The Idaho Headstart program has been the helping hand for many children in the community.

Federally funded, Headstart helps aid the development of children. A primary goal of the Headstart program is to prepare children for kindergarten. Dental and medical tests are performed on the children as well as vision, hearing and developmental screenings.

In a prepared statement Michelle Eaton said, "Headstart helped my family tremendously. Due to complications at her birth, my daughter suffered from developmental delays. Thanks to the Birth-to-Program and Headstart my daughter went from being 25 percent developmentally delayed to being 25 percent developmental ahead of her peers."

"Since we caught the problem at an early age, we were able to correct the problem and teach her more efficient ways of doing things," Eaton said. "After Headstart, she required no additional special services. This also saves taxpayers money. My daughter is thriving in elementary school." Currently Eaton's youngest daughter is attending Headstart classes.

Parent involvement is imperative in order for the Headstart program to be successful. From helping in the classroom to an encouraging word after class, parents have played a key role in the success of the program. Interested parents are encouraged to volunteer their time in community committees, parenting classes and parent meetings.

Idaho Headstart is free to parents who meet the proper eligibility requirements. Most parents are at or below the low income guidelines. Children benefiting from the program in many cases have had one or both parents attending class-

Suspect turns himself in for vandalism of Forest Service office

University of Idaho student turned himself into police Wednesday shortly after a warrant for his arrest had been issued on the charge of felony malicious injury to property.

Joseph J. Malloy, a senior psychology major at the University of Idaho, turned himself in to police at 3 p.m. Wednesday for the recent vandalization of a Forest Service research facility. Moscow Police Capt. Cameron Hershaw said Malloy was booked in Latah County jail and has posted bond. Malloy, 25, was allegedly identified by area residents in computer enhanced photographs during a door to door search of apartments near the facility. The photographs were captured from video security tapes taken during the break-in at the U.S. Forest Service Intermountain Research Station on South Main Street in Moscow. Malloy was questioned by police Tuesday in relation to the incident. According to a police department press release Mailoy acknowledged that he had damaged computer equipment in the building.

Hershaw said, "Malloy had stated that he had been drinking." An affidavit seeking a warrant for Malloy's arrest was filed on Wednesday at 11 a.m. by Detective warrant was issued by Magistrate William Hamlett.

Malloy had worked for the Forest Service in the summer of 1993 at the Kooskia Ranger District in the Clearwater Forest. Hershaw said Malloy had apparently left on good terms and spoke well of the Forest Service. A motive for the crime has not been identified and is not expected.

The security video from the research station showed a man breaking into the facility by crashing through two $1,000 windows at 2:45 a.m. on Saturday. The man pictured in the video proceeded to destroy several offices, pushing computers, phones and fax machines onto the floor. The suspect also destroyed hundreds of soil samples by knocking them to the floor. Station administrator Andy Lawrence said the vandalization has cost them time as well as money. Lawrence said employees. spent all day Saturday cleaning up, and it has taken most of the week to restore the office to working

"We still have a lot of broken equipment. We're not back to 100 percent yet," Lawrence said.

The scientists at the station are still assessing the damage to equipment and data. So far, $7,000 worth of damage has been confirmed, but the total cost is estimated at $15,000.

"I think it's going to be higher than $15,000, but we'll just have to see what they say," Hershaw said.

The station is a U.S. Forest Service research facility and deals with forestry and engineering. Many of the scientists are affiliate faculty at UI. They conduct research on forest restoration and regeneration.

young victim of AIDS. Kara Claypool, will have a Ltree planted in her memory on Sunday.

The University of Idaho
HIV/AIDS Task Force and Student Advisory Services are sponsoring the tree planting.

Dean of Students Bruce Pitman said, "Kara and her family have been valuable educators and messengers about HIV/AIDS issues. Kara's story is important because it demonstrates how vulnerable we all are.'

Kara was born HIV positive on April 1, 1988, and she died on Aug. 30, 1995 in Spokane.

Between 1988 and 1995, Kara's father fell victim to the virus, and Kara and her mother, Joyce, took on the task of educating people about HIV/AIDS.

Joyce Claypool said in the video Close Enough to Touch, "I don't think AIDS education can start too early. I don't think AIDS and sex education are synonymous.'

Kara and her mother, who is also HIV positive, worked in Spokane to educate people about HIV/AIDS and the effect it has on everybody's

"It (HIV/AIDS) affects everybody," Joyce Claypool said.

On Dec. 1, 1994, World AIDS Day, Kara and her mother came to UI to share their message here.

In a prepared statement Mary Lu Freano of the HIV/AIDS Task Force said, "Kara and Joyce's openness about HIV/AIDS, and their willingness to share their story, moved many to tears and sent the message that everyone can be affected by HIV/AIDS."

Freano said, "The tree planting seems to be one special way that the University of Idaho community can honor a little girl who taught us so much."

Pitman and Dr. Susan Gelletly, of UI Student Health Services, said in an invitation to the event, "It is also a tribute to those whose lives have been devasted by the HIV virus."

The tree is a flowering crabapple and will be planted at the top of the hill along Perimeter Drive in the new Arboretum.

The planting will take place at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday.

The ceremony will include some of Kara's favorite music, a brief theater presentation, a presentation of a quilt to Kara's mother.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the 19th Hole, the Idaho man convicted for passing millions in bogus checks

BOISE—An Ada County juror said he felt sorry for Jerry Michael Steele, the Meridian man convicted of passing $15 million in checks linked to the Freemen in Montana.

"We all felt sorry for him, I'm sure. But that wasn't what this case was about," Reid people were wronged."

Steele, 55, tried to use the checks—some of which were signed by jailed Freemen leader LeRoy Schweitzer—to buy a town in Nevada and property in Emmett, as well as open a bank account.

Steele, who defended himself in court after firing his attorney, could serve up to 28 years in prison. His sentencing is scheduled for May 9.

"This case is about greed," Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Roger Bourne told jurors. "You have to ask yourself, did you ever get a big check, for your house or your car? Did you ever go to Kinkos and make color copies of it?"

"Why would you do that?"

Steele countered with his explanation: "People like to have copies—'A $5 million check, look at this."

And he's still convinced that his Freemen checks may be worth millions.

lions.

"If that check is good, I want my money," Steele said.

The jury of seven women and five men spent about 2 1/2 hours deliberating the case.

Steele appeared stunned, and asked the judge to poll the jurors. Each of the 12 avoided Steele's gaze as they confirmed the guilty verdict.

"Incredible," Steele muttered just before he was handcuffed.

"What you're seeing here is a scam. It's a con," Bourne said. "The message that is most important in this case is that these checks written by this group of people in Montana are fraudulent."

"Anybody who takes one of their checks will lose money and anyone who passes them will be subject to prosecution."

Second group launches ad attack on Chenoweth record

BOISE—Another national group on Wednesday launched an advertising campaign against conservative members of Congress, including Idaho Republican Helen Chenoweth, for their votes on health care spending for the elderly.

Citizen Action, working through the Idaho Citizen's Network, began airing a 30-second television ad in Boise, accusing the freshman lawmaker of voting five times last year for legislation it said cut support for Medicare to finance tax breaks for the rich.

Chenoweth responded by accusing the Idaho Citizen's Network of distorting the truth about the GOP Medicare proposal.

Moreover, Chenoweth accused the ad's sponsors of using the "politics of fear" against the elderly. "I think it's cruel," she said.

The latest accusation against Chenoweth was the same as those leveled by congressional Democrats during the 1995 debate on the balanced budget and Medicare reform legislation in the face of the GOP proposals that reduced Medicare spending by $270 million over seven years and cut taxes by $245 billion during the same period.

While most of those votes were generally along party lines, the one proposal by conservative Democrats to balance the federal budget without a tax break and smaller reductions in Medicare, Medicaid and other spending was overwhelmingly rejected by lawmakers from both parties.

Chenoweth has also been the target of a television ad campaign sponsored by organized labor, who has attacked her for what it claims are votes against working people.

She is expected to defeat a political unknown in the May primary and then face Boise attorney Dan Williams in November, assuming Williams defeat a token primary challenger next month.

WSU's 'bug man' dies of heart attack

PULLMAN—E. Paul Catts, an entomology professor known for using insects to help police in homicide investigations, has died of a heart attack. He was 66.

Catts collapsed Friday while playing lacrosse with members of the Washington State University lacrosse team.

One of only about a dozen forensic entomologists in the nation, Catts was internationally recognized in the field, writing numerous publications, lecturing and working on more than 50 homicide investigations. Forensic entomology can often tell police how long a body has been in an area, based on the types, numbers and sizes of insects it contains.

The former chairman of WSU's entomology department, Catts tried to promote better understanding of the roles of insects through his "Insects and People" course, which encouraged participants to dine on bugs during a semester-ending "bug luau." Although retired, Catts continued to teach at least one course in recent years.

Catts was born April 3, 1930, at Elizabeth, N.J., and become chairman of the WSU entomology department in 1980.

He is survived by his wife, Dana Ketner, three sons, a daughter, two sisters, a brother, and three grandchildren.

A memorial service is planned for Friday in Pullman. Kimball Funeral Home of Pullman is in charge of the arrangements.

Magazine writer says freemen prepared to hold out for demands

JORDAN, Mont.—The Freemen don't plan to end a standoff with the FBI unless a court of their own making is allowed to decide whether they broke the law, said a writer who met with them.

Soldier of Fortune writer James Pate, who interviewed the anti-government group at its 960-acre compound Tuesday, said the men wanted on fraud and other charges had little interest in ending the 17-day siege.

The Freemen have demanded an all-male court to be designed on their interpretation of the Constitution and other documents, Pate said.

The group contends the FBI has no jurisdiction in Montana.

On Monday, the Freemen nailed a defiant declaration of independence to a post near their compound gate, branding the U.S. government a "corporate prostitute" and claiming they have the right to establish their own government.

The document dampened hopes of a settlement and was the first evidence that talks last week with four Montana lawmakers had yielded little.

About a dozen people in the compound face state or federal charges ranging from writing bad checks and impersonating public officials to threatening to kidnap and murder a U.S. district judge.

Study finds smoking more likely than booze to kill alcoholics

CHICAGO—Tobacco is more likely than booze to kill alcoholics who smoke, according to Mayo Clinic researchers who say nicotine addiction is too often ignored in substance abuse programs.

In a study published in today's Journal of the American Medical Association, researchers examined medical records for 845 male and female patients admitted at Mayo Clinic's Inpatient Addiction Program from 1972 through 1983. Most were white and over 21 when admitted, with an average age of 41.4.

Seventy-eight percent were admitted for alcoholism, and about 75 percent of all the patients were smokers.

Through December 1994, 222 of the patients died—more than double the number that would have been expected in the general population.

Death certificates were obtained for 214 subjects.

Tobacco-related causes of death, such as heart and respiratory diseases and lung cancer, accounted for 109, or 50.9 percent, of the deaths and were twice as frequent as would be expected in the general population.

Alcohol-related conditions, such as liver diseases and gastrointestinal ailments, accounted for 73 deaths, or 34.1 percent, and were more than four times the number

CD manufacturers say Chinese piracy is worsening

BEIJING—A year after China agreed to crack down on compact disc piracy, Chinese factories are producing more pirated CDs than ever before, according to American industry experts.

In February 1995, China averted a trade war with the United States by agreeing to halt illegal CD production and open its markets to legally produced U.S. movies, music and computer software.

The Chinese factories producing these CDs are the same ones that were operating last year before the agreement was reached, Jay Berman, president of the Recording Industry Association of America, told reporters Tuesday.

Chinese piracy cost U.S. companies an estimated $2.3 billion last year and officials say China could face sanctions worth an equal amount if it does not honor the agreement.

The United States losses of $2.3 billion in 1995 were up from an estimated $866 million in 1994, Eric Smith, president of the International Intellectual Property Alliance, told reporters. But part of the increase was due to the addition of losses from pirated video games in 1995, he said.

Losses from computer software and films increased, while losses from music went down slightly in 1995. Berman said pirates produced more computer software instead of music CDs last year because it sells for a higher price.

Iraq oprimistic on oilfor-food deal with U.N.

NICOSIA, Cyprus—Iraq and the United Nations are extremely likely to reach an oil-for-food deal, an Iraqi government newspaper said today.

The two sides began a third round of talks Monday on the terms under which Iraq might be allowed to sell $1 billion worth of oil every 90 days to buy desperately needed food and medicine.

The United Nations imposed comprehensive sanctions against Iraq, including a ban on vital oil exports, after it invaded Kuwait in August 1990. It says the sanctions will remain in place until Baghdad complies with U.N. demands, including dismantling its weapons of mass destruction programs.

The sanctions have created severe hardships for most of Iraq's 20 million people. But Iraq so far has rejected the longstanding U.N. offer to let Baghdad sell oil-for food, claiming the restricted sales would compromise its sovereignty.

Iraq insists on distributing supplies through its government rationing system, which does not extend to the Kurdish areas. The United Nations says aid agencies must be responsible for the distribution.

Hard work, dedication to grades and the community, social activities and leadership are among the reasons which won Delta Tau Delta high honors for the 13th

At the Delta Tau Delta National conference the Moscow chapter of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity earned the Hugh Shields Award given to only 10 chapters of the 140 who attended the conference.

"This is the highest national award attainable out of Delta Tau Delta," explained Jeffery L. Pidgeon, Public Relations officer at Delta Tau Delta, "It's a great honor.

Chapters given the award were judged on the well-roundedness of their chapter. Everything from academic excellence to participation in social events were taken? into consideration. It has been eight years since Delta Tau Delta last received the award

"We've been working really hard," Pidgeon said. "There has been more involvement academically and our house leadership is really strong right now. Everyone is doing their best and it paid

The award was created by Delta Tau Delta alumnus Hugh Shields, a man dedicated to the Delta Tau Delta laws of excellence-social and academic activities which make the fraternity well-rounded.

"Receiving the award really helps the fraternity, It boosts the spirits of the members and pushes them to excel. The award also increases alumni support," Pidgeon said.

As part of the award the Delts received a flag embroidered with their letters in purple and gold; their house colors. The saying

Senate provides funds for Sexual Assault Awareness, Argonaut

Janet Birdsall

Wednesday night was the time to ask the ASUI Senate for money.

Senators voted to provide $1,000 to the Safety Task Force for their expenses during Sexual Assault Awareness Week, and gave $600 to the Argonaut for travel to receive awards at Idaho Press Club ceremonies at Sun Valley.

"Sexual Assault Awareness Week is to educate students and create awareness in the community," said Vice-Chair Rhonda Anderson. The selected week is April 22-26.

President Brian Kane expressed concern over the proposed budget for the week, and some senators asked if the task force could find some money from other sources.

"We're just running out of time to. ask people for help," said Chair Angela Rauch. She said that they had looked at other possible sources already.

Part of the expense for the week is purchasing a full-page ad in the Argonaut for two days. Rauch said placing the award-winning ads is a tradition for the week. The ads cost over $600 together, she said.

The Argonaut will be sending three people to Sun Valley to pick up awards the paper has won, as well as attend workshops and semi-

"This is the first time that I know of that the Argonaut has won an award, and I think it's important that we go down to Sun Valley to have the Argonaut's presence there," Editor in Chief Shelby Dopp said.

Dopp and Copy Editor Lisa Lannigan will make the trip April 27 with Corinne Flowers, next year's editor in chief. They will fly down and spend one night there, Dopp said.

Senators said it was less expensive to fly than to take a van to Sun Valley. Senator Jay Feldman asked if it would be cheaper to take a personal auto than fly. Other senators agreed that it might.

Dopp said the tickets had already been purchased, because there were only four seats left on the flight.

In other business, Kane clarified that Katie Egland will still be in office as Faculty Council representative, and her position is not open for new candidates this spring.

April 27 is the date for toxic waste clean-up, and volunteers are needed, Stormie Anderson said. Shifts begin at 7:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m., and sign-up sheets are posted at the ASUI office and the informa-

English split tabled

Shawn Vidmar

The proposal to divide English 205 into three separate writing classes was tabled until next fall by the Faculty Council Tuesday.

Professor Jennie Nelson, director of writing, supported the proposal her department delineated over since October 1995. The Faculty Council expressed two primary concerns.

The biggest concern charged by some members of the council contained that if English can change a core class, there is a fear other departments will want to as well. Council Secretary Professor Doug Adams said that if the decision had not been a core class, it wouldn't have met any resistance since it has met approval in all other areas.

The proposal constitutes a division of English 205 into three 200 level courses. These courses would be English 207: Persuasive Writing, 208: Personal and Exploratory Writing and 209: Advanced Expository Writing.

This split exists already for next fall as each section of English 205 is now described with the specialty listed after it. Nelson stuck to her guns when professor of agricultural economics Stephen Cooke proposed a simple division in the course book as 205a, b, or c. Aside from the registration problem this ensues, "a, b, c" all exist on the number one button, Nelson expressed that this division already exists the way it is set up now. The reason for the change in numbers is to facilitate a proposed writing minor and to get a jump on the anticipated core revision in the

The council split on their decision. All members expressed enthusiasm to diversify writing. They feel the students could only benefit from more writing classes; however, most became concerned when tampering with core.

Core opens another can of worms. Faculty Council Assistant Professor Kent Hackmann, from the history department, said that the purpose of core is to offer breadth rather than depth. By dividing English 205 the school runs into a problem of specialization, said Hackmann.

Physics professor Philip Deutchman said that if the council passed this request, then the core paradigm may shift and he won-

How much does the government know about UFOs?

Jared Smith Gerald E. Rowles views a segment of "Unsolved Mysteries" with his audience Tuesday during an UFO lecture.

Tammy Mills

Other than the 1966 Freedom of Information Act, what do we really know about Unidentified Flying Objects? This was the underlying question posed by Gerald E. Rowles in his colloquium in the Janssen Engineering Building Tuesday afternoon.

Rowles spent 22 years in the United States Air Force. He achieved the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, and is now retired.

Rowles said, "During those years many people came to me and said 'Gerry this is what happened to me what do you think of it?" Rowles said there were things he heard despite his USAF background that he couldn't explain.

Rowles said UFOs were very much seen throughout the world prior to and during the second World War. The first media coverage began with the Kenneth Arnold sighting of flying disc objects over the Cascade Mountains on June 24, 1947.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation did an intensive investigative report of Arnold, who resides in Boise.

Rowles said, "It is the personal opinion of the interviewer that Arnold actually saw what he stated he saw." The report claims that Arnold had much more to lose than gain by reporting the sighting and he would have had to have been very strongly convinced before he would open himself up to the ridicule that would accompany such a claim.

The FBI denies any involvement with UFOs. On Oct. 25, 1973, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelly explained to an investigator, "The investigation of UFOs is not and never has been a matter within the investigative jurisdiction of the FBI"

Rowles said two opposing arquments surround the famous Roswell, N.M. case. regarding the remains of a batlike craft found on a ranch outside of Roswell July 4, 1947.

A former assistant deputy undersecretary of the Department of Defense Central Intelligence states the November 1995 USAF Roswell reports represent a highly classified technology known as the mogul acoustical high altitude research balloon.

Rowles said the case was so serious the government was caught in • SEE UFO PAGE 6

Awards recognize excellence in internships

Christopher Clancy

Staff

As part of its nationwide recruiting effort, nearly 25 percent of all student interns hired at Micron Technology come from the University of Idaho and held more positions than students from any other university, said Micron recruiter and keynote speaker Laurel Naccarato at an awards ceremony at the University Inn Thursday evening.

The purpose of the ceremony was to recognize UI students who had worked as interns during 1995.

The outstanding student intern award for a paid intern was given to graphic arts major Jodi Silvers, for her work with the Idaho Wheat Commission. Much of Silvers' work was done by telecommuting, "from the relative comfort of the labs here on campus," Cooperative Education Director Alice Pope Barbut said.

Outstanding student awards for unpaid internships were awarded to veterinary science major Alayna Malmberg, for an internship at Northwest Trek Wildlife Park in Eatonville, Wash. and to graphic arts major Melissa Swan for her work at the UI press.

The outstanding service award for student mentorship, was awarded to William Doelle of the Department of Art and Architecture.

The ceremony also played host to one of UI's biggest internship providers, Micron Technology. Just one of many recruiters at UI, Micron hires between 75 and 100 interns each year in engineering, computer science, business and public relations, though the majority of those hired come from the electrical engineering program, Naccarato said. Interns range from recent high school grads to college graduate students.

"At Micron we like to think of ourselves as a host for students. UI students, as a group, have done really well in the program." In fact Naccarato said, "They ruled." Fifty to 70 percent of those interns come back to work for Micron after graduation. "It has really enhanced our employment base," she said.

"Internships are more important now than they've probably ever been before," Naccarato said. With all of the competition in the job market, "Internships are a sure-fire way to make yourself stand out," Naccarato said.

In addition to giving students placements as interns, companies also benefit from the program.

"We use students as a way to tap in to research at UI. The technological base is really good here and when students do well, that speaks well for the university. It serves as a resource and a way for us to stay in touch with new technology that is emerging," Naccarato said.

"Internships provide students with real experience," Interim Provost George Simmons said.

"One of the best things is that it lets you know whether or not you really want to be working in your major. When interns come back to school after an internship there's a real sense of purpose. They know what they're working for and it prepares them for the work force," Simmons said.

Last year UI had interns at several major companies including NASA, Ore-Ida Foods, Potlatch Corp. and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Barbut said.

dered if the council would be ready for requests of this nature from every department.

Professor Bill Voxman conceded that English 104 contains a nice introduction to writing, but that a carefully crafted 205 will help extend writing skills. "If this would encourage others to take more writing I am all for it" said Voxman.

Architecture Professor, Jonathan Reich said, "I'd like my students to take all three so they know the differences, but I don't want to micromanage and have English offer one class with all three." Reich expressed disdain for how little writing students.

dents are exposed to in English 104 compared to the amount expected of them throughout their college career.

Nelson concurred with the writing program's mission statement which is to incorporate personal writing and experience into academic writing. She added, "Writing is not a process to be completed in one year or one semester. We know this because we are still learning. even at our level."

Lois Blackburn, professor in the music department, said by offering another option in English may not be a primary concern when many feel that there are so many other interests within core which need attention. Blackburn motioned that the proposal be tabled until next fall so that it would not be defeated immediately. She said that this would give the council time to do some research as well as the core committee to make some decisions.

The motion to table the proposal passed nine to three. The condition binding the motion is that there will be a decision by October 1996 so the possible new course listings would be listed in the spring catalog for 1997.

a confused state concerning the disposition of the debris and the alleged occupants.

The military had originally revealed that a craft had crashed and been recovered by Walker Air Force Base in New Mexico.

Rowles said, "Higher headquarters immediately reversed itself and denied the craft was anything more than a government weather balloon." At that time it was a cover. Because of serious government concerns strict secrecy was required.

Rowles said in October 1995 the USAF released a 1,000 page document that the craft that crashed at the Foster ranch was a classified mogul baloon. The acoustical mogul balloon was used to detect barometric changes to the atmosphere, and to see if the Soviets would be detonating the hydrogen

Rowles said the key is what happened in Washington, D.C. July 19, 1952. Washington National Airport controllers picked up UFOs on the their screens for three and a half hours. The Air Force launched two F94 fighters to investigate. The F94's failed to make contact because the lighted objects would disappear from the controllers' screens whenever fighters entered the area and reappear when they left. Airline pilots reported lighted objects tailing them into the

Rowles said a week later the objects reappeared this time in daylight. This time the fighters made contact, the lighted objects then flew over the Whitehouse and were seen by hundreds of witnesses. The pentagon's switchboard was swamped with calls and major newspapers even bumped the Democratic convention off the headlines.

The authorities were getting nervous and the largest department of defense press conference since World War II. was called on July 29 1952. The USAF denied fighters had been launched to intercept the objects, and claimed the lights were temperature inversions. The truth finally came out when witnesses began stepping forward.

Rowles said the camcorder of today has done a great deal in proving that UFOs do indeed exist.

On a more local level, Rowles said, "Last week in Spokane a young lady shot a video of something over the valley." Rowles observed the video saying the object was lightly bouncing around since she had taped it on automatic. Rowles said, "But for three seconds there is something I couldn't identify after 19 years in the air force."

Rowles is the assistant Washington state director of the Mutual UFO Network.

It's not Stephen King's fault

The story "Classroom killings all too familiar" written by Idaho Spokesman-Review reporter Bonnie Harris discussed how police think 15-year-old Barry Loukaitis acted out the plot of Stephen King's book Rage, which King published under his pen name Richard Bachman in 1977. Loukaitis is accused of killing three people at Frontier Junior High School in Moses Lake, Wash.

Rage is a book about a teenager who goes into his algebra class and takes it hostage. The teenager uses a .22-caliber revolver to kill his teacher and another instructor who walks into the room. He also thinks about shooting the most popular boy in the school.

Much like King's character in Rage, Loukaitis "carried a .22-caliber revolver and a hunting rifle, which police say he used to kill algebra teacher Leona Caires and students Manuel Vela, 14, and Arnold Fritz, 15," the story said. The story also said that Vela was a popular and athletic young man and was dating a girl, some say, Loukaitis had a crush on.

Supposedly, Loukaitis said some of the same things that Charlie Decker, the main character in Rage, said.

Police found 27 Stephen King books in Loukaitis' bedroom, and Rage was found on his night stand during a search. Rage was the most worn out of Loukaitis' King collection.

I think it's ludicrous to even think about blaming King for Loukaitis' actions. I've read lots of Stephen King. I've seen lots of horror movies. But for crying out loud, I don't want to go out and kill anybody! I've never really had the urge to act out one of his book plots.

I agree with Spokane child psychiatrist Michael Manz when he said in the article that King's book "didn't go into the classroom and shoot anyone." Manz also said, "A lot of things influence children, and a lot of them are terrible. But can a 15-year-old know that killing a teacher and his classmates is wrong? Absolutely."

I am sure Loukaitis knew exactly what he was doing when he went to Frontier Junior High School armed and dangerous. I am also sure that King doesn't write his books hoping that some deranged psycho will act out his scary plots.

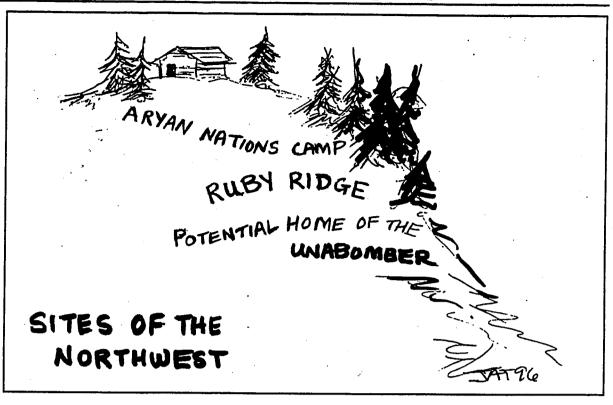

I think when a person kills another human being, they must be sick to begin with. The book didn't make the person a lunatic. Hell, if books did that I would be seriously messed up. I'd probably be killing people all of the time.

Like King said in 1989—after Rage was accused of influencing a 17-year-old Kentucky boy to take 11 classmates hostage at gunpoint for 10 hours—"Crazy is crazy."

Pedestrian crosswalk or conspiracy?

or those of you who found yourselves this morning to be fresh out of conspiracy theories, read on. I call this one the "Molecular Pedestrian Theory."

Moscow, as you know, is a pedestrian-friendly town. Pedestrian paranoid is perhaps a better phrase. How else can one describe drivers who panic and arrest all forward motion upon seeing a pedestrian on a sidewalk, near a crosswalk, mowing their lawns, checking their mailboxes, sitting on the front porch or merely gazing at the scenery from behind closed windows?

It's gotta be the liberals. Because it seems to be the republican types who nearly always run you down.

That's where the conspiracy comes in. Listen to me boys and girls, it's an ugly one.

Seems northern Idahoans don't see the joke behind bumper stickers that read "Welcome to Idaho! Now go home!" because they take them seriously at their word. Not only do they want these tranquility-craving, taxpaying and leech-like Californians to leave, they want the rest of us nonnatives out, too. So left and right wings of the northern bent are conspiring against us to reduce us to the

Pas d'andouilles ici

greatest amount of pedestrian molecules they possibly can.

Weigh the evidence: First the city of Moscow comes up with a traffic flow plan that replaces straight as an arrow shots through town into serpentine formations that rival the goat tracks that pass for roads in France. Semi-trucks twist and careen down city streets as they run frightened from the smaller autos hugging their rear tires. Mr. Deakin and Mr. Main Street patrol their streets with reckless abandon, just watching for any twin-footed upstart to act a little uppity. Then, sprouting like cheerful yellow dandelions, signs depict a confident, purposeful pedestrian calmly crossing the street while cars await clear passage instill a lulling sense of confidence in we, the foreign elements.

Drivers, secretly trained in courtesy and safe driving techniques by Latah County Sheriff Paul Overtstreet in a secret underground training facility buried in the hill under the Wal-Mart parking lot, continue to lull us into a false sense of security by waiting patiently, sometimes ingratiatingly for minutes on end for pedestrians to cross streets; waiting so patiently and so ingratiatingly at times the average pedestrian feels compelled to cross streets he or she never wanted to cross just because they feel so guilty the driver waited so long for them and demonstrated so much concern for public safety.

But watch out—now the trap is sprung. Unleashed in legions from a storage facility that must be somewhere on the Troy highway, demonic drivers prowl the streets, most of them wearing cowboy hats or driving vehicles that can be heard on other planets, waiting—no, hoping; indeed, drooling—for an occasion to at minimum scare or at maximum atomize those pedestrians who were successfully indoctrinated into the entire

It's all going to the cats & dogs

In the ever more confusing matrix of pop-psychology and sexual understanding I offer the definitive psycho-pseudo-intellectual explanation. Amaze your friends and relatives with these simplistic analogies in response to their pointed inquires about what extraordinary bits of knowledge you garnered in college.

When mom and dad, or any interested acquaintances ask what you have learned in college, look them in the eye knowingly and say, "Men are like dogs and women are like cats."

To fully explore this thesis let us break the analogy into simpler parts, we shall call them A and B. (Don't worry, there will be no calculus or quiz later). Exhibit A will represent the cat and exhibit B will take the place of the dog.

A) Cats: These sleek feline creatures slink around with an attitude that displays independence in every concievable way.

They come to a human companion when it suits their needs. Felines are known to disappear for days, even weeks on end without explanation. When they come back they will do so without remorse.

Dennis Sasse

Even around the house a cat will only come to "its master" when it feels the need to receive affection. A person has to wonder who is in charge, the walking mouse trap or the bipedal food source.

Humans have always revered cats. The ancient Egyptians honored cats, had feline gods and even built the Sphinx.

Humans have a variety of expressions that personify feline characteristics. Virtually all of them are complimentary. Thieves that act by stealth and cunning are known as cat burglars. Those rare individuals who are quick, agile and fluid in motion are said to have cat-like reflexes.

When a person is exceedingly happy they are purring with ecstacy. And last but certainly not least cat fight refers to the antics of a pair of brawling women—I include this because women are far more brutal than men when they fight. It is amazing, even the blood curdling shrieks emitted by cats are far more intimidating than the guttural growls that are gnarled by canids.

Cats are well groomed, they worry about how they look. Watch a cat for a while. When it is not sleeping in a sunny spot it will be grooming itself, making sure it looks good, just in case anyone is watching.

Cats are finicky, they are concerned about what they eat, and even what they put in their mouths.

Cats have a propensity to purr when rubbed the right way. They are born killers when chaffed. They have all the tools to render an opponent helpless, teeth, claws, attitude and hairballs from hell.

Cats are cutesy, they play with emotions like big fluffy balls of yarn, leaving them strewn about in a mass of useless knots—oops that was a reference to some women I have

Letters to the Editor

Sasse is a 'dumb ass'

I am writing in response to your editorial on April 2. Unlike "The Unificer," I have no problem identifying myself. I feel your letter is extremely unfair to militias. You seem to be lumping militias in with "neo-nazis" (By the way, dumb ass, Nazi is capitalized. I guess the Argonaut doesn't have a proofreader) and "hate groups members." The militia movement does not promote Nazism or racial hatred.

In reference to the Unificer, I do not think the media is dominated by Jews. Rather, I feel it is dominated by left-wing liberals like yourself. Your editorial feeds the anti-militia frenzy so popular in the media.

In the same issue I read of the United Nations visit to UI. The United Nations is the real problem. I see this excuse for a college is having a symposium on the United Nations next week. I plan to protest on campus. The militias are in existence to defend America from the United Nations plans for a New World Order. They also defend our Constitution, the same one that gives morons like yourself the right to print your ignorant viewpoints.

I am a communications major at Washington State University. I hope you are not a comm. major; if so, you reflect poorly on the UI journalism department.

Minnick's the man

Walt Minnick is a respected and successful Boise businessman who is now running for the United States Senate.

He grew up on a farm, served in the Army, and then helped create thousands of jobs in the woods products industry.

He's not all that well known in northern Idaho, but that's changing. Walt and Cecil Andrus will both be holding an open house (not a fund raiser) on Saturday morning, April 13 at the Moscow Youth Center on East D Street, near the junior high. This event runs from 8-10 a.m. This will be a great chance to meet Walt and hear what he has to say. He has some especially thoughtful ideas on how to create jobs while still protecting the land.

Dear Johanna Smith:

Your writing in the April 5 Argonaut issue was truly inspiring. Like you I never could figure out what was so fan about being so intoxicated that you can no longer walk. I follow this philosophy: Business comes before pleasure, so that way pleasure becomes more rewarding.

This is one of my favorite quotes. I've included it for you.

Pedestrian Safe Snare. Their goal? To flatten any pedestrian not native to northern Idaho, most often discerned from others by their still cheerful and. amazed smiles as they cross streets without Vegas and Nissans nipping at their heels.

But why wait until April to spring the trap? Well, the university and town merchants have to get our money out of us first. Wait until those withdrawal from school without penalty deadlines pass. Wait until spring fever has compelled students to freak out and buy anything not actually a fixture or permanent feature of every store in Moscow. Wait until all those. anti bear-baiting petitions are signed.

Consider yourselves warned, fellow non-north-Idahoans. But now that I've spilled the beans, so to speak, who knows what the future holds. The Moscow Pentamerate is pretty ruthless. I fear for my life, and not because I have ASUI senators baying at my window at night while I cower under the covers trying to block out the country music my roommate occasionally listens to on the radio through to the wee hours of the morning. As they say on the Internet, be sure to read this column and spread the word, because I don't know how long THEY will let me live befo.

known-my apologies to cats everywhere.

B) Dogs are not really that bright compared to cats. They lope around the house slobbering all over everything and waiting for the next meal to be served.

Dogs have little motivation. Expressions like the dog days of summer express how we humans feel about our pets.

Lazy as a dog and lie like a big dog, pants like a dog and the ever present dating expression, she's a dog are derogatory at best.

Dogs do not seem to be terribly concerned with grooming. They muddle through life not knowing or caring that their coats are matted, caked with mud and smell

Dogs want to please their masters, they don't always know how though. They live to please. A vast majority of dogs have no ego to speak of-they are willing to do anything to satisfy the master, as long as satisfaction is returned immediately. Of course, rottweilers and dachshunds have their own little personality disorders and could prove this point invalid.

A dog is always glad to see its master, no matter how poorly it has been treated it will return to its master.

Men get a bad rap-dog-gone-it.

Weigel finds new home with Vandals

Mike Stetson

Being a college coach, is one of the most taxing jobs around. The pressure to win coupled with the realization that your athletes are just students and need to grow both academically and athletically proves immense.

"It's something I said I'd never do," new Women's Track and Field Coach Carla Weigel said about coaching.

Despite her own early reservations regarding coaching, Weigel, 29, has followed the coaching career path to Moscow, Idaho, where she begins her first stint as a Division I head coach.

Weigel's comes to the Vandals after one season at Wisconsin Stout, a Division III school where she led the women's track and field team and the male jumpers. Prior to her role in Wisconsin, she served five and a half years with Tulane Universities track and field program as an assistant coach.

Tulane created the turning point in Weigel's life which eventually led her into coaching and on the road to Idaho. As a recent graduate of Tulane with a bachelor's in Physical Education, Weigel looked ready to begin a career as an athletic trainer. She had serve as a trainer for the Tulane football and baseball teams during her time in college, fulfilling the 1800 hours of student trainer service required to take the National Athletic Trainer Association exam.

But Weigel still held several other options besides becoming an athletic trainer. She had played basketball on scholarship for Tulane and a year of volleyball prior to her graduation. Her time on the hardwood court created her second opportunity, a try-out for the Women's National Team-Handball team, which Weigel was selected for.

The offer which Weigel finally accepted, as the assistant coach for Tulane's track and field teams, turned out to be the career path which has led her to Idaho. Having competed in track and field for four years as a heptathlete, Weigel had proved her versatility and knowledge of track and field.

"I wanted to stay around athletes so I took the Tulane job. I loved it and stayed with it," Weigel said.

While the road to Idaho for Weigel turned out to be a wild ride, she admits the opportunity to lead the Vandal women provided an opportunity for her she did not want to miss.

"I always had aspirations of being a Division I head coach," Weigel said. "I missed the Division I level of competition. I thought I had a shot at the job, it was a dream come true to get the job."

Of course, taking over the Vandal program during the academic year has created some minor problems for Weigel to overcome. First was the difficulty Weigel felt in leaving her team in Wisconsin without a coach prior to the outdoor season.

Next, Weigel sees the need for several changes in the team's routine. However, wanting to avoid disturbing the team's balance and concentration, Weigel has been forced to wait out the outdoor season before moving ahead with her own plans.

"There are a lot of changes to be made, but at a later time," Weigel said.

Coming in at the beginning of the outdoor season, Weigel has found her hands tied in many aspects this spring. With seven of her veteran athletes sideline prior to her arrival, Weigel has been forced to make the best of her first experience at Idaho. However, Weigel believes the eventual benefit from this seasons team will show next year.

"The team that is competing now will be all that stronger next year. Some kids are getting experience they wouldn't have gotten," Weigel said.

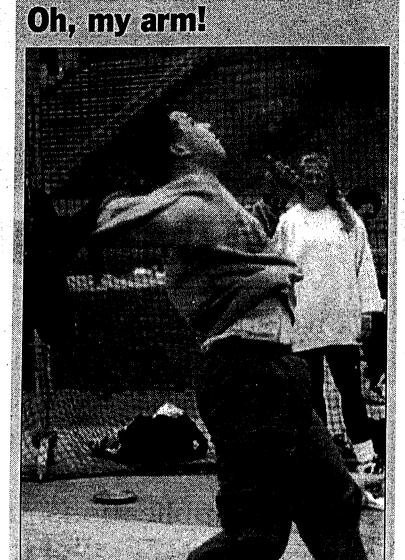

Weigel brings to Idaho a coaching philosophy centered on cooperation. She believes that both the coach and athlete should have a part in decisions and provide feedback on performances.

"I don't believe I should be the great knower. I want to know what they think about their workout," Weigel said, adding that the athlete knows their body better than the coach does.

Despite being the new coach on the block, Weigel has fit into the Vandal athletic department nicely. Men's coach Mike Keller has proven a valuable asset for Weigel, in recruiting and getting to know Idaho. Athletic Director Pete Liske, currently is working with Weigel to find a new distance coach for the women's team, has also been very positive.

"This is the easiest place I've moved to," Weigel said.

Weigel continues to look ahead to the coming years when she will be able to put her own style on the Vandal women's team. She acknowledges that a lot of recruiting remains to be done for the coming season or two, but states, "we'll surprise some people a couple of years down the line."

Jill Wimer watches, while preparing to show her new coach why she is one of the top throwers in the Big Sky.

Idaho men finish second

Mark Vanderwall

Staff

With the Masters getting underway this weekend, the University of Idaho men's golf team made a legitimate bid for a green jacket of its own, as it placed second out of a field of 18 at the Grand Canyon Invitational.

J.T. Jones led the Vandal barrage, firing a tournament low 67 in the final round and nothching a tie for runner-up honors with a two under 214 for the tournament. Jones finished two shots out of the lead behind medalist Jon Morgan from Utah University, who shot four under for the tourney.

Along with Jones, Jason Stephenson and Neil Schnider finished in the top 20 placing 13th and 15th respectively. John Twining and Jason Hicks rounded out the Vandal scoring at 35th and 42nd with only one shot seperating them. Stephenson shot +5 for the tourney, while Schnider finished +7 with Twining and Hicks shooting +14 and +15 respectively for Idaho.

The team score of 284 for the second round may very well be the best ever in school history. The 284 was proceeded by a 305 on opening day followed by another spectacular round of 290 to finish out the three day event.

Three Idaho seniors finished out their perspective careers as Vandals in fine fashion, with Jones, Twining and Hicks being lost to graduation. "They finally got rewarded for the hard work they have put in through the years," said Idaho men's coach Dan Koesters. "Everyone did what they had to do this weekend, and all of them contributed. It was a great way for our seniors to finish their careers here at Idaho."

Idaho took the three seniors along with two freshman to the tournament, so a strong nucleus of talent returns, as Idaho also gets the services of two transfers from Idaho State next season. The Vandals have been plagued all season with some poor showings, but some of that can be attributed to their quality tournament schedule.

"Everyone clicked at the same time for us, and it was really nice to finally play up to our potential," said Koesters. "You come to a bump in the road and you either get over it, or you fall on your butt, and we finally got over that bump."

The Vandals have been looking to get over the hump for quite some time, and a second place finish in its final tournament leaves a great taste in the mouths for next season.

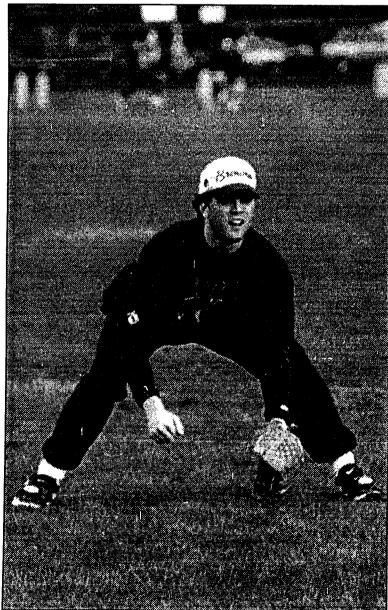

"It's been frustrating for me and the guys both, but we finally came together as a team and did what we have wanted to do all year," said Koesters.

Idaho now begins the quest to fill next seasons roster with the losses of the three seniors, as well as beginning preparation for the move to the Big West. Koesters sees the competition to be of higher quality in the Big West, and sees Idaho's tournament schedule being bolstered in the process.

"We will be in a tougher conference next season, but I'm very happy with the way we left the Big Sky, not to mention the effort these guys have given the last four years," said Koesters.

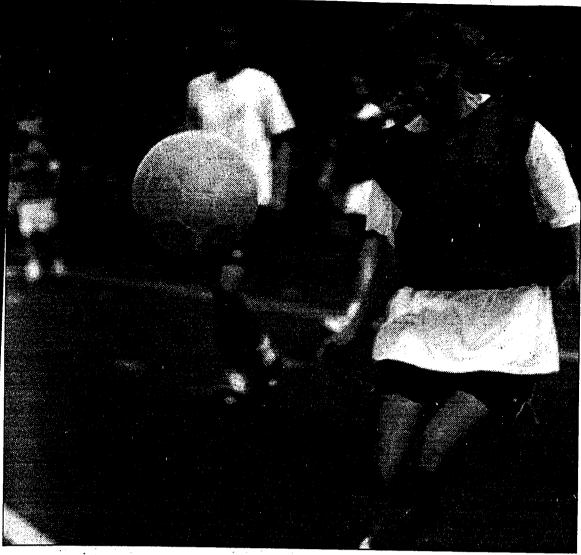

Idaho now focuses its attention once again on next season, where new surroundings and hopefully one more tournament, should hold plenty of surprises for the Vandals, possibly many more like the ones from last weekend.

"I wish we could have played like this all year, but to finish the season like we did, I couldn't be any happier for the players," said Koesters.

The following is the third in a series of weekly intramural features. This game was chosen ran-domly as will all featured games in the coming weeks.

Time of possession is a big key in football. It's a big key in futbol (soccer) as well.

Rick's, Chicks and Kicks controlled the tempo and ball at will en route to a 2-0 triumph over the Tequila Shooters in co-rec intramural soccer action Wednesday

Rick's, Chicks and Kicks dominated the midfield play and left little room for an offensive assualt by the Tequila Shooters. RCK won most free balls and appeared to be quicker than their counterparts throughout the contest.

RCK (2-0) took the lead with just over a minute to go in the first half. Senior defenseman Scott Peterson dribbled right through the middle of the Shooters defense and fired for his first goal of the season.

"Andy (Hoobing) pulled out to the wing and drew his guy over," Peterson said. "Their was a huge gap and I went right down the middle. It was basically a 1-on-1 with the keeper."

Sophomore forward Rob Ryan tacked on the insurance goal for Rick's, Chicks and Kicks at the 5:00 mark of half two. Jason Moore provided the assist.

Tequila Shooters' goalie Chad Jackson was one of the few highlights for his club. The freshman totaled 14 saves in the game.

RCK's ability to control the ball was the difference in the game as the Tequila Shooters (1-1) managed just two shots on goal in the entire game. Moore and Peterson along with freshman midfielder Lisa Rindt keyed the defensive effort for RCK.

"I thought our defense was huge. We always had a couple people back and we always had the advantage," Peterson said. "It's nice to have people that know how to play the game and spread the field. You don't have to do everything your-

Syson in sexual trouble again

Associated press

CHICAGO-A woman who accused Mike Tyson of sexually assaulting her said the boxer bit her on the face while kissing her at a nightclub, her friend said

But Tammie Batty, who works with the woman and brought her to the nightclub Sunday night, said she didn't see anything happen and doesn't believe her friend's story.

"I don't believe it happened,"
Batty said at a news conference outside the nightclub that was set up by the club's owners. "You don't mess with anybody's reputation like that."

Tyson, who has not been charged, is on probation for his 1992 rape conviction. Police said they are investigating the woman's complaint.

Batty said her co-worker at a beauty parlor in Merrillville, Indiana told her after leaving the club that Tyson had bitten her face while kissing her and had touched

The woman's attorney refused to describe what happened Sunday night in a private room at The Clique, a frequent stomping ground for professional sports players.

"She is distraught. She is angry and disturbed," said attorney Charles Graddick. He said the woman was treated at a Chicagoarea hospital early Monday and called police shortly after her Batty said she knew nothing about a hospital visit, and that she drove the woman home herself in her pickup truck.

The attorney didn't say just where or when the woman visited

An owner of the club, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he didn't believe anything happened because the club had assigned security to Tyson.

ed to come up and talk with Mr. Tyson. ... He said, 'OK, come up," the man said.

- Graddick said the woman tried to report what happened with Tyson to people at the club and was rebuffed. The owner denied that.

"She was one of the last people to leave," he said. "She never said anything.

What's up with that? We had police walking around, security walking around and she has nothing to say and all of a sudden the complaint comes up. That's not very good credibility.

Tyson was convicted in 1992 of raping Desiree Washington, a Coventry, R.I., college student who had been competing in the Miss Black America pageant in Indianapolis.

Tyson was released from prison in March 1995 after serving three years of a six-year sentence. He is now on a four-year probationary

The boxer also was accused of sexually assaulting a publicist for then-wife actress Robin Givens. Phyliss Polaner sued Tyson, accusing him of sexually assaulting her, beating her and threatening to kill her at different times in 1988.

A settlement was reached just before the lawsuit was to go to trial last September. Terms were not released.

Tyson's police record dates to 1978, when as a 12-year-old, he was picked up for purse snatching. He discovered boxing in reform

In 1986, at 20, Tyson became the youngest heavyweight champion ever but lost his title as undisputed heavyweight champion to Buster Douglas in 1990.

Tyson regained the World Boxing Council heavyweight title last month with a third-round knockout of Frank Bruno.

Pro athletes are finding referees to be costly

Damon Barkdull

Isn't it ironic, don't you think, that kids look up to professional athletes as role models, yet probably have a higher maturity level than the ball playing bables.

Point of example, Los Angeles Laker all-star Nick Van Exel, who was recently fined by the NBA for giving referee Ron Garretson a fore arm shiver in Tuesday nights game against the Denver Nuggets.

Van Exel was suspended for seven games and given a $25,000 fine.

A mere slap on the wrist. To Van Exel, $25,000 is pocket change and he'll still get a chance to compete in the playoffs. Although, the Lakers had to make Van Exel apologize in a Thursday press conference in order for the Laker guard to be able to play in the post season. How

This isn't the only spoiled brat who's found a way to make professional sports a clinic on how not to act in the heat of competition.

Chicago Bull's freakoid Dennis "the worm" Rodman was also recently hit with a six day suspension and $20,000 fine after headbutting referee Ted Bernhardt.

And the list goes on. Michael Irvin, Bam Morris and Mike Tyson are finding ways to splash their mugs on the cover of every sports newspaper and magazine in America. And no, not because they're in the good graces of God.

What were these guys thinking? Geez, I just signed a $500 billion dollar contract - maybe I'll go out, buy some drugs, buy a hooker and go home and beat up my girlfriend (generalization). You'd think that with that much money they wouldn't have to resort to drugs or even deal them. Even as a Cowboys fan, it made me sick when Irvin was found in a room with two hookers and a smorgasbord of narcotics and then asked the cops if he could tell them who he was like that was a free ticket past the go directly to jail card in Monopoly. This is just one of those wonderful trends in American athletics. And don't expect it to stop. Why? Professional league commissioners are lacking the brass balls it takes to kick these guys out of the game and fining these guys a million dollars instead of $20,000.

Back in the good old days, when athletes got nasty, the league got nastier. ESPN's Keith Olberman found a great example. In 1945, catcher Charlie "Greek" George of the Philadelphia A's disagreed with a call by home plate umpire Joe Rue and socked Rue in the jaw. Did the league tell George that it wasn't right to hit an umpire and give him a ix day leave of absence. Nope, he was banned from baseball, somehing that should be done with oday's overpaid jerks.

Instead, athletes will continue to bully referees, continue to buy drugs and get caught and continue to give kids a bad example of a role model. Like I said before, this is a recent trend and you can still set apart the good role models from the bad.

After the Van Exel incident, one of those good role models I'm speaking of, Magic Johnson, had this to say after the game in an interview. "I've seen more of this in one year in this league than in my other 12 years combined with all my other Laker teams," Johnson said. "Maybe I shouldn't have come back."

Class acts like Larry Bird, Sugar Ray Leonard and Walter Payton are diminishing in professional sports. While they disappear, guys like Albert Belle of the Cleveland Indians and Iron Mike keep reappearing.

Now, kids wishing to play a pro sport when they're older might imitate their favorite pro ball player. The scenario is, a little leaguer might be more likely to punch an opponent after a game, rather than shaking his hand. Though, you can't blame him, that's what they're seeing on television.

And so, my 10-year old brother sits at home with his Irvin poster hanging proudly from his wall. Please remind me to rip it down whether it's the clothes you wear, the furniture you sit in or the carpet on which you walk textiles, and fabric in particular, touch you from the time you are born to the time you die, from the time you wake up in the morning to the time you go to sleep at night.

Some of those fabrics that keep you warm at night are made into colorful quilts.

Quilting is a tradition dating back several hundred years. Our great grandmothers and their great grandmothers pieced together scraps of cloth to make blankets that would keep their families warm. While these blankets were both useful and beautiful, they also told important stories. Interlocking circles symbolized marriages, repeating rows might represent fields and floral patterns kept in mind the promise of spring.

Moscow's own quilting group, the Palouse Patchers, has used the theme of "54-40 or Fight" in their annual raffle quilt. Twenty five to 30 guild members have spent an estimated 500 hours on the quilt and the time and effort certainly show in its beauty and quality. The quilt is queen sized and made up of geometric blue and gray patterns that would look pretty on any bed, but looks so much like a work of art that one might prefer to hang it on the wall.

The 54-40 quilt is just part of the Palouse Patcher's 16th annual quilt show which begins tomorrow at the Latah County Fairgrounds in the 4-H building. The theme for this year's show is "Defending Our Borders," reflecting the his-torical significance of early American land conflicts and the use of colorful borders in quilts. The show opens Saturday at 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. On Sunday the hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Free refreshments including cookies, coffee and punch will be offered.

Admission is $2 for adults and $1

This show is very popular and draws 1,300 to 1,400 visitors each year from all over the Pacific Northwest. There will be over 200 quilts on display this year, all made by a variety of individuals.

Janet Martin, publicist for the group, says that quilting is relaxing, and that "each individual quilter makes their own unique creation." There will also be demonstrations of quilting techniques. Also featured at the show is the merchants' mall which will represent about a dozen merchants who deal in fabric and notions.

Martin said next year's raffle quilt will be the best ever. It will be a Pennsylvania Dutch style with intricate pattern and appliqué.

Martin said many women's groups are declining in numbers, but the opposite is true of Palouse Patchers, whose numbers continue to grow. Palouse Patchers was founded in 1976 as a small group of quilters and has grown to almost 200 members. The group is non-profit and all proceeds are used for community projects such as fairground improvements and the purchase of fiber arts publications for the county library and historical society.

The group is open to anyone interested in quilting and has members from all age groups and walks of life. "There's lots of volunteerism, even among those who are employed full time. Whenever something needs to be done a hand goes up and someone volunteers to do it," Martin said, adding "These people are the salt of the earth." (Indeed they are, and are among the most wonderful people I have ever had the pleasure to work with). There are no dues required to join the quilters and meetings are held every first Tuesday except in the summer.

Raffle tickets for the 54-40 quilt are $1 and are available from guild members or may be purchased at the door.

Playing Truth or Dare, making prank phone calls and giggling while loud music booms from the stereo are part of the nostalgia in our days of slumber parties. But what many may not know while they were putting their friend's bra in the freezer, is that they were engaging in an expressive behavior of folklore.

"What we are talking about is a performance of great energy and artistic expression," Melynda Huskey said. "We don't always know where we learn it, but we perform folklore in our everyday

Huskey, Director of Independent Study in Idaho and adjunct professor of English at UI, gave an overview of folklore and her own studies at the Women's Center noon program last Tuesday. According to the B.C. Folklore Society, folklore began as a study of antiquities as an offshoot of anthropology but what many are unaware of is the fact that a great deal of it relates to our daily life.

"Folklore is not just old stuff," Huskey said. "It's about human expressive culture, it is common to all people." Even though there seems to be a belief that folklore is only for scholars or has something to do with ancient mythology and legends, Huskey asserts that folklore is as pervasive as the air we

International Week coming to campus next week

Valaree Johnson

There is a little bit of culture guaranteed to educate and entertain a wide. range of interests as International Week '96 and other international events take place next week.

"It's an opportunity for the campus and community to come together to share customs and cultures in a relaxed atmosphere," International Student Adviser Sheila Schulte said.

Welcome yourself to sign one of the "Hello My Name Is" signs around to pay tribute to the diversity of our campus. The posters, designed by graphic art student Anna Bell, were chosen by the Borah Foundation and IPO because of the way they represent the student participation and "sense of real interaction," Schulte said. This real interaction is what International

"The UN Under Fire" is the theme for this year's Borah Symposium sponsored by the Borah Outlawry of War Foundation. Because the UN is currently under re-organization, the event is intended to educate people about the UN and provide a forum for discussion of its integrities. "We want people to understand what the UN is and what it isn't—what it can and cannot do," said Donna Hansen, Chair of the Borah Foundation.

Kicking off the Symposium Monday, 7-9:30 p.m. in the Administration Auditorium, Dr. John Dean from the Union of Concerned Scientists and Dr. Francesc Vendrell, Director of Political Affairs for the United Nations will answer questions and debate the strengths and weaknesses of the UN as well as describe their political activities and peacekeeping responsibili-

Tuesday: Corrine Henke will talk about the structure of the UN and Irina Kushnir will discuss her own culture and country of Post-Cold War Russia and the economic survival of her people at the Women's Center, 12:30 p.m. That evening in the Administration Auditorium, 7-9:30 p.m. the symposium continues as Dr. Charles Riemenschneider from the FAO Liaison Office and Dr. Douglas Coutts from the World Food Bank Program will speak of dealing with famine and the role of food security in relation to peacekeeping activities.

Wednesday: Dr. Scott Rozelle from Standford University will talk about the impacts as China's economy grows and discuss the question "Who Will Feed 1.2 billion Prospering Chinese?" The program is at 12:30 p.m. in the Agricultural Science Auditorium.

Thursday: Theogene Mbabatiye will give a personal perspective of the ethnic conflict in Rwanda from 12:30-1:30 p.m. at the 4th Floor University Library Conference Room.

Friday: The highlight of the week is a celebration of intercultural diversity taking place in the Student Union Ballroom from 5-10 p.m. The International Bazaar will feature a variety of internationat foods, crafts and entertainment bringing together the many facets of our community, including our own Greek philanthropy traditions at UI. Admission is free but bring some cash to treat your palate to some foreign cuisine or buy an item from another country.

"This is really a big, fun event that everyone can enjoy," said Corrine Henke, Chair of the International Bazaar. "I want to emphasize also that United States is part of the international scene. We live in a global community, international doesn't just mean foreign."

Other international events include the monthly IWA meeting tomorrow at 2 p.m. hosted by Joanna Strobel. Four women from Latin America will present "A Salvadoran Afternoon." For more information contact Anjuln Sunday, St. Augustine's Catholic Church welcomes all to attend an International Mass at Il a.m. Everyone is invited, regardless of faith. A finger food sharing will follow.

'Top Girls' going to D.C.

Erik Marone

When your college theater production is recognized by the American College Theater Festival as one of the top seven productions in the nation, you have reason to be excited. When your production is selected to perform at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, you have reason to be proud.

The UI Theater Arts Department has reason to be both excited and proud as their production of Top Girls travels to Washington, D.C., later this

The crew and performers of 24 faculty and students leave this weekend to spend next week performing with acting companies from colleges as diverse as USC at Los Angeles and Sinclair Community College in Dayton,

"We are excited and honored to receive this national recognition," acting UI Theater Arts Chairman Charles Ney said in the Idaho Register. "It is amazing how many parents and friends are planning to come celebrate our achievement with us at the Kennedy Center."

Before they were selected to perform at the Kennedy Center, they competed at the KC/ACTF regional competition in Latamie, Wyo., in February

Overall, the ACTF placed Top Girls in the top seven out of 900 entries nationwide. UI company members Ney (direction), Dean Panttaja (lighting design), Nicci Stevens (costume design), Wanarat Jayaphorn, Holly Ann Marsh and Kelly Quinnett (performance) were recognized by the KC/ACTF for artistic achievement.

Stevens will represent the UI as she competes against seven other costume designers for the second year. Stevens won the costume design competition last

The competition includes a day-long critique where Stevens will present her designs, and research as well as discuss her collaborative work. Stevens will receive a MFA in costume design this May.

Written by Caryl Churchill, Top Girls was first performed in 1982. Act I features a symbolic luncheon with some notable women, hosted by Marlene, the manager of a London employment agency. The luncheon guests reappear later in the performance as other characters.

Churchill wrote the play to acknowledge the achievements women have made by contrasting them against the actions and decision made by Marlene, who has achieved success by paying a price. She hopes the audience will question the means used to reach an end.

There will be a special sendoff performance of Top Girls at the Hartung Theater tonight at 8 p.m. Season ticket holders will receive free tickets. Regular admission is $5 for students, $8 for adults and $7 for senior citizens. For additional information call the Hartung box office at

Symphony presents final show

Justin Cason

The Washington Idaho Symphony will offer their sixth and final concert of the 1995-96 season on April 14 and 15. The show, entitled "Serenade to Music," will feature a choir performance of the same name, Rimsky-Korsakov's Russian Easter Overture and Brahm's Symphony No. 4.

The choir performance of Serenade to Music will couple the Symphony Chorale with the Pullman High School Concert Choir. Though the younger group has been practicing mostly on their own, the past few weeks have been spent with the symphony proessionals.

This three-part evening will cap what has been an excellent year for the symphony.

"It's been a really good season," said Jenifer Kooiman, general manager for the Washington Idaho Symphony. "It's partly because of the music we've been playing. We've noticed a lot more young people."

Sunday and Monday's concerts should prove to be no different than the previous ones, Kooiman

"We're hoping for a good turn-out, especially since the addition of the Pullman High School Choir should bring more parents," she said. The symphony's conductor, L. Keating Johnson, will also present a free lecture starting one hour before each performance begins. "I hate to use the word 'lecture," Kooiman said of the pre-show talk. "It's going to be really informal." Kooiman said the speech is meant for those who are new to symphony music and would like some information on the pieces being presented.

The April 14 show will be at Lewiston High School at 3 p.m., while the April 15 performance will take place at Pullman's Gladish Auditorium at Tickets, which are available at Ticket Express in the University of Idaho Student Union, are $10 for adults and $5 for students and children.

Huskey asked, adding that even though we may feel certain about the conditions of our mother's back, we still avoid stepping on them "just in case." That is folk-

Huskey explains that folklore can be placed in two categories. Material culture which includes the artifacts or any other tangible form of artistic expression and the verbal culture which includes anything you could possibly tell. Jokes, riddles, proverbs, personal narratives, courtship narratives and the games we play are all part of folklore. The beliefs and saying that are passed around about what we know is all folklore.

Huskey became interested in folklore as a graduate student at Ohio State University where she had "lightly touched in some anthropology." While living in the dorms she noticed that a large portion of breakfast conversation were about the dreams that people had. Huskey carried a tape recorder with her and began making record of these "dream narra-

When she later asked people to re-tell their dreams they would embellish them. "The more I would catch them telling their dreams, the more I noticed they were becoming like fairy tales," Huskey said. She also said dreams are an acceptable way for an adult to express the mysterious and take part in storytelling without getting funny looks.

Huskey pursued her studies further with her fascination with people who are able to "speak in tongues" and also some work with the Society for Creative Anachronisms in North Carolina.

The roots of folklore may be several hundreds of years old but the meanings and stories continue to evolve into our everyday lives. The next time you play ringaround-the-rosie or spill the salt

ACCORDING TO MATT: SchoolHouse Rock with mixed reviews

Matt West
Contributing Writer

School House Rock Rocks makes a mockery of the original Saturday morning cartoon songs.

Perhaps my bitterness stems from the fact that I can't remember this educational series very well. Or maybe it's because Blind Melon performs the third track "Three Is A Magic Number." shrug Remember that annoying girl dressed up in that obnoxious bumble-bee suit—yeah, that's the band.

Nonetheless, these not necessarily popular, but classic songs have been butchered by overrated alternative/rap bands.

Some may argue that they actually liked such songs as "I'm Just A Bill," "Conjunction, Junction," "Electricity, Electricity," and "Verb: That's What's Happening." OK, fine, but you won't enjoy the slaughtered versions on this album.

I believe the only reason to purchase this album is to collect rare covers of your favorite bands. So that one day when you are comparing your collection to your friend's you can say: "Hey wait, you think that is cool, I got Buffalo Tom's cover of "Lolly, Lolly, Lolly, Get Your Adverbs Here."

The favorite bands, or rather the overrated alternative/rap bands that I am referring to include Blind Melon, Pavement, Ween, The Lemonheads, Biz Markie, Moby, Buffalo Tom and Goodness.

Goodness, formerly Hammerbox, was the only band I enjoyed hearing off the CD. Goodness performed "Electricity, Electricity"

Damn! Who didn't get on this CD?
Even Skee-Lo got to take a swing at "The Tale of Mr. Morton." Yeah, you heard me right, Skee-Lo, the guy that sang "I wish I was a little bit

I still can't remember if this was a show or just commercials during Saturday morning cartoons. Hmm, if School House Rock was actually commercials that interrupted my Saturday morning cartoons then my antagonism towards this CD grows stronger.

School House Rock Rocks is a weak attempt to cash in on the painful memories of today's listen-

The only reason this album has a chance of making any sales is due to this note on the back of the case: "A portion of the proceeds from the sale of this recording will go to The Children's Defense Fund." clap, clap, clap

In conclusion, it hurt me to listen to bands that I don't like sing songs that I can't remember if I did or did not like. And, to quote my roommate: "Why would someone buy this CD, exactly?"

Matt Bakdwin

It seems that ABC, Atlantic and Lava have got together to bring out an album with all the songs from School House Rock. There can never be too many television show turned album remakes and the remake of School House Rock! is probably one of the best out there. It is called School House Rock Rocks.

Included on this flamboyant lemon colored album songs such as "I'm Just A Bill," "No More Kings" and "Verb: That's What's Happening." Gathered together on the album are illustrious bands such as Pavement, Moby and Better Than Ezra.

This is a great album, both for kids and for adults. School House Rock Rocks is an album that sends a statement to both adults and children. It is a well rounded CD.

Joy for the reader: the album includes lyrics to all of your favorite songs on the album so that you can sing along. Granted, the lyrics are basic but they are permeated with an everlasting taste of learning. The best song off of the album is "The Shot Heard "Round the World" performed by Ween.

The lasting quality about the album is that you can learn from the songs—proven to be the best way to learn. It is great for kids for remembering events and different things. It's perfect for adults because of the great bands performing the songs: Goodness, Blind Melon, Chavez, The Lemonheads and others.

A portion of the proceeds earned from the sale of School House Rock Rocks will go to the Children's Defense Fund. If you are a fan of covers odd, wacky and funky then you will enjoy this album. It can be purchased at a majority of the music stores in the area, or if you want to listen to the album call KUOI's request line and ask the on-air DJ to play you a track off of the disc.
