Family Finance and Management).

It is important that women today become financially adept. And may the men who care about womendad, brother, son, spouse, boyfriend, teacher, neighborencourage and assist them.

Pay Yourself First

Financial advisors consistently encourage Americans to pay themselves first by regularly putting money aside to save or invest.

Why? Savings is important for a variety of situations such as emergency expenses, annual expenses such as income taxes, Christmas/ birthday gifts and for relocating after college. Could you come up with $3,000 in a few days-without using a credit card or borrowing? A Wall Street Journal/NBC News poll indicated 71 percent of 18 to 24 year olds and 51 percent of 35 to 49 year olds could not. Ann Diamond, author of Fear of Finance, counsels, "You have to treat saving ... as part of your basic monthly expenses."

Locally, First Federal Bank of Idaho offers a 2-year Add-On certificate of deposit, currently paying 6 percent simple interest (6.14 annual percentage yield). For $100 you can purchase this CD. Any amount can be deposited at any time. Any withdrawal will be charged 3 months interest but only on the amount withdrawn. Compared to a savings account earning 3.25 percent simple inter-est, the Add-On CD will benefit you if you keep the funds in it 7 months or longer. If you don't have $100 available, a savings account can be opened at Global Federal Credit Union or Latah Federal Credit Union for a very small amount. Inquire about their membership criteria. A suggestion is begin a savings account, sacrifice non-essentials, deposit that "sacrificial" money into your saving account. When the account reaches $125 arrange for a $100 Add-On CD. Keep adding your "sacrificial" money to your CD.

Treat savings as one of your regular monthly expenses. You'll be glad you paid yourself first!

Debit Cards are not credit cards

Though they look alike, don't confuse debit cards with credit cards. A debit card is issued by your financial institution. A debit card debits or withdraws the amount of purchase from your checking or savings account immediately. You may already use a debit card at automated teller machines, but you can arrange to use them at grocers and most businesses that take credit cards.

In contrast, credit cards delay your payment. They are available from retail businesses (such as K-Mart and Chevron) and financial institutions. The vast majority of the 25,000 financial institutions that issue credit cards are affiliated with Visa International or the Interbank Card Association, which issues MasterCard. Though you may bank at a local financial institution, you may choose to apply for a credit card from an out of state financial institution. For a list of banks offering credit cards with low finance charges, send $1, check or money order, to BankCard Holders of America, 560 Herndon Parkway, Suite 120, Herndon, VA 22070. Request "Low Interest Rate List." The March, 1995, issue of Money available at the UI Library, lists several banks with low interest credit cards.

Prime Rate: It can make a difference on your credit card bill!

Prime rate is a type of interest rate frequently associated with credit card information. It is the rate that banks charge large corporations. It tends to be an industry wide rate with most banks quoting the same prime rate at any given time. Second, the prime rate is variable or fluctuates. The annual average prime rate in 1980 was 15.26 percent. In 1992 it was 6.25 percent.

Inserted in a recent issue of the Argonaut was an application for a Discover credit card. A section of the application was titled Important INFOrmation, variable rate information. It stated: "Your Annual Percentage Rate (APR) may vary. The rate is determined for each billing period by the highest Prime Rate reported in The Wall Street Journal on the last business day of the previous month plus a fixed amount of percentage points as fol-lows: Intitial year and Best Rate— Prime Rate plus 8.9 percentage points

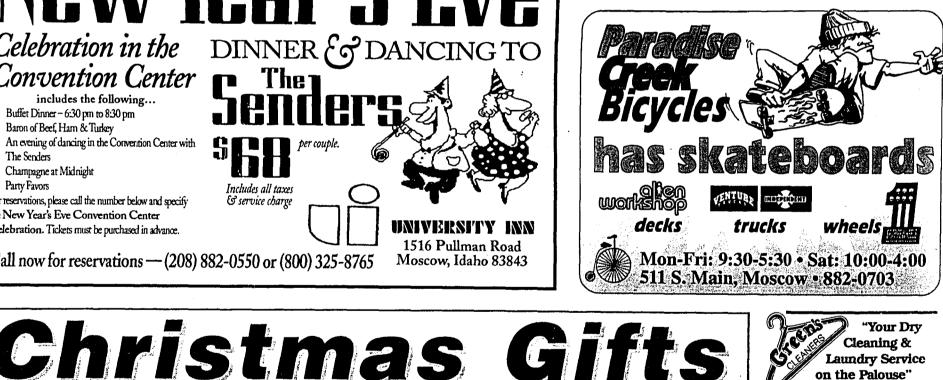

A variable interest rate on your credit card will mean an APR which can change monthly. If you carry credit card debt from month to month, rising prime rates will mean increasing interest costs to you. If you carry a balance from month to month you may want to shop for a fixed APR rate. A recent Visa credit card application from First USA Bank featured a fixed APR of 5.9 percent until March 1, 1996, at which time a 13.99 percent fixed APR would be effective. Washington officials also still find it difficult to compete on price. Daiei is selling a 7.7-ounce apple for 78 yen (about 77 cents) but it's possible to buy a much larger Japanese apple in a bag of four or six for around 100 yen (or just under $1) apiece.

It is easy to bash a school and find fault with the administration, teachers and students, but here at the University of Idaho there are many people working hard to make this university a special place. It is time for me to move on the "real world," but before I do I have a few more things to say.

I have had many positive experiences here. Even when I didn't think there was any way for things to work out, someone, somewhere has turned it around for me. From administration to co-workers, there has always been a place to go. I want to take this opportunity to give these people a pat on the back and let them know their hard work and caring is felt, even if we forget to tell them how much.

I want to thank the professors in the English department for caring about their students. Never have I had the access to professors that I have here. If I needed help, they were there. They all deserve a big thank you so...THANK YOU!

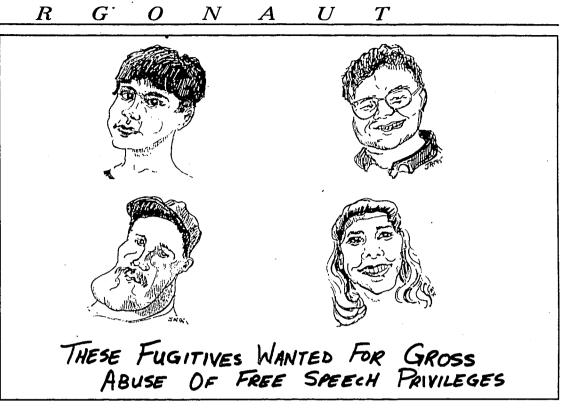

The Outdoor Program has given me opportunities to experience things I might never have done. From rafting to hiking in southern Utah, they worked hard to make the trip go smoothly. They were always available to give me information for articles and tips for stories. I will miss them and owe them a beer and a THANK YOU!

Next is Financial Aid. Yes, the Financial Aid Office. My counselor went out of his way to ensure I'd survive here and got the financing I needed to pay my tuition and bills. He never made me feel like a number...THANK YOU!

Even someone in Administration went out on a limb and helped me when I thought for sure I would never survive the semester. She treated me like an individual and not just another unhappy student. She knows who she is so no names are necessary, but I never felt she understood how much her help meant to me so ... THANK YOU!

Then, last but not least, the staff of the Argonaut. These people work hard to bring you this paper and I have never worked with a group of people so devoted to their work. I will miss them very much. They gave me the opportunity to express my opinion, bring the outdoors to many people and always supported me, even when I goofed. If you don't think they work hard, ask any editor, reporter or photographer how much time they put in, on top of their full course loads and, in many cases, other jobs. You might be surprised. THANK YOU to each and every one of you for working so hard.

I have only been here since last fall, but these people all gave me an education in more than just how to write; they reminded me that people are out there who are willing to put themselves on the line for you and back you up when you need it. We should be proud of UI and the individuals who make it such a good school in more ways than one. Adios UI! —Jennifer Swift ou better watch out, you better not cry, you better not pout, I'm tellin' you why—Santa Claus is coming to town."

The reason for the season

When you think of Christmas and the holiday season, what crosses your mind? Do you dream of the "White Christmas" Bing Crosby sings about, the gifts you'll be receiving and how much you'll get to party?

If you answered yes, you're mostly likely normal. Most people do see the Christmas season as a time to have fun, a time to receive gifts and PARTY. After all, that is what Christmas is all about.

Or is there another reason for Christmas?

"He's making a list, checkin' it twice, gonna find out who's been naughty or nice-Santa Claus is coming to town.'

So if giving gifts, wanting snow and partying aren't the reasons for the season, then what is? A 1993 Gallup Poll showed that 80 percent of people living in the United States believed in God.

What does it mean? According to the survey, of those believing in God, 65 percent believed that Christmas was the celebration of the birth of Christ. That means that...well, a whole lot of people think there is another reason for having Christmas besides all the normal reasons listed above. I am one of those millions of people. Every Christmas my family goes to church on Christmas morning. We start the day off remembering the true reason people have Christmas.

But this is just a part of the day. Several years ago, after an especially rough Christmas, I sat down and wrote my reflections in a journal. One of the things I realized was that we were so intent on our own feelings, wanting the perfect Christmas with all the decorations and gifts, that when it came down to the true point, the real meaning of Christmas had been left out.

Sad to say, most people tend to forget the real reason we are celebrating. I have to admit, there have been times when I have been so excited about the new ski package I got that I focused on what my mom gave me.

I didn't stop to think about the gift someone else gave me. The greatest gift of all. A gift that has changed the lives of millions.

To me, Christ is the entire reason for the season. He has made my life complete.

"He sees you when you're sleeping, he knows when you're awake, he knows if you've been bad or good, so be good for goodness sake."

11

Families these days don't pass on the good news about Christ, the real reason for the season. They're content to let kids grow up believing in Santa Claus and the coming-down-the-chimney routine.

Children get wrapped up with the cool clothes mom bought or the wonderful Power Ranger toy they found in their stocking. They grow up believing—until smacked with the cold truth about the man in the red suit-Santa is the allknowing, all-seeing man and if they are bad, oh boy, they're in for a lousy Christmas. A lump of coal in their stockingis all they will get.

Don't get me wrong. It's OK to have fun. It's great to see faces of children break into smiles of awe when they see the neat things under the tree. It's nice to relax after finals, see your family and play in the snow. Meanwhile, don't lose sight of what gives us a reason to celebrate.

Has Christmas become the time of year for receiving? For being so focused on me me me? Does this make the holiday season unbearable? Is that why so many people go into depression during this season?

I understand the fact that there are people who don't believe in SEE SEASON PAGE 13

This isn't just your ordinary 'goodbye cruel world' column

ince this is my last semester sationalism. I caught your attention many times-on television, in year I've been writing columns for of classes before I graduate, I really wanted to write a column about how grateful I am, what kind of education I received, blah, blah, blah, yadda, yadda, yadda. But, this would probably bore you to tears, so I won't do it.

However, since I'm not going to write a column celebrating my last semester of classes, I'm forced to admit I really have no clue as to what I'm going to write about ... so bear with me.

Since my wife isn't home, I could write something blatantly misogynistic.

Nah. She'd read it in the paper, and then I'd really suffer because I hadn't given her the chance to pull the plug on the column.

Let's see...since there are so few blacks on campus, I could write something really racist (especially since I'll be moving in a week).

Nah. It just isn't in me to do this either.

What about an anti-Semitic column? This would blend well with the rest of the nation's perception of north Idaho, but I don't really know all that much about Jews, so I don't know if I could do this very effectively.

I know. I'll run excerpts of the paper I just wrote for Professor McKeever's English 112 class. This would be much safer than the . previous options and easier to do since I have the paper stored on my computer's hard drive. Nah, too boring.

Okay. I'll get to my point. Quite often we media types get caught up in sensationalism, in what sells more papers so our advertising reps can make more money on their commission sales (this last part is a joke-kind of). In case you're missing my point, what you've just read above is senby suggesting I was going to do something naughty or which would go against the conventional wisdom of society by writing misogynistic, racist or anti-Semitic comments. (Just for the record, I am not misogynistic, racist or anti-Semitic: I was using these comments as a rhetorical tool.)

Beth Rayner and I were having a talk about this on Tuesday, and she got me to thinking about the media and sensationalism.

In last Tuesday's column, I took Ryan Gibler, a music student, to task for using graphic photos to promote his senior recital-which had nothing to do with the photos. He was using a technique marketing majors call "shock advertising." Or what we media types call "sensationalism."

What Gibler did, relative to what many major media organizations are doing today, wasn't all that bad. In fact, I bet it didn't even register on the Richter scale of ethics. After all, he was merely using a tactic he has probably seen displayed many, newspapers, and in magazinesand on a much larger scale.

But this is the trap, the downside to living in a society based on capitalism: quite often the issues of ideals and money are conflated to the point where it becomes difficult to separate the two for people who are in the business of selling something to earn their living. Sometimes our ideals are all about money

And this isn't good.

However, this is the problem: television shows, newspapers and magazines will continue to engage in sensationalism as long as consumers continue to snap it up in ever-increasing quantities.

"Well, then," I can hear some people saying, "there ought to be a law."

Um...no. There are too many laws already.

All of us should begin engaging in something called personal responsibility. And I think I've mentioned this once or twice in the this rag: if you're complaining about the quality (or lack thereof) of TV programming or news articles, then turn off the television set, change the channel, don't buy the magazine anymore, or cancel your subscription to the paper.

And then tell the people who run these businesses why you did what you did. Convince your friends to do the same. Tell these managers and owners of media that sensationalism won't sell anymore; tell them, in fact, that sensationalism will soon begin to cost them money and drive them out of business.

Why do this? Because in our society, money talks and bullshit walks, and if all you're doing is complaining, then you're walking. Know what I mean?

Speaking of which, I believe I'm beginning to lapse into the latter of the two categories, so I'll shut up now. Good luck to all of you. Now I'm off to influence your children as a future high school teacher (kinda scary, isn't it?).

Advertisements a mistake

In recent GEM advertisements, we have run photographs of students in unusual places.

Unfortunately, we were unaware of the ethics behind running such advertisements. It has been called to our attention that it is unethical to run these advertisements without contacting the students appearing in these photographs.

While this may seem elementary to those within the journalistic and advertising realms, our logic behind running these advertisements was that since the photographs are appearing in the yearbook, it was also acceptable for them to appear in our advertisements. This is not the case.

In the future, we will contact students before they appear in our advertisements. If a student cannot be contacted, we will not run the advertisement. Furthermore, we are in the process of creating a specific policy dealing with our advertising procedure.

We apologize for any problems this may have caused to students appearing in our advertising. —Jennifer S. McFarland that the issue of abortion will "NEVER BE RESOLVED! NOT EVER! NEVER NEVER NEVER NEVER !" Gee, you think so?

You are not a male basher-you just can't pick relevant topics to talk about. As much as it turns me on to hear about women "kickin' ass," I find it improbable that such a column about girls (yeah, girls) would be accepted.

Your column about male bonding was mortally flawed to say the least. Did you discuss shallow sorority girls' propensity toward beer and good-looking men? Are you willing to admit that girls are capable of being just as shallow as men?

Your answer to my original query was interesting, and I guess I should have asked you out to dinner, as dating seems to be your primary rationale for writing this column. But lack of ideas should never be a problem. Is the world too boring for you? Do you find the Bosnian crisis to be someone else's problem? Are the Republicans in Congress and our incompetent President not interesting enough, or too irrelevant for you? Shallow columns can only get you so far, and I think you were there about Sept. 12.

Your opposition to the economic development of Sandpoint was not only irrational, but ill-conceived, as you had not a single fact or statistic to support your hastily-obtained conclusion. At least do some research, for God's sake.

Your indignation at Proposition One was completely irrational, and I am still trying to figure out your "exaggerations" that you find so humorous. "All blond haired, blue-eyed children will receive A's in history." "Jews, African-Americans and Asians will have unlimited access to pregnancy termination." "No more immigrants, this land belongs to the white male!" If this is how you believe that the "right wing" thinks, then someone should kick your ignorant, bigoted ass right out the door.

Help end the slaughter

Each day 10,000 human babies are born in the United States, and each day over 70,000 puppies and kittens are born: as long as the birth rates of companion animals (cats and dogs) are of such staggering proportions, there will never be enough homes for all of them.

In February, 1994, the Washington State Senate passed a resolution calling for a voluntary, one year moratorium on the "casual indiscriminate or unplanned breeding of cats and dogs," in our state. This resolution, supported by us, the Companion Animal Aid and Placement Society (CAAPS), was introduced by Senator Sylvia Skratek.

The reported number of dogs and cats put to death in U.S. shelters in one year exceeds 30 million. Of course, this number needs to be viewed as a minimum because many shelters did not respond to the survey on which this report is based.

Many puppies, kittens, dogs and cats die outside the shelters (Cat panion animals roam urban and rural areas. They die of disease, starvation, in traffic accidents, are prey to other animals or are killed by humans. This mass killing of innocent companion animals, most of which were young and healthy, must be stopped. Pet overpopulation can be avoided.

Firstly, people, including very young children, must be made aware of the enormity of this tragedy, which is preventable. Pets must be neutered. They should not be allowed to breed even once. Neutering will solve the enormous overpopulation. It also lowers the odds of breast cancer, prostate problems and decreases roaming and attendant accidents.

I would like to appeal to the national consciousness of all breeders with the plea to stop breeding for at least one year.

Currently non-game funding is raised through specialized license plates, check-offs on tax return forms and individual donations. Although this generates some money, it is not substantial and unpredictable. Programs cannot be maintained because of the fluctuation in incoming money

The Fish and Wildlife Conservation Enhancement Act is modeled after two previous acts: the Pittman-Robertson for game animals and the Dingle-Johnson for game fish. Game species receive money from a tax on firearms, hunting gear and fishing gear.

The fee would benefit all people who purchase outdoor products through educational projects, habitat research and improvement, recreational facilities and a preservation of non-game animals enjoyed in non-consumptive uses.

Christ. People celebrate Hannukah, others celebrate nothing. There are folks who find Christmas as another reason to party.

But this isn't the point I'm trying to make. For those of you who believe in Christ, I urge you to step outside of the Christmas norms our society seems to have set up. Consider what Christmas has . become to you. Has it lost its meaning? If so, it is never too late to start over. As I did long ago, evaluate what takes priority in your life this time of year. Remember the gift given to you and cherish it with your heart. You may have a new song to sing. "Joy to the world, the Lord is come. Let earth receive her king. Let every heart prepare him room. And heaven and nature sing, and heaven and nature sing, and heaven...and heaven...and nature sing!"

FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE

FALL 1995-96

Regular classrooms will be used for the exam unless instructors make special arrangements through the Registrar's Office. In order to avoid conflicts, rooms must be reserved in the Registrar's Office for "common final" exams. Instructors will announce to their classes rooms to be used for all sectioned classes having common final exams. No quizzes or exams shall be given in lecture-recitation periods during the week before the final examination week. Exams in lab periods and in physical education activity classes, final in-class essays in English composition classes, and final oral presentations in speech classes are permitted that week. Announcements of time and room should be made by the instructor for all exams. Instructors must meet their classes during the exam period for which they are scheduled in the final exam week, either for an exam or a final class session. Instructors may deviate from the approved schedule only upon recommendation of the college dean and prior approval of the provost.

Women's Center schedules musical noon ike a scene from the Pied Piper, people slowly gathered in the Student Union Vandal Lounge, mesmerized by the sounds of Bacchanalia.

Introspective lyrics on perceptions of life combined with strong acoustics entertained the crowd last Wednesday for the UI Women's Center first musical noon program. The Women's Center plans on hosting a regular musical noon program on the last Wednesday of every month.

"We want to feature the achievements and interests of a variety of people," says Susan Palmer, educational programmer at the Women's Center. Palmer says that since most noon programs have an intense academic focus, featuring a musical program will offer a fresh and light alternative.

The harmony of Bacchanalia may be indicative of the web of the relationships within the group. Tristan Trotter, a senior English major at UI sings with her sister Gia Trotter. Tristan's fiancé, Jeff Moyer, plays guitar, harmonica and vocals. Rob Weston plays bass and Tyler Mallory also plays guitar.

The band has played their original, acoustic, contemporary folk and rock at the Beanery on occasion as well as and several parties. Bacchanalia made up their name almost on a whim.

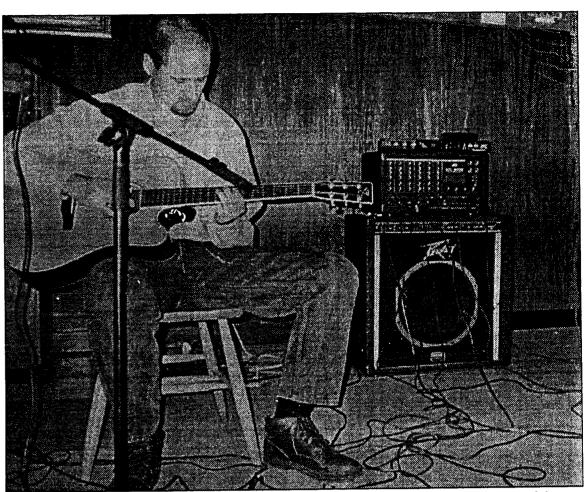

"When we named ourselves we just sort of thought it was funny," says Moyer. Bacchus, the Greek god of wine is always into pleasure. "Bacchanalia is like a big orgy of pleasure," says Tristan. "We'd at least like to think of ourselves as pleasurable."

However, the band is more than pleasing. The Trotter sisters' voices are therapeutic and the instrumentals moving. With simple titles like "Injury," "Authors," and "Seafire," the band's lyrics make the listener examine the little things in life that are really what make life what it is. "Speaking of Little Things," another one of their songs that is perfect to listen to when you're certain nothing else could go wrong with your life.

"Posters" was written by Moyer when, while looking through the classifieds for a job, glanced at his poster-plastered wall and decided to instead write a song. Bacchanalia is a delight to listen Bacchanalia is a delight to listen to and their music is proof they take delight in playing. Watch for future noon musical programs.

Women's Center Programs are open to all members of the community and are held every Tuesday and Wednesday at 12:30-1:20 p.m.

Oleson recieves Idaho Writer-in-Residence Award

Matt Baldwin

Staff

After assaulting the reading community for over 25 years with a multitude of short stories, poetry, essays, novels and other work, Director of Creative Writing Lance Olsen has received Idaho's highest literary award, the Idaho Writer-in-Residence.

The award goes back to 1923 when governor C.C. Moore appointed the first Poet Laureate for life in Idaho. That person was Irene Welch Grissom. She lived until 1946. Then Sudie Stuart Hagger came in and was laureate until 1982 and then the governor decided to appoint a five member panel of Idahoans and three western poets. They recommended that there should be a selection of a writer-in-residence to serve a two year term.

An author has to submit an application including history, publishing record and other pertinent information and a tape of them reading.

"The way somebody gets the award is there is a panel and the writers in Idaho submit work and the panel reads the work anonymously and makes a decision," Olsen said. Olsen submitted pieces from his soon-to-be-released novel Burnt and short fiction. The panel is made up of published authors.

Olsen was born in New Jersey and raised in Venezuela for a few years, then returned to New Jersey where he spent the rest of his childhood. The genre that Olsen plays within the most is cyberpunk, a break-off from the science-fiction world. Yet he also frequents many other genres and hasnot strictly adhered to the world of sci-fi.

The Idaho Commission on the Arts awards the Writer-in-Residence. It entails numerous readings done by Olsen around the state and a $10,000 dollar grant. Olsen officially takes over as the Writer-in-Residence on Jan. 1,1996.

The Writer-in-Residence will be awarded Dec. 21 in a proclamation made by Governor Phil Batt. The ceremony will be held in the Governor's office in Boise.

"There is currently an exciting, fresh interest in literature in Idaho which is unprecedented in our state's history. This literature represents the rich diversity of our state in choice of subject, approaches, landscape and division. I believe that arts should be the heart of the culture and these are really tough times for them and I'm delighted to have been selected to be part of this moment," Olsen said.

Olsen is the author of such books as, Live from Earth(1991), My Date with Franz(1993) and Tonguing the Zeitgeist(1994). Tonguing the Zeitgeist was a finalist for the Philip K. Dick award, science-fiction's highest accolade for best science-fiction book. He is also the author of the first literary study of William Gibson, the god-father of cyberpunk, author of Neuromancer, Count Zero and others.

Rent-a-chef offers meals from around world

Valaree Johnson

The International Programs Office is offering a different way to add a taste of culture to your life.

For a unique gift or for a great dinner party IPO is presenting Rent-A-Chef. For a fee of $20 per head, student chefs from countries such as India, Russia, El Salvador and Japan will come to your home armed with all the necessary ingredients and talent to prepare a meal.

"It's a wonderful way to support the university and gain a taste of culture," says Anjum Sadiq who is coordinating the menus. The money raised will go towards the Foreign/International Scholarship Endowment fund which aids in the academia of foreign students. "International students do not have access to the financial aid that traditional students do," says Sadiq. The fund has been successful at helping those struggling students out. Rent-A-Chef is offering 27 different menus from 22 different countries. Whether you want a small intimate dinner with exotic cuisine or just want to get a group together to try a global meal from places like China, Norway, Argentina, Pakistan, Venezuela or Africa, Rent-A-Chef can provide all the preparation. Rent-A-Chef is new this year and is being provided in addition to the prepared Thanksgiving dinner that has been offered in the past. "Our menus have fabulous reviews," says Sadiq. While arrangements can be made now, meal preparation won't begin until after the holidays.

Cougs squeak out victory at foul line hen you play a basketball game, the outcome is determined on the hardwood or the contest wouldn't be played, or at least this is what's supposed to happen.

When the Vandals took the court Tuesday evening, they were supposed to match their skills against Palouse rival Washington State's, but they forgot to factor in the referees in an NCAA women's basketball 72-71 nonconference loss.

After trailing by as many as 14 during the first half, Idaho put forth another exhibition on rallying, cutting the score to 42-36 at the half. The start of the second half was a direct replica of the first, as Idaho came out shooting poorly and once again finding itself down by double figures at 10. Enter Michelle Greenwood. The Spokane, Wash. native scored six of Idaho's first 11 second half points, including four in a row to cut the Cougar lead to six at 53-47.

Idaho was down between six and eight points for the majority of the second half, before turning up the defensive pressure to force the Cougars into costly turnovers. Idaho cut the Wazzu lead to three at 71-68 with a 1:12 left in the game. Jade Hyett went to the line for the Cougs with 47 seconds left, but missed the free throw, unfortunately for Idaho the Cougars Jenni Ruff pulled down the rebound to reset the shot clock for the Cougs. With 26.6 seconds remaining and Washington State University still in control of the ball, Cougar coach Harold Rhodes called a timeout. This timeout allowed Idaho to put together a play for its next possesion and that is exactly what it did.

On the inbound pass, Wazzu's Ruff took the ball to the hoop with eight seconds remaining on the shot clock, but missed a layin. Idaho rebounded the ball and moved up the floor quickly to run the play, they were able to set up on the W.S.U. timeout. With what appeared to be a double screen just below the arc, Idaho rubbed Ari Skorpik free for a 21 footer that hit nothing but the bottom of the net with 6.2 seconds left in the contest.

When Wazzu inbounded, Hyett looked as if she carried the ball, but it was left uncalled. As she penetrated toward the bucket, Greenwood seemed to have great position on defense, but was whistled for a foul with one tenth of a second left on the clock. Hyett went to the line and missed the front end of the two shot foul, but meshed the second to set the final score at 72-71.

Idaho was once again led in scoring by Mindy Rice with 28, followed by Greenwood and Skorpik with 12 and 11 points respectively. Although Idaho shot a season best 92 percent from the line, it was unable to reach the charity stripe

Basketball on the Palouse will get a shot in the arm Saturday night when the Idaho Vandals (3-2) make the eight-mile trek to Pullman to face the Washington State Cougars (4-1) in the annual Border Battle at Friel Court. Tipoff is set for 7 p.m.

The Vandals will try to become the first non-PAC-10 foe to hand the Cougars a loss in Pullman since 1989, a span of 26 nonleague games. Incidentally, Idaho was the last outof-conference opponent to accomplish the feat, picking up a 56-52 triumph on ESPN six years ago. The Vandals also upset the Cougs 87-77 last year in the Kibbie Dome.

"I think it will help them (WSU) pyschologically. There's a certain revenge motive," Idaho coach Joe Cravens said. "I think they not only would like to avenge the loss, but they'd like to beat us as bad as they can."

The Cougars roughed up another Big Sky foe earlier this week, dropping the Montana Grizzlies 98-87 Wednesday. Washington State, they're shooting. We have to keep them from shooting the way they did against Montana," Cravens said. "They create a lot of problems; they're a very talented team."

There is no lack of firepower for the Cougs. Washington State returns its top six scorers from last season's NIT quarterfinal club.

NBA scouts are taking a long look at 6-foot 9-inch Mark Hendrickson. The forward is averaging 17.5 points a game and 10.5 rebounds per contest. Until Wedensday's matchup with Montana, Hendrickson had posted double figures in scoring in 17 straight games. The Mount Vernon, Wash. native led the PAC-10 in field goal percentage last winter and was a first team all-league pick.

Junior guard Isaac Fontaine leads the Cougars in scoring, averaging 19.3 points a game. Another junior, point-guard Donminic Ellison is chipping in 13 points a game. Senior guard Shamon Antrum was the PAC-10's newcomer of the year last sea-

'Quasi-coach' does it all for Idaho hoops

Jason Ficca has been an integral part of Vandal basketball success over the past four years.

Damon Barkdull

Often times, during a successful basketball season the head coach or a key player will get all of the credit for a winning season, leaving little room for words of congrats to the little guys in the athletic department— little guys like Jason Ficca.

Ficca, a Moscow native, currently holds several different job titles within the University of Idaho basketball program.

"I don't know what the technical job title is for what I do," Ficca said with half a smile. "I don't know if there is one."

Actually, among other things, Ficca's position has been labeled several different ways— including graduate assistant coach, student coach, team manager and administrative assistant.

"The way the rules go nowadays, they don't have any more graduate assistants," Ficca said. "If they had one, I'd be it. I'm basically a quasicoach, which is a pretty applicable term for what I do."

What Ficca does could be viewed as extraordinary.

Besides being almost an assistant coach—as far as being down on the floor with the players—Ficca initiates film exchanges and watches films to scout other teams playing. He also manages to do a great deal of work in his tiny office in the athletic department at the Kibbie Dome, where he makes phone calls to other colleges and completes certain administrative duties.

"He (UI coach Joe Cravens) gives me a lot of responsibility," Ficca said. "If I mess up, it's probably not going to cost him his job, but anything I do is directed at winning, which results in him keeping his job."

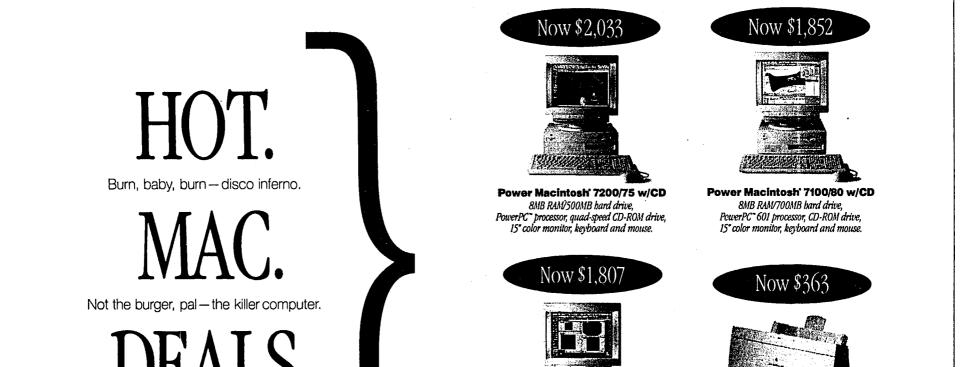

Four years ago, when Ficca started out, he didn't have the responsibilities and respect that he has now.

"I'm glad I don't have to sweep anymore. Basically, my job has been to do whatever they told me," Ficca said. "Now I've got people under me, where if they tell me to sweep the floor I can tell them to sweep the floor."

Although Ficca isn't going anywhere fast, he's doing something he loves—being involved with college basketball. Even when the Moscow native was playing for his high

Fall intramurals close out with semes

Michael Stetson Staff

No more class, the bookstore buying back text books, finals winding down, loading the car, wrapping presents, all sure signs that the end of the fall semester is near. But the end of the semester means more than a hasty retreat home. For several weekend athletes and former high school heroes, the beginning of the holiday break means half the intramural schedule has slipped away.

Tuesday, champions for the fall events celebrated in the semi-annual intramural social; the official close to the first half of the sports year for campus recreation and the intramural department. New champions received their intramural championship T-shirts as a souvenir. They were designed by two Alpha Kappa Lambda members, Ian Kramer and Ian Donavon.

The social marked the end to what intramural director Greg Morrison calls a great semester saying that "we had new winners in all the divisions. We had some upsets and some exciting games and matches."

Morrison said participation numbers have been up all semester and participants have been more polite, competitive and also understand and respect the new rating system.

"The participants have been wonderful, they know that the official is gonna mess up a call, but the University of Idaho students realize and understand that," Morrison said.

Morrison also credits the officials for a great semester saying, "We have a great bunch of officials who work their butts off for us. From the amount of grief they get, and the amount of pay, you can tell they truly love the games."

Despite the great first semester, Morrison looks to improve, stressing he always sets his expectations high. One goal that Morrison would like to accomplish relates to living group participation.

"We have strong Greek involvement, but we need more involvement from the residence halls." However, creating that change currently has Morrison puzzled.

Looking to make more changes, like the new corec floor hockey league, Morrison invites students to offer suggestions. Students who would like to make a new suggestion should talk with Morrison, who will bring any suggestion to the intramural executive board for further consideration.

The board, which is made up of a faculty/staff member, two intramural graduate assistants and students voted on at the year's first living group managers meeting, makes all decisions on new events, along with rule charges, complaints, appeals and petitions regarding intramural sports. Morrison said he uses this groups' advice 99.9 percent of the time unless their decision conflicts with university procedures or policy, which has never happened before.

Morrison reminds students, faculty and staff that the entry deadline is Jan. 23, 1996, one week after classes begin. Morrison hopes to have at least 150 teams signed up by that time.

Because of the high number, Morrison also offers a plea for officials. new Anyone wishing to officiate basketball needs to attend an intramural officials' clinic on Wednesday 24, Jan. 1996 at 4 p.m. in the Memorial Gym. The clinic will last about an hour and a half, followed by about two hours of on court training. Every official must go through this training, regardless of when they apply to officiate.

Other dates to remember for this spring include Jan. 24, which is the entry deadline for co-rec volleyball, Jan. 25 which is the entry deadline for singles' racquetball and the next intramural managers' meeting. Teams should go to room 204 in Memorial Gym, the intramural sports office, to receive an entry form and individual event rules.

"I'd like to coach at the college level," Ficca said with total seriousness. "It's difficult to do, but educationally, that's where I've directed myself, that's what I'm committed to right now."

Ficca is concentrating now on finishing up his master's in sports management and come spring, the do it-all guy will be looking for a paid coaching position at the college level. Not that he doesn't get paid now, well, you could say a week's pay is pretty pathetic.

Canada kicks it NBA style

Associated Press

VANCOUVER, British Columbia—In Toronto, the fans are learning not to holler and yell when their team is shooting free throws. In Vancouver, they are being ever so patient with a team that's lost an expansion record 18 in a row.

There's no blue line and no goalie. Most of the players still have their front teeth. But Canadians seem to love this new game.

"I've played hockey all my life, and I love hockey," said 27-yearold Andy Cave, who sat a few rows from the court at Sunday night's first all-Canada NBA game. "But I'd much rather go to a Grizzlies game over a Canucks game. The crowds are into it more. There are more things going on."

Even that losing streak, capped by the Grizzlies' 93-81 loss to Toronto Sunday, hasn't doused the enthusiasm in Vancouver, at least not yet.

"Right now, it's great just to have a team," Cave said.

The NBA did mountains of research before deciding to bring Toronto and Vancouver into the extremely successful world of professional basketball. Still, everyone involved is surprised at how quickly Canadians have taken to the game.

"They're excited about it, especially the kids," Toronto forward Willie Anderson said. "They are really excited about basketball coming to Canada. I thought it would be a big adjustment and take some time for it to hit because of Canada being dominated by hockey.

ey. "I thought it would take at least a couple of years before basketball would really catch on. But it's caught on quick."

Toronto's Raptors, playing in the cavernous SkyDome, are third in the NBA in attendance at just over 21,500 per game. The crowds have been big, even when going headto-head with the NHL's Maple Leafs.

"I think we played three nights head to head and we've drawn 18,000, 21,000 and 21,000," Raptors owner John Bitove said.

Coach Brendan Malone said even the SkyDome staff has been won over by the new game in town.

"The people who work at the arena who are hockey fans are surprised at how quick and how fastpaced the game is," Malone said. In Vancouver, a much smaller

In Vancouver, a much smaller market than Toronto, the Grizzlies are 11th in the NBA in attendance at 17,298 and are drawing as well as the NHL's Canucks. Both the basketball and hockey teams have the same owner and both play in the new General Motors Place arena, affectionately known by the locals as The Garage.

The fans are still learning the nuances of the game.

On opening night, the Grizzlies distributed a booklet titled "The Bear Facts A to Z Basketball Primer." Malone has held two clinics for the local media, showing tapes to explain such NBA subtleties as the illegal defense call.

The Raptors have been highly competitive at home, and the Toronto fans, known in other sports for their lack of enthusiasm, have been loudly supportive.

They also seem to have learned, finally, that they shouldn't yell and wave their arms when their own team is shooting free throws.

"After the whole bench jumped up and said, 'Hey, be quiet,' they figured it out after awhile," Raptors forward Tracy Murray said.

Jackson and Toronto general manager Isiah Thomas know the novelty eventually will wear off and the teams will be expected to win.

"The honeymoon won't end for a couple of years," Bitove said. "But it's like any other sport. If you don't progress from year to year, you're going to run into problems, so we know what we have to do."

Super Bowl Theme Park set

Associated Press

TEMPE—For some fans, the NFL Experience might be the closest they get to the Super Bowl in January.

So for the first time in its 5year history, the pro football interactive theme park will be open seven days over a two-week period, NFL officials announced Tuesday as some younger fans gave it a test run.

The NFL Experience will cover 20 acres along the Rio Salado Parkway adjacent to Sun Devil Stadium, site of the Jan. 28 Super Bowl.

Children and adults can test their skills on more than 60 interactive games and activities, attend clinics and card shows, and view numerous exhibits.

Tony Bailey, 11, tried out a chute and harness which simulates making a run for the goal line and being halted by defenders. "It sort hurts," he said as it stopped him short. "You don't expect it when it jerks you back."

It took Alicia Stroble, 11, six tries as she dodged through inflatable "defenders" while attempting to snag a pass shot her way by machine. "Finally," she shouted as she cut to the right and snagged the aerial.

Ryan Freeman, who tried on an NFL uniform, pads and all, was dubious. "It's pretty big," the 76pound 11-year-old said.

Up to 50,000 people per day are expected to pass through the NFL Experience, which will run from Jan. 19-21 and Jan. 25-28.

"Since its inception in 1991, more than one million visitors have attended," said Don Garber, vice president of business development-special events for NFL Properties. "It'll enable all area residents to be part of the excitement of the Super Bowl, whether they have a ticket to the game or not."

The Super Bowl has been sold out for months.

Proceeds from the NFL Experience will go toward building a Youth Education Town here. Similar education and recreation facilities have been built in Los Angeles, Miami and Atlanta after those cities hosted the Super Bowl.

Stuntman's daredevil show transcends past

tuntman's euphonious parallel lead guitar sound may be reminiscent of its former incarnation, Treepeople, but don't expect these Boise natives to dwell on the past.

Singers/song-writers/guitarists Scott Schmaljohn and John Polle have breathed fresh air into the charred ashes they left behind as Treepeople and have since reinvented themselves with immensely tight and straight forward rock songs with the help of bassist Sean Lennon and drummer Mike Rundell.

Stuntman played at Washington State University's Butch's Den last Friday along with Seattle's Flake and The Gimmick from Pullman.

For Lennon and Polle the show was sort of a homecoming. The two had previously been paired together in Thin Section while attending WSU. Schmaljohn and his former bandmates in Treepeople had also been frequent visitors to the Palouse. Polle also shared guitar duties with Schmaljohn on the final Treepeople album. Stuntman's tight energetic live show recently landed them an appearance at South by Southwest, a musical showcase of up and coming bands held every year in Austin, Texas.

South by Southwest provided the band an opportunity to show off their talent to somewhat larger audiences then they have been accustomed to. Stuntman also caught the eye of several record label executives and before long they were entertaining offers for eight album contracts from Alias records.

"Alias wanted eight records, but as a band who'd never recorded anything you don't want to sign label, Link originally wanted four albums but we decided on one," Schmaljohn said.

With that deal signed Stuntman also released a trio of independent singles for several smaller labels. "The Right Channel" was the first, mixing the duo talents of Polle and Schmaljohn's furious finger work with thundering rhythms from

HIS WEEKEND ON THE PALOUSE

he past five days are collectively known as "dead week." Fortunately, this pre-exam weekend couldn't be more alive.

Local mainstay Suicide Kings will grace the stage at Cadillac Jack's both tonight and tomorrow night in shows that will cost $3. The tavern requires that all patrons be at least 21 to view the 9:30 p.m. performances. Cadillac Jack's is located at 112 N. Main. The Combine Mall in Pullman will feature both Flycatcher and The Gimmick tonight in a free concert. The shows begin at 8 p.m. Johnny Bravo will once again be playing at the Capricorn both nights this weekend, with both shows starting at 9 p.m. Cover is $2 at the 123 N. Main venue. Again, you have to be 21 to get inside.

John's Alley, 114 E. 6th, will feature Professor Dumb tonight, while both The Cunninghams and the group Fat Daddy will be kicking it Saturday night. Shows start at 9 p.m. and have 21-or-older age limit. The cover will be $3.

If local rock isn't your thing, the Washington Idaho Symphony will be having its third concert of the season, entitled "The Gift of Music." The performance will include Beethoven's Symphony No. 4 and Debussy's Afternoon of a Faun, as well as chorale presentations of several favorite Christmas carols. The concert will be Sunday, Dec. 17, at Lewiston High School at 3 p.m. and Monday, Dec. 18, at Gladish Auditorium in Pullman at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for college students and children.

Finally, several movies open tonight. Jumanji, starring Robin Williams, Heat, starring Al Pacino and Robert DeNiro, and 12 Monkeys with Bruce Willis all begin what will probably be a long run at the box office.

LC's Brew Review: Another beer smorgasbord

Erik Marone Staff

It's been a few weeks since the last brew review, but I was on special assignment in the Himalayas with my wife, Morgan Fairchild. Yeah, that's the ticket.

In that time, I sampled many a beer, some of which I'll share with you today. The first was Coeur d' Alene's T. W. Fisher Cherry Porter. It was a little light bodied compared to most porters, but was a very pleasant beer. The cherry flavor was very subtle but the black patent malt was not overpowering despite its typical maltheavy porter aroma. The aftertaste was dry and lasted only a few moments on the palate. The Cherry Porter is by far the best T. W. Fisher brew I've tried.

Thomas Hardy's Ale is touted as one of the finest ales in Britain. It is bottled with its natural yeast and will mature in the bottle long after bottling. I am not a big fan of this style of ale. It is heavy, malty and syrupy sweet with a fruity and yeasty bouquet. It has a very nice deep reddishbrown color and full body, but is a little too heavy and sweet for my tastes. Granted, this was a 1995 bottling and may have needed a few more months to condition in the bottle, after which the sherry-like qualities develop more fully.

The Steenbrugge Dubbel Bruin Abby Ale I tried next was much more palatable for me than the Thomas Hardy. This Belgian brew was malty, but with a bite. It had a nice sweetness to it and a sharp aroma that was hard to place. The dark amber color complimented the medium body of the beer.

I have to admit I was afraid to try Holland's La Trappe Quadrupel Ale. A quadruple-brewed beer made me a little leery, but I decided to try it anyway, much to my delight. The La Trappe was a dark gold color with caramel overtones in the aroma. It had a lightly malty character with a port-like aftertaste that lingers in the back of the throat. You don't have to fear this beer. Finally, I got to try the Samuel Smith's Imperial Stout, and I was a little disappointed. Sam Smith's Oatmeal Stout and Taddy Porter both impressed me, but the Imperial Stout was a little weaker than I had been expecting.

It is an exceptional stout, with a thick, bitter and malty character, full, opaque body and black color.

The aftertaste is bitter, lingering in the mouth and throat. I guess I was expecting a more impressively heavy beer from the Imperial Stout. Despite my disap-pointment, I still enjoyed this beer from England's old Tadcaster Brewery.

Enjoy your vacation and remember, if you are drinking this holiday season, arrange for a designated driver or another way to get where you are going next. There's a lot of beer in the world to sample, and it's awful hard to do with at least six feet of soil between you and the nearest bar. It's not just your future you take into your hands when you drink and drive.

With that in mind, happy holidays and cheers!

Kids

THE ARGONAUT

Kids, either angelic or sinister, worry millions of parents each day. Stealing Blow-Pops at 7-11, being sent to the principal's office or shooting spit-wads at the movie screen concerns most child-rearers.

 \mathbf{r}

Some kids, however, take mischief to a different degree.

In Larry Clark's controversial film, Kids, young Generation Xers seek pleasure through sex, pot, stealing, sex, skateboarding and, oh yeah, sex. One piece of advice: don't risk taking your parents to see Kids-your college funding will be permanently cut and you will have to live with old Aunt Bessie in Fargo, N.D.

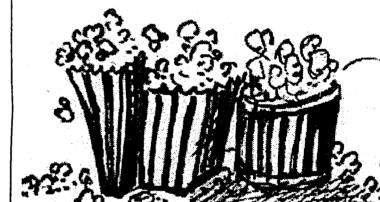

Kids features the lives of several high school and junior high kids on the lower class streets of New York City. The movie is random, yet scarily realistic. It appeared as though someone took a home video camera and filmed these kids for two days. In fact, the cinematography creates this documentary ambiance, similar to Quenton Tarantino's Natural Born Killers. In addition, the acting is flawless-perhaps the most convinc. ing adolescent acting ever on the big screen.

DTVFRST()NS

creen. Today's teen-agers are growing up faster and exposed to the pressures of drugs, alcohol and virginity. Kids takes a slice from this stressful lifestyle and is not bashful about it, thus explaining its NC-17 rating. Despite all of the sex and drugs, the underlying theme is the AIDS epidemic. Teen-agers aren't invincible-anyone can contract the HIVvirus. The kids are sexually uneducated, explaining their practice of unprotected sex and believing it's solely a homosexual disease.

Kids is Disney in drag, Opus on dope and far from a family flick. It's an eye-opener and an eye-closer. The movie is realistic, but not an accurate representation of the average "American kid." Representative or not, Kids is shocking, heartbreaking, a slap in the face and above all, a reality check. If you seek a spicy substitute for your sexual or illegal substance desires, you might find Kids appealing. Just don't tell your parents

Symphony to present Christmas concert

Shannon Paterson

The Washington Idaho Symphony plans to rustle up some Christmas spirit during two concerts Dec. 17 and 18.

Christmas spirit during two concerts Dec. 17 and 18. The symphony will perform Beethoven's "Symphony No.4" and Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun" as well as traditional Christmas carols like "Joy to the World," "Bring a Torch," "Jeannette," "Isabella" and "Rise Up Shepherds." "The audience will be invited to sing along with the chorale," said Jenifer Kooiman, general manager of the symphony. The songs to be accompanied are "The First Noel" and "O Come All Ye Faithful."

One hour before the concert, conductor L. Keating Johnson will lecture on the history of the pieces to be played and what each composer probably had in mind for each piece, said Kooiman.

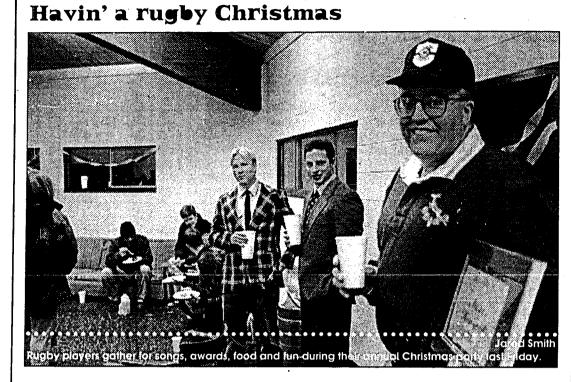

Handbell choirs from Beacon School in Lewiston and Trinity Lutheran Church in Pullman will perform in the lobby area approximately 30 minutes before each concert.

"Their performance will just to add to the atmosphere," said Kooiman.

On Dec. 17, the concert will take place at Lewiston High School at 3 p.m. The Pullman performance will be held in the Gladish Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Dec. 18. A shuttle will pick up passengers at Tater's in the Palouse Empire Mall and take them to Pullman for that performance.

Tickets are available at Ticket Express in Moscow or Corner Drug in Pullman.
