Dear Dr. Rolland,

I am writing for information of which I trust you will be able to give me.

As president of the NAACP I received your letter about an opening for "Coordinator of Minority Programs" and I sought out a young lady I thought could do the job and we begin to get our information into your office.

Her name is Theresa Williams - Santa Ana, California.

She wrote me last week saying all the nice things about her, but she didn't get the job. Therefore, I am writing to request why?

Theresa, I felt could of done a good job if given the opportunity. She met the qualifications listed in the job opening, she a black woman, young etc.

My real concern is if the "Univ of Idaho" is truly going to open the door for minorities or are they just sending out letters to minority groups for their records.

Two things please:

- (1) Why Ms Williams didn't get the job. (I understand there was no personal interview with her)
- (2) Who did get the position and what were their qualifications.

I intend to follow through on this because we received two job openings from the College this week.

I await to hear from you.

Sincerely
Ellis H. Casson
