Marchers brave rain to break silence

Christopher Clancy

sudden spring shower may have dampened heads, but certainly did not dampen spirits, as a small group of marchers showed their solidarity in the fight against sexual assault in the Break the Silence rally.

The event was the kick-off for the University of Idaho's Sexual Assault Awareness Week sponsored by the Women's Center and the ASUI Safety Task Force.

The march, which began at Guy Wicks Field, took marchers on a winding tour of campus, lead by Safety Task Force Chair Angela Rauch and Vice-Chair Rhonda Anderson.

Last year over 119 cases of abuse have been reported to the Women's Center. We need to increase awareness and help victims of these types of violent crimes to gain the courage to speak out and get help," Anderson said.

During the march a whistle was blown every 15 seconds, signifying the statistic of one woman battered in the United States every 15 seconds. Similarly, each minute a bell was rung, signifying the rape of one woman.

The march ended on the steps of the Administration Building where poetry, written by victims, was read and family members and survivors spoke about loss and hope. The mes-sage always: "Fight back, it's not your fault, get help, you're not alone" was heard as encouragement from the victims and their families.

"Look forward with hope rather than despair," Rauch said.

One such family was there expressing feelings of loss and encouragement. Marlene Kreid lost

Firearms training beneficial for women

Karen Cloud

The statistics can be rather frightening. According to information presented by the University of Idaho Safety Task Force, a woman in the United States is sexually assaulted every 15 seconds and raped every minute.

Don Lazzarini, firearms instructor and law enforcement officer for 18 years, presented one method of self defense in the Women's Center noon program and Firearms Women Wednesday.

Lazzarini said often women are not even presented with the option of obtaining a firearm for self detense. "Advice is always limited: change your locks, buy a big dog.... Seldom do we say, 'Get trained. Buy a gun.'" Lazzarini said firearms training is benefi-cial for women. "Those who choose and receive the training are better for it.'

The idea that a gun will be taken away from a woman and used against her is a myth, said

Lazzarini. The attacker is already prepared to commit violence. "If he wants to rape, he'll bring a penis. He doesn't look for one in the house," Lazzarini said.

In Idaho, anyone over 21 with-

The elections Wednesday saw a total of 924 students turn out to vote-less than 10 percent of the student population.

Katie Jolley, who was running unapposed for an open Faculty Council representative seat, received 545 votes.

Senatorial candidates who won seats for next year were: Ben Rush, with 507 votes; Curt Wozniak, with 463 votes; David Spangler, 389 votes; Jennifer Gish, 354 votes; Jeff Daniels, 348 votes; Stormie Anderson, 336 votes, and Brian Tenney, 289 votes.

The other candidates were Ron Woodman, Krista Brady, Rebecca Coyle, Jamie Gries, Robin Coley, Warren VanDenTop and Ken DeCelle.

Write-in candidate Dennis Sasse garnered 27 votes. When contacted for a comment, Sasse said, "I was running?'

Jeff Daniels, the only incumbent candidate, said he was pleased with the election results.

"I'm really happy with the elections. We got some really good new people," Daniels said.

Senator-elect Gish said, "I'm very happy that the students of UI have confidence in me, and I promise to do my best next year."

Catholic Priest shortage limits St. Paul's to student Mass

BOISE—Idaho's Roman Catholic bishop has sent an eviction notice to most parishioners of St. Paul's Catholic Center at Boise State University.

"As of July 1, 1996, St. Paul's will no longer be able to serve as an alternative parish for non-BSU affiliates," Bishop Tod Brown told the congregation in a letter read during Sunday's Masses.

After June 30, weekday and Sunday morning Mass will be eliminated. The priest will be replaced by a full-time campus minister. The only remaining Mass will be a Sunday evening student Mass.

That means hundreds of Boise Catholics will have to find a new spiritual home in the next two and a half months. St. Paul's serves 700, including 85 Boise State students.

The Rev. Perry Dodds, a college chaplain in the 1960s and St. Paul's first pastor, said he is "enormously surprised and sort of heartsick," about the news. One evening Mass each week will not be enough to meet students' spiritual needs, he said.

While the Catholic Church in America is growing—with 60.2 million members—the number of priests is not keeping pace. That shortage forced Brown to make cuts, said the Rev. John Legerski, St. Paul's current pastor.

"We do not have young men accepting the call to come into the priesthood anymore," Legerski told the congregation Sunday. "This is the reality (and) it's only going to get worse."

He predicted "a lot more" Idaho parishes will find themselves without priests in the future.

Several worshippers wept after Brown's letter was read. Others criticized Brown for single-handedly closing the doors.

Brown, in northern Idaho for the weekend, was unavailable for comment

Grief and anger are natural, Legerski said. But he encouraged parishioners to be Christlike in their response.

Lilac Festival Princess loses her crown after DWI arrest

SPOKANE—Lilac Festival Association officials have voted to reverse an earlier decision and remove the crown of a Lilac princess who was arrested for drunken driving.

Executive board members in charge of the city's annual spring festival said they voted to expel Sharma Shields, 17, not because of the arrest, but because her account of the incident differed from a police report.

"She wasn't as candid as she could be," executive director Ed Neunherz said Tuesday.

The board revoked the Ferris High School senior's $1,500 Lilac princess scholarship last week after learning of her April 7 arrest.

But the board allowed her to keep her crown and remain eligible to compete against the 11 other princesses vying to be named Lilac Queen.

The group Mothers Against Drunk Driving and some of the festival's 85 directors criticized the board's decision as too lenient. One director quit in protest Monday.

In response, the festival's 13 executive board members convened again Monday night and voted to remove Shields' crown.

Last week, she told festival officials she had been stopped for a broken taillight.

But a Washington State Patrol spokesman said the teen was driving so erratically that she ran a stop sign and nearly hit a trooper's patrol car.

Shields said she had just one beer at a party. The patrol, however, measured her blood-alcohol level at .11 percent, over the legal threshold of .10 for intoxication in Washington.

Many empathized with Shields, who has said she plans to talk to school children about the evils of drinking and driving.

"What's done is done and everybody ought to move on with the Lilac Festival," said former Spokane Mayor Sheri Barnard, who was a Lilac director for 10 years. "Let Sharma get on with her life."

If convicted of drunken driving, Shields would serve at least one day in jail and surrender her driver's license for at least 90 days. She has a May 6 court date.

Court says law allows Northwest logging

SAN FRANCISCO—The timber industry can log thousands of acres of old-growth timber in the Pacific Northwest without environmental restrictions under a new law, a federal appeals court ruled Wednesday.

The law, signed by President Clinton last July, is known as the "salvage rider," but all the trees affected by the ruling are healthy. The timber was sold to high bidders starting in 1989, but logging has been delayed by disputes over protection of the northern spotted owl and other wildlife.

The law required the government to allow logging of the previously sold timber without further review under environmental laws, such as those protecting endangered species, and without allowing suits under those laws.

The Clinton administration acknowledged that the law covered 410 million board-feet of green timber in Oregon and Washington, but disputed the industry's claim to another 246 million board-feet on Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management land in those states.

U.S. District Judge Michael Hogan agreed with the industry's view of the law and allowed logging to begin last October. Hogan's ruling was upheld Wednesday in a 3-0 decision of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Six visitors to Freeman compound

JORDAN, Mont.—A state legislator who negotiated with the antigovernment Freemen said Sunday he will meet with them again, probably sometime this week.

Karl Ohs said he believes the nearly month-long standoff between the Freemen and FBI agents can be concluded without bloodshed.

Ohs was one of four Montana legislators who met and talked with the Freemen earlier this month. Negotiators also met with five Freemen members on Thursday.

Cult leader refuses to speak at 'Trial of the century' subway gassing in Tokyo.

Asahara, whose disciples once drank his bathwater to show their devotion, did make one brief mumbled statement near the end of the session.

Under Japanese law, the proceedings will continue despite Asahara's refusal to make a plea. He will have another chance later.

Twelve people died and more than 5,500 were injured when sarin nerve gas spread through cars in central Tokyo at the height of morning rush hour on March 20, 1995. Many of the injured still suffer neurological, eye and internal problems, along with psychological scars.

For reasons having to do with rules of evidence, Asahara is charged with 11 deaths and more than 3,700 injuries.

If convicted, Asahara could face death by hanging. The trial is expected to take years, with most sessions separated by weeks or months. A second session was set Thursday, but after that there was to be a month-long break.

Yeltsin runs in tight race

MOSCOW, RUSSIA—After being buried in the polls for months, Boris Yeltsin has surged into a dead heat with his Communist challenger for the first time, benefiting from an aggressive campaign designed to put to rest concerns about his health and habits.

With less than eight weeks until the June 16 presidential election, experts now see Yeltsin's health as perhaps the biggest factor in the race. The president was hospitalized twice last year with heart problems.

So far, the 65-year-old president appears to be not only holding up well under the strain of the campaign, but enjoying himself. Appearing at a Kremlin news conference Sunday alongside President Clinton, he guaranteed victory—a prediction so sweeping it made Clinton smile.

But two months is a long time in the turbulent world of Russian politics. And at least a third of the electorate is still undecided, whether it be about Yeltsin or the elections in general.

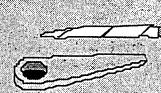

Yeltsin was supported by 21 percent of respondents compared to Zyuganov's 20 percent, according to The Moscow Times-CNN poll, released Monday and published in the newspaper Tuesday.

Economist Grigory Yavlinsky ranked third in the poll with 6 percent, and ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky and retired Gen. Alexander Lebed were next with about 5 percent each.

Senate barely approves budget

Janet Birdsall

Should students be able to vote on how their money is spent?

Seven ASUI senators answered "yes" and five said "no" Wednesday in their weekly meeting

The senators were voting on a bill to put the ASUI budget on the ballot next fall. The budget portion of the ballot will only be an opinion poll.

The fall ballot will include a list of ASUI-funded departments and students will be able to indicate whether they want more, less or the same amount of money spent for each department.

"The bill is intended to gauge student interest. This is not a bill that's claiming to set policy. The voting on these issues will not set policy. It's strictly to gauge the interest of students on each of these items," bill sponsor Jay Feldman said.

Most of the senators took part in a lively debate on the bill.

"That's all fine and good, but you're still not going to accurately gauge what the students want. Only 10 percent of people vote," Senator Chris Houck said.

Feldman responded, "We're sitting here because we trusted 10 percent of the student population to select us to be their representative."

President Brian Kane joined the debate from his seat in the audience.

"The reason we're representing those students is that they don't have the time, nor the desire, to educate themselves on all of these issues," Kane said.

"We're not going to be able to solve anything by just throwing it on the Internet or just throwing it before the students," Kane said.

> H H H

There were suggestions that the budget poll might get more response from students than senators have been able to get from their living groups.

"It's not going to end student apathy, but hopefully it'll help a little bit," Senator Brandon Jessup said.

"Maybe we don't need to target the living groups so much anymore. Maybe we should start targeting clubs and organizations who are proactive within our system," Kane said.

"This is not a bill to cure apathy. It's another way for us to draw information from the students," Feldman said.

A roll-call vote was taken. Senators Zahrah Sheikh, Jim Dalton, Bonnie Spears, Jonathan Glenn and Chris Houck voted against the bill. Senators Sue Pierce, Sasha Nash, Sean King, Jay Feldman, Brandon Jessup, Jeff Daniels and John Hoyne voted for the ballot budget poll.

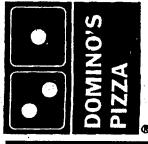

In other business, the senate approved next year's budget, and approved a bill to create the ASUI Magazine. The senators voted down a bill providing a common office hour for themselves.

DOE waste may come to Idaho

Zach Smith

The U.S. Department of Energy recently released a draft Environmental Impact Statement that names Idaho as a potential home for over 200 tons of plutonium and enriched uranium surplus.

Specifically, the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory is one of six sites that the DOE has looked at. The others are the Nevada Test Site, Washington's Hanford Site, Tennessee's Oak Ridge National Laboratory, South Carolina's Savanna River Site and the Pantex site in Texas.

The surplus plutonium and enriched uranium comes from the ongoing dismantling of the U.S. nuclear weapons arsenal. The DOE now needs a safe location for this weapons usable material out of reach of terrorists, political factions and other governments.

Idaho is no stranger to nuclear waste. Already, Idaho stores about 4.5 tons of plutonium, mostly at the INEL's Argonne National Laboratory West.

Former Governor Cecil Andrus opposed the shipments of nuclear waste that came to Idaho and now Governor Phil Batt is trying to do the same thing.

In an agreement between the DOE and the state of Idaho last October, Batt agreed to allow spent reactor fuel into the state for temporary storage in exchange for cleanup of radioactive contaminants.

The agreement put a ban on shipments of other types of waste besides spent fuel. Also, a mandate for the removal of all spent fuel in Idaho by 2035, was included.

The Snake River Alliance, an environmental group in Boise, is afraid that the DOE would be disregarding the agreement if they chose Idaho as the storage site.

"The DOE believes that plutonium is an asset," Micheal Jones of the Snake River Alliance said. "But their plan is to make it unusable."

By bringing the plutonium and enriched uranium in as a weapons grade asset, the DOE believes it can subvert the ban on waste, Jones said. "But, once they get it here, their plan is to turn it into waste," Jones added.

Jones expressed his "desire not to become a nuclear bomb material processing center or a de facto depository."

Batt has spoken out against the possibility of Idaho being the site of this long term storage. In an article by Brandon Loomis two weeks ago in the Idaho Falls Post Register he quoted the governor as writing, "If DOE decides to bring either plutonium or highly enriched uranium to Idaho for long term storage rather than treatment, Idaho will regard this as a direct violation of the spirit of our agreement."

However, the DOE doesn't consider this surplus weapons material nuclear waste.

"From our perspective, it would not violate the agreement because it is not a waste as defined in the agreement," said Brad Bugger, spokesperson for DOE.

People have tried to make an issue out of this technicality about whether or not this material is waste, Bugger said. "But, it is really not an issue."

"We're not going to force this mission down Idaho's throat," Bugger said. If the people of Idaho don't want this to go through than the DOE won't push it, he said.

Besides, "the DOE feels that it is highly unlikely that it will come to Idaho," Bugger said.

"Idaho is simply one of six 'reasonable alternatives' that we are required by law to look at," Bugger said.

Summer school offers flexible opportunities

Alissa Arndt

The University of Idaho summer session offers a unique opportunity for students to further their college education.

Summer session presents students with the chance to take courses that are not available during the regular school year. There will be a special course on Vietnam offered only this summer in the early three week session, May 20 through June 7. Marilyn Levine, a visiting associate professor from Lewis-Clark State College, will be teaching "Vietnam: Revolution in Full Circle." The course examines the whole context of Vietnam history and culture. Levine travels to various schools to teach the course.

Sharelynn Agre, marketing intern in the Summer Programs and Extended Learning department, said, "We wouldn't even be able to have this course if Levine wasn't teaching it. There's been a high demand at other schools for this course."

Also offered during summer session is an intensive Spanish language program. Students can complete one year's worth of Spanish language study in seven weeks. An extra one to two credits can be earned by adding the optional lab. This class is offered June 10 through July 26.

Students can also save money by enrolling in summer session. Tuition fees are being raised again this fall. There will be a 9 percent increase in fees for in-state undergraduate students and a 5 percent increase for out-of-state students. Summer school students save money since there is no out-of-state tuition for summer classes and the fee increases are not implemented until fall. There is a flat fee for both resident and out-of-state students of $81 per credit for undergraduates and $108 per credit for graduate students.

Summer session has flexible scheduling so students can still work or enjoy some summer vacation time. There are seven different sessions in the summer. Session dates can be found in the summer session catalog which can be picked up almost anywhere on campus.

Summer session also allows new college students to get a jump on their college career with the Summer Start program.

Dr. Sid Eder, director of Summer Programs and Extended Learning, said "Summer Start enables some students to get started on their college career in a more relaxed and more supportive atmosphere." There are a variety of core requirements and lower division courses offered. New students planning on majoring in engineering can save themselves a whole semester by taking English 103 and Math 140 through the Summer Start program.

There are a variety of workshops offered throughout the summer session. Nationally recognized actor/singer/storyteller Betty Kopit is offering two workshops for teachers and teachers to be, "Tell It! Stories of Many Cultures" and "Building the Classroom Community: Creating Environments for Student Success."

Faculty Council makes list, checks it twice

Shawa Vidmar

In back-to-back meetings throughout April, the faculty council is trying to clear its metaphorical desk.

The faculty council also has commencement on their minds. Members of the council are currently going through the thick list of students who will be graduating May 18 and going through commencement for accuracy. There was some grumbling as to whose job this really is, but then they conceded that it had more of a symbolic importance than anything else.

Carol Grupp, the director of the Human Resources/Risk Management Department reported on insurance premium increases. The recommendations suggest a moderate increase for the biweekly employee contribution, dependent premium and copayments for prescription drugs. This is to counteract the increasing rates nationwide as to not become overwhelmed later in the year. The increase is also to accommodate the increase in pre-

Professor Ginny Junk proposed an aging studies minor. This brought up discussion on the roving issue of an American studies minor. There was some thought as to which department would be responsible for these minors, brought up by Professor Charles McKetta. The thoughts were that the responsibility would move annually among four departments. Most were in favor of utilizing courses and resources the university already possesses.

Silver and Gold celebration honors Bell

Adrew T. White Staff

University of Idaho Interim President has given the students 28 years of service, support and experience. He is best known as a man who has always been here for the students, alumni and university.

The annual Silver and Gold Celebration will be held in his honor today at 3:30 p.m. on the Administration Lawn.

The Silver and Gold Celebration is held each year in recognition and honor of those individuals or organizations that have given their time, effort and support to UI. Traditionally the Silver and Gold celebrates the creation of the Alumni Center. A Colorado Spruce will be planted in the Presidents Grove in honor and remembrance of President Bell.

"It's not just because he was a president, it's because he was a great president," Director of the Alumni Center Flip Kleffner said. Among his many positions at UI, Bell has served as a professor, was named dean of the College of Education in 1980, vice president for academic affairs and research in 1984 and 1991, and in 1995 he came out of retirement to serve as the interim president of UI.

The success of the Silver and Gold Celebration is due in part to the hard work and persistence of Ann Olson and Ken Carroll, the co-chairs of the celebration. Carroll will act as the master of ceremonies during the Silver and Gold Celebration.

"We've dedicated ourselves every Wednesday for five months in order to make this a success," Olson said. "I think it's great to see the UI come and thank President Bell for his dedication to the university."

In conjunction with the Silver and Gold celebration a philanthropy benefitting Upward Bound will be recognized. Upward Bound is a program that Bell has deeply cared about that benefits minority and disadvantaged stu-

"It's a great event because we are starting the first annual philanthropy for this event and I hope all the living groups and university take part in honoring President Bell," Olson said.

Associate director of the Alumni Center Pam Farmer said, "President Bell is a very special individual that has provided tremendous service to the university, we're delighted to have this opportunity to honor him."

A brass quartet will be performing at the ceremony and in the event of inclement weather tents will be provided for protection.

The event ended quietly with the hanging of nearly three dozen shirts as part of the Clothesline Project. Each shirt represented a victim of sexual assault or domestic abuse. Some shirts were worn to the clothesline, while still others represented victims that either couldn't attend or who had died at

Wife uses old law to ostracize husband

Associated Press

LONDON—In David vs. David, Rachel wears power suits and sells high-tech medical equipment; Moses is a computer programmer.

Theirs is a 1990s divorce, but with an ancient twist: Their most potent weapons have been plucked from the weathered pages of Jewish law.

Mrs. David, acting through the British rabbinate, won a rare order against her recalcitrant husband: Until he grants her a religious divorce, no observant Jew may speak to him or come within six yards of him.

The order, called a "nidui," could have an impact throughout the Jewish world, where women's groups are increasingly pressuring religious authorities to do more to help women like Mrs. David.

This sends out an important message for other recalcitrant husbands," said Blu Greenberg, an American feminist campaigner for women's rights within Jewish law, speaking from New York. Rabbi Berel Berkovits, the religious judge behind the nidui, said: "It's having a powerful effect. It's depriving him of his social freedom, and he's sensitive to

David, contacted recently by phone, said only that he was outraged by the order but would not comment fur-

His reaction pleases Mrs. David, who said that since the nidui, her husband has taken action to renew negotiations that might lead to a settlement including a divorce. "This is hurting him. He's the sort of person who likes to be welcomed into people's homes," she

The nidui was a response in kind to the equally ancient punishment that David imposed on his wife. Although he initiated their civil divorce after she left him, he refused to assent to a "get," a religious divorce. For younger wives who remarry in civil ceremonies, not receiving a get can be devastating. Ancient rabbinical laws dictate that the children of their second marriage are "mamzers"-bastards shunned by the Jewish community.

The same is not true of children fathered by Jewish men who remarry in civil ceremonies, as long as those offspring are born to Jewish women. That has offered men in many Jewish communities a relatively painless way to harass or pressure former spouses.

"It's grossly unjustified," said Mrs. David, 30. "It's got to be put right."

The Davids married in 1983 when she was 17 and he was 30, then separated in 1991. Mrs. David cited abuse and took their three children.

David was convicted of assaulting his wife after the separation and was given a suspended sentence in "Violence is a sense of control," Mrs. David said.

NASA teacher:

"Now, he's trying to stretch his control out."

The religious judge who handled their case, Pinchas Toledano, admits he did little for Mrs. David, arguing that Jewish law left him no choice. He derides Mrs. David as an "actress" for going to the news media.

"The husband creates the union, saying, 'Thou art wedded unto me by this ring according to the law of Moses and Israel," Toledano said. "The wife is passive. That's the law."

Like thousands of other women in the same position—called "agunot," or chained women—Mrs. David faced an uncomfortable choice: Abandon prospects of remarriage, or abandon Judaism.

"Judaism is my life," she said. "I observe all the commandments, I keep the Sabbath and eat kosher food, and it's important that my children do, too. I won't run away just because I have problems.'

Mrs. David sought a shunning order after hearing that rabbis belonging to small ultra-Orthodox sects in New York had used the nidui. Rebuffed by Toledano, she approached Berkovits, who is higher in the hierar-

Already under pressure from Jewish women's groups to find creative solutions to the divorce dilemma, Berkovits saw the nidui as an answer. The mainstream Orthodox rabbi persuaded his colleagues to issue the order in January.

"We knew it would have repercussions throughout the community," he said.

And beyond. Jewish law operates on precedent, and other Orthodox communities will take notice of the order to shun a recalcitrant husband.

The director of Israel's rabbinical courts said he welcomed the British rabbis' action, although he said existing laws in Israel suffice to deal with the problem.

"Here we can force a husband to give a get," said Rabbi Eli Ben-Dahan. "We can take his driver's license away, we can get him fired, we can close his bank account. In some cases we can put him in jail."

But Israeli feminists say those laws do not go far enough. There are still an estimated 1,000 agunot in Israel, many with husbands already in jail.

Non-Orthodox Jews are also affected by the divorce problem. Jews who have married in Reform and Conservative synagogues often seek an Orthodox divorce to be certain their future children will avoid the "bastard" stigma.

Greenberg, the New York feminist, said a nidui would have less impact in the United States, which has a diverse Jewish community of 5 million people, than in Britain, with its cohesive community of 300,000.

"There's no centralized authority in the United States," she said. "A man shunned in one community could move to another."

"The Sky is No Limit," was the emphasis of Barbara Morgan speech Tuesday in the Janssen Engineering Building. Morgan practices what she preaches as Christa McAulliffes' backup for the Challenger flight.

National Morgan is the & Space Aeronautics Administration teacher representative. Morgan has taught for 23 years and became active in NASA at the Johnson Space Center in Houston in June of 1995. Morgan is currently a third grade teacher at McCall Donnelly in McCall, Idaho.

While going through testing and training for space flight as a teacher Morgan said, "I had no idea of all the requirements I had to go through."

She referred to lung and cardiovascular testing, measuring muscle, body length and upper body strength.

Why did Morgan apply for the teacher in space program? Morgan said, "I couldn't help myself."

Morgan is often asked if she is afraid to partake in the space program after the Challenger tragedy. Morgan tells those people, "Risk is as important a lesson as any other.

"The space flight widens and opens opportunities for children," Morgan said.

For example, a student who cared very little about school asked Morgan, "Why do you launch things in space?"

Morgan answered, "For the same reason we go to school, to learn." Morgan is a firm believer in learning by discovery.

Off-campus students do care, dammit!

Hi, I am an off campus student, and you know what! I care about what happens on this campus, believe it or not.

I am saying this in response to a comment newly elected ASUI Senator Jennifer Gish made at a candidates' forum last Monday night. Gish was asked if she thought that since there are 13 senators and only two represent the off-campus students which make up half of the campus, that this was a problem. Gish said that off-campus students don't care so they don't matter.

Gish, a freshman living in an on-campus Greek house, basically said those of us who live off campus—which is more than half the students who attend the University of Idaho—just don't care what happens on this campus. Therefore, the representation of off-campus students is not a problem.

There are people who live on campus who don't care about the goings-on at UI, and there are people who live off campus who don't care what happens. Then there are the students who live on and off campus who care about what goes on around UI.

It is not fair to make such a broad generalization as Gish did about off-campus students. Some of us offcampus students do care about the stuff going on at UI, Dammit.

I will use myself as an example. I am the editor in chief of the Argonaut. I came to work for the student newspaper because I wanted to improve it. I have worked at the Argonaut for the last two years because I care! More than half, 64 percent, of the Argonaut staff live off campus and most of them work here because they care!

I participated in the ASUI breakfasts with the university presidential candidates. I won't be here next semester—I graduate in August, but I still cared about who the university chose as its next president.

Those of us who live off campus do so because:

• It's cheaper.

• We don't have to eat Marriott food day in and day out. I know that everybody doesn't have to eat Marriott food, but off-campus students aren't forced to eat it!

• We can do whatever the hell we want.

• We don't have to share bathrooms with 20 other people.

• We can have alcohol in our places of dwelling and we won't get in trouble.

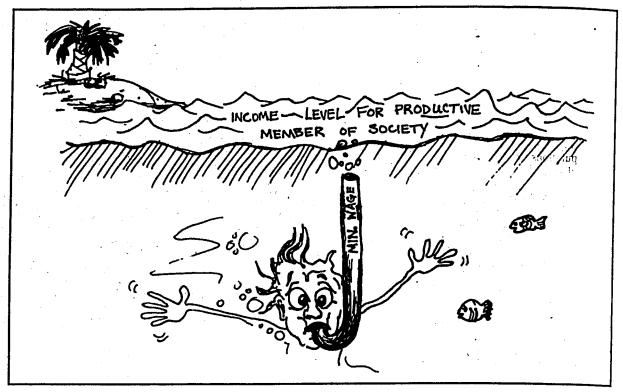

• We have more space and privacy.

Perhaps I should give Ms. Gish a break. She's young. She's a freshman. But she has thrust herself into the vortex of the public eye (see Dr. Atwood, I did learn something from your media law class), and now she must face the consequences. A person shouldn't go around saying that off-campus students don't care about the university they attend, especially when there are several media personalities around her.

Letting go is never easy to do ife is about changes, big and small, that affect each and every one of us. Life is about growing, about maturing and learning things through experience. And life is about letting go.

To let go doesn't mean to stop caring, it means you can't do it for someone else. Although most of us don't like to admit it, there are times in our life when we have to let go of people, past events or unrealistic dreams.

Upon graduating from high school you had to let go of friends, of those childish days and of your parents as you left for college. You moved on to different friends and experiences in college.

To let go is not to betray the past, but to have faith in the future. Letting go of past events doesn't mean to stop remembering them. It is realizing they are events that are behind you and you cannot live those days anymore. It is also letting go of the times you've been hurt by others, whether by action or choice, and realizing that forgiveness conquers all.

To let go is to admit powerlessness, which means the outcome is not in your hands. There are times in your life when you realize not everything is in your control, no matter how hard you work at it. This could mean being the CEO of a huge corporation. Or this could mean your children eventually grow up and make decisions of their own.

To let go is not to enable, but to allow learning from natural consequences. Often you can see how you'd like to help someone not to make mistakes. You see the experiences you've been through and know that this person could get hurt in the long run. But you need to realize that experience comes from learning by yourself, not from being told by someone else all the time.

To let go is not to judge, but to allow another to be herself. No matter how much we think otherwise, no two people are alike. You cannot always take the way you were raised and compare it to the current times, or someone else's situation. In this regard, you need to be open minded, allowing others to find their way in the world. People think differently, feel differently and act differently.

To let go is not to dominate, but to be willing to let things happen. Oh yes, we like to have control. We like to see things the way we'd have it, with no other options available. But by dominating you'll create puppets, not people. Give people a choice and you give them life. Take that freedom to choose away and you'll end up smothering them.

To let go means to fear less and love more. Fear. What a high motivational factor for always trying to be in the middle arranging the outcomes. You fear that you'll lose your friends. You fear that your children will grow up and forget about you. You fear for the people you love the most. But you need to understand, if

Spokesman begs: plant bomb here

've long suspected the collective journalistic brains editing and writing the Spokesman-Review were a few neurons short of a cerebral cortex, and an item in last Thursday's paper only helped to prove the point.

In prelude to what proved to be a drooling, grueling recap of sadism and idiocy on the first anniversary of the destruction of the Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, the Spokesman-Review included the following item in a sidebar titled April 19 in History:

"April 19, 1943—Adolf Hitler's Nazis storm the Warsaw ghetto in Poland, killing 60,000 Jews. Some people compare the Nazi assault to the federal sieges at Waco, Texas and Ruby Ridge, Idaho."

There is something dreadfully wrong with this statement. Several things wrong, actually.

The paper acted irresponsibly in the first place by printing such a preposterous comparison that will only serve to fuel the Towering Infernolike maelstrom of venomous antigovernment propaganda blowing around from that militiaman's exploded shack 10 miles east of Portland, Ore., to Justus Township, Mont., in what may very well be known in the future as the Whacko Belt.

Pas d'andouilles ici

In making its uncredited and preposterous claim, the Spokesman-Review seems more than eager to declare the Lilac City as the Whacko Belt capital.

For as I recall, Randy Weaver cannot claim the innocence and helplessness of a Jew in 1943 Poland. Our government did not come into Idaho with the idea to liquidate every living soul present at the Weaver cabin. If I'm not mistaken there is a distinct difference between law enforcement (which the federal government was attempting before Weaver decided to play Mr. NRA Nasty Gun Totin' Boy) and a systematic race war, which the Nazis attempted.

Our government did not go into Waco bent on ending the standoff with that horrific fireball that fired the flames of unfounded anti-government paranoiacs. Perhaps the government's judgment was not at its best, but one must realize those inside the compound were not only prepared for the Apocalypse but were also prepared to bring it to pass even at the cost of their lives and the lives of their children.

What happened in Poland was the result of an oppressive government bent on the destruction of a virtually powerless people. What happened at Ruby Ridge and at Waco was the result of individual power-driven egomaniacs named Randy Weaver and David Koresh who flaunted the just and correct laws of the land for their own self-gratification while neglecting to think of the innocents on both sides who would be caught in crossfires or holocausts.

Randy Weaver and David Koresh, along with all their respective followers, may very well be seen as victims, but to compare these incidents and their deaths to the government-sanctioned slaughter of strictly lawabiding citizens is to compare the injuries resulting from a paper cut to injuries resulting from an anti-personnel mine.

Our government is not out to "get" us, whatever connotations that moronic phrase entails, and for the Spokesman-Review to print such irresponsible and incorrect items in their news coverage is proof positive that as we hope the paranoia, fear and mistrust will ease and finally disappear, there are always those willing to stake their reputations on idiocies and add dry fuel to the fires we surely hope will soon die out.

So a hearty thank-you goes out to the Spokesman-Review for adding to the explosive pile of unfounded anti-government rhetoric that may soon blow up in our faces with an explosion that will make the destruction in Oklahoma City look like an anthill disturbed by a single well-placed firecracker.

Funny thing is I know why the paper is acting so irresponsibly: they're jealous.

I did write jealous, and I meant it. They're jealous because while federal buildings in Seattle, Portland and Boise received threats the day the Alfred P. Murrah building came crashing down, Spokane could do little but sit on the sidelines and watch while other Northwest towns got the national press.

Then they got their moments of glory and the "success" of it all just went to their heads.

Some disgruntled customer of the Ridpath Hotel in downtown Spokane killed two people in a restaurant rampage, and paper employees were kept gleefully busy writing about the wonderful crime that might finally put their city on the map.

Two pipe bombs explode in Spokane Valley—one outside of the Spokesman-Review office—and the general reaction of the paper seemed to be: Two measly pipe bombs? Spokane deserves better! We're the biggest city between Seattle and Nantes, France, for crying out loud!

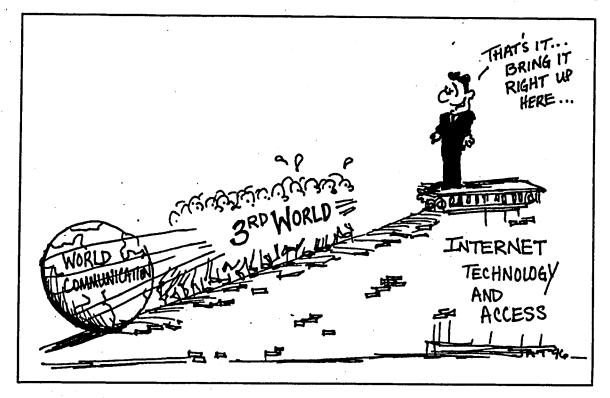

All that really seems to be missing from their news coverage is the distribution to strategic Spokane buildings of a bunch of white arrows bearing the message: Place Big Bad Bomb Here. Please.

Seems Spokane is no longer satisfied with the hokey-folksy-towndrunk-who-drives-his-pick-uptruck-through-a-brick-wall type of crime and wants a repeat of Oklahoma City, of Dunblane, Scotland, of the Moses Lake high school shootings-indeed, of Ruby Ridge and of Waco-to occur within city limits so they too can scream and bleed and shout smugly to the rest of the nation that they too are either the poor helpless vic-tims of domestically-brewed terrorism or the martyred victims of a massive government conspiracy. Have we become so fixated on the death and suffering of others we no longer care to live ourselves, because life itself isn't exciting or important enough to rate national news or an episode of Rescue 911?

Seems some are all too eager to swap peace and poverty for the prestige and power of big-city attitudes while swallowing eagerly the problems that come with the oxymoronic western-U.S. concept of progress.

Our big cousin to the north, the fair Lilac City, seems all too eager to seize upon such carrion-laced distinctions. Just last week the paper reported without any irony that Spokane is indeed at the geographical center of the Whacko Belt and seems pleased to swap this newfound fame for the honorable, if laughable, distinction of being the largest city between Seattle and Nantes, France.

Maybe this is just Spokane's way of coping with the identity crisis it shares with its smaller cousins in the Idaho panhandle. I suppose congratulations are in order, but rarely have congratulations been given for such reprehensible social and political retrogression.

Letters to the Editor

HRS needs to apologize

Since January 1996, the HRS Banner conversion process has caused pay check problems for many UI personnel. As the HRS Banner module was released in full production without the old system running parallel, department time-keepers have been unrealistically expected to learn the new system in full production. As a result, trial-and-error has been effecting the take-home pay of staff. Pay checks for some staff have been $20, $50, $100 or more short. For some staff, deductions such as federal and state income tax, PERSI, FICA—as well as sick leave, annual leave and comp time totals—have been inconsistent from one pay period to the next. After eight pay periods, it has become almost an impossible task for us to keep up with the inconsistencies.

Corrections of one problem are now creating new problems for the pay checks of individual staff. We are concerned that with the mistakes upon mistakes we will never be sure that we have been rightfully compensated. We were forewarned by HRS in January that our net pay may vary from what it was on the old system, but that the difference would only amount to a few cents. We certainly were not prepared for the multiple errors that have occurred. Now even certified accountants would have difficulty deciphering what has happened to our pay checks.

HRS continues to ask for our patience. We are asked to wait until the next pay period for pay check adjustments. Timekeepers are expected to keep up with the constant modifications. In the spirit of fair play, I ask from HRS an apology for the inconvenience and grief. some of us have suffered due to this payroll confusion. I would also like assurance from the Finance and Administration office that each individual staff's concerns regarding his or hers pay check will be addressed to the satisfaction of the employee.

An institution's health, strength and growth is dependent on the commitment of its staff. Our commitment as staff to the institution is dependent on the trust and confidence we have in the institution's decision makers and the support, understanding, and concern they show for our livelihood.

Vandals head south for tourney or Idaho's men's tennis team, today begins Cinderella, Part Two. The Vandal men begin play in Boise today in the Big Sky Championships and look to repeat their performance of last year when the men placed third in the conference as the number 7 seed.

This year Idaho enters the weekend tournament seeded fourth behind conference favorite Boise State, Montana State and Northern Arizona. While BSU looks unbeatable for most teams, the rest of this weekend's matches should be wide open.

"I think Boise is clearly the strongest school in the conference," Vandal Coach Greg South said. "They're tough, Greg (Patton) has had the chance to start rebuilding the program five years ago. Boise is the top but I think we can beat anybody else."

The Vandals will have the chance to proven South correct in their first round match today against Weber State, the number 5 seed. Idaho beat Weber 4-3 earlier this season in a tournament at the Air Force Academy.

Freshman tennis star Jorge Aldrete agrees with South's assessment of Idaho's chances this weekend.

"With the team we have right now we can beat anyone in conference," Aldrete

Aldrete, 14-2 for the Vandals after graduating early from high school to begin playing Division I tennis, is just one of Idaho stars who have led the Vandals to an 8-7 record this spring against Idaho's toughest competition ever.

Idaho enters the tournament following a two and a half week lay-off from competition. Idaho last hit the courts against Eastern Washington, winning 7-0, Utah State, winning 7-0, and BSU, the Vandal's last defeat, 6-1.

During the Vandal lay-off, the Moscow weather has driven Idaho's tennis teams to Lewiston to practice indoors. However, Coach South believes the change in Idaho's routine should not cause a problem for the men.

As for Idaho's chances this weekend, The Vandals look to be the sleeper in the tournament. Idaho's men should be ranked second or third in South's opinion, at least ahead of NAU.

"Northern Arizona as the 3 seed is a sentimental vote. Last year they were third, they're got a weaker team this year."

Despite the Vandal's finish, if Idaho gives their best effort than South will be pleased with the tournament.

"I feel like I'll be disappointed if we don't give our best effort. If we have our best effort we could finish in the top two in the conference," South said.

Aldrete agrees saying, "It all depends on how we're playing, if everybody gives 100 percent, just great. It's a matter of getting our confidence going, than we'll have a chance to do pretty good again."

Idaho will have to defeat Weber today if they hope to return to the top four in the tournament. Last weekend, a first round lost to Idaho State by the women doomed the Vandals to a finish no better than fifth place. Idaho finished sixth overall.

If Idaho defeats WSU today, the Vandals will most likely face Boise State in the second round. The Broncos will face the eight seed EWU Eagles today in their first round match.

Despite playing in Boise, Idaho should enjoy a home court advantage over the weekend, including a possible match Saturday against Boise.

The Vandals will be hosted by boosters in Boise who South says usually prove more supportive of Idaho than Boise's own fans.

If Idaho manages to defeat both Weber, today and Boise, tomorrow, they will most likely face the winner of a MSU-NAU match for the Big Sky conference championship. Both the Bobcats and Lumberjacks should advance past their first round matches against ISU and EWU the conferences weakest two teams.

This weekend's tournament ends the Vandal's 1995-96 season and their final year in the Big Sky. South looks back at this seasons team with fondness.

"I enjoy watching the guys compete, seeing them play with intensity and enthusiasm," South said. "Win or lose we're gonna have a lot of fun."

UI women finish sixth after first round loss

Mike Stetson

Idaho's lack of experience proved to be the deciding factor for the Vandal women's tennis team last weekend as Idaho finished sixth in a tough tournament field in Boise.

The Vandal's fell to in-state rival Idaho State, 5-3, Friday in the first round of the Big Sky Championships ending Idaho's hope for a top four finish. The Vandals bounced back on Saturday to claim a 6-0 victory over Eastern Washington. Idaho closed the tourney with a close 5-4 loss to Montana State, finishing in sixth

"We were on task, then fell off task, it shows we were a little green," UI coach Greg South said.

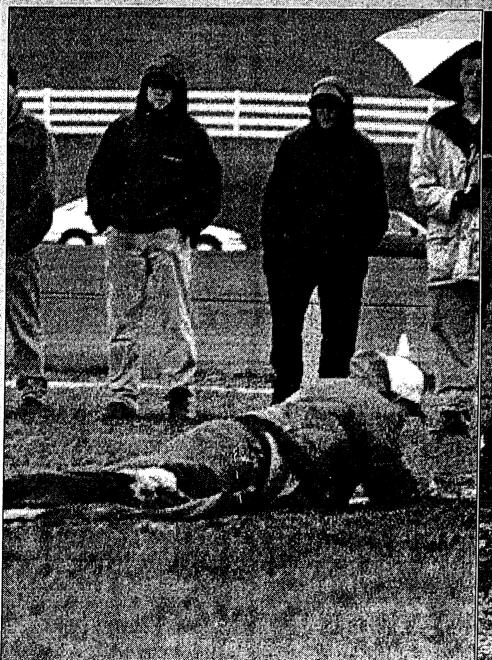

Idaho entered the tournament tied for fourth with Idaho State, which the Vandals beat in October, but the Bengals took the match en-route to placing second in the tournament. Idaho played a tough six-hour match before falling to ISU, losing two close matches which sealed the Vandals

One of those matches pitted Vandal number 2 seed Andrea Ehlting against ISU's Robyn King. King won the match 6-4, 7-5. The other match, a number 3 seed doubles match between Idaho's Gwen Nikora and Barbara Perez-Martinez and ISU's Cindy Towns and Sabine Siekman, lasted three sets before the Bengals prevailed 6-7, 6-1,

"I told Idaho State's coach, 'I thought you had a good match," South said adding his team played up and down throughout the match. "Idaho State played on a reactionary level, they plugged away at a steady level."

or years there has been speculation over whether or not relationships work in professional sports.

I am going to give it my best "Dear Abby," so to speak, to try to piece together for myself as well as you readers what exactly goes on after the ballgame.

This is a little out of the ordinary for a sports-writer to tackle such an abstract idea and try to make sense out of it, but what the hell it's nearing the end of the semester and I'm running out of normal things to write.

The most recent instance of celebrity athlete relationship to go sour is the marriage of Atlanta Braves outfielder David Justice and all-everything actress Halle Berry. The two were married for three years before finally calling it quits earlier this year. I guess Justice will have to reconsider having Berry's name tattooed permanently to his biceps, even though he has been quoted as saying he won't have it removed, because she will always be a part of him, literally.

They have made a long-lasting commitment to each other, as well as a spot in my greatest column to date.

In other relationships of similar caliber, Wayne Gretzky is married to Playboy centerfold Janet Jones, who is also well-known for her role in American Anthem, which first got the public's attention and possibly Gretzky's as well. Marvel Comics famous superhero group, the Fantastic Four, features an orange rock creature called the Thing, a man that is made of fire, a women super hero (to be politically correct) and the leader, a 50-year old man that can stretch his arms and legs.

Although Idaho's Fantastic Four doesn't feature any superheroes or freakoids with special powers, this non-fictional group of overachievers are finding ways to astonish those who follow Idaho track and

The word astonishment may be an understatement. Tawanda Chiwira, Felix Kamangirira, Jason St. Hill and Scott Whalen head the Idaho 4x400 relay team which broke the all-time school record of 3:08.66 last weekend at the Mt. Sac Relays.

Although the record time wasn't good enough to give Idaho a first place finish, being outlasted by USC (3:07.24), the time is four seconds faster than the next closest Big Sky Conference competitor.

"If we were fresh we would have beaten USC." track and field coach Mike Keller said.

Keller also believes that his four guys could be a force to reckon with nationally if a second is cut off everyone's leg of the race with the exception of Chiwira. Chiwira, who runs his leg of the 400m in 46.09, can't get much better.

This is the second time in the month of April that the school record for the 4x400 has been broken. On April 6, the team was a bit different with Garth Chadband rather than Whalen, but set the new school record at 3:09.69 before it could again be broken last weekend.

The feat of breaking an Idaho school record hasn't hit this laid back group from backgrounds other than the state of Idaho.

"I'm still new here so I really don't know what it means yet," Chiwira said.

"It's not an accomplishment until we've qualified for nationals," Whalen said. "I think that's our main Revenge may be a great motivator, but geting beat twice in stiff competition would enrage the most docile of competitors. That must have been how the Tequila Shooters felt Wednesday night in the Kibbie Dome.

Ricks', Chicks and Kicks handed the Tequila Shooters a 2-1 shootout loss in the recreational intramural co-rec soccer championship. The game marked the second time this spring the two clubs have met. Ricks', Chicks and Kicks captured a 2-0 win in pool play two weeks ago.

Neither team could muster a goal during regulation as the two squads played stellar defense, by not allowing open shots or sheap breakaways. Jason Moore, who played college soccer at Concordia College in Portland, and Heather Budolfson keyed the defensive effort for Ricks', Chicks and Kicks while the Tequila Shooters' Chad Jackson and Joanne Paige kept RCK from exploding in the O-zone.

Andy Hoobing was the star for Ricks', Chicks and Kicks. The sophomore blocked Jeff Standish's shootout attempt to clinch the victory. In addition, Hoobing added a shootout score of his own.

The Tequila Shhoters' Erik Williams shot first in the extra session and posted what would be the only score for the drinking club. After two misses by RCK, Hoobing knotted the score at 1-1. Lisa Rindt buried a shot high in the corner for Ricks', Chicks and Kicks (7-0), giving the champs the game-winning score and setting the stage for Hoobing's block of Standish.

"He (Tequila Shooters' goalie Jackson) had been diving right each time and I wanted to go the other corner," Rindt said. "It went in and I was elated."

Standish had the best chance to score in regulation. The former Colgate player let a shot fly from 15 yards out, but the attempt caught the crossbar and sailed high.

RCK was forced to go the final seven minutes without junior Mary Swain. The standout forward rolled an ankle, fighting Jackson for a loose ball on the sideline.

The injury forced Swain to miss the remainder of the game, leaving RCK without one of its top scoring threats down the stretch.

Ricks', Chicks and Kicks, which earned the tourney's top seed, kept its perfect defensive streak alive. RCK did not allow an opponent to score in regulation all season. Wednesday's championship marked the third consecutive contest, all in the playoffs, RCK won in a shootout.

"Jason (Moore) was our defensive key," Rindt said. "When Jason go the ball and carried it, someone would always drop back and support him."

Rob Ryan, Scott Peterson, Rachel Royster and Alisa Perez rounded out the championship roster for Ricks'. Chicks and Kicks.

are always flowered with both parties accomplishments, rather than the true reasons people get married

Michael Jackson married Elvis's daughter for Christ's sake, now you tell me that wasn't a media hey-day.

In the days of your Tommy Morrison's and your Magic Johnson's, these marriages fall a close second in media coverage, wanted or not. I think if two celebrities get married, so what. It's not like you mention that Tommy John has been Happily married to the same woman for years, and that she was his high school sweetheart and is currently performing her duties as a house-wife rather nicely.

I think society has an image of athletes that is often misinterpreted, especially when it comes to their private lives. People think that because the spotlight shines on these athletes, they are indestructible, and that perception is way out of kilter. If the truth be known, many athletes may marry someone who will represent them well in the public's eyes, rather than marrying someone who will represent them with the goal of lifelong happiness. Some athletes fall under the watchful eye of the media, and some avoid it, some bask in it, while others shy away from it, but whatever the case may be, marrying anyone for their appearance or name is wrong. Athletes are just like you and me in the respect that they have a right to privacy and the right to life a plentiful life, but where they get themselves in trouble revolves somewhat around this

If you are marrying or dating someone to better your image, then you are not secure in yourself. Athletes should not be concerned with what everyone else thinks, but rather with concept of what makes them happy, and not just for awhile, but more importantly for life.

4x400 relay team and other short distance events may be in its abroad recruiting of late. Keller has a great reputation in countries like Zimbabwe and the West Indies, where he's picked up guys like Kamangirira and Chiwira, both from Zimbabwe and St. Hill from the West Indies.

"Obviously they've got some speed and they're better quality athletes than we've had," Keller said.

The Fantastic Four see the key to their success as being a matter of hard work and dedication, day in and day out.

"Just hard work is all it takes," Kamangirira said. "Keep within those high goals, be competitive."

Kamangirira, now in his second year here at Idaho, has maintained a kind of consistency that isn't found by most athletes.

The Harare, Zimbabwe native has almost been a leader or a motivator type teammate, which has rubbed off on Chiwira, a freshman sensation who landed a first place victory at the BSC Championships in the 200m.

"From last year, Felix has always been consistent," St. Hill said. "To be totally honest, Tawanda has always been consistent. No matter what happens, you're guaranteed a good job from Tawanda. I was on the team last year and I was on the team earlier this year, and everytime I've run with these guys they've consistently got the job done."

Obviously, in any kind of individual or team sport, confidence is usually considered a winning edge over any kind of opponent. And as it has been proven by breaking school records and frustrating opposition, the Fantastic Four doesn't lack confidence.

"If I go out confident, then I know that I will achieve very high goals," Chiwira said. "Confidence is one of the main things that helps you in achieving these fast times. It's not just a question of winning, it's how much you win by."

Even with a great confidence in winning, the Fantastic Four know there are still things left to improve upon and areas in need of improvement.

"We all need to improve our hand-off," St. Hill said. "I need to improve on my conditioning."

"I was handing off with the wrong hand and I didn't realize it till yesterday when Jason showed me, which is screwing him up," Whalen said.

Whether improvement is necessary or not, these guys realize there is a lot of hard work still left to be finished, possibly even another record to be broken.

"The next realistic record for us is the all-time Big Sky record," Whalen said. "It's like 3:08.53. I think that would be nice to do. So we actually almost got that the last time we ran." Whalen, a senior from Bothell, Wash., is probably the most hungry of the four because he knows this is his last year.

As for the rest of the group, they know there's no feat they can't accomplish.

"None of us have ran up to par or achieved the maximum that I know we can do," Chiwira said. "If we are to do that we will chop three seconds off of our time."

Vandal team captain Katrina Burke reflected on ISU's victory saying, "the most disappointing thing was to lose to Idaho State than see them beat the number 1 seed and play in the finals."

The Vandals rebounded from Friday's loss to pound the EWU Eagles for the third time this year, winning in straight sets, and moving into the fifth place consolation game against MSU. The Eagles only came close in two matches. Sejla Serifovic pushed Ehlting who won 7-6, 7-5, in the number 2 seed match and Jessica Hempel forced Rachel Dive to earn a close 6-4, 7-6 victory in the number 4 seed match.

Despite the opening loss to ISU and finishing sixth, Idaho did have some strong moments during the weekend. Idaho's Nikora, Dive and Erin Wentworth won all three of their singles matches during the tournament, giving Idaho a strong core to build on next year. Also, number 1 seed Burke pushed MSU's Yoshika Sumita to three sets on Sunday, improving from an early season straight set loss. Idaho also showed improvement from an early season 7-2 loss to MSU. Last, Idaho will only lose two players heading into next season, seniors Andrea Ehlting and Erin Cicalo.

South looked at the weekend as a learning experience for the woman, saying "they were difficult loses, but I think it was what we needed as a team. It'll toughen us up."

Collette Theatre rounds out season

Matt Bakkwin
Contributing Writer

To round out the year, the Collette theatre will host two final plays, Allie's Religion and Some People Smoke, Some People Laugh. Both of the plays were written by two playwrights here on campus.

Some People Smoke, Some People Laugh is a play written by Jodie A. Parsley, an undergraduate student in the theatre department. It, along with Allie's Religion, were selected by the Collette Board, a group that decides which plays will be produced in the Collette Theatre.

"What makes this play (Some People Smoke, Some People Laugh) unique is that each character is trying to find personal happiness along with a social acceptance," she said. "There is all sorts of issues with that, there's religion, there's homosexuality—just how you cope with things and to try to better yourself yet be accepted by society.'

Parsley has been working on Some People Smoke, Some People Laugh for the past year.

It is the first play of hers that has been performed at the University of Idaho.

'I originally came here to learn how to write plays and they didn't have a playwriting class when I got here so I pretty much had to do it on my own. Pretty much got the project started, cause I know that is how it is in the real world, too. You aren't necessarily going to get people to support you, you have to get things started on your own. So I decided to write a play," Parsley said.

The second play, Allie's Religion, was written by Kelsey Hartman, a UI graduate

"It deals with a woman who is in conflict about her mother's fundamental Christianity and her own search for truth," she said. "She's been raised with this one idea of what truth is and as she got older she started questioning it and wasn't getting any answers so she rebels against her mother and becomes a stripper. It is something her mother doesn't know

She finally confronts her mother and tells her what she has been doing, but trying to find a way to resolve what her mother believes and so find her mother's love. It is a search for her mother's acceptance and

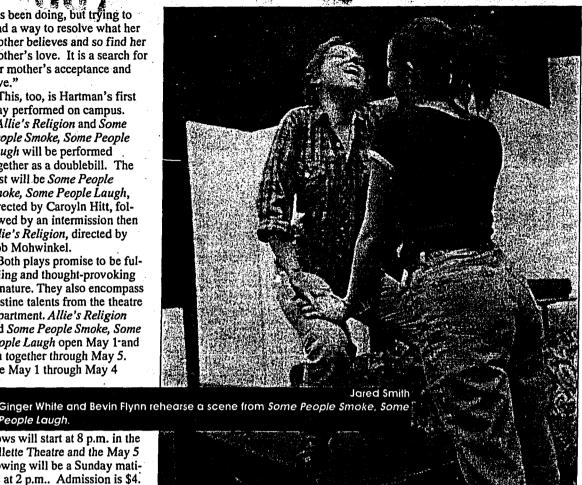

This, too, is Hartman's first play performed on campus.

Allie's Religion and Some People Smoke, Some People Laugh will be performed together as a doublebill. The first will be Some People Smoke, Some People Laugh, directed by Caroyln Hitt, followed by an intermission then Allie's Religion, directed by Bob Mohwinkel.

Both plays promise to be fulfilling and thought-provoking in nature. They also encompass pristine talents from the theatre department. Allie's Religion and Some People Smoke, Some People Laugh open May 1 and run together through May 5. The May 1 through May 4 shows will start at 8 p.m. in the Collette Theatre and the May 5 showing will be a Sunday matinee at 2 p.m.. Admission is $4.

Keeping active on campus a secret to success

Valaree Johnson

We all know one of them. They are the type of people who can eat anything they want and never gain weight. They remem-ber names and faces, have a great sense of humor, get good grades, remain calm at the scene of an emergency, and are beautiful both inside and out. You want to hate them but they are so damn nice

Meet Erica Prescott.

Her metabolism may be enviably high, but her everyday schedule isn't. Prescott, a 21 year-old zoology major with intentions of going to medical school, has known she wanted to study medicine since age five, but she quickly denies being a "science geek" as she juggles an agenda between classes of getting her real life in

Besides the pressure of maintaining high grades and an impec-cable record for medical school applications, the Golden Key National Honor Society President Prescott has the responsibility to initiate and oversee the group's activities. In addition to Golden Key, Prescott has been active as a student athletic trainer, tutor for Student Support Services and a member of the UI Dance Team.

But what has kept Prescott the busiest is making plans for her wedding this summer. "I had no idea how much was involved in planning a wedding," Prescott said. She plans to marry her high school sweetheart Kevin Neuendorf from her hometown Soda Springs, Idaho. "It might sound cheesy, but the night we met I knew we were going to last a long time," Prescott said.

Prescott spent her first year of college at Utah State University on scholarship for academics. Her interest in the WAMI program and a little influence from Kevin brought her to the University of Idaho where, like most people, she has changed her major a few times. "I've changed majors but always had the same goal in mind," Prescott said.

As a compulsive list-maker, Prescott does everything she can to stay on top of things. Being competitive keeps her motivated to study and involved.

yet she still has the talent of remaining less stressed than most students.

"My dad always told me not to sweat the small stuff. He reminded me that school was important but to go out and have fun and skip class once in awhile," Prescott said. "Sometimes I think I take his advice too well."

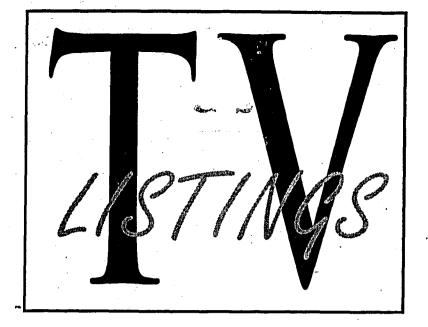

But even as easygoing as she seems, Prescott still has her pet peeves. "Spelling errors drive me nuts," she said. Failure scares her and the apathy on this campus bothers her (like anyone cares) but she continues to try and stretch a 24 hour day into 36.

Prescott hopes to see a comfortable income in her future, but more importantly she hopes to remain well-rounded and happily stress-free.

"You get out of life what you put into it," Prescott said. Best wishes to her and all the other students here trying to set the foundation for a happy future.

Hemp Fest rells into town tomorrow

Corinne Flowers

Moscow's Third Annual Hemp Festival happens tomorrow.

East City Park will be filled with the sounds of six local bands, several speakers and a drum circle open to everyone.

Events start at 11 a.m. and will continue until 7 p.m.

This year's festival is sponsored by Cannabis Awareness Reform and Education Troop 420.

Come down and hear Galactic Tofu Farmers, Bacchanalia, The River Project, Six Million Dollar Band, Calobo and the last performance of The Bedheads.
Shayne Kimball, founder and spokesperson for the festival, said the goal of the event is to make people aware of the many and varied uses of hemp.

Hemp, or Cannabis sativa, is one variety of cannabis. It is grown for industrial purposes and contains a negligible amount of THC, the chemical found in "recreational" or "medicinal" cannabis... Hemp is strong, durable, pest resistant and is easier on the environment than products like wood or cotton.

One acre of hemp can produce four times as much paper as an acre of trees.

Hemp can be manufactured into fiberboard for building. The product is just as strong as wood fiberboard but utilizes no trees in the Hemp can be spun into fiber for clothing. It creates less impact on the environment than cotton. It can grow in harsh conditions and requires no pesticides. Hemp clothing is stronger and lasts longer than any other fiber. Many popular designers such as Calvin Klein, Ralph Lauren and Adidas are already using hemp in some of their fashions.

Hemp seed is one of the most nutritional foods known to man. Its ability to grow in harsh environments makes it ideal for climates where drought and famine are prevalent.

Perhaps the most exciting use for hemp is as a biodiesel flue all the can be extracted from the seeds and processed into a clean burning automotive fuel with half the emissions of petrofuels.

Many places already have thriving hemp industries-Asia, England, Holland, France and Germany as well as several other European countries.

Both Vermont and Colorado are in the process of legislation that would make hemp farming legal.

The legalization process would affect only industrial hemp, other varieties would be subject to other legislation in order to be legalized.

'My goal is to educate people about industrial hemp as an alternative fiber to stimulate economic growth," Kimball said.

Indeed, hemp seems to have a promising future. In 1994 gross sales totaled $5 million.

In 1995 that figure rose to $50 million, and in 1996 hemp is projected to be a $500 million industry.

To get more information on this useful resource, attend the Hemp Fest tomorrow at East City Park.

Vandaleers reunite Sunday

Justin Cason

The University of Idaho Vandaleers, lyrical icons on the campus for the past 60 years, will be having a reunion concert on Sunday in the Administration

The event brings together over 130 singers spanning the entirety of the Vandaleers' existence and will for the most part be led by Glen Lockery, a conductor of the group for 34 years before retiring in 1981.

American folk songs, spirituals, an Irving Berlin medley and Mozart's "Mass No. 14" will all be performed by the reunion

"It's really a beautiful work," Lockery said of the Mozart piece. "It's got soprano, alto and tenor soloists and an orchestra to accompany it.

The choir will close with a sort of trademark of the Vandaleers over the decades—UI songs, including the UI fight song.

The current Vandaleers will also take part in the festivities, performing their own array of folk songs and spirituals, and eventually teaming up with the veterans in the closing ceremony.

Sunday's performance is the third such reunion concert in the last 16 years. A 1980 concert celebrated the 50-year anniversary of the Vandaleers, while 1989's show was in honor of UI's 100th anniversary.

This year's spectacle comes merely because the second reunion was such a success and boasted a capacity Student Union Ballroom audience.

Lockery hopes Sunday's concert is just as successful as the previous two. "I'd like to think we could fill the place up," he said, later emphasizing that there are still tickets available.

The present Vandaleers, who have just returned from a twoweek tour in Italy, are some of the last of a fading musical tradition at UI, Lockery said. "There was a time when singing was a lot more popular (on campus)," he said. "All the living groups competed against each other.
After the 1960s, this began to die

Sunday's program will begin at 3 p.m. Tickets, which can be purchased at Ticket Express, are only $4 for UI students and children under 12, and $8 for adults. For additional information, call the UI Alumni Office at 885-6154.

Health issues to be focus at Women's Center

Valaree Johnson

Many students are battling the colds and sore throats who have infected them throughout the unpredictable weather changes this spring, but unlike a cough or itchy throat, the symptoms of some women's health issues don't go away so quickly.

The remainder of the Women's Center noon programs will focus on women's health issues and educate women about prevention and treatment for the ailments to which women are subjects. While some may believe they are too young to be at risk or to begin learning about such issues as menopause, Educational Programmer Susan Palmer said it's never too early to empower yourself with choices.

"All these programs are about making women's needs met against the stereotypical ways that women's health problems are usually dealt with," Palmer said. "That's really an ageless issue." Even if you aren't at fear for risk, Palmer said it's always good to understand what others may be going through. There are certainly young students that live with these problems," Palmer said. "Almost all of us know somebody who deals with them-it helps to understand what others are experiencing."

The following programs were scheduled in response to a survey by the Women's Center in which women voiced a concern and desire to learn more about women's health issues.

On Tuesday, Mary Murdock, coordinator of the National Alliance of Breast Cancer Organizations, will discuss the statistics of breast cancer, the chances of getting it and the choices that can be made following detection. She will walk women through a proper breast examination using visual representations.

On Wednesday, Terri Grzebielski, a nurse of 14 years and physician assistant of four years, will talk about what happens during menopause. She will explain the options, treatments, and anticipations of menopause.

Tuesday, May 7, Carol Bradford, a nationally-certified holistic health care practitioner and massage therapist, will speak on holistic alternatives to traditional treatments of female problems such as PMS and menopause. She will show how depression and stress can be relieved through acupressure, energy work and other holistic treatments.

The programs begin at 12:30 p.m. in the Women's Center Lounge and are open to all members of the community.

Beer Games 2: The Exploitative Sequel

You thought The Complete Book of Beer Drinking Games was less than complete. "I can think of a BUNCH of games they missed!" you said to yourself. Maybe you thought of writing your own more complete book of drinking games.

Well, you can put that pen away because Andy Griscom, Ben Rand, Scott Johnston and Michael Balay have written the beer drinkers' New Testament, Beer Games 2: The Exploitative Sequel.

"So many readers sent us great new beer games that we had to write a sequel," Johnston said, "Also, with this newly revised, edition, beer can continue to be of fans, we would have had towork to write this sequel; Rand added.

Drinking tirelessly to research and develop Beer Games 2, the authors compiled games Beer Games 1 missed, new games and games faithful readers contributed. However, it is not the games themselves that make this book such an improvement over illustrations, lists and essays that make this book an amusing cover-to-cover read as well as a vital party resource. The "Bars We've Been Asked to Leave" list and Beer Catalog farce are entertaining, as well as the original essays, "Chugging with Ivan, Circa 1984: A True Story" and "Beer and Sex part II: Beer Goggles."

Beer Games 2 is chock full o'

The book opens with preaddressed postcards for you to mail in support of the authors' causes: one to the U.S. Olympic Committe to have Blow Pong (Boot Factor four) an official Olympic event and one to the David Letterman show to have the authors appear as guests.

Unfortunately, Beer Games 2 is a love-it or hate-it book. Generally, if you take pleasure in imbibing and general rebel-rousing from time to time, you will deeply enjoy this book. If you are of the opinion that alcoholis evil and directly related to the downward spiral of western society, you provably won't take much pleasure in reading the 141 pages of this book that glorify and encourage the recreational tax decuction for us!"

"If it weren't for our housands denouncement of drunk driving, of fans, we would have had housever it a sobering plea from however, is a sobering plea from the authors to enjoy your beer responsibly. Beer Games 2 retails for around $9 from Mustang Press at fine local book sellers. I would recommend one copy per house or group of drinking buddies. Keep it on the reference shelf, next to The Compleat Ramen Cookbook and The Joy of Sex, where it will be right at home.

Veices for Human Rights to host auction

Justin Cason

Tolerance and quality artwork will be the theme at the second annual "Auction for Justice" this Sunday.

Voices for Human Rights, a group founded over two years ago in support of tolerance of minorities, is sponsoring the auction. The proceeds will go toward combating the acts of the Idaho Citizens Alliance, an anti-gay and lesbian group.

"Voices for Human Rights is a coalition to prevent legalized dis-crimination in Idaho," said Joann Muneta, secretary for the group.

It was this same coalition which was responsible for the "No on 1" campaign in the 1994 local elections. This crusade was partly n Pifa za faragaranananananananana laba (kijukasa) alaka ja jaka) alaka j responsible for halting attempted anti-gay legislative measures by the ICA.

"We handed out pamphlets, hired speakers, put ads in the newspapers and had a booth at the farmer's market," Muneta said.

"We really wore ourselves out."

Sunday's auction is one more step in Voices for Human Rights' renewed fight for open-minded-ness, as the ICA is currently seeking to garner the signatures necessary for a second non pro-gay action on the November ballot.

We believe the people in Idaho are pretty tolerant and intelligent,' Muneta stated. "We want this auction to help them understand what we're trying to do."

Local artists such as Louise Falls, Floyd Peterson, Jeanne Leffingwell, Bill Voxman and Rebecca Rod will be placing their works on the auctioning table in such mediums as paintings, sculpture, photography and jewelry. Native American art, books and even posters will also be on sale in an auction which will cater to just about every appeal and price

The afternoon will also feature music by guitarist/folk singer Dan Maher. Maher will take the stage a little before the auction actually

The auction, which had been postponed because of a blizzard earlier in the year, will be held at the Moscow Community Center from 3 p.m. until 6 p.m. Tickets, which are $5, will be available at the door or in advance from Book People in Moscow. For additional information, call 883-3267.

ECORDING TO MATT: IEviliEmpire by Rage Against the Machine age Against The lachine's latest release, Evil Empire, is just another sad case of ip-hop-meetsard-rock.

Evil Empire: has taken four years for RATM to produce and the band attributes the delay to individual interests the band members were pursuing. Yeah, oh, and by the way guys, you should've kept pursuing your individual interests instead of regrouping for another unsuccessful attempt at fusing rap with metal. The last time I saw this successfully pulled off was when Public Enemy and Anthrax combined forces for "Bring RATM's primary demise is their immature singer, Žach De La Rocha. De La Rocha works hard to achieve a sincere preachy presence but his voice sounds too uneducated. So, the result is an onslaught of groundless shouting with plenty of vulgarities. His lyrics, mixed with political themes and poetry, are sometimes difficult to follow and again the tone of his voice removes any genuine historical basis from the songs Regretfully, I must give credit to Tom Morello, RATM guitarist, Considering the genre that RATM is trying to capitalize on, Morello's impressive guitar work has helped bridge the (huge) gap between rap and metal. With a plethora of crunches and scratches Morello has allowed the band to go another album without having to add significant keyboards and samples.

With the exception of Morello, the rest of the band sounds like college students who play basements and frat parties for beer money.

I appreciate melody, flow and original meaningful lyrics. RATM music lacks melody, flow and while De La Rocha's vocals may exhibit meaningful characteristics to virgin ears, any meaning that is derived from De La Rocha's lyrics is merely re-hashed political history and

I never appreciated the first RATM album, and, well, after listening to Evil Empire my appreciation level still remains unchanged.

After four years since their self-titled EP, Rage Against the Machine has brought out a full length album titled Evil Empire. It seems that Rage has indeed been working through rumored break-ups and the unfortunate broken arm of drummer Brad Wilk to bring their fans a different breed of music, something that differs from their first album.

In a way it was to be expected with this band: Their lyrics have radically broken into different avenues of political activity and their music has tread into a unique flavor of guitar work. Nothing on Evil Empire is done halfway. Rage has taken their music, again, to its extreme end, by playing tight and develop-ing a rhythm that has brought them into their own genre of music. They are not thrash, nor are they hip-hop like some other newspapers have labeled them.

Rage Against the Machine's Evil Empire is a tour-de-force in political activity, but everything comes down to a question of tastes with Rage: meaning or music? They provide both to the active and passive listeners out there. Songs like "Bulls on Parade" talk about deterioration, both in Mother Earth and of society, while at the same time its guitar work is a choreography of pounding rhythms spiced up with a bite of jazz influence.

Nothing negative can be said about Evil Empire, but countless positive things can be said. This album differs from their first in the fact that the music has changed slightly. There is no question, though, when you push play on your tape or CD player that it is Rage. After hearing the first song, "People of the Sun," you will know it is Rage. I believe it is their unique style and tightness that separates them from all other bands, maybe making them one of the best bands in the industry right now.

Evil Empire has a total of 11 tracks. All are to say that Evil Empire already is the best album of the year. Hootie and the Blowfish may have been the best band last year, but they never had to compete with Rage. It is rare to find a band that is tight-tight in the fact that Rage recorded "Bombtrack" from their first album before they ever played a live show together—and intelligent.
