Speakers share their 'Entangled Lives'

Tew topics generate more passion than race. Ethnic heritage is a source of pride and interest for many Americans.

Exploring this history led both Dr. Ann Neel, a sociologist from Tacoma, and Pam Smith, former communications-director for Jesse Jackson, back to "Little Dixie," Missouri. After years of digging through marriage licenses and probate records, they discovered Neel's family once owned Smith's.

In their first dual public presentation, Neel and Smith shared their story of entangled lives. The women told the hundreds of students, faculty and community members gathered in the Administration Auditorium Wednesday night not only of their personal histories, but also their changing views of race in

"So much of U.S. history is a lie anyway....When you find out what really went on, it's fascinating," Neel said.

Smith recounted her memories of growing up black in America. At age four, she destroyed the black doll she was given, telling her mother, "I don't want a nigger for

Smith told of the racism she faced growing up. In college, she remembered "having ice balls, solid ice balls, fiercely thrown at me." Smith also discussed working for a black newspaper, the Urban League and Jesse Jackson.

Neel told of traveling to California after World War II with a black

"My mom brought a cot for her to sleep on because the motels wouldn't let her sleep in the beds, Neel said. Neel also spoke of fighting with her father after being forbidden to date a Mexican-American niversity presidential candidate Dr. Larry Branen addressed issues of university goals, staff, funds and marketing at a reception Tuesday in the Student Union Ballroom.

"If you put students first, you will increase their performance overall,"

The university needs to come to an agreement on its mission and goals, Branen said, and everyoneculty, staff and students must have input.

Branen also emphasized UI's role as a residential campus and a landgrant university.

"We value being a residential campus. We do treat students as people," he said. He added that as a land-grant school, UI has access to teaching, research and extension programs that employ students, provide equipment and increase critical thinking.

One of his goals is to improve and retain staff and faculty.

"What makes a difference in a university and what makes it work is the people," Branen said.

He puts high priority on salary increases and equity.

"Assuring that people who are in charge of this university are recog-nized and properly rewarded," Branen said.

He pointed out that the cost of in Moscow is higher than most other places in the state.

Addressing funding, Branen said reallocation is going to be a reality. The predominant source of funds is the state, but money also comes in from grants and student fees, he

Election set for disincorporation of Carey

CAREY, Idaho—Carey residents will decide in May if Carey should disband a governing structure that has been essentially non-existent since anyone can remember.

The Blaine County commissioners accepted a petition from Carey residents requesting the chance to formally vote for disincorporation.

In addition, the commissioners asked Gov. Phil Batt to appoint three people to serve as council members to establish local control.

In a letter to Batt, the commissioners urged appointments to be made soon to enable a city council and mayor to set a budget by June. Falling behind in the budget process would prohibit Carey from functioning in a timely manner during the coming fiscal year.

Monday petition organizers Ronda Hunt and Howard Royal presented the commission with an additional 30 signatures to be added to a 141-signature petition submitted three weeks ago. At that time, controversy arose over the actual voter population counts for

With the recent discovery that Carey has been an incorporated "village" since 1919, no one, including the county commission, had an accurate population count.

Residents finally agreed on 316, making the 171-signatures adequate for the simple majority needed on the petition. The election will be set for May 28.

If voters approve disincorporation, residents could then re-establish city boundaries and start over in the incorporation process. If the election fails, the appointed council would make boundary changes.

Education, corrections clash in cash struggle

BOISE-The legislative inclination to pump more and more cash into education has once again run headlong into Idaho's rising criminal population.

The Senate grudgingly settled for a 4.1 percent increase in general tax support for the three universities and Lewis-Clark State College on Monday while budget writers quickly conceded nearly 15 percent more general tax money for the fledgling Department of Juvenile Corrections.

The Senate also sent to the House the new budget for the Fish and Game Department after only minor debate over the propriety of siphoning $50,000 in big game depredation money into coyote control in eastern Idaho.

And the House forwarded to the Senate the $33.5 million budget for veterans services and some other Health and Welfare Department operations.

The Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee also endorsed the $1.3 million general tax appropriation to Public Television, but not before several lawmakers called for the ouster of General Manager. Jerold Garber. Garber came under fire for announcing program cutbacks due to reductions in both state and federal support and for what budget writer Rex Furness, a Rigby Republican senator, claimed was excessive travel.

Public Television supporters convinced a majority to avoid micromanaging the program and expressing their frustrations and complaints through the state Board of Education, which oversees the agency.

University plans resource center

MOSCOW-The University of Idaho is spreading its wings with the building of the University Response Center in Coeur d'Alene.

Modeled after a similar concept at Colorado State University, the University Response Center's purpose is to provide local industry with resources, expertise and access to information.

UI has been providing agricultural expertise to Idaho's growers for decades via cooperative extension. But where cooperative extension reaches out to farmers, the University Response Center will extend to companies.

Dawson said the center will be careful not to take business away from the local private sector.

While the center is a aimed at industry, there are also benefits for students, Dawson said. More students will be placed in internships with the industries the university

No additional money has been appropriated yet for the university's newfound interest in serving North Idaho businesses, which means resources are likely being reallocated from somewhere else.

Teens take a naked joyride, get caught

BROWNSTOWN TOWNSHIP. Mich.—Four teen-agers who went joyriding in the buff got more excitement than they bargained for when their vehicle got stuck in mud along the highway.

Motorists started calling police to report naked people trying to push a truck in the predawn chill. Temperatures at the time were around freezing.

When a trooper arrived, he found two girls and two boys, all buck naked.

The teens were given blankets and brought to the station, while a wrecker was called to get the vehicle out. Once back at the station, troopers bought outfits at a thrift shop for the teens and sent them home with two misdemeanor tickets apiece.

The four told WJBK-TV in Southfield that the naked drive was an adventure.

"We were just all sitting around and were like, 'Hey, you wanna go get a milkshake naked," one of the girls said.

Each teen received one citation for being a minor in possession of an open container and another for indecent exposure. The teens' names and hometowns were with-

"How many people would actually do that? To get caught like that, it's just a really funny story," the boy said.

Mexican families mourn teens allegedly killed by U.S. Marine MEXICALI, Mexico-Six teenagers were out playing in their poor but usually peaceful Mexicali neighborhood when a pickup truck came screaming through the night. From a distance, their families heard the awful sound of the truck hitting bodies, and the fading roar as it sped away.

Prosecutors say the hit-and-run driver, who killed four of the teens and injured the other two, was a drunken U.S. Marine from just over the border. And today, a military court began deciding whether there is enough evidence to charge 21-year-old Cpl. Francisco Javier Lopez with four counts of murder.

As the hearing got under way today in El Centro, Calif., Lopez was briefed on procedures; testimony was not expected until this afternoon. A decision on whether Lopez will face trial is not expected for two to three weeks following the hearing, according to Lt. Col. Jerry Broeckert.

If convicted, Lopez could face life in prison.

After speeding toward the border in his red truck with 12 Mexican police cars in pursuit, Lopez made it through the checkpoint and was promptly arrested by U.S. authorities. They said he had a bloodalcohol level of 0.16—twice the Remains of five servicemen identified

WASHINGTON—Remains of five U.S. Air Force and Navy officers, until now unaccounted for in Vietnam and Laos, have been identified and will be returned today to a military mortuary in California.

The Pentagon identified the five on Tuesday as Air Force Capt. John E. Duffy, of Portland, Maine; Air Force Maj. Edward M. Hudgens, of Tulsa, Okla.; Navy Lt. Cmdr. Orland J. The Pentagon said Duffy crashed in an O-2A aircraft on an April 4, 1970, mission in Quang Ngai province, South Vietnam. His remains were recovered in May 1993.

Hudgens was piloting an A-1J aircraft on a search and rescue mission March 21, 1970, over Laos when it was hit by ground fire and crashed. His remains were recovered in October 1994 and April Pitzen and Pender were the crew of an F-4J from the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk, escorting an attack mission north of Haiphong, North Vietnam, on Aug. 17, 1972. The plane was believed to have been hit by a surface-to-air missile. Their remains were recovered in November 1994.

Lunch and Learn provides information on U.N

Alissa Arndt

The Borah Foundation and the International Programs Office are hosting lunch and learn seminars on the United Nations through April. The Borah committee is hoping to attract interest and introduce information about the U.N. and how it operates in preparation for the Borah Symposium.

Every year the Borah Foundation holds a symposium to discuss the causes of war and the conditions of peace. Spurred by the 15th anniversary of the U.N. this year's topic for the symposium is the "U.N. Under Fire."

Students and faculty have a chance to get an idea of how the U.N. works and a base of information before the symposium. Lunch and Learn seminars are being held on Mondays from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the library conference room on the fourth floor. The meetings are casual and everyone is invited to bring a lunch.

Donna Hanson, chair of the Borah committee said, "We have tried to find people in the area who are knowledgeable about some of the agencies and can provide some background."

The third seminar in the series was held on Feb. 26 and the topic was the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations. The speakers included Dr. Jack Vincent, director of the Martin Institute and professor of political science; Dr. David Stiller, U.S.

Department of Agriculture scientist who researches animal and veterinary science at UI and Washington State University; Dr. Michael Whiteman, director of the IPO and Dr. James Jones from the agricultural economics department.

New program makes foreign exchange inexpensive

Ely Hudson

The American Institute for Foreign Study is offering a new program that makes foreign exchange more affordable.

Students can now work off some of the cost of foreign exchange while attending school in Europe. Students will live with a host family and provide child care for a maximum of 30 hours a week. In return for the child care, the student receives room and board, $75 a week and time off for vacations.

"Young Americans have always been interested in studying abroad," says William Gertz, senior vice president for AIFS. "But the cost has been prohibitive for many families. This program makes the European cultural experience affordable to many more students by combining work with study-a long established American educational tradition."

The cost for one five-month semester ranges from $1,995 to $2,495; for a full year the cost is $2,495 to $3,495; and the cost is $995 for a summer semester.

The cost covers air fare, help in obtaining a visa, tuition and fees, training in child care, a three day orientation, medical insurance, access to an on-campus AIFS counselor and prescreening for a host family. Students may take

Fugue hopes to join Student Media

Janet Birdsall

The student literary digest, Fugue hopes to stay alive and thrive by becoming a part of Student Media includes the Argonaut, KUOI FM radio and the GEM yearbook. Fugue staff and supporters addressed the ASUI Senate Wednesday night about joining Student Media. This would allow them to receive student funding.

"We publish Fugue as a means to showcase good fiction, good poetry and good artwork," said Eric Isaacson, executive editor.

The digest publishes about 250 copies each semester. The more money we have, the more copies we can get out," Isaacson said. Also, its format fits well with Student Media, but puts out a different product than the Argonaut does, he said.

Shawn Rider said he switched his major to creative writing after seeing the digest.

'It's entertaining in much the same way as KUOI is entertaining. It's good stuff," Rider said. He also said it was a good way to get experience. Gary Williams, chair of the English department, agreed.

What's important about Fugue is it's entirely student-edited. It's circulated nationally and brings credit to the University of Idaho." Williams said.

ASUI President Brian Kane said, "There's definitely a place for Fugue in the ASUI, but we have to make sure we do it the correct

Kane appeared at the meeting with a shaved head. He had made a bet with Boise State University's student president that UI would win the BSU/UI game, and agreed that the loser would shave his head.

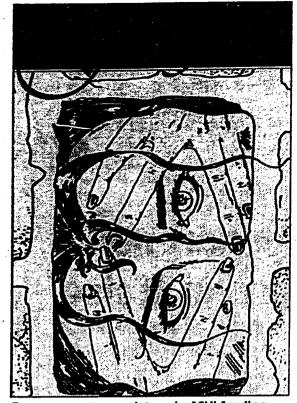

Kane also addressed next year's budget, in which he plans to reduce the general reserve. That account now has about $200,000 he

"I don't see any need for a $200,000 general reserve," Kane said. He wants to have it at about $125,000.

The senate passed a bill to make the Safety Task Force an ASUI Board, which will have two salaried positions. The board will become a standing board next fall, Kane said, but a bill may be introduced to get the posi-

Angela Rauch, task force chair, hopes to get everything solidified for the new board before the Sexual Assault Awareness Week in April. She said their next meeting will be held March 8 at 4 p.m. in the Student Union, and invited all interested students to attend.

Senator Damon Darakiy has resigned his seat to take a position in Governor Phil Batt's office, Kane said, and the position is open for applications. The deadline is March 8.

Fugue supporters seek to gain ASUI funding.

UI Foundation elects new president

Jennifer Eng

Money to run the university comes from a variety of sources. One such source is the University of Idaho Foundation.

This group—mostly alumni—is dedicated to investing and raising money in the interest of the university. Recently the foundation elected a new president for the term of two years.

Lonnie Park, executive vice president of First Security Bank of Idaho, succeeds Dolores Chapman of Boise as the new president of the UI Foundation.

The UI Foundation is continuing its tradition of electing strong, capable leaders," interim President Thomas O. Bell said. "I have great-

Chapman and look forward to developing that same partnership with Lonnie."

Park's term of office expires at the annual November meeting in 1997 when the foundation elects a new president.

Laura Erne with the UI Foundation said, "The president is responsible for running meetings and

"He (Park) takes his role very serious," Erne said. Park is currently involved in meeting the university presidential candidates.

Erne said Chapman was on the committee searching for a new university president.

Other newly elected officers are now taking their positions. Bob Alexander of Twin Falls was elected as first vice president and Emma Atchley of Ashton as second vice president.

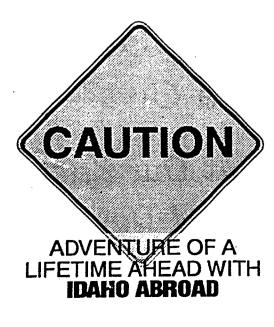

Recently three new board members were also named to the board of directors. Marie Whitesel of Coeur d'Alene; Erling Johannesen of Emmett; and Jan Cowan of Richland, Wash., were all brought on board.

The foundation also selected 15 new general members, including

Fire in Moscow Hotel contained

Shawn Vidmar

An electrical fire Monday caused a power outage for the Moscow Hotel and adjacent buildings. No one was injured, and there was minimal damage.

The Moscow Hotel, containing many student apartments, and West One Bank were without power shortly Monday around 11 a.m. The fire detectors alerted the fire department of the problem. The residents and employees were evacuated from the Hotel, and the block was sealed off from traffic for about an hour.

Fire Chief Phil Gatlin said the cause of the fire was an electrical short in the service panel. The building was recently renovated for apartment living; thus, the new safety codes helped to contain the fire to the switching room.

Chief Gatlin also commended the firefighters because "they did an excellent job containing the fire."

The fire was contained to the switching room. There was some smoke damage to adjacent apartments.

The fire fighters needed to shut the power off for the whole block until they isolated the faulty switch. The power resumed shortly thereafter.

Student enrollment increases at WSU

Kimberley Vowell

The 1996 spring semester at Washington State University saw an increase of 213 students from last year. This year's total of 16,034 compared with 15,821 of spring of 1995 comes as no surprise to Gus Kravas, vice provost for student affairs.

Since 1991, high school graduation and consequent enrollment in higher education in Washington has been steadily increasing. This trend of the "baby-boom echo" is compounded by the fact that senior classes graduating are smaller than incoming freshmen classes.

Kravas said, "We expect enrollment to continue to rise through 2012."

Support from the state legislature is necessary as WSU

Kravas said, "This is an exciting time for WSU as it continues to surge and grow as long as we continue to receive the resources to accommodate this growth." He believes that it is essential that the state persists in their commitment to higher

So far, the increase in enrollment has not affected class availability.

"We are proud of the fact that we were able to meet 97 percent of class requests," Kravas said.

Ethnic enrollment also increased within the WSU system to 2,132 from 1,983 of last year. Kravas attributes the increase to the trend of greater numbers of high school graduates throughout Washington state and also to WSU's aggressive diversity planning on campus.

UI has to work hard to market itself, and it needs to be targeted marketing, Branen said.

"To be in northern Idaho and to market ourselves throughout the state takes an extra effort," he said. "I think we can do much more along that line."

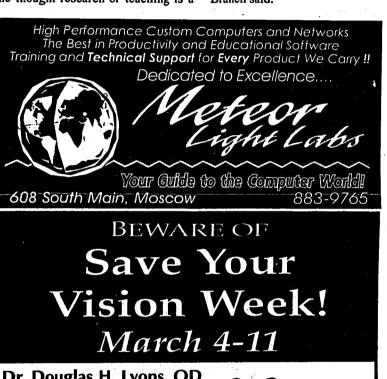

Answering an audience question about the president's salary, Branen said, "I don't think it's out of line when you look at where the rest of the faculty is...if they wanted to make it higher, I would give the extra money to someone else."

Branen was questioned about faculty promotion and tenure and whether he thought research or teaching is a more important consideration.

"I am pro-teacher, but I am also pro-research and pro-extension. They are all important," he said.

Branen is an Idaho native and received his bachelor's of science degree at UI. He finished his doctorate at Purdue University, and served at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Washington State University and the University of Nebraska at Lincoln before returning to Idaho. He became dean of UI's College of Agriculture in 1986.

"I think having an understanding of Idaho and experience in the Idaho system is the advantage that I have," Branen said.

"Currently, we have 13 for profit businesses in the incubator," said Helm. The incubator, which is part of the Economic Development Council, is a beginning point for technology based businesses. From there the business will be able to move to the technology park.

"The incubator gives technology based business a staring point to grow. Through the development of the technology park we will be able to add another area to our existing program," said Helm.

The planned business technology park is the final link in a technology commercialization chain which promotes and facilitates the development of technology based com-

The Economic Development Council hopes the technology park will provide good paying jobs, help retain talented UI faculty, provide employment opportunities for students and graduates, broaden the tax base and diversify the economy.

and confronting him and her grandmother over "their dumb views." Neel also recalled hearing of Martin Luther King Jr. and the Nation of Islam in college.

From their personal stories, Smith and Neel began to talk about race relations.

"A huge number of black people were and are oppressed by white people," Smith said. She also said black Americans needed to "rise above their predicament." Neel said white Americans needed to face the "horrible things" in their backgrounds.

Smith and Neel also detailed their genealogical studies. Both women became involved in genealogy for different reasons.

Neel's interest grew out of research she was conducting concerning the women of Little Dixie and clippings her grandmother kept in a shoe box. Smith began her research after viewing the movie Queen.

Both women added they personally benefited from their searches. Neel met a descendant of another person owned by her great-greatgreat Grandmother. Smith discovered distant relatives including a 1936 Olympian and the editor of the first black newspaper in Washington, D.C.

Throughout the evening, both women described their research and presentation as "a work in progress," a label they applied as well to race relations in America.

Speaking on programs at the grassroots level was Whiteman, whose expertise is natural resource management. He gave some examples of mistakes the FAO had made with previous programs and how they have learned from them. He then explained some of the FAO development assistance programs that have been established to work with people to solve food supply and other problems.

Jones wrapped up the seminar with some statistics on population projections, world food production and consumption.

He said, "Food stocks are at an all time low." Also, China is often left out of projections. As they develop more they are going to start importing more and more

If China is not looked at more closely food supplies could be wiped out and the results could be disastrous, he said. A brief session of question and answer and open discussion ended the seminar.

Time to re-evaluate low faculty wages

Faculty pay is pathetic.

We at the Argonaut wish all of the prospective presidential candidates the best of luck. We also want whoever is chosen as the new president to know that below average wages are unacceptable.

The idea is pretty simple really, the best and brightest people don't want to work for a pittance. Granted, there is a quality of life that North Idaho has not found elsewhere, but UI professors make $14,460 less than their counterparts elsewhere. That has to make full professors wonder why they are here sometimes.

Buried on page nine of the Lewiston Morning Tribune right below a the continuation of a story about Larry Brannen, the first interviewee in the University of Idaho presidential search, was a small story with the headline, "University of Idaho salaries rank low."

The UI chapter of the American Federation of Teachers released its annual salary survey. In short the survey tells us that faculty salaries are paltry at best. The article said that faculty pay is more in line with the pay of teachers at two year col-

Between 1990 and 1995 administrative pay has increased 21.34 percent while faculty salaries have only increased by 16.5 percent. We demand a lot of the faculty, more in fact than the administrators.

Following the trend of good management technique, UI is offering all the benefit to those on top. How can our administrators, in good conscience, ask full tenured professors teaching Ph.D. classes to accept the same pay as junior college instructors. Make an appeal to the state Board of Education and the legislature for equitable pay.

Any new president should ask himself one question; has the administration done anything to merit higher pay raises than facul-

I don't think so.

Ads do not speak for Argonaut

An advertisment, it is an ad. OK? Today there is an advertising insert bound to offend someone. Period.

We ran the same ad last year and heard things like; "How could you take such an editorial stance?" The truth is we don't. The Argonaut is about the only ASUI activity designed with the ability to make money. Read on.

The insert adresses the topic of abortion. It does not attack people. It is not, in the eyes of the editorial. staff, offensive.

There are obvious restrictions on advertisements. If an ad is illegal, potentially libelous or in poor taste we will not run it. The advertising manager and editor in chief make the final decisions.

You may feel that we are obligated to run an equal amount of prochoice material. Fine, buy the space and we'll run your insert. Here's the advertising phone number—885-*7*794.

Truth is money talks in advertising.

Christians do not monopolize blind faith or stupidity et's start off this column with a little sample SAT question just to get the blood flowing up to the head, shall we? AGNOSTIC is to INTELLIGENT as BELIEVER is to:

a) simpleminded

b) sophomoric c) blinder-bound

d) intelligent Now, I'd venture a guess the majority of readers chose either A, B, or C, but only those who happen to practice what they preach, or happen to be a believer chose the final and only correct answer. So as not to beat about any burning bushes, I'd better define my semantics for those of you not clever enough to divine what exactly these believers you've read so much but know so little about actually believe in: God.

What I'm alluding to here is that despite the opinions of some, it is perfectly acceptable to believe in God, and it is perfectly acceptable to be a Christian, even in a society such as ours that gives so much lip service to tolerance unless the thing to be tolerated happens to be, shall we say, mainstream.

Pas d'andouilles ici

Despite what those self-righteous know-it-all agnostics and casual pooh-poohers of religion say, expressing belief in God does not immediately label the believer as weak, stupid or a sheep following after an unknown shepherd. If you disagree with that, then you must believe that the 94 percent of the American population which professed belief in God in a recent poll are all covered by this unholy blanket of stupidity.

Christians are not stupid, and those who believe otherwise haven't a pot to peel a potato in.

Believers are criticized for having "blind faith" in God. We are criticized for the lifestyles we lead, the societal and political choices we make and the opinions we dare express in public. Our desire to believe in God and to read and believe in scripture are discounted as vain attempts to proliferate the myths and fairy stories of ancient history. Finally, our acceptance of our beliefs on faith alone is tossed aside as unsubstantiated drivel believed only by those possessed with mental illness.

Well guess what? We're all in the same boat.

A Christian could have a stack of books a mile high, have countless living witnesses to support belief in God and scripture, and an agnostic can discount that evidence and faith with a simple cynical chuckle.

Equally so, an agnostic could have another stack of books a mile high, have countless living witnesses to deny belief in God and scripture, and a Christian can discount that evidence with a simple pitying chuckle.

Basically, we're all operating on the same system: faith—and it is often blind as can be on both sides of the fence.

Evolution must be accepted on faith alone, along with every shred of evidence that supports the theory, because it really can't be proved one way or the other.

Creationism must be accepted on faith alone, along with every shred of evidence that supports the theory, because it really can't be proved one way or the other either.

Maybe a person can have faith in the words and teachings of Jack Kerouac, and believe what he professes to be truth, but isn't that simply a form of the faith that Christians use to believe in the words and teachings of Jesus

Criticism of a person's use of a tool or method are unfounded if the critic uses the same means to come simply to another end. A hammer used to build a mansion or a doghouse is a hammer no matter what it creates.

This is not meant as a proselytizing venture—indeed I've given fair

Today we have a problem. Daily it grows. It blares out at us from the television, it lurks in magazines and books. And it thrives in Moscow. The problem is today's American Dream.

Years ago, the dream was simple. It was a quest for lasting happiness and fulfillment. Success was found in getting an education, having a job and a house in the suburbs and raising a family. There were obstacles, but those only taught people to work harder and seize the moments

Now we have the American Nightmare. This rush is an effort to make the dream come true. A singer once crooned "I can't get no satisfaction." How true that line is for so many of us! Satisfaction come with the process, for there is no end to the dream.

We must be balanced humanly and spiritually. In our modern day search for the good life, we have gotten out of balance. The human dimension is based on material goods. It is when we count the things that we can physically possess. We find human quality in the make of the car we drive, how big the house is and the yearly income. We find it in Levi, Nike, No Fear, Calvin Klein and any other company that makes a lot of money and charges ridiculous prices.

Madonna summed it up when she sang, "I am a material girl, and I am living in a material world." Some of this is fine, but we've run after money and technology for fulfillment, and we've starved the side of us which can actually give these

> We all yearn for that absolute contentment, and few find it. This comes from our spiritual side of us. The spiritual dimension is quality based on faith. It is the innate pleasure found in a single word. It is desiring to share with and help another human.

> For some of us, it comes from God. It isn't something you can gain, because it is found in the deep roots of your heart, in basic moral values in life. Those who have succeeded are those who have dreamed, not for themselves alone, but for others.

They are people like the doctors who find joy in curing illness, the professors who see their students as talented and strive to push them and parents holding their newborn child. These people have found joy in the basics which will last beyond memories of what you wore on your buns in college. They are not based on fame, money or tax breaks.

The search for true quality found in the basics gives you a reason to live. It takes life away from the daily routine, the rat race. It's a bit of tug-of-war to keep you in pursuit of a goal. If you only look for end results, you might as well take your life to an assembly line and mass produce it. You won't be any hap-

We must recognize life as a process in order to escape pursuits of unattainable goals. Life does not have happiness waiting over the horizon for you. You already have it in love, what you learned in kindergarten and the Ten Commandments. Just put them to work. Really think about that common saying, "Carpe Diem" (seize the day). It won't happen all by itself. Now is the time to put that thought into action.

Cultivate your life. It is like a garden; you've got to keep watering and feeding it-all of it. You can't be lopsided. Feed your mind with aesthetics, take in a play, listen to music, take a picture and continue to learn.

Learning new things adds interest to your life. You learn how to think. Be a human, not a machine. Most important, remember your spirit. You have a right to dream, just don't be greedy.

You may choose your dream, but leave others the right to choose for themselves. For some people that is difficult, as seen in many of the recent Republican acts. They have grown content with their lives and

Congress cutting funds for family planning

I bring to your attention today a matter of utmost urgency. The U.S. Congress must resolve before March 15 the appropriations for several major programs and agencies. This also provides them with the opportunity to correct grievous mistakes in previous efforts to prevent government shutdown including a devious and deceitful crippling of international family planning programs.

U.S. international population assistance has been dealt a devastating blow by a conservative majority in the House of Representatives with support from the Christian Coalition and other right-wing, anti-choice groups. The Senate had repeatedly refused to concur in House approval of legislation aimed at withdrawing all funding of overseas family planning efforts. But in a compromise worked out by a conference committee, 1996 international population spending will be slashed by 35 percent of the amount appropriated for 1995—a total decrease of nearly $200 million. The U.S. contribution to the United Nations Population Fund will drop from $35 million in fiscal year 1995 to $22 million in 1996—a reduction of $13 million. The most damaging element of the measure is that the U.S. government will be unable to spend any of the overseas family planning appropriation until July 1-nine months after the start of the fiscal yearunless Congress enacts a foreign aid authorization bill. Congress has not approved such a measure since

If authorization legislation has not been passed by July I, international population funds will be distributed in monthly installments not exceeding 6.7 percent of the appropriation per month. This translates to an 85 percent cut in fiscal year 1996 funding. These restrictions that apply to no other international assistance program make it virtually impossible for individual service providers that rely on U.S. government funds to plan their programs.
The so called "Mexico City" policy prohibiting international family planning aid to organizations that provide abortion services—even when U.S. funds are not involvedhas been excluded from the legislation. The House of Representatives repeatedly sought to interject the "Mexico City" language in the foreign assistance appropriations bill.

Although groups supporting the actions are known for their opposition to abortion, the Congressional measure is estimated to lead to an additional 200,000 illegal and unsafe abortions according to Nils Daulaire, U.S. Agency for International Development deputy administrator for policy and child health policy adviser. Dualaire estimated that as many as 5,000 more women will die as a result of unsafe abortions and mistimed pregnancies over the next year and there will be 500,000 additional births. In addition to placing greater stress on already strained child survival programs, he says, the Congressional restrictions will increase administrative costs four to five timescosting taxpayers $750,000 to $1 million more than if the funds were to be channeled in a conventional manner.

The 35 percent cut in funding for overseas family planning programs is grossly at odds with present realities, in which nearly 100 million people are added to the earth's population each year, with nearly 90 percent of that growth occurring in the developing world. It would be incorrect, however, to characterize this as a partisan dispute, for many responsible House and Senate Republicans have expressed their outrage at the recent reductions in overseas population assistance. For instance, Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., pointed out that this "calamitous formulation" is "antithetical to the pro-life position" since it will inevitably result in more unplanned pregnancies, more abortions and more maternal deaths. We strongly support the Senator's conclusion that "all the anti-abortion speech this Chamber can tolerate will not reduce the number of pregnancies as swiftly or as surely as our support for voluntary family planning. There simply are only two ways to prevent abortion, through abstinence or family planning."

While foreign aid may seem like an issue that in no way concerns your campus, the rippling effect it will have is sure to be witnessed by each and every student across the country. International family planning encompasses a wide range of issues, including the environment, empowerment of women, reproductive health, nutrition and sustainable development. Congress, who has mistakenly treated this as an abortion issue, has chosen the wrong forum for this kind of debate. No matter what side of the abortion issue a person is on, we should all support family planning funding which undeniably reduces the number of abortions. Rest assured that these attacks are not confined to the international arena; they are bound to creep across the domestic frontier and hit us where it hurts: at home.

The funding cuts will be immediately mirrored in the health and well being of the 50 million women whose access to maternal care and other reproductive health services is in jeopardy. Sustaining current investments is far less costly than future consequences of inaction. Should you have any questions regarding your Congressperson's voting record on these crippling actions or need additional information, please do not hesitate to contact either Royce Bernstein or Jennifer Cless at (202) 544-3300.

and equal time to both sides of the question. What this is, though, is an attempt to show non-believers that we all operate on the same faith-centered system of building beliefs.

Belief in God and belief in Christianity does not make one weak or stupid. Weak and stupid Christians do exist just as weak and stupid non-Christians and agnostics exist. Labeling a Christian as weak or stupid is just as hurtful and intolerant as labeling an African-American weak or stupid. Labeling a person's faith in something as childish only goes to point out the childishness of the critic.

feel that the country is a mess, so they are beginning to make changes. The problem with this is they want to eliminate programs, such as the Direct Student Loan Program, which are an opportunity for people to fulfill our dream.

Don't change the American Dream. Go back to the basics and build on those, because your roots are what support your dreams. You will find that as you reach out—as we all reach out to help our fellow man—the American Dream will be accomplished.

Are you content to be remembered as the most popular girl, the beer drinker, the president of your hall, house or club? Are you content to seek happiness in a tangle of technology? If you died today, what would be your obituary?

I challenge you to re-evaluate your dream today. Make it last. Make it come true. All in all, the dream is common. It is found in the love of life, friends and country. It is found in yourself. Seek it.

Bobcats win thriller

Damon Barkdull and Dan Eckles

To beat the Big Sky Conference bully, you've got to bring a big club.

In Thursday night's matchup with the Montana State Bobcats, Idaho brought the club but couldn't dish-out the knockout blow.

With one second left in the game, Vandal Kris Baumann's game tying three-point attempt banged off the rim and Idaho (4-9, 10-15) fell to Montana State (10-3, 18-8)
81-78 in front of 2,433 in the said Idaho coach Joe Cravens,

Prior to Baumann's last second prayer Idaho again had a shot to cut into MSU's lead. At the 14 second mark Idaho was down 79-76. The Vandals looked to tie the game up when Baumann attempted to pass the ball to Shawn Dirden in traffic and had the ball stolen. MSU's Nico Harrison was fouled after the steal and hit a pair of free throws to put the Bobcats up by five. Idaho's Reggie Rose responded by hitting a quick driving bucket with eight ticks left and called time out.

Idaho's Jason Jackman fouled MSU's Harrison on the Bobcats' next possesion. Conveniently; Harrison missed both free throw attempts before Baumann's 22-footer bricked of the rim aldaho was led by Rose's 3-9 three point attempts and 25 points.

Baumann Jackman and Nate Gardner poured in 10 points for the whose team has played in 10 games decided by four points or less. If felt we played pretty hard I felt we played pretty well. Free throws killed us.

The Vandals were a frightfull 12 of 20 from the charity stripe.

Although the free throw shooting was pathetic, Idaho did manage to shoot 50 percent from the floor in a game that saw the two BSC schools battle back and forth. The Bobcats shot 52 percent from the field. MSU's Quadre Lollis and Adam Leachman each had 19 points.

The loss creates a scenerio where Idaho must win on Saturday against Montana or Weber State must beat Northern Arizona in order for the Vandals to grab the sixth seed in the BSC playoffs.

Interestingly enough, Idaho enjoyed a 38-34 halftime lead capped by Rose's 14 first half points.

"We'll just come back and play hard on Saturday," Cravens said. "We're going to continue to keep slugging.

Idaho women look to pass Eagles

If the Idaho Vandals are heading into this weekend's Montana road trip with postseason dreams they had better pick up the pace in a big

The top six teams qualify for the Big Sky Women's Basketball Tournament to be held in Missoula next weekend. Idaho currently sits seventh, a game behind Palouse rival Eastern Washington. The Vandals need a sweep this weekend over Montana State Friday and Montana Saturday and need Eastern Washington to lose to both schools to earn a spot in the tourney. Idaho could also qualify for the Big Sky Tournament by playing a game better than the Eagles this weekend and winning a coin

The second senario would seem much more likely. Idaho knocked off Montana State 80-72 in Moscow earlier this season, but has not beaten UM in Missoula since 1985 and trails the all-time series with the Griz 28-5. Montana, which averages 4,523 fans a game at home, has won 25 games in a row in Dahlberg Arena, the fourth best home streak in the nation.

The Grizzlies staked claim to the Big Sky championship for the tenth time in the past 13 years, but were handed their first conference loss, 72-62, last weekend at Boise State. Last Friday's win for the Griz over ISU gave Montana its 16th consecutive 20-win season.

This weekend's tall task for Idaho is not made any easier as senior center Mindy Rice is doubtful for action this weekend after sitting out of practice this week with a left foot injury. Rice missed the Vandals' games last weekend against Weber State and Northern Arizona. UI point-guard Ari Skorpik missed practices this week as well, after battling pneumonia, but is expected to play against the Montana schools.

Hilbert takes over U1 men's volleyball club

eeing Coach Hilbert court-side during a big volleyball match probably sounds pretty normal to Vandal fans, but what if the team was all men, and coach Hilbert was Leslie Hilbert, not UI Women's Volleyball Coach Tom Hilbert.

That's the case with the Idaho Men's Volleyball Club Team. Former coach Melissa Stokes is leaving Moscow to take over as head coach at Southwest Missouri

The move came as no big surprise to the players of the club team as Aaron Steele, 24, a senior in graphic design says, "We kind of all expected it. We knew she was looking."

Stokes departure comes at a time when the club is rebuilding and the addition of Leslie Hilbert as head coach attempts to solidify the team for future seasons. Hilbert said she stepped in to help the team with organization and to run practices.

"I would hate to see what they had done so far fall apart when Melissa left," Hilbert said.

Hilbert, who comes to the team without the college experience of Stokes, now splits the coaching responsibilities with Gabe Rosenvall, a graduate student. Hilbert a former club volleyball player at Oklahoma, brings with her some coaching experience. She coached at both Colton High School and Moscow High School along with helping coach the club team at Oklahoma.

While Hilbert may be a new coach for the Idaho club, the team has yet to recognize a difference on the court. The team has not played a game under Hilbert yet, but that will change Sunday when the Idaho men head to Washington State for an all-day tournament. Steele said Hilbert attended practices before becoming coach and therefore knows what Stokes was doing and runs practice the same.

Hilbert gives another reason for the team not noticing the change. She says she and Stokes held the same ideas about coaching, practicing the fundamentals and getting the most out of the athletes.

Steele also believes that Hilbert is more familiar with the players then Stokes.

"Melissa's main priority was coaching the girls team," he said.
Hilbert's time playing recreationally with several of the men on the club team makes her more in tune with the team according to Steele. "It's a different perspective being coached by someone who plays.'

While some players admire Hilbert's personal nature, others find her dedication impressive. Russ Taylor, 23, a Criminal Justice major said, "Leslie is just as dedicated as Melissa, that's something we like a Taylor, who became involved with the team out of a desire to play for Stokes, believes Hilbert's dedication will be a great asset for the team.

Another asset people may see Hilbert bringing to the club team is her husband. However, both the players and coach Leslie Hilbert realize her husband will have little impact on what the men do. Hilbert notes the women's team currently is in spring training and that keeps her husband busy, or else he probably would help more.

Although husband Hilbert may not be available to help, several former Vandal stars make regular appearances on the court with the men. Tzvetelina Yanchulova and Dee Porter are two regulars according to Steele and Taylor.

"The ex-players have been really helpful," Hilbert said.

Despite the comparisons between husband and wife, or the expectations for coach Leslie Hilbert to rise to greatness like her husband, Hilbert remains modest. She compares herself to the departing Stokes saying "Melissa's a little more intense than I am, but she's been coaching longer."

In the eyes of her players, one of the greatest assets Hilbert brings to the team is her

"It will help having a regular coach there at practice," Taylor said, noting that Stokes often missed practices due to her commitments to the women's team.

Unfortunately, Hilbert believes that she may have the same problem as Stokes finding the time for practices and games. Hilbert, who works for New Student Services, said that she probably will only coach this year.

"I'm out of town a lot, that's not fair to the

As for making a career out of coaching, Hilbert does not see that as an option.

Nic Tucker

New men's volleyball coach Leslie Hilbert takes time at practice for a pep talk.

"I really like the career track I'm on," Hilbert said, but admits that in the future she might want to coach a high school team or even the club team again.

If Hilbert does not return to coach next year, she still hopes the team will continue on, saying that she wants to see the team established as a permanent club here on campus. That's a goal that both Steele and Taylor

"Hopefully we'll keep progressing," Taylor said.

As for the team's chances, Hilbert believes they will do very well and looks forward to regionals.

'Athletically we match up very well," she

Steele said, "Right now we're a very talent-ed team struggling to gel." That's a diagno-sis that Taylor agrees with, hoping that the future will bring the team closer together.

This weekend the men will have the chance to come together and play as a team in their first match with new coach Leslie Hilbert. The club will take the court at 8 a.m. Sunday, in the Field House on the Washington State Campus for a weekend tournament. Idaho volleyball fans are encourage to come watch. Anyone interested in playing for the team should plan on attending next fall's open try-

Indoor championships set in Bozeman

The Idaho men's and women's track and field teams will take part in the 1996 Big Sky Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships in Bozeman, Mont., today and Saturday.

Today's action starts at 1:30 p.m. and Saturday's at 10:30 a.m.

Last year the men finished third and the women finished eighth.

"We're shooting for the top three," UI men's coach Mike Keller said. "To win it we have to get a lot of help and not make any mistakes. We've got some people injured. Hisaw, Chiwira and St. Hill all have shin splints. Everybody that should have made it made it. I think the meet that got washed out hurt us a little bit. The team favorites have to be Weber State and Northern Arizona.'

The Vandal men have five runners entered in the 400 meter dash and four in the 200 meter dash, a pair of events Idaho must do well in to be successful

"We have to score big in the 200m, 400m and 35pound weight," says Keller. "We have lots of if's. We have to win where we should win and score some upsets. We don't have a lot of depth. If we screw up we're going to be in trouble."

One of those if's is junior long jumper Niels Kruller. Last year Kruller won the long jump and finished third in the 200, but has missed the entire 1996 indoor season to date with a hamstring injury. Despite losing a chance at a possible medical redshirt, Kruller will give the long jump a chance this weekend in Bozeman.

"Our goal is to score more points and finish higher than we did a year ago," UI Interim women's track and field coach Julie Taylor said. "I think Jill (Wimer) has a good chance in the shot and the way Althea (Belgrave) is running, I think she has a chance to be in the top three in the 3,000. We also really need our relays to score."

Wimer, a senior from Grangeville, has the second best shot put in the conference behind Anna Soderberg of Northern Arizona. Wimer has a school record best this season of 48-feet 11-inches while Soderberg has a season best of 50-feet 6-inches.

• Idaho concludes its regular season Saturday night when it faces league-leading Montana. The Vandal-5 have not pulled out a victory over the Grizzlies in two years and were throttled 94-68 in Missoula in the two clubs' previous meeting last month. Montana shot 63 percent from the field in that contest while Idaho shot a porous 33 percent.

The Grizzlies come into Saturday's clash riding high, having won four straight and seven of their last eight games. Montana's 76-61 triumph over Boise State last weekend catapulted the Griz over the Broncos and into a first place tie with Montana

Montana is led by 6-foot 6-inch senior forward Shawn Samuelson. The Broadus, Mont., native is the Big Sky's third-leading scorer (Jim DeGraffenried WSU 21.3, Quadre Lollis MSU 17.6), pumping in 16.5 points a game. Samuelson is also third in the Sky (Lollis 11.4, Harry Harrison UI 10.1) in rebounding with a 7.4 average.

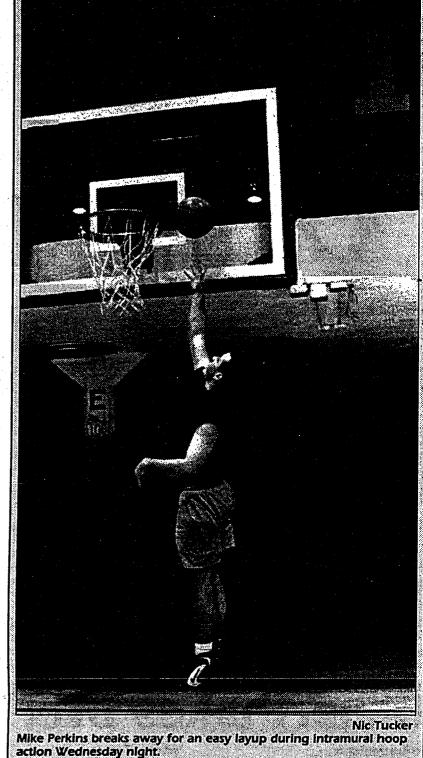

Junior forward Chris Spoja, 6-5, and junior center Brent Smith, 6-10, contribute 11 and 10 points respectively to the Montana attack. Senior guard Shane Belnap is the cornerstone of the Grizzlies' offense. Belnap is the top dish man in the Big Sky, averaging 6.9 assists per game. The Hooper, Utah, native posted a career-high 18 points last year in Moscow, helping the Griz to a 76-71 win.

The multi-talented Grizzlies lead the Big Sky in only one statistical category, but are among the top three in nine others. Montana holds opponents to a conference-best 42 percent shooting percentage while shooting 49 percent from the floor (2nd BSC) themselves. The key to a Saturday night victory could be on the glass. Both Montana and Idaho outrebound their rivals. The Griz are second in the conference in rebound margin at 2.7 while Idaho is fourth at 1.7.

Saturday's showdown will mark the end of an era for three Idaho seniors. Harry Harrison, Shawn Dirden and James Jones will say their farewells to Kibbie Dome fans in the matchup. Harrison and Dirden will likely be factors if Idaho is to pull the upset. Harrison is averaging 10 points and 10 rebounds a game while Dirden is adding 11.5 points a game. Harrison has started 46 of his 49 games as a Vandal while Dirden has come off the bench just eight times in 50 games in a Vandal uniform.

"Idaho has a solid talent base with good players and good coaches," Montana coach Blaine Taylor said. "The thing that concerns me about that game is that it will be senior night in Moscow and it could be a very emotional evening for the Vandals.'

Cowboys have more money to spend, so do other NFL clubs

Associated Press
NEW YORK-For the time being, the cap-restriced Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers have $2 million more to spend to try to keep their teams at the top.

But so do their fellow American National Football League clubs in the era of free agency.

The money comes from a court decision handed down Monday in Minneapolis by U.S. District Court Judge David Doty, who has retained ultimate jurisdiction of the league's labor matters since presiding over the 1992 antimonopoly suit that led to the NFL's labor agreement.

Doty's ruling raises next season's cap - the maximum each team can spend to pay all 45 players on its roster - from $38.773 million to $40.753 million. The lower figure, up from dlrs 37.1 million last year, was set by independent auditors for the league and the NFL Players Association, but appealed by the union to Doty.

Now the league is appealing, suggesting that Doty adhered to the letter of the labor contract, not the spirit.

Under the contract, the projected cap for each year is determined by the growth of the previous season. And that's what Doty found, holding that because of 1995 growth, the cap should be $2 million more than the auditors set.

But the league argues that last season's growth was artificial because of the addition of the two expansion teams, the Carolina Panthers and Jacksonville Jaguars. Greg Aiello, the NFL's director of communications, suggested that the $2 million jump now is likely to mean that cap remains flat for the next year or two.

And while Doty's decision may also put in jeopardy the contract extension beyond 1999, approved by the owners in Chicago three weeks ago and already ratified by the players, not every team is against the increase.

Two are those bitter rivals, the Cowboys and 49ers.

What they have in common is that their dominant position in the league has been slowly eroding because they can't afford to pay their many talented players. Dallas has lost 21 players since it began a run of three Super Bowl titles in four seasons, including three defensive starters so far this year.

But they may not be helped, either.

The 49ers, for example, want to sign the New York Giants' Rodney Hampton, the running back they need to replace Ricky Watters, who defected Philadelphia a year ago. But the Giants have made Hampton a transition player, meaning they can match any offer from another

The $2 million increase puts San Francisco at between $3.5 million and $4 million under the cap. But it also increases the Giants' ability to match by putting them somewhere between $6.5 million and $7 million under.

"I don't think the owners' opposition is anywhere near unani-mous," said Dick Berthelsen, the general counsel for the NFLPA, who said most of the sentiment against the increase is on the Management Council Executive Committee. Ironically, one of those Management Council members who apparently opposes the increase in the cap is the Giants' Wellington Mara, although the additional money could help his team match any offer from the 49ers for Hampton.

Cleveland council ponders future of NFL in city

Associated Press
CLEVELAND-Persuading the NFL to return football to Cleveland may have been the easy part. Now, mayor Michael R. White has to persuade the City Council.

White on Monday presented a skeptical council with a package of four ordinances that would authorize public financing for a new stadium and give him the authority to finalize the deal with the NFL.

The council has until March 8 to approve the package so NFL team owners can consider it at a March 11 meeting. NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue will meet with council members next Monday, White said.

"These people (NFL owners) are not playing. They want to do a deal on March 11, or they will not do a deal," the mayor said.

White and NFL owners reached a tentative agreement earlier this month to give Cleveland a team by 1999 to replace the franchise Art Modell is moving to Baltimore.

The NFL agreed to pay $28 million to $48 million toward construction of a new stadium and to have Modell pay up to $11.5 million in damages and legal costs.

The deal has been fine-tuned over the past two weeks to ease some concerns raised by council members, but NFL negotiators rejected a number of their proposals. White said.

For instance, the NFL would not give Cleveland discretion to choose the owner of the new franchise, and it insisted on keeping the possibility of using personal seat licenses to recover its contribution to stadium construction costs. The most expensive seat licenses would

The council had also asked for a year to review possible sites for a stadium, but the NFL and White both objected because it would "in all probability preclude completion of the new stadium in 1999," White said in a letter to council president Jay Westbrook.

White wants the new stadium built on the site of existing Cleveland Stadium.

Among the provisions of the deal presented to council:

• The NFL will deliver an existing or expansion team to Cleveland for the first full season after completion of a new stadium, anticipated to be 1999, but possibly a year later. The team is guaranteed to play in a division with Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

• The nickname "Browns." the team's brown and orange colors and its history will remain in Cleveland.

• If an expansion franchise is awarded to Cleveland, the NFL will seek local ownership candi-

• The new stadium will be openair with natural grass and about 72,000 seats.

The council's approval is no sure thing, said Rick Werner, executive assistant to the mayor. At least 11 of council's 21 members must approve it.

"I hope we'll be in excess of 11 votes. I don't think we're there yet," Werner said.

The council is worried about the site of the new stadium, funding, property tax rollbacks and more.

"If I'm writing a blank check of taxpayers' dollars to bring NFL football back to Cleveland - I don't think I can make that decision.' councilman Edward Rybka said.

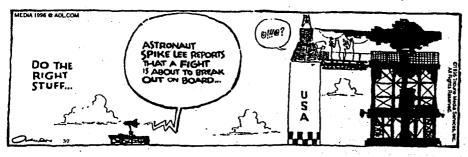

'We're making a decision here that is going to impact the waterfront of Cleveland for decades to come, for generations. And to not be able to have some time to analyze what's the best way to spend a quarter of a billion dollars does concern me a little bit."

Rybka objects to putting the new stadium on the site of the old one, adjacent to the new Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and the nearly completed Great Lakes Science Center.

New Hartung play a 'spiritual experience

The first production of the spring semester by the University of Idaho Theater Arts Department will hit the stage Tuesday, March 5 and will run until March 10.

Blithe Spirit is a comedy about a novelist named Charles Condomine who invites a medium into his home, only to have her summon his first, dead wife back to life. Through a number of events, Condomine's second wife actually dies and joins the former wife in the afterlife.

"It's a total farce," Kate Beasley said. Beasley is public relations director for the Theatre Arts Department

The play is directed by UI theater arts instructor David Lee-Painter, who formerly served as the artistic director of Idaho Theatre for Youth. Blithe Spirit was written by Englishman Noel Coward 50 years ago during World War II and was a response to the Blitzkrieg bombings by Germany. "(Coward) wanted to bring some light to all the darkness," Beasley said.

The March 5-9 shows will begin at 8 p.m., while the curtain at the March 10 performance will rise at 2 p.m.

2 p.m.
All the actors and actresses in the play are UI students. It is the third of a four play series by the Theatre Arts Department this year. Ghosts will be the final performance later this semester.

Blithe Spirit will have a tough act to follow, as last fall's UI Theater Arts Department performance of Top Girls was awarded "Best in the Region" at the regional competition in Laramie, Wyo. The cast is currently awaiting a notice of acceptance to compete at the national conference in Washington, D.C., this spring.

Tickets for Blithe Spirit are currently on sale and can be purchased at the Hartung Box Office or one hour prior to showtime. UL students get in free, non-UI students pay $5 and non-students pay $8.

Mardi Gras comes to life tomorrow

Erik Marone

The Jazz Festival may be over, but that's no reason to take it easy, not with Moscow's annual Mardi Gras getting under way tomorrow. While Moscow prepares for a day and night of revelry and music, Moscow Mardi Gras, Inc. prepares to relax after months of planning.

Rhonda C. Wittorf, secretary for Moscow Mardi Gras Inc, says it's going to be a night for everyone to get out and have a good time. "The bars are always packed, with lines outside. Let's just say all the cool people in Moscow are there, and there are lots of cool people in Moscow," Wittorf said. "Every bar has an excellent band, everyone will be in high spirits. It's probably the most fun you can have bar hopping in Moscow at any time of year."

The festivities start well before nightfall, however. With a parade down Main Street at 1 pm and a Family Magic Show at the Micro Moviehouse at 2:15 pm, there is plenty to do during the day to put you in the Mardi Gras spirit.

The evening's entertainment starts with the Snake River Six at the Moscow Social Club Ballroom at 8 p.m. with other bands starting at 9 p.m. at various bars around town. The evening will be in full swing at 10 when the Six Million Dollar Band takes over in the Social Club Ballroom.

One thing missing this year is an all-ages show. There has been an 18 and older venue most other years. "We decided to discontinue the under-age show at the Ballroom this year because of the limited crowd capacity in the Social Club," Wittorf explained.

'We haven't kept track of exactly how many 18-21 year olds come to the Ball so we don't know what kind of reaction this will cause. We tried to arrange another venue for an all-ages show, but we were too late to book it."

Next year, Mardi Gras planners are hoping to work with KUOI in putting on an all-ages show and hopefully reach more students who may be unfamiliar with Moscow's

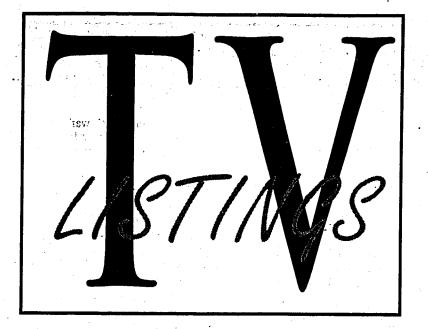

Mardi Gras,
With one ticket getting you into all the shows, it is one of the best entertainment bargains on the Palouse: "For anyone who balks at the ticket price, remember the proceeds all go to charity," Wittorf says. "Besides, where else do you have the opportunity to see seven bands in the same evening for only. $10? All the cool people are there.

CONFINE CONTRACTION PROGRESSING STREET, PROGRESSING

Matt West Contributing Writer

Skinny Puppy's latest and reportedly final release, The Process, does a decent job, I suppose, of reflecting the band's hardships over the past two years, but the cost of this theme seems to be an anti-climatic result.

Well, so much for going out with a bang!?

Briefly, over the past two years Skinny Puppy, which is made up of N. Ogre-lead singer, cEvin Key- guitarist, drummer, and programmer, and D.R. Goenel-keyboardist, has suffered setbacks such as death, record company conflicts, bad weather and internal disagreements. The consequences of these setbacks have manifested themselves in the form of "cut-n-paste" songs on an album that has taken longer than usual to produce.

I agree that the "cut-n-paste" method is a component that helps define Skinny Puppy music, but The Process lacks a certain continuity which might've been avoided with a shorter production time.
"Jahya," the first track on the record, more than sets the stage for random and incoherent parts to follow. "Jahya" begins with a series of intermittent electronic/synthesizer blurbs and then pieces them together to form a segment that I almost got used to...repeat broken electronic/synthesizer blurbs, again.

The listener may feel let down after listening to many of the tracks. Many of the songs give the impression that they are building up to something and then fail to reach a peak that the listener may be expecting. The first track on the album is one of many that exhibit the lack of continuity, among other things.

Other Skinny Puppy traits that do not appeal to me include their unimpressive ability to talk instead of sing their lyrics.
While this trait has remained a fairly consistent characteristic of Skinny Puppy's music, it can still be viewed as a characteristic that keeps the band off the radio and off mainstream charts.

The Process does contain songs with potential. The more melodic songs, "Cult" and "Amnesia," have singing lyrics and more continuity. The continuity aspect of "Amnesia" is displayed in the form of a piano or synthesizer line that is prevalent during the entire song. The traditional Skinny Puppy fan may not like melodic attempt in The Process. On the other hand, as a critic and not a fan of Skinny semi-melody-rich songs with open arms.

Puppy's work, I welcomed Skinny Puppy's

While Skinny Puppy's music is oftentimes compared to NIN and Ministry, their raw, electronic and random nature will most likely not appeal to the more main-stream industrial fan. I think the mainstream industrial fan is looking for more flow, more grooving bass lines and less talking. If that is the case, The Process may be painful.

Matt Baldwin

Berating the listener with a combination of noise, samples, guitars and harsh drums Skinny Puppy presents their final album, The Process. It is with this album that Skinny Puppy's final chapter comes to fruition after two years of turmoil.

Madness. Disaster. Fire. Flood. Heroin. Each word and syllable alludes to the essence of Skinny Puppy's The Process and the trials the members had to go through in order to finish it. On the day Skinny Puppy moved into Shangri-la, a historic old residential recording studio near Malibu, California, they were forced to evacuate as the Malibu fires of '93 threatened their studio. Soon after the fire, during winter, they again were challenged by mother nature with the Malibu floods.

In the beginning of recording of The Process there were three, Ogre, cEvin Key and Dwayne Goettel. After two years only one member remained, cEvin Kev

The North American industrial band formed in 1983 and ever since have been troubled. During the two years it took to record The Process the world witnessed the acrimonious resignation of singer Nivek Ogre and the death of synthesist Dwayne Goettel from a heroin overdose. The fall of

Skinny Puppy began in October of 1993. On June 12 Ogre made the decision to leave the band in pursuit of a new project called W.E.L.T. Two months later, on August 23, Dwayne Goettel died of a heroin overdose in the bathroom of his parent's home in Edmonton, Canada, A week and a half later after Goettel's death, Key handed in the completed Skinny Puppy album to American Records who had already invested half a million dollars into the project.

The music of the album reflects the fall Skinny Puppy experienced. Their opening song, "Jahya," starts off with erratic bleeps and the whine of an amp. To analyze "Jahya" is indicative of the experiences Skinny Puppy went through in order to create the album.

Lyrically beautiful and imaginatively evil, Skinny Puppy creates a picture of phonic chaos for the listener. While some of the songs sound experimental in their ereation, others hint at a more synthesizer. and techno theme. But it is the vocals of Ogre and depraved guitar chords that christen this album with the scent and flavor of

"Hardset Head," the fourth track on the album, mixes industrial with techno giving the listener something that rarely comes from coined industrial bands anymore: good music.

Every track on The Process is pure genius. It is a proper farewell to a band that held legendary status in the music world. It celebrates both the peace and turmoil that Skinny Puppy brought to the world and gave to themselves.

The Process is available off of American records and boasts 11 tracks.

Bodies, Rest and Motion opens next week

Justin Cason

A little over three years ago, the movie Bodies, Rest and Motion opened in select cinemas across the United States. And, unless you're a diehard fan of actor Eric Stoltz, chances are you missed it.

Thanks to director David Rosenberg and the Collette Theater, however, the once-forgotten script has now been reworked and redone into a play that could be one of Rosenberg's last hurrahs as a University of Idaho undergraduate.

Bodies, Rest and Motion is about a group of people in their 20s trying to figure out love, commitment and coping with the problems which arise from them.

"It's really a character-driven play," Rosenberg said. "It also deals with falling in and out of love, endings of relationships and basically improving one's life."

Tonight's show begins at 8 p.m. at the Collette Theater. There is also a Saturday show at 8 p.m. and a Sunday matinee at 2 p.m. Tickets are $4 and are available at the door, although buying them in advance (885-6465) is recommended.

For Rosenberg, it was the piece's theme of life's hardships which drew him to the screenplay. "The characters are about my age," the director stated. "They want to identify with the American dream of two cars, three kids, a good job and retiring. They eventually wake up and realize that it doesn't exist for them."

Bodies, Rest and Motion will be Rosenberg's seventh directorial effort, but it will be one of only a few he wouldn't classify as "short" plays.

Four years ago, Rosenberg was living in New York City and pursuing a career in play direction when he decided he'd had enough of the theater. He moved to Driggs, Idaho, and began working at Grand Targhee Ski Resort.

Still, something drove him back. to drama, and, for all intents and purposes, it wasn't some inner calling.

"When I found out I had Idaho residency, I decided to go up to UI to get my degree," the 26 year-old theater arts major said. "I mean, school is really cheap out here.'

"Cheap," however, is hardly the word used to describe Rosenberg's work or the play itself, which was written by Roger Hedden. Hedden, a name presumably unfamiliar to the general public, is a lesser-produced screenwriter whose most popular work is probably the one Rosenberg is directing.

All the parts in the play are student-acted, mostly by drama majors. "The acting is so realistic, it feels like you're intruding on their lives," Rosenberg said.

Women's History Month celebrated in March

Valaree Johnson

There is no doubt that women have come a long way since the suffrage movement.

Even though 1996 marks the 100th anniversary for the right of women to vote in Idaho, huge gaps in the historical representation of women still exist.

In 1994 President Clinton issued a proclamation designating March as Women's History Month in recognition of the many women who are part of this nation's history yet still remain in anonymity.

"The focus of history, whether it is intentional or not, has been men," says Susan Palmer, Educational Programmer at the UI Women's Center. "Hopefully we may not have to have one forever and ever, but until then there needs to be a Women's History Month to ramify the lack of reflection in the accomplishments of women.'

From housewife to astronaut, women have accomplished a lot, yet remain to be recognized for their achievements. The UI Women's Center works towards filling this and many other cultural gaps.

The Women's Center's March noon programs are filled with enriching insights to the historical and cultural implications that form the identity of today. The Women's Center urges everyone to take time to celebrate the accomplishments of women and would like to draw attention to some of their programs.

On Tuesday, March 5, Kathy Probasco kicks off the month with a follow-up to Entangled Lives, a program that was presented by Palmer last Wednesday night. Probasco will demonstrate "Geneaology for Beginners," supplying information to provide the necessities to explore your family history. Probasco, associate registrar and genealogist, taught the beginning geneaology class through the UI Enrichment

Two programs in particular will be of special interest for history seekers. Palmer said these program are typically presented by the Idaho Humanities Council, but a shrinking budget is preventing them from helping.

On Wednesday, March 6,

Priscilla Wedgers presents "Chinese Women of the West," a narrated slide and artifact presentation that examines the lives of the Chinese women for their contributions and accomplishments.

The March programs end on the 27th with Mary Reed, director of the Latah County Historical Society, exploring the letters and writings of Carol Ryrie Brink, a Moscow native who gained national and international recognition from her books. Born in 1895, Brink's writings help create a firsthand perspective of life for women in Moscow.

Women's Center Programs are open to all, and begin at 12:30 pm in the Women's Center Lounge. For more information on any of the programs contact the Women's Center at 885-6616.
