alt Minnick considers himself an independent and a maverick.

In hopes of drumming up support for his campaign against incumbent Republican Sen. Larry Craig, the 53year-old candidate for U.S. Senate addressed a group of students and faculty yesterday in the Student Union Vandal Lounge.

"I'm getting damn tired of apologizing for Idaho," Minnick said concerning the state's reputation as the home of potatoes and Nazis. He said he would consider it part of his job as U.S. senator to dispel the state's negative image.

• The Boise businessman, who is running as a Democrat, believes in raising the minimum wage to a "living level." "Minimum wage is 38 percent lower in Congress has done a damn poor job. I'm willing to let the president do a better job.

buying power than when it was last set," he said.

He said some single mothers rely on a minimum wage job as their sole source of income.

"We're all paying a lot more than minimum wage for these people," said Minnick. He believes that if minimum wage isn't raised then taxpayers will be giving more money to welfare programs.

"We're a rich country," Minnick said. "We don't have to degrade the lower 25 percent of the country.'

Minnick believes in a "real" line-item veto for the president of the United States. "The one that just passed isn't a true line-item veto," he said. "But it's better than nothing."

He said the recently passed line-item veto isn't real because there is still room to keep special interest provisions. "A president needs to be able to weed that stuff out."

Landon Curry, associate professor of political science, asked Minnick if he thinks Congress is giving up power by passing the line-item veto.

"Congress has done a damn poor job," Minnick answered. "I'm willing to let the president to do a better job."

Minnick also believes the United States should keep their membership in the United Nations. "It's very important that we have a global perspective," he said. "It's ignorant to take a protectionist Pat Buchanan view." He said it's important to give foreign aid and cited that Craig niversity of Idaho sororities can rest easy knowing the increase of Rush numbers will O no longer be a problem thanks to Panhellenic's approval of the Greek Expansion Program.

The motion for Greek Expansion, which was approved in Tuesday's Panhellenic meeting, will bring a new sorority chapter onto the UI campus.

"This is an excellent thing to have going. The system desperately needs this expansion if the sororities want to stay residential," explained Greek Adviser Christian Wuthrich.

Representatives from each of the current UI sororities voted on the expansion. Three of the sororities abstained from voting due to uncertainty about the need for expansion. Of the remaining four sororities two voted for the expansion and two voted against it. The final vote form Panhellenic President Joyce Mansisidor broke the tie.

"Before voting, the chapter representatives consulted their officers and officers from other sororities and fraternities to decide what to do," explained Wuthrich.

Panhellenic is currently doing research around the country to find qualified applicants for the new soror-ity position. The two living groups Panhellenic has the most interest in so far are Alpha Omicron Pi and Kappa Delta. These two sororities have strong chapters on the Washington State University campus.

"We want chapters who have strong alumni support in the Moscow area and who already have other strong chapters nearby to back them up. For Alpha Omicron Pi and Kappa Delta developing new chapter houses in Moscow is a natural leap," Wuthrich said.

There are no limitations on how many chapters will be considered for the position, but Wuthrich made it clear no chapter will be invited to try unless they have a realistic chance of being chosen for the position.

Minnick calls for investigation into BLM appointment

BOISE—Democratic Senate challenger Walt Minnick today called for a Justice Department investigation into allegations that the staff of Republican Sen. Larry Craig illegally interfered in a Bureau of Land Management appointment.

Craig campaign manager Mike Reynoldson discounted the charge as politically motivated and said there was no violation of federal laws in the handling of the selection of a BLM administrator for eastern Idaho.

Minnick said he would formally ask for the federal inquiry into allegations raised last week that Craig aide Norman Arsenault told state BLM state Director Martha Hahn to rescind her decision to hire Sherry Sita. Amendments to the Hatch Act that Craig voted for in 1993 bar oral or written recommendations from congressional employees on such personnel decisions.

Hahn said she refused to submit to the pressure, but then Sita withdrew to remain as a department budget analyst in Washington because she said she did not want to start work in Idaho on bad terms with the congressional delegation.

BOISE-Gov. Phil Batt on Wednesday ordered the Board of Correction to take all steps necessary to assure that the chain of command in the system operates properly and key documents are safeguarded.

The governor's directive came as he released the 1,000-page investigative report into the circumstances surrounding former prison guard John Pribble's sexual abuse of female inmates during 1993 and 1994. Pribble worked at the reception and diagnostic unit of the prison complex read south of Boise. Batt said he didn't want that sort of incident to happen again. Pribble admitted the crimes and is serving up to 10 years in prison. The state has also paid over $750,000 to settle damage claims filed by the women inmates, some of whom claimed they were raped.

At a news conference, Batt and Attorney General Alan Lance said there is no basis for additional criminal charges in the case.

Later Correction Director James Spalding said he has taken steps to resolve the problems, including a guideline that a report of any serious incident must be on his desk within 24 hours. Incident reports also are being sent to the Board of Corrections within a week.

Buchanan calls third-party presidential run unrealistic

WASHINGTON—Republican rebel Pat Buchanan all but ruled out a third-party run for the presidency Wednesday, calling his chances as an independent candidate increasingly unrealistic as November's election nears.

The conservative commentator, who conceded the GOP nomination to Sen. Bob Dole last month, also told reporters that he will nominally remain in the Republican race despite a decision to cancel two weeks of planned campaigning in Pennsylvania, the next state to hold a primary.

His campaign is now about pushing issues, Buchanan said.

Though dominated by discussion of his political future, Buchanan's appearance was meant to announce his push to deny trade preferences to China-part one of a new drive to be a Republican player on key election-year issues.

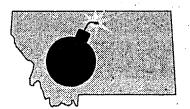

Buchanan also planned to push Republicans on adopting "Americafirst" trade and defense policies, rolling back legal immigration, ending affirmative action and banning abortion.

The Dole campaign took Buchanan's remarks as a sign he would lighten up attacks on Dole. -Associated Press vent other "horrifying" crimes. Jon Venables and Robert Thompson were just 10 years old when they lured 2-year-old James Bulger from a Liverpool shopping mall on Feb. 12, 1993, and left his battered body on a railway track.

The trial judge recommended that the boys be held for at least eight years. The country's chief justice subsequently recommended 10 years. But Home Secretary Michael Howard ruled in July 1994 that the boys should serve 15 years.

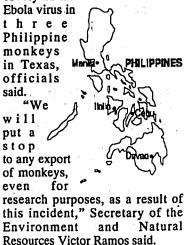

The boys-now aged 13-accept responsibility for their "horrifying crime," said Edward Fitzgerald, lawyer for Jon Venables. But he said Howard was wrong to order 15-year terms on grounds this would be a deterrent.

But the toddler's mother said the sentences must not be cut.

Ramos said the government review export procedures for monkeys before permitting a resumption.

Currently, Philippine monkeys are only tested before export for tuberculosis, which Philippine officials claim is the only disease known to be transmitted from monkeys to humans. They are also quarantined for 45 days and then inspected for general healthiness before government export licenses are granted.

The Philippines exports an average of 2,000 monkeys a year to Europe, Japan and the United States, mostly for biological and medical research, Atienza said.

Currently, the Philippines has only one facility capable of detecting Ebola or similar viruses, the Institute for Tropical Medicine in Alabang south of Manila. Testing is done there only if monkey importers request it.

Advertising team ready to defend district title

Tammy L. Mills Staff

After countless hours and many sleepless nights, the University of Idaho Advertising Team from the School of Communication is prepared to leave their competition in the dust.

All semester, the team has worked hard on their advertising program for the American Red Cross, appropriately titled "Volunteer Your Time," that will take them to Yakima, Wash., April 25 through April 28, for the regional advertising competition.

The team which calls itself "Paradise Creek Advertising," will be competing against nine other colleges at the National Students Advertising Competition. Paradise Creek unanimously feels the biggest competitors will be the University of Montana and the University of Oregon.

Paradise Creek Adviser Mark Secrist said, "Winners could come out of anywhere."

The team is ready to defend their district title and is looking ahead to nationals where Idaho took second out of over 130 schools last year.

Ad competition is a way for students to get recognized, as agencies across the country will be sending representives to scope out the new talent. Co-Account Executive Katie Fuess said asking advertisers to come and be recruiters is a new thing regionals is doing this year.

Fuess said, "They are using our district as an experiment it gives us a chance to interview with people who are looking to hire."

Secrist estimates around 200 professionals and about the same number of students will be attending the competition.

Regarding the work put into the ad competition Fuess said, "It is definitely a team effort." Fuess and Shane Vaughn are the teams co-account executives. Aside from being presenters for the team, Fuess said what she and Vaughn were in charge of was organizational, administrative and paperwork.

Vaughn summed up his feelings about the competition in four little, but powerful words, "We're. going to win."

The Macintosh lab in the Administration Building became the team's second home this semester. Why was so much of the team's time spent there? This was not a simple project.

Fuess said, "There are basically • SEE ADVERTISING PAGE 7 You know you're drunk when....

Forestry professor honored in Colorado

Andrew White Staff

Dr. John D. Hunt was honored Wednesday at Colorado State University for his outstanding achievements in academia. Authoring over 300 articles, publications and presentations recently he was a finalist for the dean's position in the University of Idaho College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences

"It was nice, an old trip home. I was a student of the late 60s and early 70s during my residency at CSU," Hunt said. Hunt teaches both undergraduate and graduate courses. This is the third career achievement award he has received. Last week Hunt was in Colorado where he accepted the Honor Alumnus Award for 1996. Hunt has now won alumni awards from all of his alma maters. Hunt received his bachelor's degree and master's degree from UI, both in Forestry. His Ph.D. is from Colorado State University.

"He has accomplished so much since being here in the 1970s, it's exciting to hear him talk about his contributions to the field. He told a couple of great stories at the banquet," said Colorado State University faculty member Marcella Wells of the Department of Natural Resource Recreation and Tourism.

Prior to his position at UI, Hunt worked at Utah State University and George Washington University in forestry and tourism planning. At Utah State University he was the assistant dean of the college of Natural Resources.

Hunt's areas of expertise are integration of natural resource uses with tourism/recreation development, behavior and state tourism market share/state tourism budgets.

As a guest speaker in the French Cinema class, Lieberman told anecdotes and showed overheadssketches of life from his youth. At an early age Lieberman became an accomplished artist creating colorful drawings and watercolors of people that he'd met as a young man.

"It was especially exciting for The lectures were part of an me because of the experiences that he'd had with figures in French cinema," Professor Joan West said.

Many of the drawings are of famous acquaintance-including Orson Welles, French actor Jean Marais and singer Brigitte Bardot.

"I thought it was really interesting how he would sketch people and then send them the drawings. It's not something you see every-day," WSU student Alexandra Shannon said.

During a history class, Lieberman told a first-person account of the pre-war years leading up to the invasion of France in 1940, the

Pets need responsibility, commitment from owners

Shawn Vidmar

Graduation is coming and most students are focusing on getting out of Moscow. Most feel they will be moving on to a job or bigger city where pets are unwanted.

Each year it gets harder and harder to find places to rent which allow pets. Unfortunately some pets get left behind because the owners feel it would be easier.

Abandoning your pet is inhumane—the dog or cat does not know how to find food "in the wild" and becomes malnourished and diseased. Packs of dogs are often a nuisance to area farmers and ranchers, because the dogs harass the livestock. The farmers will sometimes shoot reoccurring offenders.

Some get caught and taken to the humane society, pet rescue or Companion And Animal Placement Service. Here they are spayed or neutered and implanted with an electronic chip which serves as a tracking device in case they are ever lost or abandoned again.

The abandonment causes great stress upon the animal and this may result in behavioral problems later.

Derek McLaurin, a local student, thought about adopting a pet. "I live alone and wanted some company. A friend to go on hikes with, a dog was the logical answer. But then I started asking myself if I could commit to up to 10 years, and the answer was 'no' so I didn't get one."

Many people do not realize that a pet is like a child and it needs attention, love, money, time and commitment to have one. Discarding your pet when it becomes inconvenient is criminal in some states. Sometimes the adoption agencies have too many inhabitants and are forced to euthanize the animals.

"We hate to do it, but there are times that there are too many animals and not enough funds or space," Karen Wade, a Spokane humane society worker, said.

Rancher/farmer Bill Donely said, "We often see dogs just walking along the road. Sometimes they come in our gate. If they seem to be the good sort, we keep them. It's a shame though, people shouldn't just assume we can take care of them all. We've had to take a lot back to town to the pound because they just don't belong on a ranch."

The humane society reminds everyone to provide for your animal. It is your responsibility. It is also within your best interests to have the pet spayed or neutered before spring takes its natural course and animals become pregnant. It also often helps the temperament of the pet.

The humane society (883-1166) and CAAPS (332-2508) currently have plenty of pets to be adopted out. They hope that May will not cause a surge of abandoned pets as it has in years past.

Students can find many birth control options on the Palouse

Jennifer Eng

Birth control is a touchy subject, but it doesn't have to be. Through resources on the Palouse and on the University of Idaho campus, students have wide variety of birth control options open to them.

Dr. Susan Gelletly of Student Health Services said, "Most clinicians are very knowledgeable about birth control options and very willing to advise and prescribe for whatever a person feels is best for them."

SHS, along with Planned Parenthood in Pullman and the North Idaho Department of Health and Welfare offer different options for birth control and other health related issues.

"We offer general preventative services that would include annual physicals and discussion of concerns about contraception or menstrual irregularity problems, STD evaluation with men and women, discussion of prevention for STD's as well as care for illnesses and injuries and any other concerns a person might. have," Gelletly said.

SHS offers condoms, contraceptive gels, diaphragms, birth control pills, Depo Provera and the morning after pill.

"Condoms and contraceptive gels which together make a reasonably reliable method. Condoms alone we don't feel is adequate as a birth control method. It reduces the risk of pregnancy and it reduces the risk of sexually transmissible infections, but in combination with a contraceptive gel that protection is greater," Gelletly said. "We offer diaphragm and contraceptive gel which together is another method."

Depo Provera, a relatively new form of birth control, is an injection which is effective for three months. Unlike most of the birth control pills SHS prescribes, Depo Provera is only progesterone. Most birth control pills are a combination of estrogen and progesterone.

Gelletly said, "One of the things we just don't know about Depo Provera is since there is no estrogen you don't have as much protection against osteoporosis. So we don't at this point in the long run know how significant that may be."

Side effects of Depo Provera include menstrual irregularity, and suppression of a woman's period for the duration of the medication.

Depo Provera reduces the likelihood of ovulation, makes the lining of the uterus less susceptible for conception and thickens the mucus around the cervix which prevents sperm from getting in.

Like birth control pills the Depo Provera injection is very effective in preventing pregnancy. Ortho Pharmaceutical Corporation and the Upjohn Company both say Depo Provera and birth control pills with both estrogen and progesterone have less than a 1 percent failure rate.

Also available at SHS is the morning after pill. This is a high dose birth control pill taken within 72 hours after a sexual encounter where protection may have failed.

The side effects are the pill might not work; and if it doesn't a small percentage of people have experienced birth defects.

At SHS the cost for birth control pills is $5 per month, the Depo Provera injection is around $35 every three months, and male condoms are 10 cents a piece. The pharmacy also offers the female condom.

"More education is better. There are certainly pamphlets and brochures available here plus everybody working at Student Health is knowledgeable and very willing and able to explain about options. We're all just believers that people should know and understand their resources and use their own personal judgments and preferences in selecting what's best for them," Gelletly said. Gelletly added, "We try always to Gelletly added, "We try always to keep reminding people that there is no birth control method that is 100 percent effective. It's a calculated risk of pregnancy every time someone makes a decision to have sexual intercourse."

If none of these methods work, women who think they may be pregnant can visit SHS, Planned Parenthood, the North Idaho Health Department or any number of clinics in Moscow to be tested.

Gelletly said, "We do pregnancy testing. We do very open minded counseling and encourage people to know their options and make the choices that are best for them."

SHS does not terminate pregnancies and counsels people on the various choices pregnancy offers such as adoption, keeping the baby and pregnancy termination resources.

Gelletly said the other side of pregnancy, aside from the physical aspect, is the mental one. Full-time students can go to the Student Counseling Center for advice and help with their decisions.

Part-time students are eligible to go to SHS but not the Student Counseling Center.

Graduate Faculty committee meets

Shawn Vidmar

News

The Graduate Faculty Meeting had its biannual meeting to discuss requirements, teaching assistantships and the Nixon Summer Institute courses. The Graduate Student Association also released their honorees for Graduate Students in teaching excellence.

In discussing the Graduate Record Examination, a standardized test for students wishing to attend graduate school in the humanities, Director of Graduate Studies Dave Barber, proposed that all GRE requirements be dropped, according to the minutes of the March 14 meeting.

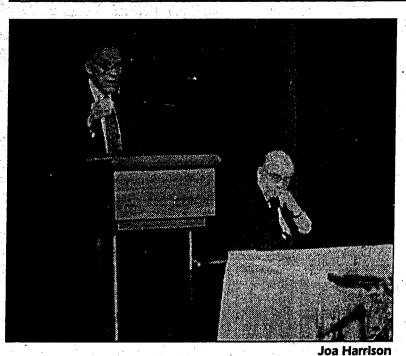

He stated that although it makes the department look "serious," it is not necessarily the best evaluation of a student's knowledge or potential. The members moved that the department would continue to "strongly recommend" the GRE, but in light of the new master's of fine arts in creative writing, the GRE is really a moot idea because it cannot foretell a person's ability to write creatively.

In conjunction with new MFA degree offered in writing, a teaching assistantship for the MFA graduate students is being discussed.

The plan, according to the minutes, is for the "MFA program to admit six students next year and award three assistantships." This position would be for three years, the likely duration of the 48 credit degree. The meeting also consisted of opinions regarding the Nixon Summer Institute courses. These were initially designed for high school teachers who could attend and often received grades for "just showing up." The problem arose that students began taking these classes for graduate credit and the department believes the courses are not as rigorous as other graduate classes. The committee conceded to demand better work this summer and make more decisions next fall.

Finally, the Graduate Student Association honored teaching excellence on April 5. Many graduate students were honored for their teaching within their department. David Babb, art; Tim Bays, Brenda Waller and Handon Li, chemistry; Kevin Carr, Physics; Sam Couch and Cortney Watson, geography; Tom Drake and Paul Sogge, English; Kelsey Hartman, theatre arts/communication; Kim Monk, family & consumer science; Krista Morten and Heidi Schantz, resource recreation; Larry Olsen, animal & veterinary sciences and Carla Richardson, biological sciences, according to the press release.

The selection began several months ago, receiving nominations from departments on campus. The nominees were accompanied by letters of recommendation by both students and faculty. The committee had 30 to choose from and said, "We received many outstanding letters which made the selection very difficult."

security and its role in international conflict.

BORAH

Food security is an important topic for the U.N. right now as they will be sponsoring the World Food Summit in November. Coutts is a national of Canada and director of North American Office of the World Food Programme. He is in charge of maintaining close working relationships with the U.N. Secretariat and U.N. agencies based in New York. He is also responsible for maintaining working relationships with North American nongovernmental organizations with whom the WFP cooperates in the field.

Coutts spoke of the WFP's functions, supplying aid in disasters and emergencies and also using food aid to support education and work projects in needy countries. Coutts spoke of the necessity of food security for peace.

"WFP is the food arm of the U.N. Our goal is to eradicate hunger throughout the world," Coutts said. As with all U.N. programs WFP is trying to do more with less. Coutts spoke of how WFP is working to rethink their strategies and re-tool their functions to be more effective.

Charles H. Riemenschneider also spoke on food security. Riemenschneider is director of the North American Liaison Office of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. He represents the FAO before the national governments of the United States and Canada, international institutions in North America and non-governmental organizations in the region. He also coordinates the FAO's activities in the region. Riemenschneider has previously served on the professional staff of the U.S. Senate Budget Committee and was Majority Staff Director of the U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture.

Riemenschneider spoke of the FAO's role in overcoming hunger and helping needy countries help themselves.

"Hunger is a problem we all have to face," Riemenschneider said. He spoke of the need for a second Green Revolution to increase food production for a growing population and the decline of food aid and available farmland and water available to support a growing population.

Riemenschneider has a positive outlook. He said with support the FAO could manage to help nations throughout the word become more self-sufficient in supplying their people with food.

Scott Rozelle, assistant professor for Food Research Institute of Stanford University, spoke on "Who will feed 1.2 billion prospering Chinese?" Rozelle has served as a Senior Adviser to the China Poverty Research Association of the People's Republic of China, and as Chairman and Senior Adviser to the External Board of Policy Advisors at the Center for Chinese Agriculture Policy of the Ministry of Agriculture of the People's Republic of China. Rozelle examined the factors that help to determine what China's future will be in food consumption and importation.

keep from being sent to a concentration camp.

"They had set up quotas, and if you didn't make it, and you were a Jew, if they caught you, you would be sent to a concentration camp," Lieberman said.

After the occupation of France by the Nazis, Lieberman and his family were persecuted while some of their relatives remaining in Poland were kept in concentration camps and killed during the invasion of that country in 1939.

"One of my cousins managed to escape through Rumania, and then to Spain where he went to England on a battleship." Later that same cousin went on to fight with the armies of liberation, Lieberman said.

Eventually the Liebermans also escaped to Spain, where they spent the final years of the war. Isolated from the Allies in England, Lieberman said he regrets most that he was unable to join the allied armies and fight along side his countrymen as his cousin had done after escaping from Poland.

"I had wanted to fight in the war but was trapped in Barcelona since the Nazis had sealed off everything north of the Pyrenees," he said.

After the war Lieberman returned to France, and his studies at the university, later receiving an medical science degree.

However, like his father who became a scientist after being a concert pianist, Lieberman was a scientist at heart and gravitated toward medical research spending many years at the famous Pasteur Institute where he did extensive cancer research before his retirement in the 1980s.

A collection of Lieberman's sketches, personal diaries and manuscripts have been preserved in an archive at the WSU library and are on display until May 17. The display can be viewed between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Atsonaut The UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO The Students' Voice

Pick it up, put it in the bag

Something has been annoying me for weeks now. Finally, I've decided I will take it upon myself to write about it.

I usually take a certain route to class just about every day, and just about every day I see all kinds of trash littering the parking lots, sidewalks, yards and flowerbeds on campus.

I see broken beer bottles in the parking lots. I'm glad I don't park there, or—knowing my luck—I would probably get a flat tire or something. I, and others who walk through the lot, also run the risk of stepping on a piece of glass and possibly cutting our precious feet. It's getting warmer, sort of, outside now, so people tend to wear sandals more often.

Here's something a person wouldn't normally expect to see—baked potatoes smashed on the ground. It looks like someone decided to have a baked potato throwing contest. I can see these people now, whoever they may be. "Hey guys! Lets do something really cool and unusual. Lets go out to the parking lot and throw baked potatoes."

Empty beer cases lying on or near the sidewalks really gets to me. Can't people pick up after themselves after partying? I see garbage bins all around the area I walk through. People should walk a couple of feet to dispose of their trash in the proper place.

Then there are cigarette butts lying everywhere. That's really unattractive. I used to smoke, but I cared enough—well, most of the time—to put the cigarette butt in a nearby trash can. When I did toss the butt on the ground, I would have strong feelings of guilt afterwards.

But the thing that really disgusts me is seeing doggy leftovers on the sidewalk and on the lawns! I almost walked in a pile of doggy-dodo on a sidewalk of all places the other day. People need to watch where their dogs choose to relieve themselves. The least people could do is have the common decency to carry a pooper-scooper when bringing dogs to campus. Then they can drop their doggie's disposal in a nearby trash can.

We have a beautiful campus—especially in the spring and summertime when everything's blooming. People shouldn't take that for granted, but they do. It's unfortunate.

We should respect the jobs of the campus grounds keepers. Nobody likes cleaning up doggy-dodo or broken glass. Pick up after yourselves.

This litter issue reminds me of an old Disney cartoon where bears clean up garbage. Think back. They wore those trash collector bags around their shoulders and carried those trash poker-things so they could pick up garbage. The best part of the cartoon, however, was the song they sang while collecting trash. Remember it? "Pick it up, put it in the bag. Bump, bump." —Shelby Dopp had no idea Boise-bashing was such a popular pastime. I'm not from North Idaho, nor am I from the Boise area. I'm from that other part of the state most everyone else forgets about. Where I'm from we just go about our business and don't really get our panties in a wad over petty Idaho politicking.

 \boldsymbol{G}

But it seems in the North, which has dealt historically and deals even today with a serious identity crisis, it doesn't matter what's going on up here. What matters is what's going on in Boise, a name which must be said with all the contempt and venom one can muster.

The latest flap is over funding of Idaho Public Television. Or the lack of funding. Or Boise acting as nobleman in a state of serfs. Or politicians and executives nit-picking and namecalling over what state-funded agency ought to pander to what region while the state as a whole writhes in terrible agony over the decline in services and opportunities until with some post-apocalyptic explosion Washington and Montana will find it necessary to build a 73mile bridge over the Hells Canyon Extension to cover the physical gap between their states.

Brian Davidson

Maybe it's not as bad as all that, but the exchange of heated words and unconfirmed threats between state Representative James "Doc" Lucas (R-Moscow) and Jerold Garber, General Manager for Idaho Public Television, would have one believing as such.

The scoop is this: Idaho Public Television will receive $800,000 less in state and federal funds over the next four years. Surprisingly enough, IPT has opted to cut spending rather. than enter into the deficit-spending so much in vogue in modern American politics. On the surface there seems to be nothing wrong with cutting back, since the only other option open to IPT to recover those funds is to get on the air and whine for donations at length until your ordinary PBS-loving Idahoan goes to their bank to secure a $800,000 loan to pledge just to get those morons off the air. But according to Lucas, the cutbacks are nothing less than a Boise-based vendetta against the North.

Among the proposed cuts are the virtual elimination of IPT operations in Coeur d'Alene and cancellation of Moscow produced shows "Portraits of Idaho" and airings of University of Idaho sports events. Lucas isn't all that upset over the virtual elimination of the Twin Falls IPT station, but since Twin Falls isn't in his back yard it's really not his worry, now is it?

Lucas ought to cry for the other guy unless he wants his whines to appear as typical of a pork-barreling politician with flags flapping behind him while flutes and beating drums pipe the tune to "Here We Have (North) Idaho" as he clasps his hand over his heart and cries foul over the vendetta against educational programming in Idaho coming from the evil dragon-and-worm-infested lair called Boise?

April showers bring out militia men o what is the big deal with the month of April? For the last \mathbf{J} three years the month of April has wreaked havoc on the states. I guess we shouldn't blame it or April, but blame it on the militia men and terrorists who have decided that they no longer want to live here. In their eyes, though, no one else should live here. Well, that statement has its exceptions, too. No one else should be allowed to live peaceably if theythe non-mainstream militia men---cannot live how they deem to be "the way." Let's think back to 1993. Normal people were doing normal things, except in a small town called Waco. By now this town is famous, and no longer the private place it used to be, for the events that occurred in a few short weeks there are etched into the minds of America. David Koresh, the leader of a religious sect, set up his own beliefs, compound and religion. What I am trying to point out is the fact that Koresh decided he no longer wanted to live by the laws of the United States. The laws Koresh broke ranged from polygamy to stock-piling weapons without permits. Not only did he end up killing himself, but when the compound burned to the ground many other lives—including innocent children were lost. What did this prove?

In that same time period, Americans were devastated by the bombing of the World Trade Center. Terrorists were to blame this time. Why? The question continues to run through our heads as we attempt to figure out the reasoning for such an act.

Step forward in time to this week last year, the setting changes to Oklahoma City, Okla., site of the tragic federal building bombing. Once again more innocent lives were lost—168 to be exact.

wondering what the government is actually doing for them.

Here it is, April of 1996, and the feds are in a stand-off with more militia men in Montana. Again, these people have decided that they no longer want to live by the laws set forth by our government and Constitution.

The "freemen" have decided they no longer live under the power of the United States government, but now live as a sovereign country. Um, wake-up call! It is still U.S. soil and they are not autonomous until they move out of the country. But living in their so-called country, they are still interacting with other Americans—in illegal ways.

Tis a strange, strange world

Two years ago I saved a life by warning students why they feel as they do. Now it is coming again. The earth is talking and you ought to take time to listen.

There are three volcanoes ready to go off. The first is in Yosemite National Park. California has issued a "Volcano alert." They are also bringing in specialists from Hawaii and asking the Native Americans if they have any records on how the lava flowed.

There is an ocean volcano off the coast of Oregon that is now building a dome. When the dome blows we will not get ash, since it's underwater, but there will be one Deciding how (and where) IPT funds are spent should not be drawn solely along geographical, political and blatantly elitist lines. When I watch IPT (and I do so often because we get two PBS stations and nothing else at my apartment) I look for the quality and entertainment value of the program, not for where the thing was produced. If a program is interesting and educational it doesn't matter if it's produced in Moscow, Idaho, or at some studio in London, England.

Lucas seems all to concerned about preserving local jobs and elitist attitudes rather than "pandering" to the general viewing public, who watch PBS for their favorite shows, most of them produced and filmed hell of a tidal wave. On Akatak Island in the Bering Straight, a mountain is smoking.

Straight, a mountain is smoking. They have evacuated all civilians since the island is so small there is no place to run. St. Helens is smoking.

Mt. Rainier is shaving quakes. They occur a maximum of 48 hours apart. When the dome in Oregon goes it will allow water into the hot magma. The massive build-up of steam pressure could well cause Mt. Rainier to blow.

This information is not so public, because it is hushed. They are afraid people will panic. They are rarely reported in areas affected. I had to inform a friend in Texas about earthquakes down there. Now that she's back, she has to get information about Northwest quakes

Borah Symposium an embarrassment

Another Borah Symposium is over. The topic was 50 years of the United Nations, focusing on peacemaking and food supplies. Noted experts from across the U.S. came to speak and answer questions on topics vital to global peace and understanding. Very few attended to the embarrassment of this university.

We wonder why we are unable to help resolve wars in Bonsai and Rwanda or why we cannot end famine in Somalia or Bangladesh. The answer is that ultimately we don't care, or at the least are unwilling to take any of our precious time to understand and be involved. The attendance at these symposiums was a reflection of that apathetic attitude toward global understanding and involvement.

I wonder where the ethicists were from the philosophy department who could have helped us understand the contradiction between a security council which wishes to put an end to war and the same security council which is made of countries who are the largest arms dealers on the planet. Where were the political scientists who could help us to grasp the issues at stake in global understanding and cooperation? Where were the agriculture students eager to understand the global food crisis that leaves 800 million people undernourished every day? Where were the nutritionists who could place that in perspective for us? Where were the historians to help us understand how we might learn from similar times in our past in an effort to improve our future? Where were the scientists to explain work being done in cleaning up the environmental disasters that some of our overzealous aid programs have created?

Are we so caught up in our degree seeking that we miss the point of education? We are at a university (not a trade school) to become well-rounded and thoughtful citizens who can use the knowledge we gain here to work making a better planet upon which we all can live. If we are here simply to get a degree and a job, then I fear for the future of such a world where the most educated are also the most narrow minded.

We all lost a great opportunity to come together as a community and discuss with world experts global problems which currently have and will continue to have a great impact on each of us, no matter what discipline we are pursuing.

Chastisements to the students for their apathy and to the faculty for not taking advantage of such an opportunity and not showing the leadership to encourage students to attend.

But bills like this aren't going to do anyone any good. The militia men keep dying, we keep having tragic events and the United States keeps holding standoffs. My advice to those "wonderful"

Go find an Island and form your own country, where you can avoid the United Nations plan for a New World Order. Just go away and leave us alone.

Small companies should be wary

Editors Note: Alan Lance the Idaho State Attorney General submitted this column to the Argonaut in the hopes of helping Idaho's small buisnesses.

I magine how you would feel if you got a collection letter from a company you had done business with several years ago. The letter states that the price you agreed to in your contract with the business was a mistake and that you should pay several hundred extra dollars. Most of us would reject the business's effort out of hand. Yet that is what is happening to hundreds of Idaho businesses, and it is wrong.

Over the past several years, bankrupt trucking companies have sued Idaho businesses and threatened others with lawsults, claiming they are owed the difference between the price these companies charged and what the trucking company's tariffs, filed with the federal government, indicate.

Until recently, federal law required common carrier truckin companies to charge only their published tariff rates. This requirement, known as the Filed Rate Doctrine, was originally created to stop rate discrimination engaged in by railroad companies against falmers. Some collection lawyers and bankrupt trucking companies now use it to gouge hundreds of Idaho businesses for extra money. After Congress began to deregulate the trucking industry in the 1980s, trucking companies began negotiating reduced shipping prices with their clients. Often, these prices were below the company's filed tariff rates.

Over time, a number of trucking companies went bankrupt. Auditors for these companies began reviewing old bills and some bankruptcy trustees and their collection lawyers began using the Filed Rate Doctrine to collect these undercharge amounts.

Guest Commentary Al Lance Idaho attorney general

Recognizing the unfairness of the action, Congress enacted the Negotiated Rates Act (NRA), which, in part, exempts small businesses, as defined by the Small Business Admmistration, from any undercharge liability.

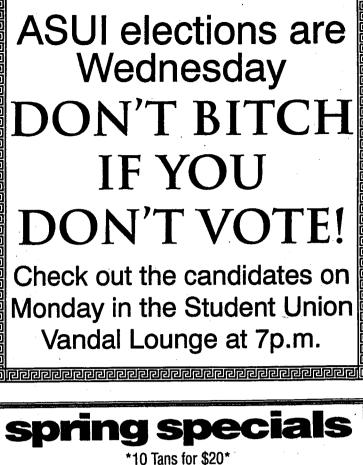

Even though the NRA was passed, some bankrupt trucking companies continue to contact businesses and threaten lawsuits. They do not tell businesses that if they are a small business, they are exempt from any undercharge liability. This is significant, because research by my office indicates that over 90 percent of all Idaho businesses are likely to qualify as a small business.

It is misleading to write a dunning letter, knowing that most who receive the letter are totally immune from any liability, and say nothing about this. We decided to take action under our Idaho Consumer Protection Act, which prohibits deception in the marketplace. My office recently settled its concerns regarding these practices with one company, Interstate Audit Corp.

The settlement is a good start, but our task is not done. Other defunct trucking companies are making the same demands. Recently, 36 Idaho businesses have been sued over this issue. This is wrong. We will continue to fight for Idaho's businesses on this issue, but the war will be won with informed businesses knowing their rights and protecting themselves.

Vandals look to put icing on cake

Mike Stetson

O nly one year after sitting in the cellar of the Big Sky, the Vandal women's tennis team has fought its way to respect and now head for the conference championships looking to return to the top of the Big Sky for the first time since 1990.

This weekend's tournament will end the Vandals second rebuilding year and Coach Greg South and his squad seemed pleased with the year's progress.

"It's been a good season, 15-10," South said. "We're batting .600, a lot of baseball teams would like to have that record."

South insists this weekend's tournament has become a bonus reward for Idaho's hard work this season. South and the team both realize what they have accomplished, in moving from last one year ago to fourth, is the true reward for their efforts.

"This tournament is icing on the cake," South said.

Despite playing down the importance of this weekend's championships, South said if the women play well and try their hardest he will be pleased. South hopes for a top four finish to round out this season.

The Vandals open their final tournament in the Big Sky against Idaho State today in Boise, in the first round of the Big Sky Championships. Also in the Vandals half of the draw is Weber State, the tournament favorite, and Eastern Washington.

Idaho heads into the tournament tied with ISU, ranked as the fourth seed one year after being seeded last in the Big Sky. The rankings consist of a vote by the coaches of the Big Sky schools, each coach ranking the teams except for his or her own. South recognizes the rankings as the respect his peers have for Idaho's efforts this season.

"We can play with the conference, they know we're a good team," South said.

The Vandals faced ISU in Montana in late October, downing the Bengals who have since added a few new women to their line-up, creating some mystery for South's team.

This, combined with some injuries to Katrina Burke and Gwen Nikora has created a question mark for South's team heading into the championships. However, South believes the Vandals should prevail against the Bengals.

"If everybody plays fairly well, we'll be fine," South said. "We're about 10 percent better."

Burke is recovering from an ankle injury suffered against BSU in an early February match. Hansen is recovering from a torn esophagus suffered last week during a bought with the stomach flu and tonsillitis.

The Vandals also go in following a difficult week of practice, having to rent court space in Lewiston because of the rainy Moscow weather. Despite the weather, South admits this week's practices have been the most productive practices yet.

If the Vandals make it past ISU today, they will most likely play Weber, which opened against EWU, seeded eighth in the tournament.

"I'd like to see Weber," South said. "We could get a matchup and we could beat 'em."

Boise State and Northern Arizona head the other side of the tournament draw as the number two and three seeds respectively. The Vandals could meet either if they manage to upset Weber in the second round of the tournament. Idaho lost to BSU in Boise in a close match in February when Burke was taken to the hospital after rolling her ankle in her singles match. Burke was leading the match at the time.

Playing in Boise also provides a small home court advantage for the Vandals who will enjoy the support of numerous Vandal boosters. The team will be housed with booster families in Boise.

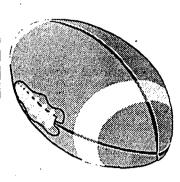

As for the Vandal's chances of sneaking away with the Big Sky title, South does not rule out Idaho completely.

"It's a horse race, I know we'll be competitive," South said. "The women want to go down there and play."

South admits this year has been the strongest in the Big Sky in 10 years, making Idaho's leap from last to fourth more impressive. South deflects the team's improvement from himself to the women.

"We've come a long way and they know it," South said. "They have to believe they've obtained it. They're just an enjoyable group of ladies to watch play."

Vandals will scrimmage in Coeur d'Alene

Lake City High School will host the Les Schwab Tire Center Spring Kick-off Classic on Saturday, April 20.

The event will feature the UI football team's third scrimmage of the spring and start at 11 a.m. A barbeque and autograph signing period will follow the game. Tickets may be purchased at the gate. A family pass is $10. Adults must pay $5 while anyone high school age and younger is $3.

UI Intramural Game of the week

ood Wood was in midseason form Wednesday afternoon. The squad put together a near flawless performance in a 20-0 romp over the Metalurgists in University of Idaho Recreational Intramural softball action.

Good Wood's lumber was far from a slumber in the win, pounding out 25 hits in 36 official at bats. Eight of Good Wood's starters produced multiple hits.

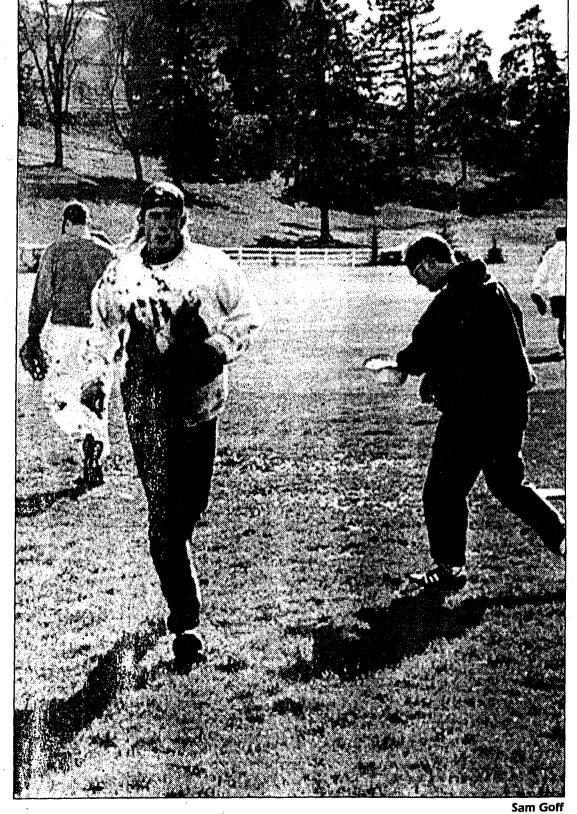

The floodgates opened right away for Good Wood, which posted five runs in the first inning. Already leading 1-0 GW first baseman Greg Moore doubled. Dave Rohrig and Bill Cole followed with back-to-back RBI triples. Dan Weekes tripled and Justin Cason doubled in the big inning as well.

The second inning was much of the same. After Codie Martin drew a leadoff walk Moore doubled and Rohrig responded with a monster three-run homer to rightcenter field. Cole followed with his second three bagger of the contest. A single and two errors later the score read 11-0. "We came out with the attitude we needed to jump out early and get ahead," Moore said. "It helped our confidence a lot with the slow start we had last week." Good Wood (3-0) posted seven more runs in the fourth inning. Martin, Rohrig and Kevin Neuendorf each banged out doubles in the rally while Weekes added his second triple of the game. Fifteen of Good Wood's 25 hits went for extra bases. The squad's 3-4-5 slots, Moore, Rohrig and Cole, went a combined 12-12 in the slugfest. Rohrig, who is hitting .910 on the season, hit for the cycle Wednesday.

said. "All that's going to do is produce runs."

The senior from Idaho Falls (Rohrig) was stellar on the hill as well, taking advantage of solid glovework as the Good Wood crew was into leather, finishing the affair without an error. Rohrig scattered six hits and did not walk a single Metalurgist in the game. The Metalurgists (1-2) did not advance a runner to third in the game, shortened to four innings due to a 15-run mercy rule.

The squad's 3-4-5 slots, Moore, Rohrig and Cole, went a combined 12-12 in the slugfest. Rohrig, who is hitting .910 on the season, hit for the

Kevin Terhaar, Carlos Gonzalez, Edgar Vidal, Dowen Raynor, Wes Mocaby and Craig Shaber knocked out the hits for the Metalurgists.

The Metalurgists had two chances to score. The first came in the bottom of the first. Terhaar and Gonzalez singled and with one out cleanup hitter Caleb Wright drove a ball deep in the hole, but Good Wood shorstop Martin came up with the ball and threw to Cole at third to get the lead runner, quashing the threat.

The second came in the third inning when Raynor led off the inning with a single.

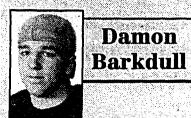

Raynor got caught sleeping on a fly ball by Terhaar. Weekes made the catch in right field for Good Wood and fired to first to double off Raynor who tried to advance before tagging up.

Weekend's NFL draft: best or bust

Unless there is an earthquake or a tsunami in Moscow this Saturday, it might not be a bad idea and see how your favorite National League Football team does in the draft.

And unless your team is lucky, most likely that number one high draft choice may turn out to be a number one bust. Odds are, a third to a half of the first rounders chosen on Saturday may turn out to be the next Tony Mandarich, Brian Bozworth or even Percy Snow. This is unfortunate for teams who have found a permanent residence in the division cellar because of meager first round draft choices.

Although, teams may buck the trend by possibly doing a little more homework and taking a chance on a guy who is so called "undersized and too slow.

Point of example—Dallas Cowboy all-star Emmitt Smith, who was chosen 17th overall in the 1990 draft, yet turned out to be the best running back in the NFL. At the University of Florida, Smith was never too fast or very big, but the Cowboys looked at the competition he played against and the yardage he gained instead of his all-around physical achievements. By the way, the number one draft choice that year was a running back by the name of Blair Thomas from Penn State. Thomas, who was touted as the next great NFL running back by many of the so called NFL experts, was chosen by the New York. Jets.

Just in case you didn't know, Smith has three Super Bowl rings, three regular season rushing titles and one hell of an ego. Thomas has been spotted by Unsolved Mysteries callers in Unemployedville, Ark., pumping gas at the local Stop N' Go.

The list goes on. What about former Michigan Heisman Trophy winner Desmond Howard? Howard, the 4th player overall taken in the NFL draft by the Washington Redskins, never turned out to be an Art Monk and is now trying to regain some respect in Jacksonville.

Neither Thomas nor Howard can compare to the biggest all time draft bust. Sports Illustrated touted him as one of the best offensive lineman to ever come out of the college ranks. His name, Tony Mandarich, drafted in the first round by the Green Bay Packers in 1989. Mandarich was built up so much and so much was expected out of him, that no matter how well he did, people would scoff. In Mandarich's first year with the Packers, he suffered through injury and rumors of steroid use surrounded this freakoid hulk. After four years of being out of the league, Mandarich is again attempting to come back into the NFL, this time with the Indianapolis Colts. Ironically, the Cowboys skipped over Mandarich that year in the draft for a player who is one of the best in his field, Troy Aikman.

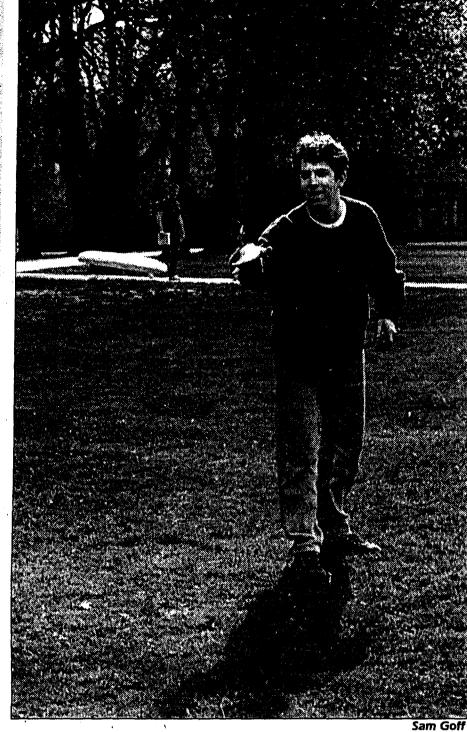

This year's draft has the potential to yield many potential busts, although right now, most of the 30 predicted draft choices in the first round look real good on paper.

Draft guru/often idiot, Mel Kiper, has predicted that USC's standout wide receiver Keyshawn Johnson will be picked first overall by the Jets. Johnson is a big body receiver (6-foot 3-inches 220-pounds) and is very physical with defensive backs, although he still maintains enough speed to burn a defender on the deep route (4.5). Kiper labels Johnson as having some Magic Johnson and Michael Irvin in him. Does that mean he's a promiscuous drug user with an ego?

Kiper picks Nebraska running back Lawrence Phillips to be selected fourth overall by the Baltimore Browns. Phillips, who missed most of the season due to some off field problems (i.e. beat his girlfriend up), finished up the 1995 season with an outstanding showing in the Fiesta Bowl against the Florida Gators. If Phillips can stay out of trouble and the fans can tolerate his irate personality, he may turn out to be a great in this league.

This years Heisman Trophy winner, running back Eddie George, is predicted to be picked 20th overall by the Miami "Jimmy" Dolphins. Picking George might be the smartest move any team owner/coach could make. Although George lacks great quickness (4.65), he is a big body running back (6-feet 2-inches 238-pounds) and demonstrated a

Soccer club drops WSU, readies for tourney

The University of Idaho Soccer Club won Palouse bragging rights last Sunday with a 4-2 triumph over the Washington State Soccer Club at Guy Wicks Field.

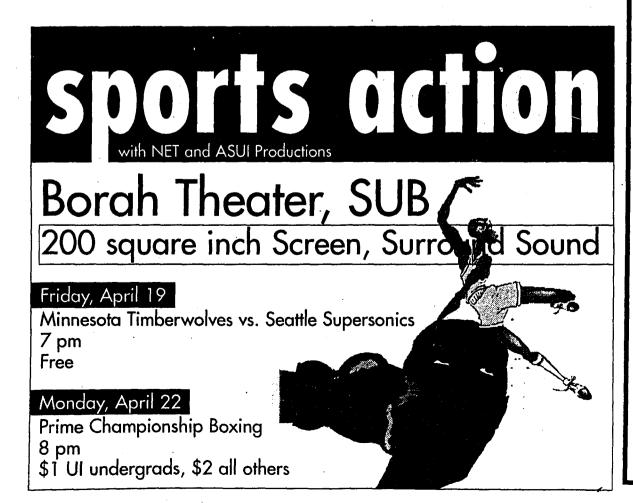

Idaho's Mike Smiley opened the scoring with a goal midway through half one, but Washington State's Jeff Standish evened the score with a goal of his own just before the intermission.

Steve Williams and Smiley tacked on goals for Idaho early in the second half, giving the Vandals a 3-1 edge. The Cougs got back in the game when Standish posted his second goal of the afternoon minutes later. UI's Jeff Hovermill provided some insurance for the Idaho club with a late penalty kick goal.

Idaho's record moves to 2-1 this spring as they get set to host the Sixth Annual International Soccer Tournament this weekend. The first game is set for 4 p.m. today, pitting UI and Walla Walla College. Games will run from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

ackson moderates collegiate sports panel

Mark Vanderwall

For those of you fans who enjoy Miller Lite every now and then, u may remember Keith Jackson st for his by now famous saying "Whoa Nellie," in a recent comercial

What most of you including yself did not know, was that ackson is a graduate of Vashington State University and a hember of National Sportscasters, nd the National Association of portswriters and Broadcasters falls of Fame.

Jackson was the moderator at he 1996 Edward R. Murrow ymposium, which included Dennis Swanson, who is the President of ABC Sports, Donald Canham, who is the retired Athletic Director at Michigan, Bill Battle, who is the Chief Executive Officer of the Collegiate Licensing Company and Samuel H. Smith, who is the president of Washington State University. This panel took part in a dicussion on the business of collegiate sports and television, by the panel was the idea of football and men's basketball are the key money makers for both universities and conferences in general. The panel mentioned that many of the other sports actually lose money, but the revenue generated by the main two sports usually covers the others. The Final Four and Bowl games were cited as being the obvious revenue generators for the most major universities

The most enjoyable topic was the issue being raised for a football playoff system that would possibly incorporate the top eight teams going to the four major bowl games, with the winners meeting to start a two game trip to the National Championship. With this plan I see a lot of positives, as revenue from the bowl games could still be generated, but more revenue could be made at a semi-final and a championship game in the process. The National Championship game was proposed to be played the weekend prior to the Superbowl, thus giving sports fans somewhat of a pre-game entertainment a week early.

Bill Battle brought up the most interesting point, as he addressed the issue of licensing becoming a big business in collegiate athletics. In 1984 the market ranged somewhere in the vescinity of $250 million, whereas today Battle noted that it was closer to $2.5 billion. If you take this figure, much of its increase may stem back to Canham's days at Michigan, where the Wolverines sold Michigan playing cards and coffee mugs to boost their income, a trend that caught on at schools everywhere.

Looking at the above items you may see collegiate athletics as a business, out to make more money than the next guy, and if you did this you hit the nail right on the head. College athletics today is a revenue maker for each institution and to say otherwise would be lying. Idaho's move to the Big West was just another example of the little guys trying to join the big guys market financially, hopefully works.

The hottest topic to me was the idea of giving college athletes a stipend or allowence. To me the idea is proposterous when you look at the benefits these athletes already get from the university. I understand that these athletes can't work during the school year, but they should be able to make enough during the summer to cover their school year expenses. Sure they are making money for the universities indirectly and putting their names in the spotlight day-in and day-out, but the rest of us pay money to go to school, and pay to watch them play, so why don't we get a stipend for supporting them. It's an athletes choice to participate in college athletics and they know the consequences going into the situation.

They like the rest of us should have to plan ahead so they can make it through the school year, because for many of them this is a way to make money in the future, afterall they are getting their school paid for.

Phillips remains hot ticket in NFL Draft despite probation

Associated Press

NEW YORK—Leeland McElroy might be the next Thurman Thomas. Tim Biakabutuka reminds some scouts of Eric Dickerson. Eddie George, the Heisman Trophy winner, is considered a power back in the Rodney Hampton mold.

Yet when the National Football League draft begins at noon EDT (1600 GMT) next Saturday, Lawrence Phillips will be the hottest running back on the board, even though he remains on probation after pleading no contest last fall to assault and trespassing charges.

His offense: Dragging an ex-girlfriend down several flights of stairs last year and banging her head against a metal mailbox.

Welcome to the NFL, where past sins are forgiven for 227-pound (103-kilo) running backs with 4.54 speed in the 40-yard (meter) dash and the ability to run over and around tacklers.

The St. Louis Rams already have traded up for the sixth overall pick in hopes of landing Phillips, but will have to trade up again to get him. He's visited the New York Jets and Giants, who pick first and fifth, as well as the Arizona Cardinals, who choose third.

And there seems no way he'll get by the Baltimore Ravens (formerly the Cleveland Browns), who choose fourth. That Phillips is so hot indicates how good he's

That Phillips is so hot indicates how good he's considered in a draft in which there's a glut of running backs, wide receivers and even tight ends, but few defensive impact players, particularly at linebacker.

Phillips, who had a year of eligibility left at Nebraska, entered the draft last January at the urging of coach Tom Osborne. It was assumed a lot of teams would pass because of the baggage he carries and because McElroy, Biakabutuka and George are available, along with four other backs who could go in the first round and a half.

But that's been overshadowed by Phillips' obvious ability, punctuated by 165 yards (meters) rushing in the national championship Fiesta Bowl. It's enhanced by his positive performances on physical tests and his apparent passing performance on personality and psychological tests and interviews.

Nor does it hurt that when NFL teams speak to Osborne (and they all do), they get a positive recommendation.

So Phillips is hot and getting hotter.

"I don't know that you can ever say for sure that somebody's troubles are a one-time thing," says John Butler, general manager of the Buffalo Bills, who at 24th overall have no chance at Phillips. "But when you get someone as respected as Tom Osborne vouching for a player's character, you have to put a lot of stock in that."

Other scouts put it in a vein that's more practical than politically correct.

The offense to which Phillips pleaded, they note, is not potentially habit forming, like the reported positive drug tests that dropped Warren Sapp last year from a top five choice to 12th overall. It could be, they note, no more than a one-time problem by a 20-year-old that counseling and other programs can solve.

"An isolated incident in his life," is how it's described by his agent, Mitch Frankel, who, of course, has a major financial ax to grind.

What about Phillips' ability?

"He's certainly good enough to be the top pick in the draft," says Bill Polian, general manager of the Carolina Panthers.

NFL shows Seattle what it expects

Associated Press

SEATTLE—The NFL wants Seattle to build the Seahawks a "state-of-the-art" stadium.

Last Friday, it showed the Kingdome Renovation Task Force exactly what it means.

League official Joe Ellis told committee members the NFL has a stake in Seattle's stadium issue and the league's overall ability to keep up with the city's Key Arena and a new $320 million outdoor baseball stadium that will be ready in 1999.

The Key Arena is used by the NBA SuperSonics and the baseball stadium will be the new home of the American League Mariners.

"We intend to put our fans in stateof-the-art stadiums," Ellis said. "Some people think it is as simple as putting the ball on the tee and fans show up. If the venue isn't comparable or better than another, then fans will look somewhere else."

The NFL wants Seattle to have a stadium comparable to the Jacksonville Jaguars and the Carolina Panthers, who market luxury suites for $100,000 or more.

Those stadiums have a large number of "club seating" sections complete with waiters. They have restaurants and bars filled with marble, glass and decorative footballs.

The future of the Seahawks in Seattle is in question. Owner Ken Behring announced Feb. 2 that he planned to move his franchise to Southern California for the 1996 season and questioned the Kingdome's ability to withstand a major earthquake.

But the NFL has told Behring it doesn't want him to move to Los Angeles. He has 10 more years left on his Kingdome lease.

Ellis' statement brought a retort from Wes Uhlman, co-chairman of the task force.

"So if this community spent $80 million to show its commitment, would it get an assurance that an owner wouldn't just pick up and leave when the lease ends?" Uhlman asked Ellis.

Ellis also met Friday with Seahawks president David Behring, Ken Behring's son, at the team's Kirkland headquarters.

great blue collar type work ethic for Ohio State.

Weirdly enough, there are no quarterbacks predicted by Kiper, to go in the first thirty selections. Among the top listed quarterbacks include: Bobby Hoying, Ohio State, Tony Banks, Michigan State, Danny Kanell, Florida State, Tommie Frazier, Nebraska and Jeff Lewis, Northern Arizona.

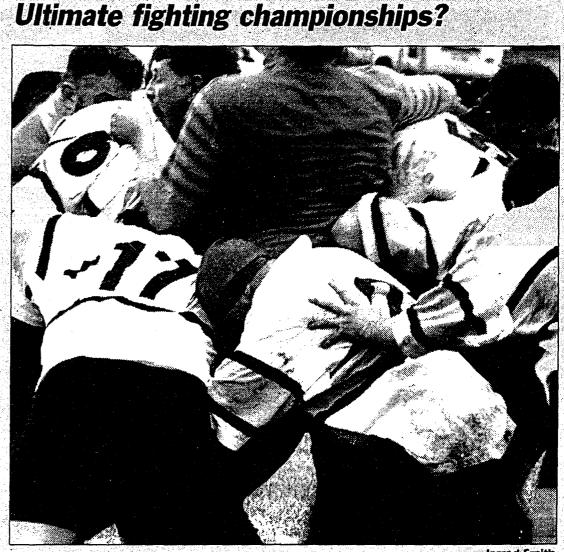

As history shows us, there is bound to be some busts. So try to not to pout if your team doesn't pick Keyshawn Johnson or Lawrence Phillips and maybe try to be a little more confident if your team picks a sleeper like Leeland McElroy, RB, Texas A&M or Bobby Engram, WR, Penn State.

• Two Idaho offensive tackles are registered for this Saturday's NFL draft. Kiper gives an analysis on 6foot 5-inch 300-pound Spencer Folau and on 6-foot 5-inch 284pound Jim Mills.

Kiper states that Folau has good size, will flash some athletic ability and knee bend but also says that he is not overly instinctive or consistent. Kiper says that Folau has enough size and ability to be in an NFL training camp.

On Mills, Kiper's analysis states that he is versatile, smart and competitive, showing some nastiness and uses his hands and can play with leverage. Kiper also says that Mills lacks great size and natural strength but has enough ability to be in an NFL training camp and compete for a backup job.

Both Mills and Folau were crucial in Idaho's run blocking and pass protection schemes this season.

International Mass draws diverse crowd

Valaree Johnson

Last Sunday was no ordinary Mass at St. Augustine's.

Religious faith adds a significant dimension to the moral life of people around the world and this could not have been demonstrated better than at the International Mass held last Sunday at St. Augustine's. Songs were sounded in Spanish, Hebrew, Gaelic and Indonesian showing how a shared faith binds people together in a means that cannot be duplicated. "It is beautiful to have all the nations under one roof," Carla Kappler said, who was a coordinator of the event. Kappler, who comes from Italy, now lives in the United States. "Even though I have been here for several years, I still am a foreigner and it was a very emotional and unifying thing to have all these people together."

Readings were given in German and Spanish and prayers were given in Polish, Spanish, Greek, Hindi, Irish, French, Sanskrit, German and Indonesian. Adding even a stronger international touch to the Mass was Father Sebastian who presided as celebrant over the event. Father Sebastian comes from India where he is principal at a Catholic school that works with children. He is spending his sabbatical at St. Augustine's until May, as he helps Father Mark Schumacher who is currently working on his thesis.

"No matter what language you speak, what ethnic difference you are, or traditions you celebrate...the idea is that we are all one with Christ," Father Sebastian said. "He is the unifier of all cultures." Sebastian came to Moscow in January and this was his first International Mass.

The diverse crowd faced a huge blue banner with a congregation of flags, the cross and Jesus. The banner, which was made by students for the first International Mass in 1994, was meant to signify the human connection of culture and religion. Among some of the students who helped make the banner two years ago is Susan Zehetner.

"Even though we all have our international cultures that should be celebrated, salvation touches the whole world," Zehetner said. "We are all connected."

Zehetner said the blue material was chosen to represent the globe. The flags on the banner depict the representation of international students in the Parish and a couple of flags have been added in the last year.

Some children were in traditional costume of other countries and the choir had a wonderful blend of many ethnic sounds. A finger food social followed.

In a world full of fragmentation, the unity of faith and tolerance for diversity keep love, joy and peace in the tradition of humanness.

Even though several local bands are breaking up this summer, several new bands are warming up to keep the local music scene's energy level up. Pullman's Crimebucks has spent the last few months easing into the music scene and is ready to help build a stronger base of local bands.

After losing the RHA/KUOI Battle of the Bands by two votes, they opened for L.A.'s Idaho at the Alley. Members of local bands Soulcraft and The Bedheads have been impressed by Crimebucks and predict they'll soon be one of the more popular bands in the area

Like most bands, Crimebucks got together through mutual friends and combining different efforts and sounds. Guitar players Joe Balsiger and Mark Hoffmann used to "boogie down" in the dorms as Stinky and the Bell-Tones. Hoffmann also played with drummer Sam Schauer and bass player Josh Engelhardt in the short-lived Captain Angst.

'We (Schauer, Engelhardt and Hoffmann) used to drink 22s of Bull Ice down in the Stephenson North Dining Center at three in the morning," Schauer explained. "Mark was the bridge between the Joe and the rest of us."

favorite beers."

"But we'd eventually like to be to Pullman what Emmanual Lewis is in Japan," Hoffmann added.

Crimebucks is happy to be part of the growing local music scene. "If you're thinking about it, start a band," Hoffmann said. "The music scene here is starting to pick up and hey, if we can do it, anyone can."

"I think it's time to unite the Moscow and Pullman rock communities into one cohesive unit of a rock n' roll scene," Schauer said. He was promptly beaten by his bandmates.

Crimebucks had planned to participate in a "Empty Your Cupboards" benefit concert the first weekend in May. It was to be a day-long outdoor music festival to support the Pullman Food Bank, but the show was cancelled by the Pullman Police because they "knew what those kids were up to" and denied organizers a street closure permit.

Crimebucks is splitting up over the summer but plan to reunite next fall. Their last scheduled performance is a free show Monday at Butch's Den at WSU's Compton Union Building in celebration Earth Day.

The show will also feature local talent Big Wheel Kitty, Aunt Sophie's Disease and Circadian Rhythm.

Moscow may be small, but it's a college town, and being a college town places it at a unique artistic crossroads.

This semester has brought a variety of visiting artists and authors of varying degrees of fame to our small but hip town.

Now we can add musicians to the list of visiting dignitaries.

Larry Murante, a singer/songwriter from Seattle will be jammin' at the Beanery on Friday. It's just him and his guitar (read solo act). but that will be enough to captivate and entertain all.

Murante began his career with 10 years of classical voice training and followed it up with 15 years of writing music.

Along with several contests and awards he has won the praise of countless reviewers and critics. You can get a sampling of his sound in his album Kiss Me One More Time.

writers to emerge from the Northwest in recent years." His music has been described as pop, folk, rock and everything in between.

Murante described his style best in Puget Sound Choices. "I'm play-ing rock music, I'm just doing it alone and acoustically, I think of singer-songwriters as a whole different breed of musicians, people who go out there and sing by themselves."

FRST()NS

Murante's style has been compared to Shawn Colvin, David Wilcox, Kenny Loggins, Steven Stills, Jerry Jeff Walker and James Tavlor.

His lyrics are personal and emotive, dealing with relationships, social commentary and the occasional lighthearted theme.

Murante's ability to structure a song has been described as immaculate, perfect and flawless.

Heartsong Review has called his voice "velvety smooth, sensual and sweet."

Murante is a popular performer throughout the Northwest and is in high demand. Take this opportunity to see an act that's truly high quality before he becomes too big for college students' budgets.

So no more whining about nothing to do in Moscow. Get yourself downtown to hear this solo singing sensation for yourself.

Be at the Beanery this Friday from 6:30p.m. to 8:30 p.m., admission is $5.

Fat Daddy releases first album at John's Alley tonight

Matt Baldwin Contributing Writer

One of the more promising bands in the Moscow-Pullman area, Fat Daddy kicks off their first album release tonight at John's Alley. Being together close to a year, Fat Daddy seems to be pleasing the crowds around the area and this first album-coming out on tape only and including new and old material by the band, is going to hopefully open more doors into the labyrinthine world of the music business.

Fat Daddy is not made up of any lazy men. They are: Jeremy Newberry, bass; Pete Lindahl, drums; Eric Matuszek, guitars, vocals; Joe Galanek, guitar and vocals. All of them combine to form a architecture of sound that can rival a majority of the local bands and revive the 70s in the Moscow-Pullman area.

Listening to Fat Daddy play at rehearsal on Sunday night gave me a glimpse of their style and grooving music. Their music and set for that matter, could be analogized with a circus: Like a circus and the assortment of rides, Fat Daddy has an combination of songs that will never make you dry of listening to them play. The quartet came together around May of last year. Already they have done the circuit around Moscow and Pullman and are ready to break out into other Northwestern locations like Portland, Seattle and Boise. "With this tape we hope to be able to get into more places," Newberry said. Galanek describes Fat Daddy as "high-cholesterol rock n roll; try-ing to bring the 70s back. We're trying to pretend that punk and new age never happened."

When the band finds a new song so-to-say each of them adds their own little quirk, creating a collaboration of varying styles that surprise and entertain their listeners.

Be sure to catch Fat Daddy at John's Alley tonight for their album release party. There are going to be seven tracks on the album and it will cost $5 to buy. If you are into music that you can dance and party to then Fat Daddy is that type of music. Some of the songs they will be playing include, "Mogambo" Jimbo" an off the wall slow song with interesting guitar work and "The Sun Song" a new song that incorporates Reggae with psychedelia.

Primal Fear

So far, this year's barrage of thrillers has been somewhat of a bust. Those who passed by the likes of Eye for an Eye, Jade or, more recently, Diabolique, didn't miss much:

Poking its potentially explosive head out of this waste heap of cur-rent thrillers is Primal Fear, a film starring Richard Gere. Gere, in a role that seemed tailor-made for him, is Martin Vail, a lawyer who cares more about getting his face on the evening news than about the innocence-or guilt-of his clients.

The movie, which is set in Chicago, begins with the brutal murder of an archbishop and the ensuing arrest of Aaron Stampler, a 19-yearold Kentucky boy who stutters and stammers more than Bob Newhart. Vail comes to Stampler's rescue, takes his case pro bono and starts working on a "third party" defense. That fact that Stampler was covered with the archbishop's blood while leaving the crime scene doesn't exactly help his case, either. Throughout the case, sparks are supposed to fly between Vail and his courtroom opponent, County Prosecutor Janet Venable (played by Laura Linney), but the closest these two come to romantic innuendoes are Vail's cheesy "wanna dance" lines.

It is Edward Norton, who plays the young Stampler, who nearly steals the show away from Gere. While the lawyers take turns inflating their cliché egos and trying to act coy, Norton, in his feature debut, is stellar as the bumbling farm boy with a demon inside him.

In the wake of some of the biggest real-life trials of the 20th century, Primal Fear had the capacity to become somewhat of a classic-or at least something timely. Instead, director Gregory Hoblit devotes too much time to the character of Vail and too little to actual aspects of the trial (a strong motive, multiple eyewitness accounts...).

Primal Fear's courtroom scenes do not begin to come close to some modern pieces like A Few Good Men and In the Name of the Father, or even '80s flicks like From the Hip or Legal Eagles.

The supporting cast, though strong, reads like a playbill of a made-for-TV movie. Maura Tierney (Newsradio), Andre Braugher (Homicide) and John Mahoney (Frasier) are all more than sufficient in their roles. Frances McDormand, best known for her role as the battered wife in Mississippi Burning, is severely underused as a psychiatrist.

The movie's fairly surprising ending saves what would have been just another mediocre thriller. It's unfor-tunate, though, that the film would have us believe Vail suddenly becomes a changed man who starts caring for his clients. Primal Fear is not a tough pill to swallow, but it's awfully hard to digest.

#7 Mom will love this.

#6 Do you have this with a Dallas Cowboys Logo on it?

#5 No need to wrap it up, I'll eat it here.

#4 Will you model this for me???

#3 Oh honey, you'll never squeeze your fat ass into that!

#2 Forty-five bucks?? You're just gonna end up NAKED anyway!!

... And the number one thing that a man should never, ever say out loud in Victoria's secret:

#1 Does this come in children's sizes?
