residential hopeful B. Hobson Wildenthal said Tuesday he hopes to promote university growth and faculty excellence here if he is selected for the position.

"The university would be healthier if it were 50 percent bigger," Wildenthal said. "It's a fairly small university to encompass the wide array of challenges it's charged to undertake."

Wildenthal said that at his current position at the University of Texas at Dallas, he had the advantage of surplus resources to recruit students. He recognized that growth may be more difficult here.

"Incrementally, it's going to be a bigger challenge to get beyond what you have now," he said.

Wildenthal also stressed the importance of having faculty recognized as some of the best in the n-state students can expect their fees to increase from $810 to $884 per semester next year under a proposal from Interim President Tom Bell and the Executive Council.

"We have a responsibility to do what we can to provide service but at the same time cast an eye to excellence," said Hal Godwin, vice resident for student attairs and university relations.

The change would include a $38 increase in the matriculation fee, an $11 increase in activity fees, and a $25 increase in facility fees for a total increase of $74.

The matriculation fee, which will be $468.50 per semester, covers facilities and student services, said

Jerry Wallace, vice president for finance and administration.

Part of the activity fee increase will go toward extending the hours at Student Health Services.

"In the long haul, we will want to add more physicians and services," Godwin said.

The $25 facility fee increase is composed of a $9 increase for Recreational Center planning and a $16 increase for University Center planning.

Beginning this fail, new non-resi dent students will pay $2826 per semester for tuition, up from $2690 for last fall. Idaho residents do not pay tuition at UI. Non-residents make up about 23 percent of the student body, Provost George Simmons said.

Candidate Wildenthal Administration researches four-year graduation options

Kimberley Vowell

The trend of students taking longer to complete their degrees has universities concerned throughout the Northwest.

Washington State University has proposed a four-year graduation plan and is currently trying to complete the necessary approval so as to enact their program for fall of 1996. The University of Montana has already established a similar plan which is offered to first-time UM freshmen.

So it should come as no surprise that the University of Idaho has also become interested in student graduation rates and has set out to investigate this complex issue. UI students over the past 20 years have been gradually taking longer to complete a degree. Only 12 percent of students are expected to graduate within four years.

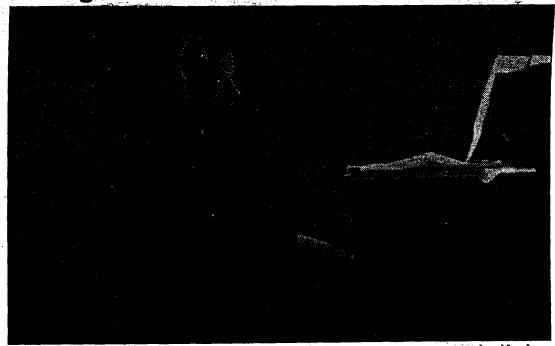

Provost George Simmons said, "We are trying to find out why students are taking so long to graduate and want to make sure that it isn't something we're doing that is holding up their progress.'

The administration doesn't feel the pressure at this time to create a four-year guarantee but instead is concentrating on examining potential barriers within the system that are keeping students from graduating on time. Simmons explained that by putting students on "contract" it would exclude some, such as transfer students or those who. change majors during their acade-

"We want every student who walks in here to be able to graduate in four years," said Simmons.

Achievement Awards are by invitation only and the selection process is by nomination. Jennifer LaJeunesse, Academics Board chair said, "We extended the dead-line and since then we've gotten many more nominations. I think there is always more room for people to be recognized."

Two ASUI awards will be presented, the George E. Dafoe Memorial Award and the Frank W. Childs IV Memorial Award.

Students receiving an award in this area must have demonstrated service to the ASUI as well as participation in leadership activities, previous honors and awards, participation in living group activities, etc.

Outstanding freshman, sophomore, junior and senior awards will also be presented. Nominees must have at least a 3.0 cumulative GPA for their undergraduate studies. Students receiving the Outstanding Senior Awards will subsequently receive consideration for the Donald R. and Cora E. Theophilus Award and the Guy Wicks Award.

Presently, the nomination process has concluded and the selection committees are now deliberating. "It's been going just fine. I've had a lot of help from Shana Plasters and David Mucci, they have done a lot of the groundwork and have been a tremendous help." • SEE AWARDS PAGE 6

Church video banned by school officals

BLACKFOOT, Idaho—A video produced by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has been banned at Mountain View Middle School.

Parents met with school administrators on Tuesday to object to the video titled The Award, which was shown by health teachers in various classes at Mountain View. It was acquired from the church about nine years ago.

Principal Scott Crane said the video was used to teach self esteem and how to treat others, but the religious implications were inappropriate.

Crane said the district's policy is aimed at showing videos with an emphasis on education and enrichment. He said showing The Award violated a district policy that videos be approved by administrators before being shown to students.

However, school officials said the video was being shown before the policy was adopted in 1992.

The Award is about a high school football player who calls a student the ugliest girl in the school. He planned to give her an award accompanied by a degrading poem that he intended to attach to her locker door.

When the girl's friend intervenes and reminds the boy he is Mormon and the behavior contradicts church teachings, he posts a positive award on the girl's locker.

Former student sues doctor, hospital over alleged abuse

REXBURG, Idaho-A-Utah woman has filed a federal lawsuit against LaVar Withers and Madison Memorial Hospital, alleging she was repeatedly molested by the retired Rexburg physician during a stay at the hospital last

The lawsuit, filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Pocatello by former Ricks College student Katherine Proctor, includes a claim against Withers for medical malpractice, sexual assault and battery, and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

She is asking for a jury trial, with damages determined there.

Attorney Joseph Langfield, representing the hospital, said Tuesday he could not comment on the complaint because he had not seen it.

It is the first suit filed against Withers and the hospital, although he has been the focus of a criminal investigation for more than a year.

The review by a special prosecutor and the attorney general's office considered complaints by dozens of women who said Withers touched them inappropri-

Based on recommendations from the attorney general's office, special prosecutor Steve Clark in November decided against pressing charges because many of the complaints were too old to pursue.

Clark was appointed after Madison County Prosecutor Sid Brown stepped down, citing a conflict of interest.

Last week, Clark said he might reopen the criminal case if he decides a new investigation would produce different results.

Civil court is the only option left for those who have made complaints against Withers, said Pat Day Hartwell, director of the Rape Relief and Crime Victim Center in Idaho Falls.

Tire-iron beating brings probation

JEROME, Idaho—A judge ordered a Jerome man whom he said poses "a significant risk to society" to serve three years of probation with the threat of five years in prison if he violates his sentence.

Julian "Bo" Hernandez, 27, pleaded guilty in a plea bargain to a felony charge of aggravated assault after his common-law wife, Virginia Torrez, refused to testify against him on an attempted murder charge.

Torrez testified during two pre-liminary hearings that Hernandez beat her head with a tire-iron and tried to drown her in the Snake River on Sept. 10.

Hernandez had been charged in the past with assault and battery, but those charges had been dismissed. Hernandez was ordered to complete anger-management classes and drug and alcohol counsel-

Bigamist, con-man sentenced to prison

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.-A man accused of being married to two women at the same time and conning both out of tens of thousands of dollars was sentenced Tuesday to six years in prison for theft and forgery.

Roger Saterberg married Patricia Kane in 1992 and Thea Vondracek in 1995, each after a whirlwind romance. Both women agreed he was a kind, loving and attentive husband who tried to take care of them, according to court records, police reports and interviews. But he also lied to the women and manipulated them and their finances.

Saterberg pleaded guilty earlier to forgery and theft. In exchange, prosecutors dropped 14 other charges lodged against him.

During his sentencing hearing in El Paso County District Court on Tuesday, Saterberg said he loved the women and admitted that he caused them incredible pain.

Kane rolled her eyes as Saterberg pleaded for mercy. She said after the hearing that he was trying to con the court the same way he duped her.

Vondracek said Saterberg should be sentenced to probation. Although he conned her out of tens of thousands of dollars, she said she's seen a change in him since his arrest seven months ago.

Judge James Franklin sentenced

Saterberg, 38, to six years in prison for the theft charge and three years for the forgery charge. The sentences will run concurrently.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass.—Teenagers who organized a scavenger hunt are being blamed for a week of mayhem that included tossing eggs, overturning a car and forcing a 14year-old girl to do a videotaped strip tease.

In a quest for a $500 prize, as many as 100 high school students were believed to have been involved in the winter-break hunt.

Street signs disappeared, fields were torn up with tire tracks, buildings were spray-painted, a freshman was locked in a car trunk and eggs were thrown at parked cars.

Seven players on the high school hockey team have been suspended on the eve of the division tournament for allegedly overturning a car in the Framingham State College

Janes: Cuban special forces training to attack U.S.

LONDON-Vietnam has been training Cuban commandos for limited attacks in the United States if Washington invades Cuba, Jane's Defense Weekly Magazine reported Tuesday.

Vietnam's Communist government has been training Cuban Special Forces troops at least since 1990, Jane's said. VIETNAN The courses are mainly for mid-level Cuban officers, who pass on the tactics and techniques No Chi Minh City soldiers under their command when they return home, the report said.

The training program concentrates on seaborne and underwater operations roughly comparable to those assigned to the U.S. Navy Seals, it said.

Cuban officers train in lakes north of the Black River near the Vietnamese army base at Hoa Binh, southwest of Hanoi, and at seaside sites elsewhere in the country, the magazine said.

Tensions between Washington and Havana rose after Cuban fighter jets shot down two unarmed U.S. civilian planes on Feb. 24. Four pilots from a Florida-based exile group, Brothers to the Rescue, were killed.

Local YWCA changes name but not mission

Karen Cloud

What's in a name?

Board members of YWCA of the Palouse voted in December to end affiliation with the national organization. The group decided to rename themselves

Sojourners' Alliance.
"We feel our money can be better spent on the pressing needs right here at home in our area communities," Executive Director Deborah Alpe said in a press release.

Along with keeping resources at the local level, ending affiliation with YWCA will allow men to join the organization.

All of the operations of the rmer YWCA remain unchanged. The nonprofit group runs the Troy Food and Clothing Bank, Sojourner Truth House, a shelter for homeless women and children, and Y's Buys Thrift

"Our mission is to provide basic services-food, clothing and shelter-to people in transition, as well as to promote selfsufficiency through counseling and education," Marie Vogel, Sojourners' Alliance president, Sojourners' Alliance is "always looking for groups to do food drives," Alpe said.

On March 9, members of Alpha Kappa Lambda and Delta Gamma are sponsoring a "Help the Homeless" camp out to collect donations for the group. Items will be collected in the parking lot next to the All Star Chevrolet/Mazda dealership on the Moscow-Pullman Highway from 8 a.m. Saturday to 8 a.m.

Donations of food and money are especially needed Alpe said. The food bank distributes over 2000 pounds of food each month. Sojourners' Alliance also accepts household items, clothing and volunteers. Alpe can be reached at 883-3438 for more information.

Faculty discusses plus, minus grading

Christopher Clancy

Mid-term grades are coming up and while many hardworking students will get good grades, many of their peers who don't work quite so hard will get the same grades. That's what some students and professors are saying about the University of Idaho grading system and its absence of plus or minus with letter grades.

For years, UI students and faculty have debated the equality of the current system which gives the same final grades to students even when one may work significantly harder than another.

Professors have said the current system forces faculty to make "subjective" judgments to help determine a students grade when per-centages fall close to the "invisible barrier" that separates letter grades.

For example, if a "B" falls between 80 and 89 percent there is no indication of actual percent grade on transcripts without the plus/minus system, he said.

Some subjective elements that are often used by faculty to determine those grades include: attendance, improvement over the duration of a course and participation.

Education major Teah Jones said she agrees with giving subjective grades only if it were used to improve grades. "A more subjec-tive grade could definitely be helpful...unless it was used to decrease grades, then it could be a problem." In which case, she said she would favor the plus/minus system.

Professor John Foltz, Mortar Board adviser, said he approves of the plus/minus system of grading as a way to give more "flexibility" in grading to professors at UI. "It makes it more precise. I can't think of any downsides to it but can think of some positive ones. I would strongly encourage it," Foltz said.

While UI has never actually had the plus/minus addition, the issue has received attention in both the Faculty Council and the University Curriculum Committee, Associate Registrar Kathy Probasco said.

The incubation period for meningitis passed on Tuesday and health officials on the Palouse relaxed a bit for the first time in 12 days

The meningitis scare passed with only the initial case on the University of Idaho campus and did not spread to any other students or members of the Erin Nielson, a sophomore at UI, was airlifted to a Spokane hospital Feb. 26 after being diagnosed with bacterial meningitis. Nielson's condition is better and is improving.

Bacterial meningitis has an incubation period of 10 days. Because no other cases developed Dr. Donald Chin, director of Student Health Services, is optimistic no other cases will appear.

Chin said students are advised to continue to watch for signs of meningitis including fever, severe headache, stiff neck, nausea, vomiting and a rash even though no new cases have developed.

Meningitis is an inflammation of the lining of the brain and spinal cord caused by either viruses or bacteria. Nielson's case was of the treatable bacteria variety.

Alumna speaks about internships

Andrea Lucero

Increasing potential salaries and coming out on top in job competition are two reasons why having done an internship is important, Dianna Gibney, University of Idaho's Cooperative Education representative in Boise, said.

Gibney, a UI alumna, spoke to 15 people in the UI communication building conference room last Friday afternoon about internship Gibney explained why internships are important, how to start the internship process, how to find out about internship opportunities and what to do after you have received an internship placement.

"There are 1470 resumes for every job to be filled," said Gibney. "When it comes down to you or the other guy getting a job, having completed internship could make all the differ-

Gibney said internships are important because the student is working and gaining experience at the same time. Internships help with career development decisions, they sharpen social and teamwork skills, give meaning to classroom learning and help you learn how business works by making you part of it.

"The main reason internships are important is because in the next 10 years supply will exceed demand in fields such as journalism, photography, marketing etc. Also, since beginning salaries can vary, having an internship could also provide an advantage in salary negotiations," Gibney said.

Gibney also explained companies benefit from having interns. They need the new ideas qualified, short-term help interns can provide.

To begin the internship process your first stop should be the UI Cooperative Education office. The department provides employer contacts, will help you write and evaluate resumes, will provide cover letter assistance and will help you find internship placements suited to your needs.

The Cooperative Education Department had given me tons of internship advantages," said Leah Tucker, senior at UI. "All I had to do was complete an entrance form, order my transcripts and complete a resume. I had my first interview in Boise last week."

To find out more about internship opportunities Gibney suggested contacting professors or the faculty coordinator for your school. Internships can also be found by doing research in the library.

"Once you have an internship placement you need to see your faculty adviser to decide whether you want to do the internship for credit or not," said Gibney.

Gibney attended Northwest Nazarene College for two years and after three additional years at UI obtained and undergraduate degree in marketing and advertising. Gibney works in the UI Boise Center.

The meningococcal bacteria usually can't live for more than a few minutes outside the body. This means the bacteria is not easily transferred by routine contact with an infected person or in water supplies and swimming pools.

Anybody having intimate contact with an infected person, such as sharing utensils, kissing or other close exposure, are at risk for developing the disease.

During meningococcal disease outbreaks 95 percent of the population may carry the bacteria, but only one percent of those may develop the disease. Health officials say this suggests a person's own immune system, in addition to bacterial factors, plays a big role in the disease development.

Chin said there is no risk for Nicison's visitors to develop the disease. Once the disease is destroyed through treatment it is no longer contagious.

Currently in the United States, health officials say the annual incidence rate for the disease is one case per 100,000 people. Among these people the fatality rate is approximately 12 percent.

Once a person has the disease the earlier a person sees their health provider the more likely they will experience full recovery.

Treatment for the disease includes performance of a lumbar puncture (spinal tap) and then immediate initiation of antimicrobial therapy.

Doctors recommend giving antibiotics such as ciproflaxacin or rifamin to those who may have been exposed to the disease. In the recent case of meningitis at UI, Nielson's entire sonority and other close contacts were treated with

The reason, in part, stems from a study done by C. James Quann, former registrar at Washington State University, called Plus (+) Minus (-) Grading, A Case Study and National Implications, done in 1987. In the study Quann concludes that, overall, GPA's would be lowered.

According to the study, "grading corrections tend to be on the negative side, even though the experts predict that under controlled circumstances, half of the corrected grades ought to be raised and half lowered.'

In light of the study the plus/minus addition was rejected for the fourth time in UI history in 1991, Probasco said. Yet, many students agree that a plus/minus system would be more "fair."

"The most recent time that plus/minus grading was discussed by the University Curriculum Committee was Spring 1991," Probasco said. "Every time that it has come up it has been rejected."

Funding Fugue bad idea

The literary digest, Fugue, is asking the student body for money. It is a bad deal and a stupid idea.

First some background. The Fugue is the University of Idaho English department's literary journal. It is "entirely student-edited," English department Chair Gary Williams said. Content in the Fugue includes fiction, poetry and artwork. The journal circulates 250 copies. It's published twice a year—once in the fall, once in the spring. The English department has suffered budget cuts and can no longer afford to fund the Fugue.

So now it's looking for other funding. That's where the ASUI comes in. It has money and those associated with the Fugue are asking for $7,500.

The problem I have with this is students would foot the bill for a literary digest which is an interest publication. It would not be of great interest to most students—at least it isn't in the eyes of people I've talked to.

There's lots of "good stuff" in the Fugue, but most of the material comes from outside sources—only a portion comes from UI writers.

Besides, if the ASUI agrees to fund this publication then why shouldn't other departments with a journal/interest publication also be funded by ASUI? Why shouldn't students from the College of Engineering ask for fee money so they can get work published? It wouldn't be fair if the ASUI published one interest publication and not another.

But an even bigger problem is the Fugue would no longer be under the control of the English department and would probably lose prestige in literary circles. It would be part of Student Media, which includes the Argonaut, KUOI FM radio and the GEM of the Mountains yearbook. It would be advised by the Student Media adviser, just as the previous entities are. It would be under the umbrella of the ASUI—not the English department. All ties with the English department would be severed.

I don't think the ASUI Senate should vote on this issue. Brian Kane had the right idea, put the Fugue bill on a referendum, so the students can vote on the issue. Shouldn't we have a say in how student fees are spent?

The ASUI needs to think really hard before they go forking out the dough to fund the Fugue. Those involved with the Fugue also need to think twice before they let ASUI take over their publication. They will lose their autonomy if they become a part of Student Media.

Jazz Festival shall milk no more forever

o as to avoid any unnecessary death on my part, I'd better start off by saying I like jazz. In fact, you could say Wynton Marsalis, Vince Guaraldi, Louis Armstrong and Spike Jones are close personal friends of mine.

Well, at least I have some of their tapes and play them for enjoyment and to annoy my country musicloving friend when he comes over once a week to do his laundry. I just hope I'm not the only one on campus breathing a sigh of relief because the Lionel Hampton Jazz Festival if over.

Simmons, as quoted in the Lewiston Morning Tribune on March 2.

But what's this? Scale back the largest and one of the most popular events sponsored by the University of Idaho aside from the PKA Dreamgirl Formal at Elkins Lodge?

It seems the festival, which has made money for the university in the past, has bled $108,500 for the '94 and '95 festivals from a general auxiliary fund supported by dorm fees, bookstore sales and other services. In other words, UI students have been milked.

This year's figures "aren't available," which is public-relationsese for "the figures ain't good."

The festival's problems began when Chevron, its principal corporate sponsor, pulled out after the '93 event. But instead of acting like a fiscally responsible entity and tightening belts or looking for other sponsors, the festival continued with reckless abandon, seeing as they had UI student body funds to raid.

Of course the festival is not the only part of the university bleeding money, as the Tribune pointed out. The sports and English programs, to name just a few others, are rife in red ink-but shouldn't a flagship event such as the Jazz Festival easily be able to cover its own expenses? Logic dictates if there is a demand for the festival's education and services, the supply of supporters should be a vast ocean, not a small Moscow pothole filled with rainwater. Maybe festival organizers took the easy way out, choosing to use student funds as a last resort rather than trying to find a few more corporate or individual sponsors to fork over the green. Besides, if the university must operate in the red in some areas, those areas should be where UI students reap the major benefits. It's our money, after all.

Festival and university officials are quick to put a positive spin on this funding hemorrhage; insisting that bringing 14,000 students from 233 schools to UI every year is one of the school's most effective recruiting tools. Even with a deficit of $69,985 for the '95 festival, the cost to the university per student who attended came to only $5.38, which all joking aside is a terrific bargain-if you happen to be a student who benefited musically from the festival, that is. If you happen to be Joe Vandal, typical UI student, it costs a bit more. We ended up losing $108,500 in student funds over the past two years to subsidize a week-long event that brings an invasion of thousands of rude, snot-

College: waste of time or something worthwhile?

o what's the big deal about college? As someone who is suffering the pains of midterms and various semester projects, I have begun to seriously think about this commitment of time and money.

Just so my mom doesn't worry, I am not going to quit college. I am just taking a philosophical look at it for a bit. After all, everyone should understand a few basic principles of getting a college education.

First, your degree may not get you anywhere. You may be one of the many people who spend four to six years in college, only to find that once you have your degree, you can't find a job.

That's a scary thought. While you were investing years of your life, your less motivated friends were able to find lifetime jobs, get married and have 1.2 kids.

Eyes and Ears

Johanna Smith

Although you would like to be optimistic, the picture looks bleak.

Second, is the fact that despite your degree in one field, you may be hired into another. People in your area of specialization may not want you.

A good friend of mine graduated last year with a degree in engineering. Here we are 10 months later and he still has not found a job, despite the extreme efforts he is putting in to applying for numerous positions. To make matters worse a mutual friend of ours, who has received a degree in geography, managed to land an engineering job that makes my first friend crazy with envy.

Keeping this situation in mind, I began to seriously look at my general communications major. This is what I found. Because my field is so broad, I have experience in a lot of areas. With a minor, I can narrow that field down a bit.

Some employers may like this because I fit into a wide variety of communication categories, such as public relations, developmental research, media, television broadcast, etc. However, some employers may not like this because I have not narrowed my degree to a smaller field.

After all, it will only take 86 credits to finish the required courses for both my major and my minor. I am still left with 42 credits (for my university degree) to complete in different classes, not necessarily communication courses.

Well, regardless of whether or not I will be getting hired by some big-wig company, I like my major. But what makes me think that my education from the University of Idaho will get me anywhere out there?

Number three—not all university equipment is up to date. You may be learning all about systems and getting information that is obsolete in the real world.

For example, I am taking a television production class. Our course includes making commercials and music videos by use of cameras, audio booths and edit suites.

Unfortunately, when I actually get out of college and look for a job, the 1970's equipment I learned on will make my potential employers roll their eyes. I'll be back at ground level in the race to the top.

This only makes me wonder why I am paying such high amounts to a school that promises me an education—but on outdated equipment. Wouldn't I learn more in the operations room of a television station up in Spokane? In all honesty, yes. Not only is their equipment up to date, but they have a larger ability to produce greater things.

Even if I were to start at the bottom of the pack without a degree, by the time my friends had received their degrees from whatever institutions they attended, I would be near the top, or rapidly progressing upward, in the company I worked for.

So why am I still in college?

Well, there are several things keeping me here (besides my mom's urging requests to please finish my degree). First, I am getting an education, and therefore bettering myself. I believe it is the effort that counts.

Second, I am in transition stage, between the innocence of high school and the reality of the real world. I wouldn't want to be thrown to the wild unknown without this transition stage. Lastly, you never know when your degree might actually pan out. Sure, there are people who don't get hired right out of college, but time and chance happen to them all. For every one that isn't hired at least three are!

So despite the pressures and mind-boggling activities that at times seem overbearing, stick with college. You'll be glad you did.

New club on campus

There will soon be a new organization on the University of Idaho campus. I would like to bring to the attention of all university faculty and students the importance of this organization. The Student National Education Association is an organization for all education majors, but will in some way affect all students at III.

Everyone must become involved in the decisions affecting our schools and the educators who will soon be influencing the future of our schools. Future educators have a grand influence on the direction of this nation because they are a crucial element in the raising of the next generation. SNEA provides the foundation to improve education nationwide through the improvement of today's student education majors at UI.

SNEA provides education students with services to enhance their abilities in teaching and understanding the importance and demands of today's education system. A general assessment of services provided by SNEA includes, education journals, guest speakers/workshops, practicums and leadership skills. More information will be provided at the March 11 meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Silver and Gold Room. At this time, students can receive membership forms if interested.

SNEA officer elections will also be held at this meeting. Any education major interested in an officer position can submit their nomination at this time with a brief biographical paragraph highlighting their qualifications for office. Additional questions concerning SNEA can be answered by calling the Dean's office at 885672.

SNEA provides a great opportunity for the state of Idaho and its residents. Faculty, please encourage your students to inquire about the SNEA. And students, please remind and encourage each other to attend the meeting on March 11.

ty and less-rural-than-thou music students to campus (along with the few who are actually respectable) to participate in clinics and concerts that cost us $20 a pop even if seats are even available.

The financial mishandling of the festival from '94 to '95 festival (and the jury is still out on '96) presents just another example of the common person being forced by government to subsidize an arts program that brings benefits principally to those who participate instead of to those who pay.

I can hear trumpets, clarinets and trombones being dropped all over campus in favor of pens for those ready to smugly pound me with the following stunning statistical argument: The $108,500 in funds given to the festival over the past two years only comes to $4.50 per student per year. That's not a whole heck of a lot of money.

True, oh so true. So here's my smug and stunning rebuttal: Why not ask those 14,000 music students from 233 schools who benefit the most from the jazz festival to pony up that $4.50 per student per year? As you say, that's not a whole heck of a lot of money. I'm sure they're already paying some money to come all the way to festival. Surely they wouldn't balk if they were asked to chip in $5 more for the education and experience they receive. Maybe this is a viable solution for any university program consuming more than it produces: user fees. If our education is prepare us for the reality of life, we should learn that in the real world if you don't have the funds to fulfill your dreams, you wait until you do.

Letters to the Editor

So I applaud our provost who wants to make leaner, tighter festivals in the future. He's already called into question the $20,000 paycheck sent to a Los Angeles media lobbyist to get the festival some national media exposure—exposure which is less recruiting material and more public relations and regional tourism puff than anything else.

Hopefully, the students and artists come to our festival because they love jazz, not because the festival, Moscow or UI has been on television. Those who come will have had pervious experience with our festival, or know someone who enjoyed the educational and artistic aspects enough to recommend it to others. Word of mouth is much more effective, and considerably cheaper, than a chat with Peter Jennings on ABC.

The benefits of a national media campaign are dubious, since the Lionel Hampton Jazz Festival is certainly not the only jazz festival in the country and the bulk of those 14,000 students from 233 schools who attend come from the Pacific Northwest. Advertising dollars should be spent trying to attract past and potential students on a regional basis and not in vain attempts to flaunt UI pseudo intellectualism to the nation at large.

One more thing: Jazz Festival Coordinator Lynn Skinner made $68,161 for putting together a festival that lost the university $69,985 last year. I doubt many of our professors make that much money in a year, but then of course they're not benefiting the university as much as jazz festival does. All they're doing is teaching us for heaven's sake. If anyone has a right to gripe over salaries, our teachers do. Years after we graduate, we will remember our teachers and not the administrators who sat in the shadowy background and pushed paper while their underpaid associates taught us.

Festival backers: Find a corporation or corporations ASIDE from UI students willing to fill Chevron's shoes. If you can't do that, tighten those belts, lower those salaries and budget that festival. Then maybe we can follow in your footsteps to clot the other money-bleeding programs the university runs.

MONTANA STATE UNIV. WORTHINGTON ARENA BOZEMAN, MONTANA

Baumann, 16-0 run late in second half prove pivotal to Idaho's success

Dan Eckles Sports Editor

The Idaho Vandals showed something they haven't showed all year Thursday night. Perserverance!

Idaho, the tourney's sixth seed, fought back from a second half drought and protected a slim lead through crunchtime to pull out a 72-67 upset victory over the third-seeded Montana Grizzlies in first round action at the Big Sky Conference Men's Basketball Tournament.

The triumph propels the Vandals (12-15) into a semifinal matchup with BSC regular season champion Montana State tonight at 7 p.m. The Bobcats (19-8) got out of Moscow last Thursday with an 81-78 win over the Vandals and defeated Idaho 78-70 in Bozeman in early February. The winner of tonight's game will play Saturday in the Big Sky final for the league's lone berth into the NCAA Tournament.

"We've played them (Montana State) twice right down to the end of the game," Idaho Coach Joe Cravens said. "We'll play them tough again tomorrow (Friday). I guarantee

Thursday's thriller saw the Griz leading 58-51 when the Vandals reeled off 16 unaswered points to take control of the game. UI point-guard Kris Baumann was the catalyst in the comeback. The 6foot 1-inch sophomore scored nine of Idaho's first 10 points in the spurt including a pair of treys and a three-point play. The New Plymouth, Idaho, native filled in more than capably for injured Idaho starter Reggie Rose, who is out with an elbow injury. Baumann picked up the offensive slack in the absence of Idaho's leading scorer, pumping in 15 points

Eddie Turner gave Idaho its largest lead of the game when he buried two shots from the charity stripe, pushing the score to 69-60 in favor of the Moscow club. However, the Montana club, which fell 84-75 in the Kibbie Dome last Saturday, didn't roll over and die.

Shawn Samuelson's rebound putback got the Grizzlies (20-8) within striking distance at 71-65 with 31 seconds left, but UM's Shance Belnap missed a wide-open layup seconds later that would have cut the Idaho lead to four. Idaho forward Nate Gardner grabbed the rebound, nailing shut the Montana coffin.

"That was a pretty gutty win. We were in control most of the way and then they came back and it looked like we were dead in the water," Cravens said. "Baumann brought us back singlehandedly and then once we got back into it we kept making

Before Idaho's spurt the Vandals had gone more than eight minutes without a bucket. The UI-five held a 45-39 advantage after a pair of free throws by Jason Jackman with 13:26 remaining in half two, but the well went dry. The Grizzlies responded in that span with a 10-2 run.

Idaho, which finished the regular campaign losing eight of its last 10 games, came out strong after halftime, breaking a 31-31 tie thanks to the play of swingman Turner.

The 6-3 junior scored eight of the Vandals' first 10 points of the second half. The Grizzlies went through a six-minute scoring drought of their own early in the second half which helped the Idaho dominance.

"Montana is a good team, but right now we're a pretty good team," Cravens said. "We

Big expectations abound for Big West

Mark Vanderwall

Contrary to popular belief, the Idaho women's basketball team had a great season, despite what their overall record shows.

Finishing the season a dismal 7-19, Idaho proved to be headed in the right direction with its move to the Big West Conference next sea-son. Eight of Idaho's losses came by less than four points, with perhaps the season's best game coming in a one-point loss to Palouse rival Washington State, which is destined for the NCAA Tournament.

With the coming of age, Idaho maintains a relatively young squad for its journey to a new conferulie Holt's squad has landed some prime recruits in the process.

Incoming freshman Alli Nieman makes the two-hour trek to Moscow from Sandpoint to boost both the basketball and volleyball programs. Nieman was a high school all-American candidate in both sports and will most likely red-shirt in volleyball next season to concentrate on basketball for the Vandals. The move to the Big West was key in landing the top notch recruits for next season.

"Without a doubt, the move to the Big West was one of the reasons we were able to land the caliber of players we did for next season.' Idaho coach Julie Holt said.

Along with Nieman, Idaho landed a prolific scorer in Susan Woolf, who averaged nearly 40 points a game as a junior, and was labeled as one of the best ever to come out of the state of Kansas. Woolf was named Kansas Class 4A "Player of the Year" last season as a junior. Along with her 39.2 points per game, Woolf also tallied 5.8 steals and seven assists in leading Andover High to a State runner-up spot at 23-3.

Despite its win-loss record. Holt was happy with her team's improvement over the year. The loss of all-Big Sky center Mindy Rice for most of the second half of the year didn't help the Vandals cause at all.

"Last season we were losing games by 20 or 30 points, as compared to the majority of our losses this season coming by less than four or five points," said Holt.

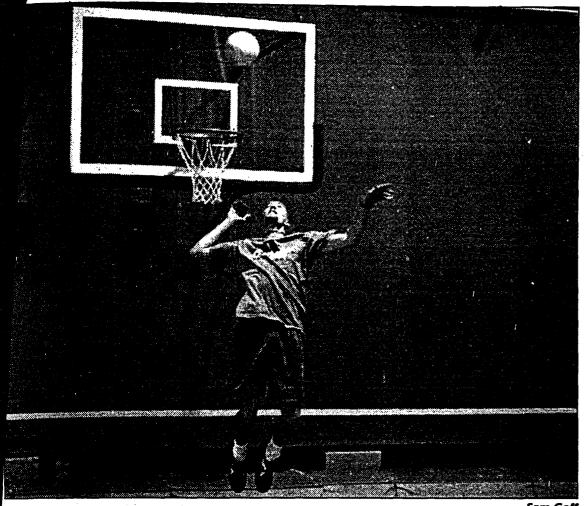

Rice was named for the second straight season to the all-Big Sky first team, averaging 14.4 points and 7.8 rebounds a game, both team

The chance to catch a Vandal home game may no longer exist for students this semester, but that does not mean sports fans need to slow down. The University of Idaho Intramural Department is swinging with basketball, volleyball, soccer, ultimate frisbee and softball keeping students, staff and faculty busy during the early spring.

Following a fall semester filled with record numbers of participants and a new event, the intramural department has enjoyed another busy semester so far this spring. Basketball and co-rec volleyball participation are up, along with the number of officials working the

"We're always trying to make as many people participate as possible," Director of Intramurals Greg Morrison said. Basketball games running Monday through Thursday have filled Memorial gym, some nights until midnight, he said.

With the season winding down on basketball and co-rec volleyball, teams expecting to play in the tournament can pick up their schedules today in the intramural office after 1 p.m. Play will begin Sunday morning for the basketball playoffs, Morrison said.

For those people waiting to get involved or looking for something a little different, registrations for softball, co-rec basketball and twoon-two basketball are rapidly approaching. Two-on-two basketball and co-rec basketball registration is due Tuesday, March 12. Softball teams must register by Wednesday, March 13 to be eligible for the playoffs. The captains' meeting for these sports will be held on Thursday, March 14.

Other events quickly approaching include power-lifting, registration deadline Friday, March 29, with the competition being held Saturday, March 30. Co-rec soccer teams need to sign up by April 1, and corec ultimate teams by April 2.

"The month of April is just going to be crazy, it's the most fun, Morrison said.

Also taking place in April is the final Managers' Meeting of the year. The meeting, rescheduled for April 18 in UCC 112, will allow team captains to vote on events, rules and issues that teams will see next year. The meeting also will decid the new executive board for the intramural department. The executive board makes decisions on what events to hold, event rules and decides any team petitions that arise during the year.

Items on tap for next year include at least one event that Morrison said will not be as much a sport but

For several conference tournament champions around the nation, tickets to the NCAA 64-team tournament are being handed out. Cinderella stories with a nil and 20 record have the chance to overcome all odds and grab a ticket to the NCAAs.

At Idaho, this may certainly be the truth, With a 5-9 record in the Big Sky Conference and an 11-15 record overall, the Vandals were still given a sixth seed spot in the BSC Tourney after an 84-74 victory over Montana last Saturday night.

The conference tournament in essence gives not so good teams a clean slate in the post season.

Enter Washington State. The Cougars (15-10, 7-9) might be wishing that the PAC - 10 Conference had a conference tournament. After a lackluster season under the helm of second-year coach Kevin Eastman, Cougar fans are wondering what happened to the so-called experts preseason pick that WSU would be a PAC-10 darkhorse.

While UCLA, Arizona, Stanford and California prepare to take on the best in the nation, Cougar players are scratching their heads wondering what might be if the crimson and gray had a chance to upset some teams in a PAC-10 loser out elimination.

Why doesn't the PAC-10 have a conference tournament?

"We had one a number of years ago," said PAC-10 head of Public Relations Jim Muldoon. "Our school presidents were disturbed about keeping the kids out on the road for five or six days. There's been sporadic discussion to bring it back."

This year, the Cougars are missing their two front teeth from the knockout blows they've taken from PAC-10 opponents. And although Christmas is over and asking for their two front teeth is out of the question, they might consider writing Santa a letter of wishful thinking.

Note, any letters written to Santa concerning the fact that the Cougars need a PAC-10 Conference Tourney can be addressed to Suite 400 Walnut Creek, Calif., (PAC-10. Headquarters).

And so the argument goes: 'A conference tournament enables teams to play inconsistent during the regular season and gives those teams a chance to play in a 64-team tournament in which they probably don't belong anyway.'

That's a nice thought, but wrong. What is the NCAA Tournament about?

It's about excitement. It's about smaller, not as talented teams knocking off bigger and better schools. It's about conference cellar dwellers winning their conference tournaments and then unexpectedly making it to the Sweet 16 in the Big Tourney.

A perfect scenario for a team like, oh let's say WSU.

True, conference tournaments may be a money making gimmick. But more so, conference tournaments are an underdogs' heaven, where lower seeds can knock off top seeds and unheard of teams bring down perennial powerhouses.

Thankfully, our Black and Gold have a chance of the unthinkable - a trip to the heart of March Madness. For WSU players, their trip consists of eating glazed donuts and sitting at the nearby Pullman tavern entertaining the local drunks.

Sure, I must swallow my pride and admit to the fact that the Cougs beat Idaho twice this year. Then of course, we should have been national champions last year - we beat WSU, in turn, they beat Oregon who upset UCLA.

highs. Ari Skorpik, a junior point guard from Kennewick, Wash., was named all-Big Sky honerable mention while leading the team in assists and following Rice in scoring at 11.5 a game respectively.

Along with the new recruits, Idaho will have the services of 6-7 red-shirt freshman Lara Chaney who is expected to make an instant impact upon her arrival. Holt said Idaho would look to sign two Junior College players as well for next season to bulk up the class of 1998 which currently consists of Kelli Johnson and Melisa McDaniel both of whom started for the Vandals this season.

With the incoming talent and the talent that remains, hopes are high on the University of Idaho campus for success next season, and the battle for starting positions is still wide open.

"The returning players are going to have to work hard to keep their starting positions and they know that. The new-comers will have to work hard as well, because right now the starting spots are wide open," Holt said.

Idaho also signed Suzanne Goss from Boise High and Natalie Weeks from nearby Pullman High. Goss comes from a family strong in athleticism, as there is a list of family that played before her at Idaho. Weeks is in much of the same position, as her father played college ball at Montana State.

"I'm excited about going to the Big West, it's a different style of basketball in that conference and one that I think will suit the team nicely," said Holt.

will allow participants to use their mind and body. Possible additions include billiards, a chess tournament, foosball and even cribbage.

"We're trying to add one new sport each year," Morrison said.

Morrison also looks to offer a sportsmanship award next year. The award would complement the current men's and women's living group championship awards. The only problem Morrison faces with the award is including off-campus participants, an issue he currently is dealing with.

"We want to start a good thing, we want people to know what intramurals is about," Morrison said.

Sportsmanship has become a major part of intramurals this year with the grading system that officials use. Morrison said basketball's ratings have not been as good this year as before, adding that a few teams have received "E" ratings, meaning they forfeit their next game.

Morrison believes the problems in basketball exist because of the contact nature of the sport. "The rule book says there's going to be contact, some violent," Morrison said.

Despite facing more sportsmanship problems in basketball, Morrison continues to praise the officials and the work they have done this year.

"We've got the best officials in the area, we probably wouldn't have a basketball program without them," Morrison said.

Looking at the race for the living group championships, Delta Tau Delta leads all fraternities, followed by Pi Kappa Alpha in second and Beta Theta Pi in third. Gamma Phi Beta leads all sororities with Pi Beta Phi in second and Kappa Kappa Gamma in third. In the residence halls, Snow Hall leads the men with Upham Hall in second and Gault sitting third. Houston heads up the list for women's halls with Forney Hall second and Steel third.

These standings do not reflect the basketball results which will be added next Friday following the playoffs. Basketball is a 200-point sport for living groups, twice the points of other living group events.

Davis ready to prove worth

PEORIA, Ariz - Russ Davis spent 45 minutes in the batting cage working with Lou Piniella the other day.

The new Seattle Mariners' third baseman figures he needs every spring-training swing and tip he can get to make up for last year. He feels a little rusty

As Wade Boggs' understudy in New York, Davis played in only 40 games, had just 98 at bats with the Yankees and faced only righthanded pitching.

"I really believe the Yankees had plans for me, but Wade kept getting better and better," he said. "To tell you the truth, I'm kind of glad to be out of there. If you don't produce right off the bat, then they run you out of town."

When Boggs re-signed with the Yankees last winter, agreeing to a two-year contract, Davis knew he was gone from New York because he was out of options. There was just no room for him in Yankee Stadium.

"I'm extremely happy," Davis said. "I've been in a tough situation in New York the last three years playing behind Wade. He had another great year last year. He's amazing. He's a great hit-

Acquired in the Dec. 7 trade that sent Tino Martinez to the Yankees, Davis takes over at third from Mike Blowers, a key player in the Mariners' AL West title drive last Blowers had 23 homers and 96 RBIs last season. With the Yankees, Dayis hit .259 in 44 games with two homers and 13 RBIs.

"I've got a good break now and I'm with a great team," Davis said. "I'm going to get an opportu-nity to play every day and I can't Davis has a quick bat and good power. At Columbus, he hit 26 homers in 1993 and 25 in 1994. The Mariners think he will be more than adequate defensively.

He began last season in Columbus, too, but was called up May 6 when Scott Kamieniecki was placed on the disabled list. On May 23 at California, he broke up Chuck Finley's perfect game bid

"It was a big thrill, but it was kind of odd for me because I don't run very well," Davis said.

Davis homered off Detroit's David Wells and Kansas City's Chris Haney.

In Game 2 of the Yankees-Mariners playoff series, he came in after Buck Showalter replaced Boggs with a pinch-runner.

Davis singled off Tim Belcher in the 14th inning, then was picked

It was embarrassing, but it was a thrill, too.

"Just getting into a game like that, just being in that situation,"

Davis won't define his expectations for his year, his ninth as a

"It's been a long road," he said with a grin, "When you sign when you're 18, unless you're a phenom, you know it's going to be a long road."

Martinez looks to show last season was no fluke

Associated Press

PEORIA, Ariz. - Lou Piniella was talking about Edgar Martinez and that certain gleam came into his

"You don't see guys hitting 30 home runs and .350," he said. You just don't.'

Martinez is coming off that kind of season, though - a season when he hit .356 for his second AL batting title. He had 29 homers, then added two more against the New York Yankees in the AL playoffs.

"Where do you see people hitting .350?" Piniella asked. "Tony Gwynn can do it, but Tony Gwynn doesn't do it with the power Edgar does. Rod Carew used to do it, but he didn't hit the ball with the power Edgar does."

At 32, Martinez had a career year in Seattle. His homer and average numbers were career highs, as were his 113 RBIs, 52 doubles, 182 hits and 116 walks. Martinez, the 1992 AL batting champion with a .343 average, raised his career average to .313.

His batting average was the highest by a right-handed hitter in the AL in 56 years - since Joe DiMaggio's .381 of 1939.

Can Martinez be even better at the plate this season?

Not likely, the Mariners said.

"I don't know if you top it," Piniella said Monday. "If you can just get him to duplicate it, we'd be very happy. No, he's peaked out now. He's done. You can't get any better in what he's done. You just

But Martinez, a native of Dorado, Puerto Rico, who has been in the Mariners' system all his baseball life, will try.

The two-time All-Star wasn't healthy in 1993 and 1994, when he played in a total of 131 games. He was 100 percent last season, when he played in a career-best 145

Third in the AL MVP voting behind Mo Vaughn and Albert Belle in 1995, Martinez thinks he can have even a better season before his career is over.

"That was the best year of my career," he said. "It makes me satisfied that I was able to produce the way I did. What else can I say? Hopefully, some day, I can improve it.

In his 14th season in professional baseball, his eighth in Seattle, Martinez will bat cleanup behind Ken Griffey Jr. and in front of Jay Buhner.

Griffey, the 1994 AL homer champion, played in only 72 games last season because of a broken left Having Griffey back for the entire season figures to help Martinez. He agrees.

"It's nice to have Junior back," Martinez said with a smile.

Martinez is headed into the final season of his contract. A year ago, the Mariners thought about trading him in a bid to cut salaries.

Although the Mariners have said they'd like him to finish his career in Seattle, he's not sure that will happen.

During the offseason, the Mariners traded Tino Martinez to the New York Yankees and sent Mike Blowers to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Both were economic deals designed to keep the small-market Mariners at $35 million in players' salaries this season.

"There's no assurances in this game that you're going to be here," Martinez said. "You never know in this game. So you're mentally ready for anything.

"I'd like to stay in Seattle and, hopefully, we'll get an agreement. But if we don't, I have to move

But the Mariners have Martinez as their designated hitter for at least one more season. And that makes

International afternoon a success

Valaree Johnson Staff

There are very few occasions in which a person can observe a wedding procession from India, listen to the enriching sounds of the bagpipes of Scotland, or taste the cuisine of countries around the world in a single afternoon.

The Fourth Annual
International Afternoon of Culture, Costume and Cuisine held in the Student Union Ballroom last Saturday once again succeeded in presenting a display of the world with more vibrancy than ever. "The turnout is phenomenal," said a very-pleased JoAnn Trail, director and heart of International Friendship Association as well as motivation behind the event. The program was sold out and some were turned away disappointed that they could not attend the highlight of the year sponsored by the

"Each year it becomes more and more dynamic," says Anjum Sadiq of the International Women's Association. Sadiq was coordinator of "Children of the World" in which several children in traditional wear from various countries warmed the audience as they sang "Heal the World" by the glow of candles in tiny hands of many ethnicity's.

The induction of three new flags from Malta, Tajikistan and Wales were applauded, bringing the total of the collection to an outstanding 108 flags. Guests sat at one of many tables depicting a country, complete with wonderful centerpieces and a host whom conducted a raffle for "visitors" of their country to win a sou-

"What we are trying to do is promote international friendship," says Simba Tirima, president of the Student International Association. Tirima along with Cathy Rouyer and Amtul Sheikh did a fabulous job as masters of ceremony for the event.

Instead of a focus on modeling, this year's gala introduced sever-al traditional ceremonies in complete costume. Twirling skirts, exotic music, rich fabrics and charming acting from everything to the Malaysian warrior to the Spanish bull gave constant entertainment flowing from one country to the next.

Weddings in Pakistan, Turkey and India were performed. Conventional dance and songs of Ecuador, Indonesia, China and Tajikistan as well as traditions of Sweden, Alsace, El Salvador, Mexico and Indonesia were exhibited. Even some cowboy poetry and line dancing from the United States gave representation to pride of people and their

A special award was given for outstanding service in the inter-national realm to UI Graduate student Brinda Mahadevan.

"We want to give this to the person who has given so much to this cause," said David Hisel, student chair for the event.

Mahadevan, who was student chair in the past, mentioned the addictive nature of the interna-tional scene. "Once you get into it, it's hard to (stop)," he said.
The afternoon ended with a friendship drum and dance finale as crowd participation completed the idea of harmony and cooperation among a society that includes a diversity of cultures.

So much can truly be said about the International Afternoon of Culture, Costume and Cuisine, but the only way to grasp the ambiance is to attend.

Schulte: A woman of many cultures

Valaree Johnson

Go to any event sponsored by international programs and it is likely that you will see the smiling face of Sheila Schulte. Her poise eludes of energy which is necessary as she counsels 415 students from over 60 different countries as International Student

It all started in Norway, Iowa where Schulte grew up in a town of 600 people on a farm. As the youngest of five children who all had a lust for exploration, Schulte went to the University of Iowa with an interest in anthropology. Between her freshman and sophomore year she did an archaeological dig which only furthered her interest in culture.

International Afternoon of Culture,

At 19, Schulte ventured on to teach English in Taiwan. "I got on the plane knowing that I was a complete sponge, soaking everything. It was really an adventure," says Schulte.

Learning of the aboriginal groups piqued Schulte's interest in cultural anthropology. She returned to Taiwan two more times as an undergraduate before she finished her Master writing her thesis on "What is Nation" and the relationships between the People's Republic of China and the Republic of China as the Taiwanese often refer to themselves.

While working through different student services, Schulte realized her love of interaction with them and pursued a career through the National Association of Foreign Student Advisors.

At the convention in New Orleans Schulte met with the University of Idaho and accepted the job, going from one UI to

She loves the school here and feels there are some really quality students. As International Student Advisor, the learning process never ends for Schulte. "At the end of the day I'm always saying, 'I've really learned a lot today," says Schulte.

Homesickness, culture shock, and other struggles of international students is Schulte's emphasis along with programming and orientation. "I'm constantly busy," says Schulte. "There's never a downtime."

The events that go on through the International Programs Office are many and varied and also welcome to all United States students. "We really want to bridge the gap," says Schulte. And in the eyes of many, she's doing a great job.

Freeman (e play folks Celtic music Samuday

Justin Cason Staff

If the theme of ASUI Productions Coffeehouse a few weeks ago was jazz music, then this weekend's key genre would have to be Celtic and folk.

Musician Brian Freeman will step to the microphone Saturday evening in the Vandal Food Court at the Student Union. Freeman will perform his original style of Celtic tunes and acoustical folk in the 8 p.m. con-

To date, Preeman has recorded four albums, all of which have received critical acclaim. Not only does he play gulfar, but he sings and plays mandolin as well Freeman currently resides in Ashland, Ore and has been play performing at UI ing his unique style of "We're not expecting as man Scottish/Celtic melodies for quite people as at the Jazz Festival,

Although he is not from the British Isles, the s musician's talent and authenticity do not seem to be affected by it.

"He's a really enjoyable person to listen to," said Sarah Church, Music of the Times Committee Chair for ASUI Productions."
"Plus, he's very interested in 1 lrish music

Irish music."
Freeman, far from a rookie at his trade, has performed with such acts as Hölly Near, John Renbourn and The Kingston

Church and ASUI are anticipating reasonably large crowd in this, Freeman's first appearance obviously, but folk music see to be pretty popular with the ple in Moscow," Church stated The concert, which is free to everyone, is part of a regional tour which included a stop in Walla Walla, Wash, two weeks ago:

Saturday's performance caters' to the motif of general variety that ASUI is trying to portray in its Coffeehouse presentations.
"We're looking for more, diverse groups of people and musicians," Church said, "We'd like something that goes along with the 'Coffeehouse' theme."

Eventually, she predicted, there might be even be some dances.

What's up this weekend

Justin Cason

For those of you looking for a variety of live local music during this last weekend before Spring Break, here's what Moscow has in store for you.

The Rathaus is offering a wide range of music these next two days, with Rippin' Conspiracy performing tonight and the talented Soulcraft—with Crimebucks playing on Saturday. Both shows begin at 9 p.m. at the 215 N. Main locale.

The Billies will be featured at John's Alley Saturday night. The 114 E. 6th St. venue has a $3 cover

The Capricorn will offer its usual but still satisfactory one-band lineup of Hoolibob all weekend long. The classic rock concert begins at 9:30 p.m. The Capricorn is located at 123 N. Main.

Cadillac Jack's will be jazzing things up a bit by featuring the University of Idaho Jazz Band. The floor will be alive with ballroom dancing, so bring your waltzing shoes. The festivities begin at 8 p.m.

On a more theatrical note, the play Blithe Spirit will be running at the Hartung Theatre both tonight and Saturday night. The shows start at 8 p.m.

Finally, the movie Highlander will be showing in the Borah Theatre in the Student Union at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Fans of "youcan-only-die-if-you-get-your-head-cut-off" films are encouraged to come.

. Denny-Afro-Desia. erhaps my title, Emptying you kitchenware onto the kitchen floor while listening to Time Life's Tribal Rituals

Actually, there are a select few songs that I can sense a Latin influence. Take track 11 for example. This song deemphasizes the kitchenware and the ritual sounds and the animal wails and the ... well hell, this track shouldn't even be on the disk. While track 11 and most of the songs start off with some sort of drum beat, accompanied by cymbals, track 11 takes a turn for the better when Oh yeah, there are relait evolves into a tango-like rhythm. It's hard to believe after tolerating a listening to this album, but the CD inlay claims Martin Denny has released 37 albums and sold 4 million copie

While myself and a couple of friends found the album content quite humor-neer and lounge artist Martin Denny released Afro-Desia on Liberty records: 1996 sees a re-release of this album on compact disc, on Scamp records the same label that released Robert Mitchum's first musical opus Calypso.

The disc begins with the artificial buzzing of a tsetse fly layered over rich percussion and piano melodies. The fly circles the room in classic stereophonic effect, and is squashed by the music in a sudden clap only to be replaced by another

Essentially Afro-Desia can be considered an insult to any type of real African music-it possesses nothing of what tribal music sounds like. It is only a rough version of a white American male's perspective on what another culture's music would sound like.

I was not terribly impressed with Afro-Desia. A majority of the tracks held no real flavor, nor did they offer anything to the listener that was substantially interesting. It is a dull and tedious album.

Fugue hits the read

Matt Baldwin

Fugue, the literary digest for the University of Idaho, celebrated its fall issue with a reading at Mikey's Gyros last Wednesday evening. While the audience circled

While the audience circled around drinking and eating, some of the university's top writers both inside and out of the English program read poetry and fiction to the diner. Inclusive within the audience were English professors and UI students.

Every semester the English Department releases Fugue. This year marks the seventh year that Fugue has been printing. In the beginning the digest was headed up by three undergraduate students at UI.

Copies are free to students and are available to students across the campus at different locations.

"Fugue is the literary digest for the University of Idaho. We publish two issues a year, one during the fall semester, the other during the spring," Eric Isaacson, the executive editor, Currently Fugue is published sporadically during the semesters; there is no real set date of publishing for any of the issues.

But Isaacson and the rest of the Fugue staff are hoping to be able to soon begin getting the issue out mid-semester so that students at UI will have enough time to pick it up and read it before the year is over.

"It (Fugue) is totally student run. The staff is mostly undergraduate students, but there are a few graduate students. I myself am a student. We do have a faculty advisor, Lance Olsen. He is the director of creative writing here," Isaacson said.

Fugue is a nationally accessible magazine and has been nominated as one of the top 50 small literary magazine in the Writer's Market.

"They wanted a venue for students of creative writing," Isaacson said.

At the moment because of the state's budget cut-backs and consequently the UI budget cuts, Fugue is in jeopardy of being lost unless another avenue of funding can be found.

An assortment of authors have been found in past issues of Fugue ranging from Michael Arnzen to Kathy Acker. Fugue has also published many students from the UI, but it also publishes authors from all around the country, even the world.

One of the components of great literature is the use of analogy to give deeper meaning to or understanding of the material. Here are some analogies you probably won't find in any literary masterpieces: He spoke with the wisdom that can only come from experience, like a guy, who went blind because he looked at a solar eclipse without one of those boxes with a pinhole in it and now goes around the country speaking at high schools about the dangers of looking at a solar eclipse without one of those boxes with a pinhole in it.

For fast relief from the nagging ache of taxes, we recommend TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs are tax-deferred annuities designed to help build additional assets—money that can help make the difference between living and living well after your working years are over.

Contributions to your SRAs are deducted from your salary on a pretax basis. That lowers your current taxable income, so you start saving on federal and, in most cases, state and local income taxes right away. What's more, any earnings on your SRAs are also tax-deferred until you receive them as income. That can make a big difference in how painful your tax bill is every year.

As the nation's largest retirement system, based on assets under management, we offer a wide range of allocation choices — from the TIAA Traditional Annuity, which guarantees principal and interest (backed by the company's claims-paying ability), to TIAA-CREF's diversified variable annuity accounts. And our expenses are very low, which means more of your money goes toward improving your future financial health.
