s of Jan 1, 1996, some employees of UI are required to participate in an alcohol and drug testing program designed to comply with a federal law passed in 1991, said Jan Rauk, associate director of Human Services.

The Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act of 1991 requires employees of Idaho institutions to submit to testing in an effort by the federal government to improve safety in the workforce and on state and interstate highways.

Many companies including some local trucking companies, transportation companies and sawmills already comply with the law. The history of the legislation, said Rauk, stems from mass transit accidents where drug use was involved.

While testing has never previously been done at the UI, the university has and does comply with the Drug Free Work Place Act and testing will now be used in conjunction with that policy, said Rauk.

Only 34 UI employees will be affected by the law, which applies only to those employees involved in "safety-sensitive" positions and most of whom are employed by Facilities Management and the College of Agriculture. Many of the employees affected by the law work at off-campus College of Agriculture work stations, some located in southern Idaho, said Rauk.

The majority are drivers of heavy equipment, busses or farm equipment who are required to hold a commercial drivers license to perform their duties for UI. The law applies to drivers of vehicles carrying 16 or more persons, have a gross weight exceeding 26,000 pounds, combined vehicle towing units, towing over 10,000 pounds or those that carry hazardous materials, said Rauk.

The testing will be random and unannounced, and will test for the use of alcohol and controlled substances such as marijuana, cocaine, opiates and amphetamines, said Rauk. Employees will be required to submit to the testing after employment begins but before they begin their duties, at random intervals and • SEE DRUGS PAGE 8

Senate searches for visibility

The ASUI Senate wants more student participation, and they hope to get it through more visibility.

Senators are working on getting ASUI T-shirts and brochures, as well as a new look for their homepage. Visibility was a big theme in Wednesday's Senate meeting, which attracted an audience of 10 people.

"Any time you have an entire governing body for students where only 13 percent participate in the election process, that's a signal that something's wrong. The information is just not getting out there the way it should be," Kane said.

There isn't really a medium out there that we can hand to people and say 'This is the ASUI.' And even if we do, it's pretty dry stuff," he said.

"We're trying to produce a brochure that we can mail out to new students and hand out to interproclaiming their affiliation with the Senate.

"I've been going around and asking the colleges to appropriate money to buy us shirts," said Senator Annie Averitt. She said the response so far has been favorable.

Kane hoped more visibility would get more students involved in campus government.

"What we're trying to do is generate interest, so that they want to be a part of it and they want to take part in it," he said. His goal is to help students "realize the leadership opportunities they have here and the avenues that are open to ohn Carpenter, president of Delta Sigma Phi, presented a check for $1,500 to the Inter Fraternity Council on Tuesday. The members of Delta Sigma Phi hope the money will increase the awareness of alcohol on the UI campus.

Around the country, many Greek systems at universities and colleges have experienced serious problems resulting from poor alcohol management. Carpenter hopes by providing an example for the Greek community at UI, problems other Greek systems have had won't happen here.

Delta Sigma Phi raised the $1,500 through donations from the community of Moscow, concerned parents and members of the house.

Originally the plan wasn't to get money, but to teach the Greek community and other students on campus about how to stay out of trouble," said Carpenter. 'The whole purpose is to help houses and their management of alcohol."

Carpenter noted several examples of universities which have experienced serious problems due to a lack of preventative measures.

Recently 11 people died in one year which spurred a big change on the University of Colorado's campus," said Carpenter. "It brought out the police department and several leaders from the community which has forced the campus into what they felt was respectable behavior. It was devastating to their Greek community and they are starting to rebuild from it now."

Justin Stiefel, president of IFC said, "The goal here is to be proactive instead of reactionary. We don't want what happened at University of Colorado to happen here. We want people to have their fun but to know how to do it in a respectable manner."

Carpenter said, "The best way we figured how to do that was to raise money primarily for Greeks Advocating Mature Management of Alcohol and other future funds.'

"In light of the changes we've gone through and also the changes happening across the nation, we thought it would be a good philanthropy or for us to raise money and support," said Carpenter.

Man kills wife, self at rural home

AMMON, Idaho—Friends are struggling to understand why a quiet accountant killed his wife and then himself at their home south of Ammon.

The bodies of Rodney Bonzon, 42, and Christine Bonzon, 43, an Idaho National Engineering Laboratory engineer, were found in their rural home on Tuesday. Both died of gunshot wounds.

Bonzon called Bonneville County dispatchers Tuesday morning on a non-emergency line and said his wife had killed herself, and that he was going to kill himself. He hung up. Dispatchers tried repeatedly to return the call, but there was no answer.

When sheriff's deputies arrived minutes later, they found Mrs. Bonzon dead in the shower. The body of her husband was next to her, along with the shotgun he had used in their deaths, according to sheriff's reports.

Investigators also found a note from Bonzon explaining the motive behind the deaths, but the contents of the note were not released.

Bonzon was the financial accounting supervisor at Pillsbury in Shelley, where he had worked since 1981, said Danny Tyndell, the plant's manager.

Bonzon also was chairman of the Idaho Falls chapter of the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, which canceled a board meeting it had scheduled for Tuesday night. Mrs. Bonzon had worked at the Department of Energy office in Idaho Falls since November 1994 as a team leader in a program studying the best disposal method for different kinds of radioactive waste, Energy Department spokesman Brad Bugger said.

State could buy springs in Snake River canyon

BUHL, Idaho—The crystal-clear waters of one of North America's largest springs may be spared from a fish farm developer under a plan suggested by Gov. Phil Batt and some area legislators.

They hope to scare up some state money for an appraisal of Box Canyon along the middle Snake River.

Once the value is known, state leaders may make an offer on landand water-use permits held by developer Earl Hardy.

The canyon about 10 miles north of Buhl is one of the largest singlesource springs in North America, and its pure waters wind through boulders and junipers.

The Nature Conservancy and other groups have shown some interest in the idea, he said. Batt credited state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, with shaping a statefunded appraisal.

Noh delivered a letter outlining his idea to Batt Tuesday; it was signed by a dozen area lawmakers. Signers agreed the state should take the lead in a cooperative public and private funding effort on a willing-buyer, willing-seller basis.

Hardy will consider an offer, said his attorney, Bill Ringert. Hardy owns 280 acres in and around Box Canyon, he said.

Ringert would not say if Hardy's water-use permits there would be included in a sale. But Batt and Noh feel the deal hinges on water. They said the immediate goal is to see how much the land and water are worth.

Suspect in robbery shot after taking hostage

BOISE—An alleged robber was wounded in an exchange of gunfire with police on Wednesday as he tried to flee a Boise bank with a hostage, police said.

Four patrol cars responded to a silent bank alarm at a West One Bank office near the airport just after it opened, Lt. Jim Tibbs said.

Then the suspected robber came out of the bank with the hostage and gunfire erupted. As many as two dozen shots were fired.

Steve Roseberry of Middleton was driving toward downtown when he stopped to watch the confrontation. Roseberry said he did not know who fired the first shot but he saw the gunman, whom other witnesses said was carrying a bank packet, point at one of the police cars and open fire.

"I could hear the glass in the windows breaking," Roseberry said. "I saw some red fumes and then the money exploded."

He said the hostage jumped into the bushes near the entrance as the shooting began and laid flat. Roseberry said he then saw the gunman fall in a pool of blood.

Tibbs said the gunman "was the only one who was injured" and was taken to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center for treatment of gunshot wounds. The explosion in the bank bag was apparently the cartridge of red dye used to thwart bank robberies.

Woman wanted for dognapping fires at sheriff's deputies

DALLAS—Police say a 51-yearold woman they were trying to arrest on a dognapping warrant opened fire on two Dallas County deputies.

Sherry Carter Pruitt of Dallas was arrested Monday after the incident and has been charged on two counts of attempted capital murder of a police officer.

She has been jailed at the Lew Sterrett Justice Center in lieu of $100,000 bond on each of the attempted capital murder charges and $500 bond in the dognapping charge.

Neither James DeCapua, 37, nor Jeffrey Ellis, 31, were hit in the sixbullet barrage.

The plainclothes deputies had appeared at Pruitt's house near White Rock Lake area in east Dallas to serve a misdemeanor warrant accusing her of stealing her neighbor's dog on Christmas Day.

While Ms. Pruitt was in a bedroom, where she went to change for the trip to jail, she lunged across a bed for a .38-caliber revolver under a pillow, the officers said.

In the past 18 months, he said, Pruitt's neighbors had called police at least 15 times with complaints, usually over loud music from her residence.

On Nov. 10, Pruitt fired two shots in the air just as two officers drove up in response to one of the noise complaints, Ewell said. —Associated Press

Cientists discover tick-carried germ

BOSTON—Scientists have isolated a germ responsible for a new wave of tick-borne illness in the Northeast and Midwest.

The breakthrough, reported in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine by doctors from the University of Minnesota, should speed up the search for faster ways to diagnose the infection and better ways to treat and control it.

The bacteria are spread by deer ticks, the same pests that carry Lyme disease. They cause a flu-like illness called human granulocytic ehrlichiosis, or HGE, that is fatal about 5 percent of the time. it.

More than 200 Americans have been diagnosed with HGE since 1990. Experts suspect many more

Chechens free dozens of hostages

MOSCOW, Russia—Dozens of hostages seized by Chechen rebels in a raid outside their separatist republic this month were released Wednesday in an exchange clouded by new clashes between rebels and Russian troops.

The Chechens continued to hold 14 Russian policemen taken after the Jan. 9 raid in neighboring Dagestan that touched off a bloody siege and escalated the 13-monthold war.

Television footage showed the 46 hostages filing onto a bus in the Chechen village of Novogroznensky after talks between rebel leaders in camouflage fatigues and impassioned Dagestani elders in tall sheepskin hats.

Two hours later, when the police convoy escorting the 40 men and six women arrived at its final destination of Khasavyurt, Dagestan, the freed hostages were greeted by relatives with shouts, smiles and hugs.

The release, originally planned for the previous day, came after Russian authorities turned over the bodies of 42 Chechen fighters killed in the previous week's fighting, the Interfax news agency reported.

The Chechens again refused to free the 14 Russian policemen, but Dagestani officials said they hoped they would be released this week.

The rebels also are holding about 30 Russian power-plant workers whom they seized in Grozny last week.

In people, the infection causes sudden fever and body aches and can lead to kidney or breathing failure. Unlike the flu, it does not trigger runny noses, and it can be cured with the antibiotics tetracycline or doxycycline.

Until now, experts knew generally what caused the disease, but they could not grow it in quantity so they could study it.

Experts also hope that isolating the germ will lead to development of a rapid, accurate blood test for the hard-to-diagnose infection.

People can avoid HGE—and Lyme disease—by using insect spray, wearing light-colored clothes, long pants and long-sleeve shorts and checking themselves for ticks after walking through fields or woods in the summer.

The 49-year-old Oleksy was the first former Communist to be Poland's prime minister since the Communist regime fell in 1989. He became democratic Poland's sixth prime minister in March.

The charges that he passed classhied documents and other information to Moscow were first made last month by supporters of Solidarity hero Lech Walesa, who had just been defeated in his bid for re-election.

Olesky resisted calls by opposition parties and even from within his leftist coalition to step aside, but suggested he would consider resigning if a formal investigation were opened.

Oleksy has acknowledged being friends with a man who later proved to be a top KGB spy in Poland, but claimed he had only social contacts with him and did not know he was an agent.

Banner system unites department databases

Andrea Lucero

For the first time University of Idaho departments are working together through the use of the newly implemented Banner computer module system.

Banner is part of an over-all conversion changing the UI computing process to make things easier for students.

"Previously the UI departments, such as financial aid, alumni and UI payroll, all dealt with students separately," explained Linda Kiff, implementor of the Banner system. "Each department had their own program to record information. Now, all of the departments are inter-linked and use the same program for information about a student."

The Banner system was only one of many interrelated data bases considered by the UI. Banner was considered to be the best module because the other modules were not equipped to work with such a large land grant university.

Banner had experience with other land grant customers and could meet UI needs. Student checks are also done through the Banner system rather than through separate departments.

"The system has been very successful," said Kiff.

"Of the paychecks that have been done less than two percent had any type of error. I believe the implementation has gone very well," she said.

THE ARGONAUT 3

Learning to use the Banner system is one of its most difficult aspects. UI employees are taught to use the system in four hour sessions. Twenty four people are taught per-session.

"Banner is very training intensive," said Kiff, "Everyone is used to working with their own programs and the change-over isn't always easy."

FDA approves fake fat for snack foods

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Americans will soon be eating potato chips made with the first zero-calorie artificial fat.

The Food and Drug Administration approved Procter & Gamble's olestra Wednesday, over the protests of some scientists who called the fake fat dangerous.

The FDA warned consumers that olestra can cause such gastrointestinal side effects as diarrhea and can literally wash out of the body certain nutrients, particularly when eaten along with that lunchtime bowl of soup or pile of carrot sticks.

But the FDA concluded that while some people will find olestra unpleasant, it is safe for the general population to eat in potato chips and other snack foods—as long as the foods bear a label warning of those side effects.

"There are real effects in some people," said FDA Commissioner David Kessler. "They may be annoying. ...But we do not believe they are medically significant."

Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble spent 25 years and $250 million developing olestra, which it will put in its own Pringles potato chips and sell to other snack makers, including Frito Lay Inc., under the brand name Olean. Test marketing will begin in several months.

"By replacing the fat in snacks, Olean can help millions of Americans cut excess fat and move closer to achieving an important dietary health goal," said P&G Chairman John Pepper.

But consumer advocate Michael Jacobson of the Center for Science in the Public Interest urged Americans not to eat olestra because it depletes nutrients believed to fight disease.

"It will cause everything from diarrhea to cancer, heart disease and blindness," said Jacobson, who threatened to sue to block olestra's sale.

Ø

Olestra is a synthetic chemical made of sugar and vegetable oil. It looks like regular fat, but its molecules are too large and tightly packed to digest. So it passes through the body without stopping to clog arteries or fatten hips.

One ounce of regular potato chips has 10 grams of fat and 150 calories, but olestra chips have no fat and just 60 calories, about the same as a plain baked potato.

There are other fat substitutes on the market, but none can withstand the high heat of frying and none is calorie-free like olestra. The lowfat chips sold today reduce fat by baking instead of frying, giving them a different taste.

But olestra can act as a laxative, causing diarrhea, cramps and other gastrointestinal disturbances. One study found that 7.5 percent of adults who ate just a 2-ounce bag of olestra chips had some gastrointestinal reaction.

It also can rob the body of the vitamins A, D, E and K and the carrot-derived nutrient betacarotene, because they stick to the fatty substance and slide out of the body.

Top nutritionists in November told the FDA to approve olestra as long as P&G fortified it with vitamins A, D, E and K, something FDA insisted on. The vitamin K addition will be small enough that it won't affect heart patients who take blood thinners sensitive to fluctuations of that vitamin, Kessler said Wednesday.

Of most concern to Jacobson is olestra's depletion of nutrients called carotenoids, including beta carotene. While the government last week proclaimed that supplements of beta carotene don't ward off disease, some doctors insist that getting enough carotenoids from food is important to prevent cancer, heart disease and age-related blindness.

Burglary number one crime

Anne Larison

The recent Christmas break saw no break in the perpetration of crime either on UI campus or in city of Moscow.

"Burglary was the most frequently reported crime during, this past holiday season," said campus community police Cpl. Carl G. Wommack. "But, there has been no noticeable rise in the number of crimes when compared to previous years."

Of the burglaries reported, those involving the breaking, entering and stealing from automobiles out-numbered all others. "These thieves will take anything of value left in a vehicle," Wommack said. "They display little finesse about the crimes they commit." In every case, the car windows have been broken to gain entry even when it was not necessary.

Among the crimes under investigation presently are vehicle break-ins and thefts on Greek Row. Radios, stereos and compact discs, as well as anything else of value in the car, have become the targets of thieves. "If it is removable they'll rip it out. In one case, they tore out the entire dash to get at a stereo," said Wommack.

It is unclear whether these recent incidents along Greek Row are part of a new trend or if the cars parked there were simply more accessible. There has been less foot traffic in the area because of recent snow.

In the past week, cars were burglarized at the LDS Institute, on Queen Road, Lilley Street and at the Palouse Mall. It is Wommack's opinion that vehicle alarm systems are becoming less and less effective because their bursts of sound have become too commonplace. Unfortunately, some are so sensitive they are set off by a pedestrian walking past or CB and police radio transmission.

Recent malicious damage to vehicles with items stolen has led the police to strongly favor of installation of a video surveillance system to deter crime in the more isolated areas.

Yet, even in a secured area within Wallace Complex, a thief, frustrated by the lock preventing him from taking a bicycle, instead took all removable parts. Eleven book bags were taken from the Wallace cafeteria during finals week.

Wommack said there is usually a surge of bookbag thefts at the end of term when textbooks are being re-purchased at the bookstore. But, Wommack said bookbags can be taken at any time to get whatever of value is inside.

While the police have no reports of break-ins at university housing, there were reports on Jan. 4, and Jan. 8, of items missing from the Delta Chi fraternity. The door had apparently been unlocked. On Jan. 14, the Tri-Delts reported what appeared to be an unsuccessful attempt to enter their house through a window. Beneath one of the lower windows police found clear sets

Students' radio messages to be broadcast

Zachary Smith Staff

Southeastern Idaho high school students are testing their skills at writing radio scripts.

The best of these scripts will be broadcast on a new radio station at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The students will be competing in the Traveler's Information Radio Scriptwriting Contest sponsored by the Environmental Science and Research Foundation.

Open to high school students in the vicinity of the INEL, the contest focuses on the region's natural and cultural history. The area's heavy use by wintering birds of prey and the uniqueness of the area's high desert environment are just a couple of the many topics the sponsor expects will be addressed, said Donny Roush of the Environmental Science and Research Foundation.

The contest runs through April 1, 1996. One grand prize winner will be selected and more than $1,200 in cash awards and gift certificates will be presented.

"We hope to get a full year's worth of script," said Roush, "and have the second annual contest next

The new traveler's information radio station began broadcasting on Dec. 6, 1995. It broadcasts near the junction of U.S. Highways 20 and 26 in the south-central portion of the INEL. The station is run by the Environmental Science and Research Foundation. The Foundation does environmental work at the INEL for the U.S. Department of Energy.

Each Tuesday and Wednesday the center sponsors lunch hour programs beginning at 12:30 p.m. in the Women's Center Lounge. The center is located on Line Street and Idaho Avenue near the Satellite SUB.

Parenting will be explored during the week of Jan. 30. Tuesday's program features Lisa Litton and Pam Palmer moderating a panel discussion of childbirth choices. Wednesday, Dr. Ginna Babcock, UI sociology department, will present the findings of her research concerning non-custodial parents. Staff Politics and Policies will be discussed by Jane Baillargeon on Feb. 6. Barbara Howard Meldrum will present "The Many Facets of Harriet Beecher Stowe" on Feb. 7.

Literature composes the program Feb.13 and 14. Lance Olsen, Idaho Writer-in-Residence, will read selections from his work. The following day, Marti Mihalyi will read a selection of works.

Susan B. Anthony's Birthday Party occurs on Feb. 20 and 21. "One Woman, One Vote," which documents the suffrage movement from the Seneca falls convention to the passage of the 19th Amendment, will be shown.

BATON ROUGE, La .--- It was prison escapee Clifton Brumley's love of the high life that finally caught up with him—an hour before closing time at a strip joint in Baton Rouge.

A terse note in a management log at The Gold Club tells the story: "At 1 a.m., Jan. 24, 1996, customer wearing wig in club matched description of a wanted man detailed in an FBI circular dropped off by agent Roger White.'

An alert "house mom" to the strippers called police.

"They got to the club at 1:20 a.m. and cuffed the suspect. Then they left," the note concluded.

Thus ended a four-day, three-state odyssey that authorities say included a gunpoint kidnapping, an armed robbery and some interstate barhopping. It all began Saturday when Brumley drove a tractor away from a prison farm near Texarkana, Texas.

Brumley now is in federal custody charged with unlawful flight and robbery. During a hearing Wednesday afternoon before a U.S. magistrate, he quietly waived his right to a lawyer and agreed to be transferred back to Texas. U.S. marshals would not say when he will be moved, other than that it will have to be in the next 10 days.

He is believed to have spent some time on the Arkansas side of Texarkana after driving away from the prison farm. Authorities say he kidnapped two women at gunpoint in Texarkana on Monday, forcing them to accompany him as far as Tyler, Texas, where he abandoned them, along with a commandeered Ford Explorer, at a church. He is accused of robbing a federal credit union in Tyler before paying a man $100 to drive him to Shreveport.

In Shreveport, he hired a cab to drive him to Baton Rouge, about 250 miles to the southeast.

The man who drove Brumley to Shreveport later realized he might have driven an escaped inmate. He called police. The FBI became involved because of the credit union robbery and the crossing of state lines.

As Brumley arranged his escape from Tyler on Monday night, his hostages—Shirley Cherry, 55, and Peggy Roswell, 29, both abducted at gunpoint Monday morning-struggled with their bonds of electrical tape and rope in the abandoned Explorer.

They freed themselves and drove—Brumley had left them the keys to a nearby Exxon service station about 9:45 p.m. Ms. Roswell was at the wheel.

"She looked like she was in shock," employee Shaw Hapis said. "She asked me to call the

Mrs. Cherry said Wednesday that she feared for her life during the ordeal. Her captor, she said, had "really wild-looking eyes." But he also had a kind side. He bought her a chicken sandwich during their travels and stopped at a pharmacy to get her insulin to treat her dia-

He even evoked a bit of sympathy.

"He was working so hard, I hoped he would have a little more fun while he was out," said Mrs. Cherry.

As it turned out, she got her wish.

When captured, he was living it up at The Gold Club, where the selling point is "continuous adult entertainment" by "50 beautiful women," and where this week's featured performer is billed as adult moviedom's starlet of the year and a participant in the "best girl-ongirl sex scene.'

When Baton Rouge police entered the club, Brumley was sitting at the bar, wearing a blonde wig.

"It looked kind of like a Tina Turner wig," dancer Danielle Carter later told WBRZ television. "And you could hear everybody whispering about who he was. He just kind of stood out in the crowd.

According to a police spokesman, officers escorted him outside, where they found he had more than $1,300 but no identification.

He gave police a bogus name, telling them his ID was at a hotel. The officers took him to the hotel after asking FBI agents to meet them there.

In the meantime, investigators confirmed that serial numbers on the bills in his possession matched those taken in the robbery, police said.

Brumley attempted to grab one of the police officer's guns while they were trying to hand-cuff him, but he was quickly subdued and taken into custody, police said.

Brumley has been in and out of prison since 1980, when he received a 10-year term for robbery and jumping bond in Cass County. Most recently, he was sent to prison in May 1995 for a parole violation on a theft and burglary conviction.

Residence hall student computers soon to be on-line

Erik Halstead

If you live in the residence halls your computer soon will be able to be networked onto the Internet.

As soon as Feb. 9 the long awaited networking should come on-line, said Chuck Labine, the residence hall coordinator for the Telecommunications Infrastructure Project.

Labine said the work installing the networking was a little behind schedule, but not much.

When it is finally installed, resident hall students will have two options. Students' first option is to connect their computers, simply by installing an Ethernet card in their computer, a special cable to hook the card to the network jack which is already installed. Students may opt to contact Computer Services to activate the account and to acquire the software. Ethernet cards are available from the University Bookstore, local computer stores and even Wal-Mart, for prices ranging between $40 and $120.

More information can be found on the Internet, where Computer Services have set up a special home page for TIP. The address is http://www.uidaho.edu/~kari/tipmain.html.

Condors to be released along Utah-Arizona border

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY-A springtime release is planned for nine California condors near the canyon county near southern Utah's border with Arizona.

The condors, among the world's largest and rarest birds, are offspring of condors held in three breeding facilities located in California and Idaho. They are to be released atop the 1,000-foot high Vermilion Cliffs in late March or early April.

Barring a change in plans following a final round of public hearings this week, the huge black vultures with wing spans approaching 10 feet could soon be soaring through nearby southern Utah canyons, wildlife biologists say.

Only 103 of the condors are known to exist, with 90 of them held in captivity and 13 flying free in the mountains north of Los Angeles.

The 9- to 10-month-old condors selected for release already have been placed together in a large cage at the Los Angeles Zoo to improve their flying and social bonding skills.

"They are fairly gregarious birds that don't have a lot of problems adjusting," said Jane Hendron, spokeswoman for the Hopper Mountain National Wildlife Refuge Complex in Ventura, Calif. ists in her office direct the national condor-reintroduction program.

The nine are being trained to avoid humans and power polestwo of the biggest threats to con-

More Canadian wolves introduced to Yellowstone

Associated Press YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. —A mule-drawn sleigh carried two metal boxes to a snowy compound on the Blacktail Plateau on Tuesday, and four biologists carried the containers through an opening in the chain-link fence.

They pulled up one wall of the first box and a large black wolf leaped into deep snow.

Moments later his companion, a smaller, gray and black female, bounded into the snow and the two wolves, tongues lolling, began circling the perimeter of their new one-acre pen in Yellowstone National Park.

The pair were the first of 11 Canadian wolves released into fenced compounds Tuesday in the second installment of a plan to restore the endangered predator to the Northern Rockies.

Twenty wolves were flown into the United States from British Columbia overnight Monday. Eleven were brought to Yellowstone before dawn Tuesday, while the nine others were taken to Missoula, Mont., to await a helicopter ride to the Frank Church Wilderness in central Idaho.

The Yellowstone wolves were taken by truck, sled and snowcoach to one-acre pens in the backcountry. A second pen, between Madison Junction and Old Faithful, was to hold an adult pair and three pups. A pen near the Lamar Valley in northeastern Yellowstone was to hold an adult pair and two pups.

Yellowstone spokeswoman Cheryl Matthews said the releases continued into the night.

They will stay about 10 weeks to get them used to Yellowstone and reduce the chance they will try to return to Canada once they are released into the wild.

The nine Idaho wolves were to be released directly into the wild, possibly today, although officials said the release might be delayed by an approaching storm or by Idaho state demands for blood tests showing the animals are free of disease. Idaho said that the same tests were Idaho said that the same tests were required of the wolves released last year, but that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service had failed to produce adequate results. The agency said the area in British Columbia where the wolves were captured is free of brucellosis, tuberculosis and rabies, but the state wanted each animal tested.

The wolves were shipped as part of an effort to reintroduce the species to the Northern Rockies. Wolves roamed Yellowstone until the 1930s, when they were wiped out by a federal program. Last year, 14 Canadian wolves were

Last year, 14 Canadian wolves were released in Yellowstone and 15 in Idaho over strong protests from ranchers, who feared the wolves would kill their livestock.

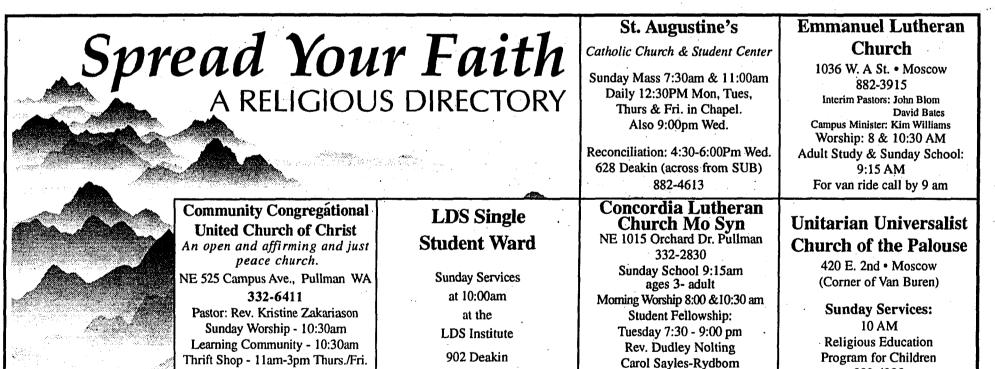

Fifteen more wolves are being held in British Columbia for transport to the United States late this week.

Federal officials describe the wolf reintroduction program as a success. The wolves released in Yellowstone last year produced nine pups. Two Yellowstone wolves have been killed—one was illegally shot, one was hit by a truck. Another wolf was shot in Idaho.

Livestock losses have been minor—two sheep confirmed dead, two missing. The wolf responsible was captured and returned to Yellowstone. The sheep rancher was reimbursed by an environmental group for the loss.

Federal wolf biologist Ed Bangs said that if the program's level of success continues, this will probably be the last year any wolves are brought to the United States for the project in Yellowstone and Idaho.

Earlier plans, which forecast higher wolf mortality and lower breeding rates, called for relocating wolves for three to five years.

Ruffato pleads guilty to raping 17-year-old

BOISE-Frank Ruffato has admitted he raped a 17-year-old Horseshoe Bend girl at knife-point Aug. 14.

Ruffato, a 46-year-old "drifter" with a lengthy prison record, changed his plea to guilty on Tuesday. In exchange, Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Julianne Meehan agreed to drop related charges of kidnapping and robbery.

Ruffato might face additional charges in Beise County.

"It depends on what he receives for a sentence in Ada County," Boise County Prosecutor Steven Arnold said:

Ruffato, who faces up to life in prison, is scheduled to be sentenced Feb. 26 before 4th District Judge Alan Schwartzman.

Authorities say Ruffato raped the girl in her home in Boise County, then forced her to drive to a secluded area in Ada County, where he tied her to a tree and raped her again.

The teenager told police Ruffato left her tied up and stole her 1988 Ford Tempo. She also said Ruffato had boasted of raping 25 other women and killing three of them. Since 1974, Ruffato has been convicted of one rape, four sexual assaults and one escape from a mental institution. His public defender, Amil Myshin, said Ruffato repeatedly confessed to police during separate videotaped interrogations.

"He was real straight with the police," Myshin said. "He doesn't want to spend the rest of his life in prison, but he's probably come to accept the reality that he probably will."

Ruffato has been in and out of prisons in Oregon, Wisconsin and Iowa since he was 24 years old.

Heart disease, stroke deaths rising, study says

DALLAS—The number of U.S. deaths from heart and blood vessel-related diseases rose in 1993 after falling steadily since 1980, according to new figures from the American Heart Association.

Whether the increase represents a rise in the U.S. death rate from cardiovascular diseases has yet to be determined, the Dallasbased heart association said Wednesday.

But the jump in the sheer number of people dying from cardiovascular disease is a concern, said Thomas A. Pearson, a New York cardiologist who is vice chairman of the association's council on epidemiology and prevention.

"Rates are stabilizing at best or actually going back up," he said. "It starts this huge shotgun blast of questions" about possible reasons for the reversal, from public nonchalance about risk factors to cardiologists' treatment of heart attacks, Pearson said.

He also noted that even if the age-adjusted death rate from cardiovascular disease were to hold steady, more people would die from the disease as the population ages.

In 1980, more than 999,000 Americans died from heart- and blood-vessel-related disease. The figure bottomed out in 1992 at 923,000 and rose to 954,000 in 1993, the last year for which figures are available, the heart association said.

Stroke deaths also climbed, killing almost 150,000 Americans in 1993, about 6,000 more than the previous year, according to the group's annual statistical report.

The report suggests that two factors are to blame for the increases: the general aging of the population and, paradoxically, increased survival rates among heart attack sufferers, who are then more susceptible to death from other heart ailments.

And as baby boomers hit middle age-they start turning 50 this year-stroke and heart. disease death rates will likely surge over the next few decades, said Sidney C. Smith Jr., heart association president, in a prepared statement.

"Stroke is a major killer and the leading cause of disability in the U.S. today," said Smith, also chief of cardiology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "By recognizing the warning signs of stroke and seeking immediate medical attention, people can take steps to save their lives and reduce or even prevent disability."

Indictment accuses ex-interior minister of running death squads

Associated Press

MADRID, Spain --- Spain's Supreme Court indicted a former member of the prime minister's inner circle Wednesday for allegedly directing death squads against Basque separatists.

The counts against former Interior Minister Jose Barrionuevo-the most senior official to be formally accused in the case-cast doubt on Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez's denial of government involvement in the slavings of at least two dozen people in the mid-1980s.

Gonzalez predicted Barrionuevo would be exonerated, and told a radio interviewer: "My conscience is absolutely clear. I've tried to do everything within legal means."

Supreme Court Justice Eduardo Moner accused Barrionuevo and then-state security chief Rafael Vera of setting up the shadowy GAL, or Anti-Terrorist Liberation Groups, in 1983 to combat the armed Basque separatist group, ETA.

ETA, an acronym in the Basque language for Basque Homeland and Freedom, has killed more than 750 people in its 28-year campaign for independence for Spain's three northern Basque provinces. Most of the victims were Spanish security force members.

Barrionuevo was indicted for alleged illegal detention, misuse of public funds and association with an armed group in connection with the attacks on ETA, most of which took place in the separatists' haven in southern France.

The indictments, the judiciary's most damning report on high-level government involvement in the death squads, says Barrionuevo and Vera organized the death squads and and "assumed the role of directors."

Vera was indicted last summer on the first two counts. He was indicted Wednesday for alleged association with an armed group.

Barrionucvo and Vera financed GAL's attacks with Interior Ministry funds, the indictments said.

To finance the kidnapping of a suspected ETA member, Vera gave a briefcase stuffed with $198,000 to Interior Ministry subordinates, who channeled it to mercenaries, the indictments alleged.

The kidnappers, however, snatched the wrong man.

The indictments are based on testimony from 12 former law enforcement officials and a former Socialist official, all of whom have also been charged.

Socialist leader Ricardo Garcia Damboranea has testified that Gonzalez himself discussed plans for GAL with him.

Gonzalez denied it, and the court cannot call the prime minister for questioning unless parliament lifts his immunity.

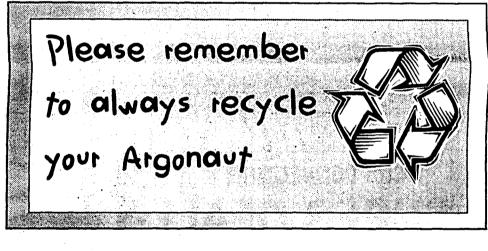

Opposition politicians demanded that Gonzalez take personal responsibility for GAL's four-year campaign of bombings, kidnappings and killings.

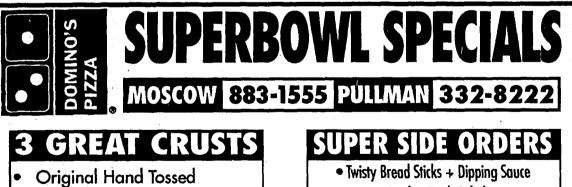

'The electorate will decide on March 3 who is politically responsible, and to what extent the Socialist Party is responsible," said Josep Antoni Duran, leader of the Democratic Union of Catalonia, which gave Gonzalez's government a parliamentary majority until splitting with him last summer over the Basque killings.

Barrionuevo, who led the interior ministry from 1982 to 1988, did not appear in court to receive the indictment. On Jan. 12, Moner ordered him to hand over his passport and post a $125,000 bond.

Barrionuevo was expected to appeal to other Supreme Court judges to have the indictments dismissed.

If convicted, he faces up to 35 years in prison.

ing the canister.

The test is easy to do. All the home owner has to do is follow the instructions on the box and mail the canister to the lab. Results for the radon test come back in two or three weeks.

Fred Hutchison, the safety officer of the environmental health/safety department, said they had tested a few buildings but weren't planning on testing campus living facilities.

"Many of these buildings are very well ventilated and don't allow a lot of radon buildup." Hutchison said.

The American Lung Association said homes should be tested twice, once in the winter and once in the summer, to get an accurate reading on the levels of radon in homes. New houses that are built tightly without a lot of ventilation may have more of the harmful build-up, but the American Lung Association stressed any house regardless of its age can have harmful levels.

Once it has been determined that a house has high radon levels, the owner should make repairs. The American Lung Association estimated the cost of sealing a home from radon and improving ventilation to be between $500-$1200. People living in Greek houses or apartments should contact landlords and their house corporation boards to ensure adequate testing for radon has been done.

For more information about radon testing and the effects of radon call 1-800-LUNG-USA for the American Lung Association or 1-800-445-8647 for the Idaho Radon Hotline.

coronary heart disease, stroke, hypertension, rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease.

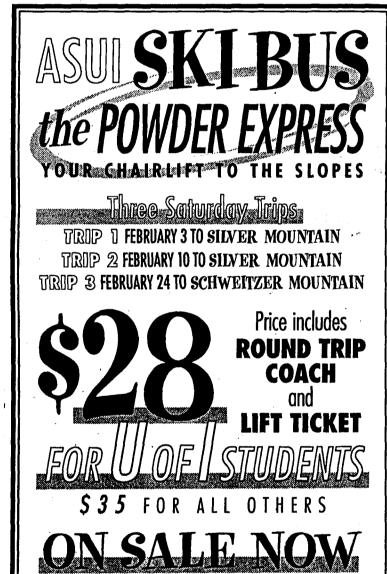

From 1983 to 1993, death rates from heart- and blood vessel-related diseases declined 23.1 percent. Death rates are age-adjusted per 100,000 population using the 1940 U.S. population as the base.

The rising average age of the U.S. population should prompt people of all ages to try to reduce heart-disease risk factors, including cigarette smoking, cholesterol, physical inactivity and being overweight, said Clyde Yancy, a cardiologist who researches heart ailments at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.

"There has not been as much attention placed on treating things like high-blood pressure in older people as in middleaged and younger people," said Yancy, who is also president of the heart association's Dallas division. "I think the take-home message is: No matter where somebody is in their maturity process, young, middle-aged or old, incorporating a heart-healthy lifestyle is the most cost-effective thing that can be done right now.'

Batt lashes out at legislative critics of deal

Associated Press

BOISE-Gov. Phil Batt has lashed out at the legislative critics of his nuclear waste deal with the federal government, specifically targeting Democratic Sen. Lin Whitworth of Inkom for supporting efforts to void the agreement.

"Most people when I discuss it with them will accept it after they learn the intricacies of it," Batt told the Southeastern Idaho Chamber of Commerce on Monday. "The reasons we keep getting opposition to it is because we have certain people with a political agenda who keep stirring up the pot.

"And I'd like to tell you that you have one senator who came over here from Pocatello who played along with the other seven (Democratic) senators in the state Senate over here, casting an absolutely irresponsible attitude toward this agreement," the governor said. "They want it to be negated. They want it to be subject to a popular vote and be ratified by the state Senate or the Legislature. ... It's merely an attempt to embarrass me politically.

Batt underscored his charge by citing the failure of the same Democrats to demand similar action on agreements former Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus signed with the federal government on waste cleanup at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Last Oct. 16, Batt agreed to a resumption of radioactive dumping at the INEL in return for promises that most waste would be removed from Idaho in 40 years. The deal restricts the number of shipments the government can send to eastern Idaho over the next four decades and precludes any of the 92,000 shipments of commercial nuclear waste the government must begin storing in 1998.

But critics claim the deal is fraught with loopholes that will simply leave Idaho as the nation's de facto dump after the deadline for removal has passed.

Whitworth and the other Senate Democrats, led by Clint Stennett of Ketchum, introduced legislation last week to force a voter referendum on the deal as well as subject to ratification by the Legislature. Stennett also submitted legislation to impose restrictions on waste storage and transportation.

Senate GOP leaders, who have generally backed the governor's effort, had all those proposals assigned to the leadership-controlled State Affairs Committee on Monday, essentially assuring they will not create further problems for the governor this session.

THE ARGONAUT

But Stennett has warned that if the efforts at asserting state control over waste storage are snubbed by the majority he will challenge the Batt deal in court-a challenge Batt has said he was confident he would defeat.

Littering leads to jail term

Associated Press

COEUR D'ALENE-A Coeur d'Alene man charged with littering 2 1/2 years ago has been released from the overcrowded Kootenai County Jail after serving 76 days on a related offense.

Robert Lane Aiassa, 23, was cited for littering by a Coeur d'Alene police officer in June 1993 after he flicked a cigarette butt onto a parking lot in front of a convenience store.

The criminal charge was later dropped, but not before Aiassa missed a court date.

On Nov. 9, Aiassa was arrested on a warrant for failure to appear. The charge, to which he pleaded not guilty, stemmed from the littering offense.

City attorney Nancy Strickland said Aiassa spent 15 times longer in jail than she would have recommended for the misdemeanor charge apparently because the county public defender's office did not contact the jailed defendant.

'I probably would have recommended a maximum of five days in actual jail time and a fine," Strickland said.

Sheriff's Capt. Travis Chancy, commander of the jail, said the Aiassa case was not handled appropriately.

After spending nearly six weeks in jail, Aiassa made a written request Dec. 19 to change his plea to guilty, according to court records. He asked to be released with credit for time served.

Aiassa's court-appointed attorney, Ruth Fullwiler, was apparently unaware of his intentions until Strickland contacted the office Friday

Aiassa said he had not been contacted by Fullwiler, even after nearly 11 weeks in jail.

Public defender Ron Coulter said his office handled the case appropriately.

In order to get Aiassa before a judge for his release, the defendant's lawyer needed a waiver of appearance from the city attorney. That was not received until Monday, Coulter said.

Strickland, however, said it is not the city attorney's responsibility to arrange a court appearance for a defendant.

Coulter said his office did not receive Aiassa's written statement offering to plead guilty until Dec. 29-10 days after he wrote it. And his overburdened department could not respond immediately anyway.

Coulter said Aiassa should have been able to come up with the relatively low $500 bail. Working with a bondsman, a defendant can be released if they can come up with 10 percent of the bail.

"Basically, I guess (the court) was waiting for the public defender's office to set the court date," Chaney said. "But I don't want to do any finger-pointing. This just demonstrates the system is overburdened by the sheer numbers of people in it."

City plans to end water pollution

Associated Press

POCATELLO, Idaho—Pocatello officials could install $900,000 worth of equipment to deal with contamination of the city's groundwater supply from an old landfill.

But Pocatello Water Superintendent Fred Ostler said before the idea is implemented, city officials want to see how a $250,000 cleanup proposal from Bannock County works.

Scientists suspect corroding barrels of a solvent dumped in the landfill decades ago are leaking. They believe that the solvent is likely the main source, and maybe the only source, of solvent contamination that has shown up in Pocatello drinking water wells as far downstream as Benton Street.

Consults have proposed drilling two parallel sets of wells downhill and adjacent to a section of a landfill south of Pocatello, under the county plan.

Soon, city and county engineers and the county's contractors will decide whether the county's idea is feasible, Pocatello Mayor

Peter Angstadt said.

In December, city and county leaders discussed the possibility of sharing cleanup costs, but haven't reached an agreement.

The county system is called sparging. It would likely need to operate for several years until groundwater samples indicate the technique has really cleaned up the solvent.

If sparging works, the city wouldn't have to spend $900,000 to install air stripping towers to remove solvent from groundwater, downhill from the county's cleanup site.

Under the city plan, solvent tainting the groundwater would be evaporated away, after it is drawn up one or two new wells drilled in the path of the underground contaminant plume

Ostler said because recent water samples indicate solvent concentrations are decreasing, the city's more expensive air stripping cleanup proposal can likely remain on hold until the county's sparging cleanup proposal is installed and has a chance to prove effective.

White-supremacists distribute handbills

Associated Press

NAMPA, Idaho—Police are investigating a group calling itself the Northwest Aryan Alliance that distributed several hundred white-supremacist fliers in Nampa.

"We don't know anything about them," Assistant Chief of Police Alan Creech said. "Right now we are gathering information. Passing out a brochure is not a clear violation of the law. People have a right to free expression."

The fliers ask people to join a group dedicated to the existence and prosperity of the white culture.

"This is supposed to be a nice, community-oriented town," said 19-yearold Brandon Shuey, whose brother found one of the fliers in the mail. "I hate hate groups."

Shuey is Hispanic.

Occasionally problems have occurred in Nampa with individuals who preach white supremacy, Creech said.

"We do have some youth around here that claim to be skinheads, that have some of those views," he said. "But I don't know that I want to say we've had more problems than anybody else."

Intent is all that is required for a charge of burglary to be made against a suspect.

GOP needs to find better man

At times like these, I sure wish I had cable television. I wish I had a TV for that matter-mine's on the fritz at this time. Two words: election year. The primafies haven't even happened and already the 1996 presidential campaign is underway.

I think one could pretty much figure who will be the 1996 presidential candidates: Clinton versus Dole. At least that's how it looks so far.

Since I do not have a television, I rely on newspapers to get news. I didn't have the pleasure of seeing President Clinton deliver his State of the Union address Tuesday night. I also missed Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole's rebuttal. Thus, I read the newspapers to find out what Clinton said and how Dole reacted. From what I've gathered, Clinton whooped Dole's derriere in the area of delivering televised speeches.

In yesterday's Spokesman-Review, I read an article by Kevin Merida of the Washington Post. The headline read: "Dole's off night emboldens rivals."

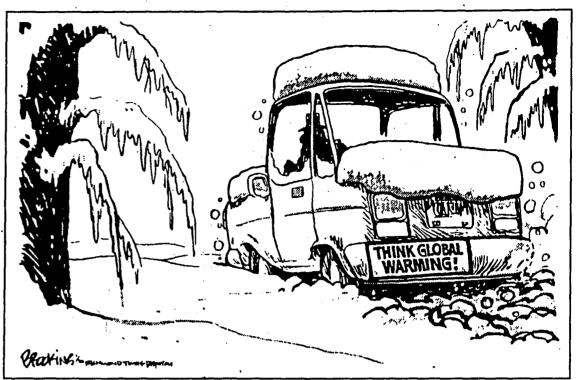

The article said Dole was supposed to show the citizens of America that he's their man to fill the presidential shoes. "But instead, the Kansas Republican's performance has generated less than glowing reviews from many fellow Republicans and given his presidential rivals another opening to bang their theme that Dole is no match for Clinton in handto-hand combat," the article said.

Then a GOP congressional aide said, "Some people are actually wondering if (Dole) was alive. Get him a Diehard battery, would you? He looked like Vincent Price."

After I read this article, I thought to myself, "Gee, this sure sounds the Kennedy/Nixon television debate back in 1960." For example, in a different article it said Clinton looked vigorous in a "wildly cheering chamber," while Dole looked "old and tired." From what I learned in history classes I've taken, John F. Kennedy looked much more vibrant on the TV screen than his opponent Richard M. Nixon. Come to think of it, Dole kind of looks like Nixon.

Anyway, Dole has even drawn critcism from within his own party. For instance, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who is also vying for the republican presidential nomination, said, "It's clear from last night, as it has been clear for years, that Bob Dole has no plan." But I think Gramm said it best when he said, "There has been a growing belief at the grass-roots level in these early primary states where people are starting to pay attention that Bob Dole could not win."

I must agree with Gramm. I don't think Dolewould beat Clinton. It's been said over and over again that he's cranky and mean-spirited. But hey, if the republicans want to chose Dole to run against Clinton. I'll be happier than a pig in slop. ---Shelby Dopp magine if you will: A sudden burst of energy inspires you to get a grocery cart out of the parking lot rather than from inside the store. As you cuss that one wheel that seems to think rolling along sideways is perfectly acceptable, you notice an envelope in the child seat. Upon opening the envelope, you find it contains $500 in cash.

Step into another dimension

When you've found an envelope containing $500 cash, there exist three options for your next course of action. You can:

A) Pocket the money, thinking it a just reward for always getting stuck with the grocery cart with the bad wheel.

B) Give the money to the store manager, in hopes the person who lost it will come back to claim it. C) Leave the money where it is. The choice is yours. You're about to enter. . .the Conscience Zone. (Theme music, please.)

I hope you all passed the test. An anonymous person in my home town of Idaho Falls passed with flying colors this weekend. My sister-in-law did, in fact, leave $500 in an envelope in the child seat of a grocery cart. She noticed the envelope was missing when she got home, so she rushed back to the store in hopes it had been discovered and turned in to the proper store authorities by an honest person, which fortunately it had.

That same weekend another sister-in-law in the same city left her planner, which contained only $15 in cash but also every credit card the family had in a shopping cart at a home improvement center. They called credit card companies to warn them of the theft; then received a call from an individual in Rigby, Idaho, who had found the planner. It was returned a day later. Nothing, not even the $15, was missing and no reward was sought.

Many of you more cynical and impoverished readers are perhaps chuckling at the honesty of these people and/or the "naiveté" of my sisters-in-law in hoping for the return of their lost fortunes. If you are, I wish you'd crawl back under the rocks from whence you came. What some paint as naiveté is, in all truthfulness, common faith in one's fellow human beings. True honesty cannot take on any other color than what it presents.

Some could argue such innocent carelessness merits the misery of loss. What these people fail to realize is that their act of dishonesty only compounds the misery of their victims. Not only do the victims berate themselves for the loss, but they also lose faith in the society that failed in its obligation of assisting one another. If this faith is damaged enough on the individual and community level, how dare we assume faith in the system as a whole will remain intact? Those who believe otherwise have an extremely impaired vision of what builds, and breaks, the human psyche.

People who preach for peace and brotherhood between nations and races should realize the hypocrisy and counter productivity in taking advantage of the misfortune of an unknown person in their own community. That one can grieve over the misfortunate and oppressed in other countries at other times and yet not give a hoot for preventing the misfortune of those who live anonymously in the here and now signals the death knell of the decency so many earnestly long for.

We cannot hope to change society for the better if we choose the childish rhyme, "Finders, keepers; losers, weepers" over the Golden Rule.

A lesson worth learning-in the Conscience Zone.

Do you know where all the traditional woman have gone?

T T hile I was walking into — (besides having temperamental hur- marriage. However, it seems that when they find out we want to be

Renfrew Hall yesterday, a guy held open a door for me. I was slightly surprised, as that doesn't happen all too often. But what he told me shocked me more. He told me most women won't let men hold doors for them anymore. Whoa!

I guess you can say women have come a long way since it was improper to wear a dress that showed your feet. I see women wearing skirts so short I don't know how they manage to keep them from creeping up and exposing everything. I think men see more of them than I do.

Clothing styles aren't all women have changed. We progressed from the June Cleaver image of the woman who stayed at home to the liberal Murphy Brown image of raising a child out of wedlock.

So what ever happened to the traditional woman? Who decided to call it quits on staying at home, and to pursue her wildest dreams in the workplace? Where did it all begin? Let's define, in our own sense, the traditional woman. A friend of mine, Dave, said she was subdued. Someone else said she took care of the family and his needs were her first priority. Another said she demanded a lot of respect, such as opening doors and courting.

I don't think women all of a sudden got sick of their traditional, assumed role. The change was very gradual. In other words, women got worn down. Let me tell you now, this is not a male bashing story; just read on.

Women reached the point where they wanted to make a difference in the world. Women wanted some recognition for the things they did ricanes named after them). Women wanted a chance to be their own bosses and decide things for themselves.

That is when the Feminist Movement started. Women thought it would be cool to burn bras, make their husbands stay at home and make their own choices regarding birth control.

Remember Jane Roe and the right to choose an abortion? I hope that rings a bell to the type of woman we are talking about. Men, you know-the kind of women who hold the door for you, who insist on going dutch on all their dates.

But all women who moved out of the traditional role are not necessarily feminists. Some liked to be more outgoing. Some chose not to get married or have kids. Some just wanted to mean something to someonc.

Finally, women got the message across to men that we were more than a possession gained through men now have to ask us if they can open the door for us and they wait to see if we are going to pull out the wallet before going for theirs when we go to the movies.

Why is this happening? The feminist movement, as it used to be, is dead. Women didn't lose a battle to chauvinist men, but made men realize women had potential. And then the movement was done.

Sure, there are still women out there gung-ho about never letting a man treat her with the same dignity and respect that a woman in the early 1900's was treated with.

What I am about to say may shock those men who thought they had finally figured women out. WE'VE CHANGED! Ha, ha! Leave it to the women to once again confuse the men. Better yet, let me phrase it this way-some of us are still "traditional" women!

Surprise! Oh yes, there are still some of us out here who shock men housewives, fix dinner, be a member of the PTA and be "subdued."

Take me for example. I would love to be a full-time mom, to make cookies for my kids and to be my husband's full support at those hated office parties-although I could never be subdued! Then why am I in college?

Does going to college mean people have to have a career? I thought going to college was to get an education and enhance oneself. But what about all those other women who don't necessarily want to be housewives?

Does that mean they aren't traditional women? No!

Women still want to make something out of themselves, but we aren't so stuck on being self-sufficient that men are afraid to touch us. People change over time, and women definitely have. I think men would be quick to agree, women change all the time!

Some bad cats just need a little Prozac Bucky stalks, crouches and finally leaps upon hile perusing the wide range of quality media available to myself in pursuit of something interesting if not fantastically weird, I came across a luscious tidbit in one of the local newspapers. In this highly insightful and thought-provoking piece, a strange case of an attack cat was detailed.

This was no ordinary attack cat, however. This was not the lasagna-eating lovable orange Saturday morning variety, not the mouse-stalker nor the canine abuser. No, this crazy kitty is in the habit of viciously attacking its owner.

The perturbed puss, who we will call "Bucky" to protect all those involved, began his life of crime as a sprightly youngster, tending to nip and bite, as all kittens do. The attacks started turning more serious and bloody after eight months. Now at 1-year-old.

Corinne Flowers

his unsuspecting owner, latching his terrible claws fast into her arm and sinking in his little feline teeth, ripping and tearing off chunks of flesh

Bucky's owner puts him in the basement after attacks so he can cool off. His owner has tried the "startle technique," spraying Bucky with a water pistol to thwart the attacks. The veterinarian who was consulted recommended a 10 percent vinegar 90 percent water solution or a can of compressed air in the old furball's face.

Personally, I recommend the .22 caliber lead slug "behavior modification technique" right between his evil little eyes. For a while the cat was treated with anti-anxiety drugs, which helped a bit. When the kitty-Valium was decreased, however, the attacks returned to their normal frequency (withdrawal maybe?). And here's my very favorite part...those anti-anxiety attacks can now be controlled by Prozac! Ha! That is $2.50 a pop for a miscreant demon! Let's see, at a pill a day for let's say three months adds up to...$225...hmm...that's more expensive than crack cocaine!

(Bullets are still a heckuva lot cheaper.) Maybe Bucky's owner should save up her pennies and send him to the kitty psychologist; perhaps he has some issues from his youth that are causing him pent up hostility and misplaced aggression.

Another recommendation from this socalled professional veterinarian person was to keep the cat on a leash and harness or in a crate or behind a baby gate whenever people are around. This would minimize his need to be territorial and protect unsuspecting house guests from bodily harm. Hmmm...I was thinking that drop-kicking the little fur-covered football across the living room might be a good start.

Also recommended was throwing a blanket over the cat to minimize injury and putting a bell on him to know his location at all times. If that were my cat the location would probably be adrift.

Don't get me wrong, I really do love cats. I love well-behaved, good-mannered, independent, non-murderous cats. But the first time one tries to kill me I'm going to pay him in kind.

Seriously, cats are one of my very favorite animals, but there is no excuse for this kind of nasty behavior.

Bucky's owner does not want to consider euthanasia as an option, so she will continue to spend numerous dollars on bandages, stitches and Prozac.

And we can only hope that Bucky will come around in time.

Microsoft no longer needs to dominate PC market

G ood news for those precious few UI students who believe in the Macintosh. There is the possibility that soon Sun Microsystems and Apple could merge. This could finally create the David needed to battle the market Goliath.

The giant land of Microsoft, a fiefdom run by the king of software Bill Gates, now dominates computer software. King Gates is a less than benevolent ruler, he demands more than a mere pittance from us poor compter users, he wants our entire purse.

Today it is nearly impossible to use a computer without Gates getting a cut. I don't fault ol' Bill at all; if I had the chance to run the computer world, I'd take it. It is time to let some of the serfs work the cyber-land for a while.

Apple, way back in the begining started the revolution. Actually, the Mac is still a good machine. A user friendly computer, what a novel idea. Huh, I wonder where Gates got the idea for Windows? Apple could easily dominate the computer market today had they not made two fateful mistakes.

The first mistake Apple made was licencing, the look and feel of the Apple machines to Microsoft, thus allowing Microsoft to launch the hugely successful Windows program. Not only did Apple lose market share, they also spent enormous amounts of cash in a losing lawsuit. Apple claimed the look and feel of Windows was so similar to the Mac that it was copyright infringement.

The second mistake Apple made was to not sell licencing rights to the operating system. No one could make a Mac clone. Very few software developers worked with the Apple operating system, virtually assuring that most programs would be written for Windows. Developing programs for the Mac was an afterthought. Sun Microsystems, theoretically, could dominate the Internet. Sun builds office workstations and servers. Servers are the high power computers that are at the core of any network. Apple is the No. 1 builder of client computers, the machines average users plug into the Internet with.

The possibilites are endless. Macintosh, arguably known as a weak network computer, could easily become the major player in the emerging virtual-world. Sun could build a server designed to network a Mac and JAVA could do the rest.

Sun has just released JAVA, a new style program, designed so that any operating system can utilize it, has the capability of letting virtually any computer run any software. JAVA has been around for a while in many differnt configurations, but the new marketing scheme puts it out on the Net for anyone to use.

Programmers will have a choice. No longer will every design need to bow to the will of King Gates.

Microsoft will no longer have the final say in software. Thus ends the stranglehold that King Gates and Microsoft has over the computer world.

Racism takes a turn

Michael Westerman was killed because he was a Southerner who was proud of his heritage and showed it by flying a Confederate flag in the back of his pickup.

He was murdered by two black men who felt he was racist and had no right to fly his beloved flag. But the conclusions drawn by both black men about Westerman—and his flag—were based on misinformation spewed by groups who survive on hate, and media.

Sadly, the two convicted black men and their relatives continue to offer the tiring—and misguided argument that the Confederate flag is a symbol of racism. One judge after another has ruled that it is not. Yet groups like the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People continue to use that argument—and have for years. The news media has never hesitated in piling it on, too. One of the results of all this is the murder of Westerman.

The relatives of the convicted murderers alluded to Ku Klux Klansmen being in the courtroom and that their presence had something to do with the verdict.

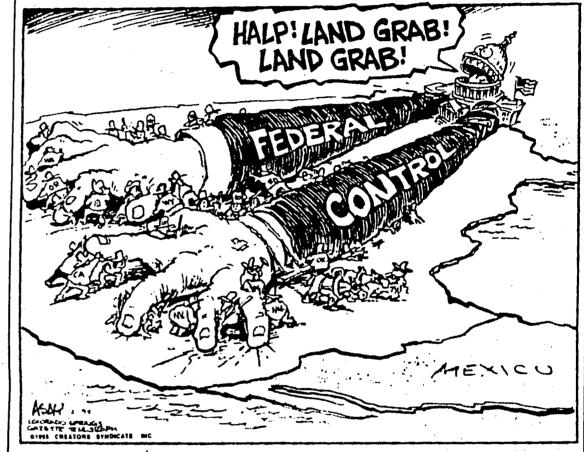

The KKK had nothing to do with the verdict, if indeed any of its pathetic members were there. Murder becomes pretty obvious when the gunman confesses and you have eyewitnesses admitting there were car loads of men chasing Westerman and his wife and that a car with a gun-wielding occupant blocked them from taking a shorter route to a hospital after a bullet ripped open Westerman's heart.

Pcople who dislike Southerners frequently play up the racism issue in an attempt to censor and deny Southerners their constitutional right of celebrating their heritage. This is why the civil rights intimidation charge against the two men convicted in Westerman's death could have landmark implications: civil rights are color blind.

How someone gets racism out of a flag that honors Andrew, the Biblical disciple of Jesus Christ, should tell us how effective this message of hate against the South has become. Also, it is a flag in which hundreds of thousands of Southern fathers, 90 percent of which did not own slaves, fought for and died.

America cannot thrive if hate crimes persist—period. —Associated Press

Damon Barkdull

Staff

oses are usually given as a kind gesture or a means of making someone feel good. On Thursday night in front of 2,827 in the Kibbie Dome, Idaho men's basketball team used a Rose as a means to morally crush Weber State's hopes of winning a Big Sky Conference game - only this Rose wasn't a flower, it was Vandal guard Reggie Rose who scored a career high 23 points and helped the black and gold stop Weber's three game win streak in the dome with a 86-83 win.

"He hit a huge three," UI coach Joe Cravens said. "The one you scream don't shoot, great shot."

With :03 left in the game and the ball in go-to-man Jimmy DeGraffenried's hands, Idaho's Shawn Dirden put his hands up as DeGraffenried put the final shot in the air, hoping for the game tying shot.

Instead, DeGraffenried through up a stagnant air ball and UI's Nate Gardner rebounded to secure the Vandals (2-2, 8-7) first conference home game win.

"We're playing pretty good right now, that's no slouch of a team," Cravens said.

The win gives the Vandals a three game win streak while Weber falls to 2-3 in conference, 10-8 overall.

The two teams went back and forth early in the first half. A Rose three pointer tied the game up at 23 with 10:13 left in the first half. At this point there had already been six lead changes and five ties and the game looked to be developing into an all out fight.

But the Vandals raced out to a late first half lead after Rose hit two consecutive three point field goals just before intermission, giving Idaho a 44-37 advantage going into the locker room at halftime. The Vandals finished the first half shooting 17 of 33, just over 50 percent.

A first half key for Idaho had been to spread the ball out, as 7 of 9 Vandal players had scored before halftime but one error on the Vandals part was giving away unforced turnovers that the Wildcats eventually capitalized on.

In the second half, a steady Vandal dose of Jason Jackman. Eddie Turner, Nate Gardner and Shawn Dirden. Jackman, who was questionable before Thursday's game, was second only to Rose in scoring, punching in 13 points for the Vandals.

The Vandals seemed to have things put away, leading 61-50 with just over 12:00 left in the game. But Idaho began to play conservative and the Wildcats started a hot streak and outscored the Vandals on a 16-8 run to bring Weber within six points near the 2:00 mark.

"When you go to that half court trap it slows you down," Cravens said. "But I'll take a win regardless of how we played."

With 1:07 left in the game Reggie Rose hit two free throws to put the Vandals up 86-79. Once again things looked to be bleak for the Wildcats but once again they found a way to claw their way back.

Idaho gave Weber the chance to nearly win the game on the free throw line, as Wildcat Justyn Tebbs connected on two free throws and DeGraffenried hit an open layup to pull Weber within 3 with :40 left. Turner's shot on the other side of the court was blocked and Weber's Tebbs grabbed the rebound which gave the Wildcats their last unsuccessful shot at winning the game.

'We won this game on offense," Cravens said. "It's a good win for us. We have to bring this into Saturday night's game (against Northern Arizona).'

Idaho finished the evening shooting 55 percent from the floor.

Weber was led in scoring Ryan Cuff, who went 4 of 6 on the night from three point land.

The Vandals will entertain Northern Arizona on Saturday night. NAU is winless in Big Sky Conference game as of press time, pending on the outcome of their game at Eastern Washington last night.

Then Idaho left the Palouse things couldn't have looked any better for Julie Holt's squad, but it was a different story when they arrived in Ogden, Utah.

After losing two starters before last weekend to injury, Idaho looked as if it would be healthy for its first conference road trip of the season. But injuries were the least of their worries when the opening whistle blew in the Dee Events Center last night. Idaho never really got into it's game plan, thus never eally giving themselves a chance o win the game, with the contest nding in a lopsided 98-66 victory n front of a of only 400.

Weber State came out of the locks smoking, as they held a doue figure lead for most of the first alf, and for that matter, most of the game. The Wildcats took a 48-30 lead into the lockerroom at the half, and eased through the second half, as no Wildcat player played more than 26 minutes. Four wildcats notched double figures in the score book, while 12 of the 13 players on the roster reached the score column.

Idaho also had 10 of its 12 players tally points in the scoring column, but the game was out of reach from the start. The game was physical, with both teams getting called for over 20 fouls, Idaho (27) and Weber State (22).

Jodi Wimmer led the Wildcat attack with 19 points, followed by Shelly Berg with 15, and Mika Brown and Tori Allen with 13 and 11 respectively.

Idaho was led by Ari Skorpik with 13, and Natalie Hawks and Kelli Johnson with 12 and 11 of their own.

Weber State shot a scorching 53 percent for the game from the field, while hitting 50 percent from beyond the arc on 6-12 shooting. Wimmer was nearly perfect on the evening hitting 7-10 from the field, along with 5-6 from the charity stripe.

The Wildcats took only five more shots than the Vandals, but connected on 12 more, not to mention that they outrebounded the Vandals 51-31, including 12 more boards on the offensive end.

Idaho falls to 6-11 (2-2), while Weber State ups its record to 8-9 (2-3).

Idaho resumes play tonight against Northern Arizona. Weber State (98)

With snow flying on the Palouse like rice at a wedding, Idaho travels to Flagstaff, Ariz., to escape winter for a day, and of course to play a little ball.

Coming off last night's loss to Weber State, Idaho looks to get back above .500 in conference against another high scoring offense. The Lumberjacks average 76 points a game and are led by Karli Rikll's 11 points a game. They are led on the boards by Rikll as well at seven rebounds a game.

Ari Skorpik got back on track after being held scoreless the last two contests prior to Thurday nights game. Mindy Rice only played 21 minutes for the Vandals and may be feeling the effects of the cortizone shot she received on Saturday.

Northern Arizona went into last nights game at 1-3 in conference and 8-7 overall.

The Vandals return home next weekend to host the Montana schools on Friday and Saturday night at 7:05 p.m.in Memorial Gym.

Student attendance stymies Athletic Dept

Mike Stetson Staf

When Idaho decided to move to the Big West last year, only one problem faced the UI athletic department: attendance. The quandry was not just on the gridiron, but on the hardwood court of the Kibbie Dome and Memorial Gym as well.

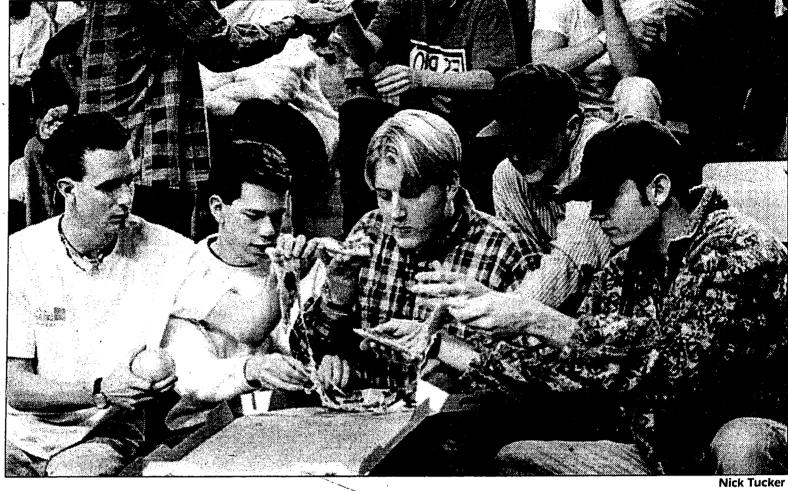

The first step in the crusade to improve attendance came when Mike Hogan, director of marketing for Vandal Athletics helped turn Vandal football attendance around in the fall by making the game an event for students and fans. An average of 14,888 fans packed The Donie during four games this season to "Get Into The Game." That figure placed Idaho in the top 15 in the nation for I-AA schools, a jump of 4,562 people per game over last year.

Opening against Sonoma State the crowd topped 14,000 with 3,900 students attending. Students will remember this game mainly due to ASUI and its tail-gate party.

While the overall attendance for the final three games against Eastern Washington, Montana and Boise State stayed high, the student attendance dropped. Only 2,100 students watched Idaho win homecoming weekend against the Eagles, and 1,700 showed up for the game against the Grizzlies. The final game of the '95 season against BSU brought 16,295 fans to Moscow, but only 2,500 students saw the Vandals down the Broncos at home 33-13.

Hogan reflects on his first season at Idaho with mixed impression. Happy with the increased attendance, he still wonders how to get students out to the games.

We're here for the students, we need as much support from the students as possible. Students lead the crowd, when the students are boisterous, the rest of the crowd is boisterous," Hogan said.

Food is one way Idaho is trying to get more students in attendance. While general attendance is up, student attendance is down.

Away from the football field, the trend has continued as the Vandal volleyball team ranked 21st in the nation in attendance averaging over 1,000 spectators each match. The spikers have rewarded their fans with a 46-game home-win streak in "The House of Death."

On the basketball court, the men's team averaged 1,952 fans per game last year. This season, Craven's hoopsters have drawn 2,117 spectators per game, despite only playing four home games up to last night's clash with Weber State, two of which came during student breaks.

However, like football, student attendance for basketball is also down, averaging just over 500 students per game, a number Hogan finds disappointing. With conference play still ahead and nine of the Vandals' last 11 games in Moscow, Hogan believes this year should have basketball fans very excited.

Increasing the student attendance at Vandal games now serves as one of Hogan's primary goals. Despite the Vandal Boosters' Tuition Waiver program, student attendance at football games slowly declined. At basketball games, fans have the opportunity to win a $5,000 shopping spree at the Palouse Empire Mall, but only 700 students showed up when the Washington Huskies visited, despite the gimmicks.

"We want the games to be more fun for students. We want students to come and be loud, to be crazy, to be energetic," Hogan said. "We need students to do that."

One change students will see this semester is a Living Group Night. The evening will pit living groups against each other in a spirit contest based on noise, not numbers, along with a three-legged race at halftime.

With so much attention on team sports, people might think athletics forgets the individual athlete sports. But basketball, volleyball and football do not stand alone under Hogan's efforts as athletics has made an extra effort to increase the exposure of the tennis, golf and track and field teams. This year the tennis team has enjoyed having their own marketing intern working for them. As for track and field, despite not hosting any outdoor events, the university's connection with Dan O'Brien helps make the Vandal Indoor Meet one of the biggest each year in the Pacific Northwest.

With most of the team sports drawing to a close, Hogan begins to focus on next year and the question of how to get students involved. Hogan plans to become more involved with students this spring to find out what students want to see at Vandal sporting events. Hogan also wants athletes to become more visible and involved with living groups and clubs, promoting a positive image and making athletics more personal for students.

On the field, Hogan looks to the coming of the Big West as a great advantage. In football, fans can enjoy watching Idaho take on an old rival, Nevada, which has won the Big West two of the last three years. Along with the new teams though, fans will still get to see rivals like Montana and Eastern Washington in non-conference games instead of teams like Sonoma State.

Physical Steelers look to snap recent NFC dominance

FC fans, this is the year for redemption. Not since January of 1984 has an AFC team sprayed champagne in a Super Bowl locker room, but this is the year things change. Lets take a closer look at the Super Bowl matchups of the past decade-plus.

Of those 11 AFC losses, four were suffered by the Buffalo Bills and three by the Denver Broncos. These teams were cursed by futility in any game with Roman numerals. One could also make a case the AFC was not at a talent level equal to the NFC in these team's glory years.

The other four AFC losers were: Miami (1985). The Dolphins boasted one of the most prolific offenses in NFL history during the 1984 regular season, with Marino tossing 48 touchdowns and passing for more than 5,000 yards, but their defense was nowhere near as good and couldn't shut down a great 49er club.

New England (1986), the Patriots made a great playoff run, becoming just the second wild card team ever to make the Super Bowl, but it was just that, a great run. Any team can beat any team on any given day. The Patriots won three straight playoff games, but when it came time to match up in Super Bowl XX with the Bears, they couldn't compete. OK, your picking a fantasy football team. Who do you take, Tony Eason, Craig James, Ronnie Lippett and Andre Tippet or Jim McMahon, Walter Payton, Mike Singletary and Richard Dent. If you need help with this choice you shouldn't even be playing fantasy football.

Cincinnati (1989), yes that's right, the Bengals were respectable a few years back. Anybody remember the lckey shuffle? Ickey Woods, that flash in the pan running back and James Brooks gave the Tiger bunch a very formidable running attack. The Bengals weren't bad but they caught Jerry Rice on a record-breaking day (220-some receiving yards, Super Bowl record), not a good omen for victory.

San Diego. (1995), the Chargers were the best the AFC had to offer last year, but nobody could have beaten the 49ers. Man-for-man last year's 49ers were one of the best NFL teams ever assembled. Not to knock the Chargers but they just weren't good enough

"All sports will be scheduling non-league traditional rivals instead of Southeast Missouri State, an unrecognizable team. That's an option we didn't have before."

Basketball and volleyball will also benefit from seeing new teams along with scheduling old rivals for non-conference action. The volleyball team may see its toughest schedule ever, facing teams like national powerhouses Long Beach State and Pacific.

With the constant pressure to increase Vandal attendance and the coming move to the Big West, one question still remains, making Division I-A status through attendance.

However, Hogan feels the issue no longer exists, that the goal is to to beat the Bay area's best last winter.

In short the AFC has had some tough breaks. In some years 1991, 1989, 1985, AFC clubs could have pulled out victories, but just came up short, Scott Norwood's (Bills) wide right in '91, and John Taylor's (49ers) touchdown grab in the final minutes in 1989. And then there have been years where the AFC has ran into some of the best NFC teams ever.

Sunday could realistically be the day an AFC team breaks the 11-year jinx. Any coach will tell you, ball control and tough defense will win games. Unlike past AFC teams the Steelers strength is in its defense. Granted the Cowboys have a superb offensive line, but lets see them try and block more than one great player, i.e. Reggie White last weekend. Troy Aikman will likely see more pressure than he has in a long time in the form of Kevin Greene and Greg Lloyd.

The Steelers also have a good secondary that should be able to cover all three Dallas receiving threats, Michael Irvin, Kevin Williams and Jay Novacek. Pittsburgh corner Deon Figures is 100 percent after missing much of the season and Rod Woodson will play Sunday after missing all season except the first half of week one after tearing his anterior cruciate ligament. In addition Carnell Lake has proven he can make the transition from all-pro safety to corner.

The Steelers are a very physical team and match up better with Dallas than any team the 'Boys have seen in the postseason. Don't expect a lot of Mack-truck size holes for Emmitt Smith to waltz through.

On the other side of the ball teams have proven it is possible to score on the Cowboys defense. Green Bay put 27 points on the board two weeks ago and even Washington scored more than 20 on two separate occasions.

Pittsburgh has a diversified offense. The flash and smash running game of Eric Pegram and Bam Morris keeps teams off balance and Yancy Thigpen, Ernie Mills and Andre Hastings have been surprisingly effective in the passing game. And then there is that Kordell Stewart guy. The former Colorado Buffalo has ran, thrown and caught a touchdown pass this season. When the rookie goes onto the field defenses never know what to expect.

So if the only reason you've been reading along is to see my prediction, here it is. I am going out on a limb and picking an AFC team. In one of the most competitive Super Bowls ever, Pittsburgh will win a tight game 23-21.

TEMPE, Ariz. Jerry said he did it. Jimmy said he did and came halfway across the country to make the point. So don't even think about telling them to bury the hatchet. It would just wind up stuck in one or the other.

The answer may be in dispute, but the question is not: Who took the Dallas Cowboys from the bottom of the NFL to the top? "I always had ultimate authority," Jerry Jones said. "If somebody wants to write a

"If somebody wants to write a check and say he made the decision, fine," Jimmy Johnson countered.

Theirs is a rivalry that will never end. Several hundred miles were supposed to separate them Wednesday. Uninvited, Jimmy dropped into Jerry's little Super Bowl soirce.

"I wouldn't want to take away any of the focus from the ballgame," Johnson told reporters, explaining his visit. "But there were so many requests from you people that this seemed the best way to do it."

Sure.

"I'm here with Barry Switzer and Jimmy's in Miami," Jones said. "That's closure."

Maybe. Johnson and Jones exchanged greetings twice in recent weeks: once just before the Cowboys beat Green Bay two weeks in the NFC championship, when they shook hands on the sideline; and a second time at the Senior Bowl, while they were looking over talent at the college all-star game.

THE ARGONAUT 17

"He said, 'Hey, it was a great five years together. It was productive for both of us,"' Johnson said. "And we could be working together again. I might want to pull off some shenanigans and make a trade with him." "Man," he said, "Jimmy could get you wound up to play."

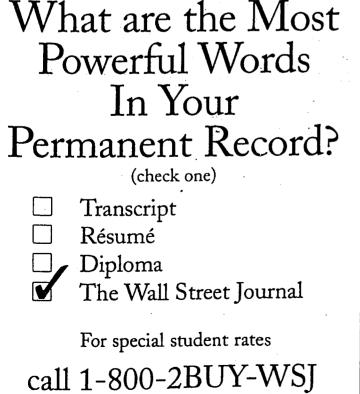

He could do plenty of other things, too. Inspire loyalty, assess talent, trade shrewdly. But Jones said at the breakup two years ago that any of 500 guys could coach the Cowboys to the Super Bowl and after failing in his first try, Switzer has finally made Jones a man of his word.

Johnson didn't call him a liar, exactly. But he suggested, subtly, that Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith and Michael Irvin didn't just show up one day in Dallas and the develop into superstars overnight.

Even more impressive, Johnson said he could work the same magic in Miami. Without Jones' fingerprints all over the place.

"I didn't come back for the job, I came back to win a Super Bowl. It will have to happen in the next three years," Johnson said, "or I'll be disappointed."

The UI men's Volleyball Club gears up Feb. 1 for the road to the United States Volleyball Association (USVBA) National Tournament to be held in Dallas, Texas, beginning May '96.

UI student athletes are currently putting together a Men's Club Volleyball Team that will be a member of the USVBA, and consist entirely of UI undergraduate students.

UI Assistant women's volleyball coach Melissa Stokes said the team has a lot of talent and will have definite competitive capability come Feb. 1.

However, Stokes is not there just for moral support, but to serve as coach and as she puts it, help the men's team achieve better disciplined play through frequent structured practices.

"From what I have seen, the team needs to perfect simple things like passing, etc.," said Stokes.

Becoming disciplined is not the extent of the team objectives.

"Our primary goal is to attend the National Tournament in Dallas, Texas," said Stokes. "Yes, I believe this is a realistic team goal having seen a few of the players in action during a friendship tournament against Eastern Washington last semester.'

Stokes believes UI student Ryan Anderson's organization of a group of guys, who enjoy playing volleyball on the weekends and who have been playing on and off campus for the past few years, into a UI Men's Club League is a move in the right direction for a team.

There are lots of other schools in the Pacific Northwest and West Coast that have men's club volleyball teams that compete nationally, why not Idaho as well, added Stokes.

"Ryan Anderson approached me with the idea of a men's club team and I thought it would be a good idea," Stokes said.

The Club Team will compete in the Pacific Northwest against teams such as Eastern Washington, Washington State, Gonzaga, Whitworth, Montana, Montana State and more.

Club player Ryan Anderson, who reintroduced the idea of men's club volleyball, said the team should consist of 12 to 14 individuals. Coach Stokes added that, yes, 12 to 14 is an accurate number for the team, but if a large enough number of students show interest there is a possibility of establishing Varsity and Junior Varsity club volleyball teams.

Our primary goal is to attend the National Tournament in Dallas, Texas.

> -Melissa Stokes Men's Club Coach

"Making a junior varsity men's club team will depend on the number of people, but also depend on the availability of practice space to accommodate both teams," said Stokes.

"A fast paced volleyball match with fewer digs and numerous powerful spikes, a popular characteristic of men's volleyball, offers something different for students to watch," said Stokes. "Women's volleyball tends to incorporate more digs than the men's,"

'It's a chance for serious volleyball players to compete at a higher level outside of intramurals," said player Russ Taylor.

To give UI students and volleyball fans a taste for the exciting volleyball action, the Men's Club Volleyball Team plans to hold a couple exhibition matches against Washington State University and Eastern Washington in Memorial Gym. Dates and times for these matches will be announced.

Funding for traveling expenses, uniforms, etc. will be earned through team fund raisers. Anderson said ASUI will be matching money raised by fund raisers up to $1,000.

"Fund raisers will include things like helping out the UI Women's Volleyball Team," said Stokes.

Tryouts continue through Jan. 30. All home matches during the semester will be held in Memorial Gym. The exact time and dates of the Men's Club Volleyball Team's league schedule are to be announced.

New albums to be released from Idaho bands

Matt Baldwin

Two spices originating from the state of Idaho, Stuntman and Shoveljerk, prepare to release albums off of their labels to the masses on a national scale very soon.

The two albums, on Link and Capricorn respectively, will hopefully usher the state into a more center spotlight. Yes, Built to Spill helped with their signing to Atlantic, but with Shoveljerk and Stuntman hooking up with national distribution Idaho will be a new force in the music world and another emerging surge from . Seattle.

Stuntman, formerly Treepeople, emigrated to the Northwest's rock Mecca. Seattle, in hope of becoming larger than they were in Boise. Yet it was this split away from Boise that sprung the subsequent formation of Boise's most successful rock band, Built to Spill.

Industry officials hope Seattle and Boise will work together to put out more potent bands than in the past. The reason being is that Boise does not have the population, nor the club base to support a rising band. That brings it down to three cities in the Northwest to produce more and more bands that are increasingly defining new realms of music. When Scott Schmaljohn and John Polle left Scattle's Treepeople in favor of staying in the pleasant city of Boise it brought about the birth of Stuntman and marked the end of the Treepeople.

Shoveljerk is the break-away band from a former manifestation, Black Happy. Dropping their horn section they bring a new flavor to their style which works and has helped increase their fan base throughout the western United States.

Coeur d'Alene is the forest from which Shoveljerk pulled its roots. Soon after their formation within the Coeur d'Alene area they moved into playing larger venues within and outside the state.

Swarm is Shoveljerk's debut album. The architecture of the music is of beauty and grace. There are no abrasive chords from track one to track 12.

"Easy Target," the first track off of the album, has a blend of heavy chords with a psychedelic wavering that passes from heavy to light; matching the lyrics and rhythm of the vocalist. It is one of the more hypnotic tracks on the album. It's like someone slowly turning the volume up on static increasing its intensity, potency and energy.

The sixth track on the album. "Summer," is a product of noise guitar and a melody of tuned vocals (a rarity in bands nowadays). Though the music is like a bullet-train flying through the gullet Idaho bands Stuntman (above) and shoveljerk are releasing albums next month. entering your cranium at mach 11, the electricity of this band is in its lyrics and orchestration.

If you were a person who enjoyed the days of Black Happy, then jump back onto the bandwagon and buy the Shoveljerk album off of Capricorn records. Each buzz from the album is like a snooze button on your receptors: pushing it creates an amorphous feel of trinity into a swirl of entertainment in clouds of dream and thought. As for the legendary Treepeople turned Stuntman, they too have a soon to be released album aptly dubbed with their own name. The new album features 11 a new twist. Stuntman has a varying sound that drifts between distilled punk old Treepeople sounded like with and noise pop. Their attempts to be mellow are often times interrupted with brash distorted guitar chords. "Slaves" is one such song that has a variety of noise mingling with a lurid supply of pop lyrics and pop vocals.

These two bands, which are relative to the area, are a must have for the music lover's collection.

Sagin' Time and The River Project to play benefit at Rathaus

Justin Cason

Imost every weekend, Rathaus Pizza Shoppe is the home of solid bands, remarkable local music and a fairly good time. Tonight, for once, all this is for a good cause.

Moscow bands The River Project and Sagin' Time will be playing in benefit of the Cove Mallard Coalition at 9 p.m. at the pizza house. All proceeds will go to the Coalition, whose goal is halting the building of over 145 proposed miles of logging roads in Central Idaho.

"Once they get the roads down, they can destroy the timber at will," Wade Gruhl, a volunteer for the Cove Mallard Coalition, said of the logging industry. Gruhl has been active in the fight against the industry since 1993.

Cove Mallard is the name of the area in Idaho where the road building is occurring and will continue unless a court appeal overturns the timber industry's grant. The region is located near Elk City and Grangeville.

Not too long ago, environmental defense groups such as Cove Mallard could find much more support and satisfaction through the legal system, according to Gruhl. However,

ار. ۲۰۰۸ - ۲۰۰۹ هارو، ۱۹ ۱۹ مارین ور ماریسانسی ورسار میتوانس ایران ا that has changed.

"The laws have been suspended," he said. "With a slice of a pen they were all eliminated. Civil disobedience is becoming more and more accepted since we can no longer use the courts."

This civil disobedience for the meantime encompasses road blockades and demonstrations against the 80 million board feet of land to be deforested. "It's mostly symbolic,' Gruhl stated.

The Cove Mallard Coalition is part of a set of groups which includes Friends of the Clearwater and the Wild Rockies Defense Fund.

Practicing environmentalists are not the only ones who oppose the incoming logging roads. Members of both groups performing tonight realize that, while an excellent chance to play their music, the concert is for a worthy cause.

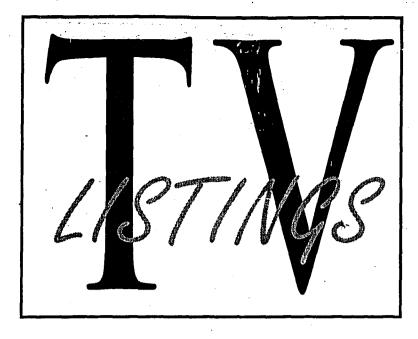

Still, it's the Coalition which should take much of the credit for the concert, and deservedly so.

"It's corporate welfare," Gruhl said. "The timber companies are getting handouts from the taxpayers' (money). You and I are paying timber companies to destroy our land. We want people to know about it and become enraged about it."

Is it Bio-Dome or Bio-Dumb?

Matt Baldwin

For the environmentalist without a sense of humor Bio-Dome could be offensive, but to the humorist in us all the film ushers us into a hermetically sealed, glass domed, perfect-Earth-environment. In this movie Pauly Shore, MTV's oddity from the California area, teams up with Stephen Baldwin to become two eco-insensitive youths.

The movie begins with a collage of video work dispersed between the opening credits that creates a yawnfest for the viewer. The film and the laughs begin with an opening scene where Shore and

Baldwin are playing paper-rockscissors to determine who will get smacked in the head with an encyclopedia; a ruse that would allow them get out of going and helping their girlfriends pick up garbage.

Bio-Dome is a movie that mimics the Biosphere experiment, but with one catch: Shore and Baldwin accidentally get trapped inside and are unable to leave. Consequently, they are termed as the chaos factor of nature; if the biodome can make it 365 days with Shore and Baldwin then the experiment succeeds.

A majority of the film plays off environmental concerns: Shore and Baldwin lighting up cigarettes while one of the bio-sphere scientists is lecturing on the precise balance that has been achieved in the construction of the bio-sphere.

Bio-Dome is layered with a lacquer of humor, satire, irony and pure idiot-comedy that cruises on the edge of absurd disgrace or a film which creates an epiphany in the end. Either way, it's the viewer's call.

Like MTV and its icon (Shore) Bio-Dome offers the "alternative" soundtrack of bands which could be found only on Alternative Nation or 120 Minutes (MTV's last remnants of so-so quality programming). The music ranges from a remix of Men Without Hats "The Safety Dance" to Wax and Magnapop.

Since the soundtrack is a dispersal of distilled noise-pop-punkrock bands, it becomes difficult to distinguish the bands from each other. The best song on the album is from Men Without Hats, another includes Fourth Grade Nothing's "Adirectional," a smattering of noisy guitar with whiny choruses that sound like Rancid without the slurred voice.

Dance Hall Crashers' "Don't Wanna Behave," is a nice bit of guitar work with mellifluous female vocals and whimsical lyrics about fighting against the establishment. It's a theme that has been sung off and on for decades, making the song nothing special.

Wax, with a total of two songs, comes off as the second best band from the album. Many of the songs on the album are repetitive with bland guitar playing and boring drum beats. It is obvious that many of the bands on the soundtrack offer nothing tangible except for a monotonous illusion of skill to numb the cars.

If you can make it past the music the movie should be enjoyable. It is not a movie that requires stressful thinking, but it does make for a good time and a break from thinking. A good remedy for this first week of classes.

Bio-Dome is currently playing at the University 4 Theater in Moscow.

The soundtrack can be found at your local music store (look for the two moronic faces of Shore and Baldwin on the cover).

Voices for Human Rights to host auction on Sunday

Valaree Johnson Staff

For what Susan Baumgartner calls the "independent spirits," the Voices for Humans Rights will hold their Second Annual Auction for Justice this Sunday at the Moscow Community Center from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

If free food, the wonderful sounds of musician Dan Maher and the excitement of an auction aren't reason enough to attend the event, maybe the motivation behind it all is.

Voices for Human Rights is a local non-profit organization which works towards respect and equality for Idaho citizens. "We stand for respect for all people," says JoAnn Muneta, Secretary of Voices for Human Rights. "Whenever that respect is threatened, our community must come together." Baumgartner, media representative of the Voices group, agrees that it is up to people to change the singling out of minority groups. She feels since the introduction of anti-gay initiatives people have newfound support and feeling about the fight for human rights.

"We realize we don't like the hatred anymore," says Baumgartner. Even though the group winces at the thought of a new anti-gay initiative sponsored by Kelly Walton of the Idaho Citizen's Alliance, they are ready to fight back again.

"We usually refer to these initiatives as anti-people initiatives," says Muneta who feels last year's auction was very profitable fiscal 1 y and in plurality of people. Voices wants to start early this year so they can focus on positive events and attempt to prevent Idahoans from going through another divisive campaign to say no a second time. The auction will feature the fastpaced spiel of Doug Garrot of Garrot Auctions who will be auctioning work from various local artists such as Louise Fall, Bill Voxman, Carla Kappler, Rebecca Rod and Andi Olsen. A variety of works donated by these artists will be featured including Native

"There are a wide range of prices and pieces to bid on," says Baumgartner. "Even if people don't have the money, it's still fun to watch people bicker on bids." The auction will also feature a performance by Dan Maher, local host of "Inland Folk" on KWSU radio.

Refreshments will be served. There is a $5 admission price for the event. Proceeds from the Auction for Justice will go toward education and outreach efforts as Voices members encourage people to "decline to sign" the ICA's petitions.

Tickets are available in advance from BookPeople in Moscow or can be purchased at the door beginning at 2 p.m. Any interested artists or for other information call JoAnn Muneta at 883-3267 or Susan Baumgartner at 882-1261.

LC's brew Review: 1995-96 Winter seasonals

Erik Marone

Some of the best beers available can be found during the winter season. Many breweries produce limited batches of special brews, usually ales or porters.

One such porter comes from the Pacific Northwest. Hale's Brewery offers the Celebration Porter, which is not a world-class beer, but a nice change of pace from Hale's usual fare. Lighter in color and body than most porters, it also has an aroma that is not quite as sharp as a typical porter, having an almost flo-Keeping with ral quality. the lightness is the flavor, which is more subtle than many porters, and the aftertaste is dry and lingering. I'd recommend this beer for those afraid of darker brews. It is a porter, but not nearly as strong as the style tends to be. It's not an unpleasant beer, but it's not spectacular either.

Oregon's Rogue Brewery releases the Mogul Ale every year, a dark ale with cloudy, deep reddish-amber color. The first thing out of my mouth after having a sip was "Wow! That's a lot of hops." The first taste really grabs you with a sharp, hoppy bite, then backs off to a very pleasant, full flavor with yeasty characteristics from the unfiltered sediment. It's hard to say where the first taste stops and the aftertaste starts, as the aftertaste becoming increasingly bitter as the flavor lingers at the back of your mouth and throat. I've always said, "The bigger the bitter beer face, the better the bitter beer," and this beer ranks fairly high on the good bitter scale.

Renowned for it's signature steam beer, San Francisco's Anchor Brewing Company presented it's annual Merry Christmas, Happy New Year Special Ale late in November. In early January, the beer is pulled from the shelves and allowed to age in the bottle, then is offered again the following year in addition to the current year's ale. Every year, the recipe is different, but annually offered in the same spirit: "Joy and the celebration of the new-

The 1994 Special Ale was the 20th year of this tradition, and we sampled a bottle of the reserve, which had been aging for over a year. This dark ale was colored like a porter, but light-bodied for a beer that dark. The aroma is very complex, with spicy overtones. The flavor reveals the spices, most notably cloves. The aftertaste is dry but persistent, lingering pleasantly on the palate. The 1995 brew was very similar to the '94, but with much more clove presence in the aroma and a fuller clove taste in the beer without an increased sharpness to the taste. Both beers are very Christmassy brews indeed.

Pyramid's Snowcap Ale is a seasonal favorite among many beer enthusiasts throughout the northwest. This dark ale is deep brown with an amber tint. It is mediumbodied, but has a wonderful full taste with a unique hoppiness that sets this beer apart from other similar ales. The aftertaste is dry and short-lived, encouraging another sip of this fine beer.

Although the fall and winter seasonals will be disappearing soon, many are still available, and most are worth sampling. Most of these beers are available locally, with the exception of the Anchor brews, which have been shelved for later this year. Before that financial aid runs out, you should run out and try some of the beers that make beer worth drinking. Cheers!

-who the hell are you?-

Breakfast served with a smile

Valaree Johnson Staff

Those who frequent the Satellite Sub know what I am talking about. Even though the stream of orders seems endless, the two little ladies behind the counter always take them with a smile. Nina Gilder and Natalie Thomas are the names to the faces that go through nearly 20 loaves of bread a day. "We cook 50 or more breakfasts a day," says Thomas.

Nina and Natalie are both natives of the Philippines. Nina met her American husband and married him in the Philippines. They moved to the states around 28 years ago when her husband worked for Boeing. Nina has been working at the University of Idaho for about nine years.

"It's very enjoyable to talk to people, even though I don't speak very good English," says Nina, as she takes an order for Joe's Breakfast.

Natalie has been working for Ul for 14 years now and loves her job as well. Natalie came directly to Moscow in 1979 after she married a now retired WSU engineering professor.

"I meet many students and some of them are my best friends," says Natalie. Many regulars enjoy the amicable service they receive when ordering breakfast at the Satellite Sub.

"I don't even have to tell them my name," says UI student David Hisel, who had breakfast nearly every day last semester at the Satellite Sub. "They're friendly, prompt and treat you with a smile."

Interacting with the students while keeping an eye on cooking several items at once is a feat any chef would admire. Even though the transition from a routine breakfast of fried rice in the Philippines to the good ol' American breakfast wasn't easy, they do their job with a flair and the steady line of customers is proof.

Everyone would agree the best condiment of all is the charm and enthusiasm they serve with breakfast.

The Information Superhighway is a source of untold wisdom, knowledge and most of all, humor. In this newest addition to the Argonaut's Diversions section, we will be featuring some of the interesting and funny things floating around the internet.

And now, the debut offering from the 'net...

With the recent turn in the weather, you may have an excuse for missing work, but we won't have this snow forever. In case you need an excuse in the future, here are the "top 10 excuses for missing work:"

10. When I got up this morning I took two Ex-Lax in addition to my Prozac. I can't get off the john, but I feel good about it.

9. My stigmata's acting up.

8. I can't come in to work today because I'll be stalking my previous boss, who fired me for not showing up for work. OK?

7. I have a rare case of 48-hour projectile leprosy, but I know we have that deadline to meet...

6. Yes, I seem to have contracted some attention deficit disorder and, hey, how about them Skins, huh? So, I won't be able to, yes, could I help you? No, no, I'll be sticking with Sprint, but thank you for calling.

5. Constipation has made me a walking time bomb.

4. The psychiatrist said it was an excellent session. He even gave me this jaw restraint so I won't bite things when I am startled.

3. My stepmother has come back as one of the undead and we must track her to her coffin to drive a stake through her heart to give her eternal peace. One day should be enough.

2. I can't come to work today because the EPA has determined that my house is completely surrounded by wetlands and I have to arrange for helicopter transportation.

1. If it is all the same to you I won't be coming in to work. The voices told me to clean all the guns today.

Brass Company plays tonight

Justin Cason Staff

The Chestnut Brass Company will be playing tonight as a part of the year-long Chamber Music Series sponsored by the University of Idaho. This will mark the first time the Company has been at UI, although it has received popular support at nearly every performance.

"They're quite well-known," said Mary DuPree, director of the Auditorium of Chamber Music Series. "They've toured pretty much all over Europe and North and South America, and have been on National Public Radio." One unique feature of the Company is that it tours with what DuPree calls "a museum of brass instruments." For each era from which they play, all the instruments used are of that time period. In all, there are about 30 different instruments used in the performances DuPree said.

The Company will be in town tomorrow also to host a public gallery dealing with their classic instruments. The members will talk about the evolution of brass, answer questions and even play a little bit. This event will be held in the Student Union Building Ballroom at 11 a.m.

Tickets for the concert are available at Ticket Express on the first floor of the Student Union Building. It starts at 8 p.m. and will be held in the University Auditorium. For additional information, call 885-6231. Saturday, the University

Saturday, the University Auditorium will be host to the Idaho/Wash. Symphony for another 8 p.m. concert. Like the Chestnut Brass Company, the Idaho/Wash. group is a regular favorite at the UI. For information, call 882-6555. Saturday will also be the day for an area-wide high school band festival. The performances will last all day, starting at 9 a.m. The festival will be held in the Student Union Building.

Experience peace of mind and body with Yoga

The art of yoga has been around for quite some time. The art of yoga in Moscow, however, is a different story. Almost 10 years ago, Jeri Stewart brought to the community this popular form of relaxation and balance.

Now, as owner of the Moscow Yoga Center, Stewart is in her fifth year of offering classes to the citizens of the Palouse.

The classes, which Stewart emphasizes are for all ages, range from introductory sessions to intermediate level to the more experienced yoga sections. All of the sections practice the lyengar-Hagha style, which deals primarily which physical posture. For those not schooled in the ways of yoga, this art stresses the physical and mental improvement of the human body.

"Yoga helps with the strength and proper alignment of your body," Stewart said. "It also promotes good posture and balance."

More unique "gentleness" classes and restorative sessions are also being offered. The latter deals specifically with relaxation and restoration of the a stress-plagued body. Both courses, in fact, are aimed at stress-relief. Stewart has been a certified yoga instructor for 12 years, but, as there are so many classes, she's not the only one who will be instructing. Erika Cunningham has been a professional yoga teacher for two years and Connie Curry has been for one year.

The classes last two months and average out to $5 per session. The center is offering a 10 percent discount to any registered University of Idaho or Washington State University student.

The first class was on Jan. 24 and introduced and explained what yoga is about.

For more information, call the Moscow Yoga Center, 525 S. Main, at 883-8315.
